

THE UNIVERSITY

OF ILLINOIS

LIBRARY

780.5

MUN

v.7'

OF THE
CITY OF CHICAGO
JAN 1 1915

26 June 15 1915

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

LAURA WESSEL

MEZZO CONTRALTO. SONG RECITALS OR ASSISTING ARTIST

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Part-Songs and Piano Works by

R EVEREST FREER

(pupil of Bernhard Ziehl)

Published by

Wau Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
& Co., 1367 Broadway, New York ny Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epig

Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 524 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JANUARY 1, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company, and Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	GRAND RAPIDS
Abbie S. Fridenberg	Louis McKay
110 Carnegie Hall	2 Nelson Place
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodls
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
PITTSBURGH	Sidney Silber
Catherine Elston	Univ. School of Music
University of Pittsburgh	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Mus'ic
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	446 W. 40th Place
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall.	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7

Chicago, January 1, 1915

No. 1

Editorial

PLEASE NOTICE

Music News never, by any chance, is late in printing. Always, this paper goes into the postoffice on Thursday afternoon, and ON HOLIDAY WEEKS IT USUALLY IS PRINTED EIGHT OR TWELVE HOURS EARLY.

All changes of advertisements should reach us invariably on Monday—all programs on Tuesday on ordinary weeks and on all holiday weeks programs should come on Monday if possible.

We are moved to these remarks because of the fact that every week recently we have received important matter too late in the week for current printing, and last week especially we received many church programs for Sunday as late as Wednesday and Thursday. Some of them, in fact, came hours after the paper was printed.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

In spite of the alarms of war and the prediction of vari-hued croakers, the season of 1914-1915 so far as it has progressed in the United States of America has not been a bad one.

On the other hand, and in many ways, the season has developed successes and growths which were not thought of at the beginning.

The general business situation of the country is distinctly better now than in September, and it is therefore safe to predict that having weathered the first half of the season so well the music world has nothing to fear from the second half but, on the other hand, has everything to hope for and much good that may safely be anticipated.

Music News therefore wishes to bring today a message of Optimism and Good Cheer!

To every music interest of the country—to all artists, teachers, and music workers in every field—we wish a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

THE CENTURY OPERA COMPANY

That the Century opera season would be carried to its full announced time has been questioned by everyone who has observed developments from the very beginning of the season, and yet it is with poignant regret that Music News chronicles the fact that this week is the last.

“Verily what shall it profit a man if he’s on the right road, if he’s going the wrong way?”

True, Chicago will have had six full weeks when the company closes, and that, perhaps, is enough for this year anyway—but the deepest regret is felt in the disbandment of the company and the fact that the dates in other cities have been canceled.

For the Century is an amazingly good company and has given a series of performances in this city which will bear comparison with the best we have ever had.

Chicago, perhaps, needs a serious scolding for the neglect of the opportunity to hear this company in English opera at very reasonable rates, and from time to time it will be well to analyze the various reasons for this neglect.

It seems to be proven beyond any question that, no matter what may be said by the press and the strong individual exponents of “opera in English,” this country is not yet ripe for it. In Chicago and New York it has been given an absolutely fair trial—and the people have refused to support the idea. True, the question of inadequate translations is still very much unsolved and the Century presented but two librettos which were at all good, these two being, however, wonderfully fine. They were “Carmen” and “Romeo and Juliet,” poetical texts for which had been provided by St. John-Brennon.

The public, however, did not notice the difference between these and the others and neglected all alike.

As has been stated in Music News persistently, the productions have been wonderfully fine in all matters pertaining to dressing and mise-en-scene, the chorus has been really marvelous and the orchestra thoroughly adequate.

The oft repeated assertion that there were “no stars,” has been proven a false one also, for the principals have been as uniformly good as in any grand opera company and many of them could have been developed into popular stars by a management so disposed.

True, certain singers have been overworked and some voices which made good impressions at the first of the season became worn and “tired” at the close. This was merely a matter requiring only a little readjustment of forces, however.

The one item in which any blame can be attached to the management of the season in Chicago lies in the fact that publicity for the company has not been well taken care of.

A practical publicity man could have found a hundred ways to increase public interest—the advertisements have been far too meager, the “talk” about the company has been strictly restricted—all of which may be the policy believed in by the Messrs. Aborn, but which, as a matter of cold fact, does not appeal to Chicago.

WHY NOT AN OLDER MODEL?

Too many young American musicians are attempting, in their composition, to mimic the ultra-modern French and German writers.

Something absolutely new is, of course, to be desired, and no American music will succeed permanently except that which has in it something unique and original and something also which smacks of American soil.

But the whole music development of the world throughout all the past belongs to America, as well as to all other countries. The legacies of all Europe are ours as much as they are anyone else's.

Why, then, must our young composers choose always the most freaky developments of Europe for their models?

Why not try to write a song like Schubert's rather than to everlastingly imitate Richard Strauss? Why not write some “little pieces” à la Mozart rather than everlastingly to imitate Schoenberg?

Surely it would be much more difficult to write a Mozart-like piece than one which is Schoenbergish.

And if Mozart be deemed too much of the misty past, why not try to write something that has as its elegant model Chopin?

Whatever else he did or did not do, Ethelbert Nevin did most emphatically write things which at least suggested the Chopin style and his works are full of the most beautiful melodies also. It is very easy to toss such composition aside with a contemptuous remark as to its “saccharinity” and simplicity, but how many of the imitators of Strauss and Schoenberg could, by any stretch of their powers, write a melody which was even remotely comparable to those which flowed so freely from the soul of Nevin?

CHRISTMAS CARDS

Musie News felt very rich in friends on Christmas day because of the fact that so very many had been so thoughtful as to send cards and letters of greeting. So many of these were there, in fact, that it is not possible to detail the beautiful sentiments thus expressed.

In no item has the printers' and engravers' art reached a higher plane than in the evolving of unique and beautiful

Christmas greeting cards and to this item many Chicago musicians had added their own individuality and good taste.

The result was thoroughly pleasing. Among the most attractive of all the many cards was a Christmas carol card, charming in its make-up and sent with good wishes from “Cora” and “Herb,” which, being put into more formal nomenclature, means Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Libberton, to whom, and to everyone who so especially reminded us of the season, and to every other friend of Musie News, we render thanks and a sincere wish for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

CHICAGO STUDIOS TO THE FRONT IN OPERA

Again has the work of Chicago studios been endorsed in the selection of Hazel Eden Mudge and Worth Faulkner for the performances of “Guido Ferranti” at the Auditorium on Tuesday night of this week, and their success was not only creditable to them, but also to the teachers who have made such appearances possible.

Mrs. Mudge has for a long time been a pupil of Herman Devries and has often appeared in his concerts and opera performances, while Mr. Faulkner has been with Thomas MacBurney for several years and has appeared in many studio functions as well as in other concerts, opera, oratorio, etc. This item goes to emphasize the fact that Chicago studios are fully equipped to prepare pupils for any sort of public endeavor and an entire opera company, including orchestra, chorus and principals, could be recruited right here. When will such a move be made?

THE GALA BILL AT THE OPERA

A wonderful “Gala Night” bill has been announced for tomorrow (Saturday) evening as the “farewell” of the Century Opera Company to Chicago, and, in fact, as the last performance they will give, at least this season, anywhere.

In view of the fact that very many beautiful performances have been given here to woefully inadequate houses, Chicago musicians should rally to the defense of the good name of the city musically, and should see to it that on Saturday evening the Century people face a sold-out house. This would be something of a compensation, though a very tardy one, and Musie News believes that everyone who buys tickets for that performance will be vastly delighted. The bill, as shown elsewhere in this issue of Musie News, includes some of the most popular items of the repertoire and practically every member of the company is to appear.

WAR—AND HEREAFTER?

(The following poem was written by Mary Lindsay-Oliver and sent out on a handsome card to her friends as a Christmas thought:)

Fight! For the fight is upon you!
War, with its Death and its Arms,
Rivets the heart in the battle.
Heedless of any alarms!

Teuton—and Son of a Briton—
Frenchman and Belgian and Slav
Warring with ruthless endeavor
To kill and to capture—and have.

Is there no thought but the glory
That blinds with its false ray of light,
That teaches in martial vindictum
That “Physical Might is the Right”?

Has the peace-loving Sun God of Freedom
Flown off in the wake of the Day
When Humanity struggles in fetters.
And fighting—forgets how to pray?

When machine-gun, shrapnel, and bayonet
Have ravished a town and its life,
Can the Conqueror in truth with his conscience
Rejoice in result of the strife?

With no love in his heart for his foemen
And no place for compassion or balm,
Has he lost in his brute force and fury
The peace of the hundredth psalm?

Not lost—but the while blind and futile
He trusts in “the Might of the Right”
That will crush out the Wolf that is howling
Its way in “the Strength of the Fight.”

And though Son of a Briton—and Teuton—
And Frenchman and Belgian and Slav
Are slain in the horror of battle
And lie in a soldier's grave—

The “Peace of the World” will not falter
In the hearts of the true and the good,
For the Great Ones will ever remind us
To love—and to save—as we should.

And out of the chaos of battle,
And out of the din—and the strife—
There will come an awakening to all men
Of Truth—and the meaning of Life.

When the heart shall be freed from Horror
And Love reign—never to cease—
Then the Nations—and all the World over—
Shall bask in the Sunlight of Peace!

MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER.

PEACE ON EARTH

Throughout our land, on Christmas eve, was revived the ancient custom of placing lighted candles in windows, emblematic of the Christmas spirit of “peace on earth;”
and in the hope of thus fostering the great peace movement of the world, which has for its object the abolition of war and war's alarms.

A beacon prophetic is gleaming tonight
From palace and cottage—a tiny, soft light—
Ensymboling that pledge which the angelic band
Confirmed with the Star over Bethlehem's land

When, born in Judea, the little Peace Lord Came heralding love, the sheathing of sword.

Forgot have the nations that dwell o'er the main Christ's mandate of peace? Was it spoken in vain.

That hatred of Christian toward Christian should burn,

Till Christian for help to the pagan must turn,

While the Demon of War lifts insatiate head

To gloat on his harvest—the fields ripe with dead?

To war-sundered homes in that Old World
gray,

Where thickening shadows of horror play,
And Hope hides her face in dense mantlings
drear,

These tapers of peace signal courage, and cheer.

From American hearts that in sympathy beat

With the moans of the victims of death and defeat.

Thanksgiving they teach that our land is at peace;

They plead that the strife of our brothers may cease.

Flame brightly, Love's sign to the races wide
That "God's in His Heaven" this dark Yuletide,

Ordaining, perchance, beyond our ken,
His "Peace upon earth, good will to men!"

ADA A. FISHER.

— # # # —

Garfield Park Church—At the Garfield
Park Methodist Episcopal Church, Hall's
"The Shepherd King" was sung last Sunday evening under the direction of C. W. Edwards. The choir was assisted by Mrs.
Emma Sollitt Sherman.

VOICES MADE BEAUTIFUL

by being perfectly placed, focused before attempting to sing.
Our new book tells just how to transform weak, tuneless, unpromising singing and speaking voices into beauty, sweetness, power. Falsetto to pure tenor. Robust health. Desired talents cultivated, through animation of controlling nerves. Price
$1.00 present lessons, or by correspondence. Mme. Girard
& Richards, 818 E. 51st Street, Chicago, Illinois.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Concert Recital
209 South Harvey Av. Oak Park, Ill., Phone O. P. 1478

CIVIC MUSIC CLUBS

In addition to the artists' recitals given under its auspices, the Civic Music Association has commenced the organization of the local clubs in some of the parks. These groups are called "Civic Music Clubs," a comprehensive term which may include adult or children's work, according to the needs of the community. At Seward Park, Elm and Sedgwick streets, children and young people are being given lessons in singing and Dalcroze Eurythmics by the Misses Tennis Mitchell, Margaret Taylor, Rose Theiler and Charlotte Gregory. These groups will give a large part of the Christmas program at Seward Park on Sunday, December 27, at 3 p. m.

The Civic Music Club of Dvorak Park, Twenty-first and Fisk streets, consists of a children's chorus in singing and Dalcroze Eurythmics, under the direction of Miss Albie Sladek and Miss Minnie Lawson, and a chorus of Bohemian domestic girls is conducted by Miss Sladek. These groups will give a program early in January, the date to be announced later.

At Mark White Square, Twenty-ninth and Halsted streets, the children's chorus is conducted by Mrs. G. M. Norbeck and the "Volks-lieder Verein," a German woman's chorus, is conducted by Mari Ruef Hofer. These two groups will present a Christmas program Sunday evening, January 3, at 8 o'clock.

The Civic Music Club of Hamilton Park, Seventy-second and Normal boulevard, consists at present of a choral club conducted by Mr. Edward Collins. It is the purpose of this club to develop other departments, including a study club, orchestra and children's chorus.

A community chorus which meets at the First Baptist Church, Thirty-first and South Park avenue and is conducted by John Allen Richardson has just affiliated with the Civic Music Association and from now on will be known as the Civic Music Club of the First Baptist Church. Their first program will be given Sunday evening, January 10.

It is the purpose of these clubs to foster a community interest in music and to provide an opportunity for developing local talent. While self-governing, the local officers and musical conductors are working closely with the Civic Music Association to bring about a city-wide organization with a well defined purpose and program.

— # # # —

Orchard School—Walther Brauer, 'cellist of the Orchard School of Music and Expression presented the Goltermann (A minor concerto for violoncello, with Mrs. Perry J. Power at the piano, last Friday evening in Auditorium Recital Hall, assisting Mme. Jane English, lyric soprano. Tuesday evening, December 29, Mr. Brauer will give a joint program with Miss Jessie Armager Power, canteuse, with Mrs. Power at the piano, at the residence of Mrs. Kilner Fox Thomas, 555 Barry avenue, when a program of 'cello-dramas will be presented by the trio.

Pangbourne—Miss Annette Pangbourne was soloist at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church on last Sunday, singing incidental solos in several anthems and also the offertory solo, "Glad Tidings," by Brewer.

HECKSCHER

Personal

Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG

110-111 Carnegie Hall

D.

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO SONG RECITAL PUPILS

SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

NORA LORAIN OLIN VOICE

303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET Soprano WILLIAM Composer- Accompanist

1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8868

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes

TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS

SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW

CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn A.

J. E. Wilford

PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO

CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS

PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER

TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
1775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING

HAROLD BAUER

Recognized throughout the world as one of the greatest pianists of all times, writes of the

MASON & HAMLIN

CABLE PIANO CO.,

Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

It gives me keen pleasure to testify once more to the excellence of your pianos.

Since my first visit to this country eight years ago, my admiration for these noble instruments has increased with each successive tour.

The instruments I have used this year not only represent the most perfect examples of the piano maker's art, but fulfill every imaginable requirement from the point of view of both pianist and audience, and are the most superbly beautiful instrument that I know.

HAROLD BAUER

General Factors for
MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Miss Grace Stewart Potter, a Chicago pianist and protegee of Mrs. George M. Pullman, will be heard for the first time in recital next Sunday afternoon, January 3, at 3:30, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Miss Potter has recently returned from Europe, where she studied with Leschetizky and Busoni.

Mme. Marcella Sembrich will make her only Chicago appearance in song recital next Sunday afternoon, January 3, at Orchestra Hall, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Mr. Frank LaForge will be the accompanist. The program has been printed in Music News.

Walter Damrosch, conductor, and the New York Symphony Orchestra, will be heard in an orchestral concert Sunday afternoon, January 17, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, the world's greatest contralto, will give a song recital at Orchestra Hall Sunday afternoon, January 10, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Mount Union Conservatory—At New Philadelphia, Ohio, the Mount Union Conservatory presented three splendid pupils' concerts just before the holiday vacation. These were dated December 4, 10 and 17, and the programs were of a character to reflect much credit on the school.

Music in Chicago

AN AMERICAN PROGRAM

The Society of American Musicians presented Isaac Van Grove, Henry Linden, Hugo Kortschak, Alexander Krauss, George Dasch, Emmeran Stoeber, Albert Lindquest and Leo Sowerby in the following program of American compositions, at Fullerton Hall on last Tuesday evening:

Sonata, F sharp minor, Op. 5 (For piano and violin).....Guy Bevier Williams

Elegiaco, con passione

Andante espressivo

Presto

Allegro hieramente

Mr. Van Grove and Mr. Linden

Quartet (for strings).....Isaac Van Grove

Andante—Allegro con molto

Andante

Mr. Kortschak, Mr. Dasch, Mr. Krauss,

Mr. Stoeber

A Garland of Songs, Op. 72.....Louis Adolphe Coerne

In Twilight

The Bells Are Ringing Far Away

Over the Tree-Tops

At Sunset

Love Came at Dawn

Mr. Lindquest

Eight Little Pieces (for piano and 'cello).....

Leo Sowerby

Tranquilly

Broadly

Moderately

Capriciously

Fairly Slow

Pompously

Very Expressively

Retrospectively

(To be played without pause)

Mr. Sowerby and Mr. Stoeber

Terzetto (for violin, viola and 'cello).....

Eric De Lamarter

Allegro moderato

Andantino quasi allegretto

Allegro giocoso

Mr. Kortschak, Mr. Dasch, Mr. Stoeber

With such an array of artists as were concerned in the presentation of this program it goes without saying that the work was well done; in most cases it was exceptionally well done.

The purpose of this review is, therefore, not so much to tell how the various artists delivered themselves of their tasks as to comment upon the program itself.

It is vastly to the credit of the Society of American Musicians to present such a program and to gather such an audience to judge of the works as was that of last Tuesday evening.

It is believed that the program was listened to with the greatest of interest and that the audience which heard it was one which was thoroughly capable of forming an opinion which was worth considering. It must be said at once, therefore, that this audience seemed to like every number on the list and that there was no particular choice made as between them.

It is the purpose of this review to tell frankly the impression made upon the writer by each number, simply because it is believed that only through outspoken opinion can we ever arrive at any satisfactory conclusion in regard to new works.

It must be remembered, however, that what is said need not be considered in the remotest degree as final, for, after all, it is but the opinion of one person, after a single hearing of the works in question, and no one can definitely judge of any work on such short acquaintance.

Not all of the Guy Bevier Williams' "Sonata" was heard, but the last two movements suggested very emphatically that this writer has many fine ideas and that he has worked hard to put them in concise and interesting shape. The "Presto" was particularly characteristic, the last movement was less so, but still created the desire to hear it again.

Mr. Van Grove's "Quartet" might just as well have been announced as from the pen of any one of the modern French writers. It introduced far too much material, was painfully diffuse and very much lacking in form. There were many moments of interest, however, and there was an overlay of color which held attention always. It is thoroughly believed that Mr. Van Grove can do much better but it is surely advisable for him to study simplicity of utterance.

The songs by Coerne were more melodious than most things on the program; in two instances at least, notably so. In a cycle of new songs such as this, either there must be printed words on the program or else the singer must enunciate with great clarity, in order that the audience may judge of the poetical value of the verse at the same time it listens to the music. In this case there were no printed words and the enunciation of the singer was far from perfect, so that it is impossible to say whether the songs have vitally interesting texts or not. The accompaniments to these songs are particularly beautiful and they were played by Mr. Van Grove with great significance.

The "Eight Little Pieces" by Sowerby must be regarded either as an imitation of Schoenberg or as a burlesque on that writer.

If the former, one must emphatically express the opinion that almost any other model would have been better; if the latter, it must be confessed very readily that the burlesquing has been done cleverly and effectively. Beyond any question both Mr. Sowerby and Mr. Van Grove have shown great skill and great judgment in the color and effect in their work, the trouble in both cases being, it seems to me, that simplicity and directness both of melody and of form have been utterly sacrificed to the use of great masses of color, which, while dazzling for the moment, leave no satisfactory impression afterward.

Unquestionably, the De Lamarter "Trio" was the best piece of the program. Its first movement proved especially lucid and full of intelligence, while the other two were well in contrast to it and thoroughly reasonable at all times, though Mr. De Lamarter also knows how to splash on the color when he likes.

This work, and also that of Mr. Williams, may confidently be expected to take a permanent place in American music literature.

Fortunate indeed was the program committee in securing such splendid artists as those appearing at this concert. Messrs.

Kortschak, Stoeber, Krauss, Dasch and Linden were all that could have been asked in the ensembles, Mr. Stoeber excelling particularly in the Sowerby pieces. Mr. Van Grove and Mr. Sowerby both played with artistic finish and great musical feeling and Mr. Lindquest showed in his voice a very distinct gain in his middle tones, which formerly were thin.

C. E. W.

MRS. WEBSTER AND MRS. WHITE IN CHICAGO

Ada Sloan White, reader, and Marion Coryell Webster, pianist, gave a concert Friday afternoon at the Auditorium Hotel for the Colony Club.

Mrs. White is an artist of rare merit, unusual in her versatility and charming in her manner. She has the power to win, enthuse and hold an audience.

One of the interesting features of the program was that most of the music played was of Mrs. Webster's composition. She played temperamentally and with fine technic.

The program included piano numbers by Chopin and Mrs. Webster, played by Marian Coryell Webster, and the readings were all given to musical accompaniments by Mrs. Ada Sloan White and were all given to music composed and played by her.

EFFA ELLIS TRAINING CLASSES

A circular is being sent out by the Effa Ellis Perfield Music School in the McClurg Building, Chicago, which is well worth the study of any teacher who is interested in modern pedagogics in any branch of music.

The first page of this circular contains an "Eye Picture" of notes, which was drawn by a seven-year-old pupil in one of the Effa Ellis Perfield classes and this alone is enough to prove the practical value of the teaching inasmuch as it furnishes proof positive that the little girl knew exactly what she was about and was able to demonstrate the relative values of all notes in ordinary use.

The circular, however, has much more of interest than that, and, in entirety, gives a splendid illustration of the value of the normal classes now in session at the school.

Bachmann—Ella Bachmann, the much admired Chicago soprano, is as busy as ever during the holidays. She sang Christmas songs and told fairy tales to the little folks at the North Shore Women's Christmas celebration. Several times the soprano sang at the "Midnight Mission" and filled private engagements at Tracey and Rogers Park.

American Conservatory—Advanced piano pupils of Allen Spencer and vocal pupils of Edward Clarke will appear in recital Saturday afternoon, January 9, at Kimball Hall.

FOR RAPID PROGRESS IN PIANO, USE Thorne's Indicator.

It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT.

No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $50; mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THORNE, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

FRED H. HUNTLEY SINGS AT HAMILTON PARK

The sixth program of the MacBurney series of song recitals presented at Hamilton Park Field House during the current season was given to a very appreciative audience on Monday evening, December 21, by Fred H. Huntley, bass-baritone, assisted by a male octet made up with Lon P. Payne, Walter A. Diederich, Clifford W. Johnston and Harry H. Clifford, tenors; Royal B. Smith, Herbert M. Bailey, John R. Rankl and William G. Hay, basses; John Doane was the accompanist.

It is doubtful if a more enjoyable concert will be heard at the south side park this year. It is seldom that such a varied program is given and just as seldom is it as well rendered. Mr. Huntley has been making marked improvement under the efficient guidance of Mr. MacBurney, and his splendid singing on Monday night was a source of genuine pleasure to his many admirers. He mounted the platform with the octet at the opening of the program and sang the solo part of Grieg's sturdy "Land Sighting" with a full, rich tone and excellent enunciation, thereby adding to the finish and effect gained by the octet in their commendable reading of the well-known yet always welcome Grieg work. Following this, Mr. Huntley sang "Songs from the Turkish Hills," by Clusam, which includes six difficult and very oriental numbers, namely "The Snow on the Mountains," "When I Hear Thee Sing," "A Dream," "I Know of Two Bright Eyes," "Tales They Tell" and "Let the Slaves." That he possesses a resourceful voice, fine musicianship and keen interpretative gifts was plainly evident from his masterful presentation of these songs.

At this point in the program the octet again appeared and sang in delightful style a splendid arrangement of "Still as the Night," by Bohm, and "O World, Thou Art so Fair a Sight," by Gericke. Rich, harmonious effect, which comes only from an ensemble formed by male voice, poured forth in abundance during the renditions of these two songs. In response to the enthusiastic applause which followed that fine display of chorus work, a jolly little encore was given. "Prince Ivan's Song," Allitsen; "Noon and Night," Hawley; "The Horn," Flegier; "In a Garden," Hawley, and "Marching Along," White, which comprised Mr. Huntley's last group, found him apparently at his best, especially in the first and second numbers, which teemed with resonant, colorful tones, expressive thought and fine regard as to musical values.

Mr. Doane's work at the piano was up to the usual high standard; therefore the singing was doubly enjoyed. The octet also received Mr. Doane's support in the opening number. The program came to a close with a brilliant rendition of Bullard's "Comrade Song," by the octet, which was an especially happy medium for the display of their powers.

Beloit—At Beloit College Chapel, Abram Ray Tyler gave organ recitals on December 15, 16 and 17, especially illustrative of "The Organ as the Handmaid of Religion," "As a Concert Medium," and "As a Representative of the Modern Orchestra."

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR

3833 N. Kostner Av.

Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST

Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST

Wilton, New Hampshire

Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO

RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS.

9th Floor Auditorium Bld

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park

426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST

Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL

608 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS

HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE

INDSBORO, KAS.

Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION

ITALIAN METHOD

French, Italian, German, English

407 Kimball Hall

Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE

Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-
CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy

Recital

Oratorio

Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14

Wellsbourn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio Tel. Drexel 5070
4318 Oakenwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SPERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
PIANIST
CONCERTS RECITALS INSTRUCTION
443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
607 South Boulevard Austin Chicago

CARL SCHURZ HIGH SCHOOL

The "Tannhauser" concert given December 17, under the direction of Charles Lagerquist at the Carl Schurz High School, to the general public, was repeated free to the entire school of eighteen hundred on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings of Christmas week. It is perhaps superfluous to say that in some respects the initial performance was excelled, in others not. It has been a grand experience for the participants and for the entire school. The subject of "Appreciation," so vital in the up-to-date high school curriculum, could hardly have been given more adequate treatment under any circumstances. The value of the more or less intimate knowledge gained by the whole school of a most important musical work and its commensurate preparation of them for listening to grand opera in its more ideal presentation can scarcely be calculated. Visiting music teachers and principals from other schools have left encouraging comments, as have school officials and musicians of recognized standing. (It will be pardoned if this opportunity is taken to correct the spelling of some names of soloists in the appreciative account given this concert in Music News last week. The corrected names are: Miss Christine Nielsen, Miss Mary Merrill, Miss Ruth Andersen, Mr. Harold Dosch. Credit should be given Mr. Fowler Smith, a serious voice student, for his excellent singing of the solo of the title role, accepting, as he did, the rules of the board of education, which preclude the paying for such services.)

MYRTLE MASONIC TEMPLE

Friday evening, December 18, the orchestra, under the direction of George Dasch, gave another of their excellently arranged programs before the large and enthusiastic audience that came to hear the splendid music. Mr. Dasch seems to know how to build a program that will please and at the same time comprise numbers of musical and educational value. The overture, "Phedre," Massenet, and Bizet's suite, "L'Arlesienne," were given excellent readings, followed by Lingini's delightful "Ballet Egyptien" and the beautifully rendered Tchaikowsky "Andante Cantabile" for string orchestra. The Strauss waltzes, "Village Swallows," with their color and rhythmic melody received a very effective reading, as did the march, "Universal Peace," Von Blon. Mr. Bruckner made a deep impression with his excellent playing and engaging personality. He draws a tone of great beauty, warmth and power. His artistic rendition of Saint-Saens' "Concerto" won him several rounds of merited and sincere applause, and it is safe to say he would be given a cordial welcome if he chose to appear again.

McGranahan — Thomas McGranahan, tenor, filled the following engagements during December: "Harvest Cantata," Garrett, December 6, at St. Luke's, Evanston; "Death of Minnehaha," December 11, with Carmelite Choral Club; "Story of Bethlehem," Protheroe, December 20, with the Methodist Episcopal church choir of Englewood.

MUSICAL MORNING

Tuesday morning, December 22, Mrs. Charles L. Krum gave a music program at the Fine Arts Studios, the following pupils taking part in the program: Lillian White Freyn, Miss Myrtle Moses, Miss Karpen, Miss Orschel, Miss Kolb and Mrs. John Trelease. Mrs. Krum has some splendid voices in her studios and the work of the pupils taking part in the program gave ample proof of her ability as a voice teacher and coach. Mrs. Trelease has a pleasing stage presence and voice of good quality, which she used to a fine advantage in Goetz's "Melisande in the Woods" and "Sleepy Babe," Canfield. Miss Kolb was heard in the Saint-Saens "Aria" and MacFayden's "Forest of Oaks," displaying a voice of excellent range and good quality. Miss Karpen gave some delightful interpretations of some "Kinderlied" that were very enjoyable. Miss Orschel in "The Spinning Song," "The Lanthorn," used her very pleasing voice to a fine advantage. Mrs. Freyn's splendid voice left nothing to be desired in "Das Wandern," Schubert, and Liddle's "In My Garden." Mrs. Freyn's rendition of "Wearin' the Green" was very artistic and is seldom sung better.

Miss Moses has an excellent soprano voice, and she was heard to a fine advantage in the aria from "Herodiade" and Sinding's "Sylvellin." Her singing of the Brahms number was especially artistic.

Mrs. Frederick Lewis furnished sympathetic accompaniments throughout the program that are worthy of special mention.

H. W. P.

Oak Park—A particularly beautiful Christmas service of music was given at the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Oak Park, under the direction of George L. Tenney. The choir of the church, Adelaide Brown Tenney, Annabelle M. Dickey, George Lee Tenney, Frank H. Collins and Ruth Simmons, organist, gave the morning program, and in the afternoon were assisted in "The Story of Christmas" (Matthews) by Naomi Nazor, Esther May Plumb, Eugene Dressler and G. Magnus Schutz.

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs, Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

JESSIE KING
PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Chas. E. WEEKS Basso
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
37 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Henriette Weber Piano Lecture-
Recitals
OPERA TALKS
Auditorium Bldg., Ninth Floor Tel. Harrison 4866

BALLMANN'S ORCHESTRA

Sunday afternoon, December 20, the ninth concert of this season was given before a splendid audience by the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Ballmann. The soloists were Warren Proctor, tenor; Adah Bryant Buckingham, contralto; Rudolph Mangold, violin. The orchestra was in fine trim Sunday afternoon and the playing of Halvorsen's "March" and Humperdinck's "Koenigskinder" aroused great enthusiasm. The "Andante" from Haydn's "Sixth Symphony," played by request, was so well done that it is safe to say it would be welcomed again should they chose to present it. The "Introduction and Prayer," from Wagner's "Rienzi," and "Largo," Handel, were well rendered. Mr. Mangold furnished the violin obligato for the "Largo" and won much merited applause. Steward's "Hawaiian Patrol" was given with great abandon that was very catching. Lueder's "Descriptive Fantasia" was very effective and met with great favor.

Mr. Proctor was the star of the afternoon and he was accorded an ovation for his splendid singing. His sincerity of purpose and excellent voice is winning him a host of friends and admirers. He sang a varied list of songs, achieving great success.

Adah Bryant Buckingham has a splendid contralto voice, which she used to a fine advantage in numbers by Schumann and MacFayden. MacFayden's "Cradle Song" was very effectively done, receiving a cordial round of applause for her efforts.

###

CONCERT AT ARMOUR SQUARE

Wednesday evening, December 23, the Civic Music Association presented Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto; Miss Marie Ludwig, harpist; Ethel Geistweit Benedict, accompanist, in recital. The first half of the program was not heard by this writer, who arrived just in time to hear a splendid rendition of the last half of the Saint-Saens' aria. Later Miss Huntley sang Goetz's "Melisande in the Wood," "A Lovely Maiden Roaming," Branscombe, with a fine quality of tone and breadth of style that won her much praise and a storm of applause. Miss Ludwig has a splendid technique and she gets a tone of fine quality and power that makes her playing a pleasure to hear. She gave excellent renditions of the Schaeffer "Ballade," and Cheshire's "Valse Caprice," receiving cordial rounds of applause for her efforts. The harp accompaniments were well done and deserve a word of praise, as were the splendid accompaniments of Mrs. Benedict, who never fails to please in this line of work.

###

Nichols—Alfred E. Gally, tenor, a promising pupil of John W. Nichols, has recently been chosen to complete the quartet at the Beck Memorial Church. His solos show the careful and thorough training he has received, and are a delight to his listeners. On the evening of December 20th he was heard in Matthews' "The Story of Christmas."

###

Murfreesboro—Pupils of Arthur Thomas in the college at Murfreesboro, Tenn., gave a fine program of piano numbers just before the holiday vacation. The "Home Journal" (Murfreesboro) spoke in terms of great praise of this event.

FESTIVAL SERVICE AT ST. JAMES

The program of special music at St. James' Episcopal Church last Sunday afternoon included organ prelude, "Adagio," sonata 5, by Guilman, Magnificat in E flat (West), Deus Miseratur in E flat (Buck), "With Verdure Clad" (Creation), opening chorus from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and an organ postlude of three numbers—"Scherzoso" (Rogers), "March of the Magi" (Dubois), and "Overture to Occasional Oratorio" (Handel).

The "Creation" aria was sung by Earle Abramson, boy soprano. This lad has an exceedingly pleasing voice. His tones are rich and vibrant, without shrillness, his enunciation and phrasing good, and the manner in which he carried through this big aria was a decided credit to him and to those who are responsible for his musical training.

EARLE ABRAMSON

Mr. John W. Norton, organist and choir director, has accomplished splendid results with the choir. Choir boys are very apt to force tones in singing a composition requiring great volume, thereby giving a harsh quality, but there was an entire absence of that unpleasant feature Sunday afternoon, and the work of the choir was unusually satisfactory from a listener's standpoint.

It is a compliment to Mr. Norton to record the fact that almost the entire audience remained after the service proper to listen to the postlude, and after he had finished the three compositions which comprised it no one made a move to go until he gave visible evidence that he would play no more by turning off the electric light in the loft and folding up his music. In fact, many of his hearers were not familiar enough with musical literature to recognize the end of the last composition when it was reached. They knew only that they were enjoying themselves immensely and would take no chance of missing anything. Mr. Norton knows how to play and what to play to satisfy and please musicians and non-musicians alike. Sunday's effort was a fine example.

C. J. B.

FRANK W.

Van Dusen

PIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

Daniel Protheroe

Teacher of Singing and Composition
810 FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Steele

TEACHER OF SINGING
533 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Joel Mossberg

Baritone
Teacher of Singing
309 KIMBALL HALL
Residence 1155 Belmont Av. Tel. Graceland 3752

Harriet Case

SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF MUSIC

ETHEL GROW

Contralto
Soloist Fourth Presbyterian Church
CONCERT—ORATORIO—SONG RECITAL
1002 DEARBORN AV. Phone North 2635

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST

American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORY

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR, Concert, Recital, Oratorio
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management, Sam'l B. Carton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendy

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

A VISIT WITH FANNIE BLOOMFIELD-ZEISLER

The name of Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler is a household word in the United States, where she stands for everything that is superior and fine in the art she has made so truly her own. Where besides she stands for that ideal of perfect womanhood which lends a saving grace to the profession counting her as a prophetess whose message is rooted in the truth, and as a priestess to whom the glorious rites of her art are a religion.

Real people weave round themselves—unconsciously—a garment rendering them more interesting by far than the average man or woman; and while it is not easy for the public to get at the inner lives, tastes and predilections of the elect, the lifting of a corner of the veil of mystery surrounding them lends somewhat of a vivid realism to their vague personalities. The real man or woman behind the artist is always the delightful sphinx problem of a worshipping public.

This curiosity about the great is akin to a flame that never dies out, and curiosity is often obliged to be satisfied with meagre glimpses of the truth, or turn away disgusted from a form of journalistic stultification almost sanctified by custom and long usage.

To me Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler is as many sided and absorbingly interesting in her personality as in her playing; and those who know her as a genius of the keyboard can readily recall the thousand and one moods in which she manifests her art, and in her art herself.

It is a thousand pities that the special public she has made her own in this great city can have no opportunity of admiring her in close proximity, as was my good fortune; for she is a woman of endless charm who can play as easily upon the emotions and susceptibilities of her guests as she can evoke a thousand varied effects from her obedient keyboard.

Her magnificent suite in the palatial Hotel Biltmore held more than one ardent soul waiting to be honored by a few gracious words from America's own unexcelled virtuoso the morning I called. Society women of the exclusive set; journalists, artists who came with examples of their sculpture or painting; artist-musicians who came to beg for advice; a steady stream of callers. Indeed it is the ante-chamber of a noble, an ambassador, a princess of the blood royal one might conjecture, for the chamber is spacious, luxuriously decorated and filled with flowers rich and rare, offerings from Saturday's recital.

And this important personage is the modest black-haired woman (whose visage sculptured in ivory with a golden halo might be the face of St. Cecilia herself) the world calls Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler.

Mme. Zeisler speaks feelingly of the inspiring audience which filled Aeolian Hall to hear her on Saturday afternoon, though hardly a mile away Fritz Kreisler was proving that even a violinist-soldier may live to fight another day (at least that was what I thought on Saturday). Indeed a Zeisler audience has hallmarks all its own, and not discoverable at the musical functions generally.

Imagine a row of seats in Aeolian Hall pre-empted by nuns. Not without their opera glasses either, and absorbed in watching those clever fingers flying over the black and white keys, or caressing them subtly, sinuously with an almost feline exquisiteness of touch. That wonderful touch capable of infinite shades of color, from exquisite pianissimi to sweeping stressful fortissimi.

You look at the fine, firm hands so well kept—so strong yet delicate in structure, and you remember George Eliot's description of the hands of the beautiful Dorothea Brooke.

You think of St. Cecilia, not as a Dresden-china doll sitting before a nondescript instrument of the pipe-organ variety, and you remember that St. Cecilia was a Latin—not a Saxon of pink and white; but a Roman maiden with black brows and ebony tresses, and the brunette coloring and delicate aquiline features of the marble bust of the handsome young Augustus, or the fascinating bas-reliefs of the chaste and lovely Cornelia.

And Mme. Zeisler is a Cornelia of the modern world. Her Gracchi, the three sons of whom she is so proud and whose idea calls up smiles of satisfaction when she tells you how much they mean to her, and how unconsciously their influence has helped to shape her art.

Rarely seen in the artist-ridden haunts of the metropolis, a queen among women, those are privileged indeed who are permitted to listen to Mme. Zeisler at length. But what a reward. She has a sparkling wit and a sometimes roguish humor, and she says things which keep you laughing and laughing. Naturally she dominates the scene with a marvelous magnetism, all the more delightful because the great pianist is utterly without self-consciousness.

It was a regret to be obliged to part from this beautiful personage, and as I kissed her she whispered—"It is not goodbye—I think it may be only an revoir—and who knows I may have a surprise for my New York friends before the dove burnishes itself for spring."

Concert of the Zoellner Quartet

The members of the Zoellner Quartet—which has not been heard here in many moons—(it was too busy filling engagements all over the United States)—made

If I Could Call the Years Back

Keys of F and D (50c)
Special Price, 25c

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)
New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Petrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH Published by THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

ISABEL

HAUSER PIANIST
Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present
The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Management Haense & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

GERMAINE

SCHNITZER

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

Management R. E. Johnston

Baldwin Piano Co.

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

their bow to a remarkable audience in Aeolian Hall on the evening of December 13, and sat calmly down to discuss a program of varied—indeed one might say—ill-assorted elements. While outside the rain came down as though all Niagara were being emptied over our defenceless city. It did rain cats and dogs and almost everything but dollars—and these all rain in Belgium—yet marvelous to relate the hall was well filled, and there was a string of carriages and motors before the entrance; and evening costumes seemed the rule rather than the exception in the boxes and the parquet.

But then the Zoellners are very popular folk, and their admirers always anticipating an exceptional program on the side of novelty, are rarely disappointed.

And the evening of the 13th of December proved no exception, for with almost the first measure of the Milhaud Quartet the audience realized the obstreperous, erratic and (be it whispered pianissimo) cacophonous character of the new—the very new—composition, and settled itself down with philosophical calm not unmixed with curiosity—curiosity as to when a real old-fashioned bit of melody might pop up its head to reassure a lot of people gradually growing more bewildered as the piece advanced in the most unusual combinations of fourths and fifths until chaos promised to supervene.

The first movement, entitled not unhumorously "Rhythmique," spells anything but poetic conformity; yet strangely enough curiosity as to how the whole will eventually whets the appetite for more. And indeed there is enough and to spare—en parenthese, the Flonzaleys contented themselves with two movements only; but then the weather was serene, and there was to be no risk of a flying squadron—flying out of the door into Forty-third street that is.

It will take at least a dozen hearings to satisfy the mind that this is probably the music of the future, and that when we imagined we should be most redeemed from any suspicion of harmonic deviations from the normal a cacophonous cataclysm not only threatened, but, like the rain, actually descended upon us.

The succeeding movements showed even a greater reluctance to conform to the rule of sensuous melody, and succeeded themselves in the order in which their composer had arranged them—though, to paraphrase Shakespeare, arrangement there was none—until at the conclusion of the tremendous whole the house applauded; doubtless more in recognition of the courageous labors of the dauntless, indefatigable and tremendously talented Zoellners, than with any deep-descending feeling of admiration of a composition that will have to be heard early and often and in homeopathic doses to be remotely understood or appreciated.

In a sense the "Quartet in D" by Gustave Samazeuilh—with two movements offered—is in a category with the Milhaud composition; yet in the first movement, the "Lent et Soutenu," there are indications—strongly accentuated—of a genius for pleasantly-woven melodies, original in form and color, with more than a hint that the composer has studied the forms employed by Wagner and his disciples in their symphonic building.

Again, a close study of this latest applicant of the French school for recognition must be accorded a painstaking devotion, in order to grasp entirely the beauties in which the composition abounds, though neither conventionally considered nor evolved.

Beethoven really came into his own as a melodist by comparison with what went before and came after, and the genuine applause of the evening was called forth by his quartet, Op. 18, No. 2, with its four movements, a hint of whose theme in the first movement trailed delightfully reminiscent through succeeding ones.

It was anything but difficult for the Zoellners to maintain that difficult thing, a perfect and rhythmical balance; they made the art of dovetailing their very own, and one may imagine the steady and conscientious rehearsing that precedes this wonderful accord in time, rhythm and attack.

Beauty and clarity of tone demanded instant recognition from the listeners, and that magnificent authority without which there is no oneness of intent and accomplishment, showed in everything they did.

□ □ □

Mme. Marie Narelle Star of Trenton Concert

On the evening of the 16th of December Mme. Marie Narelle was one of the stellar attractions of the great concert given in the beautiful and spacious opera house of Trenton in aid of the national relief fund of the British Isles, and, according to a letter received from a critical listener, "Achieved a signal triumph in the great aria of Tschai-kowsky, 'Adieu Forests,' from the opera Jeanne d'Arc," which she sang with magnificent sweep and tender sentiment; in the three very difficult songs of the Dvorak group of 'Gypsy Songs,' in a group of two songs, one by Mrs. Beach, the well known 'Year's at the Spring,' and Salter's dramatic 'Cry of Rachel,' which she interpreted (as many in the audience were overheard to say) as they had never heard it sung before, and in a number of encores demanded by her enthusiastic auditors."

Others who took part and received applause were William Woodhouse, Jr., who disclosed an excellent tenor, and was specially admired in Gounod's aria from the "Queen of Sheba," "Lend Me Your Aid"; May Mukle, English 'cellist, who played with grace and finish, and Horatio Connell, baritone, who afforded the audience much pleasure by his rendition of two groups of songs.

□ □ □

Concert of the Philharmonic Remarkable

Remarkable! In that with a tenor from the Metropolitan Opera House, one Eduardo Ferrari-Fontana—the good-looking young husband of the stately Matzenauer—as soloist, the ovations (for twice our handsome and dignified Josef Stransky was obliged to signal to his men to arise and acknowledge the tremendous acclamations of an unusually staid audience) were all intended for the conductor and the members of the orchestra, for their rendition, in so superb a manner, of the Rimsky-Korsakoff Symphonic Suite, "Scheherazade," and Richard Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel"—readings at once so uplifting and epoch making that the audience was carried beyond itself with enthusiasm.

Salvo after salvo of acclaim greeted these interpretations. Balance, precision and crispness of attack, admirable dynamics, perfection in accord of the choirs, characterized the readings, and the men played as if inspired by the fiery, changeable Tschai-kowskian cum Wagnerian afflatus of the Russian composer, or the less strenuous, mischievous spirit dominating the "Tone Poem" of Strauss.

Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie, No. 1," in F, found its place admirably at the finis, and its rousing outpourings of true Magyar temperament and spirit could not fail to send home a fine, big audience in jovial, if not mercurial humor and spirits.

But the soloist of the evening was the disappointment. Either he was the victim of an uncontrollable nervousness which haunted both his solos, making his small sobs wabbling in the wishy washy solo from "La Forza del Destino"; he was indisposed from a laryngeal or pharyngeal hoarseness attacking especially the medium of the vocal range, or, which seems most likely—he is a greatly overrated singer, with a small, undeveloped lyric voice in its present estate insipid, clouded and restricted, and sadly in need of a change of method.

The phrasing of Urlus last year, when he essayed the interpretation of the magnificent prayer from Wagner's "Rienzi," left much to be desired, but he ranks head and shoulders above Ferrari-Fontana; indeed it is absurd to mention them in the same breath.

Mr. Ferrari-Fontana conferred one favor upon part at least of his audience. He made evident how feeble and weak is this solo for tenor, Beethoven's "Adelaide." How impossible it is for any tenor, not a Bonci, to breathe the breath of life into this foolish and simpering apotheosis of the lackadaisical and maudlin—this outpouring of the bleating of the human calf in the throes of the sentimental—erotic. Beethoven appears to have had a weakness for the forceful—feeble variety of verse. See, or rather hear the sugar candiness of the Quartet—surnamed the "Cannon" in music as well as poetry—if one may employ this term to dignify anything so feeble and foolish, in the beginning of "Fidelio." Perhaps the Fates have sent us the French Cubists in Music as a punishment for our musical Diabetes Mellitus.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

CECIL FANNING BaritoneH. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera.

Mabel Webster Osmer

TEACHER OF PIANO
Cosmopolitan School of Music, Auditorium Building

DARLEEN WELLINGTON-MILLER

Dramatic Soprano

NEMA PHIPPS Pianist

JOINT RECITALS Address 703 Cass St., Albion, Mi h

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER

23 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7931

Allen W. Bögen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN

TENOR

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

LASHR. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR.

and

MRS.

J. H. KURTZ

VOICE
PIANO
HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL.

Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWDALE AVENUE

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Let us hope that the Adelaide of the poem was endowed with enough of self respect to reject so tame an eulogy.

And the tenor of the evening sang the song in its weary, long-drawn-out repetitions as tamely as its milk and watery kind deserved. Nor did he rise to any unexpected heights in the deliverance of the Verdi aria; for while his instincts may be healthy, he is lacking in the fervor as well as the robust organ of the dramatic tenor.

b b b

Isabel Hauser, our delightful pianist, will spend the Christmas holidays with her mother in the ancestral home in Columbus.

She is slated for a number of appearances in the near future, in conjunction with the Saslavsky Ensemble, and she will be heard in a few recitals which will be given in the spacious music room of her beautiful apartment. Among this last series a Chopin recital has been promised.

b b b

Miss Constance Purdy, with Miss Mabel Hammond at the piano, was the bright, particular star of a concert of the Russian Bayan Quartet given in Columbia University on the evening of December 16, in the auditorium of the Horace Mann School.

Her two solos, "Vision," by Moussorgsky, and "I Must Have Rejoicing," by Gliere, were exquisite examples of the singer's art. Miss Purdy was also heard in duets with the soprano, Mme. Dimitrieff and the tenor, Mr. Harris, besides the quartets.

b b b

I had the pleasure of meeting a famous American song writer a few days ago, in the office of that very clever impresario, Gertrude Cowen—none other than Carrie Jacobs Bond; a busy woman, apparently, who had been paying a flying visit to the Metropolis, arranging for the singing of several of her songs by Marguerite Dunlap for the Victor Talking Machine. These songs, which are shortly to be put upon sale, are:

"Life's Garden."

"Hush a Bye."

"The Sandman."

"Doan You Listen."

b b b

Mrs. Antonia Sawyer informs me that Mme. Julia Culp's concert on December 10 has been postponed to the afternoon of January 5, owing to a severe attack of la grippe. The same program will be given.

b b b

The great holiday of the year is at hand; the season of good giving—let us hope—and kind thoughts and wishes. The reign of Peace and Good-Will, even in times like these, when war is hold sway.

Many kind remembrances for the unique and praiseworthy editor of Music News, its advertisers and its readers.

A very Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year.

— — —

Nichols—John W. Nichols, the tenor, is booked for the "Rose Maiden," with the Oratorio Society, in Walden, N. Y., on the 20th of next month. This is his second appearance for this organization. He is also re-engaged for a second performance of Matthews' "Conversion" at St. James' Church, Brooklyn, on the 24th.

FRANCES INGRAM

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat commented as follows, recently, on the Apollo Club concert in that city:

Frances Ingram's rich voice was heard to advantage in the ever-pleasing aria from Father Gluck's pseudo-opera, "Orpheus," in which "Eurydice" laments the loss of her lover, who, according to Shakespeare, "with his lute made trees and the mountain tops that freeze bow their heads when he did sing." "J'ai perdu mon Eurydice," says the text, set to quaintly old-fashioned tonal strophes. Few classic arias are better known, few so well adapted to genuine contralto intonation. Ingram captured the house with this number, and after that her group of songs, including MacDowell's ever popular "A Maid Sings Light," gained this fine singer much deserved applause.

b b b

Stanley-Ingram Recital

Under the caption "Stanley-Ingram Concert is Delight of the Season," the Beloit Daily News spoke as follows of the joint recital of Helen Stanley and Frances Ingram:

The Treble Clef scored another remarkable triumph last night in the joint recital given at the First Congregational Church by Helen Stanley, soprano, and Frances Ingram, contralto. A splendid audience heard these two young artists and went wildly enthusiastic over them, a fact that was plainly shown when the people refused to leave their seats after the closing number until the singers had responded with another encore number.

From first to last the recital was a delight. All the solo numbers of both artists elicited enthusiastic applause and the flower duet from "Madame Butterfly" brought the two voices together in a most artistic rendering, filled with thrilling harmony of this beautiful number from the popular Japanese opera. The encore, the barcarolle from "The Tales of Hoffman," with its tuneful lilt and the wonderful harmony of the two voices, was one of the most popular numbers of the evening.

Miss Stanley possesses a wonderful soprano. Art finds full expression in her singing. Indeed, it may be said that she sacrifices temperament and popular appeal to the artistic. She compels admiration by the very aristocratic manner of her interpretations. No note of falsity finds a place in her renditions. Purity and clarity of tone are hers, too, but above everything else there stands out those qualities that convince one that Miss Stanley appreciates the dignity of her work. Long years of preparation are revealed in what she does, even in a recital such as this, although she is better known on the operatic stage.

Miss Ingram, though less famous throughout the nation, made an instant "hit" with the audience. Her deep, rich contralto thrilled in the softer passages and her temperamental inclination made itself evident in every number. Like Schumann-Heink, she appeals to the heart, sometimes disregarding the finer finish of the highest art, unless one might say that the highest art is to appeal to the deepest emotions of the human breast.

Beloit has heard some of the greatest mistresses of song. But it is doubtful if there has ever been heard here anything more thrilling, more dramatic than Miss Ingram's "Cry of Rachel." In the lighter, more tripping selections among her numbers she also did splendid work, but the audience seemed more greatly pleased with the quieter, more sustained numbers.

Many suggestions have been heard today that Miss Ingram be brought here again in a program of folk songs. It is believed a great audience could be secured for her and it is possible that such a return engagement may be arranged.

The accompanist last night, John Doane of Northwestern University of Evanston, proved a delight. (Advertisement.)

— — —

Joliet—The Songer-Converse Studios in Joliet, Ill., gave a concert on last Tuesday evening, the program being given by pupils of Carl Songer, who was the accompanist throughout. The character of the program was of the highest class and the reputation of the school as standing for the best in musical art was fully maintained in the fine work done.

The Century Opera Company

By CHARLES E. WATT

The next to the last week of the Century Opera Company season was given over to joint programs with the Pavlowa Company, and this constituting a distinctly holiday bill, attracted much better audiences than has been the rule in other weeks.

The "Pagliacci" bill, which was reviewed last week, and in which Helen Stanley made so signal a success, was repeated several times.

§ § §

"Faust" a Revelation

Both "Il Trovatore" and "Faust" have become rather the occasion for shoulder shrugging than of hilarious joy, simply because, while these are famous and splendid old works, they have been indifferently given so many times that the public has grown chary of them and is fearful always when they are announced that the productions will be all that they should not be rather than the reverse.

Therefore, when the Century Company gave "Il Trovatore" so exceptionally well, it proved to be a wonderful eye-opener, and there was plenty of speculation as to whether it would be possible to revivify "Faust" in the same astonishing manner.

The result of the first performance proved that this company has endless resources and originality, and that even the old Gounod score can be made to live again in regal splendor under their clever manipulation.

Much new "business" was introduced, the chorus was a constant delight, both in the spontaneity of its acting and in the charm of its singing, while the principals were, almost without exception, thoroughly worth observation.

Orville Harrold seemed better suited in the part of "Faust" than he has been in any role yet assumed, and he sang also with fervor and considerable musical accuracy. The very high note in the second act aria was taken sweetly and with great purity, and contrary to the usual custom it was not done in falsetto.

Henry Weldon has very evidently sung too much and he is so patently out of condition that it is scarcely fair to point out his frequent lapses from the key throughout the "Faust" performances especially, as he gave some originality to his interpretation of the role of "Mephistopheles."

Chalmers made a rather common-place "Valentine," singing the one or two big arias very well indeed, however.

Elizabeth Campbell was acceptable as "Siebel," and Augusta Lenska succeeded in making "Martha" just a little different in make-up from the usual, though her voice is not wholly a beautiful one.

Lois Ewell as "Marguerite" scored another big success. She is the most ingenious of German maidens in appearance, she acts with dainty charm and her singing is a positive delight.

The principal reason for giving "Faust" at this time was to allow of the introduction of the "Walpurgis Night" scene, which has not been seen in Chicago for many years and which, at this time, was beautifully given by the Pavlowa Company.

In New Orleans they would scarcely tolerate a "Faust" performance without this scene, and other cities of the country have seen it from time to time.

This writer remembers very well the thrill with which he first saw it at a performance at an opera festival in Cincinnati many years ago.

Nobody in Chicago, however, can recall just when it was given here and the performances of last week were distinctly in the nature of novelty.

As given by the Pavlowa Company the scene was of ravishing beauty and no one

FLORENCE MACBETH
As "The Doll" in "Tales of Hoffman" who was so fortunate as to see it last week will ever forget it. Words seem very inadequate in the telling of its fragile charm and its dramatic significance, and it proved Pavlowa to be an actress of infinite variety as well as a dancer quite without equal.

§ § §

Saturday Evening

The Saturday evening performances throughout the current season of opera have been better attended than have other nights, and there seems, on that night, a distinctly greater appreciation of English opera.

This is probably because a Saturday night clientele for opera in the vernacular has been educated throughout the past two years and still remains faithful to the night, possibly many of them may not know that the operas have been sung in English every night.

At any rate these audiences have been unusually receptive and that of last Saturday night was particularly so.

Miss Helen Stanley as "Nedda" in "I Pagliacci" was a prime favorite with the audience and she may certainly feel that her success throughout the opera was a marked one.

She did truly sing with great distinction and once more proved herself a star of the first magnitude.

Kingston is so good a singer that one regrets exceedingly his lack of histrionic preparation, a second and third hearing of his work in "Pagliacci" only serves to confirm the impression that the action of the role is far beyond his present abilities.

Chalmers, too, as "Tonio" is very disappointing.

But the magnificence of the chorus, especially in the first act, makes this performance of the Century Company a notable one, and in very few operas has the orchestra stood out with such artistic distinctness as when the Leoncavallo work has been given.

§ § §

The Gala Performance

On Saturday night the Century Opera season will close with a splendid gala performance, including "Bridal Scene" from "Lohengrin," with Freeman, Kingston, Kreidler and chorus; conductor, Zuro Sextet from "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Freeman, Campbell, Harrold, Kreidler, Kaufman, Williamson; conductor: Zuro. Act II. from "The Jewels of the Madonna," with Stanley, Santley, Kingston, Chalmers; conductor, Pasternack. Act III. from "Carmen," with Howard, Stanley, Campbell, Kann, Kingston, Marr, D'Angelo, Williamson; conductor, Zuro, and selections from "Tannhauser," "Thais," "Jewels of the Madonna."

This (New Year's) evening the opera will be "Il Trovatore," and on Saturday afternoon the splendid performance of "Romeo and Juliet" will be repeated.

§ § §

The Dancers

Mme. Pavlowa and her splendid company gave a performance of "Flora's Awakening" on Saturday evening, which was a poetical delight, though the music is distinctly namby-pamby. On Sunday evening "Chopinina" was scheduled and drew many people especially to see it, but without announcement or explanation the management of the Pavlowa Company chose to withhold it and present in its place the "Walpurgis Night," scene from "Faust," which indeed is a wonderful piece of work as done by the Pavlowa Company and which made its usual success.

§ § §

"Guido Ferranti"

The new opera "Guido Ferranti" was successfully given on Tuesday evening with Hazel Eden and Worthie Faulkner playing the two roles demanded by the libretto.

On account of the holidays, Music News goes to press so early this week that the review of this event is held over till next issue.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
FOR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

The next meeting of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club will be held at the Francis First Room of the Congress Hotel on Thursday, January 7, at 2:15.

The members taking part are Alice Ione Cramer, Marie Yahr, Edythe Pruyn Hall and Marie Easterley.

The assisting artists will be Jessie Isabel Christian, soprano, and Thomas Valentine Purcell, violinist.

This club, which was organized on May last, with an active, associate and student membership, has surpassed all the hopes and expectations of its founders. Among its 375 members are many of the best known musicians of Chicago and suburbs.

Its officers are Eleanore Capps Hostler, president; Mrs. Harrison G. Wells and Mrs. Albert Ochsner, vice presidents; Mrs. Alvin G. Ireland and Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, secretaries; Mrs. Rudolph Klotz, treasurer, and Mrs. Howard R. Maxwell, librarian.

The directors are Mmes. George Elwood McGrew, Albert R. Frawley, Fred L. Fairchild, Jeremiah Hallissy, Fred L. Rossbach, Edwin Peifer and Thomas Strong.

MacBurney—Miss Myra Sallisbury, teacher of voice at Albion College, Michigan, is spending the vacation in Chicago coaching with her teacher, Mr. Thomas MacBurney. On last Sunday morning she created a very favorable impression by her singing of an offertory at the Church of the Covenant, where a large chorus, under the direction of J. B. Trowbridge, sings at every service.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
304 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

Clarence Eidam Pianist

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
426 Fine Arts Building

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals

Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 446 W. 40th Place Los Angeles, Calif.

Montzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.

SIDNEY SILBER AS A PUBLIC LECTURER

Sidney Silber, pianist of Lincoln, Neb., is attracting a great deal of notice and arousing great interest in his series of ten public lectures on "Our Nation's Need in Music," which are now being delivered under the auspices of the Social Ethic Club of All Souls Church. The first meeting was devoted mainly to a general survey of the subject. The second session was devoted to an outline of the entire series. The keynote of Professor Silber's discussion is embodied in the following statement: "If man is to realize his destiny, it should be his duty to develop the aesthetic and ethical sides of his nature. If he fails in this, he is but little better than his fellows in the lower forms of life, who are brought into the world, learn the best methods of obtaining a sustenance, live their life of animal freedom, and pleasure and—are speedily forgotten."

SIDNEY SILBER

Professor Silber said that the musical status of a nation depends upon the support and encouragement given to the following eighth factors: private music teachers, schools of music, choral societies, music clubs, opera, symphony orchestras, chamber music organizations and native composers. He enumerated the following eight urgent national needs in music, a more adequate and widespread appreciation of the cultural value of music study as a force for the upbuilding of a more efficient citizenship, supervision of music teachers and schools of music by the state, allowing credits for music study in all education institutions, municipal conservatories of music—or more endowed institutions, more male students, municipal opera houses, and municipal symphony orchestras.

Under these conditions he was convinced that: we will gain greater ability and courage to pass individual judgment upon artistic merit, irrespective of the verdict of Europe, we will have more devoted and sincere cultivation and appreciation of music, fewer half-baked music students will go abroad to be bull-dozed by foreigners, our youth will gain inspiration to greater musical works of an uplifting nature, whereas talent now simply atrophies by becoming a prey to commercialism, and last, but by no means least—native composers will finally come into their own.

CLEVELAND

The season opened November 10 with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Frederick Stock. Bruno Steindel, violoncello, was the soloist. The Cincinnati Orchestra gave the second concert November 19, conducted by Dr. Ernst Kunwald, with Emilio de Gogorza as soloist. The third concert was given by the Philadelphia Orchestra, under Leopold Stokowski. Mme. Olga Samaroff, pianiste, played the Tchaikowsky concerto. The last concert before the holidays was given on December 15 by the Chicago Orchestra, with Sophie Braslau, contralto of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company.

The Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Christian Timmer, is giving very successful concerts every Sunday afternoon in the Hippodrome.

h h h
The Friday Musicales

Three of the Friday Morning Musicales have been given in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler. The first program was given November 20 by Harold Bauer, pianist, and Christine Miller, contralto. On December 4 Lambert Murphy, tenor, and Marie Caslova, violinist, appeared. Mrs. Felix Hughes was the accompanist at both concerts. The third program was given by Alma Gluck, soprano, with Mr. Willy Spoor at the piano.

The Singers' Club gave the first of this season's concerts on December 10. Mr. Albert Rees Davis is the director and George G. Emerson and Charles T. Ferry accompany the club on two pianos. Margaret Keyes, contralto, was the soloist, and Mrs. Katherine Bruot was her accompanist.

The Mendelssohn Club gave a concert on December 8 under the direction of Ralph Everett Sapp. The soloist was Mrs. Martha S. Steele, contralto.

WAHPETON, N. D.

"An Evening of Oratorio," as presented Tuesday at the Opera House by the Wahpeton Oratorio Society and the high school chorus, proved the musical event of the year, a distinct triumph, such as this city has seldom before witnessed. From the opening chorus from Haydn's "Creation" to the full-voiced burst of the "Hallelujah" chorus, there was a strong ascending movement that swept the audience along in sympathetic appreciation.

The combined chorus and orchestra responded with precision and vigor, under the able direction of Mr. F. W. Kraft, producing splendid tonal effects worthy of the masterpieces included in the well-balanced program. A distinct feature of the evening was that choruses typical of the great masters of oratorio—Mendelssohn, Haydn and Handel—were presented. This feature afforded a program replete with variety and interest, one of such uniform excellence and merit that there is a general feeling that it should be repeated in full.—Wahpeton Globe-Gazette.

Is your Name in the MUSIC NEWS

Classified Directory Columns?

Emphatically it should be, for this list constitutes a Musical Directory without parallel in America for

Efficiency

And would be worth every cent of the $12 it costs even if it did not include subscription also.

CHARLES W. CLARK

A notable figure in the current musical season is Charles W. Clark, who, because of the war in Europe, canceled his early-season tour in England and is spending the entire year in America.

CHARLES W. CLARK

His teaching is being done at the Bush Temple Conservatory, where he has a large class of artist pupils. He also finds time to fulfill a long list of concert and oratorio engagements in all parts of the country.

MYRTLE FRIEL

Personality, charm and poise have always made Myrtle Friel remarkably effective as a concert singer.

Not many singers can make a program of songs so perfectly complete; each song a polished gem in itself. A keen sense of dramatic values, a fine appreciation of color, a refinement of detail, yet never sacrificing the song—as she feels it—insures an interpretation that is direct in its appeal.

For this season, in addition to her several programs of folks songs of different nations, Miss Friel has arranged a program of songs of the South, which is much in demand by the music clubs who are constantly seeking material for programs of American composers.

Each successive season finds Miss Friel's voice broadened in sympathy, in power and in range. Her programs—including arias from operas and oratorios, also, selections from the classic songs of all countries—reveal a breadth of understanding and a sureness of control that speak emphatically of industrious endeavor.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, January 1

Orchestra Hall, 3:00; Symphony Orchestra.

Auditorium, 2:00; "William Tell."
Auditorium, 8:00; "Il Trovatore."

Saturday, January 2

Auditorium, 2:00; "Romeo and Juliet."
Auditorium, 8:00; gala performance of opera.

Sunday, January 3

Orchestra Hall; Marcella Sembrich, song recital.

Illinois Theater; Grace Stewart Potter, piano recital.

Fine Arts Theater; Edith Thompson, piano recital.

New England Congregational Church, 7:45; "The Last Judgment."

Fullerton Hall, 8:00; opera lecture recital, "Aida."

Friday, January 8

Orchestra Hall, 2:15. Symphony Orchestra.

Saturday, January 9

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, January 10

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Schumann-Heink

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

"Messiah" Sung by a Thousand Voices

By CHARLES E. WATT

At Evanston, two years ago at the festival, the "Messiah" was sung with one thousand voices in the chorus and this writer has heard it twice at Ocean Grove under such conditions.

Not within memory, however, has any such chorus given it in Chicago, and so the Apollo Club venture of last Sunday and Monday was met with great enthusiasm.

Not for many years have such audiences

MARY ANN KAUFMAN

assembled and never has the enthusiasm for the work itself or for the performance by the club been greater.

It was indeed an inspiring piece of work. Harrison Wild, always master of his resources, seemed inspired at this time and not only held his vast body of singers in absolute control but he also filled them with enthusiasm and led them to one great victory after another.

The first phrases of "And the Glory of the Lord" were all that was necessary to attract undivided attention, and as the number progressed to fill the entire audience with supreme joy and enthusiasm.

"O Thou That Tellest" was sung as trippingly as though given by a quartet merely. "For unto Us" was managed superbly, the Apollo Club alone sang the opening phrases and the great chorus came in on the words "Wonderful Counsellor" with such power and virility that the audience was lifted to an unheard-of height of exhilaration, and this great effect was again produced in the "Hallelujah" and "Lift Up Your Heads."

"His Yoke Is Easy," "Behold the Lamb," and "Surely He Hath Borne" were sung with a pervasive intensity and a musical accuracy beyond description, and "Worthy Is the Lamb" was such a piece of choral magnificence in solidity and strength as one expects to hear only a few times in a lifetime.

The quartet bits, which have been assigned most significantly by Mr. Wild to the chorus, were done with great intelligence, and the final "Amen" has never had a more completely concise and satisfactory contrapuntal reading than that of last Sunday.

The Apollo Club alone sang "Let Us Break Their Bonds" and proved their choral virtuosity to the full in this number, which in itself is so beautiful that it should always be sung and which has most wisely been added to the Apollo list of chorus numbers inasmuch as coming between "Why Do the Nations" and "Thou Shalt Break Them" it serves to effectually and gratefully separate those two bravura efforts, the second of which is far overshadowed by the first.

Besides the inspired services of Mr. Wild the performance owed much to the orchestra, and also to Edgar Nelson, who accomplished wonders with the decrepit old organ, which, quite as usual, insisted on doing things it should not have done.

The soloists were wisely chosen and gave a very satisfactory account of the familiar scores. Mary Ann Kaufman, a Chicago singer, who has just appeared most successfully at Minneapolis with the orchestra and who has all sorts of fine things to her credit was heard for the first time as an Apollo soloist, but it probably will not be the last, for she proved herself wholly adequate to the demands of the great occasion and showed a voice of wonderful sweetness and a musicianship which surmounted all the difficulties of her score with great ease.

"I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" was sung with great skill, great purity and much musical effect. "Rejoice Greatly" was done with a fine technical display and musical effect, while "Come unto Him" was sung with a beauty of text manipulation and a musical quality which made it distinctly notable.

Louise Harrison Slade, whose fine work in church and concert has made her a great favorite, and who, in the Fullerton Hall opera evenings has proven herself amply endowed with dramatic gifts, read the "Messiah" score with a rare intelligence. Her enunciation of text was a distinct joy and of such excellence indeed as to prove a direct object lesson to every young singer present. The quality of her tone was very appealing and absolutely suited at all times to the "Messiah" spirit.

"He Shall Feed His Flock" was distinctly her best number, being delivered with remarkable clarity and purity, though "He Was Despised" was of distinctly fine quality also, and "O Thou That Tellest" had its proper virtuosic effect.

John W. Nichols, a tenor who has been much praised throughout the country in his recital and oratorio singing, made his initial appearance in Chicago at this time, although he has sung very successfully in the past few years with the Evanston Choral Club.

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

He knows his "Messiah" thoroughly and gave an impression of great sincerity as well as abiding musicianship. His voice is very attractive and very well managed, though not an exceedingly powerful one. Each of his numbers was sung with poise and authority, and strangely enough, "Thou Shalt Break Them" was the best of all. "Every Valley" was sung with great suavity and the string of recitatives and arias ending with "But Thou Didst Not Leave" was sung with much vocal beauty and an entire adherence to text meanings.

Clarence Whitehill, known to all Chicago for his fine performances in many lines of musical endeavor, proved himself at this time a thoroughly good "Messiah" interpreter, especially from the technical standpoint.

All the intricacies of "Why Do the Nations" and "The Trumpet Shall Sound" were negotiated with perfect assurance, and the result was in every case as completely satisfactory.

The training of the operatic stage was much in evidence in the recitative "Behold, I Tell You a Mystery," which was stagey to the last degree, and of course correspondingly effective.

"But Who May Abide" provided him the most emphatically musical moment of his score and was sung with much refinement.

All the soloists were very much acclaimed and applauded by the wonderful audience.

NORTH SIDE TURNER HALL CONCERT

Such a perfect riot of melodious and inspiring music as was offered at North Side Turner Hall concert last Sunday afternoon is not often encountered on one program.

Before the program was half finished the reviewer became about as enthusiastic as any other member of that large audience, mostly German, and this, in spite of his preference for music without tobacco smoke and the fact that some liquid refreshments not sanctioned by the W. C. T. U. were being served on the main floor.

But what is one to do but forget surroundings, when such an excellent organization as the Ballman Orchestra is rendering, in fine fashion, one favorite classical gem after another, and the soloists are adding to the thrills.

Hattie S. Mann, soprano, sang "Thou Charming Bird," from "The Pearl of Brazil" (David), and then a verse of "Last Rose of Summer," as an encore. Her voice is one of much charm, flexibility and used skillfully. She is a pupil of Sandor Radanovits and sings with the poise and sureness which is at all times evident from pupils of the Radanovits studio.

Mr. Arthur P. Thomas, head of the piano department in the college at Murfreesboro, Tenn., played the "Concerto in C Minor" (Beethoven) with great effect. "The Chase," by Rheinberger, was his contribution as an encore, and brilliantly it was done. The audience desired still another encore, and would be content only after Mr. Thomas had reappeared and bowed repeatedly. He certainly scored a success.

Either "Danny Deever" or the Toreador song from "Carmen" alone would be considered a fairly pretentious solo offering, but when they are given as "a" and "b" in one number they constitute quite an undertaking. Mr. Marvin Hinshaw, baritone, a well-known teacher and singer, was more than equal to this undertaking, and proved it by singing both compositions splendidly and responding with Bergen's dramatic "Charge of the Light Brigade" when the audience enthusiastically demanded an encore.

C. J. B.

THE DE BERNYZ OPERA CLASS

The Bertrand de Bernyz Opera Concert and Oratorio Society of New York has organized a fund committee. The honor president is Very Rev. Monsignor Luke J. Evers, chairman, Rev. Fr. Charles A. Craig. Among the honorary members are: J. Fischer of Fischer Brothers (music publishers), Dr. Albert Volkenberg and Mr. William R. Gratz of W. R. Gratz Import Company (of musical instruments), and Miss Alice Nielsen, operatic star.

The Bertrand de Bernyz Opera-Concert and Oratorio Society of New York is making arrangements to have two performances of "Walkure," Richard Wagner, to swell fund for needy American talent. Famous artists, such as Fremstad, Schumann-Heink, Allan Hinckley, Karl Jorn, Hinshaw and Robert Maitland, are being considered for the leading roles. Mr. Ernst Knach of Century Opera and Bayreuth will be the conductor.

BUENA MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN

"The Messiah" will be given on Tuesday evening, January 5, under direction of DeWitt Durgin Lash, with the following soloists:

Esther Walrath Lash, soprano.
Mabel Corlew, contralto.
Grant Kimbell, tenor.
Julian Worthington, bass.

ACCOMPANISTS

Amy Kleinofen, organist.
Katherine Howard Ward, organist.
Margaret Hughes, pianist.
Janet Honess Taylor, pianist.

EDITH AYERS McCULLOUGH AT HEMINGTON RECITAL

The current recital in Mr. Frances Hemington's series fell into the Christmas period of preparation and the proportion of men to women present was two to one, and the group was not a large one at that. The program fitted the season by including Wach's lovely "Pastorale" and the Guilmant "Fantasia on Two Christmas Hymns" and "Marche Religieuse," and the rest of the numbers were largely familiar, the Lemmens "Fanfare," Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" and the Wolstenholme "Question and Answer." Mr. Hemington has done the latter many times, but this time he put a wistful tenderness into it not known before, and he was in good form all the time.

Mrs. McCullough's progress has been an interesting and profitable study and example. Her voice is now a rich, warm mezzo-soprano of unusual range, and she has it subject to her desire. She is young, enthusiastic, schooled and so full of temperament and personality that she stands on the threshold of such an attractive future that one is almost tempted to be a prophet and to predict that it will carry her far.

She chose two remarkably interesting and musically striking numbers, Perhilhon's "Virgin at the Manger" and Darcieux' "Noel." Both are examples of that French school which demands declamation as well as musicianship. The Perhilhon is almost a monotone in its simplicity and directness and the "Noel" a successful repetition of the folksong carol which used the minor key to make itself impressive. Neither could come under the head of a popular song, but they are graphic in their moods and Mrs. McCullough did them with so fine a sentiment and elasticity that they glowed with beauty.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Lincoln, Neb.—First National Bank Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

THE AGENCY WITH THE SHORT UNDERSTANDABLE CONTRACT 25th YEAR

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11
For Catalog Address

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

Beatrice Wheeler

CONTRALTO

Chicago Grand Opera Co.

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON. FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

Churches

MIDNIGHT MASS AT ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S

St. Bartholomew's Church is at Sixty-seventh and Normal Park avenue and that, like Tipperary, is "a long, long way," especially on a cold winter night. But Christmas eve comes but once a year, and a midnight service is absolutely essential for its proper observance.

St. Bartholomew's is elaborately "High Church" in its service, with many candles and acolytes, rich vestments, genuflections, and ceremonial, all of which quite fitted in with the festival spirit of the occasion. Mr. C. Gordon Wedertz plays the organ at this church and directs the choir of men and boys in the almost continuous use of music in the ritual. The social and business demands of the holiday season cut so ruthlessly into the discipline of exacting rehearsals, that one hardly expects to find an Episcopal choir in good form for Christmas. And the fact doubtless accounts for an uneven ensemble, the soprano section being sometimes unresponsive and losing often the brilliance of the effective climax. Mr. Wedertz worked up in the organ part. For volume and vigor and heartiness they are to be much commended, and Mr. Wedertz's playing was at all times full of sincerity, warmth and color. He did delightfully some little antiques during the communion service. The anthem was "O Zion that Bringest," by the brilliant son of a sterling father. George William Warren was the first among American church music writers to break away from the stiff forms of Lowell Mason and L. O. Emerson. Richard Henry, his son, has not the simplicity of his father, but his more ornate endeavors do not carry him any further, for they miss fire by their over-decoration. The choir sang the anthem for all it was worth and did the beautiful Calkin communion service with the reverence the appealing quality of the music itself almost compels. The "Gloria in Excelsis" and "Benedictus" are notably good.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH

The music for December 27, under the direction of Emory Gallup, was as follows:

Processional—Hymn 57, "Sing, O Sing".....	Smart
Venite	Gregorian
Te Deum in E flat.....	Barrett
Benedictus	Gregorian
Litany Hymn 528 (verses 1 and 2).....	Hoyte
Litany Hymn 174 (verses 1, 5, 19 and 20).....	Weber
Offertory Anthem—"Behold, I Bring You Good Tidings"	Goss
Recessional—Hymn 60, "Angels from the Realms of Glory"	Smart
7:30 P. M.
Processional—Hymn 51, "Hark! the Herald Angels"	Mendelssohn
Anthem—"Nazareth"	Gounod
Magnificat, in B flat.....	Hall
Nunc Dimittis, in B flat.....	Hall
Solo—"O Divine Redeemer".....	Gounod
Miss Elsie Louise Holbrook, soprano
Hymn 54, tune 503, "While Shepherds Watched".....	Handel
Offertory Anthem—"Sing and Rejoice".....	Barnby
Presentation—"Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow"	Bourgeois
Orison Hymn 642, "Tarry with Me".....	Dykes
Recessional—Hymn 60, "Angels from the Realms of Glory"	Smart

CUYLER AVE. M. E. CHURCH, OAK PARK

Christmas musical service Sunday evening, December 27. Mr. H. H. Williams, tenor chorister; Miss Marie Edwards, organist; Mrs. H. H. Williams, soprano; Mrs. Hartrick, soprano; Mrs. Edith Quayle Wise, contralto; Mr. Elmore, bass, assisted by Mr. William Barlow Ross, tenor.

Organ, Variations on Ancient Christmas Carol.....	Detbier
Anthem, Sateus	Gounod
Mr. H. H. Williams and Choir
Recitativ, Comfort Ye.....	Handel
Aria, Every Valley Shall Be Exalted
Mr. William Barlow Ross
Anthem, And the Glory of the Lord Shall Be Revealed	Handel
Offertory, Christmas Pastoral.....	Rogers
Contralto Solo, The Virgin Lullaby.....	Buck
Mrs. Edith Quayle Wise
Anthem, Christmas	Shelly
Solos by Mrs. Hartrick and Mrs. Wise
Tenor Solo, O, Divine Redeemer.....	Gounod
Mr. Ross
Anthem, O, Holy Night.....	Adam-Buck
Solo obligato, Mrs. H. H. Williams
Chorus, Hallelujah Chorus.....	Handel
Postlude, March Triumphant.....	Guilmant

New England Church

Dearborn Avenue and Delaware Place
CHICAGO

Sunday Evening, Jan. 3, 7:45

A Repetition Performance of the

ORATORIO

"The Last Judgment"

By HUGO GOODWIN

FULL CHORUS—ORGAN

Soloists

MADELINE GALLAGHER, Soprano
ADELAIDE LEWIS, Contralto
LATHROP RESSEGUIE, Tenor
EDWARD H. QUINN, Bass
HUGO GOODWIN, Organist and Director

NO ADMISSION FEE

North State or North Clark Street Car to Delaware Place (Three Blocks North of Chicago Avenue)

CHRIST CHURCH

At Christ Church, Sixty-fifth and Woodlawn avenue, the following program will be given next Sunday evening, under direction of Mason Slade:

Credo—Et Incarnatus Est, Et Resurexit (from Mozart's "Seventh Mass")
Glory to God in the Highest.....Adams
Tenor solo—The Eyes of All Wait upon Thee.....Protheroe

Mr. William C. Schaubel
Kyrie Eleison and Sanctus (from Mozart's Seventh Mass)
Violin solo—Melodie Tschaikowsky |

Amy Emerson Neill
Benedictus (from Mozart "Seventh Mass")
Soprano solo—Sleep, Baby Sleep.....Adams
Master Montell Meeks

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night Martin |

The "Celestial Choir" will be used antiphonally in the numbers from the "Mass."

CANTATA AT RAVENSWOOD BAPTIST CHURCH

Mr. George F. Kortzenborn is the choir director and baritone soloist at the Ravenswood Baptist Church.

On Sunday night, December 27, the choir of thirty voices presented the Christmas cantata "The Prince of Peace," by Camp, in a manner that would indicate untiring efforts on the part of Mr. Kortzenborn and his musical forces.

The work performed on Sunday night is of considerable musical worth, especially the choruses. Some of the solos are not so grateful.

The choir was ably supported by skillful work on the part of Miss Ickes, the organist. The voices in this choir are good. The parts are very well balanced and the tone volume of decidedly pleasing quality and ample quantity.

One of the most enjoyable moments of the evening was furnished by the choir's singing of the response "May the Words of My Mouth."

Mr. Kortzenborn is not only a competent director, but an excellent soloist, and he sang the incidental baritone solos in the cantata with good effect.

The names of those selected to sing the other solos in the work were not printed on the service bulletin, but we recognized the voice of Mr. H. E. Haines in the singing of the tenor solos. This singer has been receiving considerable favorable comment of late, and his work on Sunday night fully justified that comment.

The solos for ladies' voices were very satisfactorily handled by members of the choir, but we are unable to give their names. Ravenswood Baptist Church should be gratified at the results being accomplished by the choir and its director.

C. J. B.

ST. JAMES' M. E. CHURCH

The following services were given at St. James' M. E. Church on last Sunday:

MORNING SERVICE—11 A. M., DEC. 27

Prelude, In the Church.....Pierne
Organ and Harp

Anthem, Nazareth Gounod |

Anthem, And There Were Shepherds.....Foote

The Quartet

Response, Old Breton Melody Perillou |

Passepie Organ and Harp |

Shepherd's Christmas Song.....Austrian Folk-Song

The Quartet

Anthem, Emmanuel.....Gilchrist

Miss Nazor and Chorus

Organ Postlude, Fugur on Adeste Fideles.....Fischer

EVENING SERVICE—7:45

Prelude, Meditation Priere.....Dubois

Organ and Harp

Carol, Silent Night.....Michael Haydn

Male Quartet

Cantata, The Story of Christmas.....H. A. Matthews

Chorus of twenty-four voices, solo quartet and male quartet. Mr. Walfried Singer, harpist, assisted at both services. Tina Mae Haines directed and played the services.

Proctor—Warren Proctor will be an assisting artist at Hotel La Salle musicale in Gold Room, December 31.

Little Theater—The Misses Fuller will sing at the Little Theater this (Friday) evening and every evening for the next three weeks.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC

On Sunday morning at 10 o'clock the choir of the First Presbyterian Church gave a program of Christmas music. Francis S. Moore, director and organist; Mrs. Jane P. Fritch, soprano; Mrs. W. S. Bracken, contralto; Mr. Volney Mills, tenor, and Mr. Arthur C. Merz, bass. The choir was assisted by Mr. A. Krauss, violin; Mr. B. Steindel, cello, and Mr. E. Tramonti, harp. The choir, under Mr. Moore's direction, did some very effective singing of the Christmas carols "Sing, O Heavens," by Tours, and "Christ Is Born," by Otis. Mrs. Jane P. Fritch's pleasing voice was heard in Gounod's "Adore and Be Still." It was given with excellent spirit and style. The "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah" was used as a closing number and they made it very effective by their spirited singing, and they deserve a good deal of praise for the splendid music of the morning.

The University Congregational Choir, under the direction of Mr. M. J. Brines, tenor, gave a vesper song service at 4 o'clock. They did some spirited singing of Christmas hymns and carols. The Bohemian carols were especially well liked. The Besamcon carol, "Shepherds, Shake Off Your Sleep," and a traditional carol, "Good King Wenceslas," deserve special mention.

The junior choir pleased greatly with their singing of "Luther's Carol." Mrs. Campbell's contralto voice was heard in the "Messiah" number, "He Shall Feed His Flock." Mrs. Gottlieb, soprano, sang the "Cradle Song," by Salter. Mr. Brines, a great favorite at this church, sang "Comfort Ye" and "Every Valley." His voice is of good range and quality and his style of singing makes his work very effective. "Adore and Be Still," by Gounod, was given an excellent rendition. Mr. Lunn handled a balky organ in a very capable manner.

The South Congregational Choir gave Dudley Buck's "Coming of the King." Mr. Leo Sowerby, organist; Mr. Frank T. Johnson, tenor and director; assisted by Mable Corlew Smidt, soprano; Frederica Gerhardt Downing, contralto; Frank C. Hollister, bass.

Mr. Johnson has built up a fine choir in his year of directing at the church and they are planning some excellent programs to be given in the near future. Mr. Sowerby is a very capable organist and gave a good account of himself in his solos and the accompaniments for soloists and choir.

The chorus, both male and female, deserve much praise for their singing throughout the evening, and it is safe to predict that their future musical services will be of especial interest.

Mable Corlew Smidt gave great pleasure with her splendid voice and artistic singing. "The Prophecy" and "The Adoration" were given with excellent style. Frederica Gerhardt Downing's beautiful contralto voice was heard to a fine advantage in her solo and duet numbers. "The Virgin's Lullaby" was very artistically done, as was the duet by Mrs. Smidt and Mrs. Downing. Mr. Johnson gave a fine account of himself in the tenor solos and his directing of the chorus reflected much credit upon his ability as a director and musician. Mr. Hollister sang the bass solos in a capable manner.

H. W. P.

SINAI TEMPLE

Program for next Sunday evening follows:

Overture to Phedre Massenet
Spanish Suite Lacombe
Aria, "He Is Good, He Is Kind" Massenet
(Miss Myrtle Moses, soprano)

Organ solo

(Mr. Dunham)

Group of songs by Miss Myrtle Moses, soprano.

TURNER HALL

The program next Sunday afternoon at 3, under direction of Martin Ballmann, reads as follows:

"Salut to Budapest," Hungarian March (new)
..... Kowalski
Overture, "Pique Dame" Suppe
Grand Scenes from Opera "La Boheme" Puccini
Cornet solo, "Edelweiss Fantasie" Hoch
Erinnerung an die Alpen (Remembrance of the Alps)

"The Rosary" (by request) Nevin
William E. van Doren and orchestra

Violin solo, "Hejre Kati," scene de la Czardas Hubay
Rudolph Mangold and orchestra

"The Bamboula," Rhapsodie Dance Coleridge Taylor
(Dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stoeckel)

Intermezzo from opera "The Jewels of the Madonna" Wolf-Ferrari

(Introduction to Act II.)

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Two Special Courses for teachers Dec. 28th to Jan. 1st. and Jan. 4th to 8th.

Special invitation given to Music Teachers to see the work Tuesdays and Fridays at 10 A. M.

SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.

218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279 Chicago, Ill.

Duet for flute and waldhorn, "Serenade" Titl
Messrs. A. Winhardt and P. Thaens

Staendchen (Serenade) Schubert

Soprano solo, "Love and Music," aria from opera "La Tosca" Puccini

"Ich liebe Dich" (I Love You), Song Grieg
Mrs. Mark Cohan and orchestra

"Spring, Beautiful Spring" (Oh Frueling, wie bist Du so schoen) Lincke

Sextet from opera "Lucia" Donizetti

"The Shamrock," Grand Fantasia of Irish Melodies Myddleton

"Espana," Spanish Waltz Waldteufel

"Eine Jagd im Schwarzwald" (Hunting in the Black Forest) Voelker

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

Anna Groff-Bryant, who expected to spend a quiet and restful vacation in Chicago the past ten days, has been kept unusually busy teaching students from out of town who are spending the holidays in Chicago. She will leave for her studio in Galesburg, January 1, owing to the rush of work for the Madame Schumann-Heink recital, which takes place Wednesday evening, January 6. The Mme. Schumann-Heink recital has been awaited with much expectations by the people of Galesburg and vicinity.

Mrs. Groff-Bryant is receiving letters from musicians all over the country, commending warmly upon artistic effort in giving to the people of Galesburg and vicinity such a wonderful artistic attraction of world famous singers.

A. ALFRED HOLMES

A letter of appreciation received by Mr. A. Alfred Holmes, from the mother of one of his pupils who took part in a contest of American trained pianists, under the direction of Glen Dillard Gunn, follows:

Downers Grove, Ill.

Mr. Holmes,

Dear Sir: Owing to the fact that you missed hearing Marion play, and that we doubt she will tell you all we think it is due you to know, I am writing.

I spent my time at the hall with Mrs. Gunn. Part of the time Mr. Gunn was with us. These are a few of the things I learned: Mr. Collins of Joliet, Ill., has studied abroad for the last eight years and is the best of the two accompanists. He was very courteous to Marion yesterday, doing more than she had expected. She played well as far as I could judge (a mother is not always a good judge). I know there were those not so good; we heard them. The judges gave most careful attention to the very end; all did not receive such attention. Mr. and Mrs. Gunn were very gracious in their congratulations to me, as well as Marion, Mr. Gunn bringing her back to us and Mrs. Gunn and other friends of theirs going to meet her. They gave all credit to the teacher, Mrs. Gunn saying, "To think there is such a teacher in Chicago whom we do not know!" She spoke especially of the touch; so pretty, so firm, etc. Several times she expressed a desire that they might meet you. I told them Marion was only one of a number of your good scholars, several were better than Marion, and at least five had intended to enter the contest, but on account of the extra work had dropped out.

A. ALFRED HOLMES

In closing, I would like to say that we appreciate fully your kindness to Marion and realize it has meant much to you in time and patience to make her capable of doing what she has done, and we hope good will come to you out of it. Mr. Lower joins me in this, and we are writing without Marion's knowledge.

Yours sincerely,

MR. AND MRS. F. E. LOWER.

Proctor—Warren Proctor has been secured by the Jefferson, Iowa, Country Club for a recital on January 18. Mr. Proctor is a favorite among the larger cities of Iowa, as he has toured a large part of the state in both oratorio, concert and recital, meeting with many successes.

The Elderly Person

Mr. Francis Rogers has just concluded, in "The New Music Review," a set of biographical sketches of the famous singers of other years. They are so good as to be worthy of preservation in other form. His conclusions are more than interesting, because he does not hesitate to place those exponents, who found their best expression upon the operatic stage, far above any of the products of our present day. It is rather startling to find that we have never had the equal of such singers as Malibran, Sontag, Grisi, La Blache, Rubini and Mario. Jenny Lind, by a sort of precedent that has never been disturbed or questioned, has a pedestal all her own, as probably the most gifted singer the world has ever known. The voice itself, Mr. Rogers tells us, was not flawless, according to exacting standards, but the tones were of wonderful beauty, and her art in using her voice was more than equaled by the fineness of soul and the sterling womanliness back of it. It was the conjunction of great qualities which made her notable. It was her innate sensitiveness that induced her to abandon the stage. She had what the feminine sex denominate "a horror" of the dishonesty of trying to be something that she was not.

Apart from Jenny Lind, the world of music divided itself into camps, as to the merits of its favorites, very much as they do nowadays, save that they spent more time and money in advocating their beliefs than we do. The people of the first half of the nineteenth century who cared for music at all cared for it a great deal. And when the patron was of importance, either because of wealth or position, he had it in his hands to make or unmake the struggling artist. In the first part of the twentieth century we take things for granted. Intense enthusiasms are about impossible. In addition to having more objects on which to expend it, enthusiasm is exhausting and not to be encouraged where there is so much of a practical nature demanding attention. If we feel our enthusiasm keenly it takes a different form of display. It is true that we still clap our hands as the most satisfactory method, but we do not beat our feet on the floor, and the whistle has vanished even from the galleries, and it would never do to shout out the hurricanes of "Bravos" that formerly went with the plaudits. Neither could we remove the horses from the carriage of the prima donna and make ourselves the willing motive power, for my lady goes now in a fast moving motor car, very luxuriously. And there are no serenades or excited crowds about the hotel. All these things, with gifts and honors, went to the great singers of past years but are no part of today's course of events. We think we pay them fabulous prices, and we do, but not any more than were received a century ago. Malibran asked and secured sums that are staggering.

Pretty generally accepted is the statement that the greatest quartet of artists ever assembled upon the stage was the one made up of Grisi, Rubini, Tamburini and La Blache. Tamburini was the bass-baritone, which voice part is apt to be of more value, operatically, than the contralto and fills a place in concerted efforts that is of marked importance. And he can be adored without in the least disturbing the balance of either soprano or tenor. He can sing with each of them or both of them and be a fine foil. One needs only to cast a glance over the familiar operatic scores to find what a factor he is. The four singers mentioned above were the finest flower of the Italian school, the bel canto we hear so much about, and which is mournfully admitted to be very scarce. These persons, as exponents of the works of Rossini, Bellini and Donizetti, have never been equaled. What they would have done with the later Verdi and Wagner need not enter into the matter. They were the fine wheat of their day and there be those yet living who will not admit that they have been surpassed. The Elderly Person says he was brought up on these traditions, for the good Mater, who is not to be led astray by "Madama Butterfly," had heard all these singers and their confreres back in the forties, and lived over the events for willing ears. He knows all about the first appearance of Jenny Lind in London, and Mr. Rogers has not told him anything new about Sontag or Mario and others, nor has he mentioned Miss Birch, Louisa Pyne and Sims Reeves, who properly go with the rest of the party. It is somewhat of an endorsement of the estimates made seventy-five years ago that they hold good today. But it is rather discouraging to the present that we do not have men and women to equal those who set the standard so long ago, unless it be that there is no further goal to be reached. If that be true, then singing is different from some other arts. We can't forget, just the same, that we still draw on the composers of a hundred years ago for our most satisfactory music, that the "old masters" seemed to have discovered and not passed on to their successors a mixture of pigments that has never been equaled. Perhaps the last word on these things has been spoken.

One of Mr. Rogers' conclusions as to the vogue of the people he writes about is that their domestic life was of the nature to give them a place in the hearts of races who believed in purity of living. He cites much detail to corroborate this, and doubtless his theory holds good, notably in England during the Victorian period, where the queen set the standard and did her best to have others live up to it. Grisi and Mario were happily married, and had a flock of girls for a family. As she walked with them one day in the park, a gentleman met them. "Ah," said he, "these, I suppose, are your Marionettes." "Not so," she replied. "They are Mario's grissettes." Whether it was chance or expediency, or something deeper, the entire group of singers in that hey-day period maintained conduct of the most exemplary character.

Another conclusion is that what is best in vocal technic we owe to Italy. To France we owe style. To Germany, the most profoundly musical of all nations, we owe nothing, he says. Germany, however, has done enough in giving us the songs to sing and there are some singers on the list like Lehman to save the day. So much bad singing is "made in Germany" that the generalization is fairly true.

Another conclusion is unanswerable in its validity, no matter how much we try to ignore it, or ask extenuation, and that is that singing belongs to youth. It is always crushing to find that when the mastery of the art of expression has come, the organ itself has lost its bloom. When the freshness is gone the art will not compensate. Many of these women among the great were singing operatic roles when sixteen and eighteen years old. And nearly all of them sang too long. Pasta's voice was gone at forty. Sontag retired early, but came back to the stage and was singing at sixty, her voice gone but her art undiminished. She found loyalty among old friends alone. Mario sang until there was no shred of voice left and tarnished a record that would have shone as incomparable. We may fret about this dictum of a fickle public, but we have to recognize its existence. It explains much of the success of mediocrity, and even forgives some of the adulation bestowed upon "my voice." Rossini said that the three essentials for a vocalist were "Voice, voice, another more voice." Uncle George worded it pretty well when he said, "O, yes, Mrs. Summer sings mighty fine, I guess, but you ought to a heard little Mollie sing," little Mollie having been the young girl who later became Mrs. Summer. Along with youth nearly always goes health, and these two give a spontaneity and color to the tones of the voice which never fail to arouse the quiver of delight. If one adds prettiness to the girl, and a handsome figure and good features to the young man, the capitulation is complete. Rubini was a stunning example of what these aids can do. At the same time, Mr. Rogers uses Rubini for his final conclusion. Singing is the art of expressing the emotions musically, by means of the voice, and the voice that can express, truthfully, through its tones the greatest variety of emotions is the greatest voice. Rubini possessed a greater capacity to do this than any other nineteenth century singer. The greatest singer of this century, then, will be the one who can scale all the notes of human emotion. This conclusion condenses very aptly a disputed and debated point. Despite its aptness, however, it will continue to be debated and discussed so long as there are many roads to the Rome of that perfection.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

— # # # —

Francis—A municipal Christmas tree was shown on Christmas eve at Charleston, W. Va., to the great appreciation of the whole populace. A fine program of Christmas carols was sung under the leadership of J. Henry Francis, organist and director of St. John's Church, where also there were given beautiful Christmas services.

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

AMERICAN COMPOSER HEARD IN JORDAN HALL

Two pieces by leading American composers had their first performance on any stage at a concert by the New England Conservatory Choral Club and Conservatory Orchestra in Jordan Hall December 18.

One of these was Arthur Foote's "The Gateway of Ispahan," specially written for the Choral Club upon words by Arlo Bates. Technically it follows a modified oriental scheme suitable for execution by women's chorus and orchestra.

Another premiere was that of Henry Hadley's cantata, "The Golden Prince," the words for which were written by David Stevens. The piece is one which Mr. Hadley composed last summer and submitted for suggestions to George W. Chadwick, director of the New England Conservatory. To a request that it be given its first presentation at the school in Boston Mr. Hadley very readily consented.

Other numbers on the program were: The prelude to "Lohengrin" (Wagner), aria from "Herodiade" (Massenet), overture to "Phedre" (Massenet), suite for orchestra, Op. 42 (MacDowell). Mr. Chadwick conducted. The Choral Club was assisted by F. Morse Wemple of the faculty. Constance Reese of Salt Lake City, an advanced student, sang the soprano solos in "The Golden Prince." This was the sixth concert of the present conservatory season.

In Aid of a Christmas Fund

A very successful musicale in aid of the Christmas fund of the Church of the Sacred Heart was held Friday evening, December 11, at the residence of Mrs. P. H. Mallowney, 1 Vista street, Roslindale. This brought out a large and enthusiastic attendance and realized a very considerable sum of money.

Among the performers who contributed their services were the Misses Ida and Olive McCarthy. The former, as pianist and accompanist, presented two numbers, Cyril Scott's "Danse Negre" and "Venetian Nights." Her sister gave a violin obligato of her own composition, Del Riego's "O, Dry Those Tears," and an Irish love song. All these works made an excellent impression.

Two violin selections by Brahms were effectively given by James Balfe; a Hungarian dance and a mazurka by Johannes Brahms.

Three song selections were offered by Mrs. Mallowney's sister, Mrs. Marguerite Meuse Mann, who for some time past has been a pupil of Clarence B. Shirley at the New England Conservatory of Music, and who has developed a voice of great resonance and power. Mrs. Mann's rendering of Fontenailles' "Obstination," "The Sun's Roses," by Hawley, and Tosti's "Mattinata" was enthusiastically received by the audience.

The New England Conservatory Men's Club held its monthly meeting on Thursday evening, December 17. The entertainment consisted of motion pictures of "The Making of a Shoe," by Henry L. Stuart of the United Shoe Machinery Company.

Mrs. Marguerite Meuse Mann, a pupil of Clarence B. Shirley at the New England Conservatory, was one of the principal singers at a musicale given Friday evening, December 11, at the Roslindale residence of Mrs. P. H. Mallowney in aid of the Christmas fund of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Volbach Symphony Given at Boston Symphony Concert

At the ninth public rehearsal of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, in Symphony Hall, Christmas Afternoon, Dr. Karl Muck conductor, the symphony in B minor, Op. 33, Volbach, was given its first Boston hearing and created a very favorable impression. It is melodic and its harmonies not of the Schonberg type.

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

Volbach's "Raphael," inspired by Raphael's three paintings of the Madonna, was performed at a Handel and Haydn concert in 1905. The B minor symphony was played at Stuttgart in 1909, during a music festival of German musicians, and it has the characteristics that make it very appropriate for such occasions.

The soloist at the ninth rehearsal was John P. Marshall, who played Cesar Franck's chorale in A minor for the organ alone. His work was highly praised by the reviewers.

The other works heard were: Symphony, "Shepherd's Music," from the "Christmas Oratorio" (J. S. Bach); "March of the Three Holy Kings," "Christus" (Liszt), and "Der Freischutz" overture (Weber).

There was a smaller sized audience than usual, owing to Christmas festivities that conflicted.

The tenth concert programs, January 1-2, will include the "Faust" symphony, with changes made shortly before his death by Liszt, which will be given by the orchestra and a chorus from the Apollo Club, with Paul Droper, tenor.

The score is unpublished and the version will have its first performances at these concerts.

Mendelssohn's violin concerto will be played by Mr. Kreisler.

Personal Items

Miss Bessie Talbot Salman, soprano, who is also a busy vocal teacher, has recently sung in Monmouth at the West Newton Music Club, Macthias, and in Hamilton Hall,

People's Temple, Boston. She is doing special programs for women's clubs, lecture recitals in costume and interpretative recitals of songs of various types. For literary clubs she uses songs with words by Browning, Longfellow, Tennyson, Shakespeare and others.

The Dodge trio—William F. Dodge, violin; Carl W. Dodge, cello; Ernest W. Harrison, piano—assisted by Ruth Macatammany, soprano, gave a program excellent in variety before the Newton Club recently. The same organization, assisted by Arthur Hackett, tenor, gave a concert in Havelhill for the Agawam Club, a little later in December.

A. H. Handley of Steinert Hall managed these events and is enthusiastic in his endorsement of his all-American talent.

L. S. B.

SOME ANECDOTES

Sebastian Burnetti, at his studio in Kimball Hall, is gaining the reputation of being considerable of a wag and his bon mots are frequently quoted.

A young lady, a pupil of another teacher, who happened in the Burnetti studio insisted on showing him her vocal acquisitions.

Her scale proved to be very much broken, as a result of the system of "registers" she had been taught. Mr. Burnetti showed her just in a few moments' demonstration that this break was unnecessary, and, in fact, before she left, helped her to sing a scale without it.

On leaving she said, naively, "Well, since my scale is now fixed, I won't need any more lessons, I think."

Another "singer" who consulted Mr. Burnetti was asked, facetiously, whether she wanted to learn to "sing in opera next year." "Oh, no," said the girl, "I just want to sing for my friends." "Well," said Mr. Burnetti, "you sing well enough for 'friends' now."

Owens—Miss Margaret Owens, daughter of H. W. Owens, is spending the holiday vacation in Chicago after having fulfilled a long concert tour through the west and northwest. On Sunday evening last she sang some "Messiah" numbers at the Austin M. E. Church, where her father, H. W. Owens, is director of music, the program containing also "Why Do the Nations," sung by Carl Brown, another pupil of Mr. Owens. The program was given with great success.

"Messiah" in Austin—Miss Ida Belle Freeman will present the Handel Choral Society in "The Messiah" at the First Presbyterian Church in Austin on Tuesday evening, January 5. The soloists will be Mable Corlew Smidt, Lucy J. Hartman, M. J. Brines and Frank Dunford. The organ will be played by Palmer Christian and the piano by Lillian Grant Haeffner.

People & Events

LAURA WESSEL

Miss Laura Wessel, mezzo contralto, is unusually well equipped for the work of a concert singer. At an early age she showed exceptional musical taste and ability and spent several years in Leipsic, pursuing the study of Pianoforte, German and Italian.

She is a thorough musician and an excellent accompanist. Upon her return from Germany she decided to abandon the prospect of a career as a pianist and began the study of voice with Goodwal Dickerman of Omaha, Neb. She has made rapid strides in the vocal world. Miss Wessel's progress has been astonishingly rapid. She has filled numerous successful engagements in Omaha and other middle west cities, being received with great favor.

She has a pleasing personality and a voice of unusual velvety quality.

Her repertoire includes German lieder, arias in French, German and Italian, and ballads in French, German, Italian and English.

— — —

Weber—Miss Henriette Weber, at Fullerton Hall last Sunday evening, substituted "Mignon" for "The Juggler" because of the illness of Miss Julie Manierre, who was to have been the soloist for the latter. Lucille Stevenson and Marion Green appeared in the Thomas work, and the Massenet bill is to be given at a later date. "Aida," with Marjorie Dodge Warner, Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns and Alfred Kanberg will be given next Sunday.

— — —

Indiana Convention—The next meeting of the Indiana State Teachers' Association will be held at Greencastle on April 29 and 30.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIST
Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Borean Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

HAZEL HUNTLEY IN THE EAST

Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, who has had a very successful early season in her work in Chicago, will spend the next few weeks in the east and has many important engagements in that part of the country.

HAZEL HUNTLEY

She sang in "The Messiah" at Springfield, Mass., on December 30, and will give a recital at Amsterdam, N. Y., on January 3.

This will be followed by five other recitals, the dates being: January 6, Longmeadow, Mass.; January 8, Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass.; January 11, Gloucester, Mass.; January 13, Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and January 15, Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

Miss Huntley has become an established favorite at the Congregational Church in Evanston, where she is alto soloist, and her teaching at 608 Fine Arts Building has grown to large proportions. Her concert work has grown steadily in importance and the eastern dates are the result of a series of marked successes she has made elsewhere in oratorio and concert.

— — —

PALMER CHRISTIAN AT ROCK ISLAND

Some press comment:

There was a good audience at the Palmer Christian recital last evening at the First Methodist Church, and the affair was a great success, both from a financial and artistic standpoint.

Palmer Christian is an artist of the highest order and succeeded in pleasing the audience with every number rendered, and showed remarkable knowledge of the organ. His best numbers were "Rakoczy" (Hungarian National March), allegro con fuoco, by de Boeck; his Bach numbers, and the "Toccata," by Meraux, the last one being repeated.—Rock Island Union, December 8, 1914.

Palmer Christian, organist of the Kenwood Church of Chicago * * * * * presented a splendid program before a large audience at the First Methodist Church last evening. Mr. Christian is an organist of great talent, who has devoted years to hard work and study, with the result that he is ranked with the foremost organists of the day. His mastery of the instrument is wonderfully good, his interpretation of the various numbers was satisfying and pleasing to the most exacting. The audience gave a very hearty welcome and insisted upon the repetition of a number of selections.—Rock Island Argus, December 8, 1914. (Advertisement.)

HARVESTER CHORAL SOCIETY PRESENTS CHRISTMAS CONCERT

In spite of the fact that the Apollo Club was giving "The Messiah" to a capacity house at the Auditorium on Monday night, the Harvester Choral Society was greeted by a large and exceedingly appreciative audience at their Christmas concert given at Orchestra Hall on the same evening.

The chorus, which numbers about fifty-five voices and directed by Bertha Smith-Titus, sang many numbers, appropriate to this time of year, with considerable spirit and thought as to expression and musical values, but it was the excellent array of soloists which took part in the program, that made the evening an artistic and enjoyable success.

Mr. William E. Zeuch, organist, opened the evening's musical affairs by playing

SABA DOAK

"Meditation," Maily; "Chant d'Amour," Gillette, and "Fanfare d'Orgue." Shelly, a group of numbers which furnished him with ample opportunity to display his many praiseworthy attainments as an organist to good advantage. He also furnished fine accompaniment to the singing of the chorus throughout the evening.

A solo quartet composed of Virginia Norman, soprano; Cleonica Connell, alto; Herbert S. Mailander, tenor, and Carl S. Elofson, bass, assisted the chorus in the rendition of a beautiful "Old Bohemian Carol." The voice of Miss Norman, which is of splendid quality and good carrying power, was an effective part in this ensemble.

A male chorus taken from the main body of singers was heard in "Three Kings Have Journeyed," Cornelius, and "The Christ-Child's Lullaby," Kolner-Gesangbuch. The former requires the services of a solo contralto, and Edith Maldwyn Jones was chosen to sing the part. She did herself proud, using a full, rich tonal volume, good

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

enunciation and splendid musical thought. Miss Jones also makes an attractive appearance, which adds much to the pleasure of her vocal work. The latter number by the male chorus brought forth a sextet of boys from St. James' Choir which added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

Saba Doak, the charming soprano who is filling many prominent concert and oratorio engagements this season, was a notable addition to the list of soloists. Her first offering was the "Air de Lia" (L'Enfant Prodigue), Debussy, and was given with a wealth of colorful tones which were beautiful at all times and her dramatic intensity was revealed in a wonderful light. Miss Doak sang a group of songs made up with "Star of Me," Rogers, "Ecstasy," Rummel, and "Noel," Gounod, which proved to be real gems of the evening by an excellent display of her vocal and interpretative gifts. Miss Doak also sang the soprano obligato in the chorus number, "The Omnipotence," Schubert, in a manner wholly satisfactory. She had the advantage of accompaniments played by Gordon Campbell, which is proof that nothing further could be desired from the piano score of her various numbers.

Louis Kreidler of the Century Opera Company was indeed a welcome personage, both to look upon and listen to, in his solo work of the evening. He was greeted by a rousing burst of applause and at the closing of "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "Masked Ball," which was given in the true and much admired Kreidler operatic vocal style, the audience was aroused to highest points of enthusiasm. Mr. Kreidler sang the number in English, and extra fine it was, too; perhaps this had something to do with the applause tendered him. At another point in the program Mr. Kreidler sang "Morgen Hymne," Henschel; "Die Wandelude Glocke," Lowe; "Liebster Herr Jesu," Bach, and "Zur Johannesnacht," Grieg, in a manner which marked him as a singer worthy of being classed with any leading concert baritone. Should he decide to enter the concert and oratorio field at the close of the Century Company he surely will be received with much acclaim by that music-loving public. He was accompanied by Mrs. Helen Worswick-Ross in a very satisfactory manner. Mrs. Ross also took part in the accompaniments furnished the chorus and was at the piano throughout the solo work of Amy Emerson Neill, violinist and pupil of Hugo Kortschak, who had several appearances during the evening. H. M. B.

Walker—Edward Walker is to sing in "Messiah" at Fargo, N. D., on January 6.

SANDOR S. RADANOVITS

Sandor S. Radanovits, the Chicago voice teacher and coach, is enjoying a very busy teaching season, which threatens to eclipse all his previous studio activities since his sojourn in Chicago. Plans are being made for some studio musicales. Definite announcements will be made in the near future.

SANDOR S. RADANOVITS

Below is a partial list of public appearances of some of his professional pupils:

Augusta Alberti-Meeker, contralto—Red Cross Benefit, Oak Park, Ill., December 11; Ballmann's Symphony Orchestra North Side Turner Hall, December 13.

Warren Proctor, tenor—Swedish Lutheran Church, Iowa street and Waller avenue, November 11; South Shore Country Club, November 22; Ballmann's Symphony Orchestra, November 29; Church of Epiphany, December 7; Kimball Recital Hall, December 11; Chicago Club, December 14; Oak Park Club, Oak Park, December 15; Mrs. J. H. Lee, Oak Park, Ill., December 17; Ballmann's Symphony Orchestra, December 20; Hotel La Salle, December 31; Unity Church, Oak Park, Ill., 1912-14.

Margaret Smith-Lester, soprano—Chicago Lyric Quartet, Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., December; Palmer Park Choral Society, December 8.

Cardon V. Burnham, baritone—Palmer Park Choral Society, December 8.

Artur Platz, tenor—Joint recital, Fine Arts, December 4.

Meta Anderson, soprano—Polytechnical Society of Fullerton Hall, December.

Mrs. Louis Mann, coloratura soprano—Ballmann's Symphony Orchestra, December 27.

Smith—Lucia May Smith has been chosen as soprano soloist at the New First Congregational Church.

MESSIAH AT OLIVET, MICH.

Evening of 16th College Conservatory chorus, under direction of Professor T. Stanley Skinner, gave a more than creditable rendering of Handel's Oratorio of the "Messiah."

The accomplished artist, Walter Hartley, of Grand Rapids, organist, Miss Clara Eness of Olivet, piano accompanist, assisting soloists, Iva Bigelow Weaver of Chicago, soprano; Katherine Kimmel, Battle Creek, alto; Edward Walker and Lemuel Kilby, also of Chicago, tenor and bass.

Chorus much as at Glee Club recital of February and June commencement concert, under the same efficient masterly direction, with a vigorous attractive rehearsal of several chorus numbers; (a) "And the Glory of the Lord;" (b) "O, Thou That Teldest Good Tidings;" (c) "Glory to God;" (d) "Behold the Lamb of God," with the finale of grand composition, "The Hallelujah Chorus."

A pleasing feature the enlargement of chorus by several fresh young voices, improving the opportunity for chorus practice under so competent director as Professor Skinner. Of soloists Mrs. Weaver is an American with five seasons European study at London. She has a strong, pure voice of wide range, easily scoring B natural or high C, with a lyric quality that for an American soprano is unusually rare. Well adapted to the tragic roles of numerous operas. A voice quality of the finest type of American sopranos.

The alto, Miss Kimmel, a young artist first heard at Olivet June Commencement, now an assistant instructor at Barnes Conservatory, Battle Creek. She has a sympathetic, appealing voice quality greatly admired.

As an artist Mr. Walker is a capable tenor, with best passages in the recitatives: "Comfort Ye My People," "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart," with aria, "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted." A voice quality similar to that of Dan Beddoe, of New York, with an occasional high note suggesting Dalmares.

Mr. Kilby, an excellent bass artist with fiery energy of a Witherspoon or Ruffo, noted in a vigorous recital of solos: "But Who May Abide the Day of His Coming," "Behold Darkness Shall Cover the Earth," "Why Do the Nations Furiously Rage Together?"

The entire ensemble of soloists and chorus with accompaniments of organ and piano under skillful direction, combined to present an excellent rendition, the classic "Messiah" oratorio.—H. J. Martin in Charlotte (Mich.) Leader.

CARLILE TUCKER

Carlile Tucker, baritone, has recently returned from a season of study in Europe. His recital programs this year will be more varied than ever. They will embrace many selections from the old masters and many novelties from modern French, German and Russian composers. In addition, a comprehensive program of American composers' songs is to be featured this season.

As an oratorio singer, Mr. Tucker has often demonstrated his ability. His singing has gained in dramatic expression and his voice has broadened in many ways during the past year.

Mr. Tucker's appreciation of dramatic values—his admirable control of voice—and his personality, have made him eminently successful as a recital artist.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

AN ORATORIO REHEARSAL Wilson A. Burrows

It is not generally known, possibly, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that whosoever will may hear, each week from October to April, on Thursday evenings, a rehearsal of the oldest, and doubtless the best, chorus in New York. Tucked away in a corner of the last circular addressed to its members by the Oratorio Society of New York, is this announcement: "Friends of the members are free to attend any private rehearsal." However, any unknown but well-conducted person may, without anxiety or hesitation, avail himself of this invitation, for the officials of the society are models of courtesy, and they always appear to be profoundly touched by the least evidence of interest in their activities.

As these rehearsals are held in that portion of Carnegie Hall on Fifty-seventh street known as the Chamber Music Hall, it is scarcely likely that any save residents of that immediate neighborhood will become habitual visitors; but that is just as well, perhaps, for the modest balcony in this intimate little hall holds barely sixty persons. There are, be it said, certain zealous folk, devotees of choral music, that frequent this snug balcony every season, and these, in most cases, come many miles for the privilege.

Now there are many worse ways of spending an evening than in attending the rehearsal of a capable chorus, particularly when good, not to say immortal, music is being dissected bit by bit, and these bits repeated dozens of times in an evening. This needful detailed analysis of an extended choral work, with the infinite repetitions, may impress most people as a supremely wearisome way of passing time, but a moderate bit of submission to this sort of routine will never fail amply to repay the intelligent listener, and will give him an intimacy with the work that will stand him in good stead if he means to attend the final performance.

As the work under rehearsal nears completion, it is often sung through with but little or no interruption. Then too, the soloists, generally of wide national or even international fame, deign to come out and go through with their parts. They, too, often have to repeat.

For twenty-three years now, the Oratorio Society has rehearsed in this section of Carnegie Hall. Indeed the hall itself doubtless owes its very being to the fact that Andrew Carnegie, now twenty-six years president of the society, was determined that it should have a fitting and a permanent home; hence Carnegie Hall, which was opened in 1891, the great Russian composer, Tchaikowsky, lending himself to the occasion. It is not without significance that William Burnet Tuthill, architect of the hall, also happens to be secretary of the Oratorio Society, and in this capacity he has for thirty-three years ruled the organization with amazing energy and almost incredible tact. The word "ruled" is used advisedly, for it is pretty thoroughly recognized by observant veterans in the chorus that without the consistent optimism and the incessant labors of Mr. Tuthill the society, long ere this, would doubtless have been permitted to go the way of its kind.

The Oratorio Society was founded in 1873, by Dr. Leopold Damrosch, and for the first dozen years or so it led a troubled and precarious life. One of its early accompanists was none other than Walter Damrosch, whose name first appears on the society's programs in 1880, when he was but eighteen years old. When his distinguished and influential father died, in 1885, as the result of a too-zealous effort to establish German opera in New York, Walter became conductor of the society. In 1898, after thirteen years of this, he turned the leadership over to his brother Frank; and Frank, in turn, becoming absorbed by his duties as director of the Institute of Musical Art, as well as by the conductorship of the Musical Art Society, (an excellent professional chorus), resigned in 1912, and was succeeded by Louis Koemmenich, a native of Elberfeld, Germany, and who came to these shores in 1890. Koemmenich, through his leadership of male-voice organizations, chiefly in Brooklyn and Philadelphia, had built up a solid and enviable fame as chorus-master.

The Oratorio Society ventured before the public in 1873, with but twenty-eight singers. It now has 294, classified thus: 128 soprano, 77 alto, 35 tenor, and 54 basso. Two hundred twenty-six of these eager and loyal souls come from all over Greater New York. The other sixty-eight hail from no less than twenty-six outlying points, from Yonkers on the north to Plainfield, N. J., on the south.

About one-half of these zealous suburbanites are in business in New York and merely stop over in town on rehearsal nights. The other half make trips varying in length, but always inconvenient, solely in the interests of musical culture. One enthusiast, long departed, but leaving a deathless memory behind, used to come from a region near Haverstraw, thirty miles up on the Hudson River. For him, attendance at rehearsal involved a hotel bill, for he always stayed in town over night. It is not surprising to learn that his average attendance was exceedingly high.

A lone but determined maiden from a remote Jersey village, early this season approached the secretary of the society to ascertain if there was some other member living in or near her town, that she might avoid traveling alone after rehearsals. This entirely natural and guileless inquiry created no little mirth and sundry rather obvious jokes when it was overheard by some of the younger men who happened to be near the desk during these unique negotiations.

An energetic young woman in the chorus was long in the habit of making the journey from Plainfield, N. J., walking a mile

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athernaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Missa & Hamlin
Piano Used

THUEL BURNHAM

PIANIST AND TEACHER

Management Harry Culbertson Fine Arts Bldg.

CHICAGO

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Let's all go to the

Gala Performance of Opera to be given at The Auditorium by the Century Company on Saturday Evening

It is well worth an effort.

to and from the railroad station.

"I wouldn't do it for the world," said one of her horrified colleagues, "I don't see how you dare."

"I don't mind it at all," declared the courageous chorister, serenely drawing from the folds of her raiment a small but efficient looking dirk, her constant companion.

Membership in the Oratorio Society means work. For this, its forty-second season, there are forty-three regularly scheduled rehearsals. Of these, twenty-three are the required Thursday evenings for full chorus. The other twenty are for men and women separately on alternate Tuesdays, and these, in a measure, are optional. Besides these, there are two rehearsals with orchestra, a luxury that smaller societies cannot afford. For this year these will be but for the first and last concerts; the "Messiah" concerts at Christmas time are not so fully rehearsed, as most of the chorus has sung this work publicly from fifty to seventy-five times. At the close of last season the society had given 354 public concerts.

On rare occasions the chorus is plunged into violent excitement by a visit from Mr. Carnegie. At these times the iron-master's favorite "Elijah" choruses are brought out, and to these he listens with closed eyes and a rapt expression. Then he "concludes his portion of the evening's entertainment" by a brief speech, well sprinkled with humor, wherein he tells of his fondness for music, and of his own painful and futile efforts to make melody in his youth.

Mr. Carnegie really is fond of music, but it is generally of a strongly religious type, chiefly those strains associated with his early church and Sunday school days. There is no shadow of doubt that he is fond of the Oratorio Society, but there is a persistent rumor to the effect that he summons its conductor and its principal officers from time to time in unprosperous years and makes them profoundly wretched.

St. Paul's—A musical evening will be given at St. Paul's Universalist Church, Prairie avenue and Thirtieth street, Sunday, January 3, 1915, at 8 o'clock. The program will be given by Mrs. Mary Highsmith Lyding, Miss Barbara Wait, Mr. Bruno Kuehn and Mrs. W. Middelschulte.

Doane—John Doane is to give an organ recital at St. Paul's Church, Fiftieth and Dorchester, on Thursday evening, January 7, assisted by the regular choir of the church, under the direction of John Allen Richardson.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

Program for next Monday afternoon at Assembly Hall:

Ballade	Godefroid
Follets	Hasselmans
L'atuglia Spagnuola	Tedeschi
Miss Miriam Larkin
The Sea	MacDowell
Gavotte from "Manon"	Massenet
Zur Johannis nacht	Grieg
Miss Harriet-Jane MacConnell
Siciliano and Rigaudon	Francoeur-Kreisler
Andantino	Martini-Kreisler
Tarantelle	Robert Birch
Miss Mabel E. Woodworth
L'ance en vain chasse l' annee (from "L' Enfant Prodigue"	Debussy
Sylvelin	Sinding
Come unto the Yellow Sands	La Forge
Miss Julie Edson Manierre
Barcarolle	Rubinstein
Caprice	Paganini-Schumann
Song Without Words	Moret
Bouree Bretonne	Moret
Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury

Simmons—Josephine Simmons of Kimball Hall will close her studio for two weeks and spend the vacation in Atlanta, Ga.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Season Now Booking

Address Care of Music New

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto--Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto--Hazel Huntley
Director-Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

SANTA BARBARA

Santa Barbara was rather fortunate in being given the opportunity of hearing Tina Lerner, the Russian pianiste, in a recital at Recreation Center, December 9. Miss Lerner had been giving a series of recitals at Cort Theater in San Francisco and was on her way to Los Angeles when she decided to present one of her good programs here. It consisted of numbers from Martini, Beethoven, Chopin, Debussy and Liszt, and displayed a technic under such perfect control, and an artistic refinement so charming that it fully justifies one in calling her playing the formal loveliness of herself.

A program exceedingly appropriate to the Christmas season was given at the Unitarian Church by George H. Normington, assisted by H. E. Cavanah, tenor, Sunday afternoon, December 20. The first number was the unique "Schiller March" by Meyerbeer, followed by "Christmas Musette" by Mailly; the old, yet ever new "Silent Night, Holy Night," by Flaxington-Harker; the little gem, "Sunset at Bethlehem," by Lacey; the pictorial "Christmas in Sicily," by Alessandro Yon, and "Evening Bells" and Cradle Song" by Macfarlane. There is so much refinement in Mr. Normington's playing and so much finish and completeness to his phrasing, that one never tires of his work, but instead it grows upon his audience and produces an increased interest and enjoyment with repeated hearings.

Mr. Cavanah was heard in "Comfort Ye" and "Every Valley" from the "Messiah," and "Waft Her Angels Through the Skies" (Jephtha), displaying a lyric tenor voice of ample range and smooth quality, especially in the middle register, and singing with good interpretation and a careful regard for musical values and tone shading.

A. B. BARNETT.

Medini—A neat circular has been issued by Mme. F. Roena Medini, illustrative of the work done at her studio at 3760 Lake Park avenue.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO

Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great natural beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

SOLOS and QUARTETS

FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By

HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)

THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)

BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)

LIFE (Medium)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)

SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)

BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

H. WILHELM
Baritone

324 North Spring Street

La Grange, Ill.

RECITAL

NORDIN

CONCERT

ORATORIO

Music in America

LOS ANGELES

With the activities of the holiday season the musical events have been largely local.

The First Congregational Church Orchestra celebrated its opening of the twentieth year of continuous work under the leadership of William H. Mead. It numbers about fifty players of a good degree of efficiency. Their longest work was the "Grand Fantasia," from the opera of "Faust," the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto andante, and Sebek's "In the Soudan," with Mr. Lavillo E. Mulber in the cornet obligato and Verdi's overture to the "Sicilian Vespers" had good rendering. The orchestra also accompanied the sextet from "Lucia" and the quartet from "Rigoletto," in which Mrs. Emilie Cole Ulrich, soprano; Mrs. Eleanor M. Summers, contralto; Mr. G. Haydn Jones, tenor; Mr. Henry P. Page, baritone, with Mr. Harry A. Ford, tenor and Mr. Ray B. Sumner, basso, assisting in the sextette, gave so satisfactory a rendition they were obliged to repeat each number.

The Lebegott Orchestra gave their fifth concert, Mr. Henry Schoenfeld, for the day, being the director, in a well chosen program. Miss Marjorie Nichols, solo pianist,

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

gave Grieg's "Concerto in A Minor," in her excellent style, also playing in solo numbers. Beethoven's "Egmont Overture," opening of the program, and Mr. Schoenfeld's "Nocturne," with flute and 'cello obligatos, were interesting. Mr. Cyril Dwight Edwards, baritone, gave a highly satisfactory rendering of Verdi's aria from "The Masked Ball." The soloist was recalled twice, giving pleasing English songs, proving quite an ovation. We hope to hear more of the voice in the future.

The National Grand Opera Company announces January 18 as the opening of their season, in the "Temple," now Clune's Auditorium.

The M. E. Choir of 100 voices gave a performance of Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," Sunday evening. Mr. Carl Bronson, director.

The Fuhrer-Zielinski Trio gave another of their most interesting programs of Russian, Polish, Dane and Holland composers, Miss Mercedes Ciesielska, soprano, assisting in very charming and dramatic solos. The verbal comments by Mr. Zielinski were very helpful to the comprehension of the very peculiar music expression by those great writers.

Last Sunday's performance of "The Messiah" by the combined Festival and Peoples

Choruses, about 250 voices, was not all it should have been. Yet with the limited number of rehearsals and only a portion rehearsed with the orchestra, with a very short time under the new director, and both chorus and orchestra unacquainted with each and the other, it would hardly bespeak a good performance of so grand a work as Handel's "Messiah." The solo parts were taken by local artists of good promise, but for the reasons above mentioned came short of their possibilities. They were greeted with a good audience, although a heavy rain was falling all day. Hearty applause greeted every point of excellence and many regretted that we could not hear the work under first-class conditions and preparation.

The county and city teachers were in annual assembly this week two days, followed by two days of Southern California teachers, comprising six counties and numbering about 5,000 teachers. Besides an able corps of lecturers from the leading educational schools and cities of our country, they included programs of good music well rendered by our best and most popular local artists, as follows: The Women's Symphony Orchestra; Mr. Lester Donahue, pianist; Miss Lucy Fuhrer, 'celloist; the Brahms Quintet; Mr. Anthony Carlson, basso; Mrs. Julia Ensign Warren, soprano; Myrtle F. Ouellet, harpist; Mr. Axtel Simonsen, 'cellist; Mrs. Willis N. Tiffany, soprano; Miss Ida E. Bach, mezzo soprano; Miss Mary Estes Groves, pianist. Director Herr Adolf Tandler of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, on "Musical Impressions from Abroad," gave a very interesting talk throughout. A paper on "Musical Efficiency," by Miss Frances E. Wright of our State Normal School music department also was of interest. All in all, a musical bill of fare in the educational and demonstrative line to be of great aesthetical value to the great body of educators. Perhaps no better haven can be set than can be evolved through the public schools of our country.

The second annual Christmas reception and "Jinks" was tendered to the theater artists of the city in a free entertainment and Christmas tree, each playhouse having a "Santa" sent, who made liberal contribution for their respective players who were present. The club gave a very enjoyable literary and musical program and on the arrival, at 11:30 p. m., of the show people, it was continued, some of the stars participating, after which a free and bounteous "hand-out" lunch was served, after which joy reigned supreme in the tipping of the fantastic toe, to the rhythmic flow of the music of the dance orchestra. The hospitality of the club is famous in tendering good will to artists of all kinds who are away from home, and offer good cheer en route.

The second concert of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra was one of marked musical interest. The Beethoven "Symphony (Eroica), in E Flat, Op. 55," opened the program. The intricacies were handled with neatness and artistic touch and color to the thought of the skillful leader. Herr Tandler, who is so thoroughly acquainted that he does not need a copy, but conducts from memory.

The Debussy prelude, "The Afternoon of a Faun," was faultlessly played, no doubt, and revealed a wide scope of musical expression. Parish-Alvar's "Concerto for Harp, Op. 98," with Signor S. R. Valenza as harpist and with orchestra accompaniment, was most enjoyable. "The Bartered Bride," an overture by Smetana, proved immensely entertaining and left nothing wanting. Good audiences are in attendance.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

446 West Fortieth Place.

###

ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

The program offered by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at the third concert in the St. Paul Institute series, at the Auditorium was from the French school.

Notably done was the Berlioz Symphony No. 3, "Harold in Italy," with viola solo, wonderfully well played by Karl Scheurer. The principal theme given out by the viola makes itself felt through the whole work, blending and contrasting with the other themes in the development of the whole. The "March" and "Evening Prayer of the Pilgrims" met with pronounced success.

The symphonic poem, "Viviane," by Ernest Chausson, disciple of Cesar Frank, was a fascinating novelty which was given an exquisite performance by the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Oberhoffer.

Helen Stanley, soprano of the Century Opera Company, sang Micaela's aria from "Carmen," and the aria "Il est bon; il est doux," from Massenet's "Herodiade" for encore. Lia's aria from Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue" and the "Vissi d'Arte" from Puccini's "La Tosca." Miss Stanley has a beautiful voice and was recognized as a singer of unusual ability.

The brilliant Berlioz "Roman Carnival" overture, and the Dukas Scherzo, "L'Apprenti Sorcier" completed the orchestral offerings of the program.

At the fortnightly recital by the Schubert Club the program given was an organ recital at the People's Church by George H. Fairclough, assisted by Alma Peterson, soprano, with Kate Dousman Williams as accompanist, and Frank Zdarsky, violinist. A very large audience was in attendance.

Mr. Fairclough played the Wolstenholme sonata in the style of Handel, the Liszt-Lemare, "Sposalizio," Grand Choeur in G minor by Hollins; a second group of a Choral Prelude of Bach, followed by St. Anne's Fugue in E flat, "An Evening Prayer" by G. H. Fairclough, and concert overture in B minor by J. H. Rogers.

Mr. Fairclough played in his masterly style and his own compositions were most effective as played on the People's Church organ, with its echo organ. The last group was the Fantasia on "Lead Kindly Light," (MS.) by G. H. Fairclough, a thoroughly reverent and splendid composition, "Elegy," by Nohle, and "Toccata in E" by Homer Bartlett.

Alma Peterson sang with beautiful voice and in a thoroughly artistic manner. The program was arranged by Louise Strauss, Forster, Cad-ney Homer and Rummel. Miss Williams was an excellent accompanist. Mr. Zdarsky played with finished style the Adagio from Mozart's concerto in D.

One of the greatest treats of the season thus far was the song recital by Mme. Julia Culp under the auspices of the Schubert Club at the People's Church. Mme. Culp, the Dutch mezzo-soprano, and lieder singer, has a winsome personality, charming in her dignity and simplicity. Her program contained songs by Schubert, Brahms, John Alden Carpenter and James Rogers. Artistic in the extreme were the ever beautiful "Du bist die ruh," and "Serenade," together with the "Standchen" by Schubert.

The audience delighted in the exquisitely artistic accompaniments played by Cocnraad V. Bos.

An interesting lecture-recital was that given at the Church Club by Mrs. Edward MacDowell on her husband's compositions. Mrs. MacDowell is accomplishing a noble work in carrying out her husband's plan of establishing a colony of art workers at Peterborough, N. H. It was his great desire that others might find inspiration in the same surroundings where he wrote his best compositions.

Under the leadership of the Minnesota Chapter of American Guild of Organists, John Doane of the faculty of the Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston, Ill., gave an organ recital December 9 in St. Paul's Church, Minneapolis. Mr. Doane is an excellent organist, and his best achievement was his playing of the "Alegro Vivace" from Widor's Fifth Symphony, and Wagner's "Liebestod" (arranged for the organ by Gibson), a group of piano compositions transcribed for the organ followed. The Romance in D Flat by Sibelius especially pleased and was well adapted to the organ. An interesting number was the Fantasia, for two performers, by George W. Andrews, played by Mr. Doane and Mr. Harold Tower, organist of the church. The program closed with a splendid playing of the Toccata in G Minor by Harry Alexander and Matthews.

Handel's "Messiah" was played at Stillwater, Minn., December 15, under the direction of Mr. Leopold Bruemer, with the following St. Paul soloists: Marie McCormick, soprano; Adelaide Pierce, contralto; Walter Mallory, tenor, and Grant Kelliher, bass.

MYRTLE WEED.

###

FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Palmer Christian will play the following program at the Fourth Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon, January 7, at 4:30: Rakoczy (Hungarian National March) (arranged)

West Ave Maria Max Reger
Rondo Capriccio Edwin H. Lemare
Prelude and Fugue in "B. A. C. H." Franz Liszt
Scherzo Bossi
Vorspiel and Liebestod (Tristan and Isolde) Wagner
Fugue in C Buxtehude
The Swan Saint-Saens
Final (First Symphony) Louis Vierne

###

Burnham—Mr. Thuel Burnham of Paris and New York was a Music News caller one day last week.

###

Congratulations—Congratulations are in order for Walter Roderich, a son, Paul, who arrived at the Diederich

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

ROEDER EDWARD VIOLIN

CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

Sacred and Secular Songs

Published by

TULLAR-MEREDITH CO.

265 W. 36th St. 14 W. Washington St.
NEW YORK CHICAGO

SACRED---

LILLIAN TAITT SHELTON—

Three Songs for Medium Voice,

THE PALACE O' THE KING 50

THE PRAYER OF LIFE 50

WHEN THE ANGEL COMES 50

I. H. MEREDITH—

THE VALLEY OF PEACE 50

Duet (Medium and High Voices) with optional refrain for mixed or male voices.

SECULAR---

NELLIE SHORTHILL BRADSHAW

AWAKE! AWAKE! 'TIS THE GLAD

SPRINGTIME 60

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU 50

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LOVE'S LESSON 40

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LULLABY 60

(Medium Voice with Violin Obligato).

50% Discount from Above Prices

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE

CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers

Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.

67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

KANSAS CITY

The second concert of the Symphony Orchestra, under Carl Busch, with Lambert Murphy as soloist, was given in the Schubert Theater this month. Goldmark's "Country Wedding" Symphony, with its march, bridal song, serenade, garden scene, and dance, was given a careful and pleasing rendition. Other numbers played by the orchestra in a delightful manner were Mendelssohn's Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and Massenet's Overture to "Phedre." Mr. Murphy sang two songs, "Celeste Aida," by Verdi, and the less familiar Massenet aria, "Open Now to My Eyes," from "Griselidis." Few singers have so pleased Kansas City audiences as Mr. Murphy succeeded in doing.

The visit of the San Carlo Opera Company was much enjoyed early in December. Beginning on Sunday night, December 6, a concert of opera music was given, followed through the week by productions of "Rigoletto," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci," "Barber of Seville" and "Carmen." Chevalier Giuseppe Angelini is an interesting director, and the five performances were well patronized. Probably the largest number attended "Carmen."

Mr. and Mrs. Henri Shostac, who are making their home here, gave their first Kansas City concert Thursday evening, December 17, at the Temple B'nai Jehudah. The opening number of their program was a violin duet, Sinding's "Serenade," the three movements "Tempo di Marcia," "Al-legretto," and "Andante." This was given an exquisite interpretation. Mr. Shostac played the Mozart Concerto in G Major, with cadenzas by Ysaye, which gave him opportunity to display his remarkable technique and to establish himself as a master musician. An "Adagio" by Brahms, Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois" and "Zigeunerweisen" by Sarasate charmed the audience—these were played by Mr. Shostac also. The program ended with a Suite by Moszkowski, "Allegro Energico," "Allegro Moderato," and "Molto Vivace," played by Mr. and Mrs. Shostac. Miss Clara Blakeslee was at the piano and gave splendid support.

Since coming to our city Mr. and Mrs. Shostac have organized the Kansas City String Quartet, the second organization of the sort here. A series of concerts will be given during the winter at the Grand Avenue Temple. The other members of the quartet are Mr. Hans Petersen, viola, and Mr. Alfred Buch, 'cello.

Marcella Craft and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, in joint recital, at the Schubert Theater one afternoon recently, proved to be a most enjoyable affair. Miss Craft sang several songs from "Madame Butterfly," including, of course, the "Un bel di." Her voice is beautiful, and even on the concert stage she is somewhat the actress. Mrs. Beach played her own French Suite, and a new "Valse Fantaisie," also her own. Angelo Cortese, harpist, also assisted. The concert was given under the management of Miss Myrtle Irene Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Alberti, new members of the faculty of the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, gave a concert a short time ago, at the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Alberti has a pleasing contralto voice, and Mr. Alberti is a pianist of merit. The program follows:

In questa tomba.....	Beethoven
Ungeduld.....	Schubert
Ich kanns nicht fassen.....	Schumann
Frühlingsnacht.....	Schumann
Ballade, G minor.....	Chopin
Etude, C sharp minor.....	Chopin
Scherzo, B minor.....	Chopin
Verborgtheit.....	Wolf
Erstes Liebeslied eines Madchens.....	Wolf
Romance.....	Debussy
Le Plongeur.....	Widor
Ballade in E minor.....	Adolph Brune

(First time in Kansas City)

Lotus Land.....	Scott
Rhapsodie No. 12.....	Liszt
Roundelay.....	Lidgley
When I Am Dead, My Dearest.....	Borowski
My Lover, He Comes on the Skee.....	Clough-Leigher
Cry of Rachel.....	Salter

Mrs. F. J. Roff, teacher of voice, presented Miss Margaret Edith Kost, one of her advanced pupils in recital at the Lutheran Church, December 11. Miss Kost has a well-trained soprano voice, and sang with good style Meyerbeer's "Shadow Song," the "Madame Butterfly" aria, "One Fine Day," and the scene and aria from Weber's "Der Freischütz." She also sang several short songs in English.

Assisting on the program were Miss Jeanette Farley, pianist; Miss Jessie Lee, violinist, and Miss Edith Barker, reader.

Earl Rosenberg, baritone; Forrest Schultz, violinist, and Floyd Robbins, pianist, all three members of the faculty of the Horner Institute of Fine Arts, are spending part of December on tour through Kansas.

Mrs. Carl Busch, who has been in Europe for several months, has returned and reopened her studio in the Studio Building.

Probably the next soloist whom the Association of Organists will bring here to give a recital will be Edwin Arthur Kraft, of Atlanta, Ga.

MARY H. FLAGG.

311 Studio Building.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The program of recent date by the Arion and Cecilia Clubs, with Mr. Protheroe directing, was selected with an evident intent to please, and well fulfilled its mission.

Mme. Claussen, as soloist, added many friends to her already large following of admirers. The next offering of this club will be the "Messiah," with local soloists and the Catholic Choral Club assisting.

The second of the series of Mills and Hollander was the presentation of John McCormack and Company. Mr. McCormack is the only artist who has filled the theater this season. His voice was finer than ever, if possible, and the program was interesting alike to all.

Last evening the A Capella Chorus, William Boeppler conducting, gave its second performance of the "Messiah" in German, with Beecher Burton, tenor; Mrs. Herdien, soprano; Elsa Bloedel, alto, and Fred Martin, bass, in the full auditorium hall, which seats something like nine thousand people. Being so huge and with poor acoustics, most singers look forward with dread to an appearance here, and rightly, as the soloists should be chosen with that in mind. Everything was satisfactory in that respect, to a degree, with the exception of one aria of which fully two-thirds was not heard. The chorus was in its usual fine trim, with a larger number even than usual, and as we have grown to expect from Mr. Boeppler's splendid drilling, they responded to his every beat with accuracy and shading. Mr. Boeppler also gave a fine interpretation of the pastoral symphony with the orchestra. J. B. W.

BOISE, IDAHO

Good music by local artists is becoming so popular that whenever an evening with the musicians is heralded it is a foregone conclusion that there will be a large audience to enjoy it. This was the case Sunday evening at the First M. E. Church when the Thalia choir under the direction of Dwight Edrus Cook, with Richard P. Erwin, organist, gave the beautiful Christmas cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem," by Spence. The spacious seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost with appreciative listeners. Saint-Saens' oratorio, "Christmas," was played with rare musical feeling by Richard P. Erwin, as was the offertory by Guilmant, an ancient Christmas carol full of daintiness and pretty effect. "The Pastoral," the instrumental introduction, was equally as fine. The anthem, "Silent Night," from the cantata, "Holy Night" (Ashford), was splendidly sung by the full chorus. Mr. Cook was in excellent voice and his tenor solo, opening the cantata, "There Were Shepherds," was unusually fine.

The choruses were exceptionally well sung, the soloists all in good voice, and the evening one of great pleasure. The male quartet deserves special mention for the excellence of its work and its fine quality of voice.—Boise Capital-News.

Kimbell—Grant Kimbell has been engaged to sing the tenor solos in the "Messiah" at Tiffin, Ohio, April 27.

The Economy in Buying the HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

LOS ANGELES

The Women's Symphony Orchestra opened its twenty-third season November 27. Mr. Henry Schoenfeld, director, in a program of much interest. One of the most telling works was the Grieg "Concerto in A Minor" for piano and orchestra accompaniment. Miss Marjorie Nichols, a young miss of seventeen, with great talent and mastery in technic, gave a highly satisfactory rendition of this classic composition. She also appeared in two Debussy numbers, and in Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G Minor." The orchestra closed the program in an enjoyable interpretation of Mozart's "Symphony in D Major." The director's "Nocturne" for string orchestra was enthusiastically received, the flute and cello obligatos being played by Miss Minnie V. Percival and Miss Lucy Fuhrer.

The next will be given in the Trinity, where the placement of the orchestra will have a forward and elevated seating which will be more conducive to balanced effect than is possible on a theatrical stage on the flat platform.

The Lebegott Orchestra in the fourth concert (alternate Sunday afternoons), presented a good grade program, opening with "Caucasian Sketches" in the suite in four parts by M. Ippolitov-Ivanov. Mr. Walter Ammann, cellist, gave Goltmann's "Concerto in A Minor," with the orchestra accompanying, which was a satisfactory performance. Madame Adelina Lebegott again was very enjoyable in the "Jewel Song" from "Faust." Beethoven's "Minuet," Wolf-Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna" and Rossini's "Semiramide" overture were well delivered under Director Lebegott's excellent leadership.

The second recital of the Archibald sessions course, on Wednesday afternoons in Christ Church, was given with Mr. Clifford Lott as baritone soloist. The list included works of masterly content for the organ. The three Brahms songs were received as vocal and instrumental expression, the text German, but little interest to those not German.

Mme. Helen Thorner, dramatic soprano, gave a program of great songs from German, French and Italian authors, in their respective vernaculars, displaying a great voice in power and dramatic effects.

The combined chorus of the Festival and People's choruses are rehearsing on the "Messiah" and will give a performance with the aid of the Lebegott Orchestra and the organ of the Auditorium, near Christmas time, with good local soloists.

The monthly musicale given at the Fowler music room by Mrs. Jane Catherwood was an enjoyable event. Miss Marjorie Nichols gave a half-dozen artists' numbers in piano selections. Miss Mabel Katherine Melville, soprano, sang six songs in French and German in smooth, sweet tone, showing promise. Mrs. W. M. Hepburn accompanying. Ch. Nicholson, an opera baritone, presented the "Prolog" from "Pagliacci," also arias from "La Tosca" and "Barbiere de Seviglia," with Miss Annalee Smith at the piano. This is Mrs. Catherwood's treat to the profession and lovers of music each month, which is highly appreciated by her large list of friends.

Dr. Richard Burton of the University of Minnesota's literature work, and president of the Drama League of America, at the conclusion of a course of lectures before the Cumnoek School of Oratory and Expression gave a fine lecture on Charles Dickens, which was enjoyable historically and educationally.

A paper on Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy was given by Mrs. Kate Stern at the Sinai Temple, after which selections were rendered by the choir and quartet of soloists from the oratorio of "Elijah." The solos met with good favor but the chorus was much too small to be effective in expression.

Mme. Estella Newhaus, an eminent pianist, gave two recital programs of virtuosi grade, in the Egan Little Theater, to fair audiences, receiving hearty approval. Mr. J. Howe Clifford interspersed the groups with readings, well presented and most interesting in style, diction and beauty of tone.

Mr. Evan Williams appeared before a fine afternoon audience and showed his exquisite art and delivery in his program of English songs and songs in English. His vocal condition, due to a cold, cut heavily into his rendition, and feeling he could do much better when normal conditions prevailed, he proclaimed a week's rest and will give another recital, when he hopes to be up to his excellent standard, which recital he will give this week, having fully recovered.

The John McCormack recital, January 5, is awaited with high expectancy of pleasure. The Serato violin recital this week was enthusiastically received and a good audience heard him.

A musicale of musical and social interest

Betsy M. Howland

PIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

CONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGAN

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.

GLADYS HAWKINS

PIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163

THEODORE HARRISON

BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

ANNA AGNES HERBERT M. BAILEY

Soprano Baritone
JOINT RECITALS--ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

S. HARRISON LOVEWELL

TEACHER OF PIANO, ORGAN and HARMONY
Lectures and Lecture Recitals (Circular at Request)
Modern Harmony by Correspondence
Studios: 9 Bartlett Av., Arlington 30 Steinert Hall, Boston

MARIE YAHN CONCERTS

ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

Edith Ayers McCullough

Mezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.

M. A. E. Doelling Pianist Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, Basso

TEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580

BERTHA HART PIANIST

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Louise LE BARON

MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

W. Otto Miessner Supervisor of Music

Milwaukee
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Elliman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av

DORIS PFEIFFER

VIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City Iowa

Body Poise and Breathing---10 Lessons

How to generate, conserve and wisely expend the vital energy
VOCAL MUSCLE POISE

Scientific method based on natural law to build the throat muscles, strong and elastic, for trills, scales and all embellishments.

ESTELLE COLLETTE McKAY
Henninger Conservatory of Music, 3524 Grand Av., St. Louis, Mo.

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
548 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8444

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO
ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

TODD ERNEST O.

TENOR
Oratorio—Concert—Recital
Phone Harrison 1644
Home Phone, Edgewater 3576

ROY DAVID BROWN

PIANIST
SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL FINE ARTS BUILDING

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

this week was at the home Rev. Dr. T. D. Wallace and Mrs. Elizabeth Wallace, lately of Chicago, who acted as hostess for a group of Chicago musical people and friends. The program was given by Miss Pauline Barr, violinist. "Legende" by Wieniawski, Beethoven's "Minuet," "Souvenir" by Drdla and "Evening Star" by Wagner.

Mrs. Berne Sisson Barker, soprano, gave "Love Is the Wind" by McFadyen, Reger's "Captaine," and "You, Dear, and I," whose singing was marked with good tone, feeling and splendid diction. Mr. S. W. Mountz, baritone, tendered the male register in two standard songs, Sarjeant's "Blow, Blow, Thou Wintry Wind," and Clay's ever popular "Gipsy John."

Mrs. Emma Porter Mackinson, soprano extraordinary, rendered a good recital list. From Cadman's "At Dawning," "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and "Reincarnation," Homer's "Banjo Song," "Thou Art Like a Flower" by Vernon Spencer, and "Dewdrops" by Demorest. Last, but most valuable to the evening's completeness, was the accompanist, Mr. Charles H. Demorest, who did the work of the occasion, playing for all the artists mostly sight reading, and the first sight, too. The reception duties hindered the hostess, Mrs. Wallace, from responding to the urgent demands to sing her part in the musical program.

S. W. MOUNTZ.
446 West Fortieth place.

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

The Milwaukee Musical Society presented "The Damnation of Faust," by Berlioz, on December 7, in the Pabst Theater, to a large and enthusiastic audience. The oratorio abounds in clever contrapuntal and beautiful orchestral effects. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra set forth the stirring "Rakoczy March," "Dance of the Sylphs" and the "Pandemonium" in a very realistic manner. The choral parts, "Sleep, Happy Faust," and "Christ Is Risen" were given with beautiful nuance.

Lambert Murphy, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, sang "Faust" and revealed a voice of great beauty and purity. He brought forth the spirit of the text and was adequate to all demands. His success was complete and his endorsement by the audience was emphatic.

John Rankl of Chicago sang the part of Brander, and while this was not a big part, he made much of it, singing it from memory. It was notable for enunciation and clarity of tone.

Elsa Kellner as Marguerite and Willard Flint as Mephistopheles sang their parts most satisfactorily.

ST. JOHN'S UNIVERSITY

The orchestra of St. John's University, composed of members of the faculty and of students of music, made its second appearance of the season with great success. The program included numbers from Chopin, Moszkowski, Suppe, Donizetti, Haendel and Burgmeier. A large audience of students, faculty and guests was delighted with the orchestra. WILFRED PARTKA.

WOOSTER, OHIO

Last evening in Memorial Chapel the men's and women's glee clubs combined to present the best program of this nature that the writer has ever heard in this city. The program consisted of numbers by the clubs in combination and singly, male and female quartets, readings, solos and a trio.

The vocal soloists, Miss Gertrude Young, Miss Isabel Booher and Mr. Robert Scott, were already known to most of us and lived up to their former reputations admirably, although Miss Young was suffering a bit from sore throat and Miss Booher from nervousness. Miss Agnes Scott in her piano solo disclosed a poise and assurance which made her hearers feel that she was perfect master of the situation. It may be remarked that Miss Scott has made remarkable improvement this year in both technic and interpretation. The readers, Misses Lawrence and Mateer, were both heartily applauded and surely deserved the demonstration.

The men's quartet enlivened the rather serious nature of the program by singing a clever serio-comic sketch entitled "Aunt Marjorie." The ladies' quartet gave the ever popular and effective arrangement of "Annie Laurie" by Dudley Buck. Although both quartets were somewhat nervous, the effect as a whole was most excellent. The Women's Club in their work abounded in those delicate and pleasing effects which are so delightful in a female chorus. The Men's Club with its vigorous and robust "Hunting Song" made a pleasing contrast to the girls' number and sang equally well.

The feature of the evening was the work of the clubs in combination, singing Grieg's "Olaf Trygvason," "Trio" and "Finale" from "Faust," and "Choral Fantasia" from "Lohengrin." The first of these gave the audience a foretaste of what was coming, and altho the best work of the evening was not done in this number, it was a splendid piece of choral art. In the "Trio" the audience was genuinely surprised, for few realized that we have in the conservatory singers who possess the power, technic and dramatic ability to give such a really professional rendition of this number. Miss Young as Margarita sang with superb abandon, her voice meeting all the exacting demands of the part admirably. Mr. Deetz as Faust surprised even his friends by the sonority and clarity of his high voice. Mr. Thorpe developed a really remarkable fortissimo in his climax as Mephisto. His voice has been growing in breadth and purity this year and his thoroughly artistic performance made him new friends. The work of the chorus in the "Trio" was on the same high plane attained in the "Fantasia." All through the work of the chorus the beautifully modulated crescendo and diminuendo effects, the dynamic accentuation, the purity of tone quality and the precision of attack and release brought wonder to the minds of the hearers. It was the more wonderful when one recalls that the entire program was rendered without direction of any kind. Generally speaking, the work of the evening represents the highest level, technically and artistically, that has yet been reached by a choral body in this city and the directors are deserving of unstinted commendation for their efficient work.

ERIE, PA.

The concert given by the Philadelphia Orchestra and Mme. Schumann-Heink in the Park Opera House on Monday evening, December 7, will go down in the musical history of Erie as the most inspired performance ever heard in this city. Stokowski, the brilliant young conductor, of whom Philadelphia is so proud, has made a place for himself in the hearts and minds of Erie musicians that can never be supplanted by any other orchestral leader. His wonderful temperament and keen musicianship were a revelation, and his auditors were unanimous in the verdict that this program was the most perfect and satisfying orchestral music ever heard in Erie. Add to this so eminent an artist as Ernestine Schumann-Heink for soloist and you have a combination hard to beat. The beloved contralto was in excellent voice and was accorded a tremendous ovation on both of her appearances. The program follows:

Overture, "The Bartered Bride" Smetana
Spring Aria from "Samson and Delilah" Saint-Saens
Mme. Schumann-Heink
Symphony No. 4, in F minor, Op. 36..... Tchaikowsky
Andante Sostenuto-Moderato con anima
Andantino in modo di canzone
Scherzo-Pizzicato ostinato
Finale—Allegro con fuoco
Adriano's Aria from "Rienzi" Wagner
Mme. Schumann-Heink
Valse Triste Sibelius
Finlandia, Op. 26 Sibelius

§ § §

The Erie Choral Society, which was recently organized under the direction of Henry B. Vincent, is doing excellent work at rehearsals and some important compositions are being studied for the concert to be given early in the new year.

§ § §

Albert H. Dowling, Jr., played the following compositions of Charles Wakefield Cadman at the third recital of his living American composers series on last Sunday evening, as a prelude to the regular service: "March" in C, "Meditation" in D Flat, "Caprice" in G major, "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and "Legend."

§ § §

Georgia French Brevillier, one of Erie's foremost singers, has returned from New York, where she has been doing some special work with Eleanor McClellan, the well known voice teacher.

§ § §

The Central Presbyterian Church choir, under the direction of Dr. Charles Woolsey, gave a very successful concert in the auditorium of the church last Tuesday evening. The soloists of the evening were members of the choir and pupils of Dr. Woolsey.

§ § §

Several members of the local symphony orchestra journeyed to Meadville, Pa., with Franz Kohler recently, where they assisted the Meadville Orchestra, which Mr. Kohler has been directing. The soloist of the evening was Mlle. Josephine Bonazzi, of the Kohler-Williams School. Miss Bonazzi played the Grieg piano concerto, which was such a delightful feature of our last symphony concert.

A. H. D. JR.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

Schumann and his works were reviewed at the Music Study Club at their first December meeting. Mrs. E. F. Herbert had charge of the program, and after giving a very carefully prepared and able discussion of the character of the composer and his understanding of the highest forms of love and happiness, sang with intelligence the "Dichterlieder."

§ § §

An enthusiastic reception was given the program presented by the Music Study Club at the Y. M. C. A. on Ladies' Night, December 7, as it contained several numbers which were worthy of commendation. Miss Edna Hanna was heard in "Moments Musicales," by Moszkowski; Mrs. Carl Wyant, in addition to her artistic rendering of Rubinstein's "Barcarolle in A," furnished wholly satisfactory accompaniments to three other numbers. A rather unusual feature of the program was the cornet solo by Miss Esther McKee, the loud, harsh tone which sometimes accompanies that instrument being entirely absent. Mrs. Edward Hummel, Miss Winifred Smith and Mrs. Helen Manchec Barrett each gave an (a) and (b) number, which were well received, each demanding an enchoire.

A. B. BARNETT.

DANVILLE, ILL.

Mae Doelling, pianist, and Marie Sidcnus Zendt gave the following program before the Elks Club of Danville, on December 5: On Pinions of Song..... Mendelssohn-Liszt
Widmung Schumann-Liszt
Concert Etude, D flat..... Liszt

Miss Doelling

Her Love Song..... Mary Turner Salter
Spirit Flower Campbell-Tipton
As a Bird..... Herbert E. Hyde

Mrs. Zendt

Prelude, G minor..... Rachmaninoff
Prelude, G minor..... Racmaninoff

Miss Doelling

Songs My Mother Taught Me..... Dvorak
Ein Traum Grieg
Daheim (My Native Land)..... Hugo Kaun
Aria Depuis Le Jour (from Louise)..... Charpentier

Mrs. Zendt

Nachtstuck, F major..... Schumann
Hungarian Dance, No. 6..... Brahms
Concert Etude, E flat major..... Rubinstein

Miss Doelling

When I Bring to You Colour'd Toys..... John A. Carpenter

Song of the Chimes (Cradle Song)..... Lola Carrier Worell

When Roses Wake..... Mark Andrews

Mrs. Zendt

Arabesque on the "Beautiful Blue Danube"..... Strauss

(Arranged by Schulz-Evler)

Miss Doelling

— # # # —

Little Theater—The Little Theater Puppets will play "The Deluded Dragon" at the Little Theater Saturday mornings, January 2 and 9, at 10:30.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches-TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Donna Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue New York

Management M. H. HANSON

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian
Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Carnegie School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

Edith Adelaide Kien
Pianist and Accompanist
Studio, Arlington Av. and May St. South Elmhurst, Ill.

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Maybelle Smylie Davison
SOPRANO-TEACHER
642 E. 64th Street Management Willis Mayne

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

SIOUX CITY, IA.

Remarkable program of absolute music given by pupils of the Heizer Music School of Sioux City, Iowa, Wednesday afternoon, December 16.

For many years it has been the custom of the Heizer Music School to give an annual program in honor of Beethoven's birthday. It is an event looked forward to with interest by all ambitious students, as an appearance upon these programs is recognized as a mark of honor and an acknowledgment of earnest effort.

This year's class was the largest in the history of the school. The program following required almost three hours with a short intermission.

All numbers for strings and voice were postponed for a future date.

Andante Fifth Symphony—
Miss Marguerite Knapp and Miss Lois Gould
Sonata, Op. 7, Largo

Miss Mabel Barclay

Sonata, Op. 26 Miss Gertrude Trowl

Sonata, Op. 57, Appassionata

Miss Doris Struble

Sonata, Op. 6—Two pianos, eight hands—

Miss Marguerite Knapp, Miss Lois Gould, Miss

Charlotte Boer and Miss Mabel Barclay

Sonata, Op. 53, First Movement

Miss Helen Orr

Sonata, Op. 13—

First Movement—Miss Evelyn Mulhall

Second Movement—Miss Lola Smith

Third Movement—Miss Lillian Courshow

Sonata, Op. 2, No. 2—Two Movements

Miss Helen Blackman

Sonata, Op. 13, No. 3—First Movement

Miss Helen Richardson

String Quartet, Op. 18, No. 5—

Mr. Harry Larson, Miss Anna Coughlin, Mr.

Ossean Anderson and Mr. Heizer

Sonata, Op. 28—Andante

Miss Helen King

Sonata, Op. 26—Second Movement

(Arranged for two pianos, eight hands)

Miss Anna Lange, Miss Esther Larson, Miss

Gertrude Trowl and Miss Mabel Barclay

Bagatelle, Op. 33, No. 6—

Miss Anna Lange

Menuet, Op. 49, No. 2—

Miss Catherine Godfriedson

Menuet in G for violin—

Miss Anna Coughlin

MORVEN AND THE GRAIL

A new oratorio for chorus of mixed voices, four solo voices, mixed quartet off the stage, and full orchestra. Music by Horatio Parker, words by Brian Hooker.

The Boston Music Company has the honor of making the important announcement that they will publish during the month of January, 1915, a new oratorio by Horatio Parker. This work undoubtedly constitutes his most notable achievement since "Hora Novissima." It was written especially for the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, and will have its initial performance on April 13, 1915, under the direction of Mr. Emil Mollenhauer. "Morven and the Grail" will be the chief event of the musical festival given by this famous organization and promises fully to realize the keen anticipation of a great success. Both the words and the music of this oratorio are, in a way, a departure from the usual style, and are bound to be a matter of extraordinary interest in the musical world.

Purdy—Miss Constance Purdy has been engaged by the Schubert Club of St. Paul to give a Russian program on January 15 in the series in which Julia Culp recently appeared.

LAFAYETTE, INDIANA

A recital of exceptional high merit was given last evening at the Lafayette Conservatory of Music by students of Robert J. Ring of the piano department, and L. A. Cover of the vocal department. Marked progress was shown in the work of the young people, and the program was presented in a most artistic manner. The program follows:

Village Dance Pennington

Miss Harriet Tate

Rondeau Chaminade

Miss Elizabeth Thompson

Voice—

Song of Love Protheroe

Because D'Hardelot

Miss Vida Boyer

Preludes, Op. 28, No. 6 and 20..... Chopin

Valse Chopin

Miss Mary Erwin

March Mignonne Poldini

March Fantastique Ganz

Miss Zoelah Henderson

Voice—

Land of the Sky Blue Water Cadman

Far Off I Hear a Lover's Lute..... Cadman

Ralph Jones

Etude, C Minor Chopin

Miss Helen Murphy

Concerto No. 2, Allegro Con Brio Beethoven

Miss Marvin Tharpe

—Lafayette Journal.

BRADFORD, PA.

An interesting meeting of Mrs. Isabel Stewart-North's Music Study Club was held at her residence on Saturday evening last. Most of the numbers on the program were played and sung from memory. Mrs. North's idea in holding these private musicals is to develop confidence, to memorize, and to learn to listen intelligently to music. At each meeting some principle of music is explained by one of the pupils. Eleanor Gray Smith made clear the harmonic minor scale and its relation to other keys. The following is the program:

Piano—Happy Farmer Schumann

Miss Josephine Harris

Piano—Tarantella Kern

Miss Lillian Knapp

Piano—Nicolette Gavotte..... Isabel Stewart-North

Mr. George Grady

Piano—Mazurka Leschetitzky

Miss Fay Schoonmaker

Piano—The Brook Rogers

Miss Christine Schonblom

Voice—Mistress Rosebud Chapman

Miss Lucile Luttrell

Piano—Woodland Chimes Smith

Miss Angela Connelly

Piano—Octave Study Czerny

Miss Margaret Jewett

Voice—O Moon, Golden Moon..... Virgil

Miss Lillian Cunningham

Piano—L'avant Courrier Dressler

Miss Mazie Bubb

—Bradford (Pa.) Era.

Nichols—John W. Nichols, the tenor, sang two performances of "The Messiah" with the Chicago Apollo Club the first of this week. He was asked to sing "The Messiah" for the Mozart Club of Pittsburgh on December 29, but owing to a previous contract made with Jamestown, N. Y., for the same date and work, he was unable to accept the former engagement.

Cannon—Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon will sing "The Messiah" with the Mozart Club of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Gannon appeared with great success in the same oratorio at Flint, Mich., on December 15, under the direction of Earl Moore of Ann Arbor.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Francis Macmillen appeared at the Murat in recital November 10. Miss Marie Hertenstein, pianist, was the assisting artist and Miss Marie Edwards was the accompanist. The program included the first movement of the Tschaiakowsky "Concerto," the last movement of the Mendelssohn, "Ciaconna" (Vitali-Auer), and smaller pieces by Lalo, Haydn, Sarasate, Goldmark, Haendel-Thompson and Arbos. Miss Hertenstein was heard in "Five Waltzes," "Capriccio" and "Rhapsodie," by Brahms; "Clair de Lune," by Debussy; "Jardin sous la pleure," by Debussy, and "Nachtfalter," a waltz by Strauss-Tausig.

Myrtle Elvyn, pianist, appeared here in recital November 29. This was the first of a series of concerts arranged for by the newly organized Artist Concert Association. Miss Elvyn's program was:

Caprice from Alceste.....Gluck-Saint-Saens
Minuet, G major.....Beethoven
Rhapsodie, E flat major, Op. 118.....Brahms
Sonata Appassionata.....Beethoven
Caprice Viennois.....Kreisler
Schoen Rosmarin.....Kreisler
Prelude.....Debussy
Nocturne.....Chopin
Polonaise, Op. 53.....Chopin
Tannhauser Overture.....Wagner-Liszt

This was the second appearance of Miss Elvyn in Indianapolis and it is needless to say that she was accorded a most enthusiastic reception. Her playing is a rare delight, as she combines all those qualities which go to make the true artist. Beautiful tone, excellent poise, a healthy musical sentiment, impeccable technic and a fine idea of dynamics, coupled with a charming and gracious personality, are the qualities which are paramount in Miss Elvyn's art. It is to be hoped that we may hear her again soon.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, Leopold Stokowski, conductor, with Thaddeus Rich, violinist, as soloist, appeared here November 30. This was the second number of the Ona B. Talbot subscribed concerts. The program follows:

Symphony No. 2, D major, Op. 73.....Brahms
Concerto, No. 1, G minor, Op. 26.....Max Bruch
Legend from the "Kalevala," "The Swan of Tuonela," Op. 22.....Sibelius
Valse triste.....Sibelius
Tone Poem, "Finlandia," Op. 26.....Siberlius

Mr. Rich, who is, by the way, concertmaster of the orchestra, was a former Indianapolis boy, and naturally a great deal of interest was evinced in his re-appearance here, as he had been away for nine years. He is a most satisfying artist and was in fine form, playing the popular Bruch "Concerto" with a tone, finish and artistry which completely won the audience and he received a veritable ovation. The orchestra has an exceedingly fine string section and it was almost marvelous the breadth and volume of tone which Mr. Stokowski brings from the men. As a conductor Mr. Stokowski is primarily a temperamental genius. His regard for tradition is so slight as to place it secondary. However, he was very much enjoyed and we shall look forward with pleasure to hearing the Philadelphia Orchestra again.

Mr. Arthur Frazer, pianist, of Chicago, has been engaged to head the piano department of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music, to succeed Daniel Jones, who has resigned and whose resignation will be effective the latter part of June, 1915.

Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist, appeared here December 3, at the Claypool Hotel. She was assisted by Wally Heymar, violinist, and the Solo Artapello, which supplied the second piano parts for the Arensky "Concerto," the "Tannhauser March" (Wagner), and "Invitation to the Dance" (Weber). Mme. Sturkow-Ryder has a fine tone and an excellent technic and plays with considerable finish. Miss Heymar was also much enjoyed.

Mr. Daniel Jones, pianist; Johann Berthelsen, baritone; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Yost, violinists, and Miss Jessie Luther, reader, faculty members of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music, gave a recital at the Claypool Hotel December 5. A very fine program was given and an unusually large audience was in attendance.

The second number of the Artist Concert Association was a recital by Mme. Louise Homer, given at the Murat December 10. The following is the program:

Aria—Che faro, from Orpheus and Eurydice.....Gluck
Die Ehre Gottes.....Beethoven
Der Erlkonig.....Schubert
O wusst ich doch den Weg zuruck.....Brahms
Meine Liebe ist Grun.....Brahms
Mit deinen blauen Augen.....Strauss
Das Eifenlied.....Wolf
The Song of the Shirt.....S. Homer
Long Ago.....S. Homer
Sing to Me, Sing.....S. Homer
Battle of Blenheim.....S. Homer
Aria—Adieu Forests, from Jeanne d'Arc.....Tschaiakowsky
When I Bring to You Coloured Toys.....John A. Carpenter
Don't Ceare.....John A. Carpenter

Ballad of Trees and the Master.....Chadwick
Bendemeer's Stream.....Old Irish
Ballynure Ballad.....Old Irish
Love in May.....H. Parker

Mme. Homer has a magnificent voice and her singing is an artistic delight. Her style and enunciation are perfect and it is indeed rare that one hears such a voice. She was forced to add many extra songs as encores. Mrs. Edwin N. Lapham supplied the accompaniments in an artistic manner and likewise contributed a great deal to the success of the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Friermood recently held a musical at the Propylaeum, at which time two of Mr. Friermood's artist pupils appeared, Miss Eleanora Atkinson, soprano, and Miss Cecil Hill, soprano. Mr. and Mrs. Friermood also sang a group of songs. It was a delightful affair and after the musical program refreshments were served.

The faculty of the Indianapolis Conservatory of Music gave a concert at the Claypool Hotel December 19. Mr. Arthur Frazer, pianist; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Yost, violinists; Miss Almajane Wilday, mezzo-soprano, and Miss Jessie A. Luther, reader, gave the program. This marked Mr. Frazer's first appearance in Indianapolis and he was very warmly received. He played a Chopin and Liszt group, demonstrating that he is a pianist of high artistic ideals and possesses a fine technical equipment. Miss Wilday sang four songs and again proved that she is one of the promising young singers of the city. The quality of her voice is such as to win instant approval. Mr. and Mrs. Yost were heard in several numbers and were in good form. Miss Luther was much enjoyed. G. Y.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SENIOR ANTONIO SALA
M. EMILE FOLLMER
HELEN WATSON POWERS
HELEN DESMOND

'Cello
Tenor
Soprano
Piano

M. ZELENKA-LAREND
MARGUERITE AUSTIN
HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp
Violin
Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

On November 22, with George Klass, second concertmaster, as soloist, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra presented a very pleasing program. Lacombe's merry, rollicking "Gypsy March," the symphonic poem "Launcelot and Elaine," by MacDowell, and the prelude to Act III. of Kistler's opera "Kunihild" being the most novel of the offerings. Max Reger's "Ballet Suite," Op. 130, with some very excellent solo work by horn and oboe, and the familiar Moszkowski ballet music from "Boabdil" brought forth enthusiastic applause.

Mr. Klass displayed good technic in his temperamental rendering of the Mendelssohn "Concerto for Violin in E Minor," and gave as encore Sarasate's "Romance Andalusia," with the very able assistance of Mr. Williams at the harp.

November 24 marked the opening of the most delightful musical treat in the history of the northwest, the first concert of the Beethoven cycle by the Symphony Orchestra, with Florence Hinkle and George Klass as soloists. The management and the director of the orchestra are surely rendering a heroic service in musical interests in giving these six concerts this season, and it is to be hoped the music loving public will make greater effort to grasp the opportunity afforded them. We think we are safe in saying that never has the Beethoven music been better given, especially with such soloists and at popular prices. Every student or lover of music would do well to follow this cycle closely. The first program, as follows, brought forth unstinted praise and admiration for orchestra and soloists, Miss Hinkle's exquisite soprano voice seeming especially well suited to the master's beautiful music:

Symphony No. 1, in C major, Op. 21.....Beethoven
Adagio molto-allegro con brio
Andante cantabile con moto
Menuetto-allegro molto e vivace
Adagio-allegro molto e vivace
Aria—Ah Perfido, Op. 46.....Beethoven
Romance, for violin and orchestra, in F major, Op. 50 Beethoven
Songs with Piano (Herman Ruhoff at piano)
Lied aus der Ferne
Ich Liebe dich
Freudvoll und Leidvoll
Symphony No. 8, in F major, Op. 93.....Beethoven
Allegro vivace e con brio
Allegretto scherzando
Tempo di menuetto
Finale—allegro vivace

The Minneapolis Trio, composed of Giuseppe Fabbrini, pianist; Karl Scheurer, violinist, and Cornelius Van Vliet, 'cellist, gave the following splendid program of chamber music on November 25, at the First Unitarian Church:

Trio, Op. 1 (piano, violin, 'cello).....E. W. Korngold
Allegro non troppo
Scherzo allegro
Larghetto
Allegro molto energico
Kreutzer Sonata, Op. 47 (piano and violin).....
Adagio sostenuto presto
Andante con variazioni
Presto
Trio, Op. 101 (piano, violin, 'cello).....J. Brahms
Allegro energico
Presto non assai
Andante grazioso
Allegro molto

The much discussed trio by E. W. Korngold, twelve-year-old composer, was given its premier in this section of the country. An exceedingly difficult composition, with very musical theme, harmoniously worked out. Such music by a mere child predisposes one to become a firm believer in transmigration of souls. From this composition we are indeed led into a unanimous decision that this boy is a musical wonder and if his genius grows with him, he will no doubt surprise the world continually.

This trio of musicians presented the entire program in a highly artistic manner. The ensemble work was worthy of highest commendation throughout the evening. The Brahms trio, with its masterly treatment and complicated development of theme, held one spell-bound.

h h h

The sixth Sunday popular concert, with Edna Gunnar Peterson, was played to a capacity house, and evidently this little soloist is a prime favorite. The familiar, buoyant Oberon "Overture" called attention to the finished work of horn, strings and woodwinds. Mendelssohn's exquisite incidental music from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Notturmo" and "Scherzo" were interpreted with true valuation of their daintiness. Like myriad tinkling fairy footfalls, the violins accompanied the exquisite clarinet passage in the "Scherzo." Miss Peterson plays with a good singing tone and excellent rhythm. Her playing of the Mendelssohn "Capriccio" was sparkling and brilliant and her splendid climaxes in the characteristic "Hungarian Fantasy" of Liszt brought a storm of enthusiastic applause, to which she replied with "Prelude in G Minor," by Rachmaninoff.

The very popular "Valse Triste" of Sibelius and his tone poem, "Finlandia," with their weird and fantastic harmony, were beautifully rendered.

Bizet's very oriental dance from "Djamileh" and three excerpts from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," "Dance of the Sylphes," "Minuet of Will-o-the-Wisps" and stirring old "Rakoczy March" made a splendid finale.

Esher Osborn, late prima donna of Royal Opera at Stockholm and Hamburg, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bliss, gave a recital December 1 at the First Baptist Church. Miss Osborn is a popular twin city girl who has resided in Europe for ten years and her many friends accorded her a royal welcome. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss are also local musicians of high standing and have been studying abroad with Rudolph Ganz the past year.

A very good program was given and Miss Osborn has a delightful personality and her voice is of good range and quality, well suited to the Mozart music and lieder she gave.

Mr. Bliss played some of his own compositions, as well as several groups of works of modern composers. He plays with a sure technic and good intelligence. Mrs. Bliss was an excellent accompanist for Miss Osborn.

h h h

The fourth symphony concert, given December 4, with Helen Stanley as soloist, was as follows:

Overture—Le Carnaval Romain, Op. 9.....Berlioz
Symphony No. 3, Harold in Italy, Op. 16.....Berlioz
Viola solo, Karl Scheurer
Harold in the Mountains. Scenes of melancholy and happiness.
Adagio
Allegro

March and Evening Prayer of the Pilgrims
Allegretto
Serenade of a Mountaineer to His Beloved
Allegro assai Allegretto
Orgies of the Brigands
Allegro frenetico

Michaela's Aria from Carmen.....Bizet
Symphonic poem—Viviane, Op. 5.....Chausson
Air of Lia, from L'Enfant Prodigue.....Debussy
Scherzo, L'Apprenti Sorcier.....Dukas

The program was immensely interesting for the two numbers given for the first time in Minneapolis, and the enjoyment accorded by them was fully up to expectations. The numbers referred to were the Berlioz overture, full of many great and beautiful passages and typical of Roman revelry, and Chausson's "Symphonic Poem," with an exquisite love theme, in which the ensemble work of strings and horns and undercurrent of tympani was nothing short of marvellous in both legato and agitato passages.

The beautiful "Harold in Italy" symphony, with Karl Scheurer playing viola, was magnificent. The darkened auditorium gave a distinctly dramatic value to the performance.

The pianissimo endings of second and third movements were works of art in the highest musical sense. It would be hard to select any particular passage in the wholly beautiful work, especially as it was rendered.

Miss Stanley has a dramatic voice and gave her numbers in a highly artistic manner, responding to encores with "Il est doux, il est bon," from Massenet's "Hérodiade," and the pathetic "Vissi D'Arte," from "Tosca."

The "Sorcerer's Apprentice," with a merry, mischievous theme, carried to an excitable climax, was a perfect finale.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D.

"The audience which filled the auditorium of the First M. E. Church last evening enjoyed a rare musical treat in the recital of the distinguished concert organist, Clarence Eddy of Chicago. Each number of the program which opened with the concert prelude on a German 'Chorale' by Faulkes, and closed with the brilliant 'Toccata' in F major by Crawford, was played in an artistic and finished manner, which at once marked Mr. Eddy as a master.

"Mr. Eddy was assisted by Mr. T. Austin-Ball, who sang several numbers, each of which was well received. His pleasing baritone voice was best heard in the 'Evening Star' from Tannhauser, sung as an encore number.

"Mr. Eddy responded graciously to encores several times and after the final number was played, he returned at the enthusiastic request of his audience and played in a most exquisite manner Schubert's 'Serenade.' Other numbers especially enjoyed were Kinder's 'At Evening,' and Gordon Balch Nevin's 'Will o' the Wisp,' which was repeated after insistent applause.

"Sioux Falls music lovers have heard nothing more delightful in concert entertainment here this season than the notable musical event of last evening."—Sioux Falls Argus-Leader.

Scaffi—A concert was given at the Illinois Theater on last Sunday afternoon by Maurizio Scaffi, tenor.

FOREIGN NOTICES OF FLORENCE
MACBETH

Following is some comment of the foreign press on the singing of Miss Florence Macbeth:

First of all there was the reappearance of Florence Macbeth, the young coloratura soprano, who made such a sensational debut among us last year. . . . once again her triumph was instantaneous. . . . The equally exacting mad scene from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor," which she sang with all the sureness and brilliance of an experienced singer in her prime. . . .—The Daily Telegraph, London, June 3, 1914.

In these days of violation of tonality it was a simple but sincere pleasure to hear the artless and conventional cadenzas of Bellini and Donizetti sung with such naivete and ease. Miss Macbeth has all the technic and phenomenal range of her illustrious contemporaries and a spiritual purity of tone in her middle register that is all her own.—The Globe, London, June 5, 1914.

In both, the evenness of her scales and the delicate elan of her "agilita" proved to be already on a very high plan of her art.—The Standard, London, London, June 5, 1914.

With remarkable flexibility of voice, purity of tone, and ease of production, she sang the difficult cadenzas without any trace of effort.—The Liverpool Daily Courier, October 7, 1914.

Miss Macbeth has legitimate qualifications for the description of "the new Patti." Her voice is of wonderful clarity, but while crystal-like, it is fresh and warm, and the tone pure. . . .—Birmingham Evening Dispatch, October 13, 1914.

Florence Macbeth, the new Patti, possesses charm, the simplicity which has such attraction, pure quality of tone and excellent technic. . . . Decidedly Florence Macbeth was successful, and will be welcomed in Birmingham again and again.—Birmingham Gazette and Express, October 13, 1914.

Florence Macbeth is the heroine of one of our periodic British concert sensations. She was hailed as a second Tetravini, the new Patti, and so forth. She needs no such vicarious glory. Her gifts and attainments are sufficient for her to stand alone as one of the most talented English-speaking singers we have heard for a decade. Her fame rests primarily on her coloratura singing and an extraordinary compass. The quality of her voice is fuller and richer than is usually found in floriture singers. She can enliven or caress it into a tone of deep beauty. . . .—Sheffield Daily Telegraph, October 14, 1914.

Florence Macbeth, who has already established her fame in this country as a vocalist of rare musical gifts, her voice being of a remarkably pure and brilliant timbre.—Birmingham Daily Mail, October 13, 1914.

Florence Macbeth, the American soprano, gave the greatest satisfaction. She is a brilliant vocalist, possessing perfect control of a clear, high-pitched voice. . . .—Sheffield Independent, October 14, 1914.

Miss Macbeth delighted the audience with her polished bravura singing. . . .—Manchester, England, News, October 15, 1914.

Florence Macbeth, the American soprano, had a very enthusiastic reception. Her solos included operatic pieces of a kind demanding exceptional technical skill and flexibility of voice, and these qualities were fully displayed by the clever young singer, who sang throughout with fluency of diction, fine tone-color, and without any trace of effort she was particularly successful in the enormously difficult polacca from "Mignon," singing the cadenzas and roulades with remarkable sureness and finish.—Liverpool Courier, October 16, 1914.

(Advertisement)

YANKTON, S. D.

The Yankton (S. D.) Choral Union, Professor L. W. Dailey conducting, on December 14, sang the "Messiah," with Bertha Cooper, Amy Ellermann, Wortha Faulkner and Gustaf Holmquist as soloists.

Other events of the season under the auspices of the Conservatory of Music have been concerts by the Minneapolis Orchestral Band, the Zoellner String Quartet and a recital by Hugo Kortschak, assisted by Isaac Van Grove.

A series of faculty recitals included a piano recital by Jennie I. Safford, a violin recital by Lowell K. Boyle, a song recital by Bertha A. Cooper, and an organ recital by Annie E. Tennent.

Music Abroad

THE MUSIC CLUB

What is in a name? Why do so many of our best clubs that are organizations supporting music shun the plain name of "Music Club" in so many cases? It seems that they must have some name that sounds in many cases, anything but musical. I do not object to them taking the names of some of the men who have made music, but they do not always do that. It is not so with "The Music Club" here in London.

This organization is for the entertainment of visiting artists; and after the most enjoyable meeting I was privileged to attend, I do not doubt but they succeed in all cases.

At this time you can imagine that the visiting artists are not very numerous, and the club might in consequence be idle. Not so. You can also imagine that the local artists are not having easy times under the present circumstances. That is where the Music Club is making itself felt. The concert I attended was by local artists, for local artists. It was attended by the membership, each of which did his or her part toward making the fellow artist who had been most useful in the past something more than the usual thanks.

To give you an idea of the real "atmosphere" of the surroundings, I will have to tell you something about the "Grafton Galleries," where the meeting was held.

The building is one of the odd architectural structures that make you feel the lack of walls and corners. Nothing was at right angles. As you might infer, it is devoted to the exhibition of paintings. You feel the power of attraction as soon as you enter the place. Nothing but the best work is allowed place there, and at every turn—and there are many—you see something that seems to have been made to fit its place. How many floors there are there I do not know. I did not feel like counting anything. I wanted to just roam about; which I did until the program began in the large hall.

On this night there was an exhibition of "Modern Spanish Art." The walls of the recital hall were hung with them, and at first you might be inclined to think it would trouble you to have to listen to music. There were some very interesting works there; truly national in tone. I cannot tell you of them, however.

A program by "local" artists means much in London when it is an instrumental pro-

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano
In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Hazel Huntley Contralto

CONCERT - RECITAL - PUPIL'S

609 Fine Arts Building

Phone Harrison 6880

WILLIAM HINSHAW

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Management: R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 Broadway, New York

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 22712

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5943 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

23 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

PUPILS

Abbie Stephens FridenbergTHE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert Raymond Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
437 Fifth Avenue, New York
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist 4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS

Cellist
American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe
SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 925 Edgcomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

gram largely. On this occasion the London String Quartet had three numbers. This quartet is one of the best in Europe. They are all artists, and the work together has given them balance. The members are: Albert E. Sammons, first violin; T. W. Petre, second; H. Waldo Warner, viola, and C. Warwick-Evans, 'cello. The first number was the Cesar Franck quintet, with Miss Myra Hess at the piano. Later they played a quintet using the harp. This is an interesting piece of music by a local composer, Mr. Julius Harrison. There was more than "loyalty" in the response it brought, and Mr. Harrison was compelled to appear on the platform.

Miss Mariam Timothy, the harpist, played a solo number on the program as well, and showed herself to be a fine artist. There is little to say about the harp well played. It makes you feel more like refraining from applause. The audience demanded another number of Miss Timothy, however.

Miss Hess had a solo number as well. She, too, is one of rare talent. There is a solidness about her work, and still not in any way muscular. Her execution is good, and her tone is crisp. She is free from mannerisms, too, which is a delight in these days of piano gymnastics.

As a solo number, Mr. Sammons played Kreisler's arrangement of the Pugnani introduction and allegro. His tone is large and broad and he has a fine sense of the musical. I have heard him now three times, and he is always the same sincere artist. His playing of the Brahms concerto with the London Symphony Orchestra a few days later gave him a chance to show his real worth. It was a fine performance of this the greatest of works for the violin.

Mr. Warwick-Evans is first 'cellist of the "Queen's Hall Orchestra." I have heard him many times now. There is an individuality about his playing that will make him always commanding. He is in every way fitted to hold a high place with his noble instrument. His number was a scherzo for 'cello and piano by Mr. J. R. Davis. It was played with Mr. Davis at the piano. A good piece of music it is, too.

The singers for the evening were Miss Phillis Lett, Miss Agnes Nicholls and Miss Caroline Hatchard. Miss Hatchard sang only in a trio.

Miss Lett is one of the best contraltos of London. She has a charming personality which, of course, adds to her fine work vocally. Her voice is rich, and particularly in the upper voice does she give some thrilling effects. The voice is in better shape than is the average here in London. I look for a long singing career for her.

Miss Nicholls sang a Haydn song and two songs by Mr. Hamilton Harty. She sang well.

Mr. Harty was the accompanist of the evening. He kept himself out of it, giving the singer just what was necessary. It is a delight to hear such work. He is a musician we should know more of on our side of the world. All of his songs are worth while, and some of them very much so.

Alfred Kalish, chairman of the committee, in a few well chosen words, gave an outline of the proposed work for the season, and told about the refreshments.

I have never felt more at ease than with these people, whom I was meeting for the first time in all but a few instances.

I wish we could know more of the free, open way they have of associating together over here in London. There seems to be no lack of time for friendly intercourse. Directors of the symphony orchestras have time to attend such things, and be called by their first names. The hall was filled, and with none of the "outside" classes. They were all members of the club, with but few exceptions. We will have to give some attention to such things before we can hope to have the real interest in our profession there. So long as the teachers and professional people hold apart we can expect to have the public suspicious of us. Where harmony does not exist among the principal members of a profession they cannot expect the bigger, better things. Harmony is the law on which we build all success in music. Too many of us are apt to think it only is necessary in our actual performances of music. The free, open-hearted way they have of being together here is good to know. If they don't make the amount of money we do, they all live, and, as in this meeting, they help the fellow who needs it most; though none of the artists of the evening were in danger of want, I am sure. It is just the "way" they have, and a good one it is, too. No wonder some of them are climbing close to the "century" mark in years. I wish I could send you all a taste of the real "atmosphere" of the "Music Club."

I am not pessimistic about it, though. I am proud of what we have done, and are doing, in a commercial way, and all the rest is sure to follow. ALBERT A. WHITE.

London, England, December, 1914.

THE SINGER AND HIS SONG

Henry H. Babcock was a great teacher, not because of his vast and varied fund of knowledge, but because he possessed the gift of inspiring, by his enthusiasm, his pupils with a share of that enthusiasm.

He used, at times, a parallel between Demosthenes and Cicero. Said he: "When Cicero had concluded one of his polished orations, the applause was always great, and many said, 'What a magnificent orator!' But when Demosthenes sat down, exhausted, after one of his play philippics, there was no applause, but the people cried, as with one voice, 'Let us take up arms against Philip!'"

And so it is today, and so it will be always; the great singer, virtuoso, orator, must be so possessed by his theme as to leave his hearers, not with admiration for himself, but with enthusiasm, or at least deep feeling, for his subject.

The greatest living violinist has the simplest and most unaffected manner, method and stage presence; to him the violin is only a plaything, or at most the vehicle by which he stirs the emotions of his hearers; while he of little merit and meager attainments struts and swells and sways to call attention to himself.

"Knowledge is haughty, that he knows so much;

Wisdom is humble, that he knows no more."

SIMEON F. NEWHALL.

U.S. Patent
JN
TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

©-1914 MOFFETT CHICAGO

CARLILE FISHER TUCKER
BARITONE

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JANUARY 8, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company and
Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK

Abbie S. Fridenberg
110 Carnegie Hall

For sale at Bretano's
27th st. and 5th av.

BOSTON

Lester S. Butler
Steinert Hall

DETROIT, MICH
Margaret Mulford

871 Ferry Park Ave.

OMAHA

Goodwal Dickerman
Arlington Block

CINCINNATI

L. Drew Mosher
137 W. Fourth av.

On sale Geo. B. Jennings
105 Fourth av. W.

CLEVELAND

George Emerson
616 The Arcade

INDIANAPOLIS

Gaylord Yost
Indianapolis Cons.

KANSAS CITY

Mary H. Flagg
311 Studio Bldg.

DENVER

R. Jefferson Hall,
St. Mark's Church

ST. PAUL, MINN.

Myrtle Weed
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.

WICHITA, KAN.

Ralph Brokaw

WORCESTER, MASS.

Lester S. Butler
441 Day Bldg.

GRAND RAPIDS

Louis McKay
2 Nelson Place

MILWAUKEE

Iva Bigelow Weaver
Mack Block

Frank E. Percival
PHILADELPHIA

Walter St. Clare Knodt:
1523 Chestnut St.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Sidney Silber

Univ. School of Music
NASHVILLE, TENN.

C. J. Schubert

Schubert Cons. of Music
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

S. W. Mountz
446 W. 40th Place

ERIE, PA.

Albert H. Dowling Jr.
456 E. Seventh St.

CHARLESTON, W. A.

J. Henry Francis
St. John's Church

WASHINGTON

Horace D. Hitchcock
2224 F St., N. W.

MINNEAPOLIS

Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
109 Marlborough Hotel

St. Paul, Minn.

DRESDEN, GERMANY

Anna Ingman

Franklinstrasse 20

Papers on sale

J. Ries' Music Store

Seestrasse 21

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7

Chicago, January 8, 1915

No. 2

Editorial

A CORRECTION

In an article in our last issue entitled "The Singer and His Song," Mr. Newhall was made to characterize the philippics of Demosthenes as "play." The adjective was written "fiery."

—###—

PASSING COMMENT

Every opera season can boast a series of contretemps other than the singing off key by some of the principals—this particular sin at the recent Century performances having been largely confined to the tenors, though Mr. Weldon, the bass, was a liberal offender also.

However, the incidents at the Auditorium which caused most liberal laughter were not the making of any of the principals of the company but rather arose from miscalculations of the more practical stage forces.

h h h

On a "Lohengrin" night something caused the velvet curtains, as they were pulled aside, to catch on a piece of scenery so that about two yards of the heavy fringe was ripped off and left dangling through the act. At its close, when the curtains were brought together, this loose fringe fell in an unsightly pile in the very spot to be occupied by the "stars" when they appeared "before the curtain" and necessitated much kicking and maneuvering on their part when they appeared.

However, after the bowing and smiling was over, the iron fire curtain was lowered and behind its friendly screen the damages were quickly repaired.

h h h

In the "Romeo and Juliet" anniversary performance everything went with great smoothness and artistic finish (barring the very much "off-key" work of the Romeo) until the close of the tomb scene when, after a most convincing death scene, Miss Ewell (Juliet) rolled down the steps of her bier with such verisimilitude and vigor that she went too far to the front, and as she lay there, still very dead, she saw the curtain coming down on top of her with the chance that she would soon be still more dead unless she made a quick roll backward. Did she make it?

Ask any one of the laughter-convulsed audience present on that occasion.

h h h

The audiences also took a hand in affairs

Hast thou an ambition to run an opera company "as it should be run"—and has never been run before? Well, thy ambition is noble. Only remember that the literal Englishing of the Italian word "impresario" is "undertaker."

—Montgomery Bullycarp, "The Transcendental Traveller's Guide." (Apthorp's "By the Way.")

now and then and helped to keep up the excitement.

On the "Tales of Hoffman" night, when Mr. Shelley came before the curtain and announced the non-appearance of Miss Freeman "because of illness," a gentleman on the first floor shouted out his disapproval in a most ungentlemanly way, execrating particularly the management of the Century

Co., which was most unjust also, as the changes made this season were remarkably few.

h h h

On a "Lucia" occasion one of the Scotch retainers came out and mumbled an announcement, instantly fifty voices arose in a shout of "What! Don't leave the stage till you tell us again," whereupon the bare-legged young man returned to the very front of the stage and announced with great distinctness that Louis Kreidler would sing in place of the announced "Ashton," and at this a shout of undisguised joy arose.

h h h

One thing has been proven for all time by the Century Company, i. e., that waits between acts of such length as inflicted by the Chicago Grand Opera Co. are absolutely unnecessary. At the Century performances the waits were very short and consequently the operas were over at a reasonable hour.

Of course the object of the long waits last winter was to allow time for the "dress parade," but even at that it might be so arranged that there would be but one long intermission.

h h h

It is remarkable how discipline will relax when a season is about over. There was very slight cause throughout the six weeks' season for any complaint as to the conduct of orchestra and chorus. However, on the closing night (gala performance) all rules seemed to be suspended and there was much disorder.

The men of the orchestra were more or less inattentive and the chorus not only did not sing quite up to their own standard but, in the "Lucia" scene especially, were guilty of flagrant misbehavior in the matter of whispering among themselves and paying no attention to the process of the opera.

h h h

In a Kimball Hall elevator:

First Musician—"Is your wife entertaining this winter?"

Second Musician—"Not very."

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

AGNES LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SOPRANO SONG
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue RECITAL
PUPILS

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St. Phone Midway 8888

HAYDNOWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680 RECITALS

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
inois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
9775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING

J. FISCHER & BROTHER

A very attractive little booklet issued by J. Fischer & Brother of New York gives a resume of the work of this popular publishing company during the fifty years of its existence.

The first page of this interesting history reads as follows:

"J. Fischer, son of Christopher August Fischer, organist and educator, founded the firm of J. Fischer & Brother, in Dayton, Ohio, in 1864. He brought enthusiasm and a broad knowledge of men and music to bear successfully on the problem of adequately meeting long-felt needs in various fields of music-publishing endeavor. At the time of his death (November 24, 1901), the firm he had established, then located at its present home, the 'Bible House,' New York, had already identified his name with a catalog combining artistic worth with practical value. He left a reputation as a publisher with ideals to whom commercial success was not the aim and end of everything.

"George Fischer and Carl T. Fischer, his sons, the present members of the firm, have devoted themselves to carrying out the plans of their father, continuing the traditions of business integrity and high ideals in publications which were his pride. Their efforts in this direction have found recognition in the recent fiftieth anniversary of the firm of J. Fischer & Brother as a publishing house whose influence as a power for good in American music has grown year by year."

Other items in the little book (which is well worth sending for) are short biographies and pictures of Dr. Edward J. Biederman, music editor for J. Fischer & Brother; Rene L. Becker, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Gaston M. Dethier, Gottfried H. Federlein, Giuseppe Ferrata, Frank J. Frysinger, Edward F. Johnston, James Robert Gillette, Bruno Oscar Klein, Ralph Kinder, A. Walter Kramer, W. Rhys-Herbert, H. J. Stewart, Pietro A. Yon and many others whose works are listed in the Fischer catalog.

MR. AND MRS. MAC DERMID

Plans for the Western tour of Sibyl Sammis MacDermid and James G. MacDermid, under the management of Alma Voedisch, are nearing completion. They will open at Salt Lake City January 25, and after filling engagements in neighboring cities will go to southern California, where L. E. Behymer has their interests in hand. They will then work up the coast to the principal cities in the northwest.

Mr. MacDermid's songs are gaining a wide popularity in all parts of the country. "Sacramento" in particular is being programmed by distinguished artists, including Christine Miller, Julia Claussen, Paul Althouse and Jeanne Jomelli. The latter artist alternates between this song and "If You Would Love Me" (a more recent number) in her twenty-five weeks' vaudeville tour of the large cities. Evan Williams remains loyal to one of the first of the MacDermid's songs, "Charity," and has written Mr. MacDermid as follows regarding it: "I have done 'Charity' in about eighty concerts during the past season. It will in all probability be one of my stock songs as long as I am before the public."

JENNY DUFAU'S WINTER ENGAGEMENTS

Miss Jenny Dufau will open the second half of her concert tour on January 10, at Houston, Tex. Miss Dufau will sing also at Greenville, Tex., before the St. Cecelia Club; at Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss.; at Ward-Belmont College, Nashville; at the Tutwiler Hotel Ballroom, Birmingham, (Sharp-Frazier series); at Talledega, Ala.; at Hardin College, Mexico, Mo.; Grinnell College, Grinnell, Ia.; Youngstown, Ohio; Keokuk, Ia.; Kokomo, Ind.; Chillicothe, Ohio; Columbus, Ohio; Bedford, Ind.; Crawfordsville, Ind.; Indianapolis, Ind., and other cities of the central states.

Miss Dufau's Boston recital will be given at Steinert Hall in February. Her annual New York recital will take place also during the second half of February. Miss Dufau has been engaged for a number of important spring festivals, and it is probable that her engagements will necessitate her remaining in America until the first week in July.

Story of Bethlehem—The "Story of Bethlehem" was very successfully given at the West Side Sunday Evening Club, under the direction of Daniel Protheroe on Sunday evening, January 27. Under his skillful baton the chorus numbers were excellently sung by a body of sixty voices and accompaniments were provided by members of the Symphony Orchestra. The solos were splendidly cared for by Miss Helen Protheroe, Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver Haar, Ernest J. Davis and Charles La Berge.

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

The Elderly Person

When the matter of building Orchestra Hall was broached, there was a general rushing into print of people with views upon the wisdom of moving or not moving the orchestra from the Auditorium. Among these publicity people were any number who were at best only casual attendants at the symphony concerts. One man who advanced his views at length, and whose name it amazed the Elderly Person to see so blazoned, never went to an orchestra concert save as an occasional box guest when the box owner was out of town and office men took turns using the tickets. But he spent the printers' ink freely, if he didn't spend coin for seats as a patron.

In some such way there are those who explain the whys and wherefores, which in "Pinafore" we are urged not to mind, of the failure of the Century Opera to make a success in Chicago. And just as truly there are among the problem-solvers those who are really desirous to find out why anything so sterling in itself should not win the recognition it merited.

Early in the proceedings the Elderly Person found himself wondering at what was going on. As he has been to a number of performances, he feels privileged to recount some impressions, although he knows them to be unsatisfactory answers to a question which will have to go down into musical Chicago history as a mystery. He had seen some operas from the parquet chairs, and felt the frigidity prevailing which could not but strike the singers squarely in the face so soon as the curtain was raised. The gaping rows of empty boxes and the conscious lack of ease of the few occupants in the stray ones seemed to shout out the fact that the opera patrons were not there, and were not coming, either. There was no flutter and chatter in the parquet, no trailing, to speak of, of evening gowns of marvelous hue and construction, no gorgeous coats or furs to be laid aside with languorous display, and no plump elderly gentlemen, or skinny middle-aged ones, or brawny young fellows, all dapper and groomed to the last degree, with tight white gloves to lay stress upon their generally compressed appearance. The people in these seats spoke quietly and kept their places during intermission. The parades of chivalry in the arcades and foyer and promenades were nil, and anyone who laughed aloud there found his voice so echoing and attracting so much attention that he whispered thereafter. There was no lounging about of the unengaged artists, with music critics or patrons button-holing them and talking earnestly with them about nothing in particular, but giving out the valuable inference, just the same, that they were on intimate terms with the artists. In the yawning balcony there was ever a fair fringe of the sincere music lovers, who seek those front rows as the points of vantage for satisfaction to eye and ear, where they can survey the adjuncts of opera, but not be annoyed by them. Back of them was that awful cavern of unemployed space which worries every enterprise that engages the Auditorium. It's as permanent a problem as all "the unemployed." People who can't have the best seats would rather go up in an elevator to the galleries than mount those endless stairs which lead to sections H and thereabouts.

Thus the Elderly Person sought his friends in the upper spheres, to learn from them what was amiss. There is always more genuine fun in the galleries than elsewhere. Everyone takes his best traits in his hand when he goes up there, for he knows he must be democratic if he expects to get anything out of the experience. Usually, after an act, the narrow corridor is alive with eager argument, and the reputations of singers, conductor and opera fluctuate up and down as actively as do the quotations on the Stock Exchange boards. No two arguers will agree, but things are thrashed out vehemently until the darkened auditorium causes a rush for seats, to gain more food for discussion at the next intermission.

But when the Elderly Person went up to the haunts of the enthusiasts he found the barren spaces were there as well as downstairs. The uncomfortable "basket," as the topmost perch is called, was not even lighted, and only a rather scared-of-one-another group of evident newcomers was listening to "Aida." There were indications that these attendants were of the new pupils in schools, with their first winter in Chicago before them. They were so mild mannered that the function seemed almost churchy in its quiescent acceptance.

And then the Elderly Person sat himself down to listen. And the more he listened and watched the more perplexed he became. The whole production was sumptuous. Never before have the regalities of ancient Egypt been more opulently portrayed. Costumes that absolutely reproduced the period, hosts of supernumeraries, and no limit of accessories of arms and furniture, dancers and soldiers and priests, trumpeters and slaves, all united to make vivid that triumphal entry of Rhadames. And a young god he looked on his state chair, its back a huge sun with golden rays far spread. And the singers were fine—Morgan Kingston something to rave over with his fresh, vibrant, telling voice; Kreidler superb and dramatic; Howard something savage in her Amneris, and Ewell swelling the cast to a wonderful quintet. The ensembles were towers of sonorous splendor, and there was no slightest hitch in the multiplied details of scene and lighting and grouping. In every way all seemed adequate and fully equal to any comparison that might be made.

And yet, it has to be said, it did not "get over." That something which will not submit to analysis, which makes opera "grand" was not there. The Elderly Person berated himself for such an acknowledgment, but the more he frowned on it the more arrogant the statement became, and he found himself walking about, puzzled, but his lips repeating: "It doesn't get over. What's the matter?" He fell in with a fellow musical enthusiast, and was not surprised to unearth another perplexed person. Together they went over the merits, and confessed the demerits. Sometimes the singers were off the key, but that was no novelty at the opera, where the basses and baritones wobble around each note with perpetual overtones, and where the sopranos make mighty reaches for top notes that shall dazzle, and where tenors,

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Lincoln, Neb.—First National Bank Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

THE AGENCY WITH THE SHORT UNDERSTANDABLE CONTRACT 25th YEAR

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet. AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.
Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11 Strong Faculty Excellent Equipment
For Catalog Address FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

Beatrice Wheeler

CONTRALTO
Chicago Grand Opera Co

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON, FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Av., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston 111
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
PIANIST
CONCERTS RECITALS INSTRUCTION
443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
507 South Boulevard Austin-Chicago

when they do land on a telling tone, hold on to it for dear life. And there is nothing strange in the orchestra burying up some of the vocal art with overmuch brass. In fact, all the things which are component parts of opera were there, except that exhilarating something which does so compel one that, having tasted the sensation once, he goes again and again for its return treatment. It is sometimes called a thrill, and perhaps that is a good word, even though the feeling is deeper.

So has it been with all the operas given. Every known device for effectiveness was used to enhance the beauty and merit of "Lohengrin," "William Tell," "Lucia," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Hansel and Gretel"—the latter being more complete in its presentation than at any time in the Elderly experience—and the invariable result has been to produce but a mild interest.

To get in his own thought first, the Elderly Person lays the fault at two doors. First, the English language; secondly, a diminished orchestra. He soon noticed that for the most part he heard no words, and that was the customary solace, for he never figured that the words were to be heeded, since the knowledge of plot beforehand was a necessary ingredient of opera-going. Then he began to hear occasional words and sentences thrust out of the musically pleasant confusion. And he found himself thereafter listening for more words and not hearing them, and thus falling back into his older habit of not listening for them, and being content until another sentence forced itself into hearing, when the whole process had to be gone over again. It was distinctly disturbing, not to say irritating. Opera is no place for words. The dramatic stage is the place. Opera is music, and the escaping words should be bound up and kept out of disturbing circulation. Of course, so drastic a sentiment disposes of "opera in English" at one stroke, and other reasons need not be marshaled. But, for the Auditorium, an orchestra of fifty men is not large enough for the climaxes. At such times the fifty men play louder, and thus make more noise, but they do not add to the tone volume. The Century conductors were royal fellows—they could use up great waves of tonal body, and must have been disappointed when they secured for their well-worked-out plans only more sound, not more depth or bigness.

One of the mournful sights each evening in the lobby was the pathetic face of Mr. Aborn. It wore a grieved look, gentle and kindly, and with nothing bitter in it. In his published statement he blamed the "society people" for refusing to countenance and endorse his endeavor. There may be some truth in what he said, but he makes those very people feel their importance the more because of his attack. Nothing artistic will succeed, or can get a profitable hearing, without wealthy people, and in our way of living wealth and society are synonymous terms. In these ranks are many earnest friends of all that makes for artistic uplift. And in their train are those who would be like them but have not the brains, the birth or the breeding. Italian opera has always been the vehicle which has won the approval of those who sought for display. It is always "the fashion," and the fact that it is not understood is one of its merits for those who did not know how to understand. The wealthy patron of art approves it, and the shallow people with money follow the lead. And there is always the crowd who wants to watch the elect at their diversions. These go to the opera to say that they have seen the stars in the boxes as well as those on the stage. Without doubt, all the true lovers of operatic art saw one or more of the Century performances. The hangers-on did not. There are not enough of the former to keep the houses full. Therefore the element of attendance was one of the most serious ones lacking to aid the operas to "get over." Perhaps great crowds of elegantly dressed people, and the adorable confusion that then prevails, would have supplied the needed enthusiasm before and behind the curtain. The Elderly Person can only shake his head dubiously and quote the old song, "Maybe it would, but I doubt it."

And the real reason remains the great Chicago mystery.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The following programs will be played on Sunday afternoons in January at Trinity, by Irving Hancock, except on January 17, when Mr. Louis P. Hoyt will play:

Paraphrase on a Christmas Hymn.....W. Faulkes
Largo (New World).....A. Dvorak
March of the Priests.....F. Mendelssohn
Eventide.....J. Frysinger
(Hold Thou Thy Cross Before My Closing Eyes)

JANUARY 10

Toccata.....E. d'Evry
Meditation.....E. d'Evry
Scherzo Pastorale.....A. Federlein
Romance.....E. Lemare

JANUARY 17

Offertoire in D minor.....Batiste
Elevation in E major.....Saint-Saens
Capriccio.....Lemaigre
Cantilene Nuptiale.....Dubois
Entree du Cortege.....Lemaigre

JANUARY 24

Grand Sonate in E flat.....D. Buck
Allegro
Andante
Scherzo
Allegro
(Introducing in Fuga "Hail, Columbia")

JANUARY 31

Jerusalem, the Golden (variations).....Dr. Sparks
The Question.....W. Wolstenholme
The Answer.....W. Wolstenholme
Queen of Sheba March.....C. Gounod

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

JESSIE KING
PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Chas. E. WEEKS Basso
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Henriette Weber Piano Lecture-Recitals
OPERA TALKS
Auditorium Bldg., Ninth Floor Tel. Harrison 4868

"THE NATIVITY" GIVEN AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

"The Nativity," a cantata for chorus and solo voices, composed by David Nyvall, Jr., received its first Chicago production on Sunday morning, January 3, before a large congregation at St. Paul's Lutheran Church under the direction of Mr. Joseph A. Schwickerath, who, it is well known, always maintains a large and efficient choir as well as several soloists who do wholly commendable work at this beautiful north side church. With that thought in mind there was no misgivings on our part when we journeyed out to hear this new work performed on Sunday morning. Mr. Nyvall has succeeded in giving to the world a cantata which well deserves a place in the repertoire of every church choir as well as all choral societies. While the text which this composer has set to music breathes of the Christmas spirit, there is no reason, as far as we could ascertain, why the cantata would not be wholly appropriate in any season of the year.

The work opens with an overture which is written in a beautiful pastoral style. This was especially well rendered on Sunday morning by the organist, Mr. C. A. Weiss, and Miss Al Meda Wadhams, pianist. Following the overture comes a recitative, "I Shall See Him, But Not Now," given to the soprano, which is well written, both musically and for the voice. Miss Alice L. Schwickerath, daughter and pupil of the director, was chosen to sing these opening phrases and acquitted herself with much credit, displaying a good quality of tone, of sufficient power and fine style. "Unto Us a Child Is Born" is the first chorus number and one of the most effective and best balanced of the entire work. One of Martin Luther's inspiring and harmonious chorals is weaved into this chorus number with majestic style and is very acceptable.

Another recitative, "Behold, a Virgin Shall Conceive," for soprano, comes at this point and is followed by a splendid aria for the same voice. The former was sung by Miss Schwickerath, the latter by Miss Clara Henrici, who also sang an especially well written duet, "There Were Shepherds," with Mr. Clarence Haake, another pupil of Mr. Schwickerath, and the possessor of a fine tenor voice which he uses in a manner denoting intelligence and skillful training. At this turn in the cantata Mr. Nyvall has set the familiar "Glory Be to God" to a beautiful melody and asks that a children's chorus sing it. Mr. Schwickerath is fortunate in having such a body of singers also and they did their work as effectively as the old choir in the loft. The cantata, which consumes about thirty minutes, closes with a rousing "Hallelujah" chorus which is indeed a tribute to the musical attainments of Mr. Nyvall. Mr. Schwickerath led his chorus through this inspiring number in a very praiseworthy manner and deserves many words of commendation for the smooth and well prepared performance which he made possible of the Nyvall composition. Mr. Weiss and Miss Wadhams also deserve much acclaim for the very satisfying part they took in performing the accompanying score.

The second part of the St. Paul service was not heard by this writer. H. M. B.

Goldmark—Carl Goldmark, eminent composer, died in Austria last week at the age of 83.

GRACE STEWART POTTER IN RECITAL

Mr. F. Wight Neumann resumed his Sunday afternoon concerts on January 3 and, to make sure of good measure, he presented two artists on that day.

Mme. Sembrich at Orchestra Hall appeared, of course, to a full house, but it was much more surprising to find the Illinois also filled to the last seat with a thoroughly representative and enthusiastic audience, for Miss Grace Potter, who appeared there, is a newcomer and her work is as yet unknown to the great general public.

However, she certainly must have a splendid list of personal friends and the great public will learn to know her intimately also, beyond a doubt, for she is a pianist of infinite charm.

A European pianist, lately heard here, was heralded as "the poet of the keyboard," but, in spite of the fact that might be construed as "an odious comparison," the thought would obtrude on Sunday, when listening to Miss Potter that she could easily assume great handicaps and yet walk away triumphantly with all the laurels for poetic playing in a contest with the aforementioned foreigner.

Miss Potter is foremost and very distinctly a poetical player. She has power sufficient for all needs and she can play with decided dramatic force also when she wishes but in the main she is a poet and her music partakes of a like character.

Perfect purity of tone is hers, wonderful flexibility of phrase, accent and stress are at full command and all this is supplemented with a musical thought which is beautiful always and poetical to the extreme.

The Brahms group was played with rare distinction; clarity was present in full measure and a rounding out of each musical thought which was superb.

Chopin was ideal. The "Fantasie" was played in such a way as to disclose many new beauties and numberless unthought-of nuances. The "Impromptu" was finished legato in effect and contained some scale passages of marvelous smoothness; the "Mazurka" was delightfully crisp, and the "Scherzo" was sufficiently bravura, while at the same time it retained the refined qualities which mark Miss Potter as unique.

The last group, consisting of an interesting sequence of Verdayne, Melcer, Leschetizky and Strauss-Schuett, was not heard by this writer. C. E. W.

ROBERT LOUIS BARRON

Robert Louis Barron, violinist, played at a private musicale and on December 13 before the Bohemian Club. On December 17 he was soloist at the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. At these engagements he played the following numbers:

Aus der Heimat.....	Smetana
Legende.....	Wieniawski
Meditation "Thais".....	Massenet
Humoreske.....	Dvorak
Poem.....	Fibich
Serenade.....	Drdla
Souvenir.....	Drdla
Melody.....	Dawes
Mazur.....	Borowski

Black—Miss Edith Black played a violin obligato for Miss Gallagher's chief solo in "The Last Judgment" (Goodwin), at the New England Congregational Church last Sunday evening and acquitted herself with great credit.

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham

PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

Daniel Protheroe

Teacher of Singing and Composition
610 FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

MASON SLADE

PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK

Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Steele

Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
533 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Joel Mossberg

Baritone Teacher of Singing
309 KIMBALL HALL
Residence 1155 Belmont Av. Tel. Graceland 3752

Harriet Case

SOPRANO COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

ETHEL GROW

Contralto Soloist Fourth Presbyterian Church
CONCERT—ORATORIO—SONG RECITAL
1002 DEARBORN AV. Phone North 2635

Stephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST

American Violinist Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

H. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR, Concert, Recital, Oratorio

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

Silas Wright Mountz

Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 446 W. 40th Place Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel

MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert Raymond Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
437 Fifth Avenue, New York
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOL

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS SOPRANO
PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Axe

Oratorio Concert Recital SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall Res. Valparaiso, Ind

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
225 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

COMPOSERS' CONTESTS

Two interesting composers' contests to be announced for the coming season are the George Hamlin contest for tenor aria with orchestra and the violin concerto contest offered by the Chicago violinists.

The conditions for the George Hamlin contest are as follows: The composer must be an American, that is, a citizen of the United States. The text must be an original English text and not a translation, and the composition must be of such dimensions that it is distinctly removed from the song class and unmistakably in aria form.

It is Mr. Hamlin's intention to sing this work for the first time at the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's first popular priced American concert on the fall of 1915. A prize of $200 is offered, and all compositions must be received not later than June 1, 1915, by Glenn Dillard Gunn, Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

The contest for violin concerto is open to all composers who are American citizens. No prize in money is offered, but a publisher will be secured for the winning composition for the contest for American trained violinists, and be played by the winner at the first popular priced concert given by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in the fall of 1915.

All manuscripts must be submitted to Herbert Butler, Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill., not later than May 1, 1915.

CIVIC MUSIC

The Civic Music Club of Mark White Square gave its first program last Sunday evening. This club consists of two departments, the children's chorus directed by Mrs. G. M. Norbeck, and the Deutsche Frauen Volkslieder Verein, directed by Mari Ruef Hofer. A Nativity play, consisting of old folk songs and carols arranged by Miss Hofer constituted the larger part of the program. Mrs. Philip Matzinger contributed a group of Christmas songs by Cornelius.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Some of the members of the Teachers' Training Class, under the direction of Miss Godfrey, played the following numbers during the class hour last Saturday, by way of illustrating the subject of that day's lesson:

Czardas	Miss Emery	MacDowell
Gigue	Miss Browne	Bach
Mazurka	Miss Kent	Godard
Rigaudon	Miss Gipe	Grieg

Gale—Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale gave a song recital at the residence of Mrs. E. L. Hamilton in Oak Park, and on Tuesday appeared at the McVoy residence on the North Shore jointly with Mrs. Else Arendt, Georgia Kober and Tina Mae Haines, and on Tuesday evening sang in Wheaton, under the Allum directorship, in "In Old Japan," with Helen Axe Brown, George Lee Tenney and Marion Green.

Hebrew Educational Alliance—The trio, Hans Hess, Alexander Kaminsky and Clarence Eidam will play at the Hebrew Educational Alliance, 1243 Wood street, on next Sunday afternoon, at 3.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mme. Schumann-Heink will be heard in a song recital next Sunday afternoon, January 10, at Orchestra Hall, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Mrs. Katharine Hoffman will be the accompanist and the program is as follows:

Erda scene from the opera Rheingold	Wagner
Waltraute scene from the opera Gotterdammerung	Wagner
Brangaene's Ruf from the opera Tristan and Isolde	Wagner
Brangaene's Ruf from the opera Tristan und Isolde	Wagner

Mme. Schumann-Heink
Prolog to Pagliacci	Leoncavallo
Mr. McNamara

My Heart Ever Faithful	J. S. Bach
Die Forelle	Schubert
Sapphische Ode	Joh. Brahms
Heimweh	Hugo Wolf
Traum durch die Daemmerung	R. Strauss
Waldeinsamkeit	Max Reger
Spinnerliedchen

H. Reimann Collection, Seventeenth Century
Mme. Schumann-Heink

Two Grenadiers	Rob. Schumann
Red, Red Rose	Hastings
Auld Maid Shawl	Haynes

Mr. McNamara
Dawn in the Desert	Gertrude Ross
Down in the Forest	Landon Ronald
Cry of Rachel	M. T. Salter
Good Morning Sue	Leo Delibes
Mme. Schumann-Heink

h h h

Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra will be heard in a Beethoven-Wagner program at their concert to be given Sunday afternoon, January 17, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

GARFIELD PARK METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"The Shepherd King," a Christmas cantata, given December 27 by the choir of the Garfield Park Methodist Episcopal Church, was one of the very enjoyable Christmas services of the season, unavoidably omitted from our last week's issue. The cantata, by J. Lincoln Hall, was delightfully given by the large chorus choir, directed by Mr. C. W. Edwards, with Miss Isabel Wells as organist and Jeanette Van Lennep as soprano soloist, Miss Elizabeth Woodrow and Mrs. Harry De Money uniting with her in some excellent ladies' trios contained in the work. Miss Van Lennep has a very high lyric soprano voice, which, from her long experience in church work, she uses with excellent taste, and her solos, of which she had four in the service, were taken with great good judgment and were an inspiration to the audience.

Mrs. Emma Sollitt-Sherman, who for five years was the choir soloist, sang the offertory solo, Van De Water's "Night of Nights," and also the solo to Dudley Buck's setting of Adam's "O Holy Night." A large congregation attended the service.

Greulich—Mrs. Anna Breining Greulich on December 27 assisted in a special service at the Olivet M. E. Church, singing solos and chorus obligatos to chorus work. On January 4 she appeared at a reception marking the fiftieth anniversary of the B. Y. P. U. at the Second Baptist Church, Chicago.

Congratulations—Music News is in receipt of the announcement of the marriage of Charles Edwin Lutton to Miss Nelle Amelia Graves, which took place at Abilene, Kas., on December 29. Congratulations and good wishes.

"AIDA" AT FULLERTON HALL

The popular and successful "opera evenings" being held at Fullerton Hall under the direction of Henriette Weber brought forth the brilliant Verdi opera, "Aida," on Sunday evening, January 3. In addition to Miss Weber and her usual instrumental quartet, the following soloists appeared during the evening; Marjorie Dodge Warner as "Aida," Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns as "Anneris," and Alfred Ganberg as "Rhodames." As usual, a capacity house greeted this excellent array of talent.

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Miss Weber in her opening talk on the opera of the evening announced that herself and co-workers found utmost pleasure in presenting a work which has become so popular to the operatic music lovers and judging from the applause which followed every number throughout the evening the audience derived as much pleasure and enjoyment from the presentation offered as did those on the stage find in their giving.

No large amount of imagination was necessary to see the real opera unfold before one after the short and well chosen talks of Miss Weber were given.

Messrs. Klammssteiner, 'cellist; Itte, violinist, and Hillmann, violist, with Miss Weber at the piano, played with very gratifying results the "Introduction," "Battle Hymn," "Sacred Dance of the Priestesses," "Egyptian March," and the "Temple of Vulcan" music, which are the more brilliant and popular instrumental excerpts of the opera. Their accompanying during the evening was also wholly on a par to any heard heretofore.

Mr. Kanberg won a host of new admirers at Fullerton Hall on this occasion, for he was in extra fine form vocally and his brilliant rendition of the "Heavenly Aida" stamped him as a tenor of high attainments. He possesses dramatic intensity and an authoritative style which he uses with telling effect in the offering of operatic music.

Mrs. Warner, who is being heard often at Fullerton Hall and always with much pleasure and acclaim as usual, looked charmingly and sang equally on a par with her appearance. "May Laurels Crown Thy Brow" and "My Native Land No More Shall I Behold" were her solo offerings and were delivered in a style wholly praiseworthy along every line.

Mrs. Dobyns likewise makes a most pleasing appearance and she knew her role exceedingly well. Her voice is of the mezzo-soprano quality and of exceptional range. She took part in a scene with Aida and displayed a fine command over her rich, full voice, and her dramatic interpretations of the text also added greatly to the effect she created. She was likewise as successful in her scene with Rhodames known as "Before the Judgment." H. M. B.

KENWOOD EVANGELICAL CHURCH

Mr. Palmer Christian will play the following organ recital at the Kenwood Evangelical Church on Sunday, January 10, at 4 o'clock, assisted by Cora Libberton, soprano:

Concert Prelude and Fugue.....	Faulkes
Evening Bells and Cradle Song.....	MacFarlane
Scherzo	Bossi
Suite	DeLamarter
Prelude
Adagietto
March
Songs—
Exaltation	Mrs. Beach
Serenity	Salter
.....	Mrs. Cora Libberton
Prelude in B Minor.....	Bach
The Swan	Saint-Saens
Caprice	Kreisler
Adagio (Sixth Symphony).....	Widor
Finale

Wilmette—Miss Jane Peterson, a promising young soprano, sang the solo parts in the Fearis' "Star of the East," at the morning service of the Wilmette M. E. Church on December 27.

ELEANOR Dramatic Soprano In Programs of Songs and Arias and Children's Songs and Stories	HAZZARD PEOCOCK	SEASON 1914-15 in America
Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson		437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON
437 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Hazel Huntley Contralto

CONCERT - RECITAL - PUPIL'S
609 Fine Arts Building Phone Harrison 6880

WILLIAM HINSHAW

BARITONE
Of the Metropolitan Opera Company Management: R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 Broadway, New York

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Phone Austin 22712 5943 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

PUPILS

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS

Music in Chicago

HUGO GOODWIN'S ORATORIOS

Last year Mr. Hugo Goodwin presented his first oratorio, "From Easter to Pentecost," with his choir at the New England Congregational Church, and won a lot of the most favorable comment. So well indeed was the work received that it has now been issued by the Paul A. Schmitt Company and is available for use by all choirs.

Mr. Goodwin has now finished his second oratorio, "The Last Judgment," and although it is still in manuscript, it has been given twice under his direction.

Music News reviewed the first performance given last month, in some detail, and found the second performance, which was given last Sunday evening at the New England Congregational Church, much improved.

A splendid audience was in attendance and many Chicago musicians were noticed in the throng.

The first impression gained on Sunday was of the great excellence of the individual work of Mr. Goodwin. Seated at a console facing his singers he directs and plays all at once and so excellent is his organ-musicianship that he is able to get better effects with his left hand alone than many organists gain with two.

The quality of his playing is fine, the accompaniments to the oratorio were rife with color; they held absolute rhythm at all times and they were distinctly sympathetic of the singers and the text.

In his "Offertory," which was a free fantasia of his own invention, the resources of his organ were used to the very full, and indeed the wish came quickly to mind that Mr. Goodwin might speedily be provided with a new organ, one in fact which would be commensurate with his great gift, which the present organ at the New England Church most assuredly is not.

As for the music of the oratorio itself, it must be confessed that it is too abstruse and much too complicated for any one to be able to give a full estimate from once hearing. Nevertheless, it may be said at once, and emphatically, that the impression produced on Sunday evening was a profound one.

The harmonic progressions employed are often new and unexpected and the accompaniment is frequently squarely at odds with the voice line or at least so unusual in treatment as to make the work of the singers difficult in the extreme.

It is not intended to intimate by this statement that these effects are ugly or inappropriate; for as matter of fact they are neither; they are merely unusual to the limit and correspondingly difficult.

Under these circumstances the effects Mr. Goodwin was able to get from his small chorus were wonderful and distinctly creditable to each member of that body as well as himself.

There was a remarkable amount of breadth and sweep in the work as presented on Sunday and every item of the vocal score was well negotiated regardless of difficulty.

Mr. Goodwin has selected his texts with great skill and discretion, and not only does his music fit the spirit and moods of the words so admirably but also his singers seemed to rise to the thought with great certainty and not only was there present beauty of musical expression but also a truly exalted religious sentiment at all times.

The soloists also acquitted themselves, for the most part, very well indeed.

Miss Madeline Gallagher, soprano, sang the various numbers assigned to her score with great purity of tone, much display of accurate musicianship and a truly correct feeling for the wonderful text. She has great sincerity of purpose as well as definite gifts and her work was thoroughly appealing.

Miss Adelaide Lewis, contralto, had not much to do in this work, but did her one aria with fine vocal quality and true thought for its meaning.

Mr. Lathrop Resseguie, tenor, was much overweighted with the solos and obligatos assigned to him, though this was through the fact that they do not lie well to his voice more than to a lack of musicianship, for as matter of fact he sang with much understanding of the text.

Mr. Edward Quinn, baritone, had by far the lion's share of solo work and acquitted himself with credit. His voice is of very pleasant quality and his musicianship is undoubtedly good.

The quartet number, "God So Loved the World," was done well, but not with the exquisite finish which the merit of the work warranted. Altogether the performance of this new piece constituted a distinctly fine occasion and both Mr. Goodwin and his singers are to be sincerely congratulated on its success.

C. E. W.

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND EXPRESSION

Walther Brauer, violoncellist of the Orchard School of Music and Expression, was the solo artist last Wednesday evening at the special Christmas musical program presented under the auspices of the Civic Music Association at Armour Square, West Thirty-third street and Shields avenue. Mrs. Charles Orchard supplied the accompaniments. The program was in charge of John Allen Richardson, organist and choir-master of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Kenwood, under whose direction the St. Paul's Church choir presented a collection of old Christmas carols. Mr. Richardson is also a member of the faculty of the Orchard School.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton sang the following attractive program at her home studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, last Sunday. She was assisted by Mrs. Grace Keesler, accompanist:

Rejoice Greatly	Handel
Friedvoll und Leidvoll	Beethoven
Wasserflute	Schubert
Wohin	Schubert
Lucia	Luzzi
L'Enfant Aux Etoiles	Jean Messager
Pourquoi Rester Seulette	Saint-Saens
L'oiseau bleu	Dalcroze
O Thou Billowy Harvest Fields	Rachmaninoff
Winter	Ronald
Happiness	Branscombe

THEODORA STURKOW RYDER

the brilliant young pianiste, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

CABLE PIANO CO., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs:—It affords me great pleasure to take this opportunity of telling you how much I appreciate and enjoy your beautiful instruments. When I have a Mason & Hamlin Grand Piano to play I feel that I have at my command an instrument with all the marvelous effects of a symphony orchestra, combined with the intimate qualities necessary to a solo performance.

Cordially yours, (Signed)

Theodora Sturkow Ryder

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warehouse of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Advanced pupils of Allen Spencer and voice pupils of Edward Clarke will give the following program on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in Kimball Hall:

Ernticon, Op. 34	Jensen
a The Enchantress	Miss Riley
b Electra	Miss Hubbard
c Kypris	Miss Doig
d Eros	Miss Schuyler
In Springtime	Fesca
Springfaith	Rier
	Miss Pearl Helyne Mayne
Fantasia in C Minor	Mozart
	Miss Ambrosius
The Enchanted Fountain	Dubois
Autumn	Moszkowski
	Miss Schaper
Volkslied	Mendelssohn
	Miss Gabler
In a Garden	Cadman
The Silver Ring	Chaminade
I Don't Cease	Carpenter
	Miss Marjorie Greenleaf
Pastorale (Angelus)	Corelli-Godowsky
Tambourin	Rameau-Godowsky
	Mrs. Kahle
Prelude in D Flat	Chopin
Tarantelle, G Flat Major	Moszkowski
	Miss Ginsberg
Rigoletto	Verdi-Liszt
	Mr. Roberts
Marienwuermchen	Schumann
Der Neugierige	Schubert
Die Post	Schubert
	Mr. William Breach
Nocturne in C Minor	Chopin
	Miss Masley
Nocturne in D Flat	Chopin
Liebes Tod (Tristan und Isolde)	Wagner-Liszt
	Mr. Jensen
	Esther Hirschberg, Accompanist

The Century Opera Company

By CHARLES E. WATT

THE LAST WEEK

After Tuesday evening the performances of the week were all repetitions of other bills and all were played to rather poor houses until Saturday night. The general excellence of the work was kept up throughout the week, however, and all those who attended performances during the closing week will hold the Century Company in kind remembrance.

§ § §

The Gala Bill

Both because Saturday has been the popular night and also because of the excellence of the bill, the gala performance drew one of the best houses of the season and, for the most part, the performance was of great merit, though the "Lohengrin" act, in which Miss Freeman and Mr. Kingston figured most prominently, was far short of being a good performance, both singers evidently being under the weather.

HELEN STANLEY

§ § §

The orchestra, under various leaderships, played the "Tannhauser" Overture, the "Meditation" from Thais and the two "Intermezzi" from "Jewels of the Madonna" splendidly—though one must protest against the bad discipline which allowed the men to talk to each other in full voice all through Saturday evening and also at the Sunday concert, when the conversation of the men of the orchestra often rose to such a crescendo that it could be heard throughout the first floor.

The "Sextette" from Lucia was sung on Saturday night by Miss Freeman, Mr. Harrold, Mr. Kreidler, Mr. Kaufman, Miss Campbell and Mr. Williamson so extremely well that a repetition was demanded—though for the first time during the season there were used, in one number, a variety of languages and the chorus was absolutely indifferent to its work, which for them was the first offense of the entire season.

The second act of "The Jewels" afforded Miss Helen Stanley an opportunity for splendid work, which she was not slow in taking advantage of, while the second act of "Carmen" not only presented her in a magnificent reading of the "Michaela" aria but also showed Miss Howard to superb advantage as "Carmen" and was, in other respects, quite one of the most satisfactory episodes of the entire season.

Morgan Kingston seemed indisposed throughout the evening and fell far short of the work he has done at other times. There was much enthusiasm throughout this performance and the curtain calls were of unusual cordiality.

§ § §

The Sunday Concert

For its farewell performance the Century Company gave a splendid Sunday concert which was fairly well attended.

Morgan Kingston seemed to have recovered and with Miss Stanley gave a performance of the first act (La Boheme) scene between Rudolph and Mimi, which reflected immense credit on both artists and was one of the high lights of the afternoon.

Orville Harrold also seemed suddenly to have acquired control of his resources and, instead of singing off key as has been his fault almost throughout the opera season,

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Send one Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

he gave a reading of "Spirito Gentil" from "La Favorita" (Donizetti) which was not only strictly on the key but which also disclosed beautiful tone and considerable art.

Mr. Harrold's concert appearance is all that it should not be—he is awkward in walk, bearing and in acknowledgment of applause. The same was true also of almost every one on the stage on Sunday, Miss Stanley and Mr. Kreidler being the notable exceptions.

To the regret of all who have learned to know and to greatly admire the voice and the art of Alfred Kaufman, he was announced as unable to sing on Sunday; and indeed this was no surprise for on Saturday he was scarcely able to speak because of a bad cold.

Mr. Kaufman's work throughout the season has been of unusual value and he will certainly be welcomed when next he comes to Chicago.

Louis Kreidler displayed his splendid voice to great advantage in the "Eri Tu" from "The Masked Ball" and scored one more big effect with the audience.

Miss Freeman sang a "Lohengrin" aria and Miss Howard pleased the audience very much with the well worn "My Heart at the Dear Voice" from "Samson and Delilah."

Mr. Chalmers and Mr. Marr also added to the solo effectiveness of the occasion in extracts from "Tannhauser" and "Faust" and Miss Ewell scored well in the almost impossibly-frayed "One Fine Day," which is an aria it is hoped this writer will never again have to endure excerpt in its proper setting in the opera.

The orchestra, under various leaderships, disclosed graces before unsuspected. The "Lohengrin" prelude was played with much refinement, the Ochs "Variations" created much amusement by their humor, and the "William Tell" Overture and "Hungarian March" (Berlioz) disclosed fine rhythmic and melodic values.

§ § §

Mr. Henderson Comments

Mr. Henderson, the New York correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, wrote at length in last Sunday's paper as to the causes of the Century abandonment.

He claimed that the company never had any reason or excuse for existing and that it had been bolstered up by false and non-genuine newspaper comment.

As to the demand in New York for such a company as the Century, or rather as to the possibility of its existence as opposed to other interests, Music News knows little, but we know that Mr. Henderson is absolutely wrong in his estimate of the abilities of this company.

He says that the performances in general were not (in New York) up to a requisite standard.

This may possibly be true of New York, though we doubt it—but in Chicago it is very far from true.

The newspapers here were not subsidized—very little advertising was done and, in fact, it was found very difficult to get even a moderate amount of publicity matter from the press headquarters.

It is not therefore from any personal interest or from advertising causes that the Chicago newspapers have been so uniformly favorable to the Century performances and Music News has no hesitation whatever in saying that the general excellence of all the operas presented was great.

The chorus, orchestra and principals were all adequate; in fact the first two factors far excelled some of the performances given in former years in this city by the Metropolitan Company itself and the chorus was far superior to that of our own Chicago company and very often also the stage management was much better.

The public did not support the venture merely and wholly because there were no advertised "stars." The public is not yet ready for opera which has no Barnumized stars.

— § § § —
Gamble Hinged Company—The Gamble Hinged Music Company has just issued "The Elementary Scales" for the piano with explanatory notes by W. W. Kammerling, a very useful book.

— § § § —
Beebe—Dr. A. B. Oren, student of Agnes Leist-Beebe, has a beautiful tenor voice and will give an interesting program of song in the near future.

A New Opera at The Auditorium

By CHARLES E. WATT

Chicago musicians and the society folk of Evanston assisted at the premier of an operetta called "Guido Ferranti," which was given under the Century management at the Auditorium on last Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Jane Van Etten Andrews of Evanston is the composer of the work and her prestige was doubtless advanced materially by this performance, though its musiin effect, though possibly he did all that was possible with the material given him to work with.

Under these circumstances the very great success of Hazel Eden Mudge and Worthle Faulkner in the two roles, soprano and tenor, was all the more notable.

So closely were they associated in this work, and so evenly divided were the re-

HAZEL EDEN MUDGE AND WORTHE FAULKNER IN 'GUIDO FERRANTI'

cal value is not of wonderful significance.

The story itself, as detailed in subjoined comment from the daily press, is not of sufficient dramatic value to win any permanent place in opera literature and the musical treatment of the slight story is very commonplace.

True, there were evidenced on Tuesday evening several moments of lyric beauty, but the treatment of the themes is very monotonous and there is no differentiation as between varying moods.

All these shortcomings were emphasized by an orchestration which was done by George Colburn and which was deadly dull responsibilities and the successes, that it is scarcely possible to separate one from the other.

It may be said then, in all truth, that not only was the vocal work of both the young artists admirable, reflecting very great credit on their teachers as well as themselves, but also the dramatic gifts displayed were of a quality to lift the little opera to its greatest possible effectiveness and also to prove that the young artists could easily win success on the professional operatic stage should they so elect. The dressing was admirable, the action of both singers entirely fine, and the singing at all times of a quality to emphasize these merits.

Coini of the Century Company deserves great credit for his splendid management of the stage, and Jacchia did wonders with the meager score for orchestra.

The comment of the press was generally very favorable to Mrs. Mudge and Mr. Faulkner, as may be seen from the following quotations:

One thing is mysterious. The people of Evanston live in a garden spot where nature wears her gentlest smile, and where the very atmosphere has a refining influence, so we should expect that when they broke forth into lyricism or literature they would inevitably turn toward thoughts which should uplift us. Then why is it that when our eyes are drawn toward the north shore it is almost invariably by some horrid tale of blood, or other lawless outbreak of the unchained human spirit? Can it be that too peaceful a scene, too rarefied an air, when daily dwelt in provokes a revolt in the soul which can only find relief by deeds of violence? It is mysterious.

The unappreciated wife seeks balm for her wounded spirit in the arms of her lover, which is quite in accord with all the principles of poetry, and of the fundamental law of the dramatic and operatic stages. They are about to fly to some haven of refuge far from the maddening crowd of men, when the lover, with manly courtesy, starts to place a letter in the duke's chamber that he may know the truth, and therewith a dagger that he may do what is fitting. Then his beloved assures him that there is no need, since she has already killed the duke with her own hand, that there should be no mistake. This proof of true devotion the lover takes quite amiss, even to the point of repeating some seven times, according to the score, "I pray you, let me see your face no more." This, in turn, appears an altogether ungenerous requital of lovely zeal and the lady summons her guards, denouncing her recreant leman to them as the murderer—and the curtain falls. It seemed as if any lady under the circumstances would resent, must resent, being told seven times to her very face, "I pray you, let me see your face no more." This was inevitable, but not in accord with our ideas of Evanston.—Evening Post.

The Century Company provided orchestra and stage setting and the opera was staged by Jacques Coini, artistic decorator, and Agide Jacchia, the principal conductor of the Century forces. The two vocal parts were cared for, not by members of the Century Company, but by Worthle Faulkner and Miss Hazel Eden, both of this community. Both succeeded excellently in their tasks and Miss Eden's appearance belied the spirit of Guido's infinitely repeated plea that he be no longer required to gaze upon the ducal features.—Daily News.

Mrs. Andrews, the composer, is reported to have made the statement that her opera had been written less as a result of the study of composition than as an expression of her own feeling. On this hypothesis she displayed a marked sympathy for melody, with one or two serious errors, errors in the technical as well as the spiritual aspect of operatic writing.—The Journal.

§ § §

"Lucia di Lammermoor"

The new opera was followed by a performance of "Lucia," which was one of the most brilliant of this season. Louis Kreidler, as Henry Ashton, did some of the most brilliant work yet placed to his credit. Mr. Alfred Kaufman displayed his sonorous and beautiful voice to unusual advantage in "Raymond." All the singers were fine in the "Sextette" and Florence Macbeth, as "Lucia," won the greatest individual triumph of the entire season, being called before the curtain no less than thirteen times after the "Mad Scene."

— § § § —

Grace Church, Oak Park—On February 5, Mr. Arthur Randolph Frazer, the new choirmaster at Grace Church in Oak Park, will present "The Prodigal Son" with his Male Choir, the new St. Cecilia (girls' choir), and soloists, totaling 100 people. February 15, Gounod's "Gallia" will be given. On March 5, Harrison Wild will play an organ recital at the church, and on April 1 Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung.

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

"The Definite Preparation for Definite Work" is the motto of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory, of which Frank A. Morgan is president. The object of this progressive school is three-fold: To prepare musicians and dramatic students for the Lyceum and Chautauqua platform; to prepare students for the profession of teaching; to offer the best possible opportunity for personal culture.

When the school was founded, Mr. Morgan chose Elias Day, the well-known Lyceum entertainer, as director. "No one better than Elias Day knows the conditions and needs of Lyceum work," said Mr. Morgan, and he added: "The great need for specially trained singers and entertainers, the principles and the technic of art do not constitute the art itself, nor is the great entertainment-going public interested in either subject. There must be personality and a knowledge of the art of entertaining an audience. Concert and entertainment work will never command the attention from the public that the theater does until its artists begin to provide, as does the theater, new as well as old repertoire for presentation."

During the past year Mr. Day has organized fourteen new companies, which he has coached for Lyceum work, and they are filling successful engagements all over the country. He also meets once a week with the Playgoers' Club, coaching them for a Bernard Shaw play, to be produced in the Whitney Opera House some time in February. There is a large class of students in the dramatic department of the conservatory and the new term commences January 4. In response to many requests for an evening class in dramatic art, a new class will be organized to begin work early in January.

The faculty members of the school have been chosen from those artist teachers who have been successful in concertizing, and include Sibyl Sammis MacDermid, Sandor S. Radanovits, Katherine Howard Ward, Edgar Brazelton, Max Fischel, Zetta Gay Whitson, Nelda Hewitt Stevens, Ora Padgett-Langer, and Frank B. Webster.

Craven—Mr. Carl E. Craven, tenor, was one of a double quartet of singers who, under direction of Palmer Christian gave a program of New Year's carols at the residence of Dr. Isham, 1314 N. State street, on New Year's eve. He was soloist at the fiftieth anniversary meeting of B. Y. P. U. at the Fourth Baptist Church on Thursday evening.

American Conservatory—Advanced pupils of Frank Van Dusen, voice pupils of Rmon Girvin, will appear in recital Saturday afternoon, January 16, at Kimball Hall, under the auspices of the American Conservatory.

Murphy—Mr. Lambert Murphy was soloist with the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra in December, singing for his greater number an aria from Massenet's "Griseldis."

Howard—One of the great successes of the recent Century Opera season in Chicago was the "Witch" of Kathleen Howard, as presented on Christmas day.

THE LITTLE THEATER

The Little Theater management has the knack of supplying its patrons with the exactly fit entertainment at all times and in no booking have they shown greater judgment than that which is current at the little playhouse at this time.

Through their former appearances the Fuller Sisters have won a distinctive and an equally distinguished clientele, and this following is loyal to them at all times and is particularly glad to see them and be cheered by their optimistic outlook on life at this time when so much in the way of entertainment seems superfluous—indeed impertinent.

The Fullers are so "homey" and so artistic, while at the same time they are so absolutely simple and unassuming that an evening with them is pure delight, and during the coming two weeks they will be sure to please big audiences night after night at the Little Theater.

To analyze their program or their presenting of it would be like trying to define the charm of a smile or the perfume of a rose. They are so subtle and yet so incisive—so childlike and yet so deeply philosophic, that it is almost impossible to explain in detail just why and how they may be all these things at once.

Their songs are, as always, of wide variety within the positive limitation they have set for themselves, i. e., the presenting of Folk Songs in their pristine purity, and many additions have been made to the list.

At the intermission, Mr. Browne came to the stage and announced that "all those who believe with the Fullers that the present war is a horrible thing and that the consideration of other things matters not a great deal at present, are invited to remain after the regular program and hear a new song which they have prepared." Needless to state, everybody remained, and the number given them was certainly full of thought and also of good art.

To the "Dead March" and with an accompanying tableaux—very simple, but wholly suggestive—two of the sisters sang off stage a really terrible song, i. e., terrible in the thoughts it brought to mind, entitled, "The Spirits of the Slain," and in this was pictured most vividly the devastation and the horror of the war which has slain its thousands, each one of whom says: "I perished for freedom—this I know, for those who bade me fight, have told me so."

C. E. W.

Schumann-Heink—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Mme. Schumann-Heink, was married on December 26 in Paterson, N. J., to Elsie Straussmann.

Nering—Mrs. Agnes Nering presented her singing society in a Christmas concert at St. Stanislaus' Parish House on December 27.

AT THE AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

Miss Mariam Larkin, harpist; Harriett Jane MacConnell, contralto; Mabel E. Woodworth, violinist; Bessie Andrus, soprano, and Agnes Hope Pillsbury, pianist, with Edgar Nelson and Marie Bergersen accompanists, gave the first concert of the new year before the Amateur Musical Club on Monday afternoon, January 4, in the Assembly Room of the Fine Arts Building.

Miss Larkin opened the program by playing three well chosen numbers in a style which drew considerable applause from the audience, and Miss MacConnell stirred up still more enthusiasm by her elegant singing of a group of three songs, in which she was accompanied by the accompanist "par excellence," Mr. Nelson.

Miss Woodworth brought a touch of rare art into the musical activities of the afternoon by her excellent and much enjoyed playing of "Siciliano and Rigaudon," Francoeur-Kreisler; "Andantino," Martini-Kreisler and a "Tarantelle" by Robert Birch. She has proven many times in the past to be one of the most satisfying violinists appearing before the public, and her standard was fully maintained again on Monday afternoon. The accompaniments played by Miss Bergerson for the violinist were skillful and wholly satisfactory. She likewise supported with good effect Miss Andrus, who sang two numbers with much vocal display that was enjoyable, especially in the beautiful and simple "Rose Softly Blooming" by Spohr.

Miss Pillsbury brought the program to a delightful close by offering a "Barcarolle," by Rubinstein; "Caprice," Paganini-Schumann; "Song Without Words" and "Bourree Bretonne," both by Moret. These numbers made up a group which furnished this highly talented pianist with an abundance of chances to display the many sides of her art to the full. Her fluent technic and smooth singing tones came forth in a very gratifying manner in the Rubinstein composition, and the "Caprice" was a brilliant point in her list of offerings. Musical thought as well as strength glowed throughout her reading of the first Moret work and the latter disclosed her wonderful attainments in the art of octave and staccato playing. She was greeted with a rousing burst of applause at the conclusion of her last number.

H. M. B.

Illinois College—The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, entertained sixty children from five to fourteen years of age at a New Year's party at the college last Saturday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. There was a short program given by Ethel Rawitch, Sadie Rawitch, Franklin Paul, Grace Behan, Elmer Schweikle, Frances Darnall, Bonnie and Jessie Donaldson and Gladys Wagner; after which games were played and a general good time was had. Refreshments were served and each child was given a box of candy.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

A QUARTET CONCERT AT HAMILTON PARK

The largest and most appreciative audience which has yet assembled for one of the MacBurney series of song recitals given at Hamilton Park Field House this season, heard the concert of Monday night, January 4, which was given by a quartet composed of Grace Brune Marcusson, soprano; Agnes Hansel Harter, contralto; Worthe Faulkner, tenor, and Joseph Marshall, bass, with John Doane at the piano. The program as a whole was of such a miscellaneous and meritorious character that any taste which might have been present was surely satisfied. The first part of the program was devoted to solo work by the members of the quartet.

Mrs. Marcusson was the first to appear and offered "Il est doux, il est bon," from Massenet's "Herodiade" in a style which exceeded in some respects the expectations of her many admirers. Her voice was never in better form, her stage presence never more gracious and her interpretative abilities displayed to such good advantage. Her singing of the French text was as usual the subject of much praise.

Mr. Faulkner sang a group of songs made up with "Possession," Clough-Leigher; "Like the Rosebud," La Forge, and "At the Feast of the Dead I Watched Thee," Cadman. While not in the best of shape vocally, Mr. Faulkner nevertheless was wholly admirable in his presentation of these numbers. His power of giving a message through the medium of song stood him in good stead at this time, and his commendable enunciation aided greatly in bringing about gratifying results, and his mezzo voce was used in a manner such as is seldom equaled.

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSON

Mrs. Harter chose that beautiful aria, "God's Will Be Done" (Joan of Arc) Tchaikowsky for the displaying of her rich contralto voice which is always a source for real enjoyment wherever she sings. She possesses the vocal abilities, poise and interpretative powers necessary to make this number ring with true sincerity and beauty, so much so, indeed, that the audience demanded an encore at its conclusion, this the contralto granted in the form of Woodman's "An Open Secret," which was charmingly sung.

Mr. MacBurney presented a singer who had not been heard in public before by the following of affairs musical at this studio, in the personage of Mr. Marshall, who is endowed with a remarkably rich and powerful voice of the true basso type. He created an unusual amount of praiseworthy comment by his singing of the "Armorer's Song," (Robin Hood) De Koven, and the "Gypsy Love Song" (Fortune Teller) Vic-

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
304 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

Clarence Eidam Pianist

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor

Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory

Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
426 Fine Arts Building

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

AGNES HANSEL HARTER

tor Herbert. He was compelled to add an encore to these programed numbers. Mr. Marshall will be heard from if he continues under the same masterful guidance which he now follows:

The second half of the evening was taken up by a performance of Charles Wakefield Cadman's Song Cycle, "The Morning of the Year" for solo quartet, which was given by the above named singers with all the finished style and effectiveness noted in all ensembles coming from the MacBurney studios. The solo work of each voice was fully on a par with that heard earlier in the evening, and the quartet numbers were likewise elegant.

The accompaniments offered by Mr. Doane were great in every detail. He had a fine grand piano at his disposal, which fact evidently pleased him greatly, as well as the audience. It is seldom that an accompaniment comes in for a share of the applause, but such an opportunity was presented on Monday evening at the conclusion of Mr. Doane's playing of the "Intermezzo" in the Cadman Cycle, and the audience gave its acclaim of his fine work in a long and rousing round of applause.

— # # # —

MRS. RUSSELL'S STUDIO AFTER-NOON

The personnel of the Russell Quartet is Mrs. Lucille Hayley, soprano; Miss Mabel Hatton, contralto; Glenn Sherwood, tenor, and David R. Pershing, bass. Behind these forces as instructor, coach, enthusiast, main-spring and dynamo is Mrs. Estelle L. Russell. In concerted numbers and in solo contributions the organization was heard at Mrs. Russell's studio "informal" on Sunday afternoon.

The agreeable and enjoyable features about the singing of the quartet are the snap and go and fervor, as well as the distinctly pleasing blend of the voices and an unusual spirit of the corps. Added to these is the fresh timbre of the voices, all young and infused with the eager enjoyment of students working towards a well defined and stimulating ideal. They did Schubert's "Who Is Sylvia" and Reichardt's "In the Time of Roses" capitally, with many nice touches of phrase and nuance, and with un-failing sureness of tone and tempo and musical feeling.

Individually the voices are good, Mrs. Hayley having what might well be called a telling soprano voice, so clean and incisive are the upper tones. Miss Hatton is not so effective in solo work as in the quartet, the voice not being fully placed or obedient. Mr. Sherwood's tenor is of an even, smooth warmth and is vibrant with an appealing color. Mr. Pershing has, for a natural gift, a big resonant bass, so large as to be unwieldy for him at times, but of such a rich quality that it should carry him far. He uses it with a good appreciation of its value and his growth will be watched with pleasure.

Miss Bernice in addition to supplying excellent accompaniments, played two movements of a Beethoven Sonata with a good sense of the idiom of the composer,

A very pleasant hour, Mrs. Russell.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

— # # # —

Kober—Miss Georgia Kober gave a piano recital at Mayville, Wis., on December 26.

FROSOLONO RECEPTION

Monday evening, January 4. Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Frosolono gave a reception at their beautiful new home at 4318 Oakwald avenue. An excellent program of violin, 'cello, vocal and piano numbers, presented by Eleanor Isaac, violinist; Theodore S. Bergey, baritone; Mrs. Bergey, pianiste; Miss Weber, reader; Miss Agnes Denk, soprano; Mrs. Nirdlinger, soprano; Mrs. Frosolono, soprano; Mr. Hoffman, 'cellist, and Mr. George Brainbridge, tenor. A delightful luncheon followed the music program that was thoroughly enjoyed and again gave proof of their par excellent ability as a host and hostess, and they received many words of praise and thanks for the splendid program that they had made possible and the cordial welcome given all who were privileged to attend.

ANTONIO FROSOLONO

— # # # —

EDITH THOMPSON IN RECITAL

Miss Edith Thompson of Boston, who appeared last year as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, was heard last Sunday in a piano recital at the Fine Arts Theater and deepened the good impression she made at her first visit to Chicago.

Her program was a distinctly interesting one and ranged through short pieces of Mozart, Couperin and Daquin down to the Sonata, Op. 27 No. 1, by Beethoven, which she played with great intelligence and musical feeling.

MacDowell was represented by several short pieces, Chopin by three of his most important pianoforte works, and there was one number each from Faure, Debussy and Albeniz, all of which were played with musical feeling and, at the right moments, consistent sparkle.

— # # # —

Birch—"Tarantelle," for violin and piano, by Robert R. Birch, was played at the Amateur Musical Club program on January 4, 1915, by Miss Mabel Woodworth, and was enthusiastically received. Mr. Birch is organist of Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of Oak Park.

— # # # —

Loudon—Miss Jennette Loudon was soloist with the Kenosha Woman's Club on January 6.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils--Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO
ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory
Fine Arts Building Chicago

TODD ERNEST O.

TENOR
Oratorio—Concert—Recital
Phone Harrison 1644
Home Phone, Edgewater 3576

ROY DAVID BROWN

PIANIST
SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL FINE ARTS BUILDING

Tina Mac Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals.
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

FESTIVAL SERVICE AT OAK PARK

On Sunday afternoon, January 3, occurred the second festival service by the choir at Grace Episcopal Church, Oak Park.

Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser is organist and choir director at this church. He has held the position only two months, but in that time he has demonstrated his ability to bring excellent things to pass musically.

At the service Sunday afternoon the special music by the choir included a magnificat by Tours, "Sing, O Heavens," by Gaul, and "There Were Shepherds," by Vincent. These were sung with good effect. The volume of tone was ample, the parts well balanced, the tempi spirited, and the phrasing careful.

What part of the Episcopal service is more beautiful and impressive than the processional and recessional if carefully executed? and what more disturbing if executed in a "hap-hazard" way.

We are pleased to report that we have rarely seen these parts of the service done in a more satisfactory manner than on this occasion.

The incidental soprano solo in the Vincent anthem was sung by Master Paul Trapier Gervais, a lad less than twelve years of age, who by his work on this occasion, promises excellent things as a soloist.

The visiting soloist was Mr. Louis Phelps Hoyt, organist of the Church of the Annunciation, Chicago, who gave a recital, including the following numbers:

Grand Offertoire, No. 2.....	Batiste
Elevation	Saint-Saens
Capriccio	Lemaigre
Cantilene Nuptiale	Dubois

Mr. Hoyt is a skillful organist and his playing was a decided pleasure to listen to, notwithstanding the fact that the organ is of ancient construction, and the keys and stops rattle unpleasantly at times.

On February 5, the choir, augmented to one hundred voices by combining with the St. Cecilia choir, will give "The Prodigal Son," by Sullivan. C. J. B.

ST. PAUL'S UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

January 3 the first musicale of the year at St. Paul's Universalist Church was given by Mrs. W. Middelschulte, organist; Mary Highsmith-Lyding, soprano; Miss Barbara Waite, contralto, and Dr. Bruno Kuehn, violinist. Mrs. Middelschulte, the capable organist, gave splendid renditions of the "March Religieuse," Guilman, and the "allegro" by Saint-Saens. The accompaniments furnished the singers and violinist were of a high order and worthy of commendation.

Mr. Kuehn draws a pleasing tone from his instrument, and he gave much pleasure in numbers by Goldmark, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Beethoven, Couperin and Kreisler. The splendid voices of Mrs. Lyding and Miss Waite were heard to a fine advantage in the duets, "Passage Bird's Farewell," Hildach, "Come Unto Him," Faure. Mrs. Lyding left nothing to be desired in her rendition of Hummel's "Hallelujah," for she sang it in a very artistic manner. Miss Waite gave Bizet's "Agnus Dei" as her solo number. Her voice is of splendid range and fine quality and she used it to an excellent advantage throughout the evening.

CIVIC MUSIC AT HAMLIN PARK

Sunday afternoon, January 3, the music program at Hamlin Park was given by Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, pianist, and Else Harthan-Arendt, soprano. Mrs. Sturkow-Ryder, the pianist, opened the program with the D Minor Prelude and Fugue and the Etude for left hand by Arthur Foote, dashing them off with an abandon that was very convincing. Mrs. Ryder added much to the pleasures of the program by the neat remarks illustrative of the various compositions and composers represented, both in the piano and vocal numbers. "The Lark" was very effectively done, as was "The Devil's Dance," by Rebikoff. Rachmaninoff's "Polichinelle," with its pulsing rhythms, found her in a very happy mood. Rhene-Baton's "Deserted Lands" and "The Spinning Girls of Carantec" might well be called tone poems with their delightful melody and extraordinary rhythm. They were made to fairly glow with color and beauty of tone that was very captivating. The closing number was the Saint-Saens Etude, and she was accorded a generous round of applause for the excellent rendition she gave. Mrs. Arendt chose as her opening number the aria from "Cavalleria Rusticana." Although suffering from a slight vocal indisposition she gave it an excellent rendition.

"His voice possesses great beauty, being rich and full and under perfect control."
—Chicago Tribune.

ALBERT

BORROFF
BASS504 KIMBALL HALL
CHICAGO

PHONES: Wabash 8021

Kenwood 837

"The Lass with the Delicate Air" was splendidly done, both vocally and musically. She was at her best in the "Volkslied," Harthan, receiving a storm of merited applause for her singing of this number. "Love's Feast," by Sturkow-Ryder, came in for a share of the applause, and it is safe to say that it could be heard often with pleasure. The accompaniments furnished by Mrs. Ryder left nothing to be desired.

Orchard School—At the Orchard School of Music and Expression on Tuesday evening a concert was given by Grace Saltonstall, soprano; Zula Ziegler, pianist; Jessie DeVore, violinist; Jennie Bowmar Ricketts, reader, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, pianist.

Boston—According to all newspaper report, Boston has completely and positively repudiated Schoenberg, naming his music as "absurd" and comparing it to "cater-wauling"—a term applied to it by Music News some time since.

ALICE IONE CRAMER AT HEMINGTON RECITAL

The assisting artist at Francis Hemington's current organ recital at Epiphany was Miss Alice Ione Cramer, soprano. She chose for her numbers "These Are They," from Gaul's "Holy City," and MacDermid's ever acceptable "Ninety-first Psalm," and Dr. Hemington gave her beautifully modulated accompaniments to aid still further their effectiveness. Not the least of Miss Cramer's valuable assets is her enunciation. Every word has its placement and came out with admirable distinctness. Another element that adds to enjoyment is a breath control that makes the phrases long and full of tone, something delightful to encounter in these days of short, jerky phrasing. Her voice is round and clear and pure in quality and steadfast in tonality, and she sings with sincerity and earnestness as to interpretative intention.

Mr. Hemington's large work was Ralph Baldwin's F minor sonata, something finely sane and straightforward in its melodic phase and legitimate and unaffected in its development. It has a reverie of an adagio, alive with suspended and diminished chords and a finale that uses "Ein Feste Berg's" two first lines for subject matter and decoration. There was also a "Romance" of Horatio Parker's to provoke delight—a duet of a pair of happy lovers with a floating accompaniment of syncopation that was irresistible, both as to content and playing.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

NEW YEAR MUSICALE

The annual New Year Festival of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Immanuel Church was held Friday evening, January 1. The program was given by Mr. A. Alfred Holmes, organist; Vera Brady Shipman, reader; Miss Esther Pearson, soprano; Mr. Avern Scolnik, violinist; Sylvia Jackson Wahlstrom, pianist.

A splendid audience was in attendance to hear the varied program of excellent music. Mr. Holmes is a tower of strength at the organ and on this occasion he gave a masterful reading of the "Offertoire in D," Batiste.

Mrs. Shipman gave some delightful readings that gave much pleasure. "The Little Brack Sheep," a musical reading by Mrs. Shipman, was very warmly received, as was her rendition of Bond's "Perfect Day." Mr. Scolnik gave violin numbers by Keler Bela, Borowski, Levensohn and Handel, gaining much applause for his efforts. Miss Pearson, a pupil of Mr. Devries, gave a good account of herself in numbers by Tours, Palm, Spross, Lang, Ashford and Handel. "Come Unto Me," Handel, found her at her best.

Mrs. Wahlstrom, a pupil of Mr. Holmes, gave some excellent readings of numbers by Verdi-Liszt, Schumann-Liszt and Chopin that reflected much credit upon her work as well as her teacher. The Chopin Valse in E flat and the Schumann-Liszt "Frühlingssnacht" found her at her best. She also furnished praiseworthy accompaniments throughout the evening for Miss Pearson and Mr. Scolnik. H. W. P.

Tallarico—Mr. Pasquale Tallarico, pianist, was soloist with the Chaminade Club in St. Louis recently.

People & Events

CARLILE TUCKER, THE VERSATILE MUSICIAN

Mr. Carlile Fisher Tucker, baritone, who is on the front page of Music News this week, gives his formal recital the latter part of the month. Since his return from a season of European study, a year ago last August, he has devoted his energies almost entirely to his pupils. As a teacher, Mr. Tucker has been favorably known for several years. It is generally known that he is a thorough musician, an accompanist of unusual ability, a chorus director of proven worth, as well as being an organist of no mean merit.

In the last few years, however, Mr. Tucker has been able to concentrate his activity. All of his broad musical equipment has become centered in his singing. Those who have been fortunate enough to hear him recently, speak of his warmth of temperament, his sureness of technic, his power of interpretation and his repose of singing.

Mr. Tucker is another one of the many singers who owe their inspiration and their art to Mrs. O. L. Fox. Mr. Tucker feels that whatever degree of success he has attained is due to her influence, not only as a teacher but also as a woman. After some years of teaching, "his forty days in the wilderness," as he speaks of it, Mr. Tucker went to Europe, with the intention of acquiring accuracy of diction and in order to study foreign languages.

While in Paris, Mr. Tucker studied with Charles W. Clark, who is well known as a concert and oratorio artist, all over the world. Mr. Tucker studied also with Mr. Hugh Allen, formerly of the Montreal Opera Co., and now singing in Italy. With Mr. Allen, Mr. Tucker studied several roles in both Italian and French.

Mr. Tucker is at the very height of his artistic development. He has something to say. He knows how to say it. In either oratorio or recital, he is one of the younger singers who will make his mark. With his charming and talented wife, Myrtle Friel, who is fast becoming a favorite among Chicago sopranos, Mr. Tucker will be heard in various joint concert engagements during the current season.

BERTHA BEEMAN IN "THE MESSIAH"

The following is taken from the Uhrichville (Ohio) Daily Paragaph:

The contralto role was taken by Miss Beeman, who possesses a pure contralto voice. The carrying power, which at close range might seem small, yet at a distance is wonderful. She showed herself fully equal to the difficult passage in the first air, "O Thou That Tellest," and also showed full control of her lower voice.

The surprising thing which Miss Beeman did was in the "He Shall Feed His Flock," where she used more of the mezzo voice and kept plenty of the brightness and full carrying tone. There was no lack of the sympathetic and Miss Beeman made the audience feel it. Her lower voice was again shown in the "He Was Despised," where she made all feel the sorrow and grief. (Advertisement.)

Herdien—Mabel Sharp Herdien will sing in "St. Paul" with the newly formed Choral Society in Kansas City, under direction of David Grosch on January 19.

YEATMAN GRIFFITH

Mr. Yeatman Griffith is now located in New York and is caring for a very large class of artist pupils and so insistent has been the demand for lessons that he has been teaching throughout the holidays.

Accompanying this article is a new picture of Mr. Griffith and also one of him

YEATMAN GRIFFITH
Now in New York

with his pupil, Edward Roberts, the Canadian baritone.

Mr. Roberts has sung successfully in London, appearing at the Mansion House before royalty, Queen Alexandra being present. Also a tour of the English provinces with Marie Hall, violinist; Alexander Raab,

YEATMAN GRIFFITH AND HIS STUDENT,
MR. EDWARD ROBERTS
Canadian Baritone

pianist, singing at Liverpool, Blackpool, Scarborough, Keswick, etc., receiving splendid press criticisms. The tour was canceled in Scotland on account of the war, and Mr. Roberts accompanied his teacher, Yeatman Griffith, to New York to continue his studies. He expects shortly to tour the states with Marie Hall and Mark Ham-bourg.

— # # # —

Civic Music—The Civic Music Association announces two concerts for Sunday, January 10. The Frosolono String Quartet will close the series at Hamlin Park, North Hoyne and Wellington avenues, giving an afternoon concert at 3.30 o'clock. The Civic Music Club of the First Baptist Church, 31st and South Park avenue, John Allen Richardson, conductor, will sing "The Holy Child," Christmas cantata by Adams, at the church at 8 o'clock in the evening. The soloists are Helen Axe Brown, soprano; Barbara Wait, contralto, and W. J. Breach, baritone. This is the first appearance of this chorus and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Body Poise and Breathing...10 Lessons

How to generate, conserve and wisely expend the vital energy
VOCAL MUSCLE POISE
Scientific method based on natural law to build the throat muscles, strong and elastic, for trills, scales and all embellishments.

ESTELLE COLLETTE McKAY
Henninger Conservatory of Music, 3524 Grand Av., St. Louis, Mo.

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

EQUALIZING EXERCISES FOR ALL SCALES

A Scale and Arpeggio Book for Piano Study

By GEORGE BAILHE

(Summy Edition No. 63)

Each phase of technique embodied in scale playing is generally accomplished by separate sets of exercises. You have never been able to give one set of studies embracing all this training—that is what we offer you in Mr. Bailhe's book. Each exercise applies immediately and effectively to the scale, for each one is indeed, a part of the scale itself.

Make each minute of your pupil's practice time count, by having him use these exercises.

Strongly endorsed by Moritz Moszkowski, Joseph Lhevinne, Isidor Philipp and others.

Price, $1.50

CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO.

PUBLISHERS

64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

"MADE IN AMERICA" SONGS FOR CHRISTINE MILLER'S PROGRAMS

On January 10 the popular American contralto, Christine Miller, begins a series of recitals in the middle west, many of them re-engagements for the third and fourth consecutive time. At the Iowa State College, Iowa City, January 12, she will present a representative program of songs, featuring many new "Made in America" compositions. Some of the composers represented are Ward-Stephens, Will MacFarlane, Sidney Homer, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Gertrude Ross, Horatio Parker, John A. Carpenter, James H. Rogers, Walter A. Kramer, Frank Warner and George B. Nevin. Other recitals on this tour will be given on January 13, at Waterloo, Ia.; on the 14th, at Iowa State Teachers' College, Cedar Falls; on the 15th, at Carlton College, Northfield, Minn.; on the 18th, at St. Mary's Hall, Faribault, Minn., and at the Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., on the 21st. Miss Miller will appear as soloist with the Minneapolis Orchestra in that city on January 17.

GABRILOWITSCH AND MURPHY IN EVANSTON

Miss Rachel B. Kinsolving announces that, owing to the non-arrival in America of Josef Lhevinne whom she had announced for the next of her series of morning musicales at the Evanston Woman's Club House on Tuesday morning, January 19, she has engaged, in his place, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, who will appear in conjunction with Lambert Murphy, tenor, who was originally announced also.

DR. THOMAS M. MENDSEN

The New York Journal speaks as follows:

One of the most delightful features of the evening was the singing of Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen, who captured the audience in "Night Greeting" by Edward Kremser. His voice is beautiful and all his work is done with intelligence and finish. He completely captivated the ladies, whose applause was long continued and well deserved. (Advertisement.)

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIS
Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

DAVID BISPHAM FIGHTS FOR AMERICANS

David Bispham does not agree with those who believe that American composers who are worthy will not need to have their cause championed. Mr. Bispham bore high the banner of American composers long before it ever seemed probable that songs by Americans should become a regular section of every artists' program. One could say that in many cases he has forced this issue. One may also go further and say that he does not only search among the thousands of compositions sent to him with the hope that he may sing them, for songs that appeal to the public, that are learned quickly and that are "easy," but he has been also the inspiration to many to write in a serious vein as he has been willing to study songs that were not easy, that needed long assimilation and that needed the same amount of work, thought and interest which are necessary to learn a song by Richard Strauss. In this has David Bispham been the wonderful champion. He has sung numbers that were not obvious, not "catchy," just because they were good music of the same intricate sort that he found among songs of Strauss, Brahms and Hugo Wolf, and he has paid his countrymen and women the compliment to regard their work seriously, in which Mr. Bispham is nearly unique.—Musical Courier.

A POPULAR SCOTCH SONG

Among the many pleasant greetings received this joyous season by George B. Nevin, none has given more pleasure than the brief note from that sterling artist, Miss Christine Miller, the concert and oratorio contralto.

Pittsburgh, Pa., December 22, 1914.

My dear Mr. Nevin:

Your song, "When the Kye Come Hame," is charming. You have caught the truly Scotch "lilt," and as a Scotch woman am more than happy to have it.

I shall put it on my program at once after the holidays.

Audiences will be all the happier for having heard its jolly message.

I thank you for it.

Cordially yours,

CHRISTINE MILLER.

This recent publication of the Theo. Presser Company has been sung with great success by Horatio Connell, whose charming voice is being heard in so many oratorios and concerts.

THUEL BURNHAM

Thuel Burnham played in Birmingham, Ala., on December 27, and from there came immediately to New York for ten days to superintend the work of the pupils who were granted scholarships by various New York clubs, as has already been reported in these columns. He leaves New York again on January 8 and plays almost daily until the first week in February, when he returns to New York for the Sherry concert, February 7. He also makes a flying trip to New York to be here January 16 for the Rubinstein Club concert, and leaves the same evening for Burlington, Ia. Reports from every place where Mr. Burnham has appeared show that he is having unflinching success, and he is constantly receiving new bookings.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Oratorio and Grand Opera, Chicago

DARLEEN WELLINGTON-MILLER

Dramatic Soprano

NEMA PHIPPS Pianist

JOINT RECITALS Address 703 Cass St., Albion, Mich

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER

82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST

Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 PUPILS CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE

419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO

Steno, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL.

Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Lucy Hartman

CONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
548 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

MISS PELTON-JONES AT RUBINSTEIN CLUB

Miss Frances Pelton-Jones, the distinguished American harpsichordist, added another to her list of successes in the brilliant program, which she arranged and "put on" for Rubinstein Club, New York, on December 19, in the grand ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria. It is well known that this famous club engages only artists of the first rank, those of national and international reputation. In placing the entire program in the hands of Miss Pelton-Jones, Mrs. William Rogers Chapman, the president, showed her confidence in this clever artist's ability, not only as a performer but in the sense of "impresario" as well. That it was not misplaced was apparent from the first number to the close, the occasion being pronounced by all one of the unique artistic successes of the New York season and by some the most beautiful program ever given by Rubinstein.

To add to the realism of the stage picture and produce a proper atmosphere and setting for the music, Miss Pelton-Jones had planned a tiny playlet (acted in pantomime) entitled, "An Afternoon with Marie Antoinette at Versailles," in which Mrs. Chapman impersonated the queen, prominent officers of the club appeared as court ladies in waiting, while pages with white wigs and splendid livery (worthy of King Louis XVI's retinue) escorted the artists upon the stage and into the royal presence, where after deep courtesies and salutes they proceeded to give the printed program of the afternoon, not only to the "court" but the brilliant audience assembled on the other side of the footlights—one completely filling the thirty-five boxes and every available inch of space on the ball room floor.

Exquisitely colored spot lights thrown at intervals upon the stage produced a dazzling effect—the magnificent eighteenth century gowns of both artists and "royalty," the ornate furniture and decorations—the "chef d'oeuvre" of which was the quaint harpsichord adorning the center of the stage—all combined to produce an enchanting picture, one not soon to be forgotten by those privileged to see and hear. With the exception of a few numbers given by special request the program was confined entirely to music of the seventh and eighteenth centuries—both harpsichord and piano being used for accompaniments. Miss Pelton-Jones' versatility was much in evidence throughout the afternoon, as she appeared not only in harpsichord solos and ensemble with flute, but also accompanied the voices. Her own arrangement for the harpsichord of Paderewski's "Minuet" and the "William Tell" overture delivered with scintillating clarity and delicious charm brought salvos of applause among the assisting artists. Mme. Florence de Courey, contralto (recently of the Boston Opera) scored a decided "hit" in old French chansonettes and English ballads. Other artists were William Wheeler, tenor, and William Moris Kincaid, flutist, both immensely pleasing.

It will be of interest to know that Miss Pelton-Jones will make a tour west in the early spring, appearing on the "artist course," of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, and other prominent institutions, a tour which will take her clear to the Pacific Coast. Among the notable dates she has already filled this season are the Ogontz School, Philadelphia; Institute of Musical Art (Frank Damrosch, director), New York; Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa.; Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., (at "The Lodge"); anniversary concerts in the Wanamaker Auditorium, and a number of others.

NIKE CLUB MUSICALE

The mid-year musicale of the Nike Club at Lincoln Center was given January 4. Liza Lehman's "Song Cycle In a Persian Garden" was given by Alice Ione Cramer, soprano; Mabel Baker Layfield, contralto; Thomas McGranahan, tenor; Collins J. Brock, bass, and William Lester, accompanist. The work of Miss Cramer, Miss Layfield, Messrs. Brock and McGranahan in their solo numbers was thoroughly enjoyed and they were accorded much applause for their efforts. The ensemble work of the quartet merits commendation, for they sang the chorus numbers with a fine spirit. The last two were especially effective. The last number was so well done that a repetition was demanded and graciously given.

Mr. Lester, always an artist, made much of the accompaniments of the Liza Lehman score. His playing was very sympathetic and musicianly, adding much to the pleasure of the program.

W. PROCTOR
ARE N CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

CLARENCE EDDY IN THE SOUTH

Clarence Eddy left on New Year's Day for San Antonio, Texas, where he played the large Hope-Jones organ in the new Empire Theater for a performance of "The Messiah" by the San Antonio Musical Festival Association on Monday evening. A quartet of eminent singers from New York was secured for the solo parts.

From San Antonio Mr. Eddy goes to Dallas, Tex., for two recitals on the afternoon and evening of January 7 and 8. These will be given in the magnificent Scottish Rite Cathedral, and upon the large four-manual Hook & Hastings organ which Mr. Eddy opened with three recitals a year ago last June.

Mr. Eddy is also engaged for recitals in Terrell, Tex., January 8, in Sherman, Tex., January 11, and in Oregon, Ill., January 18.

A two weeks' tour in Florida is pending for the last of this month and a longer one in California during February and March.

Radanovits—That the pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits are much in demand cannot be doubted if one may judge from the number of engagements they are filling. Margaret Daly, contralto, sang before the Fortnightly Club on Monday, January 4; Alpha Hendrickson, coloratura soprano, was soloist with Ballmann's orchestra Sunday, January 3, and Warren Proctor, tenor, assisted in program at Casino Club, Lake Shore drive, Friday, January 8.

EVAN WILLIAMS

The Louisville Post recently had the following to say concerning Evan Williams, the distinguished Welsh tenor:

Evan Williams, the great tenor, has had many and varied experiences, and is provided with that best of equipments for a singer, a knowledge of life in many aspects. His earlier years were a continual struggle against adversity, and, even with his wonderful voice, he found it difficult to make headway when he first entered the musical profession, being without that strongest of all assistants, influence in high places. The sympathetic tenderness with which he sings the lovely songs of Wales is the outgrowth of the childish days when he sang for the Welshmen of the town where he lived and the breadth and power he imparts to the great oratorio arias was acquired through years of familiarity with those compositions in his youth.

In his concert at the Masonic Theater on January 13, he will sing examples of all these compositions, and those who remember him in oratorio will rejoice to know that he will sing selections from "Judas Maccabeus," "Samson," "Elijah," and other well known oratorios. Mr. Williams is in superb form, and those who have heard him during the past year insist that his voice was never more beautiful than it is at present. He has been in great demand for concerts, oratorios and festivals, and his popularity is evident by the many engagements for this season. (Advertisement.)

LOUIS KREIDLER

The following is comment of the New York press on the admirable operatic work of Louis Kreidler:

KREIDLER'S RAFAELE PRAISED BY NEW YORK CRITICS

Kreidler, always capable and excellent in his characterizations, sang Rafaele with spirit and made the role an outstanding feature.—New York "Staats-Zeitung."

Louis Kreidler made Rafaele, chief of the Camorristas, real and imposing.—New York "Evening Mail."

Kreidler made the most of the ruffian, Rafaele. In this part, as in the others, explosiveness and not cantabile is the quality sought.—New York "Evening Post."

In the singing and acting of Mr. Kreidler there was much that was thoroughly admirable and unqualifiedly delightful.—New York "Tribune."

Mr. Kreidler sang the part of the swaggering, villainous Rafaele and was capable and commendable.—New York "American."

Louis Kreidler as Rafaele carried the burden of the score. He sang a Rafaele which he may well add to the list of triumphs.—New York "Press."

Mr. Kreidler impersonated the smooth, sleek villain, with assurance and artistry. His singing was praiseworthy.—New York "Journal of Commerce." (Advertisement.)

MARCELLA SEMBRICH

It was a mature, plump, near-sighted and carefully preserved Sembrich who appeared on Sunday afternoon. Her occasional emergence from retirement is all right, for it gives pleasure to old friends and evidences to intelligent new people the art which made her famous. This art now has a double duty to perform, for it has to conceal as well as to reveal. In just one phrase of a song of La Forge's there was heard the old luscious vibrancy of tone. The Brahms songs were models of interpretation. The applause seemed to be so fully enjoyed that one should not question the wisdom of some of it, since it created happiness.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

WOODLAWN M. E. CHURCH

Mr. Herbert M. Bailey has been acceptably filling the position as choir director of the Woodlawn Methodist Church during the absence of Charles E. Lutton. The Christmas programs were especially good and Mrs. Bailey's charming voice and personality have won for her a place in the hearts of the Woodlawn people.

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Some recent press comment:

SYMPHONY CONCERT

Louise Harrison Slade of Chicago was the assisting artist and she was especially well received. Mrs. Slade has a contralto voice of great beauty. The aria "Farewell Ye Hills" from "Jeanne D'Arc" accompanied by the orchestra showed her artistic ability in rendering this difficult selection. Her second number was a group of four songs, "My Dear Soul" perhaps being the most charming, although "The Illigant Irish Boy" delighted the audience.—Waukegan Daily, November.

"MESSIAH" NOTICES AT ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

Mrs. Slade, the contralto, was at her best in the somber aria, "He Was Despised," which she presented with great dramatic power. Her voice is full and deep and has an intimate quality that is not common to contraltos.—The Daily Illini., December 16, 1914.

The rendition of the contralto aria, "He Shall Feed His Flock," was excellent, and the appreciation of the audience was expressed unmistakably. The contralto in "He Was Despised" was especially good in interpretation. Louise Harrison Slade, the contralto soloist, has a voice of warm color and mellow quality that was increasingly pleasing as the evening progressed.—Champaign Daily News, December 16, 1914.

Louise Harrison Slade possesses a full resonant contralto which she controls well, and her enunciation is particularly good. Her best number was "He Was Despised," in which the middle register took on considerable dramatic color.—Urbana Courier-Herald, December 16, 1914.

The contralto, Louise Harrison Slade, has a gracious personality and a sincere and sympathetic way of singing which charmed her auditors. She delivered her first aria, "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion," with a joyful haste that was delightful. The "He Shall Feed His Flock" was sung with a sweet motherly interpretation suggestive of a cradle song, while the depths of sorrow were sounded in her remarkably expressive singing of "He Was Despised and Rejected."—Dubuque Telegraph, December 31, 1913. (Advertisement.)

Donath—Kurt Donath will give a joint recital with his pupil, Cespe Ganaley of Manila at the Culver Military Academy.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Some recent comment:

Mme. Maude Fenlon Bollman, was very pleasing and artistic in the role of Hero. She also sang with much grace a group of songs.—Milwaukee Journal, December 11, 1914.

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, will appear in recital this week in her home town, and it will be an evening of rare delight to those who are the warm admirers of her beautiful programs of song.

Mrs. Bollman is one of the choice features of the Redpath Lyceum Bureau course, and Tuesday night when she appears as the attraction at the Coliseum, she will no doubt be greeted with an audience that will delight to do her honor, not exceeded by the reception she has received during the past few months on her concert engagements.

Mrs. Bollman made a successful tour at the east this winter, singing first at Wyoming, N. J., and at Branford, Conn., for the third time; also at Miss Hall's School, Pittsfield, Mass. December numbers several engagements, including a concert with the Amateur Music Club of Delevan, Ill., a return engagement with the Handel Society of Milwaukee, last Friday, a recital at Elgin for the Lyceum Bureau, and the recital of next Tuesday evening in this city.

The program for Tuesday evening as it appeared in Saturday morning's Star has awakened an added interest in the event of the week. Miss Lila Lund will preside at the piano as Mrs. Bollman's accompanist.

Mrs. Bollman also has two early January engagements at Highland Park Ill. and Des Moines Ia.—Rockford Morning Star, December 13, 1914.

Civic Music—John Allen Richardson directed the St. Paul's church choir in a program of Christmas carols at Armour Square on December 30 and on the same evening De Witt Durgin Lash led the Sunshine Choir of Buena Park Memorial Presbyterian Church in a similar program at Eckhart Park.

Gale—Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale will be the soloist at the next Sinai Temple concert, singing "O Don Fatale" from "Don Carlos" and a group of songs by Ross.

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

Some press comment on the work of this young Italian pianist follows:

Giuseppe Fabbri is one of the very few young Italian pianists of today who can aspire to traverse the glorious and dignified course of our best virtuosos, whose number is now indeed limited. He possesses all the qualities requisite in reaching the zenith of an illustrious career toward which he is now steadily progressing. His natural inclination for the choicest, and his vigor and strength of touch are the absolute essentials of a great pianist's qualifications. His action and manner at the piano are free from all affectation and pretense, his technic being delightfully clear and elegant; he is verily a lover of the piano, overflowing with exquisite delicacy and passion.—The Naples Giornale.

His playing was followed throughout with much interest and enthusiasm, especially in Beethoven's Sonata, Opus 101, and Brahms Variations on Paganini's Theme, in which he displayed great vivacity and brilliant color. His Chopin music consisted of the Ballade in F minor, a Nocturne in C minor and Polonaise in A flat major, all of which selections were played with the greatest skill and feeling. His concert was closed with Liszt's Mephisto Valser, which afforded the young virtuoso opportunity to display unusual vigor and extraordinary brilliancy.—The Temps of Paris.

This young pianist's concert yesterday has marked one of the most significant musical occasions in this city. The most critical and conservative musical public present testified voluntarily to this by means of a demonstration and applause that is seldom evinced in musical circles. Fabbri is a pianist of an exceptional ability, endowed with great strength, large technic and a fine sense of value.—The Musica of Rome.

Giuseppe Fabbri has exhibited an interpretative capacity in the music of Chopin and Liszt that equals that of any other pianist heard in our city.—The St. Petersburg Gazette.

Fabbri is an artist of extraordinary and rare genius both in interpretation and technic. We never before listened to such Liszt music as his that we dare not mention a word of criticism lest it mar and break the charm that his music has left upon us.—The Cairo L'Egypte.

Fabbri's interpretation of Liszt's Campanella was an unexpected and overwhelming revelation to us last night. A thrill of surprising power and shading stood out from Liszt's florid scroll work.—La Depeche Tunisienne.

In the Chopin Ballade in A flat major he evinced poetry and tenderness and a striking use of the cantabile quality demanded by this piece. A study of Rubinstein's, brilliantly done, led naturally to the technical piece of resistance, the Mephisto Waltz of Liszt, a piece which makes incredible demand upon a pianist's technic, and these demands Signor Fabbri met boldly and satisfactorily.—The Minneapolis Tribune.

Signor Fabbri is a composer to be reckoned with. His music is always scholarly, grammatical, melodious and original. Although in his "Suite for Piano, Violin and Cello," he shows a tendency to write in a pianistic style, the music produced is always interesting; often thrilling and occasionally masterful. (Advertisement.)

FLORENCE PETTINGER

Florence Pettinger, dramatic soprano, gave the following program at the First Methodist Church, Cumberland, Ia., on December 29:

Slave Song.....	Del Riego
Gray Days.....	Johnson
Sweetheart, Thy Lips Are Touched with Flame.....
.....	Chadwick
In the Time of Roses.....	Reichardt
To You.....	Speaks
My Star.....	Beach
Before the Dawn.....	Chadwick
A Spirit Flower.....	Campbell-Tipton
A Little Pink Rose.....	Bond
A Birthday.....	Cowen

Fabbri—Giuseppe Fabbri will give a piano recital at Dubuque, Ia., Sunday, January 10. The second concert by the Minneapolis Trio under the direction of Giuseppe Fabbri will be heard at the first Unitarian Church, Minneapolis, Minn., on the evening of January 21.

TWENTIETH YEAR

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors

304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall

Chicago, Illinois

WENGERD

Vocal Studio

612 Fine Arts
Buildi

Phone Wabash 7220

THU
L

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

If I Could Call the Years Back

Keys of F and D (50c)
Special Price, 25c

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Retrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH

Published
by

THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

G
E
R
M
A
I
N
E

SCHNITZER

Management R. E. Johnston

Baldwin Piano Co.

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

LOUISE BURTON

Miss Louise Burton is shown in the accompanying picture in the costume she wears in a children's program which she is featuring this season.

Miss Burton has just returned from an eastern trip in which her success was a very great one.

She sang a recital program at Galesburg on January 2 and has many other engagements for the near future.

LOUISE BURTON

Some press comments lately given her work read as follows:

WITH THE MONDAY MUSICAL CLUB,
 YOUNGSTOWN, O.

Miss Burton appeared first as a grown-up in the dignity of a sweeping lace gown and one was at once impressed with her charm of manner and ease of singing, combined with a voice of naturally beautiful tone and splendid enunciation. Each group of songs made clear her reserve strength and careful training. The "Prayer" from "Tosca" showed to best advantage her technical and artistic ability. When Miss Burton made her appearance in a juvenile costume with her hair tucked up in true "Mary Jane" style and began the children's songs with "Come to Fairyland," every one had an instinctive thrill that here was real entertainment. Miss Burton seemed to be a child with a child's varying moods and with the gift to make her audience see the child as well as the singer.—Youngstown Telegram.

Other artists this season are Kitty Cheatham, Flonzaley Quartet, Pavlowa, etc.

UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH

Miss Burton's opening number indicated her splendid control and an excellent natural voice which, together with a well selected program, succeeded in im-

NORTHWESTERN COLLEGE

A crowded chapel greeted Miss Burton for her recital last evening. That her work was highly appreciated is evidenced by the frequent encores and enthusiastic applause which greeted every number. The selections rendered demanded no small amount of vocal ability, yet the perfect ease with which Miss Burton gave them speaks well for her art.—Clarion College Notes. (Advertisement.)

MABEL HELEN ROGERS

Some recent comment on the work of this attractive young harpist is as follows:

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers of Chicago, a pupil of Alice G. Smith, one of the leading harpists of the country, gave several very fine harp solos. Miss Rogers made her initial appearance in Kankakee yesterday and delighted the audience with wonderful display of artistic temperament. Miss Rogers is a musician of unusual talent.—Kankakee, Ill., Gazette.

The work of Miss Rogers was especially praised. She is recognized as one of the best harpists in the country and every number which she gave last evening was pleasing to all. She is an artist on the harp.—Monmouth, Ill., Review.

Mabel Helen Rogers harpist is a musician charmingly young and girlish measured in years but beautifully artistic as she sits before her great instrument and evokes melodies weird and strangely sweet as only the harp affords. She was obliged to repeat to encores at each appearance. She is a pupil of Alice Genevieve Smith of Chicago, and has already won for herself a place in concert programs, clubs and receptions in her home city.—Rockford (Ill.) Star.

From the time Miss Rogers seated herself at the harp and swept her trained fingers across the strings bringing out rich melody and rare harmony, to the singing of the last solo by the soprano, every minute was packed full of things calculated to stir the finer sensibilities. Miss Rogers manages the harp with rare grace and puts much soul into her playing. She makes her audience feel with her.—Portage (Wis.) Democrat.

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers is one of the most accomplished harpists ever heard here.—Freeport (Ill.) Journal-Standard.

Miss Rogers has great skill as a harpist, and plays with expression and technic. Her selections in the first part of the program included "Fantasie," from Kavarovic, and "Andante," from Parish-Alvars, and encores, the most pleasing of which was a group of Scotch ballads.—Wausau (Wis.) Herald.

Miss Rogers was a handsome young lady playing with rare skill and sympathy upon a beautiful instrument. Her numbers were well chosen and the applause which they received was enthusiastic.—Quincy, (Ill.) Herald. (Advertisement.)

MARGARET LAWSON MULFORD

Some recent comment:

Miss Margaret Lawson Mulford of Chicago, contralto, who is rapidly coming to the front as a concert singer, successfully introduced herself last evening to Elgin concert goers as an artist of exceptional ability. She has style, taste, shade and finish and a right to claim recognition as an artist. She has a fine contralto voice of great range, especially with respect to the upper register, a feature not common with contraltos. Another point in her favor is her perfect enunciation. Her breath control too is a delightful feature of her work, giving her a beautiful legato and lending her voice that much admired 'cello quality.—Elgin Daily Courier, Elgin, Ill.

Miss Mulford captured her audience when she sang "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "He Was Despised," both of which she sang with deep feeling. Her enunciation was perfect, something which is too often forgotten by the average singer.—The Commonwealth, Ripon, Wis. (Advertisement.)

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

PASQUALE TALLARICO

Some recent comment on the work of this young pianist reads as follows:

Following are a few criticisms from the New York press after Mr. Tallarico's debut at Aeolian Hall, March 31, 1913:

There have been only a few of his nationality to use the piano as a medium for their musical expression. The reason puzzled the audience, for there was no side of his training in which Mr. Tallarico was deficient.—New York Herald.

Pasquale Tallarico, a young pianist who is unknown to most concert goers in New York, gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall, in which he disclosed much talent. His playing had clarity, force, and good tone to recommend it.—Times.

Though hardly more than a boy in appearance and, in fact, only on the threshold of his career, Tallarico has acquired an excellent technical equipment, thanks to the instruction of Rafael Joseffy.—Press.

Commendable, too, was his delicate treatment of parts of the Chopin Sonata, and throughout the program he gave many evidences of careful study and preparation.—Globe.

The young man is eminently musical. In his Liszt playing the young man disclosed remarkable bravura.—Staats-Zeitung.

His interpretations are well balanced, his phrasing that of a musician, and he is capable of giving a great amount of pleasure to his hearers.—Evening Mail.

His personality is winning, dignified and sincere.—Brooklyn Eagle. (Advertisement.)

Brock—Collins Brock sang the bass parts in Liza Lehmann's "Persian Garden" at the Nike Club, Monday afternoon, January 4, and will sing in Cadman's "Morning of the Year," January 8, at the Lawndale Woman's Club.

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

Some recent comment on the work of this Chicago contralto reads as follows:

VERDI'S REQUIEM, EVANSTON FESTIVAL

Rose Lutiger Gannon in this concert advanced at a leap to such a secure position in the estimation of all who heard her, that there will never again be a thought in any mind that she is a "coming oratorio singer." For emphatically and beautifully she is here. Her presence was admirable, her poise unshakable, her tonal power and beauty beyond any possible question of complete adequacy, and her interpretation was marked by an intellectuality and a sincerity which place her securely in the first class of singers.—Music News.

Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon was the contralto and sang the part of the "Angel" in Schumann's "Paradise and Peri." Her interpretation was excellent, and her rendition of "Hark the Vesper Bell" brought forth a storm of applause.—Milwaukee Free Press.

It was a valuable voice lesson to listen to Mrs. Gannon's crisp phrasing and distinct enunciation in her aria. She displayed a remarkably rich voice, which has wealth of tone and depth.—The Oregonian (Portland, Ore.) (Advertisement.)

— — —

MRS. GANNON ADDS TO HER LAURELS IN PITTSBURGH "MESSIAH"

Rose Lutiger Gannon's rich, reverent contralto has been heard here before in this work and this rehearing but served to enhance an already favorable impression. She has that rare possession, a true contralto organ, which she uses with skill and marvelous effect.—Pittsburgh Dispatch, December 30, 1914. (Advertisement.)

REED MILLER

Reed Miller received warm praise from the metropolitan critics for his appearance on December 29, with the New York Oratorio Society. "His aria, 'Behold and See,' was delivered with real distinction," declared Sigmund Spaeth in the Evening Mail. "Reed Miller," said Max Smith in The Press, "gave complete satisfaction," while Henry T. Finck in The Evening Post said, "Reed Miller never sang better." "The tenor," said The Tribune, "is well equipped and sang the music with real appreciation and understanding."

In Troy on December 22 Mr. Miller appeared as soloist with the Troy Choral Club, and as usual gave an excellent account of himself. "Mr. Miller never sang better," said The Troy Times. "In fact it seemed as if in the lovely aria which fell to the part of the tenor, Mr. Miller surpassed himself. His voice was in good condition and its tenderness was very appealing. The intelligence with which Mr. Miller sings is always admirable."

Another recent appearance of Mr. Miller was in Elizabeth, N. J., where he took part in a performance of "The Messiah" given by the Elizabeth Choral Society. In referring to his performance the Elizabeth Journal said: "No tenor who has visited Elizabeth is heard with greater acceptance. He puts into his singing a wealth of expression. Reed Miller loves to sing, and his audience knows it. He poured into the words 'Behold, and see if there be any sorrow like unto His sorrow,' a depth of feeling that made the beautiful passage sublime."

— — —

Libberton—At the public installation exercises of George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R., to be held Friday evening, January 8, in the Public Library Building, the feature of the program will be a Solo Quartet from the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago: Cora Libberton, soprano; Emily Louise Stretch, contralto; George Vehlow, tenor; Herbert Libberton, bass. Both Mrs. Libberton and Miss Stretch will appear as soloists in addition to their work with the quartet.

— — —

Spalding—Miss Clara Bell Spalding, contralto, has been out on a concert tour since September under the Redpath management, returning home to Chicago for the Christmas holidays. The early part of the season was spent in the eastern and middle states and in January the tour is being resumed in the west. Miss Spalding has made splendid success and won favorable press comment in each city visited.

— — —

Harter—Agnes Hansel Harter, contralto, appeared as soloist in Aurora, Ill., December 20, and at the Hamilton Field House January 4, and on January 5 she appeared in recital at Chicago Corners. January 13 she will appear in recital at Chicago Heights.

— — —

Donath—The opera school of Kurt Donath in the Fine Arts Building is preparing a program of acts from "The Huguenots," which is to be given shortly in public.

— — —

Steele—Martha S. Steele appeared as soloist with the New Castle (Pa.) Orchestra on December 10.

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

TECHNIC
PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER

PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

THUEL BURNHAM

PIANIST AND TEACHER

Management Harry Culbertson Fine Arts Bldg.

CHICAGO

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

Is your Name in the MUSIC NEWS

Classified Directory Columns?

Emphatically it should be, for this list constitutes a Musical Directory without parallel in America for

Efficiency

And would be worth every cent of the $12 it costs even if it did not include subscription also.

WOODSTOCK, ILL.

A fair sized audience greeted the choir of the Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening, the occasion being the presentation of the Christmastide song service. The program was in the nature of a praise service and there were special Christmas numbers in keeping with the spirit of the season. The work of the choir has been highly commended, the solo, duet and chorus numbers alike being given with understanding and an interpretation which did credit to the study placed upon them. An interesting and inspiring foreword was spoken by George W. Conn. Two instrumental duets by Mrs. Hamilton and Mr. Dwight Hoy were particularly beautiful, and organ numbers by Mrs. Hamilton were given with her own fine conception of their correct presentation. The character of the work presented in this program is worthy of mention, and a special word of appreciation is due to Mrs. Hamilton, whose unfailing and untiring efforts have been so strong a factor in the success of the musical programs given by this choir.—Woodstock Sentinel.

Peterson—Miss Helen Edith Peterson sang in concert at the First Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church on January 1 and has been engaged to sing the contralto solo parts in Protheroe's "Story of Bethlehem" at the Lake View Presbyterian Church on January 6.

Hamilton—Mrs. Jessie Mack Hamilton, soprano, gave a splendid song program at her residence studio, 5057 Winthrop avenue, on last Sunday afternoon.

BEECHER BURTON

Some further press comment:

Mr. Burton disclosed an appealing tenor voice, well handled.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Beecher Burton, the tenor, gave evidence of a well-schooled voice.—Chicago Examiner.

Mr. Burton, whose lyric tenor tone and reliability were appreciated by the audience, acquitted himself well.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mr. Beecher Burton had a tenor voice of excellent range and power, with the true tenor color to the tone.—Chicago Evening Post.

A most hopeful recruit was Beecher Burton, a tenor of excellent performance and unusual promise.—Chicago Daily News.

Mr. Burton fully upheld his splendid record in the Swan solo number, "Summer! I Depart." Thrilling and passionate in the touching sentiments demanded by the text, the lyric qualities of his voice produced an enchanting result. He was joined by the chorus in "O Life and Love, Farewell," creating a climax which vocally has rarely been eclipsed in Milwaukee. The natural beauty of Mr. Burton's voice in the solo part, "If Thou Only Lookest at Me," with its inspiration and temperate, centralized the successful rendition of the cantata.—Milwaukee Journal. (Advertisement.)

Rankl—John Rankl will give a recital for the Civic Music Association in the near future.

ZOELLNER QUARTET

For the fourth time within two years the Zoellner Quartet played on New Year's day for the Harvard Musical Association.

The program was as follows:

Quartet	Darius Mirhaud Born 1892
Rythmique
Intime, contenu
Quartet, Op. 18, No. 2	Beethoven
Allegro
Adagio cantabile
Scherzo Allegro
Allegro molto quasi Presto
Quartet in D	Gustave Samazeuilh Born 1877

Assez lent, Anime
Vif et Leger
Lent et Soutenu
Decide. Galement et pas trop vite

— # # # —

Durno—Jeannette Durno has returned from a concert trip in the east and resumed teaching at her residence studio, 4140 Lake Park avenue. She will make another eastern tour in March, playing return engagements in New York and other eastern cities.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Season Now Booking

Address Care of Music News

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthao Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCallough
1st Alto—Permilia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Hazel Hontley
Director—Accompagist
TINA MAE HAINES

IN BRIEFER FORM

Hillebrand.—Miss Kathryn Hillebrand, soprano, will give a song recital on Wednesday evening, January 20.

Doak.—Miss Saba Doak, soprano, sang in "The Messiah" for the Pageant Chorus in St. Louis on December 26.

Bradley.—A new book on harmony by Kenneth Bradley has been published by the Clayton F. Summy Company.

Tecktonius.—Mr. Leo Tecktonius, who has returned to America from abroad recently, gave a concert at Atlanta, Ga.

Arendt.—Mrs. Else Harthan-Arendt will be soloist at the Turner Hall concert (Ballmann Orchestra) next Sunday afternoon.

Clark.—Mr. Charles W. Clark gave a song program for guests of Mrs. Keith Spaulding at the blackstone Hotel in December.

Parelli.—The acquisition of Parelli to head the Opera School at the Bush Temple Conservatory is a decided acquisition for that institution.

Hartman.—Miss Lucy Hartman has been engaged to sing the contralto solos in a performance of "The Messiah" at Park Ridge on January 26.

Sembrich.—Mme. Marcella Sembrich will give a concert at Carnegie Hall on next Tuesday for the benefit of the American Polish Relief Society.

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Telephone Kenwood 627

FOR RAPID PROGRESS
IN PIANO, USE Thorne's Indicator.

It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT. No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $60; mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THURN, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great natural beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

SOLOS and QUARTETS
FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By
HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

H. WILHELM
Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL

NORDIN

CONCERT ORATORIO

Eddy.—Mr. Clarence Eddy played for the Scottish Rite Masons at Dallas, Texas, on Thursday evening, his program being of exceptional excellence.

Mulford.—Miss Margaret Mulford, well known to Chicago audiences, who has lately moved to Detroit, sang last Sunday afternoon at the Museum of Art in the latter city.

Hall.—December 19 the pupils of William John Hall gave a song recital in the Musical Art Building at St. Louis. Miss Ava Yeargain, pupil of Mrs. A. Y. Stemmler, assisted.

Oberhoffer.—At a recent concert of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Mr. Emil Oberhoffer presented, with great success, his own arrangement of "The Woodland Sketches," by MacDowell.

Fanning.—Mr. Cecil Fanning's presentation of "Irish Love" in Chicago recently was one of the most artistic successes of the season. Music News will comment on Mr. Fanning's work in this bill later.

French Plays.—The Chicago "Matinees Theatrales Francaises" will give three series of plays at the Chicago Little Theater, beginning January 18. Particulars can be obtained at the office, 634 Fine Arts Building.

Carr.—Mr. Raymond Carr is now director of the chorus at the Garrett Biblical Institute, Northwestern University, choir of the North Shore Baptist Church, North Shore Glee Club, orchestra and band at J. Sterling Morton High School, and is in full charge of the music at the Blue Island High School.

EDWARD WALKER
TENOR
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th St.

Fullerton Hall.—The subject of the Fullerton hall Sunday evening opera lectures, given by Henriette Weber, will be January 10, "Samson and Delilah," January 17, "Lo-hengrin," January 24, "Natoma," and January 31, "Martha."

Gannon.—Miss Edna Nilson, contralto, who has done all her vocal work with Mrs. Gannon, has been engaged for the double quartet at Sinai Temple. She will give a concert at the Woodlawn Park Presbyterian Church for the Mothers' Round Table on January 6.

CLINTON, IOWA

The following musical program was rendered with excellent effect at the Elks' Day memorial exercises on December 6. The quartet of ladies was made up of the Misses Jean Babbitt, Elise Schnell, Georgia Ward, and Olive Barker. Miss Genevieve Allen, accompanist and organist.

The program follows:

PROGRAM

Organ Voluntary
Quartet—The Rosary.....Nevin
Quartet—Sunset and Evening Star.....Bingham
Quartet—A Perfect Day.....Bond

AGNES LEIST BEEBE

Madame Agnes Leist-Beebe, who has spent several years concertizing under the best management throughout the greater portion of the United States, is fast receiving recognition as a leading soprano in Chicago. The work done by this artist in her studio from a standpoint of voice production and artistic singing is creating much interest, owing to the success her pupils have always had and are now receiving. Following are some of the former professional students:

H. W. Stanley, oratorio and concert basso.

Katheryn Hill-Hardy, concert soprano, of Philadelphia, who has appeared with a number of our best orchestra and concert bands.

Iva Probetto, mezzo, was with the Show Girl Opera Co.

Blanch Hudson, mezzo, now in Berlin, Germany.

Bertha Miller-Piper, lyric soprano, toured several seasons under the Redpath management.

Mrs. Dr. Hill, contralto, Omaha, Neb.

Irma Chill, soprano, Silverton, Colo.

Lewis Taylor, tenor, formerly with Croxton Quartet.

Some of the present artist students who are holding good positions are:

Alice Geer Furgeson, soprano soloist of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Gary, Ind., who is winning many laurels as a concert singer. A splendid future is predicted.

Mr. A. H. Jones, tenor, formerly and for five years with the Lyric Glee Club, is succeeding in the concert and oratorio field.

Esther Anderson, dramatic soprano, is singing in the Immanuel Lutheran Church of Chicago.

B. F. Lewis, basso, was soloist for several years of Trinity Episcopal Church, Chicago; is now cantor of Jewish Temple, Gary, Ind.

Elmer Halberg, tenor, soloist in Saron Lutheran Church of Chicago.

Dr. A. B. Oren, tenor, soloist in Christ Episcopal Church.

Elmer Schneider, tenor, sings in quartet in a large church in Valparaiso, Ind.

Mrs. R. C. Nicholson, contralto, concert and oratorio.

Sylvia Wahlstrom, mezzo, organist and choir director of Saron Lutheran Church, Chicago.

Clara Edmunds Hemmingway, concert and oratorio contralto.

Florence Newton, soprano, who recently started on a twenty-seven weeks' concert tour to western coast.

Flora Garrio, mezzo, formerly with the "Ye Colonial Septet."

Ionia Kront, soprano, is in the professional concert field.

Ina Legan, soprano, concert.

Among the younger but successful students are:

Francis Tinnis, Louise Worthen, Charlotte Hahn Green, Lida B. White, Scottie Green-Leist, Rea Heyman, Mr. C. A. Kinder, Lina Levine, Irene Blix, Ina Lindholm, Ruth O'Hara, Mayne Swart, Mary McNees, Lansing I. Beebe, Buena Colliers, H. Phelps.

Some interesting recitals are to be announced later.

M. L. W.

JULIE MANIERRE

Some newspaper comment on the work of the young Chicago soprano reads as follows:

Miss Julie Manierre, the well known soprano, and Oscar Seagle, presented a high class program at the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel. The numbers were many and varied, and Miss Manierre accomplished a most successful public appearance. Miss Manierre has a light, high soprano of lyric quality, well schooled and produced, and she sings with excellent regard for tone values and clearness of enunciation. She has a most pleasing stage appearance and should make a success of her chosen work.—The Musical Leader.

JULIE MANIERRE

Her diction is equally clear in French, German or Italian, and the simplicity and naturalness with which everything was accomplished, was one of the great charms of Miss Manierre's work. Another is, one sees and feels the power in reserve. She at no time is straining after an effect.—Music News.

Miss Manierre has a voice of bell-like purity, her high notes being especially good.—The Argus (Rock Island, Ill.)

Miss Manierre gave the first solo number, "Zef-fereffe," which showed to advantage her voice of wide range and flexibility, and she was forced to give an encore, singing "The Cuckoo," by Lehman.—Daily Union (Rock Island).

Miss Julie Manierre, who sang the first soprano parts yesterday in the St. Cecilia Quartet of Chicago, at the complimentary concert given by the Rock Island Musical Club, has a high, clear voice.—Daily Times (Davenport, Ia.)

Miss Julie Manierre, one of Chicago's sopranos, whose beautiful voice and charming personality is winning for her much deserved success, appeared before The Dorothy Meadows Drama Circle, Red Room, La Salle Hotel, Friday afternoon, in a group of three songs. Miss Manierre sang well indeed. Her voice is unusually clear, well poised, and has splendid carrying power. Her softest tones were plainly audible in the extreme rear of the room, while in the forte passages her voice rang out full and free. Miss Manierre immediately impresses one with her evident sincerity of purpose in all that she does.—G. H. K., Music News. (Advertisement.)

Gamble—The Gamble Hinged Music Company has issued a song which has at once come into great popularity—"Some Day, Some Time," by Palmer John Clark.

A NEW CLUB

One of the most interesting events of the New Year is the organizing of the new club of artists—musicians, painters and sculptors. This will be called the Chicago Artists' Association, and will hold its initial program Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 in the Florentine Room at the Congress Hotel. In New York this idea has been very successful and beneficial and has brought about a mutual bond between the artists that is broadening and helpful to the community at large, and of special interest to everyone who has the welfare of educational advancement at heart. This association will be open to men and women—to artists, and to a student membership that will take the form of a junior club, and which will reap the benefits of the concerts and exhibitions to be given. It is planned to entertain visiting artists also, and to establish a meeting of everyone prominent in their respective lines.

The officers of the Chicago Artists' Association are: President, Mrs. J. E. Thorndike; first vice president and chairman of the program committee, Mrs. L. E. Yager; recording secretary, Mrs. W. E. Babler; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Mable Corlow-Smith; treasurer, Mrs. S. W. Meadows. Miss Georgia Kober will have the chairmanship of the junior club, and the board of directors include Mrs. Louis Didier, Mrs. Alexander Rietz, Miss Tina Mae Haines, Mrs. Luella Chilson-Ohrman, Miss Georgia Kober and Mme. Sturkow-Ryder. At the opening program Mr. Karleton Hackett will give a short talk, and there will be a reception at which the officers of the association will be hostesses. Among the guests of honor will be: Mme. Olitzka, Mr. William Wegener, Mr. David Dunbar, Mr. Edgar Nelson, Mrs. J. R. Custer, Mrs. Geo. B. Carpenter, Mr. Gordon Campbell and Mr. Charles Clark.

The first program will be given by Charles Clark, the well-known baritone, and perhaps the most popular singer in the profession; Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, a Chicago pianist, and Mme. Jessie de Vore, a young violinist from New York who has only recently taken up her residence here.

The program is as follows:

Songs—
Aufenhalt { Schubert
Der Doppelgaenger
Erkonig
Mr. Charles Clark

Violin and Piano—
Andante-Allegro
Adagio-Allegro
Mmes. de Vore and Sturkow-Ryder

Songs—
Promesse de l'enjoine denin Arensky
Mr. Charles Clark

Piano—
Devil's Dance Rebikoff
The Lark Glinka-Balakirew
Polichinelle Rachmaninoff
Mme. Sturkow-Ryder

Songs—
A Fool's Soliloquy Campbell-Tipton
Love's Feast Sturkow-Ryder
(Words by Mrs. G. B. Carpenter)
The Eagle Carl Bush
Mr. Charles Clark
Gordon Campbell at the Piano

— # # # —
Owens—The Haydn Choral Society will sing "The Creation" at Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church on January 11 and at Austin Methodist Episcopal Church on the 22d. H. W. Owens will direct and Haydn Owens will accompany at the piano.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

WANTED—Accompanist for Monday and Thursday afternoons; voice lessons in exchange. Address G. H. K., care of Music News.

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

J. PARNELL EGAN
TENOR
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

Julia Claussenius
TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

Sacred and Secular Songs

Published by

TULLAR-MEREDITH CO.

265 W. 36th St. 14 W. Washington St.
NEW YORK CHICAGO

SACRED---

LILLIAN TAITT SHELTON—

Three Songs for Medium Voice,

THE PALACE O' THE KING 50

THE PRAYER OF LIFE 50

WHEN THE ANGEL COMES: 50

I. H. MEREDITH—

THE VALLEY OF PEACE 50

Duet (Medium and High Voices) with optional refrain for mixed or male voices.

SECULAR---

NELLIE SHORTHILL BRADSHAW

AWAKE! AWAKE! 'TIS THE GLAD

SPRINGTIME 60

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU 50

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LOVE'S LESSON 40

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LULLABY 60

(Medium Voice with Violin Obligato).

50% Discount from Above Prices

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE

CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.

67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano
Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.S. HARRISON
LOVEWELLTEACHER OF PIANO, ORGAN and HARMONY
Lectures and Lecture Recitals (Circular at Request)
Modern Harmony by Correspondence
Studios: 9 Bartlett St., Arlington 30 Steiert Hall, BostonMARIE YAHN CONCERTS
ORATORIO
OPERACONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319HENIOT LEVY PIANISTKimball Hall
Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSONEdith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling Pianist
Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HART PIANISTCOSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLouise LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITYW. Otto Miessner Supervisor of Music
MilwaukeeCOMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Kellman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard AvDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PILS ACCEPTED Charles Otter"THE MESSIAH" IN AUSTIN

Miss Ida Belle Freeman is certainly very popular with all the music-loving residents of Austin and just as certainly she has taught that community to love "The Messiah" and to attend the annual performance of the work in ever increasing numbers.

Owing to a stupid ruling of the Austin churches it is not allowable to charge any admission for events held in them nor to reserve any seats—the result of this, added to the very genuine appreciation of "The Messiah" performances, was—on last Tuesday evening, to crowd the First Presbyterian church to suffocation and to compel late comers to stand throughout the performance.

Of the aforesaid latecomers, this writer was, unfortunately one. Even under these distressing circumstances it is possible to testify to great pleasure in hearing the performance and Miss Freeman may be very sure indeed that her work was of a splendid grade and that the magnificent audience liked it extremely well.

So long has Miss Freeman taught and directed the young singers of the Handel Society in Austin that they have passed the amateur stage in many respects and they sing "The Messiah" with distinct virtuosity and an abundance of style.

Miss Freeman directs with great vigor and she holds her forces to exact values with a hand of iron,—all of which, coupled with the fact of much native talent in the chorus, results in much delightful singing.

"Unto Us a Child Is Born" and "Glory to God" were sung with splendid vim and power while "Behold the Lamb," "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs" and others of the more introspective numbers were wholly effective in the quiet intensity with which they were delivered. All this was very much aided by Mr. Palmer Christian, who, at the very inadequate organ of the church wrought harmonic and rhythmic wonders with the chorus, and who, in his background for the soloists combined all possible color with so strict a musicianship as to be always helpful as well as highly ornamental.

The soloists were chosen with great effectiveness, Mable Corlew-Smith, a soprano whose broad style and very lovely voice cover many moods and phases of the vocal art most admirably was at her best in "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth" which she sang with great breadth and freedom, but also it would be difficult to imagine greater purity of tone or more correct devotional feeling that she used in "Come unto Him," while her reading of "Rejoice Greatly" was virtuosic and brilliant.

Miss Lucy Hartmann very quickly disclosed her entire fitness for "The Messiah" contralto solos and her beautiful voice lent itself to each number with almost equal charm, though, if choice were to be made, it would fall upon "He Shall Feed His Flock" perhaps, as this number was especially refined and musical. "He Was Despised" carried much sincerity as well as beauty and "Oh, Thou That Tellest" was given with exhilarating swing.

Mr. M. J. Brines, tenor, was heard for the first time by this writer in "The Messiah" solos and he at once proved his very great fitness for the task. His voice is naturally of great suavity though indeed it has unusual dramatic power for a tenor also and it is backed up by a skill and intelligence which enable him to give extraordinary refinement to all that he sings.

The two recitatives in the second part of the oratorio were sung in such way as to prove a decided object lesson to every young musician present, "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs" was of excellent quality, while "But Thou Did'st Not Leave" rose to positive exaltation of thought and of musical beauty.

Mr. Brines has proven himself a fine artist in many lines and he is now also, thoroughly proven—an unusually effective "Messiah" artist.

Mr. Frank Dunford, basso, gave his numbers in a way to prove that he feels their deep significance both of text and musical composition and his splendid voice completely dominated the big auditorium and all the surrounding rooms which were thrown open to the overflow audience.

"He Is Like a Refiner's Fire" was brilliant and at the same time it was intense while "The People That Walked in Darkness" was a piece of solid singing not often excelled. It had breadth and depth as well as style and virtuosity.

Unfortunately it was not possible to remain for his "Why Do the Nations," which, undoubtedly, he sang with distinction, and also—for the same reason—Mr. Brines' "Thou Shalt Break Them" was not heard nor the "Hallelujah," which, however, the chorus has been heard to give many times and which is always an inspiration.

Mrs. Lillian Grant-Haeffner helped to brighten the chorus numbers with her piano accompaniments. C. E. W.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, January 8

Orchestra Hall, 2:15. Symphony Orchestra.

Saturday, January 9

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Kimball Hall, 3:30; American Conservatory concert.

Sunday, January 10

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Schumann-Heink. Turner Hall, 3:00; Ballmann Orchestra. Fullerton Hall, 8:00; Opera lecture, "Samson and Delilah."

Sinai Temple, 8:00; orchestra concert, Permelia Newby Gale, soloist.

Monday, January 11

Park Ave. Methodist Episcopal Church—"The Creation."

Thursday, January 14

Orchestra Hall, 2:30; Chicago Wood Wind Quartet.

Friday, January 15

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Saturday, January 16

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, January 17

Illinois Theater, 3:30—New York Symphony Orchestra. Auditorium, 3:30; Fritz Kreisler, violin recital.

Monday, January 18

Auditorium, 8:15; opening of the Gilbert & Sullivan opera season.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

MRS. CELESTE D. HECKSCHER THE LEADING SPIRIT OF THE OPERATIC SOCIETY OF PHILADELPHIA

It seems fitting that the interests of the Philadelphia Operatic Society should be largely in the hands of a talented and gifted woman like our eminent American composer, Celeste D. Heckscher, because she brings an ardent enthusiasm for the unfolding of native talent, and the upbuilding of a musical structure, reared upon the foundations of knowledge, appropriateness and supremely above all, (that element almost invariably lacking in the ventures of the American woman): Thoroughness, and practical common sense.

This organization, since the election of Mrs. Heckscher to the important office of president, has been freed from debt, proving that the charming, blonde composer is a good business woman, as well as an idealist in the realms of poetry and music.

The society on the 21st of January will give an operatic performance in the Metropolitan Opera House of Philadelphia, and all the seats are practically sold for the performance. Society is vastly interested in the function, and will be in abundant evidence in boxes and parterre.

Dear to Mrs. Heckscher's heart, and the hearts of those associated with her in this praiseworthy undertaking, is the hope that from this root may spring municipal opera for Philadelphia. Opera in its grand form which may boast an entire ensemble—soloists, choristers, dancers and orchestra, including only citizens of America, whether by birth or adoption. It is a consummation devoutly to be hoped for; meaning the elevation of the American vocalist and musician to the status they should long before this have enjoyed.

The inference is plain that Mrs. Heckscher has an abounding confidence in the American artist to "make good," and that she is devoting her strength and energy to the realization of her ideas, and her ideals.

Mrs. Heckscher speaks of the society as "a great civic musical philanthropy." It will indeed be that and more, for upon the educational side its value will be of inestimable benefit; especially if the progenitors of the scheme refuse to limit themselves in the scope of its usefulness; widening the field of its endeavor and opportunity.

It is to be hoped that Mrs. Heckscher's opera, "The Flight of Time," almost near completion, will be among the first of the societies' offerings. We may be reasonably sure that as a novelty, if for no other reason, it will draw a large and curious audience. We may also rest assured that upon the side of its musical desirability it will not fail to convince its hearers that in its creator America has found a composer worthy to rank with the elect of all times.

Mrs. Heckscher gave a reception in her Walnut street residence to the members of the Philadelphia Operatic Society, and many of her friends and acquaintances—prominent society people of the City of Brotherly Love—on December 7. It was a social event as may easily be guessed, and it strengthened the interest which representative Philadelphians feel in this interesting organization.

"The Slav," a symphonic tone poem by Celeste D. Heckscher, is just being finished by its composer, and may probably be heard in New York as well as Philadelphia.

Mrs. Celeste D. Heckscher's delightful song, the "Norse Maiden's Lament," was sung on the 23rd of December by Mme. Marie Narelle with great success. Mme. Narelle will also sing this song in her Newark recital on the 7th of January and in her New York recital on the 13th of January.

At a recent appearance in concert, Miss Ruth Sexton, the talented artiste-pupil of Gustave L. Becker, played two of Mrs. Heckscher's compositions for piano.

Miss Kathleen Narelle, the very young and charming pianist who had a great success last year in London, with Sir Henry Woods and his orchestra, has added several of Mrs. Heckscher's dainty gems for the piano to her repertory and will play them during her forthcoming concert tour.

Miss Mary Clute of Gloversville will sing several of Mrs. Heckscher's charming songs during her present season of concert and recital work.

Mme. Marie Sundelius will add Mrs. Heckscher's song "The Norse Maiden's Lament," to her repertory.

Miss Eva Mylott, the Australian contralto, has expressed her great admiration for Mrs. Heckscher's song, "The Norse Maiden's Lament," and will sing it in the near future.

A Chat with Miss Constance Purdy and Miss Mabel Hammond

Personality-individuality count—that is, when you find them, and they are almost as difficult of discovery as that rare pot of gold, hidden among the roots of the rainbow, where it tiptoes over the horizon, and whose quest has been the quest of the grail.

Personality unlike beauty is in the mind of the beholder, and personality is the sine qua non of existence to the connoisseur of the things of the soul, which is the spirit. Holding the one supreme delight of life writ large: mutuality of comprehension. For comprehension enfolds charity, and charity thinketh no evil. Charity, in its nobler sense, sees with catholicity of purpose, if not always with catholicity or the all-aroundness of wisdom. And wisdom in all its catholicity has not been perfectly personified since Moses, who stands in philosophy as the symbol or ideal of wisdom.

Now from Moses to the Misses Purdy and Hammond seems a leap of the gigantic, yet it was of Moses the philosopher I thought after I left the eyrie overlooking the Hudson—torrentially stampeding almost on its wintry journey—the cosy, artistic (word of feeble, fiddle-faddle inadequacy), alluring home these two charming women have literally built round them; for walls and floors and ceilings are so much underpinning for personal expression in draperies and furniture; and only that.

So then I silently soliloquized as I wended my way homeward after a visit with two gentlewomen of unique and fascinating genre, Moses is not entirely extinguished. Michelangelo has immortalized himself in the wonderful lawgiver of Israel, but that was back in the Middle Ages and impossible even of a ghostly recrudescence. And in the twentieth century our statuary is indefinable as personality (we are too much intoxicated with little prettinesses)

ISABEL

HAUSER

PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist

STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Reberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY

CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

unless our sculpture takes on the color and the form of life and our living statues breathe and think the nobler, better, more exhilarating atmosphere; which is the exception and never the rule, as one feels after drinking tea and discussing something better than the musical glasses—with apologies to George Eliot—with Miss Mabel Hammond and Miss Constance Purdy.

Gentlewomen is a lovely word when you find its definition personified. When you feel at your ease with members of your own sex, full of that sense of humor the leaven which leaveneth the whole; who do not dwell in a small cubicle with the social register forever upon their knees—the reports—in the daily and Sunday papers of the names of the properly certificated lady-patroness-committees, their Bible.

It is a great relief to know that you will not be expected to join in the great chorale of praises of the social-elect; nor be expected to bend the knee at the glorious shrine of dollars, for in a large measure the dollar-worship constitutes the lives of four-fifths of the women of society as at present constituted.

We hardly mentioned the subject of music—procrastinating perhaps subconsciously to some other moment. We discussed things that are vital to the lives of the community. The civic side—the less generously—discussed theme of how much we may try to do for our neighbor whom we are expected to love as ourselves.

Miss Purdy and Miss Hammond will be visiting the Middle West shortly and they will make a number of joint appearances, which should be of absorbing interest to the music lovers of Chicago, its environs and its neighboring towns and cities.

No, these two charming young women are cosmopolitan to the core, and full of enthusiasm for the ideals of a modern, up to date, cultured existence. They take an intense interest in those movements which make for a broader conception of ethics, including the wider, saner significance of the term universal brotherhood.

They realize the meaning of concentration; a condition or state of mind foreign to millions of women, and are exempt from the standing reproach of men that women are incapable of generalization.

Miss Purdy, for example, has conquered the difficulties of the Russian language, and made that and kindred Slavic tongues the media through which she delivers her message. This devotion to less known foreign tongues singles her out from among all American women vocalists. And her study of these languages has been so thorough that she feels entirely at home in employing them as vehicles of expression—the spoken tongue.

Miss Hammond, too, is a single-minded devotee of the more profound and remote in philosophy as well as language, and her cosmopolitanism tinctures the interpretations she offers at the piano.

The atmosphere of their apartment with its quaint and curious and singularly appealing furnishings, distinctive forms in settles, chairs, tables or the many ornaments, makes one feel that these two exceptional women have been canopied over by the starry heavens of many climes and customs, and have responded to the stimuli of many geographical-ethnological influences.

Concentration and personality. There is no problem, for these twain are one. At least one feels that much of the personal charm of Constance Purdy and Mabel Hammond proceeds from their possession of the power and will to concentrate.

§ § §

Mme. Cecile M. Behrens to Be Hostess

Mme. Cecile M. Behrens, the well-known New York pianist and teacher, will be the hostess at the Dansant in her fine apartment in the Wesley on the fashionable west side of town, January 6.

The dancing will be preceded by a musicale. Mme. Behrens will play, as will also her advanced pupils, several of whom are favorably known to our local public.

Mr. Geo. Keimherr, tenor, and Mr. Harry Morgenheim, baritone, will contribute solos.

There will also be exhibition dancing by Alfred Browning Munich and Mollie Mathers of Castle House.

A reception and general dancing will follow, with a buffet supper later. This is the first of a series to be given during the season.

§ § §

Thuel Burnham Scores Heavily

"Thuel Burnham is a revelation," is what one woman writes me after hearing him play. His audiences wherever he has appeared have practically gone mad over his remarkable performances, his magnetic personality and his habitual and winning modesty.

And you know Burnham is free from self-consciousness—a rare omission in the make up of so handsome and attractive a man—and his playing reveals this as it reveals his thrilling, electrical virility—the kind of electrical energy whose outflow makes a glow about his listeners—provides them with that psycho-physical, shivery pulsation which causes the spinal column to tingle pleasantly.

It's a rare gift indeed but he has it, and he has all the air of one unconscious of this delightfully-dangerous, subtly-thrilling quality. It is a most un-American idiosyncrasy—most American men are born without it, and for that matter many musicians go through the world without the ghost of a semblance of this true je ne sais quoi.

Possessing it, and possessing too the pianistic-artistic equipment of a master of his art and its forces and resources, it follows that Burnham sways his audiences at will. Magnetizes them; holds their souls and senses captive.

Debonair, witty if he wills, and when he wills; in the golden hey-day of a glowing youth; Bonnie in the true meaning of that characteristic Scotch epithet of fascination and endearment, why should not this young artist conquer?

It was Byron was it not, or perhaps Shelley, poets both of pain and passion, who once sang of a woman: "She walks in beauty as the night." Well that quite visualizes Thuel Burnham for the reader with an imagination. He too walks in beauty as the night, though he has the brightness often of the sun; the care-free laughing spirit of a soft June morning. But he is a dreamer of dreams, and the night too has caught him in her snare.

They are clamoring for him in New York—the women who sit at his feet fascinated when he exercises everything but the spirit of his own evocations.

His pianistic conquests will soon fill a book long as the catalog of Don Juan's amorous triumphs, and he will be lionized from coast to coast.

Here are just a few of the dates or cities which will enjoy his fine, ripe art: Birmingham, Ala.; Houston and San Antonio, Tex.; Chicago, 10th of January; Cedar Rapids, the 11th; Davenport, the 12th; Chicago, again the 13th, and New York, soloist of the Rubinstein Club, on the 16th; with many more to follow.

Mr. Burnham writes me that he is much pleased with the enthusiasm his appearances have created everywhere.

One Southern paper writes: "The artist, for artist he surely is of an unusual type, was very dynamic in his delivery of the Schubert-Liszt 'Erl King,' and quite electrified his audience with his forceful interpretation."

Another says: "His best work, however, was in the Chopin group, and the spirit of the master was beautifully revealed in the three familiar numbers, Nocturne, Op. 37; Valse, Op. 64, No. 2; Polonaise, Op. 53, the Nocturne being played with consummate skill. There were times during the Polonaise when one thought the giant Paderewski himself was at the instrument."

§ § §

The Biltmore Morning Musicales

A series of seven Friday morning musicales will be given in the ball room of the Hotel Biltmore, corner Madison avenue and 43d street, during the winter and spring of 1915, on the following dates: January 29, February 26, March 26, February 12, March 12, April 9, April 23.

Geraldine Farrar, Luca Botta and Pablo Casals are the soloists of the first concert.

Artists for future musicales are: Frances Alda, Pasquale Amato, Lucrezia Bori, Emmy Destinn, Rosina Galli, Leopold Godowsky, Wm. Hinshaw, Frieda Hempel, Fritz Kreisler, John MacCormack, Alice Nielsen, Andreas de Seguro, Louis Siegel, Marie Narelle and others.

These concerts will be managed by Mr. R. E. Johnston.

—§§§—

Zeisler—Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler was the soloist at the Beethoven concert given by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer on January 5, playing the "Emperor" Concerto.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THE COURTESY OF CREDIT

There is nearly always a special gratification to a writer when he, or she, sees something from his pen in a different publication than the one where it first appeared. The pleasure is considerably enhanced if credit is given by the quoting editor, and equally diminished when this editorial courtesy is omitted.

An instance in point was discovered in the December, 1914, issue of the New England Conservatory Magazine-Review, a most interesting and informative edition, where on page 79 the "Another Orchestra in Worcester," and "Music Schools in Session Again," are exact reproductions of these articles, which first appeared in Music News of September 25, page 17, as a part of the Worcester news letter of the present writer, whose pride would have been gratified had Music News received credit for its news.

L. S. B.

h h h

French Operettas in Jordan Hall

February 2, 3, 4, and a matinee are to be given to the performances of the little French oprettas, "La Laitiere de Trianon" ("The Milkmaid of Trianon"), music by J. B. Weckerlin, first given at Rossini's, December, 1858, and since sung in French in New York by Miss Maggie Teyte and Edmond Clement; and the musical comedy, "Pierrot Qui Pleure et Pierrot Qui Rit," translated freely, "Pierrot Weeps and Laughs," both to be staged in Jordan Hall the foregoing dates by Miss Amy Lowell, who has Englished the Rostand libretto of the best last work, and the one by d'Onquaire for these productions. The last work has never been performed in Paris, but an English version has been used by New England Conservatory pupils.

The music is by Jean Hubert, and the role of Colombine will be taken by Miss Teyte; John Campbell and George Mitchell will sing the music of the Pierrots.

Miss Teyte and Mr. Campbell will present the principal roles of "The Milkmaid of Trianon."

Arthur Shepherd will conduct an orchestra of thirty-five, and Livingstone Platt will design the scenery and costumes for these occasions. The proceeds are going to the Municipal League.

L. S. B.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The second concert of the Ellis Course was given December 15, in Mechanics' hall by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Karl Muck, conducting, and Harold Bauer. The program was the Mozart Symphony in C major, with Fugue finale, "Jupiter;" Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, Op. 84; and the "Tannhauser" overture, Wagner, by the orchestra, and the G minor Concerto, No. 4, for pianoforte and orchestra, Op. 44, Saint-Saens, contributed by Mr. Bauer.

The audience, as usual at these affairs, was a large one and it went home delighted with the evening's music. Rarely has the "Jupiter" been produced with such splendid effect. Its beauties, and they are many, were projected upon the screen of the mind, and emotions, with such vividness that they remain a most pleasurable memory.

The third concert of this course will be January 19, when Elizabeth van Endert will appear.

h h h

Concerts of the Steinert Course

The second concert of the Steinert course took place in Mechanics' Hall, December 11, with Miss Alice Nielsen, soprano; Rudolph Ganz, pianist, and William Reddick, accompanist, the program givers.

Among the composers presented by Miss Nielsen were Liszt, Rachmaninoff, Brahms, Bleichman, Ganz, Massenet, Puccini, La-Forge, Seiler-Wagner, Carpenter, and Campbell-Tipton.

Mr. Ganz played the Sonata in F minor, Op. 57, Beethoven; a group by Chopin, and numbers by Debussy, Liszt, and himself.

The encores to Miss Nielsen were frequent and prolonged. The feature of Mr. Ganz's playing was its strenuousness.

The third concert of this course occurred in Mechanics' Hall Wednesday night, December 30, and Evelyn Scotney (Mrs. Howard White), coloratura soprano; Mme. Jeska Swartz, contralto; Umberto Sorrentino, tenor; Howard White, bass, and Herbert Seiler, accompanist, were the artists.

The program consisted of solos for each singer, duets and Christmas carols, (a) "A Legend," Tschaikowsky; (b) "Silent Night," Haydn; (c) "Ring Out, Wild Bells," Gounod, by the quartet.

The audience was very enthusiastic and by its applause recognition secured additions to the program until the numbers given exceeded a score; too many for one sitting, which lasted from 8:15 until 10:15, making it necessary for patrons from out of town to leave before the concert ended.

The most pleasing moments to the writer were during the duets, and the quartet, and

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Phone Drexel 8183

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue New York

Management M. H. HANSON

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Blvd.

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian
Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

Edith Adelaide Kien
Pianist and Accompanist
Studio, Arington Av. and May St. South Elmhurst, Ill.

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Steven
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7376

Maybelle Smylie Davison
SOPRANO—TEACHER
642 E. 64th Street Management Willis Mayne

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

it might have added to others pleasure had more ensemble numbers been presented.

The accompaniments were most artistically effective, and were really in a class by themselves.

The fourth and last concert of the Steinert series will be Wednesday night, January 27, and Mme. Julia Culp, soprano; Albert Spalding, American violinist, with Coenraad N. Bos, accompanist, for both, are the program givers.

The prices for seats are but one to two dollars, notwithstanding the reputation of the artists engaged.

h h h

"Messiah" Given by the Worcester Oratorio Society

Three hundred voices, an orchestra selected from the Boston Symphony, soloists from New York, Boston, and Worcester, Mme. Anita Rio, soprano; Florence Jepperson, contralto; Charles Harrison, tenor; Frederick Martin, basso; Charles H. Grout, organist; Mrs. J. Vernon Butler, pianist, and J. Vernon Butler, conductor, represented the Worcester Oratorio Society in the fifteenth annual production of "The Messiah," in Mechanics' Hall, Monday night, December 28, before a capacity house.

The writer, owing to the courtesy of tickets being omitted by the management, was not present, but report speaks most favorably of the chorus singing, the work of the greater number of the soloists, and discouragingly of some features of the orchestral tempos.

The officers of the Oratorio society are: President, Chester T. Porter; vice president, S. W. Wiley; secretary, J. Harvey Curtis, and treasurer, W. Virgil Spaulding. The directors are Dr. Stanley Hall, F. P. Knowles, Alfred Thomas, M. J. Whittall, J. Vernon Butler, A. H. Stone and W. Gray Harris.

h h h

The Worcester Symphony Heard

A special public rehearsal of the Worcester Symphony Orchestra was held December 27 in Alhambra Hall, and the following program was given, with Mrs. John F. Fay and Mrs. Mary Reardon O'Connor, assisting soloists. Daniel Silvester was the conductor.

The report in The Telegram the next morning speaks highly of the program givers.

Overture—Semiramide Rossini
a Cradle Song (for strings) Bach
b Humoresque Dvorak
Scherzo (from 7th Symphony) Schubert
Cornet Solo—The Lost Chord Sullivan
Mr. F. W. Chaffin
Angelus from Scenes Pittoresques (with Chimes) Massenet
Broken Hearted Sparrow (from Suite) Bendix
March of the Nations Lenzberg

h h h

The Only One in the United States

Worcester claims the only musical kindergarten in the United States, and it was organized by Miss Inez F. Penniman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George P. Penniman of this city.

This musical kindergarten aims to give thorough musical instruction in piano playing, rhythm, musical history, harmony, scales, in fact carrying the children through the fourth grade of a musical education.

The system uses class instruction, and is practical for children five to twelve years of age. There will be five terms in a course, and twelve one-hour lessons in each term.

A special feature of this musical kindergarten is that active work at the piano is begun with the first lesson.

In addition, musical games with educative worth, teach note values, and interest the children.

LESTER S. BUTLER.

— # # # —

NEW ALBANY, IND.

The MacDowell Club is an organization of New Albany musicians who have banded themselves together for the purpose of studying the best in vocal compositions and whose incentive is the pure love of music and the attaining of the highest artistic ideals. The club gave an invitation concert to their friends on January 1. This organization is under the efficient direction of Mr. Earl Hedden, who always directs his chorus with authority and a becoming dignity. Mr. Hedden is also one of the best cellists around the falls cities. Miss Harriet H. Crozier, the club accompanist, was equal to all the demands made on her.

JOHN PETERSON.

— # # # —

Symphony Orchestra—The Theodore Thomas Memorial concert given at Orchestra Hall last week was devoted exclusively to works of Beethoven. Harold Bauer was the soloist.

"The Bo'sn's Bride"

A Nautical Yarn in Two Acts
For Amateur Organizations

Church choirs, school choruses, etc.
Book and lyrics by Maude Elizabeth Inch.

Music by W. Rhys-Herbert.

Composer of "Sylvia"

"A Nautical Knot" and "Bulbul"

Vocal score with full dialog, net $1.00

A copy will be sent on approval subject to return by applying either to the publishers or to your regular dealer.

The Publishers

J. Fischer & Bro. New York
7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN HATTSTAEDT
CONSERVATORY
President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc. 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SEBASTIAN BURNETTI

Leading Barytone Montreal Grand Opera Company and Comic Oper Co., Berlin, has reopened his Studio at 505 Kimball Hall. Mr. Burnetti was for years the star pupil of Jean de Reszke, Lombardi, and Lamperti, the world's 3 greatest masters of voice culture. This training, later supplemented by his extensive concert and operatic experience, makes him an unrivaled exponent of the knowledge of voice and of repertoire of Songs and Opera in Original Languages.

Reception hours 2 to 4. Send for Booklet.

WICHITA, KANS.

Following the lull of the state convention, music here begins to perk up a bit. "The Messiah" was sung at the Forum by the Wichita Chorus and assisted by the Wichita Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. Jetta Campbell-Stanley, soprano; Elsie Randall, contralto; Dean Moon, tenor, and Harry Evans, bass, were the soloists. Lucius Ades directed. The Forum was packed, meaning about 6,000 people. It was given free.

Mme. Alda and company this month and also later Harold Bauer will be heard here.

The next concert of the Wichita Symphony Orchestra is scheduled for January 17, with Louise Llewellyn as soloist. The last month program brought Andrea Sarto before the Wichita public for the first time, and he made a fine success.

The Wichita Musicians' Club meets Thursday of this week and the song cycle, "In a Persian Garden," by Cadman, will be given by Miss Florence Cubbon, soprano, and Dean Moon, tenor. Florence Young-Brokaw will give the Grieg Concerto (last movement) with second piano accompaniment.

Apparently last year's venture in grand opera was too much for the Wichitans, as this season's visit last month of the San Carlo Opera Company indicated a bad lull in the general interest of the public. The performances, three in number, were up to the standard set and reported from other cities, but the audiences numbered on the average of 300 to 450 only. The large Forum seats 5,000, so the comparison was not cheering. "Lucia," "Rigoletto" and "Carmen" were given.

The Power-Meyer Conservatory has been justly proud of a new equipment of pianos, Mr. Power having this month installed seven grands in the studios. Regular student programs are given. These programs are held each fortnight and the last one was given exclusively by pupils of Ralph Brokaw, violinist.

Appropriate of the season, Christmas carols were sung over the city on many of the principal residence streets.

At the municipal Christmas tree, a well-trained children's chorus gave Christmas carols.

The Municipal Band, a newly organized adjunct and a much needed one here, assisted. It is expected that this will be a finally permanent organization. Edgar Carver, of Friends University, directs. They were conspicuous in having also presented the music for the big charity ball at the Forum, held for the Belgian Relief Fund, and so far have been quite conspicuous. Their work is good inasmuch as the band is made up of the regular local professional musicians.

Harris—The First Presbyterian Church of Rogers Park is subject for sincere congratulation inasmuch as it has secured the services of Milton R. Harris as chorus conductor, his work there to begin on February 1. Mr. Harris leaves California Avenue Congregational Church, where he has been engaged for the past six years and where his work has been very successful.

Heizer—Mrs. Frederick Heizer, en route to her Sioux City home after attending the M. T. N. A. meeting at Pittsburgh, was a Music News visitor last week.

STREATOR, ILL.

New Year's Day was auspiciously celebrated in social events of all sorts, but none more successful than the unique All Day Musicale and Art Exhibit at the Burkholder Studios. From 10:30 in the morning until 5:30, the studios were thronged with interested guests. The musical programs were given by Raymond Burkholder, Miss Ida Chamberlin and Mrs. W. C. Paisley and their pupils in violin, voice, piano and composition, respectively.

Lack of space forbids that the interesting programs should be printed in detail or the pupils given individual comment.

Beginning with the little students, the programs were arranged in careful manner, closing with recitals which included the teachers and their advanced students.

Mr. Burkholder's work with his violin students is so well known here each of his students' recitals marks another milestone in their progress. The selections by members of the ensemble classes were especially well rendered and added pleasing variety to the programs.

Miss Chamberlain, who has been teaching here only about three months, proved her ability as a teacher of voice and piano; several of her students were from her Ottawa classes and were received with appreciation. Her splendid accompaniments are as enjoyable as any other of her accomplishments. The choral numbers given by her students, assisted by a few local singers, were excellent as to blending of voices, and artistic values.—Streator Independent-Times.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, will give a recital in Osage, Ia., January 21, and in Riceville, Ia., January 22.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

One of the delightful events in Louisville musical circles during the holidays was the organ recital given by Miss Elsa Grahn at the Fourth Avenue Baptist Church. Miss Grahn, who is a pupil of Prof. Henry W. Goodwin, was assisted by Miss Ilva Ropke, a contralto whose vocal work has won her many friends.

Miss Grahn's program was difficult, the numbers ranging through a wide variety of style and form and making a heavy demand on technic. The artist, however, was quite equal to the most exacting tests. Perhaps the best work done by Miss Grahn at the recital was observed in "Sonata in D Minor," by Mendelssohn; "Legend," by Federlein, and "Fiat Lux," by Dubois, which was her closing selection.

The accompaniments to the solos of Miss Ropke were beautifully executed and proclaimed Miss Grahn an advanced musician, as all artists all agreed that accompanists with a faculty for encouraging the very best in singers are very rare indeed.

Granville M. E. Church—Song service at the Granville Avenue Methodist Church included the anthems "Nazareth," by Gounod; "Recessional," by De Koven; "At Rest," by Wesley, and "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem," by Maunder. Mr. Francis A. Mackay directs this choir and Miss Ruth Eppling is pianist.

Eppling—Miss H. Ruth Eppling, pianist and teacher, played the "Military Polonaise" by Chopin at a recent reception of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club. She will play nine of the Chopin "Preludes" for the Arion Club next Sunday.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDON

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL

TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL.

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR

3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST

Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO

RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium BM

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS

RECITALS

HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE

LINDSBORG, KAS.

Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD

French, Italian, German, English

407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-

CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy

Recital

Oratorio

Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wulfsuhl Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

Books and Music

NEW BOOKS AND MUSIC

Holden's "Unaccompanied Sacred Music for Quartet or Chorus of Mixed Voices" (New York, W. A. Pond & Company) is a collection of thirty-one easy and useful anthems, nicely printed from engraved plates and bound in boards. There are some extracts or arrangements from the works of Mendelssohn, Rubinstein, Sullivan, Barnby and even Wagner (a not very Wagnerian example this), but the greater proportion of the pieces are by the editor, A. J. Holden. It is the preponderance of these practical if innocuous compositions that gives the collection the qualities mentioned first. Sullivan is represented by his "O Gladsome Light" and the other famous composers by suitable adaptations.

H. J. W.

Songs from Thompson

Some new and fine songs from the C. W. Thompson Company are as follows: "Through All the Year," "Sweet on Thy Slumbering Ear," "Hear Me Call" and "While Stars Are Gleaming," by Charles A. Chase; "If You Were a Rose," by Maida Plinney; "The Bells of Heaven," by Charles B. Blount; "I Prithee, Send My Heart Back," by Sir Henry Suckling; "The Water Song," "How I Love Thee" and "My Song," by Florence Parr Gere.

Ditson Edition

Grieg—"Six Lyric Pieces for Pianoforte," 75 cents.

Grieg—"Eight Lyric Pieces for Pianoforte," 50 cents.

Czerny—"Exercises in Passage Playing," 50 cents.

Kroeger—"Whole-Tone Scales and Arpeggios," 60 cents.

Sartorio—"Twelve Melodious Studies in Velocity," $1.

"Redemption Hymn," a motet for mixed voices, by J. C. D. Parker.

h h h

A New Cantata

J. Fischer & Brother of New York have issued "The Bo's'n's Bride," a nautical cantata by Maude Elizabeth Inch and W. Rhys-Herbert, and the interest for the work is already a great one. In performance it requires seven soloists and a chorus. It is in two acts, one "A Wharf," and two "Deck of the U. S. S. Barnacle."

h h h

Boosey & Company

The following songs have been sent out by the Boosey Company: "Mavis" (Craxton), "Lead Thou Me On" (Yates), "When as a Lad" (Josephine McGill), "The Angels' Ladder" (Coverly), "The Hills of Donegal" (Sanderson), "My Garden" (Seiler), "Golden Dawn" (Wood), "At Benediction" (Wilkes), "Little Playmates" (Tuckford).

h h h

A New Song by Bingham

A new and charming little song by Helena Bingham is "My Baby," which is written in the form of "A story to be told to music" and is dedicated to Mrs. W. A. Evans.

Pianoforte Works by Beutel

The Clayton F. Summy Company has just issued a fine list of piano works by Carl Beutel which will prove very useful both in the teaching room and on the concert stage. These are of great variety, and each one is full of individuality and charm. The list comprises "Novelette," "Capriccio," "Etude" and "La Coquette."

h h h

C. W. Thompson & Company

"Five Songs by Harold Poole Huntress," published in an attractive booklet form by the C. W. Thompson Company of Boston, constitutes a well written cycle, valuable for concert purposes.

h h h

Breitkopf & Hartel

This company sends out the "Overture for a Religious Festival," by W. D. Armstrong, arranged as a pianoforte solo.

h h h

Boston Music Company

"Six Christmas Songs," by Peter Cornelius; high or low voice.

h h h

Pilot Point—At Pilot Point, Texas, Miss Jessie A. Johnson presented her pupils in a fine studio recital on last Saturday afternoon. At the close of the program there were several talks on the importance of musical study, as follows: "What the Woman's Clubs Can Do to Raise the Standard of Music," Mrs. Wright; "Benefits to Be Obtained from the Study of Dramatic Art," Mrs. Evans, and "The Public Schools' Part in Encouraging the Study of Music in the Community," Professor Willis.

VOICES MADE BEAUTIFUL

by being perfectly placed, focused before attempting to sing. Our new book tells just how to transform weak, tuneless, unpromising singing and speaking voices into beauty, sweetness, power. Falsetto to pure tenor. Robust health. Desired talents cultivated, through animation of controlling nerves. Price $1.00 present lessons, or by correspondence. Mme. Girard & Richards, 818 E. 51st Street, Chicago, Illinois.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio - Concert - Recital
209 South Harvey Av. Oak Park, Ill., Phone O. P. 1478

Music News

EMIL OBERHOFFER

DIRECTOR MINNEAPOLIS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by

ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 524 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JANUARY 15, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company and
Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	GRAND RAPIDS
Abbie S. Fridenberg	Louis McKay
110 Carnegie Hall	2 Nelson Place
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodls
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	446 W. 40th Place
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrass 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE

Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence

400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Music News

Vol. 7.

Chicago, January 15, 1915

No. 3

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

Ronald Webster, in his off-hand remarks in the Chicago Tribune, occasionally comes perilously near the truth—as for instance when he referred to the tone of Mme. Sembrich as being “thin and puffy.”

□ □ □

Musical America printed last week a long article about the repertoire at the Metropolitan Opera House and in this defended Gatti-Casazza in his attitude that “The Jewels of the Madonna” was really too puerile as to music to deserve a place on the “great” Metropolitan stage. This is very funny in view of the many operas that are given there—many of which are not within hailing distance of “The Jewels” in its musical aspects. The Puccini work is undoubtedly one of startlingly immoral or unmoral characteristics in so far as the story goes, but its music is surely equal and often vastly superior to many favorite works of the Metropolitan repertoire.

□ □ □

Why should dancing, even when brought to great heights of technical proficiency, be classed along with music as an art? This question is one that has obtruded a great deal recently and Music News believes that the time will come when music journals at least, will no longer continue to rank the work of Pavlova and other dancers with that of musicians. The work of the dancers, at best, depends absolutely upon its associated music and Music News has no hesitation in saying that the use of Chopin or any other classic composer for such exploitation appears like plain sacrilege.

□ □ □

Harold Bauer, with characteristic effrontery, has allowed an “interview” in the “Triad,” an Australian journal, in which he decries the “even scale” and says that most technical practice at the piano is superfluous.

It is such talk as this from such men as Hofmann and Bauer that misleads many young pianists and prevents artistic development. Mr. Bauer himself has a perfectly smooth and even scale and he knows full well that he was not born thus. Fishes are born with scales but not human beings, and it takes many, many weary hours to acquire them.

And it is just as absolutely true that no

In Remembrance of Emil Liebling who died on January 20th, 1914

one will ever become a good pianist without the equipment of even scales and every other technical thing upon which real pianoforte playing is based. It is cruelly wrong for any great artist to lead youngsters astray with such palaver as that printed in the “Triad.”

□ □ □

Several of the local newspapers in reviewing the Sembrich recital of a week ago stated that the artist did not sing “as usual” the “Maiden’s Wish” of Chopin to her own pianoforte accompaniment. This shows the danger in trying to review a concert without staying to its end—for, as a matter of fact Mme. Sembrich did sing the song, just as usual, at the close of her regular program.

□ □ □

There is still much indignation among Chicago musicians because of the very foolish letter of Mr. Henderson of New York in the Chicago Tribune anent the Century Opera Company, which he would have us to believe an absolute superfluity on the face of the earth.

Chicago musicians arrogate to themselves the right to neglect anything they choose—and they certainly chose to neglect the Century Company performances—but, Chicago musicians are too outspoken and honest themselves to allow such an article as that of Mr. Henderson go unchallenged and on all sides there have been expressions of disapproval of his words.

□ □ □

To those people who are still wondering about the non-success of the Century Opera Co. in Chicago and who by any chance failed to read “The Elderly Person” in Music News of last week, we recommend a recurrence to that issue. It is sure to be illuminating.

□ □ □

Unofficially, Music News was informed some time since that Mr. Stock prepares his Symphony programs “many weeks ahead” and that therefore it was unreasonable to expect him, in the Fall programs, to include any American compositions for, quoth our informant, “his programs were absolutely fixed long before any talk of this being a good year to favor Americans came up.” This sounds very pretty but, one notices that immediately after the announcement of the death of Goldmark, Mr. Stock finds it possible, and particularly appropriate, to include one of his works on the very next program. But then Goldmark was an Austrian and that makes all the difference in the world.

□ □ □

Music News has been so free in stating its opinion of Schoenberg that it would be ungenerous indeed not to open its columns to those who differ in opinion. The letter

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SOPRANO SONG
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue RECITAL
PUPILS

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET
Soprano WILLIAM
Composer- Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680 ORATORIO
RECITALS

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri Res. 6611 Woodlawn Ave

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Inois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING

of Mr. Sowerby, which follows, is thoroughly entertaining and will be enjoyed by all our readers to the full, it may convert some.

Chicago, January 6, 1915, 6432 Harvard avenue.
My Dear Mr. Watt: It was with unusual interest that I read your review of the concert given under the auspices of the American Society of Musicians, December 22. I am sure each of the composers represented appreciates your impartial comment on the works given at that concert. I particularly wish to thank you for the attention bestowed upon my "Eight Little Pieces" for piano and violoncello. However, both because of the fact that there seems to have been a somewhat general misunderstanding of the idea underlying these pieces, and because you were the only one who reviewed this concert who gave an estimate of the pieces based upon any sort of fact, I take the liberty of addressing a few lines concerning the composition to you.

You have said in all sincerity that the works were to be regarded as either an imitation of Herr Schoenberg or a burlesque upon his style of composition. They are neither. One would surely hold his art at a low level to descend to any sort of burlesquing, and could have little respect for it or for himself to be satisfied by mere imitation. Before this concert was begun Mr. Henry P. Eames said a few words about my pieces to the audience which were intended to make clear their raison d'être, but as music reviewers are habitually tardy at the concerts, these remarks were not heard by them. What Mr. Eames said was, that the 'cello pieces were built, as to the 'cello part, to fit the technic of Mr. Eric DeLamar, a close friend of mine, who formerly played this instrument and, be it known, played it in rather amateurish fashion, to be mild. So the pieces are the result of a purely personal relationship and whether they be humorous, ironic or satirical in vein, their essence could be thoroughly understood only by Mr. DeLamar and myself.

The essential feature of Schoenberg's style of musical composition is that he has thrown over the accepted standards of melody, harmony and form. Now there is not a single chord of harmonic progression in my 'cello pieces which does not admit of an easy explanation according to rules laid down by the sane theorists of the day, and as to the construction—the pieces are in either binary, ternary or variation form, and one of the pieces, as you surely noticed, is a strict fugue. As to melody, the first and fifth pieces present an unbroken chain of pure melody in the 'cello part. (Melody is too often mistaken for a tune that can be grasped and whistled by the man in the street.) Finally, I place little value in color effects and such effects as exist in my pieces are purely the result of harmonic progression or contrapuntal development of thematic material. These pieces are the result of an artistic conviction.

So really there is no similarity of any kind in these particular pieces to those of Schoenberg except that he calls a certain notorious set of orchestral pieces "Five Little Pieces," as the writer of these 'cello pieces took it upon himself to call them "Eight Little Pieces." This likeness is quite evidently so superficial as not to be worthy of mention.

Of course, I have studied carefully the Schoenberg scores, for I believe no one is competent to express an opinion concerning such things who has not done so. But so have I studied those of d'Indy, Reger and others, and surely, if I felt it compatible with artistic standards to "imitate," there would be none better to copy than d'Indy, assuredly the greatest living composer. I freely admit that the influence of d'Indy has taken greater hold of me than that of any other of living masters.

Your editorial, "Why Not an Older Model," also interested me, as I felt that it was written with particular reference to my good friend Van Grove and myself. Why need we try to write in the style of Mozart or Schubert, when we consider that they wrote in an age and under circumstances far different from those under which each individual of the present time is laboring? Mozart, Schubert and the elegant Chopin wrote for their own time. Bach and Beethoven wrote for all time. And why should we desire to copy Chopin's sentimental and fastidious manner when there exists the chaste, warm, lucid and noble art of Cesar Franck? Naturally, the serious minded composer must attempt to assimilate what has been done in ages past in his branch of art. What then can be gained by attempting to write in the style of any particular composer? When we really know Bach and Beethoven, we "know all things" musically. But to learn to know them is the work of a lifetime.

The composer's duty, therefore, lies clear before him—not to copy, not to imitate, but with this atavistic knowledge to progress, to create something individual, through which we may, perhaps, rise higher in our chosen art. D'Indy points out the way in his "Cours de la Composition Musicale." One can derive infinitely more from a study of this work than from the writing of scores of sickly nocturnes reminiscent of Chopin. (Scriabin, for one, started out to do this, but eventually was led into something better.)

Thanking you for your kind attention to me in the past, and with every good wish for Music News for the coming year, I remain,

Cordially and sincerely yours,

LEO SOWERBY.

h h h

This comment was sent to Music News by a former correspondent of the paper, now located in Denver:

An Impression of Schoenberg

Four of us had met in a studio to listen to a bit of Schoenberg: the Vivacious Lady, the Kindly Gentlemen, the Pianist, and I.

Schoenberg's music has not been heard publicly in Denver, and, not to any extent, privately. In fact, the book, Drei Klavierstücke, in his studio was the first copy of any of his compositions I had seen. We had discussed the impressions various orchestras through the country have created when this unusual music has been presented. Here was our opportunity to see what we might discern. We listened to the first number from the book.

One felt in a strange mood; at a loss to know what to say; ready criticism was not at hand. Finally, I voiced the feeling that there was an effect of higher mathematics being demonstrated; even upon a tenth dimension. The Vivacious Lady suddenly threw up her hands; she must speak.

In her intimate way, "You know, I have a good appetite; enjoy thoroughly what is placed before me. But there are times when I feel I must have chop suey; nothing else will satisfy me. And do you know I feel that way now, listening to Schoenberg has given me the same sensation as that unsatisfied longing for chop suey!"

Admirers (?) scoffers of this new phase of music, what think ye?

— — —

A LETTER

The Music News, Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen: The Lake Forest Glee Club has selected Mr. M. J. Brines of Chicago as director of the organization for the coming season. Mr. Brines, as you may know, was leader of the Trinity College Glee Club for three years. He has also held various solo positions in the East as well as in Chicago. While in the East he was a member of the Mendelssohn Glee Club.

The securing of Mr. Brines as director of the Lake Forest College Glee Club was through an advertisement inserted in your publication some several weeks ago and from some twenty or more responses which it brought the selection was made. If you care to make mention of our selection through the columns of your valuable publication, I would gladly have you do so.

Your very truly,

J. CLARKE BABCOCK,

Manager.

January 10, 1915.

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

Portland Enthusiastic Over Christine Miller

CHRISTINE MILLER AROUSED MUCH ENTHUSIASM—Quite different, and, if anything making stronger appeal than any previous concert in the organ series, notable as they have been, was that which took place last evening in the City Hall by Will C. Macfarlane, the municipal organist, assisted by Miss Christine Miller, American contralto. With the lights all shaded in scarlet, and Miss Miller in vivid rose as well—the eye, like the ear, reveled in color, the Christmas hue, too, so that the program could not have been more perfectly in harmony with the season. As for Miss Miller, she proved a joy indeed. Rarely charming is she in face and figure, and she looked a spirit of fire and flame as she sang with beautifully vibrant tone the wonderful Tchaikowsky aria, "Adieu, Forets," giving to its touching pathos the very accents of love and despair. Her contralto is of luscious quality, 'cello-like in its lowest notes, beautifully full and free and sweet throughout its wide range, and managed always with an art and finesse that brought forth only the most enthusiastic plaudits. She is dramatic and forceful, or at will, insouciant and blithely gay, while there is felt an intellectual mastery that allows no caprice or abandon to overstep the straight and narrow way of vocal art. Whatever she did was invested with charm. There was the delightful group at her first appearance, made up of the splendid Brahms selections done with such understanding and intent, the romantic Strauss number, and the Reger song, different, to be sure, but possessing infinite appeal. After this came the exquisite aria, and finally the beguiling English group, beginning with Homer's stirring "How's My Boy?" which was followed by that vocal gem, "Bendemeer's Stream," with the Carpenter melody, oddly attractive, and the two songs of Mr. Macfarlane, closing the list. These, "Petals I'd Press" and "Ye Hills o' the Hiellands," the latter dedicated to Miss Miller, were alluring in content and charmingly done. Encores were demanded after all the groups and in responding so graciously, Miss Miller still further emphasized her unusual appeal, by announcing what she was to sing, thereby bringing her audience still nearer to her in their satisfaction and pleasure.—The Press, December 18, 1914.

HEAR ARTIST OF UNUSUAL MERIT. City Hall audience delighted with Christine Miller, assisting Macfarlane in fine program—"We have heard an artist tonight," said a connoisseur in music, alluding to the Christine Miller concert, which was arranged for the sixth event in the Municipal Organ Course. This contralto singer, who assisted Mr. Macfarlane in a most interesting program, is recognized as an artist of unusual musicianship by those who keep in touch with the latest happenings in music circles, but to the general public, perhaps, Miss Miller is not so well known. At any rate, in all-round ability her equals are rare and her superiors seldom met. The young artist came on the stage, a beauty in her rose gown with its gold garniture, and a gold band confining her dark hair, which was piled high on her head in a piquant fashion. She was very graceful and charming and made a most favorable impression both in her vocal exhibitions and in her personal attractiveness. Her voice is a rich, colorful contralto, which she seems able to control at will, expressing all shades of feeling. The program was a varied one, interpreted with rare musical intelligence and artistry. Her technique is sure and all her work is a pleasure. In the German group, she gave evidence of the unusual quality of her art and rendered the numbers by Brahms, Strauss and Reger with the varied interpretive style which the writings demanded. Feldensamkeit was delivered with beautiful voice quality and pure sustained tones, while "Der Schmied" was given in spirited style. Miss Miller's chief effort was the "Jeanne d'Arc" aria (Tchaikowsky), arranged for her second appearance, and in this she was very impressive, delivering the work grandly and dramatically with truly splendid tones. The aria has a superb climax which was worked up with certainty and moving effect, the organ accompaniment being a valued feature. The audience was very appreciative and Miss Miller gave for an encore a dark song which was delivered with humorous, taking, ducky style, emphasizing her contrasting gifts. In the last group of songs by Homer, Carpenter and Macfarlane, with a lovely old Irish melody, this artist still further added to the charming impression already made, and nothing finer certainly has been heard than her tragic depiction of Homer's "How's My Boy?" the sentiment of the piece being brought home to the audience in the thrilling minor cadences of the despairing mother's cry. "Bendemeer's Stream" (Old Irish) was very sweet and beautiful in the warmth of sympathetic appeal and the dialect numbers and the two admirable compositions by Mr. Macfarlane completed a program of rare vocal merit. Miss Miller gave a second encore after the last group.—Evening Express & Advertiser, December 18, 1914.

Mr. Macfarlane was assisted by Miss Christine Miller, contralto, whom the music commission of this city has been trying to engage for a concert here for some time. Miss Miller is charming both to hear and to see. She ranks among the greatest of contraltos, and her voice is excellent in sweetness and richness, expresses deep sympathy, and is produced with such ease and accuracy as to render it true and pure. Miss Miller was heard in a group of German songs by Brahms, Strauss and Reger. Feldensamkeit was sung in a manner well expressing solitude and loneliness, while the following composition, also by Brahms, "Der Schmied," brought out the great contrast between the two, this one being a light-hearted and gay little melody. Both of the following songs were as interesting as the first two, and after the group Miss Miller received enthusiastic applause. The aria by Tchaikowsky, "Jeanne d'Arc's Farewell," was wonderfully and beautifully sung by Miss Miller. This displayed to good advantage her breadth of style, and her splendid power of interpretation. The last group of five songs were delightful, showing the loveliness of her voice and at the same time her marvelous clearness of enunciation. Miss Miller's last selection was written by Mr. Macfarlane and dedicated to Miss Miller. "Ye Hills o' the Hiellands" is a lovely melody and charmingly rendered, thus completing a program of great merit and enjoyment.—Eastern Argus, December 18, 1914.

Management HAENSEL & JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

MUSICALE AT MR. AND MRS. GEO. L. TENNEY'S RESIDENCE

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Tenney opened their hospitable door on Wednesday last and gave a group of friends a glimpse of their beautiful home, their fine children and their own sincerity and unaffected cordiality. Among the guests was the reviewer, pretty well fagged with the round of public events that use up the enthusiasm and cause the wheels of vitality to drag, at times. They gave him an easy chair in a corner and such a good time that when 12 o'clock came he didn't want to go home at all, at all. Perhaps he wouldn't have gone then but for some more of the good will that abides around River Forest, in the way of another guest with a motor car, who proceeded to give him a lift city-ward.

At such a time and in such a place, the bars of restraint for performer and listener are let down and music in its most thoroughly enjoyable form takes its place as one of most blessed influences in life. The program, as Mr. Tenney jocosely explained, was prepared by Miss Ruth Simmons, who sat at the piano all evening and played sympathetic, well-made and musically accompaniments as they were set before her, doing any number of things with cleverness and aplomb, and in an entirely matter-of-fact way. Mr. Frederick Preston Search, the eminent 'cello player, was a guest in the Tenney home and with Mrs. Permelia N. Gale contributed the most of the music. He was heard in a number of varied offerings, running from movements from the Schumann concerto to some of the smaller things he has written for himself. He draws a beautiful tone, is earnestly intelligent in all that he does, has warmth and tenderness as well as facility and breadth at his command, and a winning personality to second these gifts, natural and acquired. He played again and again and Mrs. Gale sang as often as she was asked, each supplementing their offerings with that delightful generosity that can only prevail on such occasions. Mrs. Gale used the "Desert" songs of Gertrude Ross, among her selections, and made them the graphic tone pictures the composer intended. They ring very true, save the final one, which becomes trite in its climactic moment. All the imagery is dropped and the obvious accented. One of Mrs. Gale's chief charms is her refinement, if one can use that much abused word to imply education, culture, breeding, literary quality and the like.

To fill her sheaf of hospitality to good measure, Mrs. Tenney sang the big "Agnus Dei" of Bizet, and Mr. Search did the obligato, together making of the song something vibrant, artistic and rich with fervor and religious exaltation.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

—♦♦♦—

Roney—Henry B. Roney, 558 Wellington avenue, announces the fact that Master Milton Campbell, a fine young contralto soloist, who makes a specialty of Scotch songs in costume, may be engaged for recitals and concerts. Master Campbell has a splendid repertoire and fine commendatory notices.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

Violet Bourne, the wonderful child pianist, and pupil of Madame Julie Rive-King of Bush Conservatory, scored such tremendous success in her recital which was given on December 11, that another recital has been arranged for, to be given some time during the month of February. This wonderful child has all the virtuosity of a matured artist and has been pronounced by many musicians as the greatest living talent among pianists.

Miss Grace Stewart Potter of Bush Conservatory made her first appearance in Chicago Sunday, January 3, at the Illinois Theater in piano recital. Miss Potter is a protegee of Mrs. Geo. M. Pullman, who some years ago discovered that Miss Potter is one of the most promising young artists. In her work she possesses the rare combination of bravura and detail combined with magnetic charm. Miss Potter's work is electrifying throughout and in her climaxes shows dash and colossal virtuosity. She held the interest of an unusually large audience during the entire program, who were very spontaneous and enthusiastic in their applause.

There will be a sonata evening, Friday, January 15, at the Bush Conservatory Recital Hall. The program will consist of sonatas for violin and piano played by Mr. Guy Herbert Woodard and some of the students of his ensemble class.

The School of Expression of the Bush Conservatory, which is under the direction of Mac Julia Riley, will give a studio recital in the Bush Lyceum, Saturday afternoon, January 16, at 3 p. m.

The Artist and His Art

KATHARINE S. BROWN

VI.—STAGE TECHNIC

All men live by Truth and stand in need of expression. In love, in art, in avarice, in study to utter our painful secret. The man is only half himself; the other half is his expression.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

All of the different possible attitudes of the artist toward his audience which were cited in the preceding article are equally false except the first one. They are so because they are the direct resultants in every case of self-consciousness. This is manifested variously in different artists according to individual weakness, but the prime cause of all is the same. Except for the one instance, all are derivatives of self-interest sum-totaled in self-consciousness. We have in the instances referred to, our choice of over-assured self-complacency and self-satisfaction on the one hand, and over-sensitive self-depreciation on the other. Both states of mind are abnormal and intolerable in an artist since he comes to an audience only to present his work, not himself: and his work as an entity in itself therefore reflects dignity and worth upon the artist exactly in proportion as the work has these qualities.

The artist should gratefully and frankly accept it at face value—no more and no less—i. e., not thinking it better work than it is because he did it nor poorer than it is because he did it. In other words, the artist can by no means set the valuation upon his work: the work incontestably stamps the value of the artist.

For this reason and because there are many sincere and proficient artists who are self-conscious before an audience, the need of stage technic becomes obvious:—the need of a technic that deals wholly with the special subject of handling an audience. The artist's confidence in his ability to sing or play and to hold his audience once he gains it by means of that ability is conceded; but it is not sufficient to warrant his assuming a position of authority before an audience. Only his knowledge of the art of authority over an audience justifies him. He should remain in the studio as has been previously stated, where he doesn't need such a technic.

It is a comparatively simple matter to obliterate self-consciousness in artist and audience (for the audience is affected by it whenever the artist is!) through the vehicle eventually. But that is not the time when unity should be effected nor the proper means of doing it. The artist should induce in the audience the mood for the vehicle, not induce the audience into unity with him through the vehicle, thus sacrificing both to the paramount necessity of the unifying process. That at best is crude, obvious and very inadequate. It defeats its own ends. It continuously demands more and more of sacrifice of the artist's art itself to make up for his incapacity in managing the occasion. Instead of handling it, it handles him.

Stage technic is that equipment over and above and, in a way, independent of his art itself, which provides the artist with the ability to discern instantly the nature and mood of his audience; to comprehend sympathetically its immediate need; to disarm the audience of its momentary and individual feelings and to subtly persuade it away from itself toward the general feeling of the thing he is about to present. The technic of the stage or platform is a study and an equipment whereby an artist before any audience, an executant of any art may comport himself with finality, authority and gracious supremacy. His specific "conduct" upon any given occasion should be spontaneous and the only possible right conduct for that occasion. The next occasion may require entirely different conduct, or the same. His so-called "stage deportment" is necessitated, not contrived. It is the report of the spirit of the occasion that must control the entire program to follow. It is the ability to create atmosphere, receptivity, sympathy and appreciation, not through his work but for it. It should prepare the way before the work—long before it. It scales the heights of universality and compels through its very warmth and graciousness the acceptance by the audience of the artist's invitation:—"Come, let us reason together, enjoy, together, behold, together!" It scorns reliance upon personality, trick or mannerism, or upon any weaker thing than a complete faith in the "holiness of beauty," as Lanier has paraphrased it. Therefore it trespasses not upon holy ground—upon the beauty of the vehicle as a means of gaining unity with the audience. It frankly announces conviction and feeling, discloses the sure touch and the discerning eye. It is the enunciation in conduct of the science of interpretation carried to the highest power for the public artist—the interpretation of an audience that he may be enabled to interpret to it. Such Hermeneutics is stage technic. "All else is idle weeds for her wearing." Stage technic, as is all other technic, is purely intellectual. Inspiration is purely spiritual emotion. The public artist is great in proportion as he has great vision and expresses it greatly. To the public artist his stage technic becomes a solid platform below which he cannot sink. As in the technic of his art so in the special technic of presentation he may rise above it countless times. He can never fall below it.

An audience is a mass. It is not, however, and cannot be regarded as an individual. The artist should never doubt that all the diverse and various individual minds and moods which constitute his audience at the instant he appears before it can be made "of one mind," unified and focused to the subject only by the artist himself, not by the subject. Therefore to await the opportunity to gain his audience through his subject instead of at the instant he appears before them is a grave and often a fatal mistake. It gives the audience which is in construction if not in nature, merely a more or less cultured and well-dressed mob, ample opportunity to manifest the mob spirit and tyrannize over the artist—and it grasps the opportunity without fail. Unless the artist skillfully and subtly masters the audience instantly and then prepares it to receive from him before he gives it anything he is in danger of never getting the audience at all, and he is certain never to gain their complete confidence. He will only receive at most their uproarious and ephemeral approval while the spell of the subject is upon them.

And uproarious approval means little. It is after all an embittered outburst carried to the other extreme. It is in constant readiness to travel its superficial course back to malevolence. Pure joy is written in a major key and is never violent.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera:

DARLEEN WELLINGTON-MILLER

Dramatic Soprano

NEMA PHIPPS Pianist

JOINT RECITALS Address 703 Cass St., Albion, Mich

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER

82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST

PUPILS

Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN

TENOR

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

LASH

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE

419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO

Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Res. Phone Oakland 4638

J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.

Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Contra- to

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
543 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

The Elderly Person

There was no temporizing with the Parson. It was plain to be seen that he was stirred up. Yea, more, that he was exasperated, indignant, hot, and dangerously near what might be called "fighting mad." All his good, generous six foot of figure expressed his condition. The Elderly Person esteems him as a good physical object to look upon, with his splendid breadth and development, and unconsciously squares his own shoulders when in company with the Parson, in an endeavor to size up with the standard so suggested. If an honest man is the noblest work of God, a well built one is a good partner. The Elderly Person loves to look up to one, and to accept the challenge the other man can't help exhal-ing. There is another friend with whom comradeship is a delight, and when he towers above his boyhood chum, the Elderly Person laughingly speaks of "the long and short of it." But he can't look down upon the smaller man in any other way than physically. That's nature's way of evening up things. She puts the big brain into the little man, and the fleshy man has to take a back seat in his presence. Sometimes, too,—but that's another lead, and the Parson is bursting with vehemence, and must be listened to, for he is stalwart of mind as well as of body.

"Say, you," he spluttered, "I am so cross with your old paper that I can't see straight. I'm simply boiling mad, and I'll give you something to think about before I get through—"

"I can see all that," said the Elderly Person, calmly, "and I beg to say that that is no way to come back from a lovely vacation, where you've had all your expenses paid by a little roll of bills from an appreciative parish, and when there has been provided a good substitute in your pulpit, to soothe people while you were away. I am ashamed of you. What kind of a spirit is that wherein to show gladness that you are allowed to come back and offer your platitudes, when they've been having better stuff all summer? You ought to be glad that they didn't fire you and engage your substitute."

"Very suave of you to say such lubricating things," retorted the Parson, "but you can't make me any more furious than I am, no matter how many covert red rags you wave. But with the blundering luck of the simple, you have hit on my real grievance. No, I have not been fired. And I am not jealous of the substitute's success, and I am glad he filled the church better than I can."

"Well, then, calm yourself and let off your hot air," said the Elderly Person, benignly.

"It's this," said the Parson. "I read an editorial in your paper about the musical dog days, when there is not much doing except what has to be done. And in the course of his rather aimless remarks, the writer said that, along with what he called 'hot weather music,' in the churches, there was usually a country parson glad to earn an honest penny in his city brother's pulpit, after he had turned the sermon barrel upside down and rummaged through it for what he felt would fire off well."

The Elderly Person felt uncomfortable, but said nothing.

"Now the truth of the matter," went on the Parson, "is, that your editor made a glib remark, and as usual, didn't know what he was talking about. There aren't any country parsons, and there aren't any sermon barrels, and we don't turn them upside down. Before I went away on my vacation, a friend came around with his automobile and we lifted my precious chest of securities into it and went to a safety vault and locked the chest up where it would be safe from mishap. In that chest is my stock in trade, my set of tools, all sharpened and ready for use when I need them. I resent the flippant comment, and the intimation that those sermons, and the work that I've put upon them, are to be spoken of slightly. My life's blood has gone into them. Apart from my reverence for my calling, and the hope that in some way I may stir men and women to better living and better thinking, and children toward pure and honest ideals, is the endeavor to make what I say have a literary quality. If I do this, it generally has some reason for being, for if I apply literary standards to myself I am obliged to be searching as to every phrase, every statement, every period. I have to try to give everything proportion and make it well rounded. I have to be sure that every reference I make is correct, every fact beyond dispute, every statistic accurate. I have to weigh and discard, balance and estimate, and be absolutely sure of myself. Fellows like your editor speak lightly of us parsons, and intimate that people ensure our sermons, or else don't listen to them. Don't you ever allow yourself to believe it! People hear all the sermons while they do not seem to be listening. Just let me make a dubious statement, or forget my points, or mispronounce a word or misquote a text, or get tangled in a quotation and there will be someone to notice each flaw and let me know of it, too. I knew an organist, once, who made it his business to compare notes with his wife, who sat in the audience, as to the pronunciation of the parson, because they knew him to be a close student. And only once did they find him in error. He would pronounce enthusiasm, enthusaism. Wasn't he a standing guidepost to them? Barrels of sermons, indeed! Worn out platitudes, forsooth! There are no old sermons, even though they have been used before."

The Elderly Person looked at the Parson furtively, to see if the time was ripe for something that had to come. The vials of wrath were decreasing, but there was still an abundance, so he said nothing.

"And this country parson idea," pursued the Parson. "What a vapidty! Isn't every mother's son of us a country parson, transplanted to town? And does our transplanting make us over, in itself? Does the fact that we have no time at all to work out our thoughts, and finish our sermons as we did when we had less strain and more restful conditions, give us any advantage over the dear fellows who have leisure to see and know their people personally, to have touch with the delightful social life that obtains in smaller communities, to absorb the experiences which come into their lives and make them richer men because of their nearness to the sort of living which the Creator intended should surround all his creations? These men who live where existence can be sweet, where meanness, and hard struggle, and intense poverty cannot be dominant—they are the choice men. We compliment them when we call them to the city."

"Did you ever notice how seldom a city church goes after one of the city men, when they find they must get a new pastor?"

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Lincoln, Neb.—First National Bank Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Commerce Bldg.

THE AGENCY WITH THE SHORT UNDERSTANDABLE CONTRACT 25th YEAR

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40 000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11
For Catalog Address

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON, FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 | Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston, Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE, 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and
Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
Violinist Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
CONCERT BARITONE
Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
07 South Boulevard Austin Chicago

As a rule there is a foraging committee sent out to scour the country parishes, and they generally find what they want. The man who is fresh and bright and fine spirited and beloved by his people—that's the man they are looking for, and they gather him in. Usually he regards it as a 'call to larger opportunity,' and comes to town—to have his soul flooded with the ugly things he cannot prevent. Many a time he must long for the peace of his other charge. But we poor belabored parsons are a loyal set, and we find in the new responsibilities, new chances to do the same old tasks in a new way. But some of us turn down the city call. We see just as large a field in the smaller place, where we can personally mean more than we can hope to in town. Here it is a great organization, with large, far-reaching plans for growth, influence, extension, federation. It is a glorious stimulant to a healthy soul. Don't misunderstand me. We can do things on a larger scale and touch more lives and by co-operation do larger things, and that is inspiring and one loves to do them, because he loves to feel its developing influence upon himself. But it is wearing, it is all exhausting, it is too often unending and we have to ask ourselves at times what is the permanent result. If we did not have about us strong and energetic hands we couldn't stand up to it.

"And whose are the strong hands? Nearly always those belonging to men and women from country parishes, brought to the city by life's exactions, but preserving the sturdy courage and healthy faith inoculated by some good strong soul who gave to them the personal aid which taught them to use their lives aright. We can't do that in town. If it was not for the freshening infusions from the country we would wear out. These results of the country parsons' labors are the vigor to our life stream, and give us new sap to draw on. Men who do these things are the big men, more than we town men who go staggering under the big loads. And so when I can get one of them to fill my pulpit in the vacation period, I know I am giving my people, who cannot get away, as choice a taste of the sweet freshness of the country's best as though they could go to it themselves. And these are the men your top-lofty editor speaks slightly of! Dear fellows, they are the cream of the world."

There was a smile on the Parson's face. Clearly the wrath was wearing out its strength. But it took on renewed fire as he continued: "And the sermon barrel. That's such an old, old form of speech, that it might come under the caption of your slangy 'wheeze.' It implies that sermons are kept in a storehouse and used over and over again. And that it is the height of clerical deficiency to use what is called an old sermon. There aren't any old sermons save as everything is old. We work over old ideas. So does your precious editor. So do you. So does everybody. And the sermons we preserve are ones which represent work along certain lines in condensed form. We save them and use them for reference and service again when they are needed. It comes in very poor taste for any paper to make sport of such preservation of brain labor. Every paper or magazine boasts of an unbroken file of its publication. I've been in your old office and seen the bound volumes of your vaunted editor's lucubrations. I've seen editorials 'republished by request,' or republished because they are opportune. Why not sermons re-preached because they are opportune? . . . It is always this way when people try to belittle another man's work. They think of a clever thing to say and say it and make themselves ridiculous. Or they fall into another man's blunder along the same lines and are trapped. Your precious editor didn't know what he was writing about—"

"Hold! Enough!" exclaimed the Elderly Person. "I can't stand this any longer. I wrote that editorial! The editor had a sick spell and when he reached the condition where he said he didn't care who wrote the first page of his paper, his family knew that he needed a doctor. That autoeratic put him to bed and afterwards sent him away. But he retained his faculties fully enough to ask that I do the best I could with that part of his work. Evidently I missed fire,—but don't blame him, I'll take all the blame—although I don't see that the crime was so heinous, and I only said what is generally accepted as a truth."

The Parson's face was a study. At last he said, crushingly:

"He must have been very ill, indeed. And you, Mistress Meddlesome Mattie, you got hold of the matches and set yourself on fire. You were the Sorcerer's Apprentice of Dukas that we hear about at the orchestra concerts, who mixed the ingredients the wrong way, and I am your nemesis. You make me think of Saint-Sacns' tone poem about Phaeton, only that that unfortunate god had his youth and inexperience as extenuation. You may remember how he borrowed his father, Jove's, spirited horses to drive the chariot of the sun, and how he went to smash in short order. You are an old war horse and ought to know better—but you know the adage about old errors."

Then with gathered energy came the parting shot:

"The English have a general form of saying grace at table. They are apt to express the desire that they may be truly grateful for what they are about to receive. You didn't ask for what you have received, but you certainly got what was coming to you, full measure, pressed down and running over! May you be truly grateful."

The Elderly Person wilted.

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

JESSIE KING
PIANISTE
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Chas. E. WEEKS Basso
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Henriette Weber Piano Lecture-
Recitals
OPERA TALKS
Auditorium Bldg., Ninth Floor Tel. Harrison 4863

MINNEAPOLIS Symphony Orchestra

Emil Oberhoffer, Conductor

Twelfth Season, 1914-15

Twelve Symphony Concerts

Minneapolis Auditorium, 8:15 P. M.

- Oct. 23—Soloist LOUISE HOMER
 Nov. 6— " ALBERT SPALDING
 " 20— " JOSEF HOFMANN
 Dec. 4— " HELEN STANLEY
 " 18— " RICHARD CZERWONKY
 Jan. 1— " JULIA CLAUSSEN
 " 15— " ALICE VERLET
 " 29— " JOSEF LHEVINNE
 Feb. 12— " CORNELIUS VAN VLIET
 Mch. 5— " ARTHUR SHATTUCK
 " 19— " FRITZ KREISLER
 Apr. 1—Ninth LUCILLE STEVENSON
 Symphony GENEVIEVE WHEAT
 Quartet: REED MILLER
 HARRY PHILLIPS

Beethoven Cycle Six Concerts

Minneapolis Auditorium, Afternoons at 4:00

- Nov. 24—Soloist FLORENCE HINKLE
 Dec. 7— " MARION GREEN
 Jan. 5— " FANNY BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER
 " 19— " MAUD POWELL
 Mch. 16— " LEONARD BORWICK
 " 31— " NINTH SYMPHONY

Twenty-one Sunday Pop Concerts

Minneapolis Auditorium, Afternoons at 3:30

- Oct. 25—Soloist IRENE JONANI
 Nov. 1— " PAULO GRUPPE
 " 8— " SARAH SUTTEL
 " 15— " FRANCES INGRAM
 " 22— " GEORGE KLASS
 " 29— " EDNA GUNNAR PETERSON
 Dec. 6— " ANDREA SARTO

Six Young People's Concerts

No Soloist

Minneapolis Auditorium, Afternoons at 3:45

- Friday, Oct. 30
 Friday, Nov. 13
 Friday, " 27
 Friday, Jan. 8
 Friday, " 22
 Friday, Mch. 12

St. Paul Series—Eight Concerts

St. Paul Auditorium, Thursday evenings at 8:15

- Nov. 5—Soloist—MILDRED POTTER
 " 19— " JOSEF HOFMANN
 Dec. 3— " HELEN STANLEY
 " 31— " JULIA CLAUSSEN
 Jan. 14— " ALICE VERLET
 " 28— " JOHN McCORMACK
 Mch. 11— " RUDOLPH GANZ
 " 25— " RICHARD CZERWONKY

Midwinter Tour February 1915

Spring Tour April 11 - June 5

Chicago Concert Sunday Afternoon, February 28

PRESS COMMENTS

"Emil Oberhoffer and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra are looked upon with great favor by the Chicago public. Their annual visits always attract great audiences and elicit vast enthusiasm. The reasons for their popularity are easily stated; Mr. Oberhoffer is a magnetic personality who does great things in that division of symphonic literature which may be called 'subjective,' and he has a fine orchestra that grows better from year to year."—Chicago Tribune, February 23, 1914.

"The orchestra from the Northwest is a welcome guest each season. Since its first concert here it has grown steadily in the public's favor. It set its standards at the start by a splendid performance of the 'Leonore No. 3' overture. The orchestra's playing was brilliant, its quickness of shading admirable and its tone generally of a hearty, healthy beauty. Mr. Oberhoffer is justified in his confidence in the ensemble, and the hand's clientele may rejoice that it has built so admirable an orchestra in little more than a decade."—Chicago Inter Ocean, February 23, 1914.

"Emil Oberhoffer is an exceedingly interesting personality, always the dominant force with his orchestra, which he has modeled to his interpretative will so that you have the distinct sense that they are expressing his artistic convictions, and he has something to say worth listening to. He dramatizes all that he plays, delighting in striking contrasts of dynamics and tone colors which sometimes surprise you, yet come naturally from the meaning of the music as viewed through the glass of his intense temperament. However, we may differ as to the expression of truth, Mr. Oberhoffer is a stimulating personality, who always gives you something to think about, and he has a very fine body of men. At times he still sacrifices quality of tone to intensity, but he has something to say, the courage to give expression to what he believes and with the dignity of conviction."—Chicago Post, February 23, 1914.

"Undoubtedly the Minneapolis Orchestra has come into its own and the older organizations should look well to their laurels lest they be wrested from them by these young, vigorous players, who have come out of the North, many of whom look to be around the early thirties. Fresh blood has been instilled into orchestral achievement and to the praise of Cleveland, this body of musicians was early recognized through the broad vision of Mrs. Hughes."—Cleveland Leader, March 7, 1914.

"Comparisons are odious in music, as elsewhere, so none will be made, only to say that the performance of Emil Oberhoffer and his magnificent orchestra was a revelation even to those who have heard the most famous symphony orchestras in this and foreign lands, as not only was the orchestra work perfection, but the talents of the players were brought to the most effective realization through the appealing understanding of the director and the manner in which he worked the great orchestra to artistic climax after climax, never allowing even a single note to pass without giving it the full beauty intended by the composer. The director was one in fact as well as title, as he beckoned to each instrument when it was to stand forth in some delightful bit of solo work and even gave the accentuation of each note, thus producing musical beauties that have never before been heard in concert in this city."—Dayton Daily News, March 11, 1914.

"Seldom in this city has there been a more enthusiastic symphony audience or more popular outbursts of applause than marked the appearance for the third time in Buffalo of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer, at Elmwood Music Hall last evening. This comparatively new symphony orchestra has taken tremendous strides musically during the past five years, and is now to be reckoned with as one of the greatest of our American symphonic bodies. It is an organization which has good red blood in its veins, and is happily devoid of the lack-lustre efforts of weary routinists. Mr. Oberhoffer as a conductor, while adhering to classic traditions, gives to his readings a vitality which bespeaks the virile individuality of the man, who is at once a great musician and a great scholar."—Buffalo Courier, 1914.

"It is no exaggeration to say that this organization (the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra) is the equal of any which has visited Rochester thus far. There were many things about it which put it in advance. The whole tone of the orchestra, while capable of immense climaxes, never went to the point of being anything but beautiful. Minneapolis must be congratulated on having such an organization."—Rochester (N. Y.) Herald, 1914.

Address Correspondence to Wendell Heighton, Manager

405 Auditorium Building

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

SERGEI RACHMANINOFF

The Great Russian Composer, Conductor and Pianist, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

MASON & HAMLIN CO.
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: Before my departure from America I wish to thank you heartily for your noble instruments which I have used at all of my concerts in the United States and Canada. I desired to play the Mason & Hamlin Pianos because I believed they would be the most satisfactory to me in my work. In my opinion, these instruments must satisfy all musicians and artists of first rank, as well as music lovers in general. I feel that if I have succeeded in making even the slightest impression upon the public by my playing, a great part of my success is due to your instruments.

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) SERGEI RACHMANINOFF.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

CIVIC MUSIC

In order to correct an erroneous impression now obtaining among some musicians of the city as to which concerts are given under the auspices of the Civic Music Association and which are not, the directors of the Association make the following statement regarding their method of scheduling concerts.

First—Although some of the musicians refuse the remuneration, soloists are always offered a nominal sum or the use of a taxicab; choruses, their car fare; orchestras, the transportation of their instruments and fees for the union men.

Second—All arrangements with soloists or directors of quartets, choruses or orchestras are made by the superintendent at the office of the Civic Music Association, 539 Fine Arts Building.

Third—Some days before each concert the office sends to each soloist or to the directors of groups a written statement of such details as: the location of the park, car line, date and hour, financial agreement, stage arrangements and the name and address of the Civic Music representative who will attend the concert.

Fourth—Within a week following each concert, either the president or superintendent writes notes of acknowledgment to the musicians enclosing the treasurer's checks for the amounts agreed upon.

It is hoped that this statement will make it very clear that only the concerts arranged in the above manner are given under the auspices of the Civic Music Association.

Music in Chicago

DEWITT DURGIN LASH CONDUCTS MESSIAH PERFORMANCE

Much to be commended is Mr. Dewitt Durgin Lash for the excellent work his chorus is doing at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Sheridan Road. He has succeeded in building up an organization which is not only a tribute to his ability as a director but a as whole souled enthusiasm. While many of the popular and much used chorus numbers were not given, there were enough to lead one to believe that the usual list will be presented at the performance next year. Their first number, "And the Glory of the Lord," was given in an inspiring if somewhat sturdy manner, and "For Unto Us a Child Is Born" was sung with as much effectiveness as any body of singers could show after so few rehearsals. "Lift Up Your Heads" well deserved the applause which followed its conclusion, and the best work of the chorus came in their glorious rendition of the "Hallelujah Chorus." Much sublime expression was weaved into the singing of "Worthy Is the Lamb," which closed the evening's affairs. Mr. Lash conducted with sureness and vigor, showing at all times a complete command of the work at hand and definite ideas as to how Handel's great work should be presented.

Mr. Kimbell brought a real thrill with his excellent interpretation of the opening recitative, "Comfort Ye." His voice was never more vibrant and wholly at his command than in these beautiful phrases, and he presented "Every Valley" in unusually good style. "Thy Rebuke" and "Behold and See" were sung with a fine display of expression, both for the music and text, and in "But Thou Didst Not Leave His Soul in Hell" as well as "Thou Shalt Break Them," Mr. Kimbell's vocal and interpretative gifts were used with such dramatic intensity that he great factor in the life of the above named church and one in which that neighborhood of the city may well feel proud and offer its unstinted support. That these latter suggestions are already well heeded was noted on Friday evening, January 5, when the little pointed church was packed to the doors by an audience which was unusually enthusiastic over the first production of "The Messiah" given by the chorus of sixty voices with Mr. Lash at the conductor's stand and the following soloists: Esther Walrath Lash, soprano; Mabel Corlew, contralto; Grant Kimbell, tenor, and Julian Worthington, bass.

ESTHER WALRATH LASH

The chorus, which by the way was one of the best dressed ever seen outside the loop, is especially well balanced, for once there were as many tenors as basses. Their singing showed the effects of a taxing drillmaster, a sincerity and unity of purpose as well created a great burst of applause among his hearers.

MABEL CORLEW

Mrs. Lash made her debut as a "Messiah" soloist upon this occasion and made a most favorable impression. She has a stage presence much in her favor and proved to be a splendid musician, for she sang the difficult "Rejoice Greatly" in a style worthy a veteran and sang with a very commendable flow of tone in "Come Unto Him." She was, perhaps, at her best in "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," into which she brought much feeling and beauty of voice.

DEWITT DURGIN LASH

Miss Corlew also achieved a well-merited success upon this occasion. Her voice, which is ample for all requirements of the "Messiah" score, stood her in good stead at all the times she occupied the soloist's position. "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings" was a tribute to her ability as an oratorio singer, as was "He Shall Feed His Flock."

GRANT KIMBELL

Her rich full contralto, however, was heard to best advantage in "He Was Despised," where she revealed fine tonal work and deep expression.

Mr. Worthington is to be especially commended for having his solos well committed. He delivered two of the bass arias during the evening with confidence and sincerity if not with any rare display of vocal art.

Four accompanists were used. Amy Kleinofen, organist, played the "Overture" and "Pastoral Symphony" in a satisfactory manner. She also accompanied the chorus, as did Janet Honess Taylor, pianist. Katharine Howard Ward, organist, was the accompanist for the soloists and all that could be desired came from the organ at those times. Margaret Hughes, pianist, also had much to do with every number, and the entire performance was much enhanced by her musicianly work. We hope to hear more from Mr. Lash and his chorus in the near future.

H. M. B.

The Nativity—This very effective cantata, a performance of which was reviewed in Music News last week, was first given at Jamestown, N. Y., by the Swedish Mission Church on Christmas, 1913. It is by David Nyvall, Jr., a young Chicago pianist, and has been published by the Engberg-Holmberg Publishing Company of Chicago.

Butler—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Butler will give a joint recital Saturday afternoon, January 23, at Kimball Hall.

DE BERNYZ OPERA SOCIETY

The Bertrand de Bernyz Opera, Concert and Oratorio Society, organized to aid needy American talent, and to give public operatic and concert performances in English and foreign tongues, has engaged Mr. Pablo Giaquinto of Naples, Italy, as operatic coach, and Mr. Luigi E. De Francesco, formerly conductor for Hammerstein's "Firefly" Company, as conductor for operatic performances. At the last concert held on January 7 in Studio Hall, 58 West 72nd street, New York City, about twenty-five soloists of the organization sang ensemble several selections and their singing compared most favorably with the great artist Mr. Reynolds Whitney, basso, and Miss Frieda Davis, soprano, were the soloists, and both received great applause for their artistic singing.

— # # # —

Search—Frédéric Preston Search, the distinguished young American 'cellist was a Music News visitor last Saturday. On Monday he played at Evansville, Ind., and from that point will proceed to fill a large number of engagements in the West, accompanied by Robert Raymond Lippitt, pianist.

— # # # —

St. Cecilia Lodge—At the St. Cecilia Lodge A. F. and A. M., at the installation of officers on January 5 a program of music was given by the Lodge Orchestra, which is composed of fifty prominent Chicago musicians.

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano
In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow WeaverSOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella CraftLeading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANECONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS---NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING---608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Hazel Huntley Contralto

609 Fine Arts Building CONCERT - RECITAL - PUPIL'S Phone Harrison 6880

WILLIAM HINSHAW

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE Management: R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 Broadway, New York

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO CONCERTS ORATORIO RECITALS
Phone Austin 22712 5943 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

PUPILS

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert Raymond Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
437 Fifth Avenue, New York
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave.

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Axe

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Westworth 3199

SOME SUNDAY MUSIC

The very much regretted illness of Mme. Schumann-Heink cut the Sunday afternoon concerts down to two and these were both numerously attended and enthusiastically endorsed.

h h h

At the Blackstone

Madam Beatrice Gjertsen sang an excellently arranged program at the Blackstone, including a group of English text songs by Ward Stephens, Woodman, Burleigh and Beach as well as German lieder by Franz, Schumann, Beethoven, Rubinstein, Brahms, Wolf, Hildach and Strauss, and also a group of Norwegian songs by Sinding and Grieg, the latter being particularly distinctive and effective. This writer heard only a group of German songs and the Norwegian works.

"Am Sontag Morgen" (Brahms) was delightfully characteristic, while the "Feldeinsamkeit" was suave to the very limit and a wonderful exposition of the power of the singer to deliver a beautiful pianissimo as well as a pronounced forte.

"Er Ist's" (Wolf) was a fine piece of climax building and "Der Lenz" (Hildach) was absolutely new in the unique and effective treatment accorded it.

Mme. Gjertsen is characterized by much intelligence and individuality, resembling closely Julia Claussen in those respects, and her voice is full of warmth and passion.

Excellent accompaniments were furnished by Isaac Van Grove.

h h h

At the Fine Arts Theater

Evidently "The Flonzaleys" are rapidly approaching "The Kneisels" in popularity, and the Fine Arts was almost completely filled to hear them play Quartets by Reger and Haydn, this being Op. 74 and 17, respectively, the keys being D minor and C major.

The contrast was vivid and thoroughly telling.

Reger was modern, thoroughly bizarre, very brilliant and immensely intellectual.

Haydn was just pure music—severely classic, but of elegant simplicity and thoroughly suave and charming.

The audience admired Reger thoroughly, applauded vigorously and sincerely. After this number (which extended over more than an hour of time) the critics all went away, and with them most of the dilettanti, but the lovers of the Old School remained in force and enjoyed Haydn as chamber music is seldom enjoyed, and applauded with rare spontaneity and cordiality.

The playing of this opus was thoroughly fine.

h h h

At Fullerton Hall

Miss Henriette Weber devoted her attention to "Samson and Delilah" at Fullerton Hall in the evening and besides the excellent assistance of Mr. Itte and the other players, had the artistic services of Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade and Mr. Marion Green, contralto and bass.

A contralto is an absolute necessity in a "Samson and Delilah" evening this need being met bravely by Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade, and it would seem also that a tenor would be the second requirement, but Miss Weber chose instead to have a basso and in Marion Green she found one who sang the part of the High Priest in two long scenes with Delilah excellently.

Besides appearing with much credit to herself in these scenes Mrs. Slade sang the two arias "O Love of Thy Might," and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," and won an ovation from the audience.

Her voice is so beautiful and her artistic sense so well marked that she is invaluable in these "Evenings" and from week to week gains more and more both in popularity and the ease and assurance with which she fulfills her tasks.

Miss Weber gave a splendid little talk on Saint-Saens, characterizing him as the "man of many gifts and talents," and speaking in some detail of his individual virtuosity as well as of his compositions for orchestras, piano and solo voice as also in cantata, chorus, and opera.

Miss Weber is so fine in so many ways herself that one is apt to lose sight sometimes of the fact that she is a splendid pianist but on Sunday night this fact was made so evident that no one could fail to note it especially.

The "Dance of the Priestesses" was played so well by Miss Weber and her associates that it received the greatest applause of the evening and was of necessity repeated, while the "Ballet Music" of the last act was only a trifle less popular.

On next Sunday evening "Lohengrin" will be given, the soloists being Lucille Stevenson and Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns and on January 24 "Natoma" will claim attention with Marjorie Dodge Warner and Alfred Kanberg.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

SONG AND BASEBALL AT THE MAJESTIC

Woven into the varied and excellent list of attractions at the Majestic Theater last week was much music and baseball.

After music, baseball comes in for a good share of thought and pleasure for this particular scribe. We were anxious to see how the two would mix when placed side by side, hence our visit to Chicago's leading vaudeville theater.

Maurice Burkhardt and Elmore White in an act named "Home Run Hitters in the Singers' League," gave us our first taste of the mixture and was not half bad.

Mike Donlin of the "New York Giants" and Marty McHale of the "New York Yankees," let it be said, brought out the real feast and test. They mixed the two in fine style and called the offering "Right off the Bat." Mike, however, did not sing, but Marty was there with a voice and list of good Irish melodies that was a real treat and wholly commendable from every viewpoint.

Sylvester Schaffer, headliner, and reputed to be the highest salaried artist in the world, closed the night's entertainment by presenting ten big acts in his own person among these was a violin solo which he delivered in as convincing a manner as he shot a pipe from a dog's mouth, painted a beautiful picture or rode a handsome and graceful gelding through a number of the latest dances.

H. M. B.

— # # # —

Hamlin Park—At Hamlin Park last Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Civic Music Association an excellent program was given by the Illinois Theater String Quartet and their director, Antonio Frosolono.

ORCHARD SCHOOL CONCERT

The Orchard School of Music and Expression accomplished the second of a series of three recitals by members of the faculty Tuesday evening, December 5 in the Recital Hall of the school, 1533 Hyde Park boulevard.

Those assisting in the program were Mrs. Grace Saltonstall, soprano; Mrs. Jessie De Vore, violinist; Mrs. Jennie Bowmar Ricketts, reader; Miss Zula Zeigler, pianist; Mrs. Charles Orchard, pianist.

MRS. GRACE SALTONSTALL

Mrs. De Vore and Mrs. Orchard opened the program with the Brahms Sonata in A major. It was done in a thoroughly satisfying manner, for as a German musician present remarked, "they played in the true Brahms spirit." A charming group by Cui, Tor Aulin and Ambrosius was also well received.

The beautiful Victor Saar setting of the Browning Song Cycle was given by Mrs. Grace Saltonstall in an interesting and attractive manner. Mrs. Saltonstall possesses interpretative ability in an unusual degree. A later group of La Forge, MacDowell and Rummel demonstrated her versatility.

Mrs. Jennie Bowmar Ricketts, a charming woman as well as a fine reader, gave a splendid reading of Oscar Wild's "Happy Prince" and other numbers. She possesses the faculty of winning her audience and holding them. Miss Zula Zeigler, substituting for Miss Thomas, who was unable to be present, played the Debussy Nocturne and "Fledermaus Waltz" by Strauss-Schuett with much tonal beauty, clarity and artistic finish.

Miss Zeigler is so attractive in manner and appearance, and withal such a fine pianist, that she will undoubtedly become a favorite in Chicago. In fact, it would be hard to find five more earnest and attractive women than those who gave the program.

Mrs. Orchard and her teachers stand for the best; they are giving of their best. That the people of Kenwood and Hyde Park have been quick to respond can be seen by the very fine and intelligent audience attending these recitals. The third of the series will be given Tuesday evening, March 2, by Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin, soprano. Miss Jessie De Vore, violinist; Miss Olene Wallis, pianist, and Miss Zula Zeigler, pianist, and Mr. Walter Brauer, cellist.

N. D. P.

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The programs of last week included the Brahms "Symphony No. 3" and numbers by Mendelssohn and Stephan, besides the Lalo "Concerto" for 'cello, which was played by Pablo Casals, an artist almost unknown in Chicago, who, at this time, made a good impression.

In view of the recent death of Carl Goldmark, and in honor of his memory, the orchestra played a movement from his

Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

"Rustic Wedding" symphony, in addition to the announced pieces.

The following note was included in the programs:

CARL GOLDMARK
BORN 1830
DIED 1915

The passing of Carl Goldmark has removed from the world a figure conspicuous in its musical life for many years.

He was best known to Chicago concert goers by his symphonies, "The Rustic Wedding," Op. 26, and the No. 2, Op. 25, and overtures, "Sakuntala," "In Spring," "Sappho" and "In Italy."

The program for this week reads as follows, the pianoforte "Concerto" to be played by Arthur Shattuck, a young American:

Concerto, F major.....Bach
Overture—Prince Hal.....David Stanley Smith
Concerto for Pianoforte.....Boyle
Intermission
Symphonic poem—The Sirens.....Gliere
Variations, Op. 36.....Elgar

Fischel—Mr. Max T. Fischel announces violin recital by his artist pupils, Gertrude Consuelo Bates and Alfred Goldman, in February. Exact dates to be announced later.

Grow—Miss Ethel Grow, the Chicago contralto, who is spending this season in London, is now located at 27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater, W.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The American Conservatory opened its post-holiday series of concerts at Kimball Hall last Saturday and drew the usual capacity audience to hear some advanced piano pupils of Allen Spencer and some vocal pupils of Edward Clarke.

Of those heard, Mrs. Kahle, in spite of a very bad position at the piano, played the Corelli-Godowsky "Pastorale" with much tonal beauty, bringing out specifically its "Angelus" characteristic. Miss Ginsberg offered a Chopin "Prelude" and a Moszkowski "Tarantelle," and Miss Masley a Chopin "Nocturne."

Mr. Roberts made the melody line in the "Pigoletto" paraphrase very distinct and appealing and was altogether of fine quality excepting that he needs to make the cadenzas in the Liszt piece more virtuosic, while Mr. Jessen showed himself very near the professional class of pianist in his suave playing of a Chopin "Nocturne" and the masterful way in which he built up the climaxes in the Wagner-Liszt "Liebestod," from "Tristan and Isolde."

Miss Marjorie Greenleaf sang "The Little Silver Ring," by Chaminade, with very sweet quality and "I Don't Ceare," by Carpenter, with much intelligence. She is thoroughly effective in her style and appearance.

Mr. William Breach sang some German lieder with great skill and displayed a thoroughly pleasing voice and a generally good concert style, though he should be told that a man soloist always lets his woman accompanist precede him in leaving the stage.

Others who played were Miss Riley, Miss Hubbard, Miss Doig, Miss Schuyler, Miss Ambrosius, Miss Schapre and Miss Gabler, while Pearl Heleyne Mayne also sang a group.

The program of next Saturday afternoon will be given by advanced pupils of Frank Van Dusen, voice pupils of John T. Read, and violin pupils of Ramon Girvin, and reads as follows:

Papillons.....Schumann
Miss Margaret Hughes
Air de Salome (Herodiade).....Massenet
Miss Florence Jernberg
Etudes—Op. 10, No. 3 and No. 12.....Chopin
Mr. Grant Nolan
Aria.....Tanaglia
Mazurka.....Volpe
Mr. Charles Swalm
Swallow Song.....Del Acqua
Mrs. May Healy Brennan
Butterfly.....Grieg
To Spring.....Grieg
Miss Mildred Barnes
Romance.....Svendsen
Perpetuum Mobile.....Ries
Mr. Arthur McCracken
A Rose Rhyme.....Salter
The Cry of Rachel.....Salter
Miss Margaret Madden
Etude de Concert.....MacDowell
Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 11.....Liszt
Miss Idorna Newmark
Miss Charlotte Allen, Accompanist

Hillebrand—Kathryn Hillebrand, soprano, will give a song recital Wednesday, January 20, 1915, at 8:15 p. m., in the Auditorium Recital Hall. Assisted by Bianca von Weber Finney, violinist; Richard Schroeter, flutist of Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and Arthur Fram, pianist and accompanist.

Grant Kimbell

TENOR

Excerpts of Recent Press Comment.

"St. Francis," Chicago North Shore Music Festival 1914

Edith Chapman Gould of New York, and Mary Ann Kaufman and Grant Kimbell of Chicago, all did beautiful work.—Glenn Dillard Gunn, Chicago Tribune.

"Messiah" with St. Paul Symphony Orchestra

Mr. Grant Kimbell, tenor, was very satisfying in his work, rising to the full expectation of the audience. He has a very sympathetic voice which he has the power to use most effectively in oratorio.—Evening Kansan Journal, Newton, Kas.

"Messiah" in Chicago

Mr. Grant Kimbell has a voice and musical style which suits the "Messiah" to a nicety. His voice is smooth, warm and full, his musicianship undoubtedly fine and his interpretative style absolutely suited to oratorio requirements. The recitatives were sung with fine vocal beauty and an intelligence which made them unusually effective and "Thou Shalt Break Them" was filled with a brilliance of technic which showed Mr. Kimbell the possessor of varied color and always appropriate style.—Music News, Chicago, Ill.

"Stabat Mater" (Rossini)

Grant Kimbell displayed one of the finest tenor voices ever heard here. His tones are mellow, clear and singularly sympathetic and his work is highly artistic. His solos were greatly enjoyed.—Rockford Republic.

"Swan & Skylark" (Goring-Thomas)

Mr. Kimbell's work was par excellence. His voice is a beautiful tenor of splendid range. Mr. Kimbell has temperament and displayed many novel effects in the work. His shading, accent and handling of tempos revealed the thought and study expended in mastering these intricacies.—Record-Herald, Indianola, Ia.

Recital

Grant Kimbell, tenor exhibited a most beautiful quality of voice, well schooled and capable of most delicate shading. He reaches splendid climaxes and the upper tones are very beautiful and well rounded. His aria was given with a verve and finely shaded nuance that captivated the audience, South Bend, Ind.

"Rose Maiden"

If laurels had been awarded they would have gone to Mr. Grant Kimbell, a tenor whose voice is of that rarely beautiful quality seldom heard. Mr. Kimbell has achieved much for so young a man and his artistic work, combined with his unusual voice, brings him in constant demand as soloist.—The Tribune, Gary, Ind.

"Rebekah" (Barnby)

Mr. Kimbell is the possessor of a beautiful voice which has an appealing, sympathetic quality; the kind of a voice which one instinctively likes.—Wisconsin State Journal, Madison.

"In a Persian Garden" (Lehmann)

Mr. Kimbell has a strong, clear voice which he controls exceedingly well. He is one of the best tenors we have ever had here.—Baldwin Press, Baldwin, Kas.

Recital

Mr. Kimbell seemed to be a prime favorite with the audience. He is possessed of a beautiful tenor voice and sings with much dramatic power. His work was thoroughly enjoyed.—Tribune, Marysville, Ohio.

"Morning of the Year" (Cadman)

Mr. Kimbell was at his best which means there are few better. His solo and quartet work was of the finest and his voice especially pleasing in the higher register. Mr. Kimbell is an artist in every sense of the word.—Beloit Daily News, Beloit, Wis.

730 Fine Arts Building

Home Address, 5418 Maryland Ave. Phone Midway 3831, Chicago, Ill.

PALMER CHRISTIAN AND CORA LIBBERTON IN RECITAL

William Faulkes' "Concert Prelude and Fugue," might not only be selected as typical of the English ideal of organ music, but just as readily as an identification of English traits of character. The prelude has a gentle firmness underneath its smiling, even melodiousness, a firmness that is conscious of itself and ready to speak out if disturbed, but as wholly admirable as are the well tilled fields and neat villages of the landscape. It speaks of rural quietness and content. The Fugue is succinct, compact, with a squarely definite, almost dictatorial theme, and with sufficient elaboration to make liberal use of its possibilities without exhausting them, and thereby leaving an impression of reserve strength. In the whole work there seems no superfluous phrase in the steady ever-moving measures, no halt or hesitation, and a prompt conclusion when what was important had been said. It sounded as ruddy-faced, clean-limbed, clear-eyed, robust and sturdy as a dweller of the "right little, tight little isle." And Mr. Christian played it in the same way, with no end of red-blooded vigor and manliness, and a sounding authority which gave no hint of limitation of technic to grapple with any difficulties presented. He played a number of other things, but no one gave a fuller exemplification of his admirable qualities—the blending of the fine grain of spirit with thorough manliness and strength.

CORA LIBBERTON

W. C. MacFarlane has given organ literature something rarely serviceable in his "Evening Bells" and "Cradle Song." For the bells' refrain he has made use of, either consciously or unconsciously, the "Ding, Dong" from "St. Michael's Tower." On an organ with modern resources it is effective to the last degree. Mr. Christian played it with numberless niceties of touch and taste, not forgetting a sense of the value of the pause. He played the Kreiser "Caprice" with exhilarating brilliancy and made a great deal out of the De Lamarier "Suite" and the other items on his program.

Mrs. Cora Libberton contributed two songs, Mrs. Beach's "Exaltation" and Mrs. Salter's "Serenity." She has one of those lovely voices which we classify as "child-like," because of the purity, clarity and sweetness of their character. They need no forcing to make them carry, for they do this more readily than voices of more ample volume, and they hold their own in concerted work as well as in solo effort. Added to these natural gifts Mrs. Libberton has the added charms of personality and temperament, and an evident sincerity which lent itself well to her delivery of the Franz-like phrases, of the Salter song. The "Exaltation" was not quite so satisfactory, and the comment might be hazarded that she was over-zealous in her interpretative desire, and missed the abandon needed. The shortcoming, however, may be in the song. She will know whether I am right or not.

All these enjoyments and many others were found on Sunday afternoon at Kenwood Evangelical Church on the occasion of Mr. Palmer Christian's regular monthly recital, before an audience of good size and quality.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

PERMELIA NEWBY GALE

Sunday evening, January 10, the Sinai Orchestra had for its soloist Permelia Newby Gale, contralto. The excellent programme given by the orchestra at Sinai Temple are drawing splendid audiences. The program for the orchestra comprised numbers by Wallace, Delibes, Titi, Gillet, Strauss and Liszt.

Mrs. Gale's splendid voice and charming personality won her many new friends and admirers for her excellent singing. She gave a masterful rendition of the aria from "Don Carlos" that won her much applause. She gave as an encore a "Lullaby" that was given in a very pleasing manner. Her next group was a group of songs by Gertrude Ross, "Sunset in the Desert," "Night in the Desert," "Dawn in the Desert," giving them with a fine regard of the varying moods. "A Secret," added for an encore, was very artistically done.

The Ballet Suite No. 1, "La Source," Delibes, was given as a splendid reading by the orchestra, as was the Strauss waltz, "Roses from the South." The Strauss number was especially well done.

Messrs. Quensel and Frank gave a splendid account of themselves in the flute and horn duet. The Liszt Rhapsody No. 2 was given, but the reading was marred by the hustle for wraps. The management would do well to use their influence in this matter before it becomes a habit.

H. W. P.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

The next program of the Amateur Musical Club will be given by Katharine Goodson, pianist, Monday, January 18. The program follows:

Aria	Pergolesi
Gigue in B Flat	Bach
Capriccio	Scarlatti
Sonata in A Flat, Op. 110	Beethoven
Fantasie in F Minor, Op. 49
Three Etudes
Mazurka in A Minor, Op. 17, No. 4
Scherzo in B Flat Minor, Op. 31
	Chopin
Suite Moderne, Op. 15, Prelude	Arthur Whiting
Chansonnette
Danse
Sans Souci, Op. 25, No. 2	Henry Holden Huss
Marzwind, Op. 46, No. 10	MacDowell
Clair de Lune	Debussy
Rhapsodie No. 2	Liszt

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

In spite of wars and rumors of wars the fourth monthly concert of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club was given last Thursday afternoon at the Francis I. room of the Congress Hotel to an audience which overflowed the place to such an extent that nearly as many people were in the outskirts or turned away entirely as were actually in hearing of the remarkably good program offered.

The program was given by Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, and Mrs. Marie Yahr, contralto, members of the club, assisted by Jessie Isabel Christian, soprano, and Thomas Valentine Purcell, violinist, the latter soloist with the Schubert Symphony Club.

Miss Christian would be singing with the Paris Grand Opera this season but for the war, and Music News readers will recall a very interesting article printed about her European success in one of our August issues.

She is a woman of fine presence and style and her attitude toward her art is on the highest plane, for her technic has been cultivated to a degree which makes it impeccable, and her intelligence in interpretation is notable.

Few singers can do the feat demanded of a coloratura soprano so skillfully and still fewer have a breath control which enables them to shade their work so definitely and so effectively.

The "Caro Nome" (Rigoletto) was sung with great purity of intonation and crystal clarity as regards quality. The trill in the Bond's "Little Pink Rose" was made unusually appealing, and the Grieg "Solvejg's Song," was given a reading which could not often be duplicated for purity of vocal art.

Mr. Purcell is a young violinist with very distinct personal and musical graces. His appearance is fine and his tone is exhilarating.

The "Faust Fantasie" (Wieniawski), was played in a way to prove splendid technical equipment and with a taste which brought out its brilliant beauty.

The Bazzini "Adagio" was thoroughly suave in tonal quality and in the excellence of phrasing and coloring, while the Sarasate programmed youth performed a similar service for Miss Christian.

Miss Cramer has a limpid quality of tone and entire control over a voice of range and power.

She was in fine form and has never been heard to better advantage.

"Il est doux" (Massenet), opened the program with a fine display of musicianship and in the "Dreams" of Chaminade, "Way Down South" (Homer), and "Serenade" by Strauss, she added very much to her pres-

THOMAS VALENTINE PURCELL.

JESSIE ISABEL CHRISTIAN

MARIE YAHR.

tige and to the musical charm of the afternoon. So well liked was her work that two encores were necessary, the first being "The Chimes" by Lola Carrier Worrell of Denver, and the second that splendidly impressive little bit, "The Wind," by Spross.

Mrs. Marie Yahr has a truly impressive voice and style and her success on Thursday was a notable one.

Her voice is very full and resonant and yet is also under admirable control so that all shades and degree of expression are possible to her, while her interpretation is at all times thoroughly good.

The "Che faro" from Gluck's "Eurydice" was sung with much solidity but a constant warmth of feeling, Daniel Protheroe's "Sometime" proved thoroughly attractive in her reading, "D'unc Prison" (Hahn) was effective, and Gertrude Ross' "Dawn in the Desert" was built up to a fine climax. Good accompaniments were played for her by Marie G. Easterly, while Mrs. Edythe Pruyn Hall proved her good taste and fine musicianship "at the piano" for Miss Cramer.

C. E. W.

"Zigeunerweisen" was a genuine piece of virtuosity.

The various movements were well differentiated and the entire number was rounded out into true musical significance.

Mrs. Lovie Zenck Purcell played good accompaniments for Mr. Purcell and an un-

Smidt—Mrs. Mable Corlew-Smith has the following important dates for January: January 5, "Messiah," Austin; January 8, Willard Woman's Club; January 21, Concert at Wheaton; January 27, "The Golden Legend," Clinton, Ia.; January 28, Orchestra Concert, Second Congregational Church, Oak Park.

concluding phrase was beautifully negotiated.

"Porquoi" from "Lakme" showed fine breath control and suave phrasing.

Rogers' fine little song, "The Star," was sung with great significance; Carrie Jacobs-

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

A SUNDAY AFTERNOON MUSICALE

Dr. Frederick Clark's studio at 83 Auditorium building was the scene of a delightful hour of music and social chat on Sunday afternoon, January 10, when a goodly number of musicians and literary people gathered to hear the short but very enjoyable program. Dr. Clark's studio is an especially attractive one and easily makes up into a very satisfactory concert and reception room. Mrs. Coolie, a pupil of Mr. Clark, sang a group of songs in a manner which was indeed a credit to herself and teacher. She possesses a brilliant soprano voice, uses it with considerable intelligence and displays much interpretative ability. An interesting talk and the delivery of a number of fine readings by Mr. Newell was an enjoyable part of the hour.

Dr. Clark, who is making a speciality of character songs in costume, such as the leading arias from the "Elijah," Indian songs, pirate songs and negro songs, delighted his hearers with a group of numbers composed of "Songs My Mother Taught Me," Dvorak: "Uncle Rome," Homer, and "Vision Fugitive," Massenet. He is possessed with the ability to place himself as well as his audience very much at ease, a rare gift in itself, but combine that with his excellent vocal art and keen taste as to the proper thought necessary to make his songs different, interesting and enjoyable, and you find one of the most satisfactory singers heard recently.

We will have more from this studio along the same lines, as Dr. Clark announces a Sunday afternoon musicale each month from now on to which his many friends and admirers are invited to attend. H. M. B.

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, who made such successful appearances before the Nike Club Monday afternoon, January 4, in "The Persian Garden," and the same evening at the Epiphany organ recital, and at the Chicago Woman's Club, Congress Hotel, on January 7, will sing two groups at a concert in conjunction with Elena Moneak, violinist, and Grace Desmond, pianist, at Sherman Park, January 20.

Sgambati—Giovanni Sgambati, composer, died in Rome during December.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
304 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
426 Fine Arts Building

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodations

JOHN DOANE AT ST. PAUL'S EPISCOPAL

The current dinner of the Organists' Guild was given at St. Paul's, Mr. John Allen Richardson playing host in most engaging style. He certainly persuaded his church ladies to serve a dinner that made some of the usual ones take a seat way back. And his rector, Rev. Herman Page, gave a short address so packed with good material that every thinking player had food for reflection and application. The truth is being forced home to all organists that the clergy have some views about music's mission in the church service that it will be well to heed as well as to profit by. Music as well as everything else offered in church, in these days, must have the thought of service back of it, if it is to be acceptable.

After the dinner the gathering adjourned to the church, soon followed by the procession of the men and boys who make up Mr. Richardson's choir. And they were singing the processional unaccompanied, and doing it with impeccable pitch and some beautiful cadences of power and warmth. Afterward Mr. John Doane gave a recital, which included the customary variety and contrast, as well as a novelty in the shape of a "Fantasia" for two performers by George W. Andrews, in which Mr. Doane was joined by Stanley A. Martin. The number was effective and interesting and perhaps would be more brilliant upon a larger instrument. It just seemed to fall short in its high moment.

The choice moments for the reviewer were in the Rheinberger Theme and Variations. The subject in itself is simple and human in its honesty, and the working out has been accomplished so naturally that the variations seem to be a spontaneous bubbling out. Mr. Doane did them all with unusual nicety of thought, registration and sentiment, and nothing which came after robbed the offering of its primal place. The Sibelius "Romanze" is built on fine lines, strong, vigorous and original in material and development, and offering excellent opportunity for brilliant endeavors for the player, which were fully realized by Mr. Doane.

The choir contributed two anthems, with Mr. Richardson, alert and authoritative, at the organ. Miles Foster's "There Were Shepherds" is just as attractive as everything else the capable Englishman has done, and the introduction of the old carol for a finale was a happy thought. The choir did it beautifully as well as the undying harmonies of Tours' "Sing O Heavens." May its shadow never grow less. There were a succession of new and striking contrasts in the presentations, the use of lovely pianissimo effects being not least of the merits. Mr. Arthur Merz sang the baritone solo excellently in the Foster and Mr. William Clifford did the familiar "Blessed Is He" in the Tours with the nicest sort of inflection and tone against the accompanying voices which are its background.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Craven—Carl E. Craven is to be congratulated upon his offer for the position of tenor soloist with the all-American Concert Company, to be put on the road as one of the C. W. Best Artists series next season. However, Mr. Craven finds that his large class of pupils as well as his church and recital engagements will not allow him to leave the city for such an extensive tour.

PROTHEROE'S CANTATA, "THE STORY OF BETHLEHEM," AT THE LAKE VIEW PRES-BYTERIAN CHURCH

Wednesday evening, January 6 a benefit concert was given by the choir at the Lake View Presbyterian Church. Mr. Ernest D. Dewey is the conductor of the choir at this church, and Miss Stella Roden organist. The soloists were Miss Helen Edith Peterson, contralto; Mrs. Harriet H. Seyl, soprano; Mr. Ernest Peacock, tenor; Fred W. Frank, basso.

Mr. Protheroe has expressed himself well in "The Story of Bethlehem." The story has been followed with great care but the treatment musically is very original and grateful to soloists and chorus.

The Prologue, sung by chorus, trio and tenor, was given with a spirit that was very effective. Mr. Dewey has built up a very fine chorus that gave proof on this occasion of their sincerity of purpose. The most effective of the chorus numbers were "We Bow to Thee," "O Come All Ye Faithful," and the closing number, "Sing and Rejoice."

Mrs. Seyl gave a good account of herself in the various numbers. Her most effective singing was done in "The Angel of the Lord," and "And There Were Shepherds." Her voice is of good range and quality, the lower tones were especially pleasing.

Miss Peterson's contralto voice is gaining her much praise from press and public, strengthening the already good impression and winning many new friends and admirers by her splendid singing. Her rendition of the solo numbers left nothing to be desired for one who loves fine singing. "The Shepherds Came with Haste," and "A Christmas Lullaby" were especially well done. Mr. Ernest's splendid tenor voice was heard to a fine advantage and it is safe to say it will gain a fine place for himself in music circles. He did some especially good work in "The Star" and "And Being Warned of God."

Mr. Frank's fine baritone voice was heard with much pleasure in the bass part, "Love is His Throne," found him at his best.

Miss Roden proved herself to be a very capable organist and musician by her splendid reading of the organ score. She gave a splendid rendition of the intermezzo that was very much enjoyed. The quartet did some excellent singing throughout the evening. They were at their best in "He Slumbers Not," which was redemanded.

H. W. P.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

The choir at the First Presbyterian Church gave a splendid account of itself in numbers by Matthews and Noble. Mrs. Brocken's fine contralto voice was heard to an excellent advantage in "He Shall Feed His Flock." She gave it with fine style and spirit that speaks well for her ability as an oratorio and church singer. Mr. F. S. Moore furnished good accompaniment.

The other members of the quartet are Mr. Downer, Mr. Merz and Mrs. Fritch.

Weber—Miss Henriette Weber gave her Lecture on "The Origin of Music" at the Chicago College Club on last Saturday morning.

LOUIS KREIDLER

LAKE VIEW MUSICAL SOCIETY ENJOYS FINE CONCERT

Once each year the Lake View Musical Society brings in one or more artists of concert fame to perform for the pleasure of its six hundred or more members. This season Mr. Louis Kreidler, baritone, and Beatrice Harrison, cellist, was chosen to perform that function. The concert took place on Monday afternoon, January 11, at Martine's Hall and a capacity house greeted the two splendid soloists. It would indeed be hard to believe that Miss Harrison or Mr. Kreidler ever faced a more appreciative and we might say fashionable audience. That the society is either made up with musicians or those very much interested in music, goes without saying, but that this women's organization is becoming a stronger factor each year in the development of musical affairs in Chicago, is proven by the announcement made on Monday afternoon, that its own members will give a public performance of one of the leading operetta's in the near future at the Wilson Avenue Theater, other plans equally as progressive are soon to be realized. These facts and points led one to notice more than usual the wide-awake enthusiasm shown by every one present for the excellently rendered numbers at this particular concert.

Mr. Kreidler, perhaps known to every one present through his operatic work in and about the city, was given a hearty round of applause upon his appearance on the platform and he chose for the opening number, "An Jenem Tag" from "Hans Heiling" by Marschner, an aria, by the way, which deserves many more hearings than it now receives. Mr. Kreidler is always in good voice apparently and seemed especially so on this occasion. The "Hans Heiling" aria abounded with rich tonal work, as well as abundant dramatic fire, and the "Morning Hymn," by Henschel; "Der Jager" and "Zur Johannisnacht," both by Grieg, which formed the group for Mr. Kreidler's second appearance, found in him a splendid interpreter and thus arose to a high point among the more enjoyable moments of the afternoon. An encore was wedged into the program at this point, owing to the baritone's extra fine singing.

"Requiem," Homer; "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes," Ada Heisel Powers; "The Eagle," Busch, and the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen" made up the group with which Mr. Kreidler closed the program. The Powers number proved to be an especially good setting of those much used verses, but it took the ever-popular "Toreador Song" to find the singer at his best and the audience reached its highest point of enthusiasm upon its conclusion. Of course, another encore was demanded and granted. Mr. Kreidler was fortunate in having at the piano throughout his songs Miss Henriette Weber, who furnished accompaniments wholly satisfactory to the last detail.

Miss Harrison, who won hosts of admirers in Chicago last season through her symphony and her recital appearances, was successful in every way during the afternoon. Her two groups were played with all the grace and finish necessary to create much applause and praise. To this she gave all anyone can give, bows and encores.

H. M. B.

Bohemian Arts Club—The Bohemian Art Club will give a Musical Soiree at Fullerton Hall at the Art Institute Friday evening, January 15.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO
ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory
Fine Arts Building Chicago

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

ROY DAVID BROWN

PIANIST
SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL FINE ARTS BUILDING

Mae Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

RUDI STEPHAN

Of Mr. Stephan, whose "Music for Orchestra" was played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra last week, Mr. Felix Borowski wrote as follows in the Chicago Herald:

"Mr. Stephan is an unknown quantity in the music of the world; it is not altogether improbable that he will cease to be so in the future. The message that he gave to humanity in his 'Music for Orchestra' is not as the message of other men who are busy, or who have been busy turning out overtures and symphonies from their brains. It is a peculiarly fascinating music which the conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra imported from Germany for the edification of his patrons. The style of it is filled with a curious and desolating sadness. It suggests in several places the ghost of Mr. Schonberg wandering naked and only partially ashamed. There is strange and cheerie harmony contained within the pages of the score and there are not less strange orchestral colors which, as it were, shudder into sound.

"The program book could offer but a limited amount of information concerning the personality of Rudi Stephan. It stated, however, that that composer has been born in Worms—an explanation which, after his sepulchral inspirations had been heard, appeared to be quite plausible. That there should be no joyful notes in 'Music for Orchestra' is, of course, nothing to its detriment. There is much Weltschmerz in the hearts of men at present and Mr. Stephan wrote some remarkably interesting art while he was sojourning in the vale of tears. The orchestra accomplished a perfect interpretation of a composition which Mr. Stock would be well advised to repeat in order that his patrons may the better appreciate and understand it."

MYRTLE FRIEL SINGS BEFORE
MEN'S LEAGUE

On Wednesday evening, January 6, at the regular weekly meeting of the Men's League of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club held at the City Club, Myrtle Friel, soprano, appeared as the soloist of the evening.

Miss Friel sang a group of songs made up with "Little Grey Home in the West," Lohr; "My Shadow" (Stevenson), Hadley; and "Lil' Boy," Kathrine Stockwell Hazzard, which proved to be delightful and enjoyable gems through the presentations accorded them by the soprano. She possesses very praiseworthy ability as an interpreter of the simpler and charming child songs, but her audience of Wednesday night enjoyed the heavier Lohr song best. An encore was demanded and Miss Friel granted the request in a gracious manner.

Miss Bernice Austin, a very capable accompanist, was at the piano throughout the singing of Miss Friel, giving at all times the best of support.

St. Peter's—At the Festival Service at St. Peters next Sunday night the following music will be given: "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis" by Stanford; "Blest Be Thou," Matthews; "Brightest and Best," Hanscom; "Scherzo" from "Sonata" by Herbert E. Hyde; "The Magi Kings," Dubois; "Caprice," John G. Healey; "Stunde der Freude," Bossi.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

The Northwestern University School of Music in Evanston presents Christine Miller, contralto, in their Music Hall Thursday evening, January 21.

The program follows:

Come, My Beloved (from "Atalanta").....Handel
Where the Bee Sucks.....Dr. Arne
Be Ye in Love with April-tide?.....Ward-Stephens Separation.....Ward-Stephens
Liebeslied.....Schumann
Marienwurmchen.....Schumann
Mit Deinen Blauen Augen.....Strauss
Sie Wissen's Nicht.....Strauss
Hans and Grethe.....Mahler
Adieu, Forests (from "Jeanne d'Arc").....Tchaikowsky
From Wigwam and Tepee.....Charles Wakefield Cadman

The Place of Breaking Light
Ho, Ye Warriors, on the Warpath
The Thunder-birds Come from the Cedars
When the Kye Come Hame.....George B. Nevin
Morning Song.....Horatio Parker
Lullaby of an Infant Chief.....Grant-Schaefer
The Mother's Visits.....Alfred G. Wathall
Wind Song.....James H. Rogers
The Star.....James H. Rogers

AMERICAN GUILD OF ORGANISTS
AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Sunday afternoon, January 17, at 4 o'clock the Illinois Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will hold a public service at St. James' Church, Cass and Huron streets. The soloists chosen for this occasion are Mr. Harrison M. Wild, who will play Stebbin's "In Summer," and Rossetter G. Cole's "Rhapsody." Mrs. Sarah Wildman Osborn will render the Allegro Appassionata from Guilman's Fifth Sonata, and Mr. Herbert E. Hyde will play "Cradle Song," by Grieg and Bonnet's "Caprice Heroique."

The Guild will have the assistance of the full vested choir of St. James' under the direction of the choirmaster, John W. Norton, who will play the service numbers. Mendelssohn's "Hear My Prayer" is among the important choral numbers to be rendered—Master Earl E. Abramson the soprano soloist.

Munro—Mr. George W. Munro announces that his class of vocal pupils at his Athenaeum Building Studio has never been so large or interesting as at the present time. Many public recitals and concerts will be given later.

Ballmann Concert—Sunday, January 17, at North Side Turner Hall. Martin Ballmann's orchestra will give their eleventh concert. The following soloists will appear: Mrs. Emilia Leonvalli, soprano; Mr. Ernest Torti, baritone.

Calkins—Elton Calkins, tenor, has appeared as soloist in the following churches recently: Woodlawn Park Methodist Episcopal, Kenwood Evangelical, First Presbyterian and the past two Sundays at the Warren Avenue Congregational Church.

Johnson—Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto, will give a recital at the Rogers Park Woman's Club Tuesday, January 19.

Pyre—Walton Pyre will give a reading at the Deborah Club Thursday afternoon, January 14.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, January 15

Orchestra Hall, 2:15—Symphony Orchestra.
Little Theater, 8:30—Fuller Sisters.

Saturday, January 16

Orchestra Hall, 8:15—Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, January 17

Illinois Theater, 3:30—New York Symphony Orchestra.
Auditorium, 3:30—Fritz Kreisler, violin recital.
Fullerton Hall, 8:00—Lecture Recital, "Lohengrin."

Monday, January 18

Auditorium, 8:15—Opening of the Gilbert & Sullivan opera season.
Little Theater, 8:30—Fuller Sisters.

Tuesday, January 19

Auditorium, 8:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Company.

Wednesday, January 20

Auditorium, 2:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Company.
Auditorium, 8:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Company.

Thursday, January 21

Music Hall, Evanston—Christine Miller Song Recital.
Foyer Orchestra Hall, 3:00—Chicago String Quartet.
Auditorium, 8:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera.

Friday, January 22

Orchestra Hall, 2:15—Symphony Orchestra.
Auditorium, 8:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera.
Austin M. E. Church—"The Creation."

Saturday, January 23

Kimball Hall, 2:00—Chicago Piano College Concert.
Kimball Hall, 3:30—American Conservatory Concert.
Orchestra Hall, 8:15—Symphony Orchestra.
Auditorium, 8:00—Gilbert & Sullivan Opera.

Sunday, January 24

Illinois Theater, 3:30—Gerhardt-Zimbalist.
Fullerton Hall, 8:00—Lecture Recital, "Natoma."

MAC BURNEY SERIES OF SONG
RECITALS

Season at Hamilton Park Field House, Seventy-second street and Normal boulevard. Program No. 8. Monday evening, January 18. Esther Muenstermann, contralto; John Doane, accompanist.
Program:

Ich Liebe Dich.....Grieg
Waldeinsamkeit.....Reger
Lehn Deine Wange.....Jensen
Sappische Ode.....Brahms
Ungeduld.....Schubert
Thy Beaming Eyes.....MacDowell
The Vow.....Eric Meyer-Helmund
The Song My Heart Is Singing.....MacDermid
Only a Rose.....Downing
Sing to Me, Sing.....Homer
Oh, Love, Thine Aid (Samson and Delilah).....Saint-Saens
The Danza.....Chadwick
The Cry of Rachel.....Salter
Gae to Sleep.....Fisher
The Year's at the Spring.....Beach

VIRGINIA AND DOROTHY RICE

VIOLA COLE PRESENTS PUPILS AT LITTLE THEATER

The Chicago Little Theater ceased to be "little" as far as the audience was concerned on Monday evening, January 11, when Viola Cole presented two of her many talented piano pupils, the Misses Virginia and Dorothy Rice in a splendid program, assisted by Miss Gertrude Cole, soprano, with Miss Ada Cole at the piano.

One of the largest audiences the Little Theater has ever held was in attendance and apparently enjoyed to the full the fine display of pianistic ability put forth by these two children. When it became known that the Rice girls have had only two years instruction, their playing is all the more remarkable. They not only have received very commendable piano training, but have been taught correct and gracious stage deportment as well, the latter attainment seeming to please the audience almost as much as the actual playing.

The girls opened the program with a Moszkowski "Spanish Dance," arranged for two pianos, and their playing of it as to rhythm, musical thought and tone work was equal to that of persons twice their age.

Miss Virginia Rice, with Miss Cole at the second piano, played a "Sonata" in C major by Mozart-Greig, with sufficient grace and finish to make it a real artistic point in the program. At this point in the evening's activities Miss Gertrude Cole sang "The Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, with good voice, enjoyable interpretation and distinct enunciation. At her next appearance the soprano offered Mary Turner Salter's "Love's Epitome." The three numbers which make up this cycle were given with good style and finish.

Little Dorothy pleased the audience immensely by her playing of "The Happy Farmer" and "The Hunting Song," both by Schumann. The "Flying Leaves," by Koelling, and "Sleigh Bells," by Rogers—Viola Cole—both had to be repeated. "Chasing Butterflies," by Dennee, closed this group.

Miss Virginia played as solo numbers a group of five Grieg compositions and "Le Papillon," by Dennee, in a manner denoting splendid training and much original thought for the work at hand.

Miss Dorothy closed the program with "At the Spring," by Josseff, and the "Berceuse," from "Jocelyn," by Godard. Both numbers were arranged for two pianos. The former arrangement was by Miss Cole, who was at the second piano. These young girls will surely be heard from if they continue along the present road. H. M. B.

"THE CREATION" AT PARK AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

Mr. H. W. Owens, with his Haydn Choral Society, presented the Haydn "Creation" at Park Avenue Methodist Church on Monday evening to a very large audience and unlimited enthusiasm.

Many fine choral performances have been registered to the credit of these forces, but never before has so splendidly finished a performance been given by them.

The Haydn Society has a really remarkable number of good singers and the finish of their ensemble has been equalled very seldom by any choral bodies here.

"The Creation" is a cheerful, musical work, beautifully adapted to the needs of just such a society, and it was done at this time in a way to prove excellent musical equipment and a sincere feeling for the poetical and religious aspects of the work.

"Awake the Harp" was sung with fascinating freedom and gaiety. "The Heavens Are Telling" was well poised and was built up to an unusually telling climax.

All the other numbers were done with equal success and Mr. Owens may well feel proud of his work and the society may be assured that it has lost nothing of its old-time effectiveness, but on the contrary seemed on Monday to have taken a decided step forward.

Miss Augusta Collson sang the beautiful soprano solos and did them with much credit to herself and her teacher, Mr.

Owens. Her voice is of sweet quality and her musicianship is good. "With Verdure Clad" was her best number, though all were done well.

Mr. H. E. Haines sang the tenor solos, displaying a good voice and good musical knowledge, but falling short of the excellence of enunciation of both the soprano and bass. "In Native Worth" was sung with much appreciation of its musical values.

Mr. Archer Ballentine has a really remarkable bass voice, and when it is filled out more completely will be an unusual singer, for he has much intelligence and correct style.

All his numbers were well done, and the ensembles in which he appeared proved his further musicianship.

Mr. Haydn Owens at the piano gave some really remarkable orchestral color to the accompaniments and was of continual and very great assistance throughout.

Mr. Harris R. Vail assisted very materially at the organ. C. E. W.

"THE MORNING OF THE YEAR"

The Willard Avenue Woman's Club had as a special musical feature on Friday, January 8, a quartet, Mabel Corlew Smidt, soprano; Lucy J. Hartman, contralto; George L. Tenney, tenor, and Collins Brock, bass. Ethel Geistweit Benedict presided at the piano. The quartet sang Cadman's cycle, "Morning of the Year."

The singers mentioned are all well known in Chicago, and their fine solo work on this occasion was rewarded with great appreciation.

Possibly the most noteworthy feature of the event was the ensemble afforded by this splendid combination. Seldom will one hear such a desirable blending of voices.

There was that equal balance of parts, sincerity and unanimity of purpose, which the audience was not slow to recognize.

In fact, the work was so pleasing and satisfactory that several of the quartets had to be repeated.

Mrs. Benedict proved to be an excellent accompanist, though the instrument used was entirely inadequate.

The members of the Millard Avenue Woman's Club have every reason for congratulating themselves upon the success of the afternoon's musical program.

Radanovits—Another triumph for the Radanovits studios was this week realized when Warren Proctor, tenor, secured the position of soloist in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago. Mr. Proctor's splendid voice is a fine example of Mr. Radanovits' method of teaching. Gertrude C. Proctor, soprano, was special soloist at Unity Temple, Oak Park, Sunday morning, January 10.

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIS
Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendson

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mallery Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO
University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

MUSICALE AND THE DANSANT AT THE RESIDENCE OF MME. BEHRENS

An elaborate reception; a musicale of importance; an exhibition of professional dancing; an interlude of general dancing followed by a Catered Buffet supper, supplied an entertainment of varied delights on the afternoon and evening of January 4, in the handsome apartment of Mme. Cecile M. Behrens on West Eighty-first street.

The hostess attired in an exquisite gown of white silk erepe caught up with buds and foliage, and shimmering silver lace, received her numerous guests in the Music Room and Library. New York, as well as out of town was in generous representation—an aristocratic contingent with a decided leaning toward culture and the acquisition of a profounder insight into things musical.

Artist-pupils and society buds with an earnest appreciation of the art of piano playing made up part of the program, which was as follows:

"Humoreske," Dvorak, and "Novellette," by MacDowell, opened the program, and were exceedingly well performed by Miss Anna Doscher. Miss Mildred Karl showed a nice perception of values in her interpretation of the Bach "Fugue," and the "Deutsche Tanze" No. 111 (Beethoven-Seiss).

Mr. Jean Pasquet (winner of the William Mason Scholarship), gave an extraordinary account of himself in the matter of authority, intelligent judgment and sentiment in a Chopin Etude, and Weber's "Rondo Brilliant." His improvement goes on by leaps and bounds, and he well deserves his teacher's pride in his serious appreciation of her exceptional pedagogic talents.

Miss Clara Schmitt, an artist-pupil of Mme. Behrens, who has won golden opinions wherever she has been heard, here or abroad, was in superb vein, and interpreted her numbers with the élan, repose and wide experience (she is a young creature for such weighty accomplishments), of a Virtuoso.

Her group was as follows:

Introduction Carnival Schumann
Rhapsodie Louis V. Saa-
Rigoletto Paraphrase Verdi-Liszt

Mr. Arthur Mason, an out of town pupil of Mme. Behrens, and a relative of the late William Mason, Mme. Behrens' revered and beloved teacher, showed astonishing progress since last I heard him. His playing proves how seriously he regards his musical studies. In what is practically a pianistic Dialogue in Bruno Oscar Klein's "Secret d'Amour" Mr. Mason differentiated the voices with astonishing clarity, lifting the performance of the work to a high plane of artistry.

Mr. Mason also played the Schumann "Novellette" No. 1 with rare discretion and insight. Surely this interesting and handsome young man—fine, erect and upstanding—if he continues as he has begun, will go far in his art, which he takes with so much of seriousness and intelligence.

Perhaps the most striking evidence of the talent and application of a pupil under a teacher of remarkable efficiency, initiative and artistic finish, was discoverable in the playing of Miss Estelle Clark, and the spontaneous applause following her efforts indicated the appreciation of the audience.

When last I heard Miss Clark play I was more than agreeably impressed by what promised to flower into a great talent, and my astonishment was almost unbounded at the strides she had made in her work. She discovered a feeling for nuance and shading; there was a clarity of technique; a refinement and discretion in pedaling (really an art in itself, and not always sufficiently considered by even the more distinguished representatives of professional pianism) and an admirable spontaneity and directness in pianistic utterance, as delightful as unexpected, whetting curiosity for the next exposition of this charming young woman's diverse and delightful talents as exemplified at the piano. She played "Crescendo" by Per Lassen, and Rachmaninoff's C minor prelude.

Mr. George Reimherr, tenor, and Mr. Harry Meysenheim, baritone, were heard each in groups of songs, and gave pleasure to the audience.

Mme. Behrens herself was heard in a group of three request solos. Her teacher, William Mason's "Spring Dawn," Liszt's "Grande Etude de Concert," and Liszt's "Rhapsodie" No. XIII.

Mme. Behrens as a teacher is her own best illustrator, and her renditions of her numbers place her easily among the prominent pianists of the United States. She has gained immensely in power, and a ripened and seductive suavity of musical address. Her performance of the Liszt numbers was spirited and virile, and of great breadth and energy. Energy informed by a security of technique leaving little to be desired. The "Spring Dawn" breathed a vernal poesy and afforded an instructive contrast with the bigness of the Lisztian masterpieces.

Space was cleared for the Exhibition Dances of two exponents of local renown of the Castle House, Mr. Alfred Browning Munich, and Miss Mollie Mathers, exponents of the Terpsichorean Art of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle, of whom their teachers may feel very proud.

They danced with consummate grace and ease, and were roundly applauded.

This will be the initial of the Musicales of Mme. Behrens this season. Another will follow somewhat later in the season.

h h h

Ethel Leginska's Activities

Ethel Leginska, the young English pianist, one of the chief and most representative of the disciples of Leschetizky in the great world of music, who has resided in these United States too short a time to have had her superb gifts acclaimed outside of the Metropolis, contemplates extending the sphere of her activities to include a radius of states well outside of New York (New York which insists upon monopoliz-

HAUSER PIANIST
Management
HAENSEL & JONES
Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present
The Violinist

ANDRE BLANCIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER AMERICAN TENOR
Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham

P
I
A
N
I
S
T

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

ing the charming girlish Leginska) within the next few months and Chicago will have the opportunity of sunning itself in the light of her genius, her graciousness and her radiant magnetism, before the end of January.

Happy Chicago! Itself a Metropolis whose acquaintanceship Miss Leginska is anxious to make, feeling assured that she will love itself, its customs, and its people, by a sort of intuition akin perhaps to clairvoyance.

Ethel Leginska has none of the airs but all of the graces of a charming, appealing, ingenuous young girlhood, mignonne, of candid, frank, yet arch and smiling countenance, the finished and perfect virtuosity of her comes with startling, surprising effect.

A Sylph—a Naiad of the woods and vales—is she. A sprite with a delightful, boyish-looking head, she will appear before her audience in the Chicago which has heard of her but not yet proven her, and demonstrate the matured mellowness of her artistry: its suave subtlety, technical clarity and finish, its poetry and polish in inverse ratio to the extreme youthfulness of her artless and winning personality.

Leginska's debut in Chicago will be effected on January 24 in the Fine Arts Theater, in a characteristic recital program.

Before that appearance she will fill a number of recitals in private, and among others the following public appearances:

January 14, Olean, N. Y., a Club Recital and a re-engagement; January 15, Dayton, Ohio, Soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor; January 21, recital, a re-engagement, in Andover, Mass.

After the Chicago Recital Miss Leginska proceeds to Birmingham, Pa., where she will appear in an important Recital.

On January 30 she will play with the Young People's Symphony, Walter Damrosch conductor, in Brooklyn, N. Y.

February 6 the young pianist plays with the same organization again and in Carnegie Hall, N. Y.

February 14 with the New York Symphony in Aeolian Hall.

February 20 in Oberlin, Ohio, with the orchestra.

February 16 in Rome, N. Y., again with the Symphony Orchestra.

April 17 she will be soloist with the Rubinstein Club at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, and May 12, Paterson May Festival.

June 30, in Los Angeles, Calif.

Other appearances will be announced later.

h h h

Mme. Narelle Sings in New Jersey

On the afternoon of January 6 in the Bamberger Auditorium, Mme. Narelle was the star of a concert in which she shone to particular advantage as an interpreter of the intensely dramatic. Her two principal numbers being the aria, "Suicidio," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," in which she rose to surprising heights in her exposition of utter despair and spiritual anguish, receiving much applause for her noteworthy rendition of this taxing number. She also made a profound impression by her vocal declamation of Mrs. Salter's magnificent "Cry of Rachel," which she was obliged to repeat after the conclusion of the program proper, and by request.

Two groups of English songs, including Celeste D. Heckscher's "Norse Maiden's Lament" and "The Enchanted Forest" by Phillips were greatly enjoyed. Mme. Narelle also sang a group of Irish Songs, including Lohr's "For the Green," which hit the popular fancy, and made a demand for more imperative.

Miss Kathleen Narelle was the assisting pianiste and accompanist. Miss Narelle played the Brahms' "Rhapsodie in B minor" with telling effect. She disclosed an almost fiery abandon, and an excellent technique. Qualities which stood her in good stead in her second number "Zigeuner Novello" of Poldini also.

h h h

Germaine Schnitzer with New York Philharmonic

Germaine Schnitzer's appearance with the Philharmonic on the afternoon of January 8 must have been—indeed, was to my knowledge—a disappointment to the numerous admirers of this beautiful and engaging young pianiste, in that she was heard in conjunction with a 'cellist and violinist as co-soloist in a Concerto for Piano, Cello and Violin with orchestral accompaniment, the opus 56 Beethoven, instead of a Concerto of importance in construction, message, style and beauty in which her genius might have enjoyed its proper setting. As a novelty this composition of the deaf composer might well be laid upon the shelf, since in no part is it worthy of the serious consideration the world is constrained to render the majority of the works of Beethoven.

Whatever Miss Schnitzer does she cannot but do well, and she acquitted herself in a manner to justify the singular devotion and admiration she enjoys of the musical world generally; the Cognoscenti and the students of style, technique, grace, power, finish, and (in its fullest and finest sense) the authority of a great artist, superbly and delightfully and logically resourceful, assured and self-confident.

h h h

Radanovits—The splendid singing of Sandor S. Radanovits' pupil, Mrs. Lewis Mann, December 25, has caused much comment. Mrs. Mann has a coloratura soprano voice of much beauty; added to this is a pleasing stage presence and winning personality that makes her singing a great pleasure.

h h h

Craven—Carl E. Craven tenor, was the special soloist at the Second Presbyterian Church, Oak Park, January 3 and 10, at the evening services, as his position at the La Grange Presbyterian Church takes his time Sunday mornings, where he is director and tenor soloist.

MR. CARLILE F. TUCKER'S RECITAL

On Sunday afternoon, January 31, Mr. Carlile F. Tucker will give a song recital at the Blackstone Theater, assisted by Gilbert Shorter.

h h h

Ballmann—The Ballmann Orchestra gave the usual Sunday Concert at Turner Hall on January 10, with the assistance of the very pleasing soprano, Mrs. Else Harthan-Arendt, who was heard to advantage in "Dich Theure Halle" (Tannhaeuser), Wagner; Miss Nellie Wulfe, violinist, and Mr. Charles E. Calkins, zylophonist.

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

CARL FLESCHE

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

AN ORGAN RECITAL UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE AMERICAN GUILD OF ORGANISTS

On Sunday afternoon, January 3, at the Harvard Club on Commonwealth avenue, an organ recital was given by Mr. W. Lynwood Farnam, organist of Emmanuel Church. As evidence of the genuine appreciation this excellent organist enjoys among his confreres, it may be said that the hall was filled to overflowing, as has been the case whenever he appears. The program was of so unusual character it is given as a model for other organists to consider.

Finale (Sonata No. 10, in B).....Rheinberger
Larghetto (F Sharp Minor).....S. S. Wesley
Allegretto (A Major).....Merkel
Chaconne Karg-Elert
Fugue Trilogy Karg-Elert

§ § §

Lecture on Organ Consoles by E. E. Truette

Fair showing of the local members of the American Guild of Organists were in attendance upon a lecture given by E. E. Truette on organ consoles in the hall of the Harvard Musical Association Wednesday evening, January 6. By means of nearly one hundred lantern slides and descriptive text, the speaker traced the development of organ consoles from its mediaeval beginnings to the "largest" organ of the present moment. From a professional standpoint, the lecture was extremely interesting and enlightening. At the close, the usual bountiful lunch was served, and the members enjoyed an hour or more of friendly social meeting together.

S. H. L.

§ § §

A New Lyric Opera

Work at the New England Conservatory of Music was resumed Monday, January 4, after the Christmas holidays. Several new registrations took place for the remainder of the first session which ends February 3. Events of the first week of 1915 include lectures by Louis C. Elson on "Musical History," Monday afternoon, and "The Development of the Orchestra" Thursday afternoon, and a recital by pupils on Saturday afternoon.

A lyric opera entitled "Amoritis" has been written by Charles F. Denne of the New England Conservatory faculty, author of "The Defender." The libretto, by Edmund Cummins, of Worcester, is said to follow novel and amusing lines.

§ § §

The January Faelten Bulletin

During December there have been "playing tests," "test recitals," Thursday afternoon and evening, December 3, when 17 pupils, exclusive of eight in ensemble in the Ballet Suite by Otto Molling, took part; Thursday afternoon, December 19, when four pupils appeared; Friday night, December 11, presented four pupils and eight more in ensemble in the Fest-Overture by Lentner.

Thursday afternoon, December 17, five Grieg; the same evening there was an ensemble in the Allegro from Op. 14, by Grieg; the same evening there was an ensemble of eight in a Russian Melody by Van Willem and a Spanish Dance by Kleinmichel; another ensemble of the same number of pupils gave a "Folk Song" by Moszkowski and "The Knights," by Volkman; eight pupils played a varied program Saturday afternoon, December 19, and Thursday afternoon, December 31, fourteen pupils closed the "test recitals" of the month.

Instructive "interpretation lessons" were given.

§ § §

Miss Gulick's Recital

Miss Anne Hathaway Gulick of Cambridge gave a recital in Huntington Chambers Hall, Thursday evening, scoring a pronounced success in the following program:

Concerto, No. 3, Op. 37.....Beethoven
Carl Faelten, Second Pianoforte; Tutti, Miss
Lucille Knudson, Miss Louise Wright,
Miss Ruth Fiske, Miss Florence Rice
Sonata, Op. 22.....Schumann
Concerto, No. 4, Op. 44.....Saint-Saens
Carl Faelten, Second Pianoforte; Tutti Wilhelm
Woll, Frank Guilfoyle, Charles Fearing,
Harold Koch

The sureness and masterliness of Miss Gulick's playing produced in the hearer a sensation of full satisfaction and serene enjoyment. She should be heard more frequently.

§ § §

An Interesting Bit of History

Stories of the pleasures of earlier days are always interesting and when these relate the doings of the minstrels which were so popular before the civil war (and even now Dockstader's minstrels draw crowded houses), they are still more attractive. The following from the Boston Sunday Herald, January 10, furnishes an interesting bit of history.

L. S. B.

BUCKLEY'S ETHIOPIAN MELODIES

It may be a little late to write you about old-time minstrels and songs. I may be able to give you some early history of them as I have a good copy of Buckley's Ethiopian Melodies, copyrighted in 1853 by Philip J. Cozens. A biographical sketch of the Buckleys (a well-preserved song book of 72 pages) containing about 1,000 words (I'll not push much of it to you) gives their history up to that time. It says the Buckleys consist of James Buckley, the father, and three sons, Richard, George Swaine and Frederick. Of course at all times they have been assisted by some of the best talent they could command. Their first appearance before the public took place in Boston in the year 1842, under the title of Congo Melodists, which name they retained until the year 1844. They claim to be the first to harmonize negro melodies.

In 1844 they used their legitimate name, the Buckley family, and gave concerts under that name in all the principal southern cities. They opened in New Orleans in December of that year. They and the public were so well pleased that they were induced to change their name to the "New Orleans Serenaders." They stayed there about a year and a half then sailed for Europe, arriving in Liverpool in 1846. They traveled over England two years. Then they came to New York after an absence of two years.

They were there in the Bowery Theater. They then performed 150 consecutive nights at the Society Library. They then went to Philadelphia, and opened at the Musical Fund Hall, where they performed for six weeks. They then went from there to New Orleans, then to Mexico, and arrived in San Francisco in 1852, arrived back in New York in June, 1853, where they intended to remain.

I have another old song book (64 pages), "The Little Brown Jug," printed in Montreal and Toronto, that contains "The Song of Songs," Air—"Cottage by the Sea."

Childhood's days now pass before me,
When this old hat was new;
We are coming, sister Mary,
Have you seen the boys in blue?
Let me kiss him for his mother,
Underneath the greenwood tree;
Come where my love lies dreaming,
In the cottage by the sea.

The above is the first verse. There are three more. I think I have the verses of the first "Song of All Songs" mentioned but haven't it at hand. I like it better than this. I think this the older one.

DAVID B. WOODBURY.

South Paris, Me., December 30.

The Buckleys under the name "The New Orleans Serenaders" were at the Bowery Theater in November, 1848.—Ed.

§ § §

David Bispham in Concert

Report speaks highly of the singing of David Bispham, who sang at a concert in Tremont Temple Thursday, January 7. He sang Henry F. Gilbert's "Pirate Song," "Danny Deever," Kipling's words, and other songs which the noted baritone long ago made famous. He also sang a duet with Myrna Sharlow, who gave much pleasure to the large audience by her operatic airs, and songs in English.

§ § §

A New Quartet Heard in Boston

Tuesday night, January 5, the first hearing in Boston was given a new quartet by the young Italian-Roman composer, V. Tommasini. The work consists of four movements, and contains modern harmony and unusual instrumental effects, and is written in true polyphonic style. The slow movement made the deepest impression at a first hearing, but the scherzo and trio had effective and melodic writing, and finale is, by comparison, brilliant, and the most correct in composition.

The work was produced by the Kneisel Quartet in Steinert Hall, and other works performed were the Brahms Sonata in E minor for 'cello and piano, Mr. Bauer and Willem Willeke the artists, and the "Forellen" quintet of Schubert, in which Ludwig Manoly, a double-bass player, assisted the quartet.

§ § §

An Important Work on the Symphony Program

The feature work of the Symphony Orchestra concert Friday afternoon and Saturday night, January 15 and 16, will be Brahms' Symphony in C minor. This was played under Dr. Muck in the fall of 1907, and at the closing spring concert of 1913.

A prelude and double fugue for string orchestra and an Adagio and Scherzo for wind instruments, two harps and tympani, by Oscar Fried, Berlin, the first two having been played here but once, in 1907-1908. Dr. Muck conducting, the last two being new to symphony patrons.

The Longy Club gave them in Chickering Hall some years ago, and Mr. Fiedler

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer.
 Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

conducted Mozart's "The Magic Flute" overture will end the program.

A classical program was given in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, at the fourth concert by the orchestra Thursday night, January 14.

Anton Witek, concert master of the orchestra, played the Beethoven Concerto, and the "Egmont" overture, Haydn's "Surprise" Symphony and "Genoveva" overture by Schumann were the orchestra works.

q q q

Concerts to Come

Mrs. Frank King-Clark, a native of Lincoln, Neb., gives a song recital in the Toy Theater, January 17. Mrs. King-Clark was the wife of the vocal teacher, famous on two continents who died in Berlin a short time ago.

Harold Bauer gives a recital in Jordan Hall Saturday afternoon, January 23, at 3 o'clock. He will play works by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

Mrs. Fanny Bloomfield-Zeisler will be heard in Steinert Hall, Thursday afternoon, February 18.

The second concert of the Longy Club Wednesday night, January 20, in Jordan Hall, will present a quintet for oboe, clarinet, horn and bassoon; an adagio and scherzo for four flutes, by Wooters, and a little symphony by Gounod for wind instruments.

The first concert of the Cecilia Society now in its 39th season, will be given at Jordon Hall, January 21, Dr. Arthur Mees conductor, Mme. Marie Sundelius, soloist.

The second concert is March 18, when Henry Maitland, New York, baritone, sings.

Short works will be given by the society at each concert.

A VAN DUSEN PUPIL

Marme Larson, pupil of Frank Van Dusen, has just returned from St. Paul, and while there was guest of honor at a Twilight Musicales, given at the Ryan Hotel by Miss Anita De Witte Cook, composer. Miss Martha Cook, soprano, of Minneapolis, sang a group of songs composed by Mr. Larson. Felix Muetze, 'cellist, and a member of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, assisted on the program. Some of the prominent guests were Governor Eberhart, who predicts a great future for the young composer. Mrs. George Van Slyck, a former opera star, who has sung with the famous Mme. Lina Cavalieri at the Comique Theater in Paris, and Alma Peterson, prima donna with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, were also present.

WARREN PROCTOR TO GO TO FIRST CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

Mr. Warren E. Proctor, tenor, has been engaged as soloist at the First Christian Science Church in Chicago.

Mr. Proctor has given splendid satis-

WARREN E. PROCTOR

faction at Unity Church in Oak Park, where he has sung for several years, and the good wishes of a large number of friends go with him to the new, and very important, position.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Pupils of Miss Betsy Howland played the following program at Kimball Hall last Saturday afternoon:

*Rondino in G.....	Schultz
Shadow March.....	Marion Schreiber.....Cramm
Saltarelle Caprice.....	Mollie Green.....Lack
*The Riders.....	Catherine Braidwood.....Schultz
Serenade.....	Martha Haberman.....Niewiadomski
March Grotesque.....	Esther Shonfeld.....Friml
*Romance.....	Helen Ruttie.....Arensky
	Bertha Wulf

*With Miss Howland

Gale—Permelia Newby Gale gave a program at the North Shore Woman's Club last Tuesday.

The Collapse of the Tiffin Musicales

When it was found advisable at one of the earlier of the Tiffin Musicales, announced to take place at the Congress Hotel, to substitute a cheaper singer for the one advertised there were many people who were ready to predict that the Tiffin Musicales would never complete their course.

On last Monday morning a fair sized audience assembled to hear the announced artists, Mr. and Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitsch (Clara Clemens) and Clara Williams, of Minneapolis, but there was great delay in opening the doors.

Finally the audience was admitted and after another long wait Mr. Talbot came to the stage and announced that the artists were all present but, because of a variety of reasons no concert would be given. It is understood that the Gabrilowitsches, acting on advice of their New York manager, flatly refused to appear.

Mr. Talbot disclaimed any responsibility for the occurrence, saying that the musicales had been turned over entirely to Miss Gertrude O'Hanlon, whom he said could not be found, though she was in evidence a few minutes later behind the scenes.

Even the small amount of money which was taken in at the door had also mysteriously "disappeared" and ticket buyers had to leave without a refund though they were promised that it would be made later.

These musicales were at one time numerously attended but the "Society Element," on which they have depended for support, has declined this year to buy tickets and there has not been any publicity given the affairs whatever. Therefore the rank and file of musicians and students scarcely knew that such a series of concerts was in progress, so that any possible income from this source was also out of the question.

Local artists were announced for a concert at Midway Gardens last Sunday afternoon, this also having been arranged by Miss O'Hanlon, but a very small audience came together and the affair had been so very evidently mismanaged throughout that it also was "called off" although the Chicago artists loyally desired to keep faith with the audience, and would have appeared had they not been prevented by Miss O'Hanlon.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
 FOR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
 5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

The Birth of a New Club

Many clubs have been born in Chicago and some have grown to great size and significance and have lived to bless the community in various ways.

It is doubtful, however, if ever there was a club which sprang into existence so fully fledged as "The Chicago Artists' Association," which held its first meeting at the Florentine Room of the Congress Hotel on last Tuesday afternoon and which drew a tremendous audience which was also distinctly a "representative" one.

JESSIE DEVORE

The guests of honor were many, including Mrs. Harrison (wife of the Mayor), the Misses Fuller, members of the Century Opera Company, as well as other Opera Stars for the moment in Chicago, and many other musicians and society folk.

THEODORA STURKOW-RYDER

Of Chicago professionals scarcely any were absent though it must be confessed that far more women than men were present. The new club is for both men and women but it would seem at the start that if the former are to come numerous into its fold the meetings will certainly have to be held in the evenings.

The president, Mrs. J. E. Thorndike, presided with grace and dignity; Mrs. Louis E. Yager, chairman of the program committee, discharged her duties graciously and all the other officers assisted largely in making the first meeting a social as well as a musical success.

Miss Georgia Kober told in a few well chosen sentences the object hoped to be gained by the Student Membership, and Mrs. J. R. Custer gave some illuminating remarks. Both of these speeches will be commented upon further at a later date in Music News.

Mrs. Campbell of the Monitor told of the Federated Clubs again and extended an in-itation to the new club to join, this being done also in behalf of the Illinois Federation of Clubs by Mrs. Charles Zimmerman, its president.

CHARLES W. CLARK

Mrs. George B. Carpenter told of the Civic Association work and Mr. Karleton Hackett made some general remarks, which also will be discussed later.

The music program was fine and was given by Charles W. Clark, baritone; Mme. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist; Mme. Jessie DeVore, violinist, and Gordon Campbell, accompanist.

Mr. Clark was in superb form and sang his Schubert group as only he could have done it, with magnificent voice and an intelligence of interpretation truly inspired.

The "Promesse d'un joie divin" (Massenet) was as fine a piece of Aria singing as could be wished and brought such insistent applause that Mr. Clark added also the "Vision Fugitive" from "Herodiade."

For final group "The Fool's Soliloquy" (Campbell-Tipton) was done in the inimitable Clark style, and Carl Bush's fierce "Eagle" was again presented, with great dramatic power while a sensation of the afternoon lay in the singing of "Love's Feast," a splendid poem of Mrs. George B. Carpenter, which has been most sympathetically set to music by Mme. Sturkow-Ryder and was played by her with great style in accompaniment to a fine rendition of the vocal line by Mr. Clark.

Mr. Campbell played for all other numbers and was, of course, entirely perfect.

Mme. Sturkow-Ryder is a regular dynamo of repressed energy and vitality. She is daintiness personified in appearance and in the playing of the lighter works for piano, but when she chooses she can be exceedingly dramatic, and on Tuesday she electrified her audience.

The most pianistic of her numbers was the "Etude" of Arensky, the most striking was "The Devil's Dance" by Rebiroff and the most beautiful "The Lark" by Glinka-Balakirew.

Mme. Ryder appeared also jointly with Mme. Jessie DeVore in the Handel "Sonata" in A major for piano and violin, both artists acquitting themselves with distinction.

Mme. DeVore draws a clear, steady and very rich tone from the violin and she has a musical perception of the finest sort; added to this she is personally very attractive and her interpretative thought is excellent. The audience liked her very much.

C. E. W.

GABRILOWITSCH-MURPHY RECITAL IN EVANSTON

Ossip Gabrilowitsch will give his only recital in the vicinity of Chicago next Tuesday morning, January 19, at 10:30, in the Auditorium of the Evanston Woman's Club, under the direction of Rachel Busey Kinsolving. Lambert Murphy, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be the associate artist, with Edgar Nelson as accompanist.

Sonata, Op. 31, No. 3.....Beethoven
Allegro
Scherzo
Menuetto
Presto

Mr. Gabrilowitsch

Voir Grisélidis from Prolog to Grisélidis.....Massenet
Avril pose ses pieds lents.....Paulin
Les Cygnes Noirs.....Paulin
Noel d'Irlande.....Holmes

Mr. Murphy

Symphonic Etudes.....Schumann

Mr. Gabrilowitsch

Aria from La Boheme.....Puccini

Mr. Murphy

Morning Hymn.....Henschel

I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby.....Clay

Her Rose.....Coombs

Matinata.....Leoncavallo

Mr. Murphy

Nocturne, B Major.....Chopin

Mazurka, B Minor.....Chopin

Polonaise, A Flat Major.....Chopin

Mr. Gabrilowitsch

Bollman—The three young singers, Jean Babbitt, Elise Schnell, Georgia Ward and Olive Baker, mentioned in a letter from Clinton, Ia., last week, are all pupils of Maude Fenlon Bollman.

Recital—Wednesday evening, January 6, a song recital was given in the First M. E. Church at Kalamazoo, Mich., by Mr. and Mrs. Harper C. Maybee, assisted by H. Glen Henderson.

People & Events

WILLIAM BOEPLER

William Boepler is one of the leading musicians of Chicago as well as one of the most active and successful in the musical profession.

Mr. Boepler is director of the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music in Milwaukee, a school with sixty teachers and two thousand pupils; is conductor of the Milwaukee A Cappella Chorus, which comprises three hundred singers with excellent reputation all over the country; director of the Chicago Singverein, an organization of three hundred singers now in its fourth year and which has been splendidly established from the beginning; director of the Germania Club, the Turner Maennerchor and the Male Chorus of the First National Bank, all of Chicago.

WILLIAM BOEPLER

Mr. Boepler's position as a conductor is fully indicated by the fact that in an article on Chicago conductors in the new Musicians' Directory, Mr. Glenn Dillard Gunn mentions only four; i. e., the late Theodore Thomas, Frederick Stock, Harrison Wild and William Boepler.

But Mr. Boepler is equally successful as a teacher, and very especially as a voice builder and vocal coach.

By his thoroughness and his intelligent method of voice placing and voice building he has gained much distinction as a vocal teacher, and these qualities have won for him many serious-minded and enthusiastic pupils, both in Milwaukee and in Chicago, where he has a large class in Kimball Hall. Among professionals he is regarded as an authority in coaching for concert, church and opera. Following are a few of the best known artists who have studied with him: Iva Bigelow Weaver, soprano; Elsa Bloedel, contralto; Beecher Burton, tenor; Hannah Butler, soprano; Helen Cafarelli, soprano;

Lotta Chatroop, soprano; Gustaf Holmquist, bass; Jessie Lynde Hopkins, contralto; Anna Langrich, soprano; Rene S. Lund, baritone; Alma von der Muehlen, soprano; Dorothea North, soprano; Marion Roddy, soprano; Alfred Shaw, tenor; Mary L. Young, contralto; Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano; Katherine Clarke, contralto; Ora M. Fletcher, soprano; Adolf Gill, tenor; Cora Brinckley Lochner, soprano; Mable Corlew-Smith, soprano; Sarah Pruner, soprano; Louise Burton, soprano; Clara Pruessmann, contralto; Jane English, soprano; Letitia Gallaher, soprano, and many others.

In one particular branch of vocal art, that of the "German lied," Mr. Boepler by unanimous consent of the local profession excels to such a degree that he can truthfully be called Chicago's leading coach for German song.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra will give a Beethoven-Wagner program next Sunday afternoon, January 17, at the Illinois Theater under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program in its entirety is as follows:

PART I

Symphony No. 3 (Eroica).....Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Marcia funebre
Adagio funebre
Adagio assai
Scherzo and trio
Allegro vivace
Finale
Allegro molto

PART II

Prelude to Lohengrin.....Wagner
Dreams (study from Tristan).....Wagner
Mr. Alexander Saslavsky
Ride of the Valkyries.....Wagner
Prelude and Finale from Tristan and Isolde.....Wagner

Elena Gerhardt, soprano, and Efram Zimbalist, the Russian violin virtuoso, come to the Blackstone Theater for a joint recital, Sunday afternoon, January 24, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian pianist, will be the assisting artist at the second Kneisel Quartet concert, Sunday afternoon, January 31, at the Illinois Theater under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

OPERA BY DEVRIES PUPILS

At the end of this month or in the first week of February, Herman Devries will give with his students the two first acts of Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and the first act of Leo Delibes' "Lakme." The cast of "Lakme" is as follows: Gerald, Huntington B. Henry; Frederic, Lemuel Kilby; Nilokantha, Florian Varkony; Hadji, Cameron Stewart; Lakme, Mrs. Thomas J. Prindiville; Mallika, Marie Yahr; Ellen, Dorothy Cannon; Rose, Filomena Carsone; Mrs. Benson, Margaret Gaffey.

The cast of "Don Giovanni":

Don Giovanni, Lemuel Kilby; Don Ottavio, Beecher Burton; Leporello, Florian Varkony; Masetto, Frederic T. Blum; The Commendatore, Raymond Gifford; Donna Anna, Hazel Eden Mudge; Donna Elvira, Ethel Magie; Zerlina, Mrs. George C. Huxon.

BUST PORTRAITS OF CECIL FANNING

"Le Chanteur (portrait bust of Cecil Fanning, the Singer-Poet of Ohio), by M. E. Cook," is the inscription on the pedestal of the bust of Cecil Fanning which will be placed in the Ohio Building at the Pan-American Exhibition. This is one of the twenty-six works of art which have been chosen to represent Ohio artists at the great California Fair, and in this really remarkable piece of work is the happy combination of Sculpture, Poetry and Music.

Mr. Fanning and Mr. Turpin have been very busy since Christmas, having given three presentations of their song-play, "Irish Love," and several song recitals. At both Chicago and Detroit "Irish Love" met with such marked success that return dates were immediately taken under consideration. Next week Messrs. Fanning and Turpin will be filling engagements in New York State.

GALESBURG, ILL.

The climax of the season was reached in the grand opera artist recital course, under the management of Anna Groff-Bryant, by Mme. Schumann-Heink, who was the third artist to appear in the series of six recitals.

A large and enthusiastic audience applauded the singer as she stepped out upon the platform to make her first appearance in the city of Galesburg, and from the start to the finish of the program Mme.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Schumann-Heink was the recipient of applause after each number.

The large audience which gathered had come for miles to hear her, and represented every city surrounding classical Galesburg. A score and more people came from Burlington, Fort Madison and Fairfield, Ia., and several hundred came from Kewanee, Galena, Monmouth, Abingdon, Knoxville, Yathe City and many more of the smaller towns in the neighborhood. Many expressions of sympathy and deep regret over Mme. Schumann-Heink's illness have been received by Mme. Anna Groff-Bryant. The entire course has been received with the greatest enthusiasm and now that Mme. Schumann-Heink, the idol of the people, has been here, new interest has been awakened and no doubt each artist will be greeted with a large attendance.

The course was at first thought an impossible undertaking, because Galesburg never had such a course before. Many doubted that the course could be forthcoming. Much credit is given Mme. Groff-Bryant for the undertaking.

PENSIONS FOR THE ORCHESTRA
A LETTER

Mr. Stock's announcement at the Monday rehearsal, that the trustees are opposed to the idea of a pension fund within the ranks of the musicians, does not sound logical, for how can they be opposed to a scheme which has not yet been presented to them in set and definite terms? Very possibly certain of the trustees are opposed to this or that feature of the plan as they have heard it, and certain other trustees to another feature; but the plan, as a whole, has not yet been decided upon by the men themselves.

A committee is now at work upon a plan, which will in a short time be submitted to the trustees. The mistaken idea seems prevalent that the trustees will be asked for financial help. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The utmost that will be asked of them is to be custodians of the income and disbursing agents of the outgo.

The sources of income will be membership fees, weekly dues, benefit concerts, and, if the public approves, unsolicited donation. The eleven years' experience of the pension fund of the Boston Symphony Orchestra shows how perfectly practical their scheme is, and our plan will be modeled upon theirs.

VETERAN.

NOEL FOREST CONDUCTS VOCAL
STUDY CLASS

Mr. J. Noel Forest, the vocal teacher of 82 Auditorium Building, has arranged to conduct a vocal study class at his studio every Tuesday and Friday evening at 7:30.

J. NOEL FOREST

at which time those entering the class will be given opportunity to sing before the remainder of the class and also reap the benefit of observing others perform, which is of great educational value.

The study of choral works suitable to the development of the class will also be studied and rehearsed and Mr. Forest announces a performance of some leading cantata in due time.

Mr. Forest, who is becoming well established in Chicago's teaching circles, believes there is considerable need for such a class and that the work will be open to all who wish to advance in their vocal study for a fee far below that asked for private lessons.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The following students gave a very interesting program at the Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, last Friday evening. Anna Wedemeyer, Adeline Millar, Lucille Linneman, Beulah Bassett, Ethel and Sadie Rawitch, Beatrice Dorian, Wilfred Roberts, Franklin Paul, Bernice Heilman, Hilda Miller, Francis MacMaster, Gladys Welge. Every number was played from memory and with good expression.

Possibly among others the playing of Ethel Rawitch ought to be given special mention. She is just 7 years of age and played from memory and with graceful technic, "Grandpa's Dance," Behr; the "Carnation March," Holst; the "Dance of the Clowns," by Eilenberg, and the "Cuckoo Clock," by Heins. She is preparing to give an entire program in the near future. Franklin Paul and Gladys Welge gave some excellent violin solos and Miss Ida M. Moore of the faculty gave a reading which was very much enjoyed. There will be another recital at the College this Friday evening.

Cosmopolitan—The Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art announces a Junior Program for Saturday afternoon, January 16, in the recital hall of the school. Those taking part are from the class of Henry P. Eames, Miss Vivian Scott, Miss Sarah N. Jones, Miss Gladys Bracken, Miss Agnes Bodholdt, and Mr. LaBelle.

WISCONSIN COLLEGE OF MUSIC

December 7 the faculty of the Wisconsin College of Music of Milwaukee, Hans Bruening and Clarke Wooddell, directors, gave their first faculty concert at the Pabst Theater to a packed house. The concert was given for the benefit of the German-Austrian Widows' and Orphans' Fund and netted the snug sum of almost $1,000.

The third faculty concert was given

EDWARD	WALKER
	Concert---Oratorio---Recital
	TENOR
	1325 E. 64th

Friday, the 7th of January, at the Pabst for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund, under the auspices of the Belgian Relief Committee.

Before an audience of 3,000, Sunday afternoon, November 29, Mrs. Anna Bruening made her initial bow, in a symphony orchestra concert. Aply supported by Herman Zeitz's symphony orchestra, of which Milwaukee is justly proud, the singer easily made her way into the hearts of the people. The attentive listeners were drawn from all ranks of life and included many of the best lovers of music in Milwaukee. Her solo, the "Ave Maria," by Bruch, was augmented by the artist's accompanying.

CHARLES W. CLARK

Although not one single date had been booked for Mr. Clark for this season, as he intended to sing in England and not to return to this country before next Fall, his services are eagerly sought by many of the leading clubs and societies.

Among the dates booked for the near future are recitals with such important organizations as the famous Mendelssohn Club of Rockford, Ill.

In March, Mr. Clark will be heard by several of the most important Eastern colleges and universities, the course starting with a recital at Vassar. Prof. George C. Gow, the head of the music department at Vassar, an acknowledged authority on the art of singing and really great musician, is an ardent admirer of Mr. Clark, whose every recital in Paris he attended.

DEATH OF MME. GERVILLE-REACHE

Mme. Jeanne Gerville-Reache, contralto, died in New York last week.

Mme. Reache was a singer of fine attainments having been a leading contralto in the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and was also a woman of splendid intelligence and the finest sort of personality. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes to Dr. Rambaud, her husband, and also her personal representative and manager. Dr. Rambaud is director the Pasteur Institute in New York.

MME. GERVILLE-REACHE

SINAI TEMPLE

The program for next Sunday evening follows:

Overture to Oberon.....Weber
Aria, "I Am Titania" from opera ("Mignon").....Thomas
(Mrs. Herbert Spiesberger, soprano)
Ballet Suite "Queen of Sheba".....Goldmark
Organ solo

(Arthur Dunham)

Valse, Caprice.....Sibelius
March of the Dwarfs.....Grieg
Tarentelle from Foreign Lands.....Moszkowski
Group of Songs
(Mrs. Herbert Spiesberger, soprano)
March of the Boyards.....Halvorsen

JENNIE JOHNSON IN RECITAL

Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson will give a song recital at the Fine Arts Theater on Tuesday evening, February 2. The program to consist of:

Three songs with piano and viola.
Five songs in English.
Four songs by Scheinpfug, with violin, piano and English horn.
Five songs by Chicago composers.

NEW BOOKS AND MUSIC

Some Famous Singers of the Nineteenth Century, by Francis Rogers. (New York: H. W. Gray & Co.) Price $1.00.

The professional careers of fifteen of the most celebrated singers of the last century are sketched in a most interesting style in this convenient little volume. The incomparable basso, Lablache, the "perfect tenor," Rubini, Sontag, Lind, Malibran and the rest of the famous Garcia family, all live and move again in our imaginations. Several of the singers who were not actually connected with the Garcias by birth were associated with them as pupils of Manuel Garcia, so that—to quote the introductory sentence of the book—"The name of Garcia is written large in the history of song"; and it is doubtless through the influences of the illustrious head of the family and his natural and artistic descendants that the traditions of the golden age of Italian bel canto are transmitted even to this day.

The final chapter of the work makes some comparisons with latter-day singers and draws other conclusions for the edification of the student or general reader. A full-page portrait of each celebrity is given.

H. J. W.

PEARL SIDENIUS

Miss Pearl Sidenius is having a successful year as director of the Music Department of the Agricultural School at Jones-

CHICAGO, JAN. 15, 1915.

DEAR FRIENDS:—

I have just received 150 advance copies of my Oratorio, "From Easter to Pentecost," which I am able to offer at the reduced price of seventy-five cents a copy.

I shall be glad to send copies, post paid, on receipt of this amount, or will mail them for inspection.

Why not give this work a try-out during the Easter season?

Fraternally yours,

HUGO GOODWIN.

NEW ENGLAND CHURCH
Delaware Pl. and North Dearborn St.
CHICAGO, ILL.

burg, Ark. She also is giving some lectures that are meeting with great favor, as are her solo appearances.

The annual concert given by the Boys' Glee Club of the Agricultural College under the direction of Miss Pearl Sidenius, supervisor of music, was a most creditably rendered program, and would have reflected credit on glee clubs of much larger institutions. The program consisted of a varied collection of college songs together with some from the very best composers, and the manner in which all rendered their parts, showed they had been well drilled.

Besides the boys taking part, Miss Constance Graham, one of the piano pupils, rendered a selection that was well received and a reading by Miss Loraine Huggins was so well received that she responded to an encore. Each and every number rendered by the club was well received but the one that was more enjoyed than any perhaps was the quartette, "Eileen," rendered by Leonard Looney, Rowland Frazier, Burt Harb and Ralph Moon. The number was so well received that they responded to a hearty encore. The blending of the voices of the singers was especially good. Miss Sidenius rendered in a most pleasing manner "Sunlight Waltzes," by Harriet Ware, and so liberal was the applause given she responded with a pleasing encore.

"Julius Caesar, a mellow-drammer in one dram," was a well rendered farce and was greatly enjoyed by the crowd. Miss Mary Rogers was the accompanist and acquitted herself with much ease.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL OF OAK PARK

The following is the program to be given next Sunday evening, January 16:

Organ Prelude—Suite; Prologue, March, Inter-mezzo.....Rogers

Mr. Kinsey

Anthem, Quartet—I Will Extol Thee (from "Elijah").....Costa

Anthem Chorus—The Sun Shall Be No More.....Woodward

Offertory solo—Cry Aloud, Spare Not.....Patten

Miss Edna Dunham

Sermon

Response—Even Me.....Warren

Organ Postlude—Postlude in E Flat.....Abernethy

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Tenors and basses for North Shore Men's Chorus; best music; good experience; public concerts. Raymond N. Carr, 4652 Magnolia av.

WANTED—A second hand practice clavier. Address F. L. Denhard, 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

TEACHER of artistic piano playing, with strong personality, wishes position mornings. Address L. Music News.

TO RENT—Two months or longer; furnished studio; 75 Auditorium; can be seen 5 to 6 p. m. daily; or phone Wabash 6794.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

O RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

WANTED—Accompanist for Monday and Thursday afternoons; voice lessons in exchange. Address G. H. K., care of Music News.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

Sacred and Secular Songs

Published by

TULLAR-MEREDITH CO.

265 W. 36th St. 14 W. Washington St.
NEW YORK CHICAGO

SACRED---

LILLIAN TAITT SHELDON—

Three Songs for Medium Voice,

THE PALACE O' THE KING 50

THE PRAYER OF LIFE 50

WHEN THE ANGEL COMES 50

I. H. MEREDITH—

THE VALLEY OF PEACE 50

Duet (Medium and High Voices) with optional refrain for mixed or male voices.

SECULAR---

NELLIE SHORTHILL BRADSHAW

AWAKE! AWAKE! 'TIS THE GLAD

SPRINGTIME 60

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU 50

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LOVE'S LESSON 40

(2 Keys, Medium and High).

LULLABY 60

(Medium Voice with Violin Obligato).

50% Discount from Above Prices

CONSTANCE PURDY

Constance Purdy is singing a Russian program for the Schubert Club of St. Paul, January 13, and is to spend some weeks in the vicinity of St. Louis and Chicago. She has had a reasonably busy season so far, and from the inquiries now being made the future promises much. Exclusive of the purely private musicales, she has had so far a Russian lecture and recital before the Radcliffe Club of New York, a concert at the Plaza for the benefit of the French Ambulance Hospital, one in Brooklyn when she sang for the first time in Lithuanian,—and there are some really beautiful songs in this almost wholly unknown language. A Russian program at the Women's University Club, given for the Union Settlement Music School, and the appearance with the Russian Bayan Quartet at Columbia University were among her most successful appearances.

Last season Miss Purdy won much praise for her vivid interpretation of the Moussorgsky songs, so much so that the Boston "Transcript" said they "were each a perfect work of art." Some day the so-called musical public will realize that it is more possible to make an entire program from the songs of Moussorgsky than from almost any other known composer, so great is their diversity in subject matter and in expressiveness. This year Miss Purdy is offering more of those delicious children's songs, which are even better for the grown-ups than the children. One earnest enthusiastic listener writes, "I have heard them so many times that I am sure no one else can possibly do them as Constance Purdy sings them, and," adds the writer, "she could make her fortune in vaudeville, she is so keen an actress."

CONSTANCE PURDY
In Russian Costume

Accompanying Miss Purdy on her tour is the accomplished and sympathetic pianist-accompanist, Mabel Hammond, whose work constitutes greatly to the success of the programs.

LOUIS KREIDLER

Mr. Louis Kreidler, whose successes with the Century Opera Company were pronounced and who has often been heard in Chicago with other companies, has decided to make this city his home and will accept pupils at his studio, 4051 Calumet avenue.

Mr. Kreidler will also fulfill concert engagements and has many bookings in that line. His recital before the Lake View Musical Society on last Monday afternoon was one of the most attractive music functions of this season and his success with the Harvester Choral Society a few days ago was also a fine one.

Mr. Kreidler is an artist of the best type and his addition to the music forces of Chicago is a notable one.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER IN CHICAGO RECITAL

"In the Fine Arts Theater Mme Augusta Alberti, American Contralto, appeared in the Metropolitan Artists Series in recital. Mme. Alberti disclosed the possession of a voice of great native beauty of surprising range and adequate power. It is evident that she has studied well, for two arias from Saint-Saens' "Samson et Dalila" were delivered with that simplicity which most surely proves a thorough understanding of style.—Glenn Dillard Gunn in Chicago Tribune.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

A voice of richness and power and she uses it well.—Felix Borowski in Chicago Record-Herald.

Augusta Alberti, contralto, interpreted a variety of modern songs, including two by Saint-Saens, an American group by Spross, Bond, Loge and Salter and a German group by Schubert, Hildach and Franz. Mme. Alberti displayed a powerful voice of good training in this list and particularly clear is her enunciation of the English text. She also made a very favorable impression with the two songs, "The Spring Aria" and "Oh, Love of Thy Might" by Saint-Saens.—Maurice Rosenfeld in Chicago Examiner.

Mrs. Meeker has been very successful in her concert and oratorio work. Below is a partial list of cantatas and oratorios she is prepared to sing: "Messiah," "St. Paul," "Elijah," "The Veil," "Stabat Mater," "Samson and Delilah," "Rose Maiden," "Judas Maccabeus."

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND EXPRESSION

Walther Brauer, 'cellist of the Orchard School of Music and Expression, was the assisting artist with Miss Jessie Armager Power, Tuesday noon at the annual luncheon of the Art Department of the Arche Club given in the banquet hall of the Auditorium Hotel. Miss Power appeared as the Princess Scheherazade of the Arabian Nights Entertainment and told stories from the Thousand and One Nights and presented Oriental interpretative dances in costume, while Mr. Brauer interlarded the numbers with appropriate solo numbers, among which were the "Orientale" by Caesar Cui, "Kol Nidrei" by Max Bruch and "Spanish Dance" by Popper, with Mrs. Perry J. Power at the piano. Monday evening Miss Power and Mr. Brauer presented a program under the direction of John Allen Richardson, for the benefit of the choir encampment fund of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Kenwood, at the residence of Mrs. Robert Burns Boak, 4744 Kimbark avenue.

CHRISTINE MILLER

Schedule of two weeks' western tour for Christine Miller:

CHRISTINE MILLER

January 12, Iowa City Ia.
January 13, Waterloo, Ia.
January 14, Cedar Falls, Ia.
January 15, Northfield, Minn.
January 17, Minneapolis, Minn.
January 18, Faribault, Minn.
January 19, Vinton, Ia.
January 21, Evanston, Ill.

LA SALLE, ILL.

Cave Thompson, Chicago's celebrated blind pianist, was heard in recital Wednesday evening at Fraternity Hall in Oglesby.

Mr. Thompson's performance was both difficult and brilliant, and from beginning to end displayed a technical proficiency that, considering his affliction, was very remarkable.

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

His rendition of the MacDowell Sonata, Chopin Scherzo and Liszt's most difficult Rhapsodia Hongroise No. 12 captivated his audience.

The recital was given under the auspices of the Oglesby Choral Club.—La Salle Daily Tribune.

FRITZ KREISLER

Sunday afternoon, January 17, Fritz Kreisler will give a violin recital in the Auditorium at 3:30 p. m. The program follows:

Concerto in C Major.....	Antonio Vivaldi
Allegro Maestoso.....
Andante Lamentoso.....
Allegro Giocoso.....
Sonata in G Minor (The Devil's Trill).....	Tartini
Mr. Kreisler.....
Agatha's Aria from Der Freischutz.....	Weber
Madame van Endert.....
Chaconne (for violin alone).....	Bach
Romance in A Major.....	Schumann
Rondo in G Major.....	Mozart
Mr. Kreisler.....
Autumn.....	Rogers
The Leaves of the Wind.....	Leoni
Standchen.....	R. Strauss
Wiegenlied.....	Humperdinck
Madame van Endert.....
Indian Lament.....	Dvorak-Kreisler
Caprice Viennois.....	Kreisler
24th Caprice.....	Paganini
Mr. Kreisler.....

NEW HAVEN, CONN

New Haven people have been enjoying some notable concerts since the winter season commenced. The first concert of the New Haven Symphony Orchestra was given on Tuesday afternoon November 3, followed by the second of the series December 2. The attendance at the concerts brings out the musicians and lovers of high-class music who are growing more and more discriminating in their judgment and taste for the classical numbers. The soloist at the first concert was Ethel Leginska, pianist, who distinguished herself by a fine interpretation of Beethoven's Concerto in G major, Op. 58. This concerto was written in the year 1805 and dedicated to the Archduke Rudolph of Austria.

The orchestra played Robert Schumann's Symphony in D minor No. 4 Op. 120. The dreamy motive of the introduction was most beautifully done, also the different phrases of the Ronanze. Professor Parker, who conducted, with his musicians so well under control, received the hearty applause which they so well merited.

The second Symphony concert had for soloist Mrs. Harriet Foster, soprano. The Symphony showed a fine working out of the different and difficult points in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, especially as it was their first rendition of the work. Much praise was due to the fine conception of it by Professor Parker. Mrs. Foster sang a number of groups of songs in a pleasing and tasteful manner. They were written by Willis B. Alling, of New Haven. There was a novelty in form of a musical setting of "Le Nil," which had its first rendition in America. The piece was scored by Sir Henry Wood for his London Symphony Orchestra.

The Philharmonic Society of New York gave a musical treat to New Haven on December 15 and it may be called the best musical event of the season. It was under the able conductorship of Josef Stransky. The opening number on the program was Dvorak's symphony, "New World." This work so full of changes, for instance the motives with their dissonances and so often heard in the Scandinavian compositions, were decidedly effective. Beautiful nuances of color were also evident throughout, and Stransky gives great attention to the rhythmic value of a composition which the orchestra played with admirable skill. At the finish they were applauded to the echo. Following on the program was Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," a rhapsody in the pastore style. The score is full of changes of intervals, yet a lightness and delicate coloring was heard throughout. It was gratifying to the ear, if not by all the audience well understood.

Julia Culp, lieder singer, was the soloist. She sang a group of Brahms, the three songs of Ellen from Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake" as set to music by Franz Schubert. The lady was well received and applauded.

The program was brought to a close with Smetana's Overture, "The Bartered Bride," a brilliant composition and a fitting ending of a splendid concert.

David Bispham gave one of his unique recital programs with Mr. Woodruff Rogers an able accompaniment.

At each number of the program Mr. Bispham gave a little description of the poem which he sang later. This feature pleased and interested the large and cultured audience present and met with hearty applause. The artist was in excellent voice and very graciously responded to the many encores he received. It was altogether a most artistic concert and one of the very best heard here of late.

MADAME TEALDI.

LOS ANGELES

With the holiday season, the local forces gave out some public performances of much musical and artistic values. The Long Beach Band and the La Monica's Band of Venice on successive nights at the Million Club and Examiner's Christmas Tree and free lunch fest. Thousands enjoyed the gifts and the treat, and also the splendid open air concerts. Madame Zani, Miss Virginia Foltz, Madame Virginia Goodsell gave solos, which demanded recalls and encores. Many hotels gave most attractive programs.

The C. Whitney Coombs cantata, "Christmas," was repeated by the Temple Choir Chorus of about 100 voices. Mr. J. B. Poulton, director, with a good solo equipment in Mr. Ralph R. Laughlin, tenor; Miss Smyser, soprano; Mr. George H. Bemiss, basso, and Miss Alice Lohr, contralto, who have an audience of 3,500, twice each Sunday to hear their vocalism and interpretation singing. Mr. Ray Hastings supported with the fine organ of the Auditorium.

The Gamut Club at the monthly banquet last night gave a very cordial reception to Signor Constantino and the manager, Mr. M. Marchetti, who will open the opera season here on January 18, in the Clune Auditorium with a good array of solo talent, orchestra and chorus. "Aida" will be the introductory performance, and a season of two weeks is promised with some of six or eight operas to be given in English text.

Mr. John McCormack will have recovered from his cold to give his postponed concert recital Saturday afternoon this week.

The twenty-fifth annual Tournament of Roses, at Pasadena, seemed to surpass all former ones in charming floats and floral designs. The bands were a dozen or more. The procession was some four miles long, January 1, all but a summer day. The day was clear and warm, and the visitors 75,000 to 100,000 people. The Rosarians of Portland, Oregon, made an impressive showing in band and drill team. S. W. MOUNTZ.

446 West Fortieth Place.

MRS. DERDIGER'S PUPIL

Mrs. Agnes MacMeekin, advanced pupil of Ella Jane Derdiger, will sing for the Austin Woman's Club, Monday afternoon, January 11. Mrs. MacMeekin received her entire vocal instruction under the tutelage of Mrs. Derdiger. She is the possessor of a high dramatic soprano voice of three octaves which shows careful training. She sings with ease and musical expression.

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSE

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE

FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINE S. BROWN STAGE

TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER

PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST---Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano Baritone
JOINT RECITALS--ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET LAWS MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT CONTRALTO
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319HENIOT LEVYPIANIST
Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSONEdith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.MAE DoellingPianist Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HARTPIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLouise LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITYW. Otto MiessnerSupervisor of Music Milwaukee
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard AvDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
FILS ACCEPTED Charles City IowaERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

An event of unusual interest to local music lovers was the artistic joint recital given by Miss Alice Sloan, pianist, and Mr. Frank J. Hannon, baritone, in Miss Sloan's studio last Sunday afternoon. Miss Sloan has a large following and is equally successful as a piano or vocal teacher and surely she could not have a better testimonial to her success as a vocal teacher than her talented pupil, Mr. Hannon. Miss Sloan played all of her numbers with fine expression and a thorough understanding of her composers, and while all were interesting, to the mind of the writer she excelled in the Schumann "Impromptu" and the Debussy "Arabesque." Mr. Hannon was in very good voice and was given a most hearty reception by the large audience. His rendition of the thrilling "Prologue" from "Pagliacci" was as fine an exhibition of singing as has been heard in any vocal studio in this city—in fact Mr. Hannon's musical intelligence is such as to lift his singing out of the ranks of the amateur. His shorter songs were well sung, but it was the "Pagliacci" number that brought out to best advantage all the charming qualities of Mr. Hannon's really beautiful voice. Miss Sloan is to be complimented for the artistic and thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

The compositions of Henry B. Vincent which made up the January recital program of Albert H. Dowling, Jr., organist at the First Unitarian Church, included "Tavanay" (Concert Minuet), "Orlaine" (Gavotte), "Love Song" from "The Garden of Kama," a "Romance" in D major, which is still in manuscript, "Love's Day" and the "Fanfare" from "The Prodigal Son."

Miss Lucy Hogan, pianist, assisted by Miss Winifred Wright, contralto, both students at the Erie Conservatory, gave a delightful recital in the Conservatory Auditorium on Wednesday evening, January 6.

The next symphony concert of the Erie Orchestra, which was announced for January 3, has been postponed until January 10, at which time a very popular program is to be played. While one can appreciate Mr. Kohler's desire to please the public, yet it seems a pity that the music lovers of the city will not have an opportunity of hearing some of the heavier numbers. Last year the orchestra played Beethoven's "Fifth," Schubert's "Unfinished," Dvorak's "New World," which were all very well done. It is to be hoped that the program following the January concert will include some work of the same calibre as those above listed.

Christine Miller, who will appear in recital here during February in connection with Mrs. McCoy's artists' series, announces that she will include on her program a number of songs by American composers, which will be welcome news to Erie music lovers who appreciate how sincerely and enthusiastically this talented contralto has labored in behalf of American music.

A. H. D. JR.

Weaver—Iva Bigelow Weaver has been filling many concert engagements in Michigan during the first part of January with a concert company composed of, in addition to herself, Mac Doelling, pianist, and Sig. Salvi, harpist. Mrs. Weaver has also been the soprano soloist at several "Messiah" performances.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIFORNIA

The Congregational Church was filled to its capacity on December 27 when Frederick Stevenson, the well known composer, brought together his mixed chorus of twenty picked voices for a twilight musical service. Mr. Stevenson has shown excellent judgment in the selection of the voices for this choir, and a rare ability in organizing them into a body of workers attentive to his every wish and under remarkable control. He has thus brought together a well balanced group of singers and eliminated to a large extent that element of roughness and ragged edges which occasionally presents itself in the best of choral organizations. The chorus was assisted by the Arlington Hotel trio, an excellent group of players devoted to the giving of chamber music, comprising Mrs. Cora Clerbois, violin; Stephen Thaxter, cello, and George Clerbois, piano; and by Reginald Martin at the organ.

Mr. Stevenson presented two of his own compositions, "Hear, O My People," and "Behold, Thou Shalt Call a Nation," also "Canticum de Noel," by Adolphe Adam, with solo by Mrs. Landers Hummel, and "Inflamatus," from "Stabat Mater," with Miss Audrey Turner as soloist. The organ piano and strings were heard alone in the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah, "Agnus Dei," by Bizet, and "Thanks Be to God," from "Elijah."

So delighted were the audience with the entire program that a repetition was demanded the following Sunday, when every available seat in the church was taken long before the opening number.

A. B. BARNETT.

FOR RAPID PROGRESS
IN PIANO, Thorne's Indicator.

It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT. No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $50, mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THURN, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKERCONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune,—"A voice of great natural beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866LOUIS KREIDLERCONCERTS BARITONE PUPILS
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Telephone Kenwood 627H. WILHELM
Baritone NORDIN324 North Spring Street La Grange, Ill.
RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIOMarie Hoover EllisConcert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., ChicagoJ. PARNELL EGANCONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL
1351 Granville AvenueLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio-Recital-Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

Convention of the American Guild of Organists

Reported by J. HENRY FRANCIS

The first convention of the American Guild of Organists of the United States and Canada is in the past and the prospects for the next are now in consideration. Although talked of, last summer, it was only recently and very hurriedly arranged, the warden, Mr. J. Warren Andrews, being principally instrumental in bringing it about, and a good representative gathering resulted. The meetings were held in Havenmeyer Hall and the recitals in St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University. The session was opened by an address of welcome by Provost William H. Carpenter of Columbia, to which a response was given by Warden Andrews. An organ recital by Mr. Charles Heinroth, city organist of Pittsburgh, Pa., followed.

PROGRAM

Overture to the "Occasional Oratorio".....

.....George Frederick Handel
Andante Maestoso, Allegro
Adagio
March

The Italian born, but naturalized Frenchman, Lulli, crystallized the early form of overture into a species of design, so obvious and so inclined to meet all requirements of the day in respect to operatic preludes, that it became a type accepted without hesitancy by all immediate composers, great and small. It consists of several movements; usually a grave introduction ushered in the main movement, a spirited allegro almost invariably in fugal style, to which might be added some of the dignified dances of the period. Handel, who was not an innovator in regard to form, naturally adopted the generally accepted operatic overture as a matter of course, suitable to the oratorio; more particularly since to him at first an oratorio was nothing but an opera with a biblical text, performed without scenery or action. Here we have one of the most interesting examples of all these early overtures. The "Overture to the Occasional Oratorio" musically considered presents some of the most marked traits of characteristic Handelian writing. In the general arrangement of movements, in contrast of key and mood, it approaches the sonata form and in fact may be regarded as a curious early example of embryo sonata. The "Occasional Oratorio" was written in celebration of the quelling of the Jacobite uprising in 1745.

Nocturne.....Dr. Giuseppe Ferrata

Dr. Chevalier Giuseppe Ferrata was for several years connected with the department of music at Beaver College. He now resides at New Orleans. He has won recognition outside the borders of our land, gaining an unusual distinction in securing the gold medal at the Exposition in Milan, 1906, and in 1907 carried off a prizes for compositions offered by the Art Society. Even a cursory glance at his compositions will convince that he belongs to the modern school of musical thought, that he is interested to find new harmonic and melodic piquancy and color.

Passacaglia.....Johann Sebastian Bach

This is considered by most critics the finest work composed by Bach for the organ. It was written during his incumbency of the position of "Hof-Organist" in Weimar, 1708-1717. A Passacaglia was originally an Italian or Spanish dance in triple time. But is now known principally as an early example of variation form. The difference between our modern variations and a Passacaglia consists in the fact that in the latter the theme is kept quite intact in contradistinction to its being capable of great elaboration and development in the variations. Also greater variety is secured in the latter by a freer choice of keys, in this way overcoming an undeniable monotony noticeable in most Passacaglias unless hidden by interesting registration. The present one by Bach is the finest example of the form and is without any of the above-mentioned objections. In conclusion he makes use of the theme, which is heard at the beginning of the composition in the pedals, in an elaborate and most masterly fugue.

Caprice, "The Brook".....Gaston Marie Dethier

This descriptive piece requires considerable pianistic technic. It is a merry movement and the picture is obvious; the brook runs and skips here, there and everywhere, now dashes swiftly, again glides smoothly, now gurgles softly—but always busy, playful and full of life. A composition of this style requires a perfect organ action; a generation ago such a movement would have been impossible of performance on the organ.

Dithyramb.....Basil Harwood

Just as Reubke's Sonata, "The Ninety-Fourth Psalm," is cited as the representative achievement in romantic German organ literature so, in like manner is the Dithyramb by Basil Harwood advanced as the most noteworthy attainment that has appeared in the English organ literature. And with good reason; it is individualistic and idiomatic as well. Nor can it be said that the composer leans upon anyone for expression, form or technical figuration. The subject is handled with directness, freedom and abandon as well as emotional ardor, as befits the title. A Dithyramb in ancient Greek literature was a passionately lyrical hymn sung by revellers, in honor of Dionysos or Bacchus. To it is traced the origin of the choral element in Greek poetry.

Theme and Variations in A Flat.....Louis Thiele

This is at once one of the most brilliant and most difficult compositions written for the organ. Writing showing a modern development on the substructure of Bach. Thiele was an exceptional organist of greatest promise, but succumbed, all too young, to an epidemic of cholera which swept Europe in 1848. The third and sixth variations, while interesting, will be omitted as they are not essential but rather delay the presentation of organic growth of the theme.

Mr. Heinroth is well known to the profession, and it is enough to say that he fully sustained the enviable reputation he has made for himself. The chapel at Columbia is not the best place in the world for recital work, however, on account of the poor acoustics. The echo rolls out each tone again and again until confusion is rampant.

The rest of the morning was occupied by the discussion of "In what way can the Organists' Guild unite with the Ministry in enhancing the dignity and beauty of the non-liturgical service?"

Two papers were read.

"From the Viewpoint of an Organist," by A. Madeley Richardson, M. A., Mus. Doc., Oxon., F. R. C. O.

"From the Viewpoint of the Ministry," by Rev. Howard Duffield, D. D.

Discussion led by John Hyatt Brewer, F. A. G. O., but the matter was so thoroughly considered and so clearly put before them by the two first named that little was left to be said; it was all so decidedly in accord with the views of everyone present.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers

318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and 2831 Washington Bldg.

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian
Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cannopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford
VOICE "PIANO"
Fine Arts Building
Gunn Studios

Edith Adelaide Kien
Pianist and Accompanist
Studio, Arlington Av. and May St. South Elmhurst, Ill.

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Maybelle Smylie Davison
SOPRANO-TEACHER
642 E. 64th Street Management Willis Mayne

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

The afternoon session opened with a paper by Professor Waldo S. Pratt of Hartford Theological Seminary, on "The Organist's Ideals. How far should they be sacrificed, if at all?" Discussion led by Louis Arthur Russell, A. G. O. Professor Pratt presented the subject in a masterly way, and, as may be imagined, a very great diversity of opinion was encountered.

At 4:30 the meeting adjourned for another organ recital, this time by William C. Hammond, A. G. O., of Mount Holyoke College.

PROGRAM

Passacaglia in B Flat Major, Frescobaldi
Pastorale in G Major, Composed about 1627
Andante (from a quintet) Mozart
Oriental Sketch, No. 3. Bird
Spring Song Hol brooke
Sonata in E Flat. Fink
Allegro
Andante
Introduction and Fugue
Scherzando, Op. 29, No. 3. Pierne
Piece Syphonique. Grieg

Mr. Hammond has a delightful personality and seemed to imbue the instrument with it. At all events the several numbers reflected the man and his love for it and them.

In the evening a Festival Service was held at St. Thomas' Church, with the splendid choir of that church, under the direction of T. Tertius Noble. By special request many of his compositions were used; and an address by the rector, Rev. Ernest M. Stires, D. D.

Processional Hymn 407. Noble
Psalms 148, 149, 150
Magnificat, Nunc Dimittis, in B Minor. Noble
Anthem, Pierce Was the Wild Billow. Noble

Fierce was the wild billow,
Dark was the night,
Oars labor'd heavily,
Foam glimmer'd white.
Trembled the mariners,
Peril was nigh;
Then saith the God of God,
"Peace! It is I!"

Ridge of the mountain wave,
Lower thy crest,
Wail of Euroclydon,
Be thou at rest;
Sorrow can never be,
Darkness must fly
When saith the Light of Light,
"Peace! It is I!"

Jesu, deliverer,
Come Thou to me,
Soothe Thou my voyaging
Over life's sea;
Thou, when the storm of Death
Roars sweeping by,
Whisper, O Truth of Truth,
"Peace! It is I!"

Hymn 49. Noble
Address, The Rector
Solemn Te Deum in B Minor. Noble
Benediction
Recessional Hymn 52. Plainsong
Concluding Voluntary, Fantasia in F Minor. Mozart

Dr. Stires spoke at some length of the kindly helpful relationship between the minister and the organist, paying glowing tributes especially to some of his own associates in the work and particularly to the present incumbent, Mr. Noble.

The service was beautifully rendered, the anthem being perhaps one of the finest heard in a long time. After a strong forceful organ introduction, the choir sang this very effective number, a capella in a manner to charm even the least musically inclined, to stir even the hardened soul to awakening.

The second day of the convention was inaugurated by a brief social session, an organ recital by Samuel A. Baldwin, F. A. G. O., organist of the College of the City of New York, who gave us this splendid program of contrasts.

PROGRAM

Prelude in E Flat. J. S. Bach
(1685-1750)

The E flat Prelude is one of the four great preludes which can be assigned to the last and best period of Bach's life (Leipzig, 1723-50). In scope and grandeur it surpasses all the rest. It is a highly developed composition, based upon two themes, the first majestic, the second florid in character and treated fugally.

Choral-Prelude (Jesu, meine Zuversicht) J. S. Bach

This Choral-Prelude shows the great master from a standpoint unfamiliar to those who only know him in his gigantic fugues. Here we get very close to the heart of the man. Lavishing upon it a wealth of tenderness and religious feeling, he has decorated the old, austere choral melody until it has become a thing of beauty under his hand.

Scena Pastorale, Op. 132, No. 3. M. Enrico Bossi

This composition is from one of Bossi's latest works for the organ, a set of five pieces in "free style." M. Enrico Bossi (b. 1861), is director of the Liceo Musicale at Bologna.

First Symphony, Opus 20. A. Maquaire

Allegro

Andante
This is a work of imposing proportions, one of the most striking of recent compositions of the French School, Maquaire is a leader among the younger men of that school. He is a pupil of Widor and was for a time his substitute at the "great organ" at St. Sulpice.

There are a Scherzo and a finale in addition to the movements played.

Second Movement, Sonata No. 1, in A Minor. Felix Borowski

Felix Borowski was born in England of Slavonic parentage in 1872. Studied at Cologne. Lived in London until 1897. Since that date connected with the Chicago Musical College.

Toccata in A. J. Frank Frysinger

Mr. Frysinger is head of the organ department at the University School of Music, Lincoln, Neb. He has written a considerable number of compositions for the organ in a most pleasing style.

This is his latest work, having been published during the present year.

Nocturne, Op. 50, No. 6. Arthur Foote

In its exquisite contrasts of tone color, this composition by a well-known Boston musician, reveals the organ in a particularly lovely phase.

Grand Choeur in A. Ralph Kinder

Mr. Kinder is organist of Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia.

Then came the discussion of "Music Appreciation as a National Asset." First, "Choral Music" by William John Hall, Mus. Doc., dean of Missouri Chapter, who gave us a very interesting, helpful and scholarly reading on the subject. Then, "Church Music," by Professor Walter Henry Hall, A. G. O., of Columbia University, who stirred up quite a protest by his reference to one of our departed fellow-workers.

It never seems quite right to even hint at suspicion of another's motives, after he is dead. In any case conditions were entirely different twenty years ago, everywhere; and conditions are very different even today in some parts of the country from those under which some of our best thinkers have the good fortune to work. Why not give the benefit of the doubt to a possible fitting to the needs of the times? Music in our case is but a means to an end, and surely you cannot reach the uncultured if your efforts are directed above their heads.

Two other papers, "School and College Music," by Professor Henry Dyke Sleeper, F. A. G. O., of Smith College; and "The Organ as a Concert Instrument," by Mark Andrews, F. A. G. O., A. R. C. O., concluded the morning session.

At 2 p. m. Everette E. Truette, Mus. Bac., A. G. O., of Boston led the discussion with a capital paper on "What Constitutes a Church Organist and Wherein Are Our Present Methods of Instruction Defective?" after which Arthur Foote, M. A., A. G. O., read a strong and instructive paper on "The Guild Examinations; Their Importance to a Practical Organist," advocating some radical views on adjudging applicants, etc. The discussion was led by Warren R. Hedden, Mus. Bac., F. A. G. O.

An organ recital by Professor James T. Quarles, A. A. G. O., organist Cornell University, followed, with this interesting program.

PROGRAM

Choral Song and Fugue.....Dr. Samuel Sebastian Wesley
(1810-1876)

Dr. Samuel Sebastian Wesley, grand nephew of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, was not only an organist of rare distinction but also a composer of unusual attainments. While organist of Exeter Cathedral he wrote three sets of pieces for the chamber organ, and dedicated them to his pupil, Lady Acland. The Choral Song and Fugue, from the first set, greatly exceed the resources of a chamber organ. The Choral Song shows the characteristic ring and vigor of the very best of England's cathedral music. The Fugue is bright and sparkling and shows a fertility and fluency that is rare in the musical annals of Great Britain.

Sonata in A. Opus 65, No. 3.....Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy
(1809-1847)

Among the few great composers who have written music for the organ, the name of Mendelssohn stands out pre-eminently. The uncouth and cumbrous character of the instrument in former times offered little inducement to composers to write music for it. The only ones of the greatest composers who have written directly for the organ are Bach, Handel and Mendelssohn. The six organ sonatas of the latter were published in 1845, two years before his death, and have always been highly esteemed by lovers of the organ. They are hardly sonatas at all in the modern sense of the word, but are cast in the classic mould of the Bach polyphonic works. The third sonata, here presented, opens with a broad majestic introduction, leading into a highly elaborated and impassioned fugue, during the course of which the well-known chorale, "Aus tiefer noth," is introduced. The second movement is in the most melodious and reposeful vein, and forms a marked contrast to the storm and stress of the preceding movement.

Meditation.....Th. Bubeck
Bubeck is professor of organ at the Moscow Conservatory. He has written much for the organ, and his works show genuine gifts of a high order.

Fantaisie in A.....Caesar Franck
(1822-1890)

Although born in Belgium, Franck is generally regarded as the founder of the modern French school of music. He was organist at St. Clotilde (1858-90) and professor of organ at the Paris Conservatory (1872-90). He was little appreciated during his lifetime and lived quietly, delighting in teaching many of the most noteworthy composers of the present generation. His music breathes a lofty mysticism, a contemplative calm and aloofness which Saint-Saens describes as "cathedralesque." This fantasia is the first of a set of three pieces written for the dedication of the organ in the Trocadero in Paris. It is full of that intense and restless passion that so abounds in Franck's later works.

Two Choral Vorspielen.....Johannes Brahms
Es ist ein Res entsprungen.....Johannes Brahms
Wie schon leuchtet der Morgenstern.....Johannes Brahms

The first item above is from a set of eleven choral-preludes written by Brahms in May and June of the year 1896, and were the very last works from his pen. The basis of the work is rather a very old Christmas carol, and is very dear to the hearts of the German peasantry. The poetry is full of delicate mood, and a free translation by Prof. A. W. Boesche of Cornell is as follows:

Behold! From tender root has sprung
A rose of wondrous hue.
As prophet's voice of old has sung,
From Jesse's seed it grew,
Brought forth a tender flower
In the cold and wintry night,
Yea, in its darkest hour.

The second item is by one of the most brilliant composers of organ music that Germany has produced in recent years. Karg-Elert is connected with the Conservatory of Music at Leipzig. This work is also a well known Christmas song, and illustrates well the modern handling of chorales in Germany.

Noces d'Or.....Leon Roques
Evensong.....Easthope Martin
Procession Indienne.....Ernest R. Kroeger, A. G. O.

Leon Roques is organist of St. Pierre de Choil-lot in Paris. Noces d'or (golden wedding) was written in honor of M. Jacques Durand and Madame Durand, of the famous French publishing house of that name.

The Evensong is a charming bit of melody by one of the younger English composers.

Ernest R. Kroeger, A. G. O., was born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1862, and is well known as one of America's foremost composers. He has written in all forms except opera. This work is full of quaint orientalism, and abounds in striking color-combinations. It is dedicated to Mr. Quarles.

Finale from Symphony I, Opus 14.....Louis Vierne
Vierne is organist at the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris. This brilliant movement is in modern vein, and well illustrates the striking style of treating the organ as originated by Widor in his organ symphonies.

The deliberations were brought to a close at the banquet at Hotel McAlpin at 7 o'clock, where good fellowship reigned, and opportunity offered for the making of new friendships and the renewal of old ones over the genial atmosphere of the dinner table.

Warden Andrews presided and introduced the principal speaker of the evening, Rev. Charles D. Flint, D. D. Dr. Flint spoke well and impressively of the organist's work, life and opportunities, summing up in appointing him the right hand man of the pastor, and perhaps in many instances more important to the soul's good.

Arthur Scott Brook, president of National Association of Organists, as special guest of the guild, also made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion, and bespeaking the warm friendly feeling of the members of the association to those of the guild, and expressing the hope of a further and better general good to come from the working together of these two organizations.

William J. Hall, dean of Missouri, also made a brief report of the work of that chapter.

Altogether the convention was a great inspiration and presages much good in every way for the guild itself and for the individual organist.

Nichols—Owing to the great success at the University of Vermont last summer, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Nichols have been re-engaged for the coming summer session of about six weeks. Mr. Nichols is to have charge of the vocal department and Mrs. Nichols is to assist Mr. Charles Lee Tracey the well-known exponent of the Leschetizky method for piano. This is a delightful spot to go for a few weeks summer rest, recuperation and study, beautifully situated as it is on Lake Champlain, with the Adirondacks on one side and the green mountains on the other, affording one good boating, fishing, automobiling or mountain climbing. Last season the attendance of the summer schools of the University of Vermont was more than doubled over what it had been in years previous and an even larger enrollment is expected this coming summer.

Kanberg—Mr. Alfred Kanberg will sing in "The Messiah" at Kenosha, Wis., on January 23.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR

3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST

Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO

RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS
RECITALS

HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-
CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy

Recital
Oratorio
Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5070
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

Emil Oberhoffer and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

A red letter date in the music season in Chicago is the annual appearance of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, under the characteristic direction of Mr. Emil Oberhoffer, whose likeness is today on the front page of Music News.

This concert will be given this year on Sunday afternoon, February 28, and will be the last of the mid-winter tour which includes Omaha, St. Joseph, Kansas City, St. Louis, Louisville, Dayton, Columbus, etc.

Mr. Oberhoffer is a supreme favorite in Chicago. His magnetic personality, no less than his splendid musicianship, have made his name synonymous with invariable and splendid success and there are plenty of concertgoers here who vastly prefer the Oberhoffer direction to that of anyone who has appeared here.

The following fine article on Mr. Oberhoffer and the Minneapolis Orchestra is taken from The Clef, with due thanks and acknowledgments:

"It is a source of gratification to the entire musical west that Minneapolis, a western city, has in the last twelve years built up an orchestra which today is acknowledged by the foremost musical critics and musicians of the country to be second only to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Those who keep in professional touch with these matters realize that the development of this orchestra is looked upon as one of the phenomena of American musical history and that it now takes its place in the forefront of artistic institutions on this continent.

"That such results have been secured may be attributed to a combination of circumstances, and of these the first to be mentioned is the fact that in Emil Oberhoffer Minneapolis has a conductor who possesses scholarly musicianship, poetic insight, magnetism, poise and personality—the essential qualities of a great conductor, in a degree not surpassed by any of his contemporaries in this country. The remarkable results attained are due to his genius and high aims, his care and judgment in securing for the orchestra artists of the best quality for its personnel, and his ability to mold the organization into a cohesive musical instrument for the finished performance of the best symphonic music.

"Minneapolis has not a Colonel Higginson as in the case of Boston, but it has a cultured citizenship and artistic appreciation combined with public spirit, and in Elbert L. Carpenter, an enthusiastic and wealthy business man, who has given lavishly of his time, effort and means in securing the necessary and large financial backing to carry forward the work of the orchestra. The guarantee fund subscribed by the people of Minneapolis is ample to maintain the orchestra and has enabled Mr. Oberhoffer and the management to gather together from the musical centers of Europe and America a body of players which in artistic rank and ability will compare favorably with any in this country or Europe.

"The management of the orchestra for the past six years or more has been in the hands of Wendell Heighton, whose success in handling its affairs has been unique and remarkable. At the time he took its management the orchestra was practically unknown outside of Minneapolis and had not played East or South of that city. Since he took charge of its business affairs, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra has probably traveled more, given more concerts outside of its home city, and won wider and more remarkable recognition than any other orchestra in this country.

"This unique record and success would not have been possible had not Mr. Oberhoffer and his wonderful orchestra possessed the qualities to command recognition as indicated; but to take an organization previously unknown to the country at large, arrange and carry through such numerous and extended tours, covering most of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, and without sustaining the heavy deficits which have wrecked so many other orchestras, required an amount of energy, business acumen, tact, and persistence as unusual as striking. For the

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

VOICES MADE BEAUTIFUL

by being perfectly placed, focused before attempting to sing. Our new book tells just how to transform weak, tuneless, unpromising singing and speaking voices into beauty, sweetness, power. Falsetto to pure tenor. Robust health. Desired talents cultivated, through animation of controlling nerves. Price $1.00 present lessons, or by correspondence. Mme. Girard & Richards, 818 E. 51st Street, Chicago, Illinois.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida Browning White

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av. Oak Park, Ill., Phone O. P. 1478

past three years Carlo Fischer has been the efficient assistant manager.

"From its small beginning in 1903, with less than fifty musicians, the Minneapolis Orchestra has shown, during the last twelve years, a growth and development almost unparalleled in the history of American music. The organization now numbers nearly ninety musicians, and is accorded a place in the first rank of American orchestras. Few of its original members remain, the personnel having been built up of artists from the leading orchestras and music centers of Europe and America. Practically all of the present members have played with the foremost orchestras and conductors of the world.

"Among recent notable additions to the membership may be mentioned Bruno Labate, formerly solo oboe of the Barrere Ensemble, and one of the greatest living artists on his instrument; Paulo Gruppe, second cellist, and Carl Kuehne, second clarinet (formerly first clarinet of the St. Paul Orchestra).

"The orchestra opened its twelfth season on October 23. Fifty-four concerts will be given in the home season of twenty-four weeks, in addition to the twenty-odd concerts of the annual mid-winter tour, and approximately one hundred concerts in the annual spring festival tour. This will make a record for the orchestra.

"The home season will comprise the usual twelve symphony concerts, twenty-one Sunday afternoon concerts (divided into three series of seven each), six concerts for young people, under the auspices of the Young People's Symphony Concert Association, and a special series of six afternoon concerts devoted solely to the works of Beethoven and including his nine symphonies. All the concerts are given in the Auditorium, built for use of the orchestra, and which in its seating arrangement is a fac simile of Symphony Hall, are given at the prices of 25 and 50 cents. They have been a success for several reasons; they are given by the entire orchestra and with Mr. Oberhoffer conducting, and the programs, while somewhat lighter in quality than those presented at the formal Friday evening programs, include an occasional symphony. The young people's concerts are given for school children and the prices range from 10 to 50 cents. In addition to the musical program, Mr. Oberhoffer illustrates the concerts with an informal talk on the different instruments of the orchestra, musical forms and the compositions played.

"The special series of Beethoven concerts is an innovation this season. These concerts will be given at 4 o'clock on week-day afternoons and will enable music lovers within a radius of 100 miles of Minneapolis to spend the day in the city, hear the concerts and return home on the evening trains.

"An impressive list of solists will appear this season with the orchestra. For the twelve Friday evening concerts there have been engaged Louise Homer, Albert Spalding, Josef Hofmann, Helen Stanley, Cornelius Van Vliet, Julia Claussen, Alice Verlet, Josef Lhevinne, Richard Czerwony, Arthur Shattuck, Fritz Kreisler, and, for the final concert, at which Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be given, a quartet consisting of Lucille Stevenson, Genevieve Wheat, Reed Miller and Harry Phillips.

"At the six Beethoven concerts there will appear a number of eminent soloists, including Florence Hinkle, Maud Powell, Leonard Borwick and Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler.

"In addition to the foregoing list of Minneapolis concerts, will be a series of eight Thursday evening Symphony concerts in St. Paul, to be given in the fine Auditorium of that city. The recent disbandment of the St. Paul Symphony Orchestra threatened to leave that very musical city without symphony concerts, but negotiations between St. Paul Institute and the management of the Minneapolis orchestra resulted in an arrangement for the eight concerts referred to, to be given under the auspices of the St. Paul Institute. Distinguished soloists will assist, the list being as follows: Mildred Potter, contralto (originally a St. Paul girl); Josef Hofmann, pianist; Helen Stanley, soprano; Julia Claussen, contralto; Alice Verlet, soprano; John McCormack, tenor; Rudolph Ganz, pianist, and Richard Czerwony, violinist."

HAROLD HENRY TO PLAY UNDER DAMROSCH

On January 19, Harold Henry will appear with the New York Symphony Orchestra. He will play the Liszt Concerto in E flat. Mr. Henry is to give recitals in Illinois the last week in January.

Butler—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Butler with Mr. Robert Ambrosius will give a recital Saturday afternoon, January 23, at Kimball Hall. Madam Ragna Linne will sing a group of vocal selections.

Beck—Miss Alma Beck, who has developed into one of the most satisfactory contraltos heard in concert and oratorio recently, appeared with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in one of its popular concerts and scored another success.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Some comment:

The song recital given by Mme. Maude Fenlon Bollman last night under the auspices of the Lyceum Union at the First Congregational Church was indeed a most delightful affair.

That Mrs. Bollman has lost none of her popularity with Elgin audiences was evidenced by the royal welcome upon her appearance and the warm applause and encores she received after each number.

Her art has grown and mellowed with the years and the beauty of her voice retains its enhancing bell-like timbre. Her style of singing is full of individuality and musicianship and impresses upon the listener that a soul is behind that voice.

Mme. Bollman shows much taste in planning programs that are not only attractive and entertaining but also educational. Few singers will begin a program from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," but both in that and in Giordani's "Caro Mio Ben," the lovely quality of her sustained tones produced an excellent effect. Her legato in Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song I'll Bear Thee," was remarkably fine, although if the tempo—which, of course, is andante tranquillo—had been taken a trifle faster it would have improved the rhythm of this so emotional song. Schumann's "Er Ist" was given in perfect style. It is wonderful what a charming atmosphere and color Mme. Bollman throws into the Italian, German, Swedish and Norwegian melodies. She sang in five languages, proving that she is not only a fine singer but a good linguist as well. Her perfect interpretation of children's songs in which she employed her fine sense of humor combined with the delicate shading and, when demanded, a touch of earnestness more than charmed the audience.

Most of all though Mme. Bollman excels in coloratura, her voice very flexible and true in every detail showed up to its best advantage in the last number, "Grand Valse," by Venzano. She gave this "bravura" song beautifully and apparently without any effort, and, notwithstanding the heavy work she had been doing all through her program, she was equal to the soaring passages she was called upon to render in this brilliant final number. Being enthusiastically encores—a not common occurrence after a closing number—she gave upon request Carrie Jacobs-Bond's "A Perfect Day" in her very own delightful style and phrasing.—Elgin Courier December 15, 1914. (Advertisement.)

Effa Ellis—Effa Ellis Perfield, who is now located in Chicago with a school in the McClurg Building, has been appointed director of a page added to the Musical Monitor of Chicago, which is to be devoted to children's constructive work.

American Conservatory—The pupils of Walton Pyre School of Expression will give their first public recital Saturday afternoon, January 30.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

ConcertSeason Now Booking

Address Care of Music News

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthao Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCollough
1st Alto—Pernelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Hazel Hootley
Director—Accompagist TINA MAE HAINIS

If I Could Call the Years Back

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Petrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form $1.50 special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH

Published by

THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

SCHNITZER

Management R. E. Johnston

Baldwin Piano Co.

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELI
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

H. EVAN WILLIAMS
TENOR, Concert, Recital, Oratorio
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 446 W. 40th Place Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL. CHICAGO, ILL.

Music Abroad

LONDON

What has become of Marie Brema? That question has been in my mind many times within the last five or six years. It seems strange to think of one at her age and of her ability leaving us on that side of the Atlantic without some good reason.

We all remember the nature of her work in opera. She was one of the opera singers who could act as well as sing. Of course we have many of them now, but the rule is not broken, they are the exception to it. How few of the opera singers are good actors is well known by those who have made any study of acting. The usual order of the singer actor is to make gestures, gestures. Keeping the hands in motion all of the time they are singing. Why, I can never tell. I am inclined to the theory that it is because they are suffering some in a vocal way. I think if they all had the right voice production they would act better, and we know they would sing better. We have the H in every slur, and high vowel sounds at the ending of most of the words that have no place in the word. It is better described as a grunt in some cases.

These things are hard for the serious student of singing to see reason for. In fact, there is no reason to see. It is simply, they don't know how to sing.

Marie Brema, however, was free from these things that mar so much the work of some of our best talent on the operatic stage. She sang as though she were singing songs all the time. Even in the most dramatic songs, she sang, and did not gesticulate aimlessly.

How delightful she was in those song recitals as well. We owe many of the songs we are now using to her. She made them in our part of the country. She had the voice, and she knew how to use it. What a beautiful bit of singing her "Bendemeer's Stream" was. She had many more as good. We could never tire of her.

To describe her work in detail now would take some of its charm away, I think. I will not try it at this time. I will answer the question I asked at first.

Marie Brema is teaching singing in London. Most of her time is given to that side of her profession.

Now, I can imagine the things you are saying about the reason for her having stopped the singing, but you are wrong.

It was my pleasure to meet her a short time ago, and I had for the first time a chance to tell her how much I had enjoyed her singing of the years gone by. (I will not say how many years.)

I will not give her address, it might look too much like advertising. If you care to find her you can do so any time you are in London, and she will be well worth seeing. She has not lost that glorious voice, and she has not lost anything that I could see from the personality she used to win us with.

One of London's failings is, they don't advertise. There are many things here that are worth advertising, too. You pick up one of our popular music papers over here and you will see ads. from all of the teachers over on the continent, but not from London.

It is the same with Mme. Brema. She has her work here, and she has her daughter and her work. She is as full of life and love for her work now as she ever could have been.

She gave me an invitation to call at her studio, and it is needless to say that I accepted it. A most delightful morning it was I spent there. She had some rehearsing to do, and she proceeded with it just as I would have had her do. Mme. Brema is one of the great singers of the time who has passed her youth, and will admit that her voice is not what it used to be. That she told me without my asking.

The admission was not necessary. There is still the same fresh, virile condition of tone; and the way she has always sung is the reason for it. Tone production is the solution of it. How few there are who will see it. They go on declaiming, shouting and screaming, and then wonder why they have not retained the voice.

She sang, and sang, that morning. The more she sang the better she sang. She really did sing. She acted, too. Some of the old opera airs, and she did them as she used to do them. It was an opera in itself. I could see no reason for her having stopped allowing us to hear her. She simply said when asked why, that she did not care to go so far away when she had so much at home. She loves her work and her pupils. She sings here publicly, too, and in opera. She has not missed a season of opera. She tells me that she teaches on the same days, too. It is a great object lesson for the student of singing. The answer is, get the voice free. You will sing long then.

Now I am not writing an indorsement of Marie Brema as a teacher. I heard one of her pupils sing that morning, too. The pupil did some splendid singing. He—for it was a man—has been under her care for two years. It would be very premature for me to say from what I saw that she would succeed in all cases as she has in this one. I might give my opinion. You can imagine what that would be.

I think some of our enterprising managers would do well for himself and for Mme. Brema as well by persuading her to make one more trip over to our shores. I know it would be good to hear her sing there again.

ALBERT A. WHITE.

— # # # —

Cosmopolitan School of Music—The Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art announces a pupils' recital for Saturday afternoon, January 9. Pupils of Mrs. W. S. Bracken, Mr. Henry P. Eames, Mr. S. M. K. Gandell, Mrs. Mabel W. Osmer, and members of the ensemble class will give the program.

— # # # —

Durno—Jeanette Durno, pianist, has returned to Chicago after a successful eastern tour, which will be repeated in March, many return engagements having been booked.

JUN

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

Music News

M. J. BRINES
TENOR

CHICAGO, AMERICA

JANUARY 22, 1915

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)
Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth. 75 cents Postpaid

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JANUARY 22, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid $2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company and
Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	GRAND RAPIDS
Abbie S. Fridenberg	Louis McKay
110 Carnegie Hall	2 Nelson Place
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodt
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	446 W. 40th Place
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages,

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING

Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, January 22, 1915

No. 4

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

In the letter of Leo Sowerby in last week's Music News he says that "with the customary habit of critics" we did not hear all of the concert of American compositions and therefore missed what was said by Mr. Eames before the program began. As a matter of fact, although this writer was not present the first fifteen minutes of the concert, another Music News reporter was on the field and his statement is to the effect that Mr. Eames made his announcement so badly that no one could understand it. When it becomes necessary, as in this case, to tell the audience something about a program, a man should be selected for the work who can make himself heard, and if the president of any association has not the gift of clear and forcible speech he should certainly cultivate it.

In speaking of the Reger Quartet playing of the Flonzaley's at the Fine Arts Theater on last Sunday, Mr. Ronald Webster in the Tribune naively says: "The Reger Quartet is fearfully long; the First Movement I thought would never end."

Mrs. Custer, in her little speech to the new Chicago Artists' Association last week, said that after young people had been trained thoroughly in the musical part of their profession they still needed definite training and help along the line of practicality, and that it would be the aim of the new association, in its student membership, to afford this very help. This is hitting the nail squarely on the head and the board of this society will find its hands full in attending to the various details. For instance, one lesson which should be taught often and early is that it is far better to wait and let the growth before the public be gradual than to pay any manager $1,000 or less for "a string of dates." Often this "string" does not materialize as promised, and in any event the young artist is wiser to grow to the "dates" rather than to buy them.

And to really ever get where he can

Truth reveals itself in proportion to our patience and knowledge, discovers itself kindly to our pleading, and leads us, as it is discovered, into deeper truths.

"The Stones of Venice."

—Ruskin

make money out of his art he must remember always that publicity is one of the great requirements—conceding first that he has been properly prepared and has a technical knowledge sufficient to warrant a public career.

He may truly have all the personality in the world and his preliminary training may be that of the best obtainable, but without publicity he is and always will remain a negligible quantity.

And speaking of publicity. There is a difference between that and notoriety. Some managers who are today notorious might better have spent some of their time, attention and money in securing legitimate publicity for their ventures. They would be better off now.

Karleton Hackett, in his address to the same club above mentioned, said: "After all nothing matters except the making and the hearing of music—what anyone writes or says about it is of no consequence whatever." And Mr. Hackett is right, too, in thus far—that no critic who has ceased to really enjoy music has any longer a right to write about it. When he no longer feels the real message, but looks only at the technical side of the matter, he should certainly stop writing. Nevertheless, there are many critics to whom music no longer conveys any poetical meaning—it has become merely good, bad or indifferent wholly from the technical and the traditional standpoint.

And this reminds me of Mme. Gjersten, who sang at the Blackstone Theater recently. Many of the critics spoke merely of the fact that her voice was "tired," or "worn," or "not beautiful"—judging these things absolutely from a pedagogic standpoint. It totally missed almost all of them—that this singer, while her voice may not be of melting beauty, is yet extremely temperamental and the real meaning of the music was presented by her in quite exceptional fashion.

The enormous throng which packed the Auditorium on last Sunday afternoon was not a tribute to the fine art of Kreisler but only an exposition of the sensation loving propensities of the populace. Kreisler, admirable as he is and long has been, has more than once faced a small audience in Chicago and the people who were in his audience on last Sunday came to "see" him rather than

HECKSCHER

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

NORA OLIN
VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Inois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING

to hear, and they wanted to "see" because he has been much talked about.

This is a fine illustration of the value of publicity. Had this big audience and the one which came to "see" and to hear John McCormack recently paid the same amount into the treasury of the Century Opera Company that organization would not have gone to pieces in Chicago.

But the Century was not "boomed"—it was not even decently advertised.

If anything could be more awkward than the way in which the piano is prepared for a soloist at the Symphony Orchestra concerts a booby prize should be awarded to the originator of such a plan. The way it is done at present is, however, quite bad enough and is sufficiently backwoodsy to take away all the artistic glamor from the playing.

Once, this writer was cured of the after effects of a siege of rheumatism by a course of treatments at a Therapeutic Institute, which consisted (1) of par-boiling in a steam room and (2) of being plunged into a tank of ice cold water—after which processes (1) and (2) were repeated.

Occupants of the balcony at the Symphony concert at Orchestra Hall last Saturday evening were treated to a similar experience. Both before and after the intermission the place was suffocatingly hot, while all through the intermission a blast of icy air was allowed to sweep in full fury over the audience, necessitating for everyone who was at all susceptible to colds a hasty donning of overcoats and mufflers. A management which will permit such irregularities needs public censure.

Nowadays, and nights, at the Symphony concerts no one takes the trouble to recall the soloists more than a few, perfunctory, times. No encore is forthcoming, the populace knows and it therefore refrains from any wild demonstration. Mr. Shattuck, on last Saturday evening had barely enough applause to get him on and off the stage twice, whereas there was a time when the artist was called ten or a dozen times if the audience believed that finally it would be rewarded with an encore number.

There is persistent rumor that the Metropolitan Opera Company will give a week or two of opera at the Auditorium in the spring. Unless the present temper of the community can be met Music News would strongly advise "don't." The community wants Stars and above all, it wants STARS spelled throughout in capitals. Stars who have been made such either through wonderful musical attainment or through wildest kind of notoriety stories. Either kind will do, but Stars they must be. It will be very risky indeed to come without Caruso, who has, we understand gone back to Italy till next fall. Farrar would be accepted as substitute but would have to appear every performance in order to please the Chicago public at present. Destinn, Matzenauer and other stars of the second magnitude will not fill the bill.

The following is from the "Line a' Type" column in the Chicago Tribune:

The persons who complain because they paid $4 to attend a tiffin musical which was not given are perhaps a trifle hasty in their condemnation. Have they asked themselves whether they subscribed because the affairs were fashionable, and for the exquisite pleasure of sitting in the same room with the social elect? If the notables had absented themselves there would be ground for protest; the mere absence of the musicians was no great desolation. Musically, we understand, the affairs were rather dull. Much better programs are had for half the money.

"Anyway," said a Music News visitor last week, "I don't have to read the comment of concerts in the Chicago dailies unless I want to, and if the bulk of it continues to be so bad as at present neither I nor many other musicians I could name will continue to subscribe for certain papers which might be mentioned."

A slip of the typewriter made us accredit "The Jewels of the Madonna" to the wrong composer last week—it should, of course, have been written Wolf-Ferrari. However, it would have been all the same to New York whether Puccini or Wolf-Ferrari, for anything which could make a big success in a Chicago premier would hardly be of the caliber wanted at the Metropolitan—in the eyes of most eastern critics at least.

The "sold out" houses at the Auditorium this week did not prove that the Gilbert

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ
Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

and Sullivan Company is better than the Century nor that De Wolf Hopper is a greater artist than any of the New York organization. They did prove, merely, that the business management of the G. and S. Company is superior to the other and that Mr. Hopper has much real publicity, a thing which most of the singers in the Century Opera Company know nothing about.

□ □ □

The styles in millinery are not always totally without sense or use, though we sometimes hastily conclude that they are. For instance, a woman seated in front of the writer at the Damrosch concert at the Illinois on Sunday afternoon refused to take her hat off—but the hat itself was a small pancake affair and although it was reinforced with a very tall feather it happened to be one of those half-way stripped affairs—a skeletonized feather, as it were—and we could look right through the open spaces.

□ □ □

Two men were discussing, in Music News office, the merits and demerits of the young music critic of one of the leading dailies: Said one, "well, anyway, he is improving." Said the other, "Oh, I hope not—because the reason he is good is that he has been so intolerably bad."

□ □ □

It is absolutely unfair to the several honest managers in Chicago that they should be included in the general statement that it is uncertain now-a-days whether an artist coming here from New York to appear in local affairs will receive his money or not. It has been proven that under some auspices they will not receive their pay and it has been equally as well proven that under others they will receive it. It is, therefore, in the hands of the New York managers themselves. A management that has always discharged its obligations and kept its promises is very likely to do so in the future. One that has again and again failed to pay its artists will most certainly do the same thing again in the future if it gets a chance.

□ □ □

Our Elderly Person has been receiving some unusual and unique endorsement, as well as the ordinary appreciation to which he has long been accustomed. Recently two of the Elderly Person articles have been reprinted in entirety in the Burlington Hawkeye (with credit to him and to Music News) and the other day when one of the proper names in his article was misspelled "Who's Who" of Boston, promptly reminded him of it. Also, the St. James (Episcopal) Bulletin in its report on the recent anniversary service comments at much length on the fine review of the event written by the Elderly Person for Music News.

The Elderly Person

Once upon a time the Elderly Person wanted something to read while on one of those trips to and from the suburbs, which he takes, at times, to please the Editor and see what they can do, musically, away from the heart of things. As a rule he has a good time on these excursions and seldom fails to find a comrade bound for or returning from the same point. But it won't do to depend upon the chance comrade turning up opportunely, and therefore a book is generally slipped into the overcoat pocket or tucked under the arm. Just here a dissertation on the reading of books, instead of newspapers, presents itself for copy, but must be ignored, because that was not what was in mind when the pencil was taken up. On this particular occasion, the literary ammunition being short, the Elderly Person took time to go to a department store, where they buy books by the carload, to get "something." And, quite by design, he sought that table which is always full—the table piled high with books that people will buy only because they are cheap. This mound of well-printed and well-bound books is as pathetic as a neglected grave in a cemetery. One intuitively knows it to cover any quantity of happy anticipations and dead hopes, to say nothing of clipped ambitions. It is also a mausoleum of publishers' judgments. Together these purposes which have gone wrong make an enduring cairn in every book store, and no appearances yet in view indicate that the wastage of material should be avoided and the talents of publisher and author better applied. It is quite a satisfaction to bracket the autocratic publisher with the misguided writer. If you have been sending out your perfectly good manuscript to the different ones who decide on its fate, and have been seeing your equally good postage eaten up in the vain trips which that manuscript has made, it quite comforts you to see what poor judgment the publishers have, after all, and how they turn down the very thing which they ought to accept, and then print and pay for these perfectly hopeless books which find their way to the ten-cent counter. If you are particularly incensed, you are viciously glad that there is an unusually high mound, as there was the afternoon when the Elderly Person drew near. There was a crowd about the table, and the books were being roughly handled, and there were many fallen upon the floor. Joining those who thus officiated as pallbearers for dead hopes and bore them away, he picked out a volume and after the customary delay occasioned by the making of change, made his way out of the store.

What he had found was a beautifully gotten up book put out by Macmillan & Co., and it was their imprint which made him take it. This house is conservative, but usually astute. It does not put out rabid best sellers, but it don't miss fire so often as some others do who are looking for gold mines. It has always been fascinating to see their trade mark, a peculiar mixing up of the M's in the name, something half humorous, but quite confident of itself. They always use good type and heavy paper except when Mrs. Humphrey Ward began to grow to undue lengths, and when F. Marion Crawford took his time to say what he wanted to—not what he really needed to. The Elderly Person felt, as he looked over the pages, and at the last page before he began at the beginning, that it must, at least, be an immense satisfaction to be buried in such a shroud, if one must be buried at all. It gave a species of distinction to one's effort at immortality to appear on the funeral pyre in such a becoming costume.

Yes, The Elderly Person will tell you the name of the book in just a minute, but he wants to tell you the color of it first and then a story which that suggests. It was a delicate sky-blue, and had a pretty design, as well, upon the outside. And so causes one to remember the girl who came to the Sunday School librarian and said she "wanted a red book this time, she was tired of blue ones." But that isn't the real story promised. In one of the suburbs there is a most charming librarian, who gives unusual pleasure in meaning much to every one with whom she comes in contact, and that gives her a wide circle. She left a coat at the cleaners one day and asked that it be returned to her at the library. The cleaner's little girl brought it, and then asked for a card and book. Quite delighted to have

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract. 26th Year.

THE BREWER-TEACHER'S AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled.
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 888

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH BROKAW Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
97 South Boulevard Austin-Chicago

made another home happy by the presence of a library card, the librarian filled one out and, finding the little maid uncertain about her father's literary taste, she sent him a book which she herself had greatly enjoyed. Returning the book later the child asked if the librarian had any more work for her father, and seemed disappointed at a negative reply. However, she asked for another book. Seeking to know if her first selection had been happy, the librarian asked if the father had enjoyed the other book. "Oh," replied the maid, "he didn't read it. He can't read. He just takes from you because you takes from him."

Now, to return to the subject, something hard to keep the Elderly Person confined to the first words of the narrative are those which command the attention of the children and have an echoing influence on older people. "Once upon a time," says the writer, "there was a Village." And then she goes on to tell where the village lay, and how lovely it once was, and what lovely days of sunshine and content she had known there in her childhood. And how the lanes and paths, later on, became streets and avenues and the Village became a Town and still later a City, rather proud of its eminence in matters commercial, and indifferent as to what might have been its real charm in the days when it wore short clothes. So, this dear old lady takes up her pen to try and preserve, so far as she can, what made up the life when the City was a Village and she in the central world of a group of happy children, who knew its every nook and corner, as well as many of the mysteries which lay at the end of those inviting roadways which led out of the village. Then follows a series of sketches of what made up the days of that long, long ago time. Her pen touches all the words of the narrative with a quaint tenderness, and writes the names with a loving grace. Imagination surrounds the simple incidents with a haze of gentle interest, and the pictures have that far-away vision of completeness with which adults are apt to encompass their childhood remembrances. There are stories of the adventures in a visit to the uncle and aunt in the country, of the day the circus came to town, of the first child's party and the new dress made for the occasion, of breaking through the ice while skating, or runaway experiences, of the county fair, of some naughtinesses, wherein the preserved pears intended for the Congressman's tea-party, were eaten, beforehand, by some children with a taste for such things; and how natural it is, when sent on an errand, to fall into attractive pitfalls that lead to serious trouble and perhaps a slipper or shingle as a conclusion. These and other similar detail make up the book's contents, and nearly all find a responsive chord in the average man and woman who have any sort of a memory of that comfortable childhood when people lived in houses and not in flats.

Then, if the book was entertaining and had a certain reason for existing, what was it doing on the ten-cent counter? The answer was discovered in the first ten pages. It lacked style. That is, a style which made it read easily and made one page lead up to the next one and created a desire on the part of the reader to follow the adventures. The dear old lady who felt impelled to preserve her childhood memories, told them in a prim, precise way, laying great value upon them as she narrated them, and smilingly anticipating the climax of each one. There was, it is true, a species of pleasure about this method, but it didn't have "that dommed charm" which Barrie's John found so insurmountable. The book was just another one of those wherein the writer has a good story to tell, and doesn't know how to tell it. The reader for Macmillan saw the novelty of the subject, perhaps interviewed the author, felt the influence of her personality, saw, through his imagination, that these simple incidents were in nearly every person's experience, and thought he was making a wise judgment when he recommended the book for publication. But that little haze of illusion, or personality, or atmosphere or whatever it is to be called, was not in the printed pages, and what was delightful in itself, didn't "get across," as the professional term expresses it.

It is all right. The fine old lady wouldn't have felt quite content to go into the beyond, if she had not left behind some record of her gratitude at what had been her fortunate lot in this world. That the experiences did not seem so attractive to others, and were perhaps illuminated beyond their value by her sense of appreciation and the cheerful glow of the flame of her affectionate remembrance, is really beside the matter. Without doubt they touched some other lives, and she may have had recompensing approval from those who paid the full price for the book. And it is not to be forgotten that the ten-cent price put the edition into circulation, thereby giving the Elderly Person a pleasant hour, as well as offering reasonings as to the wisdom of much eagerness to rush into print. Just the same, the rule will still hold good—that no one will ever know whether he can do a thing until he has tried. And, if he has a gift, it is cowardice to be afraid to seek to use it, and the Lord, we know, hates a coward. It is better to fail in trying than to sit back, complacently, and feel sure you could do better than others and yet give no concrete evidence of it.

That dreadful cairn of buried hopes in the department store is frightful to contemplate, but there be many ready to take the chance of being thrown upon it. Naturally, they hope to see themselves on that other monument, also found in the book department—the high stack of the prevalent "best seller." So long as there is such testimony that some one has succeeded, just so long will each one believe it possible that the afflatus will fall on him, irradiate him, follow his pen point and set the seal of approval upon his words. Salutations to the unafraid! * * * Oh, yes, the book's title is "The Day Before Yesterday," its authoress, Sara Andrew Shafer.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

Chas. E. WEEKS Basso
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

Why The Word "Advertisement"

THERE has been some enquiry recently as to why the word "Advertisement" is placed in our columns at the end of an article which consists of reprints of press notices:

To make this clear both to our advertisers and to the public we wish to make a statement.

The law governing periodicals of the class of Music News distinctly states that everything printed in the paper for which money is received must be either in the form of a display advertisement or else must be plainly marked with the word "Advertisement."

The subject matter of Music News consists of the following Classes: (1) Editorial, (2) Review, (3) Correspondence, (4) News Notes, (5) Contributed Articles of a News or Educational Character, (6) The Reprinting of Articles of a News or Educational Character from other papers, and (7) Reprints of press comment about Artists from other papers.

Music News does not receive payment for articles falling under any one of these classes except the last one. Music News does sell space for the reprint of personal newspaper comment on the work of Artists. Therefore, in strict accordance with the law we place the word "Advertisement" under such articles.

MUST

This does not mean, even remotely, that the artist is paying for a good opinion of himself—it simply means that he is paying for the space in which to reproduce for the benefit of the readers of one paper what may have been said about him in another.

Music News looks upon this as a proof positive of the success and the enterprise of any Artist and we believe that the Public regards the matter in the same light.

To the Public an Artist is a

SUCCESS

when he not only gets good notices where he appears but also when he makes money enough to have these notices reproduced in spaces that are actually worth money.

SERGEI RACHMANINOFF

The Great Russian Composer, Conductor and Pianist, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

MASON & HAMLIN CO.
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen: Before my departure from America I wish to thank you heartily for your noble instruments which I have used at all of my concerts in the United States and Canada. I desired to play the Mason & Hamlin Pianos because I believed they would be the most satisfactory to me in my work. In my opinion, these instruments must satisfy all musicians and artists of first rank, as well as music lovers in general. I feel that if I have succeeded in making even the slightest impression upon the public by my playing, a great part of my success is due to your instruments.

Yours very sincerely,

(Signed) SERGEI RACHMANINOFF.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

SIDNEY A. DIETCH PRESENTS PUPIL

Wednesday evening, January 13, Sidney Arno Dietch, the well-known teacher and coach in Highland Park, Ill., chose the Moraine Hotel to present his pupil, Mary Preston Beaven, soprano, assisted by Mr. Ernest Wiley, violinist. Mr. Dietch has made rapid strides in his work as a teacher, and the quality of the work Wednesday evening was a credit to Mr. Dietch and Mary Preston Beaven.

Mrs. Beaven sang under difficulties but she acquitted herself with credit. Her voice is a full rich soprano and she displayed great taste in the presentation of her various numbers. "Love Has Eyes," "Bishop" and "Memory" (Parks) were the most effective of the first group. The German group met with much favor. "Still Wie die Nacht" was especially pleasing. The "Boat Song" by Harnet was a happy choice and was made very effective. "The Letter" (Roma) was an excellent bit of singing and Mrs. Beaven was greeted with a splendid round of applause. Mr. Ernest Wiley, pupil of Ludwig Becker, is a promising young violinist. He draws a tone of good quality and power, and he gave a good account of himself in numbers by D'Ambrosia, Kreisler, Saint-Saens and Foote. The "Canzonetta" was given a splendid reading, as was the "Swan" (Saint-Saens). His playing is very pleasing and he was accorded much applause. Mr. Dietch was at the piano throughout the evening, furnishing accompaniments that were of high order and a distinct credit and praise meriting.

Music in Chicago

FACULTY RECITAL GIVEN BY SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL

The attractive and commodious Thurber Recital Hall in the Fine Arts building held a large and appreciative audience on Thursday evening, January 14, when the Sherwood Music School presented a number of distinguished faculty members in an excellently arranged and highly enjoyable program. The Sherwood institution is making marked progress along all lines due to very efficient management and a faculty made up of Chicago's leading artists. A genuine musical treat is in store for all who attend one of the many faculty recitals. The school is also very fortunate in having adjacent to its home the Thurber Recital Hall, which can easily be arranged to the needs of any schools and organizations.

The program of Thursday evening was opened by an Arenski "Trio" for piano, violin and cello, played in a brilliant and wholly satisfactory manner by Miss Pierik, Mr. Goldman and Mr. Dressel. G. Magnus Schutz, who's rich bass voice is a welcome addition to every program wherein he appears and a source of rare pleasure to his audience, sang two numbers, "Cade La Sera," Millilotti, and "Vulcan's Song" (Philemon et Baucis), Gounod. The former being a real gem was offered by Mr. Schutz with his versatile vocal equipment, it being a display of pure Italian song such as is seldom heard in the concert halls of today. The Gounod number was likewise a treat of the evening, sung as it was with all the finish and effectiveness necessary to make the blacksmith's story true to life.

Elsa Harthan Arendt furnished not only a very charming appearance but a splendid display of vocal attainment as well in her singing of "Liebesfeier," Weingartner, and "Le Tasse," Godard. Her voice was especially pleasing on Thursday night throughout its entire range and she controlled it in a very praiseworthy manner during the renditions of these two songs.

Georgia Kober, president of the school, is finding time to fill numerous recital engagements this season and so was in superb form for the playing of Godard's "Concerto" in A minor (1st movement) with Arthur Fram at the second piano. Their playing was a magnificent piece of work and a high point in the artistic success of the evening. Miss Kober was further heard in a "Canon" (A flat major) by Walter Keller, her co-worker in the Sherwood School. Mr. Kcller has here written a splendid composition and dedicated it to Miss Kober, who revealed its make-up and beauties in a distinct manner by her finished playing. "Lento," Cyril Scott, was likewise given a fine reading, and the "Concert Etude," MacDowell, was perhaps her most brilliant contribution of the evening.

A group of three Desert songs, namely "Sunset," "Night" and "Dawn," by Gertrude Ross, were the mediums by which Permelia Newby Gale chose to treat the audience with a display of her highly gifted voice and interpretative ability. They were charmingly sung indeed, again proving the fact that this contralto is one of our best concert artists, and is fast taking her place among such. She received a full share of the applause accorded the different performers of the evening.

David Dunbar Duggan sang a group of numbers in his well known manner and received the best of accompaniments from Mr. Fram. Mabelle Church Van Alstyne was very enjoyable in her reading of "Buying Her Husband a Christmas Present," Stewart.

Mrs. Arendt, Mrs. Gale, Mr. Duggan and Mr. Schutz formed a quartette which sang "A Symphonette" by Arthur Whiting in a manner which amused the audience very much. The quartette, Mr. Schutz, Mrs. Arendt, Mr. Duggan and Mrs. Gale were accompanied by Tina Mae Haines in her usual and much admired finished and artistic manner.

H. M. B.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Elena Gerhardt, soprano, and Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violin virtuoso, will be heard in a joint recital at the Blackstone Theater next Sunday afternoon, January 24, at 3:30, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Concerto D Minor.....	Louis Spohr
Allegro
Adagio
Rondo (Allegretto)
	Efrem Zimbalist
Wonne der Wehmut,
Die Trommel geruehret,
Freudvoll und leidvoll,
Die Ehre Gottes.....	Beethoven
	Elena Gerhardt
Sonata A Major (for violin alone).....	Max Reger
Allegro con grazia
Andantino
Prestissimo
	Efrem Zimbalist
Oh Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?.....	Handel
Old English Pastorale.....	H. Carey
The Bitterness of Love.....
Ecstasy.....	W. M. Rummel
	Elena Gerhardt
Preislied from Die Meistersinger.....	Wagner-Wilhelmj
Slavic Dance.....	Zimbalist
Le petit berger.....	Debussy
Tambourin Chinois (By request).....	Kreisler
	Efrem Zimbalist
Morgen,
Wie sollten wir geheim sie halten, {
Traum durch die Daemmerung, {	R. Strauss
Heinliche Aufforderung.....
	Elena Gerhardt

Mr. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, will be the assisting artist at the second Kneisel Quartet concert, Sunday afternoon, January 31, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Mr. Gabrilowitsch will be heard in Brahms' G minor Quartet for piano, violin, viola and violoncello.

Mr. Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, will be heard in a recital Sunday afternoon, February 7, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Stevens—Mrs. Nelda Hewitt Stevens, Chicago soprano, has been engaged to appear as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in Louisville, Ky., on February 23.

AT THE LITTLE THEATER

Unless you have seen the Fuller Sisters who, this week, are completing their term of tenure at The Little Theater, it is quite useless to attempt to tell you of their fragile and yet thoroughly wholesome charm. If you have already heard them you will want the pleasure again before they depart.

It has reached a place now where the program is almost doubled nightly through the "requests" which are sent in and which sometimes are asked for directly by those in the audience.

On a recent evening they were heard again, with keen delight and sang "by request," "Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush," "Mowing the Barley," "Oh, no, John," and "We Are the Roman Soldiers," besides the following announced program:

The Singers' Apologie

The Song of the Sword Dancers.....Yorkshire

Songs of "Old, Unhappy, Far-Off Things

Hush Ye My Bairnie.....Scotland

The Bonney Bird.....Somerset

O Waly Waly.....Somerset

—And Battles Long Ago"

I Would That the Wars Were Well Over.....Devonshire

High Germanie.....Somerset

The Flowers of the Forest.....Scotland

Songs from the Isles of the Hebrides

(Collected by Mrs. Kennedy Fraser)

An Island Sheiling Song.....Scotland

The Loch Broom Love Song.....Scotland

An Eriskay Love Lilt.....Scotland

Intermission

Songs of Occupation

The Painful Plough.....Somerset

The Husbandman and the Servingman.....Somerset

Would You Know How Doth the Peasant.....Lancashire

Joyful Ditties

O Sally, My Dear.....Somerset

I'm Seventeen Come Sunday.....Somerset

Here We Go Looby Loo.....Dorset

The Singers' Farewell

Brixham Town.....Devonshire

The "Singers Farewell" is a quaint conceit and the Fullers do it admirably. It contains the statement that no one can resist the influence of music except "the knave, the fool and the ass," and is altogether spicy and to the point.

"The Five Souls," a story of the present wars, which has been prepared by the Fuller Sisters, is still being sung.

The title page of the program contains the following quotation from Andrew Lang:

Folk Songs sprang from the very heart of the people, and flit from age to age, from lip to lip of shepherds, peasants, nurses, of all classes that continue nearest to the state of natural man. They make music with the splash of the fisherman's oars, and the hum of the spinning-wheel, and keep time with the step of the ploughman as he drives his team. Indeed, the pastimes and the labors of the husbandman and the shepherd were long ago a kind of natural opera. Each task had its old song,—ploughing, seed-time, harvest, marriage, burial, all had their appropriate ballads or dirges. The country seems to have aided man in the making of these songs, the bird's note rings in them, the tree has lent her whispers, the stream its murmurs, the village bell its tunes. The whole soul of the peasant class breathes in their burdens as the great sea resounds in the shells cast up on the shores. Folk songs are a voice from secret places, from silent people, and old times dead, and as such they stir us in a strange, intimate fashion.

MacBurney — The MacBurney Studios Club assembled at Kuntz-Remmler's on Wednesday evening, January 13, for the regular monthly dinner and meeting, at which time officers for the ensuing year were elected and installed, other important business transacted and an enjoyable program given by Margaret Fishburn, soprano; Miss Florence Pettinger, soprano; Mr. O. A. Hopper, bass, and Miss Katherine Reipfinger, accompanist.

SHERWOOD SCHOOL NOTES

Miss Georgia Kober, pianist, will be the soloist with the Philharmonic Orchestra of Seattle, Wash., January 21.

Recitals will be given by Georgia Kober, American pianist, and David Dunbar Duggan, Scotch tenor, at Seattle, Wash., January 22; San Francisco, Cal., January 24, and Palo Alto, Cal., January 25.

On January 31 Miss Kober, Mr. Duggan and Bruno Steindel will give a concert at the Frances Dewes home, 503 Wrightwood avenue.

Mabelle Church Van Alstyne, director of the Dramatic Department, will present her own arrangement of "Lay Down Your Arms" at Thurber Hall on January 29.

David Duggan will sing the part of Samson in the performance of "Samson and Delilah," at Tiffin, Ohio, February 3.

Georgia Kober will give piano recitals at Bryan, Ohio, February 2; Paulding, Ohio, February 3, and Edgerton, Ohio, February 5.

A pupils' recital will be given at the school on January 22.

CARL BRUECKNER

Mr. Carl Brueckner, the well-known 'cellist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, played the Saint-Saens Concerto with the orchestra under the direction of George Dasch at the Myrtle Masonic Temple. Mr. Brueckner is the 'cellist of the Beethoven Trio and the Philharmonic Quartet.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The program of last Saturday afternoon was given by Margaret Hughes, Grant Nolan, Mildred Barnes and Idorna Newmark, pupils of Frank Van Dusen; Florence Jernberg and Margaret Madden, pupils of John T. Read, and Charles Swalm and Arthur McCracken, pupils of Ramon Girvin.

Only a few numbers were heard, but these were sufficient to prove the worth of the three teachers and the devotion to their work of the pupils.

Miss Barnes was heard in two Grieg numbers, "The Butterfly" and "To the Spring," and Miss Newmark proved herself a thoroughly talented girl and a splendid worker by her skill and style in the MacDowell "Concert Etude."

Miss Madden disclosed a very good voice and excellent schooling in "A Rose Rhyme," by Salter, but was overweighted with "The Cry of Rachel," which, however, she will surely be able to interpret with conviction after more study.

Mr. McCracken proved himself a young artist in short works of Svendsen and Ries.

C. E. W.

Dale—William S. Dale, baritone, of the Auditorium Hotel, was soloist at a recent musical-reception held at the Sig. Frosolono home, 4318 Oakenwald avenue. Mr. Dale possesses both the voice and personality necessary to create much praise, and he was entirely successful upon this occasion.

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano

In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS---NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING---608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

Hazel Huntley Contralto

CONCERT - RECITAL - PUPIL'S

609 Fine Arts Building

Phone Harrison 6880

WILLIAM HINSHAW

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Management: R. E. JOHNSTON, 1451 Broadway, New York

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 22712

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5943 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg

THE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert Raymond Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
437 Fifth Avenue, New York
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist 4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS SOPRANO PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL

A recital will be given by advanced pupils of Miss Kober, Mr. Schutz, Miss Marley and Miss Keller at Thurber Hall this (Friday) evening.

Polonaise, A major.....	Chopin
Scherzo, E minor.....	Mollie Fox Mendelssohn
Noveltte.....	Gladys Smith Schumann
A Winter's Lullaby.....	Phyllis Beekman De Koven
Romance.....	Edwin Kemp
Gavotte, G minor.....	Tschaikowsky
Evening (two pianos).....	Marion Rinn Bach
Sing, Smile, Slumber.....	Lillian Harkness and Miss Marley Chaminade
Song of Sleep.....	Gounod
Murmuring Zephyrs.....	Helen Headington Somerset
Tarantelle.....	Jean Gillespie Jensen Niemann
Etude, B minor.....	Genevieve McGreevy Schytte
Dedication.....	Franz
Sacrament.....	McDermid
My Laddie.....	Thayer
Romance.....	Harriet Hollingsworth Schuett
Arabesque No. 2.....	Ruth Thompson Debussy
Melusine at the Fountain.....	Wurmbrand-Vrabely
Crescendo.....	Walburga Loepfert Larson
Tender Farewell.....	Madeline Chadwick Schuett
Barcarolle.....	Alma Goerler and Miss Marley Schytte

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

Saturday, January 16, a children's recital was given by the pupils of Mr. Eames, Miss Scott, Miss Jones, Miss Bracken and Mrs. Lewis. The pupils appearing were of various ages and the quality of the work was much to be admired, and it cannot be doubted that the interest by the school and teachers in the children's department is very great. The work of the pupils reflected much credit upon themselves and their teachers. The following pupils appeared:

Winifred Cook, Charlan Welter, Hilda Flemming, Charles Williams, Mildred Lewis, Fanchon Bennett, Kathryn Wennerblad, Signe Wennerblad, Florence Keough, Evelyn Bovee, Dorah Dittenhorn, Margaret Dittenhorn, Miss G. Smith.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

At the Northwestern University School of Music on Tuesday evening the following program was given by Esther Hayes Vincent, pianist, and Miles Dreskell, violinist:

Sonata, Op. 53.....	Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Introduction (Adagio)
Rondo
Romanze, Op. 26.....	Svendsen
Etudes.....	Chopin
E major
A flat major
Carnaval Mignon.....	Schutt
Prelude
Serenade d'Arlequin
Tristesse de Columbine
Arabesque.....	Oldberg
Air Varie, Op. 22.....	Vieuxtemps
Concerto No. 4.....	Rubinstein
First Movement
(Second piano part played by Prof. Oldberg)

Mixer—Mr. Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist 1443 Birchwood avenue, with Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, gave a musical program before the Catholic Woman's League at Assembly Hall, Fine Arts building, Saturday, January 16.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The pupils concert of last Thursday evening was given at Music Hall by Miss Henrietta Hauenstein, pianist, and Miss Olive Jane Rice, soprano, the latter being a pupil of Miss Alta Miller.

Miss Hauenstein played a Beethoven Sonata with much distinctive quality and closed the program with the Schumann "Papillons," playing midway between these a group consisting of the "Barcarolle" by Godard and a "Mazurka" by Chopin. Both were well done, but the "Barcarolle" was the best effort of the evening—in fact, in clarity and musical effect it was entirely exceptional.

Miss Rice has a coloratura voice of thoroughly distinctive quality. Her musical sense is remarkable and her intonation impeccable. The quality of her voice is beautiful and it is quite large enough also for the program she essayed. She has great technical facility and sings trills and other embellishments with true artistic finish. Her heavier numbers were by Schubert and were sung in German, and as she later sang also in English and Italian she proved herself quite a mistress of languages.

"A Pastorale" (Veracini) and "Villanelle" by Dell'Acqua were among her best numbers and were done with such engaging lightness and surety as to show her to be thoroughly advanced along the road to virtuosity. C. E. W.

CONCERT IN RIVERSIDE

The following program will be given at the Town Hall, in Riverside, on Tuesday evening, January 26, by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stults and Mr. Clarence Eidam:

Gondolieri.....	Henschel
Mr. and Mrs. Stults
To an Evening Star "Tannhauser".....	Wagner
Zueignung.....	Umlauf
Der Wanderer.....	Schubert
Der Sieger.....	Kaun
Mr. Stults
Prelude, G Minor.....	Rachmaninoff
Nocturne.....	Debussy
Octave Etude.....	Sauer
Mr. Eidam
Vissi d'Arte "Tosca".....	Puccini
Le Violette.....	Scarloti
Beneath My Window.....	Rachmaninoff
Ariette.....	Vidal
Mrs. Stults
Vulcan Song, "Philemon and Baucis".....	Gounod
Boat Song.....	Ware
Requiem.....	Homer
How's My Boy.....	Homer
Young Tom O'Devon.....	Russell
Mr. Stults
Nocturne.....	Chopin
Rhapsodie, No. 6.....	Liszt
Mr. Eidam
Pleurez mes Yeux "Le Cid".....	Massenet
Enticement.....	Ruckauf
Gaelic Lullaby.....	A. Cyril Graham
Surrender.....	Niewadomski
Mrs. Stults
Venetian Boat Song.....	Blumenthal
Sweet and Low.....	Hollis
Duo from Hamlet.....	Thomas
Mr. and Mrs. Stults
Direction: Miss Rachel Busey Kinsolving

Johnson—Jennie F. W. Johnson gave a recital Sunday afternoon, February 17, at Frederick Douglass Center. She was assisted by a pupil, Miss Bratton of Wyoming, who sang one group.

Woodworth-Loomis—Mabel Woodworth, violinist, and Clarence Loomis, pianist, gave a recital at the Eleanor Association, Sunday, January 17.

Leslie Schutte to Give Farewell Concert

Mr. Leslie Schutte, a young pianist who lives in Austin and who has been extremely successful in many appearances there, is to give a concert at the Austin Masonic Temple on Monday evening, February 1, when he will be assisted in a very remarkable program by Anna Breining Greulich, soprano; Mildred Pillinger, soprano; Hans Hess, cello; Aage Fredericks, violin; John Rankel, baritone, and Lillian Grant Haefner and Earl Blair, accompanists.

On account of ill health Mr. Schutte will go, immediately after his concert, to Colorado to remain some months and as this concert will be his last appearance in Austin for this season, his friends will turn out en masse and the affair will, beyond any question, prove to be a great success from every standpoint.

The program for the event will be printed in full in Music News next week.

WEST SIDE EVENING CLUB

The West Side Sunday Evening Club Choir enjoys a goodly attendance at their weekly meetings. The choir is under the direction of Daniel Protheroe. Mr. Allen Bogen is the organist. The members of the quartet are Miss Protheroe, soprano; Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto; Mr. Ernest J. Davis, tenor; Charles La Berge, baritone.

Mr. Bogen, a splendid organist, gave an excellent account of himself in his solo numbers and accompaniments, regardless of the fact that he had a troublesome organ. Mr. Protheroe led the choir in some rousing hymn singing, and the anthems "God of Our Fathers" (Schnecker) and "Fierce the Wild Billow" (Noble) were given with splendid spirit. He has his choir well in hand, the attacks and shading were excellently done, as was the soft tone work.

Mr. Ernest J. Davis was the soloist of the evening and he strengthened the already good impression by his splendid rendition of the Mendelssohn aria, "If with All Your Heart." His voice is of good quality, excellent range and capable of much power and he used it to a fine advantage.

H. W. P.

LEAVITT STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, LEAVITT AND ADAMS STREETS

On Sunday evening, January 24, the choir of Leavitt Street Congregational Church, under the direction of Miss Alice R. Deal, organist and choir master, will give a Mendelssohn Festival Service, the service beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The following numbers will be sung:

How Lovely are the Messengers.....from "St. Paul"
Cast Thy Burden.....from "Elijah"
If with All Your Hearts.....from "Elijah"
I Waited for the Lord.....from "Hymn of Praise"
Immediately following the service Miss Deal will play an organ recital.

Program

Sonata No. 3, A major.....Mendelssohn
Con Moto Maestoso Andante Tranquillo
Spring Song.....Mendelssohn
Wedding March.....Mendelssohn

A PUPILS' RECITAL AT WURLITZER HALL

Miss Mildred Millett and Miss Lenore Wood, from the Glenn Dillard Gunn and Harold Henry studios, respectively, presented about twenty of their young piano pupils in recital at Wurlitzer Hall, 329 S. Wabash avenue, on Friday evening, January 15.

An audience of goodly numbers assembled and evidently enjoyed the well arranged program very, very much.

Pupils in various stages of development played during the evening and some unusually talented children were at the piano at different times, but throughout the entire program there was noticeable in each young pianist a well founded training, not only along the technical branch of their studies but in committing the work at hand as well. Deportment on the stage and at the piano was a pleasurable feature during the program and several children received flowers which added brilliancy as well as variety to the activities of the evening.

The following children furnished the pro-

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

gram. Ruth Hutchinson, Elizabeth Nolan, Alice Hutchinson, Gordon Spivey, Evelyn Croak, Franklin Suthers, Katherine Kane, Pearle Kane, Ethel Blue, Irma Bailey, Marion Muncaster, Margaret Boulton, Marjorie McDougall, Elsie Peterson, Marion Murphy, Kathryn Montgomery, Wayne Spalding and Winifred Ward. The latter appeared as Reader and furnished much enjoyment through her two delightful selections. Little Miss McDougall was excellent in the playing of her number as was the Murphy girl. They should indeed be heard from in years to come if given the proper care.

Master Wayne Spalding, who closed the program, has already accomplished much that is a credit to himself as well as his teacher, and played in fine style the most pretentious number on the program.

Miss Wood and Miss Millett deserve much praise for the work being done by these children and we are glad to record the fact that another recital will be given at the same hall on this Friday evening, January 22, by pupils of these successful teachers.

H. M. B.

St. Joseph—At St. Joseph, Mo., Helen Stanley and Frances Ingram made a pronounced success in the course of concerts managed by Mrs. Francis Henry Hill.

A. G. O. SERVICE AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

The Rev. James S. Stone, rector of St. James' Church, in his address on Sunday afternoon offered a royal welcome to the American Guild of Organists who made up a large part of the congregation and gave a public service in conjunction with John W. Norton and his splendid choir of singers. Rev. Stone's talk was along musical lines, very interesting, helpful and wholly appropriate. The organ soloists of the afternoon were Sara Wildman Osborn, Harrison M. Wild and Herbert E. Hyde.

Mrs. Osborn played the Allegro Appassionato from Guilman's "Fifth Sonata" in a style which marked her as an organist of rare attainment. Mr. Wild selected "In Summer" by Stebbins, and "Rhapsody" by Rossetter G. Cole to again display his many admirable gifts as an organist. The former was delightful in its simple and melodious mood owing to Mr. Wild's choice of organ combinations, and the Cole work proved to be a brilliant composition through the musical thought and master technic of Mr. Wild.

Mr. Hyde also had two fine numbers to offer in a "Cradle Song" by Grieg, and the "Caprice Heroique," by Bonnet. He showed rare judgment in his manner of playing the Cradle Song and it proved to be one of the more beautiful points of the program. The Bonnet number gave Mr. Hyde opportunity to tax the resources of the St. James organ, and this he did in a skillful, musical and magnificent manner.

Mr. Norton played the service of the afternoon in his usual smooth and reverent style and his choir sang likewise. Aside from the regular order of worship the choir gave a very commendable rendition of Mendelssohn's beautiful cantata, "Hear My Prayer," with Master Earl E. Abramson taking the solo part, which is quite taxing at times, and lasts from the opening to the close of the cantata. However, that point apparently was of little concern to the musical Abramson. He sang with his usual rich, mellow tones, and there was reverence in his interpretation at all times. The chorus sang with excellent blending of tonal volume and beautiful expression. The program as a whole was one of the finest heard in a long time and well repaid one who made a long journey to hear it.

H. M. B.

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

At Miss Johnson's recital Tuesday evening, February 22, she will be assisted by Mr. Alfred Barthel, solo oboe player of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. He will play the oboe obligato to her first song, a Bach number, and the English horn for the Scheinpflug songs. These songs have never been sung in Chicago and it will be the second performance for them in the United States.

Miss Johnson's program follows:

- I
One Bach song with oboe
(First time in Chicago)
Three Brahms songs
- II
Five songs in English
- III
Four songs by Scheinpflug, with violin, piano and English horn
(First time in Chicago)
- IV.
Five songs by Chicago composers

CECIL FANNING BaritoneH. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Oratorio and Grand Opera.

DARLEEN WELLINGTON-MILLER

Dramatic Soprano

NEMA PHIPPS Pianist

JOINT RECITALS Address 703 Cass St., Albion, Mich

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER

32 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070 Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN

TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR.
and
MRS.

J. H. KURTZ

VOICE
PIANO
HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter Con-
tral-
to

Concerts Oratorios Recitals
548 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

KATE CONDON

DE WOLF HOPPER

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERA COMPANY

The opening week of the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera season at the Auditorium was devoted to "Trial by Jury" and "The Sorcerer" as the first bill and "The Mikado" for the second. Review of these performances will be given next week.

Next Monday night the bill will be changed to "Pinafore."

The accompanying illustration shows De Wolf Hopper as "Dick Deadeye" and Kate Condon as "Little Buttercup" in that opera.

— # # # —

Aborn—It is said that the Aborns will sever their connection with the Century people and, next fall, start a new Aborn Opera Company. If this occurs and the Century is reorganized, as is promised, there ought to be an opening for a considerable number of young American singers next season, as both ventures will be in English opera.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Butler, Hans Hess and Madam Ragna Linne will appear in recital at Kimball Hall, Saturday afternoon, January 23.

The program will include the Mendelssohn trio for piano, violin and 'cello in C minor, and a group of violin solos played by Mr. Butler. Madam Linne will sing a group of songs by Helen Ashley, Agathe Groendahl, Rubinstein and Grieg.

Allen Spencer will give his annual piano recital Sunday afternoon, February 2, at the Fine Arts Theater.

Jennie Johnson, contralto, will appear in recital Tuesday evening, February 2, at the Fine Arts Theater.

— # # # —

Miller—A song recital was given at the Northwestern University School of Music in Evanston by Miss Christine Miller last evening. A review of this event will be given in Music News next issue.

AT FULLERTON HALL

On Sunday evening Miss Henriette Weber presented "Lohengrin" to a full house and so popular is this opera and so great has grown to be the prestige of these "evenings" that about 300 people were turned away after the last seat was sold.

"Lohengrin" is poetical and romantic in just sufficient degree to make wide appeal and it is also fitted out with music of a grade that, while it is distinctly pleasing it is yet without flaw from the scholastic standpoint and thus there is provided a combination which pleases both musician and layman alike.

The players, as usual, won distinct approval and in the "Bridal Chorus" especially aroused sincere enthusiasm. The "Prelude" was not so refined as it might have been, but it is, of course, very difficult to give it with so few resources.

The soloists were Miss Lucille Stevenson and Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, the former singing much of the Elsa music with potent authority and the latter creating a splendid impression in the role of "Ortrud."

Miss Stevenson has such poise and authority and withal is so imbued with musicianship that whatever part she essays is sure to give unbounded pleasure and on Sunday night, quite as usual, she held her audience to strictest attention and unvarying pleasure.

Mrs. Dobyns has a mezzo soprano voice of wide range and with much power. She had studied the music of Ortrud conscientiously and sang it with sincerity and conviction.

In the balcony scene she upheld all the difficulties of her score with much skill and in the "Defiance" rose to distinctly fine dramatic heights. The blend of the voices was good and in the latter long scene especially there was a great display of dramatic power and musicianly skill. Mrs. Dobyns presents a fine appearance on the stage and the audience at once accepted her as a favorite. In spite of the fact that the lecture and the program were of much more than the ordinary length, Miss Weber and the singers held undivided attention throughout the evening.

C. E. W.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard, has given a recital (either by students or by members of the faculty) every Friday evening (the holiday season excepted) this season.

The program last Friday evening was made up mostly of the little folk and those who had had only ten lessons. Every number was played from memory, and an excellent program was given by the following students: George Hahn, Loretta Flaherty, Jessie Donaldson, Emil Stumm, Helen Golding, Rumelle Aubrey, Harry Rubenstein, Isabel Barenz, LaVera Nelson, Eleanor Aggen, Lillian and Evelyn Pollack, James McDonald, Margaret Weimer. The program was then brought to a close by numbers played by Hester Hoskins, one of the graduate students, and by Miss Maud Tollefson of the faculty.

Another student's program will be given this Friday evening at the college recital hall.

Caruso—Enrico Caruso is leaving New York this month, not to return until next Fall.

RECITAL AT RUSSELL SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The sixth faculty recital of the Russell School of Music and Dramatic Art at Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes road, was given by Miss Erma Wilson, pianist, and Mrs. William C. Godden, soprano, assisted by Louise Cozad, pianist, and L. Douglas Russell, accompanist. An appreciative audience of goodly numbers assembled in the spacious studios of the school to enjoy the fine program.

Miss Wilson was the first to appear and chose for her opening number the C sharp minor "Prelude" by Rachmaninoff; "En Automne" and "Gioioso," both by Moskowski. These she played in a very praiseworthy manner, proving in no small degree that she is already a well equipped pianist. That she is a good musician and has the technical power necessary to carry out her musical thought was very evident throughout the opening numbers as well as in the group composed of "Du bist die Ruh," Schubert-Liszt; "Sextet from Lucia" (for left hand alone), Leschetisky; "Shadow Dance," MacDowell, and "Polonaise" in E minor, MacDowell. The latter received an especially brilliant reading.

Mrs. Godden, who is a pupil of Mr. Russell (the founder of the school and a very successful teacher of voice) was indeed a welcome addition to the evening's program. Her voice is well schooled and she uses it with utmost intelligence along both vocal and interpretative lines. Her songs which included "Sunbeams," Ronald; "Caro Mio Ben," Giordani; "The Lord Is My Light," Allitsen, and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" (Messiah), Handel, were well chosen and proved very grateful to her attainments as a singer. She well deserved the praise bestowed upon her by the audience. Mr. Russell was at the piano throughout the singing of Mrs. Godden and played accompaniments which not only enhanced the work of his pupil as well and brought pleasure to the audience but proved his thorough musicianship and many abilities in a manner which brought an added joy to the evening's list of good things.

The program was brought to a close through the playing of Weber's "Polacco Brilliant," arranged for two pianos by Heinze with Miss Wilson at the first and Miss Cozad at the second piano. They furnished one of the most artistic parts of the program in their smooth and well rounded performance of this composition.

Miss Cozad, who has been the guiding hand and mind for Miss Wilson to her present attainments, deserves no small share of credit for the success of the evening. Her pupil's work spoke in high terms for her ability as a teacher.

On Monday evening, February 1, at the school, Miss Irma Hosier, pianist, and Miss Lucille E. Bourke, reader, will give a recital.

H. M. B.

BALLMANN'S ORCHESTRA

The orchestra program of Sunday afternoon might easily be called a feast. The increased number in the orchestra and a taxing list of Wagner numbers found them capable of holding the interest. The first six numbers were Wagner, beginning with the "Prelude," Meistersinger; "Prelude and Scenes," Parsifal; "Grand March," Tannhauser; "Finale," Tristan and Isolde; "Zugder Frauen," Lohengrin; "Rheingold" scene. Mr. Ballmann is doing some excellent conducting and drawing fine crowds to hear the splendid programs given every Sunday afternoon. The Wagner numbers won him much applause which was much merited. The "Military March," Schubert, was given a splendid reading. The rendition of the Brahms' "Hungarian Dance, No. 1," was excellently done and drew forth much applause. The "Intermezzo," Von Blon, for string orchestra was well liked. The Tannhauser "Overture," as a closing number, was given a rousing rendition and was greeted with a storm of applause. The soloists of the afternoon were two people unknown in Chicago, Emilia Leovalli, soprano, Ernesto Torti, baritone. They have good voices and they gave much pleasure in numbers by Rossini and Verdi. They also gave the Rigoletto duet, and received much applause.

H. W. P.

APOLLO CLUB ANNOUNCEMENTS

The next concert by the Apollo Musical Club will be a performance of Schmitt's "Forty-Seventh Psalm" for the first time in the West and Cowan's "The Veil" for the first time in America. The date is Monday night, February 22, at Orchestra Hall. The entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra will furnish the accompaniments. Tickets are now on sale at the Apollo Club box office in Lyon & Healy's.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra of thirty-five musicians with Emil Oberhoffer, conductor, gives its annual Chicago concert in Orchestra Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 28, under the management of Carl D. Kinsey.

"MESSIAH" AT THE NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Thursday evening, January 28, and Friday, January 29, the united choirs of the new First Congregational Church will give the "Messiah." The united choirs number 220 singers. The following soloists will appear:

Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Gustaf Holmquist, bass; Rose Lutiger Gannon, alto; John Doane, Jr., organist; Moses J. Brines, tenor; Mrs. Roscoe King, pianist; H. Augustine Smith, director-manager.

Shipman—Vera Brady Shipman has moved from Chicago to Fort Smith, Ark., and will take up the position as dramatic and musical critic for the Times-Record of that city.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

The following program will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey, Mr. Hans Hess and Mme. Ragna Linne at Kimball Hall at 3:30, on next Saturday afternoon:

Trio for Piano, Violin and 'Cello, Op. 66 (C Minor) Mendelssohn
 Allegro energico e con fuoco
 Andante espressivo
 Molto allegro quasi presto
 Allegro appassionata

Mr. and Mrs. Butler and Mr. Hess
 Songs—Remembrance (Mss.) Helen Ashley
 (Dedicated Mme. Linne)

Dew Drops Agathe Grondahl
 The Dream Rubinstein
 Kid Dance Grieg

Violin—Tocatta Tor Aulin
 Slavonic Fantasie Dvorak
 Ballade Moszkowski

Mr. Butler
 Mrs. Harriet Herz-Seyl, Accompanist

MELBA MAE FRENCH

Melba Mae French will give a violin and song recital at her home, 5632 Wayne avenue, Edgewater, Sunday evening, January 24, at 8:30 o'clock. The program follows:

Violin—Mazurka Volpe
 Vocal—

Blackbird Song Scott
 An Open Secret Woodman
 Down in the Forest Ronald

Violin—
 Liebeslied Kreisler
 Consonetta Friml
 Berceuse Townsend

Vocal—
 Love's Rhapsody Herbert Butler
 For You
 June

Mrs. French and Mr. Herbert Butler at the piano

ARTISTS' CONCERT AT LA SALLE HOTEL

Sunday afternoon, January 17, a benefit concert was given at the La Salle Hotel. "The Persian Garden" was sung by Mabel Sharp Herdieu, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; John B. Miller, tenor; Gustaf Holmquist, bass.

Zeisler—Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler was soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra last week, substituting for Busoni, and made her customary great success in that city.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
 504 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
 426 Fine Arts Building

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development and Repertoire
 Management Sam T. B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zandt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
 Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
 Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
 Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

THE CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA PLAYS AMERICAN COMPOSITIONS

The programs of the Symphony Orchestra concerts for last week contained two compositions by Americans, one of which proved to be a success, the other a failure.

The success was the "Prince Hal" Overture, in which Mr. David Stanley Smith sought to depict the characteristics of the princely roustabout of the Shakespearian play.

FREDERICK A. STOCK

As a piece of program music this is not good, for it might be called anything almost as well as the chosen title—but, as a piece of beautiful music, it is distinctly a success.

It is rich in scoring, full in harmonies, interesting as to motifs and thoroughly fine in the way it has been built up and riotous also in color.

The orchestra played it with great vim and effect and the audience applauded it to the echo and had Mr. Smith been present would have given him an ovation.

The failure of the program was the piano-forte "Concerto" by George F. Boyle, now of Peabody at Baltimore, Mr. Smith being located at Yale.

This "Concerto" has some very interesting passages for the piano—it is doubtless very difficult and no one can deny that in the first movement it is original and that at the very end it reaches a telling climax in so far as piano, at least, is concerned.

But, it is very diffuse even in the piano line and almost devoid of beauty while the orchestra score is dull indeed.

The soloist was Arthur Shattuck who, perhaps, deserved a better fate.

For the most part he disclosed much good musicianship and piano virtuosity, though his octave passages were sometimes in the nature of piano hammering and his pianissimos often did not carry well.

However, he accomplished some remarkable feats of skill and on the whole played with good taste.

The balance of the program was made up (1) of one of the Bach "Concertos" for orchestra, a magnificent piece of work which was played with great sympathy, (2) of the Gliere symphonic poem, "The Sirens," which is a real piece of program music and which absolutely lives up to its "story," and (3) the "Variations," Op. 36, by Elgar, which were not heard by this writer.

The program for this week is distinguished in that it contains the overture to a fantastic comedy, "The Faun," by Eric DeLamar of this city, and orchestral works by Wolf-Ferrari, Mozart, Strawinsky, Berlioz and Cassella with the Vieuxtemps violin "Concerto," No. 5, played by Harry Weisbach.

THE MAC BURNIEY MUSICALES

Of the fifteen numbers comprising Miss Esther Muenstermann's song recital at the Hamilton Park Field House on Monday evening, eight were by Americans.

The program did not lack anything in value or interest because of this circumstance, but on the contrary gained a unique and thoroughly pleasing character.

Mr. Thomas MacBurney, this year, is following an original and admirable plan for his pupils' recitals.

On alternate Mondays these are given in the large hall at the Field House and thus not only do the pupils have opportunity of recital appearance before a large and very real section of the general public, but also the community is provided a series of concerts of high grade and great educational value.

Miss Muenstermann, who has studied for some years with Hugh Anderson and who is now one of the artist pupils of Mr. MacBurney, is signally gifted. She has a fine appearance, an ingratiating style, and a beautiful voice.

Great power is hers when needed and also a finesse of tonal quality which enables her to manipulate songs of broad content, as well as those demanding daintiness and piquancy.

"Oh Love of Thy Might," from "Samson and Delilah," was a piece of singing marked by excellent technic and fine temperament.

The German lieder of Schubert, Brahms, Grieg, Reger and Jensen were full of beauty, "Ungeduld," by Schubert, being perhaps best of all.

Mr. John Doane, who shared with Miss Muenstermann in the artistic work of the evening, not only was admirable, as usual, at the piano, but also read translations of the German verses, which added materially to the pleasure of the evening.

MacDermid's "The Song My Heart Is Singing," proved to be a veritable gem. Lulu Jones Downing's "Only a Rose" also provoked great applause.

MacDowell, Homer, Meyer-Helmund, Chadwick, Fisher and Beach were all represented with characteristic works and were interpreted with fidelity and great variety of mood and color. Salter's "Cry of Rachel" was impressively dramatic.

C. E. W.

DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE

The Daughters of the Empire, Prince of Wales Chapter, met at the Auditorium last Saturday.

The spacious room used on this occasion was filled to overflowing, not only by the members of the order, but by their relatives and interested friends.

Donna Bonnar gave two groups of songs. Mme. Bonnar is the possessor of a beautiful soprano voice. Kirk Towns, the noted baritone, has already favored the Prince of Wales Chapter, but he never sang with more charm than last Saturday. His rendering of the wonderful prolog from "Pagliacci" was masterly, and the tender Irish song, "Macushla," was sung with a finesse of tone shading that showed how great an artist he really is.

Katharine Schuster's beautiful recitation of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" was a literary gem. Her voice is musical and low, but so perfect is her understanding of tone placing that she was distinctly heard in every corner of the room. She read with rare understanding and humor Browning's quaint poem.—Western British American.

Charleston—The St. John's Episcopal Choir of Charleston, W. Va., was given a dinner at the Broad Street Parish House last week.

THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA PLAYS IN CHICAGO

Comment by CHARLES E. WATT

There is a very great public for the New York Symphony Orchestra in Chicago and there always will be so long as Mr. Walter Damrosch remains as the conductor of this organization.

Mr. F. Wight Neumann is most wise to bring this superb attraction here periodically and the prestige is evidently a growing one for on last Sunday afternoon many were turned away from the Illinois unable to gain admission.

WALTER DAMROSCH

This was all the more notable because Mr. Damrosch has not been in any battles, has not been shot in the leg or elsewhere and at this particular concert he did not offer any soloist at all—simply the orchestra, with one fine obligato from Saslavy and with himself as the magnetic and artistic conductor.

Mr. Damrosch is unique in his work. He is intelligent to the last degree—he is resourceful and tactful to the limit—he is a handsome figure of a man and withal he is extremely graceful, and besides all this, plus an inexhaustible fund of musicianship—he is a combination of the poetic and dramatic in music with only one equal among all the present day conductors known to Chicago.

This equal is not Mr. Frederick Stock either—it is Emil Oberhoffer, director of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

In fact Mr. Damrosch and Mr. Oberhoffer have very much in common for the latter has also all the gifts and graces ascribed above to Mr. Damrosch and both of them have the ability to personally fascinate an audience and also to impress every musician within hearing of their great ability to revivify old compositions and their unbounded gifts in the line of interpreting new ones.

Mr. Damrosch, however, on Sunday contented himself with all old works and limited the program further to Beethoven and

Wagner, but even within these confines he accomplished wonders and sent his audience away full of enthusiasm for the works themselves as well as for the vitality and the artistry of the conductor.

Someone has likened the dull drum beats in the "Marche Funebre" of the "Eroica Symphony" to the falling of earth clods on the lid of the newly lowered coffin. The idea is gruesome but not half poignant enough to typify the sensation caused when Damrosch conducted this item on Sunday afternoon.

Rather, there was in the whole "March" a depth of woe, and an abundance of grief to show forth the trials and the agonies of an entire nation. All that Belgium has suffered for instance might be said to be set forth in this wonderful reading—all the agonies of that part of France which is being trampled and devastated!

And the other movements of the "Symphony" each, in turn, took on a broad aspect, a wide meaning and a vivid contrast to each other movement under the wonderful baton of Damrosch.

But, remarkable as was the Beethoven reading—one by the way which lasted an hour and a quarter, there was still more of wonder in the Wagner group.

Never has the pianissimo of the "Prelude" to "Lohengrin" been exceeded—a pianissimo nevertheless full of vitality—never has any one made the obligato to "Dreams" more fluent than did Mr. Saslavy—never has a more riotous "Ride of the Valkyries" been set forth and never has the "Prelude" and the "Finale" from "Tristan and Isolde" been more sympathetically played or a more glorious climax been built up than in the latter item.

In a word, the concert was a delight unalloyed and it is very safe to say that every one in the vast audience will await eagerly an opportunity to repeat the pleasure of the afternoon at the Illinois.

—♦♦♦—

SONATA EVENING AT LITTLE THEATER

Alexander Sebal, concertmeister of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and Henriot Levy, eminent pianist, will give their Second Sonata Evening in the Little Theater, Fine Arts Building, Tuesday evening, January 26, at 8:15 o'clock.

Tickets are on sale at the Snow Concert and Choir Bureau in Summy's Music Store.

Following is the program:

- Sonata, Op. 12, No. 3, Eb Major.....Beethoven
- Allegro con spirito
- Adagio con molto espressione. (Rondo)
- Allegro molto
- Sonata, E Minor.....M. Enrico Bossi
- Allegro con energia
- Andante sostenuto con vaghezza-vivace, galo, quasi canzone-molto sostenuto come prima
- Allegro focolo
- Sonata, Op. 100, A Major.....Brahms
- Allegro amabile
- Andante tranquillo-vivace-andante-vivace di piu-andante
- Allegretto grazioso. (Quasi andante)

—♦♦♦—

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, OAK PARK

Sunday, January 23, a program of old familiar songs and melodies will be given at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park. Mr. Kinsey is the organist, and the quartet will sing songs and solos. The quartet: Mrs. Gale, Miss Kaufman, Mr. Dunford, Mr. Kimball.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO
ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

ROY DAVID BROWN

PIANIST
SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL FINE ARTS BUILDING

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

FRANK W

Van DusenPIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred CookinghamPIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADEPIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCKOrganist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary STEELEHINMAN TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet CaseSOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence EidamPianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, TenorVoice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn ConservatoryCarrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American ViolinistYOST
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYH. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR. Concert, Recital, Oratorio

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIOSilas Wright MountzVocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 446 W. 40th Place Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel

KIMBALL HALL

MUSICAL
COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL.PHILHARMONIC STRING QUARTET

The Philharmonic String Quartet, George Dasch, first violin; Hjalmar Rabe, second violin; Otto Roehrborn, viola; Carl Brueckner, 'cello, gave a program of chamber music at the Myrtle Masonic Temple, Friday evening, January 15. They were assisted by Carl Meyer, clarinetist. Gustaf Holmquist was the soloist, Edna Winifred Cookingham, accompanist. The quartet played the Grieg "G Minor Quartette," Mozart's "Clarinet Quintet," and Schumann's "Traumerei." The artistic finish with which they played has won them a merited place among the string quartets.

The shading was good, the attacks were as one man, added to this was a unanimity of feeling that means so much in ensemble playing. The "Allegro," "Romanza," and "Finale" of the Grieg number were especially attractive, and they made much of the somber and flowing melodies. The well-known Schumann number was greeted with much applause. The clarinet quintet is seldom heard in concert halls, but it met with genuine appreciation on this occasion. The clarinet part was in very capable hands, in the person of Mr. Meyer. It is well worth the trip to this far-out concert hall to hear this excellent organization give an evening of music, for they always give the best in music and the directness with which they approach the work at hand is very commendable.

The soloist on this artistic occasion was Gustaf Holmquist. His sturdy bass voice has won him much merited praise from press and public, and if one may judge from the applause accorded him, for his splendid singing at this time it is safe to say he will be given a cordial welcome should he choose to appear again in Irving Park.

The "Ein Traum," Grieg, was given with a fine style and breadth of feeling that made it very effective. His second group comprised Schubert's "An die Leyer," Schumann's "Widmung," and Brahms' "Feldesamkeit." He sang them as only an artist can.

Miss Cookingham furnished excellent accompaniments that were sympathetic and musicianly.

Nichols—Numbers of successful singers now before the public are proving John W. Nichols, the tenor, to be not only a careful and painstaking teacher but a practical instructor of the voice. Among some of his most promising pupils who are now doing work in and around New York are Francis Porter, baritone soloist of the First Presbyterian Church, Passaic, N. J.; Mrs. Grace Jones-Jackson, a well-known soprano in light opera; Harry Frazer, tenor soloist at the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn; Mr. W. L. Watson, another well-known tenor of a Brooklyn church; Miss E. Sweeney, soprano soloist in St. George's, Paterson, N. J.; Jay Knapp, tenor of the First Presbyterian Church, Passaic, N. J., and Walter Main, a well-known tenor of West Haven, Conn. Many of his older pupils are now scattered all over the country singing and teaching in various schools and colleges, etc. Mr. Nichols has again been chosen head of the vocal department of the University of Vermont Summer Schools for a six weeks' course beginning the first of July.

KRUM STUDIOS

The following program was given by the pupils of Lillian White-Frey, assistant to Mrs. Charles Krum, Friday, January 15, at the studios, Fine Arts Building:

Were My Song with Wings Provided.....Hahn
I Know a Lovely Garden.....De Hardelot
Jennie Levinkind Kahn
Strampelchen Hildach
Roses in June German
Mrs. Heinrich Schuckert
Heigh Baby! Ho Baby! Fraun
Smiling Watson
Miss Sarah Altschuler
Rose in the Bud.....Forster
A Winter Lullaby De Koven
Margaret Brenen Bergner
O schone Zeit Goetz
Daisies Hawley
Mrs. Louis Mader
Mother Machree Chauncey Olcott
The Little Pink Rose.....Carrie Jacobs-Bond
Mrs. William Curtis
Wiegenlied Brahms
Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms
Old Irish
Miss Katharine Rubey
My Dreams Tosti
Mrs. Bergner
Sweet Miss Mary.....Neidlinger
Miss Altschuler
A Perfect Day.....Carrie Jacobs-Bond
Miss Rubey
Little Gray Home in the West.....Lohr
Mrs. Mader
Frühlingszeit Becker
Mrs. Schuckert
Consider and Hear Me.....Pflugger
Mrs. Curtis
Busy Helena Bingham
If I Knew You and You Knew Me.....MacDermid
Miss Levitas
Villanelle Dell' Acqua
Mrs. Spicer
Pastoral from Rosalind Veraccini
When Phyllis Takes Her Vocal Lesson.....Mr. Garnett
Mrs. Berman
Roccoco Standchen Meyer Helmund
Miss Goldie Levitas
"Behold What Manner of Love".....MacDermid
Nymphs and Fauns Bemberg
Mrs. Elgin Spicer
The Little Gray Dove Louis Victor Saar
Depuis le jour (from Louise).....Charpentier
Mrs. Berman

EDWARD WALKER

Some of the press comment upon the singing of Edward Walker, tenor, in "The Messiah" with the orchestra at Fargo, N. Dak., December 6: "Of the visiting quartet Edward Walker, the tenor, seemed to win the particular favor of his hearers. His unusually distinct enunciation made his singing most effective."—Fargo Daily News.

Mr. Walker, the tenor, is a very pleasing oratorio singer. His voice is well managed and his enunciation clear. His work throughout showed thorough musicianship and he sang with good poise and authority.—Press. (Advertisement.)

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson, contralto, assisted by Marx Oberndorfer, Herbert Butler and Alfred Barthel, will give a song recital in the Fine Arts Theater Tuesday evening, February 2.

The next meeting of the American Conservatory Alumni, Mrs. E. W. Rutter, President, will be Monday morning, February 1, at 11 o'clock, in the American Conservatory assembly hall. Miss Beaumont and Miss Robb will furnish a program of readings.

Tabor—Miss Mabel Woodworth is giving a violin recital at Tabor (Ia.) College, this (Friday) evening.

BURNETTI-ELVYN CONCERT

Miss Myrtle Elvyn, pianist, and Mr. Sebastian Burnetti, baritone, will give a concert at the Douglas Park Auditorium on Thursday evening, January 28.

Mr. Burnetti will sing the "Credo," from Verdi's "Otello"; the "Vision Fugitive," from the Massenet "Herodiade," and a number of smaller works.

— # # # —

MR. AND MRS. BRUNO KUEHN

Monday evening, January 18, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Kuehn gave a recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall, before a goodly number of music lovers and friends. The program opened with the Rubinstein "Sonata in G Major," for violin and piano. The moderato was not heard by this writer. The allegro was well done, but the adagio found them at their best. Mr. Kuehn draws a pleasing tone and he displayed good technical ability in his varied numbers. The "Romanze," by Beethoven, and "La Precieuse," by Couperin-Kreisler, were excellently done and won him much merited applause. Later Mr. Kuehn was heard in numbers by Dvorak, Nachez, Rubinstein, and Rehfeld. He made much of the "Humoreske" and "Zigeunerstanz," playing a cradle song for an encore, which won him added applause. The Spanish dance was given with an abandon that made his rendition very effective.

Mrs. Kuehn is a delightful pianist. She has technic, a keen sense of rhythm and a musical sense that makes her playing a pleasure to hear. The "Pastorale," by Scarlatti, was very effectively done. Liszt's "Etude in D Flat Major" was the closing number of her first group and she tossed it off without any apparent effort. The Reger number was finely done. She was at her best in the "Intermezzo" and "Rhapsodie," by Brahms, gaining much applause for her excellent renditions. Her tone is very pleasing, for she doesn't pound in forte passages. Mrs. Kuehn played splendid accompaniments for Mr. Kuehn. H. W. P.

— # # # —

DAUGHTERS OF BRITISH EMPIRE

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the British Empire gave a very enjoyable evening at the banquet hall of the Auditorium Hotel Saturday evening, January 9, in which the following program was given, to the evident delight of the company present:

Bird Song, from Pagliacci.....	Leoncavallo
Diana Bonnar
Senor Spadani, Chicago Grand Opera Co.,
Accompanist
Aria, The Prologue from Pagliacci.....	Leoncavallo
Kirk Towns
Reading, Pied Piper of Hamelin.....	Browning
By Katherine Schuster
The Rosy Morn.....	Landon Ronald
Senor Spadani, Chicago Grand Opera Co.,
Accompanist
Macushla	McDonough
Mr. Towns

— # # # —

CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH, OAK PARK

Marie Edwards, organist, will have charge of the musical program to be given on the last Sunday evening of this month and will give an organ recital. She will be assisted by the chorus choir of 40 voices under the direction of H. H. Williams and Mr. Marshall, bass.

MISS KINSOLVING'S MUSICALE

As Ossip Gabrilowitsch opened and closed the last musicale of Miss Rachel Kinsolving's Tuesday morning series at Evanston, and as this writer came late and left early at that function, not much of his work was heard.

LAMBERT MURPHY

His program has already been noted in Music News and his reception by the audience was cordial.

Much comment had been current in both Chicago and Evanston following the collapse of the Tiffin musicales, as to whether Mr. Gabrilowitsch would really appear in Evanston.

There need, however, have been no question whatever on that score, for Miss Kinsolving has an excellent reputation both with the artists and the New York managers, all of whom know that she pays her obligations promptly and in full.

She also invariably fulfills her promises to the letter, and never offers a substitute, except when it is absolutely unavoidable, and in these cases she always gives someone just as attractive.

Lhevinne was first announced for this concert, but as he could not leave Europe, Gabrilowitsch was substituted, to the entire satisfaction of all ticket holders.

The audience filled the Woman's Club auditorium to the last place, and when, at the intermission, Mr. Elias Bredin made a few remarks congratulatory of Miss Kinsolving, he was greeted and endorsed with much warmth.

The alternate artist of the program was Mr. Lambert Murphy, already a great favorite in Evanston and whose beautiful voice at this time brought him to greatly added popularity.

He is a tenor of purest quality, his voice is clear, ringing and expressive, and he has also a reserve power which easily lends itself to effective climax building and to dramatic interpretation.

His program was a thoroughly worthy one and was amply diversified as to mood and color and included works of various schools, as well as texts in four languages, all of which were enunciated with rare skill and effectiveness.

In English especially Mr. Murphy excels and his pronunciation, enunciation and inflection of the language proved to be a worthy object lesson to all singers and a delight to all hearers.

His first group contained French songs by Massenet and Paulin, an unprogrammed German song, and Holmes' "Noel d'Irlande," sung in English.

All these were filled with vocal beauty, the "Avril pose ses pieds lents" of Paulin being especially attractive.

Rodolpho's fine aria from "La Boheme" (Piccini) was sung with great distinction, in a manner and with an effectiveness, in short, which made one more than desirous of hearing Mr. Murphy in the opera.

His last group comprised Henshel's sedate "Morning Hymn," Clay's suave setting of the beautiful "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," Elgar's lovely "In Moonlight," and the capricious "Mattinata" of Leoncavallo, and so well were all these numbers done that the audience insisted on a final encore, though the hour was a late one.

The piano, a Mason and Hamlin, was a splendid example of the manufacturer's art, and its breadth and finesse of tone lent themselves admirably to the requirements of the Gabrilowitsch virtuosity, as well as to the extremely artistic and sympathetic accompaniments played by Mr. Edgar Nelson for Mr. Murphy.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

Tips—Francis Mackay, 512 Kimball Hall, Wednesday and Saturday, wants a choir-master for Episcopal position in Chicago, also alto boys for choir. Milton Harris is leaving the position as choir director at the California Avenue Congregational Church, thus creating a vacancy. Also, Mr. Harris wants some good voices for his new chorus choir in Ravenswood.

— # # # —

Cleophas—Miss Gertrude Cleophas, who has returned to America after several years of study of the piano in Europe, has located in the Metropolitan Music building, Minneapolis, Minn.

SEBASTIAN BURNETTI

Leading Barytone Montreal Grand Opera Company and Comic Oper Co., Berlio, has reopened his Studio at 505 Kimball Hall. Mr. Burnetti was for years the star pupil of Jean de Reszke, Lombardi, and Lamperti, the world's 3 greatest masters of voice culture. This training, later supplemented by his extensive concert and operatic experience, makes him an unrivaled exponent of the knowledge of voice and of repertoire of Songs and Opera in Original Languages.

Reception hours 2 to 4. Send for Booklet.

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIS

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau

Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago.

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mailers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan.
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

BATON CLUB ANNUAL OPEN MEETING

Music News representative was honored with a seat at the table, and the good fellowship of friendly neighbors, at the annual dinner and open meeting of the Baton Club, held at Moody Institute on Monday evening. The members of this club are what might be termed a "lively bunch," and there were no dull moments in the social intercourse, or any diffidence in the discussion of the business matters presented. Mr. J. B. Trowbridge is as good as a parliamentary director as he is of a choral body, and kept things moving. A compliment is due the party who selected the time, the place and the menu of the dinner, to say nothing of "the girls."

Afterwards the group disseminated itself into an audience which fairly well filled the lecture room of the Institute, and listened to a program of A Capella church music presented by about twenty singers from the choir of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, under the direction of Mr. Eric De Lamar. Mr. De Lamar announced that the numbers were not intended in any way to be regarded as show pieces, and had received no special preparation, and were offered merely as repertory selections and to be accepted only as suggesting interesting examples of the varied possibilities of unaccompanied singing. He probably would have been glad to have added, at the conclusion, that the acoustics of the auditorium had interfered seriously with many of his best devised effects of nuance. Thus the listeners were not once able to hear a well colored pianissimo or a rotund forte, the one losing its delicacy in the echoes, and the other lacking solidity by the same cause. The pleasure enjoyed in hearing these examples would have been intensified in a loftier space.

There was infinite choice of effects used, and all were concerted, as a matter of course. The nearest approach to individual contribution was a short trio among the "Responses," given with fine attention to detail by Mrs. Cora Libberton, Mrs. Rubee Wilson De Lamar, and a good contralto whose name has escaped me. There was an excellent male chorus as a background for a contralto solo, in which Lemuel Kilby and J. H. Libberton did yeoman service.

In the Russian Liturgy excerpts some well thought out and mature conceptions found utterance and the final group of "Occasional Anthems" ran the gamut of the stern, unyielding polyphony of the earlier schools to the warm pulsating tones of Tertius Noble's "Souls of the Righteous," which was done with lofty sentiment and such a freedom and abandon to the spirit of the text and its setting, that it easily stands out as the most finished work of the evening. A peculiarly interesting feature was the final disintegration of the tones. The body did not die away. It seemed to dissolve and disappear.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

— # # # —

MISS E. LOUISE KRAUSE APPEARS AT WOMAN'S CLUB OF OAK PARK

Following a lecture presented by Mrs. Langworthy on last Tuesday afternoon, January 12, on their special program of the year, Miss Krause sang two groups of songs. This young singer has met with unusual success during the past season and has come rapidly into public favor. She possesses a beautiful soprano voice which she uses with much skill. Miss Krause is soon to appear with Ballmann's Orchestra.

— # # # —

McGranahan—Mr. Thomas McGranahan, tenor, sang on Tuesday at the wedding of Miss Margaret Slattery to J. Emmet Nester of Pittsburgh, Pa., and on Saturday, January 16, at the luncheon given by the Chicago Association of the Alumni of Michigan at the Union League Club.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF OAK PARK

The never die motto, "Good music and a good sermon at every service" continues to reap its reward at the First Congregational Church of Oak Park. On Sunday evening, January 17, another large congregation assembled to hear the excellent music offered by Carl D. Kinsey, organist and director. The quartet made up with Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Permelia Gale, contralto; Grant Kimbell, tenor, and Frank M. Dunford, bass, and a chorus choir well drilled by Mr. Horace B. Humphrey.

Mr. Kinsey played the Suite, "Prologue," "March" and "Intermezzo" by Rogers, for the opening of the service on Sunday evening, and he played those numbers in his usual smooth and musicianly manner and fully in harmony with the rest of the service. The quartet sang "I Will Extol Thee" from "Eli" by Costa, in extremely beautiful style. It is doubtful if those four voices were ever heard to better advantage. There was indeed unity of thought and purpose, excellent blending of both forte and piano tonal volume and genuine reverence for the work at hand in their reading of the Costa selection.

The chorus choir and quartet sang "The Sun Shall Be No More," Woodward, in a manner wholly enjoyable and worthy of considerable praise, and Mr. Kinsey accompanied them in a very satisfactory manner.

The special soloist of the evening was Miss Edna Dunham, who followed the splendid offertory playing of Mr. Kinsey with a rendition of "Cry Aloud, Spare Not," by Patten, which was a brilliant piece of vocal work and brought an added touch to the artistic moments of the evening. Miss Dunham is a former Chicago girl and is now located in New York. The choice of her as one of the many special soloists presented at the above named church was a wise one, in that it gave to the people of Oak Park an opportunity of hearing an American soprano who is fast becoming a leading favorite and will be heard much in Chicago and other parts of the musical world in the near future.

Miss Kaufman and Mrs. Gale are always much admired for their beautiful duet singing and they increased this admiration on Sunday evening by singing the "Quis est Homo" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater" in excellent vocal and interpretative style.

Mr. Kinsey closed the service by playing the "Postlude" in E Flat by Abernethy.

On this Sunday evening, January 24, at the 7:30 service, the special music will consist of old and favorite selections which should again pack the church. H. M. B.

— # # # —

Boroff—Mr. Frank Bordner, pupil of Albert Boroff, sang with fine success at the First Methodist Church concert, January 1, in Racine, Wis. His numbers were "The Ringer" and "My First Love" (Lohr); "At Nightfall" (Metcalf); "Salaam," "The Last Leaf" (Homer), and "At Dawning" (Cushman).

— # # # —

Ehrhardt—Mr. Edward V. Ehrhardt, pianist, played at the Temple Shalom Alliance, January 10, will give a recital at Escanaba, Mich., January 26, and play at the Chicago Hebrew Institute on the 31st.

HAUSER PIANIST
Management
HAENSEL & JONES
Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK
Has the honor to present
The Violinist
ANDRE BENCI, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO
Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER AMERICAN TENOR
Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham
P I A N I S T
Mgr. Harry Culbertson

M. J. BRINES

Some recent press comment on Mr. M. J. Brines, tenor, reads as follows:

Too much cannot be said of the work of the orchestra throughout and the same is true of the one vocalist, Mr. M. J. Brines, whose rich voice never was heard to better advantage than it was yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Brines' first number was the prize song of Walther, from "Die Meistersinger," and it was one well calculated to show the power and beauty of the singer's voice. No less enjoyable, however, was the group of ballads that formed his later number, all beautifully sung. He was obliged to respond to many recalls, and finally to an encore.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Mr. Brines received an ovation and it is certain that he issued from the ordeal of the day with flying colors. No soloist whom Mr. Shepherd has introduced has been given as hearty a greeting. He sings in excellent style, taste and vigor, and won several encores, first for the "Meistersinger Prieslied" and later for the "Lockruf Song," by Ruckauf.—H. G. Whitney, in Desert News.

His singing of the "La Boheme" aria was perhaps his happiest effort. It certainly captured the house.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The twenty-ninth recitative by Mr. Brines, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart," and the following air, "Behold and See if There Is Any Sorrow Like Unto His Sorrow," were rendered with much feeling, and brought forth salvos of applause at their conclusion.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel.

M. J. Brines, tenor, sang the initial recitative and other tenor passages admirably.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Daily News.

Mr. Brines, tenor, realized perhaps better than the other soloists the emotional values of the "Messiah." "Thy Rebuke" was especially a fine number.—Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal.

Mr. Brines has one of the best tenor voices imaginable and his singing was enthusiastically received.—Evanston (Ill.) Index.

M. J. Brines, tenor, who was heard here for the first time, was found to be an oratorio artist of merit. He did well in his difficult recitatives and air of the third part and rose splendidly to the occasions of "Thou Shalt Break Them."—Minneapolis Journal.

The tenor solos were splendidly sung by M. J. Brines.—Coryl B. Storrs, in the Minneapolis Tribune.

Mr. Brines has a voice of ringing, sympathetic quality, full of music and power. He sang without the mannerism and affectations that mar so many singers' work.—Yonkers Statesman, Yonkers, N. Y.

Rarely gifted is Mr. Brines as a singer, possessing a tenor voice of much power, a wide range and beautiful quality. Coupled with this, he showed almost perfect control, much depth of temperament, and rare interpretative ability.—Ogden Examiner, Ogden, Utah.

RECITAL AT MANDEL HALL, UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

He certainly is one of the leaders of the art of combining good musicianship with effective popular appeal. A brilliant, high voice, with abundant change of expression and versatile vocalism, is his gift.—The Daily Maroon. (Advertisement.)

Krum—Some recent and successful appearances of the professional pupils of Mrs. Charles L. Krum: Lillian White Freyn gave a costume recital at the home of Mrs. Egbert H. Gold, and appeared as soloist before the Chicago Woman's Club, January 3 and January 10, Mr. Frederick Lewis furnishing accompaniments. Miss Myrtle Moses was soloist at Sinai Temple, January 9. Mrs. John D. Trelease gave the musical program at the Brinnar Woman's Club. Mrs. Hall appeared in a Japanese costume recital with Mrs. Nevin Schoolfield, January 12.

Proctor—Mr. Warren Proctor is giving recitals in Iowa this week.

A CHAMBER MUSIC CLUB

The recently organized Society for the Uplift of Chamber Music on the west side of Chicago will give the first series of four chamber concerts at Stiles' Hall, Twenty-second street and Millard avenue, on Sundays, January 24, February 7, February 21, and March 7, at 3 p. m. The chief aim of this society is to foster the love of chamber music on the west side, which till today has been without regular concerts of the kind. These concerts will be given every two weeks, and the following performers will take part: Dvorak Quintet; Helen Novy, piano; George Hrusa, first violin; Joseph Roda, second violin; Albert Belsan, viola; A. V. Cerny, violoncello. The Dvorak Quartet, as above, with the exception of Helen Novy, Messrs. Charles Bednorz, George Hrusa and A. V. Cerny, form the Cerny Trio. In addition to the above artists, several vocalists and other instrumentalists will appear as soloists in each concert.

Dr. J. G. Salaba Vojan, who is an authority on the aesthetics of music, will give introductory addresses on the compositions performed. The moderate charge of admission, 35 cents per ticket, will enable everyone to take advantage of these concerts.

In the first concert, January 24, the Dvorak Quintet will be given, and the following soloists will also appear: Julie Pribyl-Geringer, soprano; Helen Novy, piano; Joseph Hurt, tenor, and George Hrusa, violin.

The program is as follows:

Piano—Quintet, in A major.....Dvorak
Ave Maria (for soprano, with cello obligato, organ and piano accompaniment).....Gounod
Piano solo—Ceske Perle, a concert fantasia on Bohemian airs, from "Bohemian Pearls".....Naprapnik
Violin solo—Fantasie, from "Faust".....Wieniawski
Tenor solo—Aria, from "Carmen".....Bizet
Piano quintet and organ—
Kamenor Ostrov.....Rubinstein
Freischutz (overture for quintet).....Weber

Bollmann—Sunday afternoon, January 24, the Bollmann Orchestra will give a popular program at the North Side Turner Hall. The soloists will be Nicholas Redey, tenor; Frya Maria Mack, soprano; Messrs. George Lipschultz and Rudolph Mangold, violinists; Mr. Winhardt, flute; Mr. Crisafulli, trombone, and Gertrude Weinstock, child pianist, a pupil of Esther Harris.

Congdon—Mr. George Congdon, who has held the position of choirmaster at Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church for thirty years, has resigned and will henceforth make his home in Los Angeles, Cal. He will be greatly missed and the good wishes of a very large circle of friends will follow him to his new home.

Freer—Eleanor Everest Freer's "How Many Times Do I Love You Dear," which, by many critics is ranked with the work of Debussy and Strauss, was sung with great success at a recent Faculty Concert of the International College of Music by Mr. A. Ray Carpenter.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

JESSIE KING

PIANIST Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN
TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

The Economy in Buying the HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

Symphony Program, Friday and Saturday, January 22-23

Dr. Muck has been in Boston over four years and has placed only one of Strauss' later tone poems upon his programs, the "Syphonia Domestica," but has played several of the earlier ones. The orchestra has been giving much careful preparation recently to the Strauss tone poem, "Thus Spake Zarathustra," and this will be the second work upon the programs of Friday afternoon, January 22, and Saturday night, the 23d. This tone poem will be preceded by the "First Symphony in E Minor" of Sibelius, and Ferruccio Busoni, if he reaches America, will play the "Piano Concerto in E Flat Major, No. 1," Liszt. Should Mr. Busoni be unable to play, the "Leonora," No. 3 Overture by Beethoven, will take place of the concerto.

The Concert of the Musicians' Relief Society of Boston (Inc.)

Four hundred prominent Boston musicians will combine into a band led by John Philip Sousa, and give a program of compositions by the conductor, Rubinstein, Liszt and others, at the annual benefit concert for the fornamed society, in Mechanics Hall, Sunday, February 14. Mrs. Gertrude Holt, lyric soprano; a trombone quartet, Messrs. Corey, Proctor, Gulesian and Howard, will also contribute to the program.

The Boston Vocal Teachers' Association Discusses "Covered Tones"

At the meeting of the Boston Vocal Teachers' Association in the Harvard Musical Union Rooms, Saturday night, January 9, the association discussed the value of "Covered Tones" to the singer. The discussion was led by Frank E. Morse, some time a teacher at the New England Conservatory, now one of the most influential private vocal instructors here, and he was followed by Arthur J. Hubbard, F. W. Wodell, Stephen Townsend, Charles A. White, and George Remele. There seemed to be much indefiniteness about the methods used in imparting the ability to use the "covered tones," and at least one of the teachers, one whose success in his chosen field makes his opinion weighty, does not make use of the term in his teaching.

The other subject discussed was "The Use of Breath in Singing." This was led by Clarence A. Hay. Here, too, the feature of the discussion was the lack of definite, concrete statement, so that the impression was left that the teachers either had very vague ideas upon the subject, or were afraid to give their method of treating it to their competitors.

It was brought out, however, that all sorts of ways to breathe, clavicular, abdominal, inter-costal, et cetera, were used by singers and good results had been secured.

New England Conservatory Items

A concert by advanced students of the New England Conservatory of Music last evening (January 18) in Jordan Hall, included numbers from several young people who have been prominent in concerts and recitals of other seasons at the conservatory.

There was an enthusiastic reception for the twin pianists, the Misses Mae G. and Wilhelmina Cotton, of Newtonville, graduates in last year's class, who made their first public appearance of this session in Grieg's "Ballade with Variations," Op. 51, for two pianofortes. A singer who was frequently on the programs of the past two years is Agnes Reid of Baltimore, heard last evening in the Wagner songs, "Traume" and "Schmerzen." Miss Reid was graduated with honors last June and has returned for graduate study at the conservatory.

Two organ numbers were presented: The Bach "Prelude and Fugue" in A Minor, by Dorothy Park (Taunton) and Rheinberger's "Pastoral Sonata," by Ruth Tilton (Fort Edward, N. Y.). George W. Chadwick's song "When Stars Are in the Quiet Skies," and two others, were sung by Georgie May Morris, a Dorchester girl, and Borroff proved the surprise and success of the evening. Examiner

One through whom the message of the composer was made clear. Staats Zeitung

Rapt attention of the audience from first to last. Examiner

Rarely has he been more deservedly successful. Inter Ocean

One of the most admirable features is the unhackneyed character of his programs. Record Herald

Fitted by a wonderfully clear enunciation to demonstrate that English is a singable language. Journal

Finally it displayed his ease and certainty in all schools of song. Tribune from the same suburb Ethel Perkins rendered the Chopin "Ballade" in G Minor, Op. 23. Isabel Wadsworth Clark, of Portland, Ore., another honor graduate of 1914, appeared with Paderewski's "Theme Varie," in A Major. An interesting instrumental number was Vieuxtemps' "Elegie," for the viola, by Gertrude Nissenbaum, of Boston.

504 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

The annual organ recital given by Homer Humphrey of the faculty, complimentary to New England Conservatory pupils, their friends and others, took place on Monday evening, January 18, in Jordan Hall.

A Two-Violin Program Worcester

A concert unique in program will be given at Washburn Hall, Worcester, Tuesday night, February 2, by Emanuel Ondricek, Mrs. Ondricek, violinists of Boston, and the Metropolitan Opera Company, tenor, Mr. Fornari. Music News editor for Boston will have charge of the event.

An interesting story about concerts for two violins is reproduced from the Brunn, Austria, "Lidove Noviny." The article was published at the time of the Ondricek-Kalova concert in that city.

Concerts for two violins, although they have their place in the musical history of the past, would be considered a novelty by the public of today.

Concerts of this stamp were formerly divided into two classes—with and without rivalry. Those of the latter class are given by two artists of the same instrument, but with no thought of supremacy, one over the other,—in other words, the numbers are simply duets, one performer being the complement of the other. Concerts of the first class, however, fall under the head of artists' tournaments. The idea of measuring one's artistic ability with the desire for supremacy in the chosen field is as old as art itself. The Greeks and Romans of old played, sang, declaimed and wrote poetry for prizes. In the middle ages we have the Troubadours, Minnesingers and others. During the reign of the famous Paganini, the musical calendar abounded in rival concerts for two violins. Many violinists of that period wished to measure their skill with Paganini. For example, the famous French violinist, Lafont (1781-1839), challenged Paganini to a concert for two violins. The rivals met in Milan in 1816. But after Paganini's first number, Lafont, realizing only too well his inability to cope with so great a genius, drove away from the concert, giving up all idea of any rivalry. Nor did the Polish violinist, Lipinski (1790-1861), fare any better. Only in one instance did the invincible Paganini feel any anxiety. This was that of the youthful Bohemian violinist, Josef Slavik, whose wonderfully mature development amazed and disturbed Paganini to such an extent that he very diplomatically canceled the prearranged concert for two violins. (Josef Slavik was born in 1806 and died in 1833. He played in Prague, Vienna, Paris and Pesth with overwhelming success. Not only was he compared to Paganini but was acknowledged his superior by the critics. Paganini hearing him play at Vienna, cried out thunderstruck, "Le monde tremble quand vous jouez." (The world trembles when you play.) Slavik died at the threshold of his splendid career in his twenty-seventh year.)

That rival concerts for two violins did not pass into oblivion at Paganini's death is shown by the following incident taken from a later period. The famous Polish violinist, Henri Wieniawski (1835-1880), had been obsessed for a long time with the idea of challenging his equally famous rival, Ferdinand Laub (1832-1875) to a rival concert. Wieniawski relied in no small degree upon his so-called specialty, the staccato. Laub was playing in Vienna the Concerto No. 1 in E Major by Vieuxtemps, which is replete with long staccato passages, under the baton of the conductor, Hellmesberger, who was not on friendly terms with the violinist. Wieniawski sat in the front row following all that was taking place.

When Laub came to the staccato passages suddenly Hellmesberger swept the orchestra with a tempo three times as fast as that indicated. Any other violinist would have been lost, but Laub played the long staccato passages with so great a surety and bravado and at so whirlwind a tempo that the audience held its breath. Wieniawski was dumbfounded, and when through the hall there swept an overwhelming storm of applause, he excitedly ran out crying, "Das verfluchte Schwein spielt wie ein Gott." (The cursed pig plays like a god.) Naturally Wieniawski did not dare challenge Laub to a rival concert.

At the present time, rival concerts have completely died out.

EXAMPLES OF A PROGRAM FOR TWO VIOLINS

Sonata G minor (two violins and piano)....G. Haendel
Andante
Arioso
Allegro
Phantasie, "Carmen" (violin solo).....
.....J. Hubay Em. Ondricek
Ella Kalova
Idyllee
Conte mysterieuse.....P. Juon
(For two violins and piano)
German Dance Ditterdorf
Affetuoso F. Benda
Cadenza by Em. Ondricek
Witches' Dance N. Paganini
(Violin solos)
Emanuel Ondricek

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

Serenade (two violins and piano).....Ch. Sinding Tempo di marcia
 Andante
 Allegretto
 Andante
 Allegro

Recitals to Come

One of the three recitals that Mme. Sembrich plans to give this season in America, will be heard in Symphony Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 7. The other two will be given in Chicago and New York.

Fritz Kreisler, whose recitals in Symphony Hall have been given to crowded houses, will give a third Sunday afternoon, January 24. He leaves Boston immediately for Richmond, Va., after the concert, as he plays there Monday night, the 25th.

Arthur Whiting, with assisting artists, will give three concerts of chamber music in the John Knowles Paine Concert Hall, Harvard University, Wednesday nights, January 20, February 10 and March 10, at 8:15 o'clock.

Mr. Whiting will comment and explain the compositions, which, for the first concert, will be Beethoven's works, played by Albert Spalding, violinist; William Durieux, 'cellist, and Mr. Whiting. There will be modern and classic songs for the second program, Mme. Sundelius being the singer, and the third concert will present four-part songs by Brahms and old Scotch songs, sung by the University Quartet of New York.

Mr. Spalding plays Beethoven's "Kreutzer" sonata with piano, and in the trio in B flat major.

Members of the Choral Musical Society sang Cesar Franck's "Mass in A" at the fifth service of the New England Chapter, American Guild of Organists, Wednesday night, January 20, in the First Church, Boston. The singers were Miss Bernice Taft, soprano; Everett S. Glibes, tenor; Robert Lunger, baritone, and the instrumentalists Miss Lydia White, harp; Heinrich Warnke, 'cello; John P. Marshall, organ—these play the accompaniment to the mass.

Walter J. Clemson, dean, is directing arrangements. L. S. B.

Clippinger—Mr. D. A. Clippinger will give a lecture-recital on Hugo Wolf and E. A. MacDowell, at 414 Kimball Hall, Saturday, at 3:00.

Fullerton Hall—The program for next Sunday night is "Natoma," with Marjorie Dodge Warner and Alfred Kanberg as soloists.

BUSH CONSERVATORY NOTES

Mr. Eugene Musser, pupil of Miss Grace Stewart Potter and Mr. Frank Brantley, pupil of Madame Justine Wegener of Bush Conservatory, gave a joint recital Saturday evening, January 9, at the Campbell Park Presbyterian Church. It was a well selected program and was received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Musser is organist at the church and immediately after the recital Mr. Brantley was also engaged. Mr. Musser and Mr. Brantley have a number of recitals to be given in the very near future in and around Chicago.

On Friday evening, January 22, a recital will be given at the Bush Conservatory by pupils of Mr. Harold von Mickwitz and Madame Justine Wegener.

The students of the School of Expression of the Bush Conservatory will give a studio recital Saturday afternoon, January 23, at 3 p. m.

Mr. Earl Victor Prah, pupil of Madame Julie Rive-King, was heard in a group of solos Sunday afternoon at the Fullerton Hall and was received with much enthusiasm. Mr. Prah is a young pianist who is rapidly coming to the front, and whose work has won much admiration from all who have heard him.

Kober—Miss Georgia Kober and David Dunbar Duggan will give a joint recital February 27 at the North Shore Woman's Club, that being Chicago Composer night at the Club. Miss Kober played in the Faculty Concert, January 14, of the Sherwood Music School, in Thurber Recital Hall, 300 Fine Arts building. She also plays January 31 at the home of Mrs. Frances J. Dewes, 503 Wrightwood avenue, and January 21 she is soloist in Seattle, Wash, with the Philharmonic Orchestra. On February 2, 3 and 5 she appears in Ohio.

Spry School—Mrs. Minnie Fish-Griffin, soprano, and James Whittaker, pianist, will give a recital on Saturday afternoon, January 23, at 3 o'clock, in the Literary Club rooms, Fine Arts Building. Mrs. Griffin will sing a group of songs by Schumann and also introduce some songs recently published and dedicated to her by the American composer, Robert Eilenberg. Mr. Whittaker will play the Prelude, Aria and Finale by Cesar Franck, and groups by Chopin and Liszt.

Macbeth—Miss Florence Macbeth is in New York coaching with her teacher, Yeatman Griffith.

WILLIAM HINSHAW AT BAYREUTH

The accompanying snapshot was taken at Bayreuth, in those bygone days of peace, when the name of Germany was associated with Wagner rather than with Mars. Mr. Hinshaw was in Berlin this summer when the war broke out, having just completed his twelfth performance of "Wotan" at the

WILLIAM WADE HINSHAW AND JACQUES URLUS IN BAYREUTH
 (Photo taken last summer)

Wagner festival there. Of course the twelve remaining performances for which he was engaged, as well as the various "guest" appearances he was to fill at different European opera houses, were cancelled, and the big baritone returned to this country—or more specifically to New York—where he has since been devoting his time to teaching, concertizing and "living." For Mr. Hinshaw is not only a great artist and fine musician, but one of those splendid all-around men whose time is full of many and varied interests and who is alive to the richness of life in its fullest and most complete sense.

Keyes—Miss Margaret Keyes, contralto, was soloist at a recent Tuesday Salon at Sherry's in New York.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges, Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.
646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

SOLOS and QUARTETS FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE CECIL FANNING IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers
Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.
67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

Teachers Wanted

Teachers of Violin; Violin and Piano; Voice; Voice and Piano; Piano; Piano and Pipe Organ for Sept. openings in Southern Schools.

The Interstate Teachers' Agency
Macheca Bldg., New Orleans

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

309 Metropolitan
Music Bldg.
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST
Kimball Hall
JOINT SONATA RECITALS
Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST
81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

People & Events

M. J. BRINES

Not often is it possible for any newcomer in Chicago to so rapidly attain public recognition and respect as has been the case with Mr. M. J. Brines, the tenor, who has been here only a few years but who is already in the front rank of favorites with the public and with other musicians.

Mr. Brines, whose likeness is shown on the title page of Music News today, has a voice of rare charm and expressiveness and withal it is full of vitality and resourcefulness.

He is a musician to the fullest degree and one also who has native intelligence and force as well as an acquired technic which easily carry him through every phase of the public musician's life.

His voice is tenor in the fullest acceptance of the term, rising very easily to the highest point of the usual tenor range; it is also an extremely clear and beautiful voice, but, furthermore, it has an unusual breadth and depth of quality in its lower range and partakes often of the fullness and power usually associated with the high baritone.

Dramatic qualities as well as lyric may very justly be ascribed to Mr. Brines and these various phases of his voice are fully met by diverse and positive graces of the mind. For he has wide range of interpretative abilities as well as distinct charm in many and diverse phases of the art of song.

Mr. Brines came to Chicago from Salt Lake City, where he went from New York on account of his health and where he made a fine impression as a singer.

Very early he began his career in New York, and while only a youth held important positions at the famous Broadway Tabernacle, at St. Andrew's in Harlem and at the West End Presbyterian Church, in all of these the salary being very great for so young a singer and equalling that paid many mature artists.

Mr. Brines was born at Westerly, R. I., but secured his A. B. at Trinity College at Hartford, Conn., and has besides done post-graduate work at the University of Chicago.

In the east he has sung as soloist with the Lowell (Mass.) Symphony Orchestra, and with the Cleveland Philharmonic.

In St. Louis he was especially successful in his appearance with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and his success in "The Messiah" at Minneapolis, under direction of Emil Oberhoffer, is of very recent occurrence.

Last summer he filled a succession of chautauqua dates in connection with the Central Church Quartet and Dr. Frank Gunsaulus and he has been for several years the tenor soloist at Central Church in Chicago, besides fulfilling recital, oratorio and concert dates under many auspices in this city and also throughout the country.

When he first came to Chicago he was offered at once several important church positions, including the First Presbyterian, Evanston, and Isaiah Temple in Chicago, but his choice fell to Central Church and he has made a pronounced success in that congregation, which as everyone knows, is the largest in Chicago.

Mr. Brines also is director of the University Congregational Choir and his success with this organization is indicated in a recent review of their work which appeared in Music News.

Mr. Brines' voice teachers have been, principally, in voice development, Mr. E. Presson Miller of New York, with whom he studied three years, and in coaching, Ffrangon Davies, Oscar Saenger and Daniel Protheroe, to each of whom he acknowledges a debt of gratitude for the assistance they have rendered.

A very notable feature in Mr. Brines' work is the fact of his remarkable versatility, for, besides having such pronounced success in church work and in oratorio and being able to give recitals of wide variety of subjects and embracing German, French, Italian and English text, he is also especially successful in songs of humorous content, a very great specialty being a long list of Irish songs in which he is absolutely inimitable.

When Mr. Brines sings a solo at the Central Church he holds the undivided and thoroughly respectful attention of the vast throngs there assembled, including people of great intelligence along every line of human endeavor and in every phase of art.

When he sings at Armour Institute (as this writer heard him last winter) to a packed house of young men and boys he not only uplifts them with good music, delivered with simplicity and purity but also he touches that chord which makes every one of them vibrate with delight when he presents some of his joyful character studies and dialect stories in music. Thus he proves his versatility and thus he shows also that he is the possessor of a great personality and one which is, moreover, worthy of unlimited respect.

C. E. W.

FRANCES INGRAM DATES

Frances Ingram, the contralto, is having an extremely successful concert season. This month will take her from the below-zero weather of the north to the balmy atmosphere of the Gulf of Mexico. Her recitals for January will be in the following cities:

January 12—St. Joseph, Mo.
January 13—Wichita, Kan.
January 16—Austin, Tex.
January 18—Dallas, Tex.
January 19—Fort Worth, Tex.
January 21—Waco, Texas.
January 22—Marshall, Tex.
January 25—Corpus Christi, Tex.
January 27—Galveston, Tex.

Tucker—An event of much local interest will be the song recital which is to be given on January 31 at the Blackstone Theater by Carlile Tucker, baritone. Mr. Tucker has prepared a splendid program and great interest is manifested in this, his first appearance, since his protracted study abroad.

Donath—Ruth Normann, a pupil of Kurt Donath, who took the leading part in "The Climax," just returned from a five months' tour to coach with him again.

HELEN WARE'S BROTHER DEFIES "GENIUS"

A congenial company gathered the other day for an impromptu musicale in the apartment of Helen Ware, the eminent interpreter of Hungarian and Slav music. Between the numbers the artists amused one another with stories of old as well as anecdotes from their recent tours. Those present were greatly amused with the interesting tales their hostess told from the "wee days" of her musical career. One of them in particular stirred the company to great merriment and laughter. Helen Ware spoke of the various members of the Ware family who have been blessed with an unusual amount of talent in different branches of art. It was in connection with these statistics that she told the following story about her little brother:

HELEN WARE
Caricature by Viafora

"When I left for my European studies my people bade me goodbye at the pier and as I remember there were many tears dropped from all sides and the atmosphere was rather gloomy until my mother observed that my youngest brother was not taking part in the 'doloroso chant.' The youngster, on being asked whether he would also like to go to Europe, did not seem very willing. Then my mother inquired whether he would not like to be a genius, so as to be sent abroad for study. He most emphatically replied, 'No, I do not want to be a genius.' All present were surprised at his decisive answer. 'But,' my mother said, 'do you know what the word genius means?' My brother looked rather perplexed for a moment or so, but soon he solved the problem to his entire satisfaction, and our merriment, by replying, 'Oh, yes, I know what a genius is. A genius is someone who knows everything about one thing but does not know a darn thing about anything else.'"

St. Paul's—At St. Paul's Church, Fifth street and Dorchester avenue, a special musical service will be given next Sunday afternoon at 4:30. Mr. John Allen Richardson will direct and play the organ and the soloists will be Charles Phoenix and Richard Higgins, sopranos, and William Clifford, tenor.

C. W. BEST ARTISTS' SERIES

The artists include Antonio Sala, 'cellist; M. Emile Follmer, tenor; Helen Watson Powers, soprano; Helen Desmond, pianist; Leo Zelenka-Lerando, harpist; Marguerite Austin, violinist; Hazel Dell Neff, soprano; Mrs. Sargent Haskell, reader.

The above series of concerts will be given in the following places between January and April:

Morris, Ill.	Olney, Ill.
Ottawa, Ill.	Lawrenceville, Ill.
Peru, Ill.	Robinson, Ill.
Pekin, Ill.	Bloomfield, Ind.
Eureka, Ill.	Bloomington, Ind.
El Paso, Ill.	Greencastle, Ind.
Bloomington, Ill.	Brazil, Ind.
Clinton, Ill.	Terre Haute, Ind.
Gibson City, Ill.	Goodland, Ind.
Hoopeston, Ill.	Charleston, Ill.
Atlanta, Ill.	Oakland, Ill.
Lincoln, Ill.	Chrisman, Ill.
Jacksonville, Ill.	Sheldon, Ill.
Waverly, Ill.	Western Springs, Ill.
Pittsfield, Ill.	Niles, Mich.
Chapin, Ill.	Three Rivers, Mich.
Beardstown, Ill.	White Pigeon, Mich.
Greenfield, Ill.	Battle Creek, Mich.
Jerseyville, Ill.	Jackson, Mich.
Hannibal, Mo.	Kalamazoo, Mich.
Washington, Mo.	Adrian, Mich.
St. Charles, Mo.	Olivet, Mich.
St. Louis, Mo.	Union City, Mich.
Maplewood, Mo.	Hudson, Mich.
Kirkwood, Mo.	Hillsdale, Mich.
Carlinville, Ill.	Tecumseh, Mich.
Granite City, Ill.	Owosso, Mich.
Collinsville, Ill.	St. John, Mich.
Greenville, Ill.	Ionia, Mich.
Highland, Ill.	Muskegon, Mich.
Marion, Ill.	Allegan, Mich.
Du Quoin, Ill.	Otsego, Mich.
Christopher, Ill.	Hastings, Mich.
Centralia, Ill.	St. Joseph, Mich.
Mt. Vernon, Ill.	East Chicago, Ind.
Flora, Ill.	Valparaiso, Ind.

Spalding—The Brooklyn Eagle classes Albert Spalding as equal in every respect with Zimbalist and Elman. Chicago long ago recognized the fact.

LAUREL WESSEL

Laura Wessel, mezzo contralto of Omaha, recently gave recitals at Pilger and Wisner, Neb., being return engagements. Both press and public were lavish in their praise of not only her work, but the unusual velvety quality of her voice, laying especial stress upon the great improvement since she was heard about eight months before. During March and the last two weeks of February Miss Wessel will fill engagements in Iowa and Nebraska and will be in Illinois for late spring engagements.

Miss Wessel is an artist pupil of the Dickerman School of Voice, Acting and Expression of Omaha, and she will give the third number in the Artist Pupils' concert series.

The following program was given at Wisner:

Hi Ho for the Morning.....	Marshall
Sunset	Buck
May Time	Speaks

GERMAN

Wenn die Rosen Blühen.....	Reichardt
Niemand hat's gesehen.....	Loewe
Mondnacht	Schumann
Der Sieger	Kaun
Song Cycle, "Mood".....	Ashford
The Search
Night Song
My Own True Love
Sunset and Dawn
Evening
Ever a Song Somewhere
Good Night

FRENCH

Connais tu le pays (from Mignon).....	Thomas
L'Esclave	Lalo

ITALIAN

Caro Mio Ben	Giordani
Vola Serenata	Tosti
May Morning	Denza
June and My Lady	Del Riego

REED MILLER

TENOR
and

NEVADA VAN DER VEER

MEZZO-CONTRALTO

Are Recognized the Country Over as

Concert and Oratorio Singers of Very Exceptional Attainments

"The Tenor, Reed Miller, offered exceptional ability as an interpreter, his sustaining and uniting of tones being admirable, his enunciation clear, and his style musicianly and broad."

NEW YORK WORLD

Now under the Exclusive Management of LOUDON CHARLTON
CARNEGIE HALL, NEW YORK

"Madam Van der Veer was found to be in possession of a powerful voice, of good even quality, which she uses judiciously and with a variety of effects."

NEW YORK TIMES

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11
For Catalog Address

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON. FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

CONSTANCE PURDY IN ST. PAUL

Wednesday, January 13, Constance Purdy, contralto, gave a recital of Russian music in St. Paul, Minn. Miss Mabel Hammond was the accompanist. The daily press comments as follows:

To give a program of a dozen or more Russian songs and to preface each one, not only with an explanation of the text but also with a talk about the composer, is no easy task for any artist to set herself, and yet that is just what Constance Purdy, a contralto from New York, did before the Schubert club at Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon. That she succeeded in interesting her large audience was thrice evident from the frequent and generous applause which she received.

Miss Purdy appeared in the costume of a grande dame of Russia dating back about 100 years and sang songs by Glinka, Dargomijsky, Kallinnikov, Rubinstein, Balakirev, Borodine, Moussorgsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, Gliere, Grechaninov and Glazounov. Most of these she sang in the Russian tongue and some of them she sang in English.

If her Russian was as correctly enunciated as was her English, it was delightful. Possessing a voice of good timber, adequate range and rare freedom, Miss Purdy brought to each one of her songs a fine intelligence that proclaimed her a lieder singer of artistic caliber.

From the deeper demands of Glinka's recitative and aria from "The Czar" and Olga's air from "Russalka" to the naive "Song of the Gnat" from "Boris" and the children's songs by Moussorgsky, over which latter Liszt was wont to enthuse, the singer displayed a large store of vocal color and much atmospheric insight. Indeed it was this very element of atmosphere that imparted to her recital a most illusive and transporting mood. It was very Russian.—St. Paul Pioneer.

Enthusiastic appreciation by a large audience marked the recital of Russian songs by Constance Purdy, American contralto, at the Masonic temple Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Schubert club.

Miss Purdy possesses a splendid voice and she brought to her performance a thorough understanding of the spirit of the Slavic music that added much to its musical excellence. Color and atmosphere were not lacking.

Previous to each of the more than a dozen songs Miss Purdy gave a brief explanatory talk on the song and a sketch of the composer. This was appreciated by the large number of hearers not much familiar with some of the numbers.

There were no less than 13 composers represented on the program, among others being Tschaikowsky, Rubinstein, Glinka, Rimski-Korsakov, Rachmaninoff and Glazounov.—St. Paul Daily News.

Recitative and Aria from "A Life for the Tzar".....Glinka
Olga's Air from "Russalka".....Dargomijsky
The Bells.....Kallinnikov
Romance.....Rubinstein
Lullaby.....Balakirev
Rich and Poor.....Borodine
Trepak
Hostess' Song from "Boris Godounov" } Moussorgsky
Vision
Selections from the Children's Songs }
Night.....R. Korsakov
Pauline's Air from "Pique Dame".....Tschaikowsky
The Water Lily.....Rachmaninoff
I Must Have Rejoicing.....Gliere
Hushed the Song of the Nightingale.....Grechaninov
Drinking Song.....Glazounov
(Advertisement.)

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Some recent press comment reads as follows:

Admirers of the rare voice and gracious personality of Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman improve each opportunity of hearing the famous soprano. Many lines could be written upon the work of this artist here last evening, but the public knows what it is.

Mrs. Bollman was surely at her best last night and sang herself into the hearts of the people. The program, somewhat lighter and composed of the shorter numbers of the modern classics with the exception of one or two selections, is a vein in which Mrs. Bollman excels.

Opening with "Come, Ever Smiling Liberty," from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," she led to a group of lighter numbers, including a lullaby of exceptional sweetness and a children's group in which she was unusually charming.

The two numbers, "In Doors" and "The Dark," by Jeanne M. Boyd, from a "Child's World," which is dedicated to Mrs. Bollman, also the one following, "Red Hair," by Carpenter, were sung with such expression and a knowledge of the child life that they were irresistible. Again the singer's ability to sing child songs with rare art was fully demonstrated.

"Grand Valse," by Venzano, as her closing number of the announced program, was followed by a request number, "A Perfect Day," sung only as Mrs. Bollman can sing it. It made a fitting conclusion to the delightful concert.

Her greatest charm perhaps lies in her personality, abounding in beauty and amiability. Mrs. Bollman is aided most thoroughly in her work by her talented accompanist, Lila Lund, whose work is ever a pleasing background for the beautiful voice of the singer.—Elgin Daily News, Dec. 15, 1914. (Advertisement.)

Kuehn—Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Kuehn gave a violin and piano program at the Auditorium Recital Hall on last Monday evening.

CLARENCE EDDY.

Following is a list of Mr. Clarence Eddy's engagements for the near future:

January 18—Presbyterian Church, Monmouth, Ill.
January 19—Presbyterian Church, Oregon, Ill.
February 2—DeLand, Fla.
February 4—St. Petersburg, Fla.
February 5—Gainesville, Fla.
February 7—Jacksonville, Fla.
February 8—Miami, Fla.
February 9—Palm Beach, Fla.
February 11—Jacksonville, Fla.
February 12—St. Augustine, Fla.

Some of Mr. Eddy's Programs

At Terrell, Texas, January 8:

Concert Prelude on a German Chorale....Wm. Faulkes
"Song of Sorrow,"
"Will O' the Wisp".....Gordon Balch Nevin
Third Sonata in E major, Op. 43 (new).....Rene L. Becker
Prelude—Andante maestoso
Adoration—Adagio sostenuto
Finale—Toccata, Allegro vivo
Boatmen's Song on the River Volga.....Anon
Vorspiel to Lohengrin.....Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Fantasia on "My Old Kentucky Home".....J. E. W. Lord
"At Evening" (new).....Ralph Kinder
"Jubilate Aden" (new).....Ralph Kinder
Rondo, "Soeur Monique".....Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue in D minor.....Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song.....William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction.....J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)

WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
1325 E. 64th

Toccata in F major.....Thomas J. Crawford
At Austin, Texas, Tuesday, January 5:
Concert Prelude on a German Choral (new).....William Faulkes
"Supplication"
"Paeon" (new).....Julius Harrison
"Angelus," from the opera, "Sweethearts".....Victor Herbert (Arranged by Clarence Eddy)
Funeral March and Seraphic Song.....Alex Guilmant
Boatman's Song on the River Volga.....Richard Wagner
Vorspiel to "Lohengrin".....Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Third Sonata, opus 43 (new).....Rene L. Becker
Prelude, Andante Maestoso.
Adoration, Adagio Sostenuto.
Finale, Toccato Allegro-Vivo.
"Christmas in Sicily".....Pietro Alessandro Yon
"At Evening."
"Jubilate Amen" (new).....Ralph Kinder
Fantasia on "My Old Kentucky Home".....J. E. W. Lord
Allegro Con fuoco (new).....Aug. de Boeck
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1915
Concert Prelude in D minor (new).....A. W. Kramer
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
"Song of Sorrow."
"Will O' the Wisp" (new).....Gordon B. Nevin
"In Paradise."
"Fiat Lux".....Theo. Dubois
Nuptial Song.....Wm. Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction.....J. Frank Frysinger
Funeral March of a Marionette.....Gounod
(Arranged by W. T. Best)
"Sunset and Evening Bells" (new).....Gottfried Federlein
"Cradle Song".....Arthur Hartman
"Spring Song".....Mendelssohn
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
"The Sandman".....John Carver Alden
"Concert Gavotte" (new).....Raymond B. Mixsell
"Cantique d'Amour".....S. Tudor Strang
"Allegretto," in E flat.....Wm. Wolstenholme
Festival March.....M. Enrico Bossi

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Season New Booking

Address Care of Music News

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austb
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

Director-Accompanist

TINA MAE HAINES

If I Could Call the Years Back

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Petrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by ISABEL STEWART-NORTH Published by THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

SCHNITZER

Management R. E. Johnston

Baldwin Piano Co.

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

Thatcher—Burton Thatcher gave a song recital before the pupils of the Chicago Musical College last Saturday morning.

MR. KELLER OPENS NEW ORGAN

Mr. Walter Keller of Chicago opened a new Austin organ at the Baldwin-Wallace College at Berea, Ohio, on January 12, playing the following fine program with great success:

Sonata, D major.....Mendelssohn
Andante, andante con moto, Allegro Maestoso
Prelude and Fugue, op. 16.....Piutti
Adagio cantabile (from Sonata op. 45).....Herbert J. Wrightson
Romantic Fantasia.....Samuel Bollinger
Dedicated to Mr. Keller
*Funeral March and Seraphic Hymn.....Guilmant
Scherzo (from G minor Symphony).....E. Lemare
Fifteen minute intermission

Prelude, B minor.....Bach
Cantilena.....J. H. Rogers
Caprice, Op. 33.....J. Callaerts
Toccata.....A. L. Barnes
Romanza.....Walter Keller
Will o' the Wisp.....Gordon Balch Nevin
Introduction and March from Montezuma.....Frederick Grant Gleason
*Played in memory of Prof. Julius O. Berr, who was Mr. Keller's piano teacher during his student days at Berea.

The Ohio Chapter of the A. G. O., which was associated with the college in the giving of this recital, attended in a body.

On January 13 Cowan's "Rose Maiden" was given, the soloists being Adeline Vose Eichelberger, Doris Stadden Kaser, Stephen Eichelberger and Francis Sadlier, under the direction of Albert Riemenschneider, with Mr. Keller at the organ.

The Berea organ is one of great power and beauty and for the benefit of other organists, the following comment is republished from the house program:

The organ which was built at a cost of $25,000 by the celebrated Austin Organ Co. is one of the largest instruments in Ohio. It contains 74 speaking stops in which the different classes of organ tones are represented in rich profusion and as near perfect balance as is possible. Almost every combination known to modern organ playing is available. Technically it contains five different organs and a pedal section. These divisions are known as Choir or Orchestra, Great, Swell, Solo and Echo. The last of these is located in a specially constructed room over the auditorium about 45 feet above the console and by means of duplex action can be played from either the Solo or Great organ manuals. The accessories thought necessary to large modern concert organs, such as harp, chimes, etc., are also included in this specification which follows:

Great Organ (Open Section)	Tremulant
Major Diapason 16'	7 couplers from orchestral, swell and solo
Principal Diapason 8'	8 adjustable combinations
Small Diapason 8'
Bourdon 8'	Solo Organ
Principal 4'	Stentorphone 8'
Super Octave 2'	Flauta Major 8'
Mixture 4 ranks	Gross Gamba 8'
(Enclosed Section)	Gamba Celeste 8'
Doppel Flute 8'	Flute Overt 4'
Claribel Flute 8'	Orchestral Oboe 8'
Violoncello 8'	French Horn 8'
Harmonic Flute 4'	Tuba Profunda 16'
Trumpet 8'	Harmonic Tuba 8'
12 Couplers from Swell,	Harmonic Clarion 4'
Orchestral and Solo—8	Celestial Harp
adjustable combinations	7 couplers to echo, solo and great
Swell Organ	8 adjustable combinations
Bourdon 16'	Echo Organ
Open Diapason 8'	Dolcissimo 16'
Rohr Flute 8'	Lieblich Gedacht 8'
Viol d' Gamba 8'	Echo Viole 8'
Viole d' Orchestre 8'	Vox Angelica 8'
Vox Seraphique 8'	Fern Flute 4'
Viole Celeste 8'	String Celeste 8' 2 ranks
Echo Salicional 8'	Vox Humana 8'
Flauto Traverso 4'	Cathedral Chimes
Violina 4'	Tremulant
Clageolet 2'	Couplers and adjustable combinations
Polce Cornet (3 ranks)	Pedal Organ
Contra Fagotto 16'	Resultant 32'
Corneopean 8'	Bourdon 32'
Harmonic Clarion 4'	Open Diapason 16'
Tremulant	Violone 16'
4 couplers to swell solo	Bourdon 16'
8 adjustable combinations	Lieblich Gedocht 16'

Orchestral Organ
Contra Viole 16'
Geigen Principal 8'
Concert Flute 8'
Flauto Dolce 8'
Flauto Dolce 8'
Unda Maris 8'
Dulciana 8'
Flute d'Amour 4'
Fugara 4'
Piccolo 8'
Clarinet 8'
Cor Auglais 8'

Contra Viole 16'
Violoncello 8'
Gross Flute 8'
Flauta Dolce 8'
Tuba Profunda 16'
Harmonic Tuba 8'
Echo Bourdon 16'
Pedal Principal 4'

5 couplers to different manuals
4 adjustable combinations

Other Mechanical Accessories

Six general adjustable combinations affecting all stops and couplers.
Fifteen pedal movements affecting stops and couplers.
Crescendo pedal.
Balanced, solo, echo, orchestral and swell pedals.
Cancel strips affecting every division and couplers.
A second console of the draw knob pattern will be installed in a few days.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

The Russian company, the first in the series of C. W. Best concerts, appeared in recital last evening at the First Baptist Church with Miss Marguerite Austin, violinist; Miss Hazel Dell Neff, soprano, and Leo Zelenka-Lerando, harpist, as the artists.

Miss Dell Neff delighted an attentive audience with her offerings of Russian folk songs, her appearance in the peasant and court costumes of the country adding to the interest.

Miss Dell Neff is the happy possessor of a voice of natural charm and richness and with it a very pleasing personality. Her rendition of the "Mignon" recitative and Polonaise (Thomas) was delightful, the tone was musical and pure and the text utterance clear.

Miss Marguerite Austin was in good form last evening and in her playing showed splendid interpretative qualities, good technical ability and delicacy. Her high art was revealed in her rendition of the difficult Tchaikowsky "Concerto, Opus 35." The Kreisler "Liebesfreud" was played with tenderness and beauty.

As is well known there are few men who appear as harp soloists so that Leo Zelenka-Lerando was heard with more than ordinary interest. His high attainments with the harp were a source of enjoyment to his many hearers. He played a beautiful Fantasie (Saint-Seans) and later an improvisation of his own. Both numbers gave him opportunity to display his skill. He has a brilliant technic, a sympathetic touch. His artistic playing went far toward making the recital a success.

The closing number was Fletcher's "Smile of Spring," for voice, violin and harp and was a fitting climax for an evening's entertainment and proved these artists to be as effective in ensemble as in individual work.

Encores were demanded from every artist.—Kalamazoo Gazette.

REMARKABLE BLIND PIANIST OF CHICAGO PLAYED AT THE PULLMAN

Cave Thompson, the eminent blind pianist of Chicago, who gave a recital in this city early last month, fully demonstrated, even before he touched the keyboard, that he is a man of much personal charm and magnetism.

Despite the sad fact that he has been totally without the use of his visual faculty since he was a tiny lad of six years, he seems to have acquired a poise and carriage which at once excite in his on-lookers a spontaneous feeling of irrepressible admiration rather than a heartfelt sympathy.

To gaze upon the face and demeanor of an individual of Mr. Thompson's caliber is to perceive without hesitation a striking figure, in whom a lofty sense of culture, a never-tiring search for ideals, a well developed intellect, and withal an air of refined humor and good practical business tact, show him to be a live wire in up-to-date life.

To such a personality the world stands ready to throw open her doors and bid a warm welcome; for such stamina, self-reliance, and apparent utter abandonment of one of the greatest of human afflictions acts as a drastic example from a beacon light to the sluggish and the aimless.

At the instrument his marvelous fingers confirmed to the intelligent ear what the studious eye had already drained to the full.—Chaffee (Mo.) Signal. (Advertisement.)

Clark—Charles W. Clark will sing a recital at Vassar College in March.

AT THE OLYMPIC

Many thousands of people have laughed heartily and at the same time have had the best parts of their natures stirred by the fine performances of "Potash and Perlmutter" at the Olympic and it is with regret that one reads the announcement that there arc but three weeks of the play after this one. It is safe to say that capacity audiences will rule during the closing weeks.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Tenors and basses for North Shore Men's Chorus; best music; good experience; public concerts. Raymond N. Carr, 4652 Magnolia av.

WANTED—A second hand practice clavier. Address F. L. Denhard, 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

TEACHER of artistic piano playing, with strong personality, wishes position mornings. Address L. Music News.

TO RENT—Two months or longer; furnished studio; 75 Auditorium; can be seen 5 to 6 p. m. daily; or phone Wabash 6794.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

TO RENT—Time in studio; on account of an extended concert tour, will rent time in a magnificently appointed lake front studio; Fine Arts Bldg.; for half price; address care Music News.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs

5841 Prairie Av.

Phone Normal 1346

Sacred and Secular Songs

Published by

TULLAR-MEREDITH CO.

265 W. 36th St. 14 W. Washington St.
NEW YORK CHICAGO

SACRED---

LILLIAN TAITT SHELTON—

Three Songs for Medium Voice,

THE PALACE O' THE KING 50

THE PRAYER OF LIFE 50

WHEN THE ANGEL COMES 50

I. H. MEREDITH—

THE VALLEY OF PEACE 50

Duet (Medium and High Voices) with optional refrain for mixed or male voices.

SECULAR---

NELLIE SHORTHILL BRADSHAW

AWAKE! AWAKE! 'TIS THE GLAD

SPRINGTIME 60

(2 Keys, Medium and High.)

BECAUSE I LOVE YOU 50

(2 Keys, Medium and High.)

LOVE'S LESSON 40

(2 Keys, Medium and High.)

LULLABY 60

(Medium Voice with Violin Obligato.)

50% Discount from Above Prices

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

Mrs. Agnes MacMeekin, advanced pupil of Ella Jane Derdiger, sang for the Austin Woman's Club Monday afternoon, January

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

11. Mrs. MacMeekin received her entire vocal instruction under the tutelage of Mrs. Derdiger. She is the possessor of a high dramatic soprano voice of three octaves, which shows careful training. She sings with ease and musical expression.

###

JOHN RANKL

The following press notes were received by John Rankl in his recital in Milwaukee on January 14:

John Rankl gave a recital with an interesting program of French, German and American songs, which took well with the audience and which were well rendered. Mr. Rankl's low tones are especially to be commended, though his voice is effectively used throughout its unusual range. Accompanied by Miss Ardelle Harrer, he gave a program which gave his voice full opportunity to display its various phases and possibilities.—The Sentinel.

John Rankl of Chicago sang before an appreciative audience, his fine bass-baritone being heard to advantage in a program of French, German and American songs. Mr. Rankl's voice is one of unusual range, and his lower tones especially are of particular beauty. His singing exhibited excellent control, modulation and skilful technic.—Evening Wisconsin.

John Rankl sang in Milwaukee on January 14 and with the Phillips (Wis.) Choral Society, in "Elijah," on January 20. He will be soloist with the Choral Society at Kentland, Ind., on February 1 and will sing in a benefit musicale in Austin on February 8. Mr. Rankl has many oratorio engagements booked for the spring, and has received many encomiums from directors of the most prominent choral societies and orchestras. (Advertisement.)

###

Arendt—Mme. Elsa Arendt, a member of the Sherwood Music School faculty, was soloist at the home of Mrs. E. G. Pauling, Astor street, and will sing at the South Shore Country Club Sunday afternoon, January 24. Mabelle Church van Alstyne, director of the Dramatic Department of the Sherwood Music School, will read her own cutting of "Lay Down Your Arms" in Thurber Recital Hall, 300 Fine Arts Building, January 29.

###

New York—Reviews of recent concerts given by Albert Spalding, Marie Narelle and Thuel Burnham are held over until the issue of next week.

Music in America

CECIL FANNING SINGS AT 40th ANNIVERSARY OF THE TROY VOCAL SOCIETY

Few vocal societies in the United States can boast of such age as the Troy Vocal Society, which ended its fortieth year of existence by a splendid concert given the evening of January 13. The Troy Vocal Society seems to be at the zenith of its career and the appreciation of its standing in Troy was expressed by an enthusiastic audience, which completely filled Music Hall. The banquet, which followed at the Troy Club, was an occasion of unusual interest. There were present four of the charter members, who are still active in the society.

Cecil Fanning, the baritone soloist of the evening, scored another one of his great successes. What the audience thought of him is expressed in the criticism from the "Troy Record, January 14:"

Cecil Fanning, the assisting soloist, was introduced at this time, he walking to the piano with a business-like air. A few chords were struck by his accompanist, H. B. Turpin, and with a burst of song Mr. Fanning literally took Trojan music lovers by storm. His first effort was Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci" (prologue), wherein he proved himself an individualistic artist. With wonderful modulation and voice control Mr. Fanning added the personal equation of the true actor. His numbers, nearly all of which were of the same style and affording plenty of opportunity for the display of a vivacious personality, followed in quick succession. "The Sands of Dee" (Kingsley), Frederick Clay; "A Song of India," Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Henry the Fowler," Carl Loewe, and "Edward" (Percy's Reliques), Carl Loewe, were given with unending humor, purity of tone and sweetness blended with remarkable force and gusto. But five numbers could not satisfy an audience that had once had a taste of such a personality. He responded with "The Earl King," by Loewe. Mr. Fanning was again introduced in five numbers, which were even more effective than the first. "Le Petit Boisé d'Aour" and "Le Cycle Du-Vin," from the old French, were presented with action as they were given when written before the introduction of the pianoforte. In the second song the planting of the seed, the growth of the vine and picking and treading of the grapes were portrayed with a daintiness and humor that was climaxed in a long draught of the imaginary nectar. "Dame Dunden" and "No, John! No!" from the old English and "The Last Leaf," Sidney Homer, were given with the same satisfaction to the audience who called loudly for an encore. Mr. Fanning responded with a "Plantation Song," written by Harriet Ware for the soloist. (Advertisement.)

W PROCTOR

N CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

###

Kensett, Ia.—Mrs. Edwin Cleophas entertained the members of the Woman's Club and their families Thursday evening. The Misses Gertrude and Cornelia furnished several musical selections that were much appreciated, light refreshments were served, and a delightful evening was enjoyed by all privileged to be present.

###

Gallup—Miss Helen Gallup was accompanist for Mr. Thomas McGranahan at the Union League Club on Saturday, January 16.

JOPLIN, MO.

Joplin folk received a rare treat last Friday evening in the violin recital of Frank Gittelson. His playing is truly remarkable for so young an artist. He opened the program with the Wieniawski Concerto in D Minor, which was played with technical ease and especially in the lovely "Romance" displayed his exquisite tone and wonderful powers of interpretation.

The Bach Chaconne was perhaps the most interesting number. Certainly all the beauties of this wonderful composition were shown in Mr. Gittelson's powerful rendition. His playing is so soulful and finished in every detail that one feels he must not lose a note.

The smaller numbers included: "Hungarian Dance," Joachim-Brahms; "Chant de Veslemory," Halvorsen; "Tamborin Chinois," Kreisler; "Canzonetta," D'Ambrosio; "Slavic Dance," Dvorak, and "Zephyr," by Hubay. He added as encores Bach's beautiful "Air on the G String," and Kreisler's "Liebesfreud."

Miss Alma Putman furnished beautiful accompaniments. She is a favorite here and it is always a joy to have her at the piano.

The next artist's recital is that of Ernest Hutchinson in February.

The programs of the Fortnightly Music Club become more interesting each time. Last week the topic was "Oratorio in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries." (1) The Culmination of Oratorio in Handel and Bach. (2) Oratorio in Germany since Bach. (3) Oratorio in England Since Handel. The musical program included "If From All Your Heart," from Elijah, sung by Mr. George Winters; "He Was Despised," from "The Messiah"; Mrs. J. W. Forney, and "By Thee With Bliss," from the "Creation," Mr. F. B. Rogers and Miss Imo Price.

With the next meeting begins a series of studies of great composers—Bach and Handel.

M. E. B.

NEWBERRY, MICH.

The Gretchen Cox Concert Company delighted the large audience which greeted them at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening with one of the finest musical programs that has ever been heard by a Newberry audience. The program included solos for violin, soprano and 'cello; vocal solos, with violin and 'cello obligato, and orchestra numbers.

Miss Cox is a violinist whose playing is of unusual power and brilliancy. She is a thorough master of this difficult instrument.

Miss Edith Kein, soprano soloist and piano accompanist, possesses a voice of excellent quality and range, and impresses one as being filled with music from her dainty feet to the crown of her head. Her musical readings made a big hit with the audience.

Mr. Smith's rendition on the 'cello was such as to bring out the splendid possibilities of that instrument.

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

The seventh popular concert by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, December 6, with Andrea Sarto, baritone, as soloist, was a particularly well balanced program. Mr. Sarto gave the Prologue from Pagliacci in English and repeated it for encore. The aria "Ella Giamai," from Verdi's "Don Carlos," and encore of the ever loved "Evening Star," from Tannhauser, gave opportunity to enjoy the excellent range and timbre of his voice and the clarity of his articulation. His upper register has a particularly sympathetic quality. Mr. Sarto is one more product of American teaching to prove "we can deliver the goods."

The orchestra presented in usual splendid form Raff's "Parting March," from Lenore Symphony; "Carneval" overture, from Dvorak, and the exquisite "Angelus" Largo from Hadley's Third Symphony. It breathed a spirit of peace that could comfort the most troubled of souls. "Under the Linden Trees" (Massenet) gave us the beautiful lovers' duet of clarinet (played by Pierre Perrier) and 'cello (by Cornelius Van Vleit) and the excellent cantabile of the two instruments and accompaniment of orchestra made up one of the best numbers on the program. The "Andante Cantabile," from String Quartet Op. 11 (Tchaikowsky), rendered with rare insight and delicacy of shading, left little to be desired. Dukas' "L'Apprenti Sorcier," reviewed before, and Glazounow's beautiful, sensuous Concert Valse No. 1, closed the program.

For the second concert of Beethoven cycle, Marion Green, baritone, and Richard Czerwonky, soloists, the following program was given:

Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 36.....Beethoven
Adagio molto—Allegro con brio
Larghetto
Scherzo—Allegro
Rondo—Allegro molto
Aria, "Mit Madeln sich vertragen".....Beethoven
Romance for violin, in G major, Op. 40.....Beethoven
Songs with orchestra.....Beethoven
"In Questa tomba, oscura"
"Bitten"
"Die Ehre Gottes aus der Natur"
Symphony No. 7, in A major, Op. 92.....Beethoven
Poco sostenuto—Vivace
Allegretto
Presto
Allegro con brio

The melodious Second Symphony, first production of the composer after the calamity of deafness had descended upon him, shows nothing of the despair which must have been in his soul. Each theme, wonderfully embroidered with painstaking regard of detail, was beautiful. However, the glorious Seventh, which probably shares popular favor with the Fifth and Sixth, was more appealing to the audience, with its marvellous expression of the best in human nature, illustrative of the sublime heights to which Beethoven alone attained. It was interrupted by Mr. Oberhoffer with true appreciation of its happy joyous motif.

Mr. Green's baritone voice and excellent diction showed to good advantage in his numbers, and the beauty of Beethoven's songs was brought very forcibly to us. One wonders why these songs are not seen more often on the programs of our singers. The Romance for Violin was exquisitely played by Mr. Czerwonky with a sympathetic and colorful conception of its value.

December 13 the orchestra gave the first of the second series of popular concerts, with Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano, as soloist. The orchestra numbers were excellent throughout and gave us several novelties. Alfven's "Festspel" polonaise, second composition of this composer to receive its first American performance by this orchestra, was a really excellent work and enthusiastically greeted. Nicolai's overture to "Merry Wives of Windsor," with its beautiful, tuneful melody; Liszt's symphonic poem, "Mazeppa;" Coleridge Taylor's odd, catchy, rhythmical rhapsodic dance, "The Bamboula," and a trio for flute, oboe and clarinet, "Aubade," by deWailly, played by three leading members of the orchestra, Messrs. deLorenzo, Labate and Perrier, which was encored to a repetition. The most familiar numbers were Prelude to "Lohengrin," "Mock Morris," for string orchestra, by Grainger, and the Weingartner arrangement of Weber's "Invitation to the Dance."

Miss Kaufman has a very good voice, with a stronger and more mature delivery than one would expect from her appearance. Her range and tone quality is broad and full and her aria "Elsa's Dream," from "Lohengrin;" "Love and Music," "Tosca," and "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly," were well done.

Friday, December 18, at the symphony concert, the following program was given:

Overture to "A Night in May".....Rimsky-Korsakow
Symphony No. 2 in E minor, Op. 27.....Rachmaninow
Largo—Allegro Moderato
Allegro Molto
Adagio
Allegro Vivace
Concerto for Violin, No. 2, in D minor.....Bruch

Overture to a Comedy of Shakespeare, Op. 15.....Scheinpflug

The first number and the symphony, both decidedly Slavic in theme, are splendid works, but do not fill one with any particular longing to hear an immediate repetition. The symphony is very long drawn out in its workings. The second theme of first movement and the adagio movement were beautiful and from an educational standpoint we are glad to hear these newer symphonies, but it's going to take time and training to enable us to enjoy them completely and we are apt to pick out the melodious parts to remember and try and forget the intricacies that wearied us.

Mr. Van Vleit, first 'cellist, was down for the Lalo concerto, but discovered an injury to his left hand that prevented him from playing, and Richard Czerwonky, concertmaster, filled the breach heroically at the last minute, illustrating clearly to the minds of the audience that he is a most desirable adjunct to have handy in an emergency. It was the first time this concerto had been played in Minneapolis, and Mr. Czerwonky received an ovation which he deserved in every sense.

The Scheinpflug overture was the most entirely pleasing orchestral number on the program.

The popular concert Sunday, December 20, was par excellence, every number of the following program:

Grand March from "Tannhauser".....Wagner
Overture to "Tannhauser".....Wagner
Romanza from Symphony No. 5.....Tchaikowsky
Concerto for Violin No. 2, in D minor, Op. 44.....Bruch

(Richard Czerwonky)

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER

PIANIST

Mason & H. 1111
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson

Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
315 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES BAILEYSoprano
HERBERT M. Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET MULFORDLAWSON CONTRALTO PUPILS
CONCERT 371 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE BOLLMANFENLON CONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
349 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319HENIOT LEVYPIANIST
Kimball Hall Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSONEdith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.DoellingPianist Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HARTPIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLouise LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO NEW YORK CITY
248 W. 105th StreetW. Otto MiessnerSupervisor of Music Milwaukee
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Elliman Kelley and Alexander Helmreich, Bertha
Res. 867 Shepard AvDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City IowaSuite, "Woodland Sketches".....MacDowell (Orchestrated by Mr. Oberhoffer and performed for first time)In Autumn
To a Wild Rose
From Uncle Remus
At an Old Trysting Place
To a Water Lily
Told at Sunset
Waltz, "Tales from Vienna Woods".....Strauss

The swing of the grand march and wonderful climaxes of the overture from Tannhauser were fully exemplified in the far reaching appeal of the two Wagner numbers and the ensemble work in the Romanza, a passionately lovely thing, was like a many voiced instrument, pleading, thundering and sinking to a whispered finale.

Mr. Czerwonky repeated the Bruch concerto that he came to the rescue with at the regular symphony concert, and, as he had been programmed to do it on this Sunday, was, as he put it, "more prepared for it," and gave a splendid rendition. His reception amounted to an ovation from a packed house and he responded to an encore with an arrangement of his own of Weber's Concert valse No. 2.

The ever beautiful MacDowell suite, orchestrated by Mr. Oberhoffer, illustrated forcibly that love makes beautiful things more beautiful. Mr. Oberhoffer devoted time during his past summer vacation to the labor of love in this orchestration, and it was surely one of the most delightful things heard here this season. Mrs. MacDowell's recent appearance in the Twin Cities has roused new interest, especially in the compositions so distinctly belonging to Mr. McDowell.

Sunday, December 27, the orchestra, with Alma Johnson Porteous, the well-loved Minneapolis contralto, and Richard Lindenhahn, first horn of the orchestra, as soloists, gave a fine program.

Mrs. Porteous gave the immortal aria from Gluck's "Orpheus," "I Have Lost My Eurydice" and the beautiful "More Regal in His Low Estate," from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," responding to encore with a charming little "Chanson," by Bemberg. Mrs. Porteous' voice is full and rich and delightfully shaded. Mr. Lindenhahn and his horn were splendid. Mr. Oberhoffer is doing quite a little missionary work in giving us these solos by different instruments, generally considered as inseparable parts of the orchestra, and it is a thoroughly interesting and enjoyable innovation. The horn, always a delight when in the hands of a musician like Mr. Lindenhahn, was certainly well appreciated in his "Romance," from one of Mozart's concertos for the horn, and an exquisite "Wiegenlied," also by Mozart, which he gave for encore.

The orchestra numbers were overture from "Le Roi d'Ys" (Lalo), Saint-Saens' descriptive "Phaetona," tragic "joy ride" of mythology; Tchaikowsky's humorous "Nut-cracker" suite, Dohnanyi's well named "Romanza," and a rhythmic waltz from Serenade No. 2, for string orchestra, by Volkmann. The Lalo number, with an exquisitely lovely cello duet passage played by Messrs. Van Vliet and Gruppe, appealed very much to the audience.

The entire program made up a splendid finale to the year 1914 and leaves us very happy in the thought that the season is only half over and we have many more delights to come. MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

For the first time this season, it was markedly noticeable that the audience at the Auditorium Symphony Orchestra concert made no preparations to leave until the last note of the last number had been played. This was due not so much to a sudden reform on the part of the audience as to the compelling nature of the entire program, and the especial ponderousness of that last number, Liszt's grand march, "Vom Fels Zum Meer."

Every now and then Director H. A. Zeitz draws up the curtain on some Milwaukee musically great man, and gives courage to those who faithfully argue that this city is not without its musically great. In Frank Olin Thompson, Mr. Zeitz presented one of the greatest of these. Mr. Thompson performed Beethoven's E flat "Emperor" concerto for pianoforte. There is a clarity to Mr. Thompson's playing which preserves the briefest tone from being lost and which accentuates every bit of the rhythm composers so tremendously labor to inject.

All this is done with a delicacy and tenderness almost effeminate, but lacking none of the force and fire a man's hand is expected to impart. It is to be hoped he will not make this appearance his sole one this year.

Saint-Saens' "Tarentelle" for flute and clarinet, played by A. C. Peterson and O. J. Dost, proved a revelation in execution. In Myerbeer's "Flambeaux Dance," which opened the program, the audience was treated to an incidental tuba and bass solo which proved a test for those musicians.—The Milwaukee Journal.

FOR RAPID PROGRESSIN PIANO, USE Thurn's Indicator.It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT.

No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $50; mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THURN, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKERCONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great natural beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866LOUIS KREIDLERBARTONE
Concerts Oratorio Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Telephone Keewood 627H. WILHELM NORDINBaritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill. CONCERT ORATORIO
RECITALMarie Hoover EllisConcert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., ChicagoJ. PARNELL EGANTENOR
CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL 1351 Granville AvenueLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUE

LONG BEACH, CAL.

The opening of the Pan-American Exposition at San Diego, January 1, was the initiation of the musical propaganda that will be a marked feature of the attractive programs until the close of the fair in December. Nearly three hundred trained voices, under the inspiring leadership of Mr. D. Roscoe Schryock, rendered "The Messiah" with an enthusiasm worthy the greatness of this masterpiece. Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman, of Long Beach, was the soprano soloist, and to whom the daily press paid glowing tribute for excellence of voice and artistic finish to her several solos. The other soloists were as wisely chosen and did excellent work with their scores. Miss Amy Buck, contralto; Mr. Abraham Miller, tenor, and Mr. Henry Woodward, basso. The fine chorus was ably supported by the San Diego Symphony Orchestra, of which Mr. Schryock is the conductor.

Long Beach, which, for its many natural and attractive features, is familiarly known as the "Queen of the Beaches," has many musical organizations that are doing successful work in both vocal and instrumental endeavor. Among the later arrivals none have been more successful than Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, who opened her "Ocean View Studio" less than two years ago and has built up not only a large class, but an enviable reputation for conscientious and thorough teaching of the pianoforte. She has also become identified with other musical attractions, of which the Long Beach daily papers have made favorable mention. "Das Hexenlied" was such a pronounced success it will be repeated by request before the District Federation of Clubs in March, of which the Telegram says: "The announcement made by the president at yesterday's meeting of the Ebells that 'Das Hexenlied,' quite the most artistic program ever given at the Ebells club, is to be repeated at the District Federation meeting at Long Beach in March, was received with every evidence of pleasure by the members, as no more delightful vehicle demonstrating the unusual talent of the Ebells members could have been selected to disseminate this fact through the entire Federation of Women's Clubs of the district, and the presentation of this song-recital poem by Mrs. Kitty Richards Foote, Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman and Mrs. Luella Clark Emery cannot fall short of being the distinctive entertainment feature of the entire convention."

The same paper, referring to an entertainment feature of the music section of Ebells, has the following: "Two of the greatest favorites and most talented members of the club gave the delightful music of the day, Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman and Mrs. Luella Clark Emery. Mrs. Wiseman sang "Love's Dawn" and "I Am Thine," responding to an insistent encore with a charming number. Mrs. Emery accompanied Mrs. Wiseman with her usual sympathetic piano artistry that makes her accompanying an art in itself, perfectly in accord with the mood of the singer."

Last Friday evening "Ocean View Studio" was comfortably crowded with an appreciative audience, who were highly entertained with a public recital by pupils of Mrs. Emery. Those participating without exception reflected great credit upon their teacher as each number was successfully executed.

The brilliant success of Mrs. Emery in teaching is due largely to her clearness of explanation, in stimulating new interest and practicability resulting from wide experience in musical culture. She is reliably credited with having the ability of combining American efficiency with European conservatory thoroughness into her work with gratifying results.

The piano solos were played from memory and executed with painstaking accuracy and artistic finish. The four young lads playing at two pianos was an unusual innovation of much merit. The two-piano ensemble playing that has been a distinctive feature in Mrs. Emery's work for many years and practiced in not a few of the best music schools, gave a delightful opportunity for hearing the advanced as well as the beginners in intelligent and artistic endeavor. The duets and several quartets by the young ladies were exceptionally well played, the duos for two pianos were among the choice numbers, being sympathetically as well as brilliantly rendered.

The vocal numbers by Ada Potter Wiseman were glittering gems in stately setting. The pristine beauty of her voice with emotional quality and distinct enunciation further amplified with a sweet and expressive personality, rounded out an artistic program worthy the unanimous demonstration accorded.

Fantasie—Mazurka Bohm
Piano 1, Alma Murray, Florence Crandall
Piano 2, Dorothy Sperry, Marjorie Wells

Faust—Selections Gounod
Marjorie Hair, Florence Crandall
Frolics von Wilm
Druzella Goodwin
The Sleighride Ducelle
John W. Hair, Jr., Clark Manly Emery, Jr.
Barcarolle Crosby-Adams
Spanische Tanze Moszkowski
Celestine White, Merritt White
Chant Sans Paroles Tschakowsky
Piano 1, Alice Hubbard, Margaret Wiseman
Piano 2, Druzella Goodwin, Florence Crandall
Du bist wie eine Blume,
Frühlingsnacht Schumann
Ada Potter Wiseman
Hungarian Dance Brahms
Piano 1, Olive Church, Piano 2, Ruth Phillips
Marche aux Flambeaux Scotson Clark
Piano 1, Wendell Hubbard, Den Marlow Acres
Piano 2, Harold Galbraith, Clark Manly Emery, Jr.
Andante—Symphonie V Beethoven
Pizzicati—Sylvia Delibes
Dorothy Helps, Evelyn Goodwin
Rhapsodie II Liszt
Piano 1, Eleanor Brown, Piano 2, Mrs. Emery
Unfinished Symphony Schubert
Piano 1, Marjorie Wells, Ruth Phillips
Piano 2, Olive Church, Eleanor Brown
Papillon Grieg
Margaret Wiseman
Serenade Low
Piano 1, Ruth Phillips, Piano 2, Marjorie Wells
Printemps Stern
Ada Potter Wiseman
Le Matin Chaminade
Piano 1, Dorothy Sperry, Piano 2, Eleanor Brown
Reveil du Lion A. de Kontski
Piano 1, Eleanor Brown, Olive Church
Piano 2, Ruth Phillips, Dorothy Sperry

Murray—Marie Stapleton-Murray, soprano, appeared as soloist with the Boston Choral Society at Symphony Hall, Boston, on last Sunday evening.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President
Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue New York

Management M. H. HANSON

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing
1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMAS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR R. KETTS

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
 Oratorio Recitals Concerts
 Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann
 Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
 also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
 Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
 5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
 Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian
 Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
 Metropolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
 Phone, Sunnyside 7127
 810 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford
VOICE "PIANO"
 Gann Studios Fine Arts Building

Edith Adelaide Kien
 Pianist and Accompanist
 Studio, Arlington Av. and May St. South Elmhurst, Ill.

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
 Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
 Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
 712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
 CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
 715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
 St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
 Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
 600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
 1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
 Columbia School of Music
 Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
 67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
 and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

Last evening two new singers were introduced to the Ann Arbor music loving public, on the occasion of the Belgium Relief Concert in Hill Auditorium, under the management of the students of the University of Michigan.

The two artists secured were Miss Leonora Allen, soprano, and Mr. Albert Lindquest, tenor, both of whom more than lived up to the excellent reputations which had preceded them.

An interesting program of lighter classics was rendered most admirably.

Miss Allen possesses a beautiful clear soprano voice of large volume which she handles in a most musicianly manner. Her tones are clear and her enunciation perfect, which combined with her excellent stage-presence, made a deep impression on her audience.

The program given was as follows:

Duet from Romeo and Juliet, Act IV.....	Gounod
Jeunes Fillettes.....	18th Century Bergerette
Contemplation.....	Widor
Les Filles de Cadix.....	Delibes
Miss Allen
Meine Liebe Ist Grun.....	Brahms
Feldeinsamkeit.....	Brahms
Botschaft.....	Brahms
Mr. Lindquest

Aria, Il est doux, il est bon, from Herodiade.....	Massenet
Miss Allen

Aria, Dodolfo's Narrative, from La Boheme.....	Puccini
Mr. Lindquest

Long Ago.....	Marshall-Lepke
Little Pink Rose.....	Carrie Jacobs-Bond
Gallie (a Southern Serenade).....	Mokrejs
Love's Echo.....	Newton
Miss Allen

I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby.....	Clay
Dearest.....	Sidney Homer
Mammy's Song.....	Harriet Ware
The Lamp of Love.....	Mary Turner Salter
Mr. Lindquest

Duet, Act I, Madam Butterfly.....	Puccini
Miss Allen and Mr. Lindquest

Miss Allen and Mr. Lindquest are both well known artists, having appeared extensively in the concert field, last season Miss Allen being soprano soloist in the Minneapolis Orchestra on their spring tour of ten weeks. Mr. Lindquest is engaged in a similar capacity as tenor soloist for the spring of 1915.

Last summer both artists went abroad, intending to spend a year in special study and professional work, but like many other musicians were forced to return to America because of the war.

They were in Paris when the war broke out, and passed through many trying experiences. They made their way through France and a corner of Belgium, to London, and finally succeeded in securing passage home. Their vessel was blanketed the entire distance, and for part of one day they were pursued by a German cruiser. Later, several Germans were arrested in the wireless room and placed under heavy guard in the ship's hospital, as being German spies en route for Canada.

Reaching America, they decided to spend as much of the winter as possible in Ann Arbor, in special study at the University School of Music. During the winter, however, they have both found time to appear in frequent concerts in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and other cities.

C. A. S.

Hall—Pupils of William John Hall gave a song recital in Musical Arts Building, St. Louis, recently, being assisted by Miss Ava Ycargain.

OMAHA, NEB.

The situation musically in Omaha looks rather encouraging in some respects. The spring bids fair to give us our usual allotment of festival music, from three sources, viz.: The Mendelssohn Club with the Chicago Orchestra, the Sangerfest Association and Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, all of which have soloists. Quite a bit of interest has been attached to the local announcement that Frances Nash, an Omaha girl, who has been in Berlin for a number of years studying piano, will make her debut with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra when they appear here. Miss Nash is a daughter of E. W. Nash, the multi-millionaire, who died a few years ago and left Miss Nash a fortune in her own right, and she is following a musical career from choice.

Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, was presented at the Y. W. C. A. on January 5 before a small audience.

h h h

Ruth Pancost, a very clever performer in the line of spoken songs, was the attraction at the Elks' open night in Council Bluffs January 7. She was assisted by a string quartet. She is a graduate of the Dickerman School of Voice, Acting and Expression.

h h h

Miss Marie Yard, soprano, pupil of Millie Ryan, is doing cabaret work very successfully at the Rome Gardens.

h h h

The Redpath Bureau will present the Cathedral Choir at the Auditorium late in January.

h h h

January 11 Carrie Jacobs-Bond, who is very popular in Omaha, will give a recital at the North Side Christian Church, where she has appeared several times before.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

###

Dickerman—Karl Chayce Abbott, bass artist pupil of the Dickerman School of Omaha, Neb., filled engagements in Dayton, Ohio, January 4 to 9.

###

Sheppard—Ellouise Sheppard, soprano, spent the holiday season at her home, Carbondale, Ill. She will fill engagements in Indiana, Missouri and Illinois during February and March.

###

BROOK, IND.

On Thursday evening, January 7, the Choral Society of Brook, Ind., gave a concert under the direction of Mr. Collins Brock. The society is composed of seventy voices, and in this concert the society was assisted by Mr. Walter A. Diederich, tenor; Mr. Alexander A. Spiegel, 'cellist, and Miss Ruth Helene Dahly, reader.

The choruses were carried through with the spirit and confidence that are a result of careful preparation. Much attention was given to the attacks and shading, and the result was very satisfactory.

Mr. Diederich sang as his solo a tenor aria from the opera "La Africaine." His splendid voice and artistic manner of managing it was the subject of much favorable comment.

Miss Ruth Hellene Dahly was heard in several readings to the delight of the audience. Her pleasing personality and artistic work won for her hearty applause.

The 'cellist, Mr. Alexander J. Spiegel, made a decidedly favorable impression by his excellent work with his instrument, and won sincere appreciation.

The success of the concert was due in no small degree to the excellent support given chorus and soloists by the accompanist, Mrs. T. P. Woodson.

DEATHS OF THE YEAR 1914

The Chicago Tribune has compiled the following list of musicians who died in 1914:

Rapal Pugno, pianist, Paris; Rudolph Wurlitzer, musical instrument maker, Cincinnati, O.; Emil Liebling, pianist, Chicago; H. S. Perkins, teacher and composer, Chicago; F. H. Lowell, organist, Mendon, Mass.; G. Wieber, baritone, New York; Florence R. Knox, concert singer, New York; Prof. John O'Neil, New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass.; Milton H. Heinsch, pianist, Oakland, Cal.; Zelda Seguin Wallace, opera and concert singer, Indianapolis, Ind.; Kenneth H. Dryden, opera baritone, Milan; Putnam Griswold, operatic basso, New York; Marie Jansen, light opera singer, Milford, Mass.; Tito Mattei, pianist, Italy; Ralph Clark, organist and composer, New York; Josephus Jennings, band leader, Philadelphia, Pa.; Emil Mahr, violinist, Boston, Mass.; James O'Dea, song writer, New York; John T. Freeman, bandmaster, Newport, R. I.; Henry G. Pfalz, professor and choral society leader, New York; Edwin M. McGonigh, teacher and choir leader, Philadelphia, Pa.; Paolo Giorza, composer, Seattle, Wash.; Karl Koelling, teacher and composer, Chicago; Geo. R. Snedeker, piano manufacturer, Trenton, N. J.; Arthur Gillespie, song writer, New York; Lillian Nordica, prima donna, Batavia, Java; Vincenzo Lombardi, teacher, Florence, Italy; Bowman Ralston, opera singer, Seattle, Wash.; George W. Porter, orchestra leader, Brockton, Mass.; Charles H. Tebbes, organist, Berkeley, Cal.; Hans Engelman, composer, Philadelphia, Pa.; N. B. Emanuel, operatic director, Chicago; Dr. Arthur E. Fisher, musical director, Hartford, Conn.; John Ruinen, violinist, Chicago; Maurice Devries, baritone and teacher, Chicago; Prof. Benjamin Jepson, musical instructor in New Haven schools; Karl Narvath, composer, Vienna; Ernest von Schuck, opera director, Dresden; Sir Francis J. Campbell, principal of Royal Musical College and Academy of Music for the Blind, London; Cuthbert Harrin, organist; London; W. W. Bennett, inventor of piano player, New York; William Dressler, pianist, Philadelphia, Pa.; Samuel Swift, musical critic, New York; Alexander McGuirk, organist and teacher, New York; Carl F. Mueller, composer and teacher, New York; Thomas Koschat, composer, Vienna; Carl Altenhofer, composer, Zurich; Hamilton S. Gordon, music publisher, New York; Edward Beaver, organist, Philadelphia, Pa.; William Schuyler, song writer, New York; Samuel B. Whitney, organist and composer, Woodstock, Vt.; Pol Plancon, opera singer, Paris; T. S. Doerley, organist, Philadelphia, Pa.; Edward Mollenhauer, violinist, Owatonna, Minn.; Georgine Van Jannowsky, opera singer, New York; Emil Fischer, operatic basso, Hamburg, Germany; Ludwig Englander, light opera composer, Far Rockaway, N. J.; Albert Magnard, composer, France; Arthur Rech, pianist and teacher, Chicago; Albert J. F. Siggel, bandmaster, Denver, Colo.; Gabriel Dupont, composer, France; Anton D. Wolff, piano and organ maker, Kenosha, Wis.; David M. Levett, composer and professor in New York College of Music; Frederick J. Liddle, composer and conductor, Pittsfield, Mass.; Frank L. King, pianist, San Jose, Cal.; Marion Manola, light opera singer, New Rochelle, N. Y.; Frederick S. Otte, tuba player, Chicago Symphony Orchestra; Frank King Clark, teacher, Berlin; Arthur Weld, conductor and composer, West Point, N. Y.; Frederick Gerhard, conductor, Pottsville, Pa.; Verona Jarbeau, light opera singer, Manuet, France; W. F. Bradbury, president of Handel and Haydn Society, Boston, Mass.; Charles De Beriot, composer, Paris; H. J. Gerald, composer, Cincinnati, O.; Selden Miller, organist, Philadelphia, Pa.; Jean Baptist Faure, operatic baritone and composer, Paris; Angelo Spadino, conductor, San Francisco, Cal.; S. N. Swan, piano and organ manufacturer, Freeport, Ill.; Carl E. Woodruff, pianist, Chicago; John Chatterton, opera singer, Turnersdale, Pa.; John F. Martindale, song writer, Greeley, Ia.; Ignace Haroldi, violinist, Los Angeles, Cal.; Giovanni Sgambati, composer, Italy; Arthur W. Korthauer, ex-conductor of Toledo Symphony Orchestra.—Chicago Tribune.

FANNING IN CANADA

November 19, at Toronto, Canada, in Massey Hall, capacity 4,000, Cecil Fanning made his third appearance before a Toronto audience, when he again demonstrated his unusual ability to interest and hold his hearers through a long and exacting program. The audience was roused to the highest pitch of enthusiasm, bringing him out to bow innumerable times and making it necessary for him to add six songs to his program, and at the close of the program he was immediately engaged for a recital in the same hall for next season. Two excerpts are selected from several fine criticisms:

Mr. Fanning has the faculty of making a just mean between the value of the musical contents of a song and the expressiveness of its words and sentiment. In this respect, he may be classed with Elpham, Plunkett Green and Henschel. Arias by Monteverde, Gretz, Verdi and Massenet were sung with vocal charm and significance of expression. His second group was devoted to Russian songs. The "Song to India," by Korsakoff, was a beautiful exposition of refined and yet characteristic charm. Mr. Fanning's great success of the evening was in Locwe's ballade, "Edward," his interpretation of which was a vivid dramatic exposition and also a finely adjusted vocal effort in contrast. A welcome novelty was found in two songs by our Toronto musician, Dr. Gutzeit, a setting of Goldsmith's "The Gift," and his satirical "Elegy." These numbers, accompanied by the composer, evoked enthusiasm. Mr. Fanning's final group consisted of numbers by Sidney Homer, Charles Willeby, Maude V. White and Arthur Whiting, which revealed his versatility in interpreting English song. Encores were numerous. Mr. Fanning's accompaniments, with the exception already noted, were played by Mr. Turpin, whose sympathetic collaboration has had much to do with the success of the vocalist.—Toronto "Globe."

Song interpreters who can be uniformly interesting in a long and varied program are so rare that a visit from Cecil Fanning is a genuine red-letter day in the musical season. Mr. Fanning's baritone voice is particularly tender and expressive and merely as an instrument for melody it would furnish keen delight, but Mr. Fanning makes use of it with a fine intelligence. He has the happy faculty of being able to throw himself into the mood of his selections, whether they are intensely dramatic or light and humorous. He is in every way a song interpreter of rare and compelling gifts.—"Mail and Empire." (Advertisement.)

CULVER, IND.

The University of Chicago Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Francis A. Mackay, gave a very brilliant concert on January 8 at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind. Every number on the program was brilliantly done and well shaded, and all received several encores.

The soloist, Mr. Fred Wise, a pupil of Mr. Mackay, is a very promising tenor and was enthusiastically received. Mr. Windrow, in a humorous sketch, pleased the students immensely. Mr. Chambers was also a soloist. He possesses a tenor voice of great beauty. As a whole, the concert was a success and a return engagement was made for next January.

Holstman—Orpha Kendall Holstman sang the following songs at the La Salle Hotel for the Dorothy Meadows Drama Circle Monday, January 11: "A Birthday Song" (MacFayden), "The Cuckoo Clock" (Grant-Schaefer), "Were My Song with Wings Provided" (Hahn), and "One Fine Day" (Puccini). Mr. Phelps Cowan furnished the accompaniments.

Williamson—Hardy Williamson of the Century Opera Company was a pupil of Yeatman Griffith, both in Europe and New York. Mr. Williamson will go into the concert and oratorio field.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice
Northwestern University School
of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS—PUPILS
STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL

TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL

Byrum—Mrs. Estella Byrum was the accompanist for Mrs. Marie Yahr at the last concert of the Chicago Woman's Club and not Miss Easterly, as noted on the program.

Mabel-Helen ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR

3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST

Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST

Care of
MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO

RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY

CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER

315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR

TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS
RECITALS

HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
INDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger

ACCOMPANIST

1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.

BASSO-
CANTANTE

1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy

Recital
Oratorio
Opera

Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO

CONCERT VIOLINIST

Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

WORK OF THE STUDENT BODY

Following is the speech read by Miss Georgia Kober, director of the Student Body Division, at a recent meeting of the Chicago Artists' Association:

It cannot but be pleasing to anyone whose life-work, like my own, has been dedicated to the cultivation of the musical art, and its teaching, that such a departure as the Student Department of the Chicago Artists' Association should have been conceived and carried out, and that its direction should be placed in my hands. I feel that more competent ones might have been chosen—but may I be allowed to say that no one to whom it might have been entrusted would have approached the work with a deeper or more sincere desire to make a success of it?

The subject of the Student Department has already been thoroughly discussed by the members of the Club, but it will, I hope, continue to engage their warmest interest and heartiest co-operation, in every respect. I say this with particular earnestness because I am so confident that the department, once it is well organized and its work has proceeded to that point where results are becoming apparent, will prove of such value not only in its more immediate aspects, but others now latent which will develop as the work goes on.

I think, I am sure, that you are all aware that the primary object of the Students' Department is to not only afford the best musical advantage for young girls and women with a serious purpose of adopting music as a vocation, but, most particularly, to create for them the environment so necessary for success in their endeavors. I regret to say that the lines of the feminine music student are not always cast in pleasant places. In many cases she is alone and among strangers; she has been warned to avoid the pitfalls of the city life; she has, very possibly, pecuniary resources that are not large, and she lacks initiative and confidence. In consequence she lives a narrow and restricted life, which is inimical to success. Music is an exacting mistress—she must be worshipped with whole-hearted devotion. But on the part of her devotees she does not wish for a lopsided development of personality or talent. A well-rounded personality, a cultivated nature and a rich mental soil, carefully fertilized, she nowadays insists upon. Many of the Club members have probably read, for instance, of the enormous amount of time Paderewski spends at the keyboard, in order to perfect his art; but, at the same time, he is a man of the widest sympathies, the deepest culture and the most polished personality, and it is these characteristics which have been invaluable to him in his work.

There has been in the past, I regret to say, no place in the city of Chicago where its hundreds of young women engaged in music study, many of whom are non-residents, could enjoy the advantage so necessary to them. It is one of the chief aims of the Student Department to create such a place. I have in mind what should, in fact, be a sort of "club within a club," where these young women should find not only safety and shelter, but that so desirable atmosphere and environment calculated to bring out the best in them and to develop it, to open new vistas into pleasant paths, and to relieve them from the loneliness, the sense of isolation and of over-attention to one sole object goes far, in many cases, to defeat the attainment of that self-same end. There is a great work to be done here, and with the hearty co-operation of the entire body of Club members it certainly can be accomplished.

There is another feature, also, upon which I wish to lay some stress. That will be the usefulness of the department to the young matron of musical tastes. The feminine practitioner of the divine arts of harmony very often, as you are doubtless well aware, feels a vocation for another profession—that of marriage. Having adopted it, there ensues, oft-times, what I may term a clash of interests. Do I need to say that clashes are usually fatal to harmony? In these cases they all too often are, in the musical sense. The result is that the devotee claimed by matrimony, neglects her music—a very sad fact but a very true one! In course of time, also, small clinging arms are apt to come into her life, and they are also apt to come between her and the keyboards. Later on when George remarks to Mrs. George that she never touches the piano nowadays, and she resolves to return to her old allegiance, she is very likely to strike a few false notes. Sometimes she strikes so many that harmony again suffers and the result is embarrassing to herself and unpleasing to her audience, howsoever indulgent and bound-to-praise it may be. In such cases as this the Students' Department is certain to prove a most welcome resource to the woman who has temporarily given up her music but awakens later on to the fact that her life and that of her family are impoverished without it. It will provide her with the atmosphere, the opportunity, for a renewal of musical culture for which she will be most grateful. And it will save her from a horrible fate—I refer to the possibility of a mechanical piano-player or canned music! Things perhaps very good in their places but which, as articles of permanent diet in the domestic regimen, produce awful results. Nothing is more important than that the young mother should be able to play for her children—and, if she possess any vocal gifts whatever, to sing to them and for them. To play for them on one kind of a machine and sing for them on another is, from my point of view, one of the most unmotherly things possible, for it will rob the life of the family of an aroma, a fragrance and a pleasure which will leave it poor indeed.

I could devote myself to many other phrases of the department and its possibilities, but the minutes allotted me are limited and I must be brief. In closing, however, I wish to say that above all things else which it will be my purpose to create within the department is a spirit of helpfulness, fellowship and mutual enjoyment of their work and of each other upon the part of the students. In this way a stimulus is provided that is otherwise unattainable. "Team work" is just as necessary in such an institution as it is in a baseball club if the highest possible goals are to be reached. It is not the purpose of the department to push a few students up to these altitudes, but to lift the entire body to them—and to do this all must work enthusiastically together. So should the whole Club itself work also, in those directions which will assist—and so, I feel sure, will they work.

What they have been instrumental in accomplishing they need remain in no uncertainty about, for the plans for the Student Department include, among the most prominent, an annual recital, in March, before and for the benefit of the entire Club membership—at which time, if all goes well, that they will each and all feel a pardonable pride in what has been achieved can not, I hope, be for a moment seriously doubted.

— # # —

Fram—Mr. Lorimer Fram, pianist, has returned to Chicago after several months' tour with the Duggan Grand Opera Company. The personnel is as follows: Agnes Scott Longan, soprano; Mme. Charlotte Clark, contralto; David Duggan, tenor, and Roscoe Kimball, baritone.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital

1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

CONTRALTO

Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av. Oak Park, Ill., Phone O. P. 1478

Music News

LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
1 FEB 1915

FLORENCE MACBETH

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

— # # # —

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

— # # # —

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908.
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, JANUARY 29, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company and Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application. Changes in advertisements must be ordered one week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK

Abbie S. Fridenberg
110 Carnegie Hall
For sale at Bretano's
27th st. and 5th av.

BOSTON

Lester S. Butler
Steinert Hall
DETROIT, MICH
Margaret Mulford
871 Ferry Park Ave.

OMAHA

Goodwal Dickerman
Arlington Block
CINCINNATI
L. Drew Mosher
137 W. Fourth av.

On sale Geo. B. Jennings

105 Fourth av. W.

CLEVELAND

George Emerson
616 The Arcade

INDIANAPOLIS

Gaylord Yost
Indianapolis Cons.

KANSAS CITY

Mary H. Flagg
311 Studio Bldg.

DENVER

R. Jefferson Hall.
St. Mark's Church
ST. PAUL, MINN.

Myrtle Weed
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.

WICHITA, KAN.

Ralph Brokaw

WORCESTER, MASS.

Lester S. Butler

441 Day Bldg.

GRAND RAPIDS

Louis McKay
2 Nelson Place

MILWAUKEE

Iva Bigelow Weaver
Mack Block

PHILADELPHIA

Walter St. Clare Knodle
1523 Chestnut St.

LINCOLN, NEB.

Sidney Silber
Univ. School of Music
NASHVILLE, TENN.

C. J. Schubert

Schubert Cons. of Music
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

S. W. Mountz

1651 6th Ave.

ERIE, PA.

Albert H. Dowling Jr.
456 E. Seventh St.

CHARLESTON, W. A.

J. Henry Francis
St. John's Church

WASHINGTON

Horace D. Hitchcock
2224 F St., N. W.

MINNEAPOLIS

Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
109 Marlborough Hotel
St. Paul, Minn.

DRESDEN, GERMANY

Anna Ingman
Franklinstrasse 20

Papers on sale

J. Ries' Music Store

Seestrass 21

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsbürger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

MUSIC NEWS

Vol. 7.

Chicago, January 29, 1915

No. 5

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

By actual count there were just 23 people in the 75c section of the balcony at the Auditorium on last Wednesday evening and just about that many in the dollar section, while the boxes and lower floor were also very sparsely occupied. All this goes to prove that even the Gilbert and Sullivan Operas do not draw this year and that a policy of little or no publicity for the company does not pay.

The daily papers had much more to say about the fact that Ethel Leginska was fussy about a draft at the Fine Arts Theater on last Sunday than about the quality of her playing, the latter item receiving almost no attention at all.

The large chorus for the North Shore Festival has begun rehearsals. Splendid programs are announced and the list of soloists will be an astonishingly fine one.

The California trip of the Apollo Club is arousing a lot of comment and it will certainly be the means of engendering a lot of fraternal feeling among the members. It will certainly be a most delightful trip for all the Apollos and the few friends who will accompany them.

Mr. Zimbalist's manager is reported to be considerably annoyed because the public continues to designate the violinist as "the husband of Alma Gluck." Well, what was to be expected?

The Hotel Musicales have dwindled to the vanishing point. With such beautiful places as the Gold Room at the Congress and the Crystal Ball Room at the Blackstone, it should be possible to run successfully at least one society series. Perhaps a management may be evolved by next season which will give an honest and artistic course and which will deserve a patronage which has been denied this season.

A man with a level head publishes the Hull (Ia.) Index, and thus advises his readers in a recent issue:

When a newspaper gives you a lot of free advertising in order to boom some concert or entertainment in which you are interested, keep track of the lines that are printed week by week and multiply the number by the regular rates of the paper. Compare the

Athens is a good place but happiness is much better
—Epictetus

result with the actual money value of any favor that you get from any other business concern. Then take into consideration the fact that advertising and circulation are the only two things that a newspaper has to sell. Now in these days of higher prices, how much do you think it ought to give away?—Hull Index.

When the piano tuner appeared on the stage at the All-Chopin recital of Sunday and crawled under the piano to discover what was troubling the pianist a flippant youth at the end of a row near the front whispered to his friend, "a case of get out and get under." The friend repeated it to the next in the line, and so it traveled to the other aisle, causing laughter all along. When Miss Leginska resumed her work this row was still laughing and according to one of the daily papers she "glared" at the disturbers. She should have done more—in fact had the chief offender been taken over to the Lake Front and shot he would have received no more than his just deserts.

It has been given out that "Patience" will not be sung by the Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company because there is no one available for the part of Bunthorne. When most of the men of the company are as bad as it is possible for them to be, why quibble about this one part? Probably any one of them can sing it as well as he does any other part.

GO BACK TO GERMANY

(Contributed)

A certain musician, very good in his line (we will call him Ossian Hasenpflug, because that is not his name) is one of those people who are "never happy except when miserable."

On a recent occasion he was crossing the boulevard when old Boreas, who was in a spiteful mood that day, whisked off his hat, and caused him a chase to recover it.

He was equal to the occasion and maintained his reputation as a "kicker," by ripping out the oburgation "Verfluchte Amerika."

HAROLD HENRY PROGRAM

The program for the Harold Henry piano recital at the Fine Arts Theater Thursday evening, February 4, reads as follows:

Sonata, Opus 22.....	Schumann
Intermezzo, Opus 116, No. 6.....	Brahms
Impromptu, Opus 90, No. 4.....	Schubert
Fantaisie.....	Chopin
Prelude, Chorale and Fugue.....	Cesar Franck
To the Sea.....	MacDowell
Rhapsody, Opus 11, No. 2.....	Dohnanyi
Tabetiere a Musique.....	Friedman
Kobold.....	Grieg
Nocturne.....	Grieg
Vallee d'Obermann.....	Liszt

Mabel-Helen ROGERS
HARPISTE
Concerts - Recitals - Musicales
Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando
CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY
CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER
PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER
VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger
ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy Recital
Oratorio
Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, January 29

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Auditorium, 8:15; "Pirates of Penzance."
New First Congregational Church, 8:15;
"The Messiah."

Little Theater, 8:30; Interpretative dancing.

Saturday, January 30

Kimball Hall, 2:00; Chicago Piano College, concert.

Kimball Hall, 3:30; American Conservatory, concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Little Theater, 2:15 and 8:15; Interpretative dancing.

Sunday, January 31

Blackstone Theater, 3:30; Carlile Tucker, song recital.

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Kneisel Quartet.

Monday, February 1

Fine Arts Theater, 8:15; Herman Devries, opera program.

Auditorium Theater, 8:15; Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Company (all week).

Tuesday, February 2

Fine Arts Theater, 8:15; Jennie F. W. Johnson, song recital.

University of Chicago, 8:15; Dr. Horatio Parker in lecture on his opera, "Fairyland."

Wednesday, February 3

Fine Arts Theater, 8:15; Emmeran Stoeber, Thorwald Ottorstrom and Ludwig Becker.

Thursday, February 4

Fine Arts Theater, Harold Henry, piano recital.

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

A violin recital by pupils of Guy Woodard will be given this (Friday) evening at the Conservatory Recital Hall. The program follows:

Hungarian Airs	Ernst
Ballade and Polonaise	Earl Eldred
Caprice Viennois	Marietta Livengood
Concerto Romantique	Alfred von Buelwitz
Moderato	Godard
Andante
Allegretto

Witches Dance	Mary Thomas
	Paganini-Kreisler
	Harold Dosch
	Miss Lucille Wallace at the piano

ALICE IONE CRAMER

Alice Ione Cramer, who is rapidly coming to the front as a soprano of great charm and ability, has a number of recitals booked for the spring in various parts of Iowa.

Two Chicago dates in early February, are an appearance as one of the soloists at the Fashion show, to be given at the First Regiment Armory during the week of February 8, and at a faculty recital reception of the music department of the Starrett School, under the direction of Jeannette Durno, at Warwick Hall, February 11.

Zendt—Marie Sidenius Zendt sang at the Ravenswood Baptist Church Saturday evening and sang three French songs at the Chicago Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon, January 26.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Jennie Johnson, contralto, will give a recital at the Fine Arts Building Tuesday evening, February 2, Herbert Butler, violinist, and Alfred Barthel, oboist, will assist. Marx Oberndorfer will be at the piano. The program will be the following:

Es kommt ein Tag	Bach
Three songs from "Magelone" cycle	Brahms
Morning Hymn	Henschel
Children's Prayer	Reger
A Morning Walk	Wolf
Longing	Wolf
Ecstasy	Rummel
Four songs by Scheinplug with violin, piano and English horn
(First time in Chicago)

When I am Dead My Dearest	Borowski
Lost	Oberndorfer
A Pilgrimage	Dunham
A Scotch Lullaby	Schaefer
Evansong	Weidig

Students of the School of Expression will give a dramatic recital Saturday afternoon, January 30 at Kimball Hall under the direction of Walton Pyre. The program will consist of two short plays: "The Falcon," by Tennyson, and "Dream Faces," by Hugh Wynne.

On Saturday afternoon, February 6, the American Conservatory students' orchestra will give its first public concert with the assistance of Dorothy Jacobi, pianist. Herbert Butler will conduct as usual.

The semi-annual bulletin of the American Conservatory, just out, contains much interesting reading matter relating to the conservatory. There is, for instance, a list of several pages consisting of teaching engagements by graduates of the conservatory, and a list of compositions by artist pupils, accepted by prominent music publishers. A most gratifying fact is the announcement by the management that the registration of the conservatory is fully up to that of last season.

FLORIAN VARKONY AT SINAI TEMPLE

Sunday evening, January 24, Mr. Florian Varkony, bass, was the soloist with the orchestra at Sinai Temple. The "March of the Boyards," Halvorsen, was played with fine spirit by the orchestra. The melodies and rhythms are very catching and the orchestra was accorded much applause for their efforts.

Mr. Varkony has a voice of much power and of splendid range and quality, and he should gain a fine place for himself. Seldom does one hear the "Song of the Golden Calf," Gounod, given with such absolute abandon and virility of tone as the rendition heard on this occasion. He was greeted with a storm of applause that did not cease until he kindly consented to repeat the number, and it might be well to say that he lost nothing by the repetition. The rest of the program could not be heard by this writer for there were other things to hear, but from all reports it is safe to say that the rest of the program which followed was splendidly done. The program:

Ballet Music from "Henry VIII."	Saint-Saens
Introduction—Entrance of the Clans
Scotch Idyl
Dance of the Gypsies
Jig—Finale
Three Songs—
Venetian Song	Bemberg
Hungarian Drinking Song	Lorand
'Tis Snowing	Bemberg
Mr. Varkony
Two Hungarian Dances—Nos. 1 and 3	Brahms

Music in Chicago

CHRISTINE MILLER IN EVANSTON

The bare announcement that Christine Miller is to sing in Evanston at any time is sufficient to draw a capacity audience wherever she may appear, and on last Thursday evening Music Hall proved entirely inadequate and scores were turned away unable to gain admittance.

Never has Miss Miller appeared in a more delightful program and never has her voice been so utterly beautiful as at this time.

CHRISTINE MILLER

Her appearance and concert demeanor are absolutely of the finest quality and she carries her audience with her wherever she wills as much through the force of her own personality as through the wonderful significance and beauty of her musical offerings.

Miss Miller is loyal to the last degree to American composers and few indeed are the singers who have popularized so many songs by these writers. Scarcely ever does she give a program without some numbers by Charles Wakefield Cadman, and on Thursday she had listed six other Americans and she gave their work with a beauty and a finish that showed them at their very best.

Musically these works measured up with the well-known classics in a splendid proportion—and if there is a fault to be found it is in some of the texts selected by the various writers.

Poetical text, smooth and intense, is of prime importance and the American composers must continue to seek for this ideal; some of the verses used in last Thursday's concert were neither suave nor impressive.

The program opened with "Come, My Beloved," from Handel's "Atalanta"—this being an old fashioned aria of infinite charm and much effect; "Where the Bee Sucks" (Dr. Arne), which Miss Miller made absolutely delightful and "Be Ye in Love with April Tide," and "Separation," two songs by Ward-Stephens which have much worth and were given full valuation by the singer.

Schumann, Strauss, Mahler and Reger composed the next group and in this class of work Miss Miller is entirely beyond any criticism. There was power and lightness equally distributed, expressiveness and humor deftly contrasted, and at all times an intensity of vocal beauty which gave continual joy to every listener.

"Adieu Forests," the very intense and dramatic aria from Tschaikowsky's "Jeanne d'Arc," was an example of this style of singing which might well serve as a perfect model to all the vocal students present, and it was a poetic delight besides.

Cadman's "The Place of Breaking Light," "Ho, Ye Warriors on the Warpath" and "The Thunder Birds Come from the Cedar," from the suite "From Wigwam and Tepee," which have been heard from Miss Miller several times before were again given in a most convincingly dramatic way and with signal musical effect.

The last group was distinctly American, and also decidedly Evanstonian in makeup, and it was listened to with much delight by the enthusiastic audience, and, as a matter of course, every number was given by Miss Miller with a full valuation of its possibilities and effectiveness.

George B. Nevin's "When the Kye Come Hame" is a thoroughly attractive Scotch song, musical and characteristic. Horatio Parker's "Morning Song" is a perfect gem in every way; the text is perfect and the music fits the text as a glove. "Lullaby of an Infant Chief" proved again that G. A. Grant-Schaeffer is a writer of great insight and power and the "Mother's Visits," by Alfred G. Wathall, showed this Evanstonian also to be very much worth while from the musical standpoint.

"Wind Song" and "The Star," by James H. Rogers, closed the program and they were examples of short songs entirely praiseworthy and wholly delightful as given by Miss Miller.

A number of encores (besides Reger) were given, among them being "Candle Lightin' Time" (Dunbar-Taylor), "My Love Is but a Lassie Yet" and "By Bendermeyer's Stream," the two latter being sung with exquisite grace and musicianship.

Entirely sympathetic and of good musical values were the accompaniments furnished by Mr. Carl M. Beecher.

C. E. W.

Freer—At a pupils' recital to be given by the International College of Music at Suite 63, Auditorium building, on Saturday, January 30, at 3 o'clock, two songs of Eleanor Everest Freer, "My Garden" and "A Carol," will be given.

Glenn Dillard Gunn

The well known pianist, teacher and critic, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

Cable Piano Company,

Wabash and Jackson.

Gentlemen:

Mason & Hamlin Pianos are the most consistently artistic instruments that are made today. Not only do the Concert Grands completely satisfy the demands of the artist, but those qualities of touch, beauty, even scale, and responsive action that so eminently characterize them are possessed in a similar degree by the smaller Grands and Uprights.

GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

LITTLE THEATER

Miss Miriam Marmein, the young dancer who has made her debut at the Little Theater on the fourth floor of the Fine Arts Building, and will dance there again this (Friday) and Saturday evening and at Saturday matinee, is a resident of Chicago. From babyhood she has loved music, the drama, dancing, painting, and sculpture, and her natural tastes have been systematically encouraged by her parents, with the result that the expression of her art is a purely spontaneous thing. As a child she wrote, produced, and acted ten-minute plays, picked out miniature musical numbers, and used her water colors to design costumes and stage settings. Never having had academic training in any branch of art, she instinctively makes use of all the arts for her particular activity. Her dancing is entirely her own, both technically and creatively, and some of the musical accompaniments she has herself composed. Her costumes are designed by herself, and executed under her direction; she also made the original sketches of her dances for the curious and unusual designs which C. Raymond Johnson of the Little Theater has worked out to illustrate them, and which are now hanging in the theater's lobby.

Brock—Mr. Collins J. Brock has accepted a position as teacher of voice at the Chicago Evangelical Institute, Washington boulevard and Wood street. Mr. Brock will spend part of his time only at this position.

FRANK W

Van DusenPIANO-
ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred CookinghamPIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADEPIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCKOrganist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary STEELEHINMAN TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet CaseSOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence EidamPianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGOMILON R. HARRIS, TenorVoice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohnConservatory Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American ViolinistYOST
Address
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYH. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR Concert, Recital, Oratorio

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIOSilas Wright MountzVocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. MonzelKIMBALL HALL. MUSICAL COLLEGE
CHICAGO, ILL."NATOMA" AT FULLERTON HALL

Considering the many voices that are raised nowadays demanding American music for Americans, it seems strange that there were a number of vacant seats in Fullerton Hall last Sunday night, when Miss Henriette Weber and her able assistants presented an American opera, written by an American composer.

A large audience was present, but not as large as usual. Possibly the fact that it was the "thirteenth" of these opera evenings of the season had something to do with the size of the audience.

The opera presented was "Natoma," music by Victor Herbert and words by Joseph D. Redding. The story is of long ago mission days in California, before that southwest country became a part of the United States. The music is decidedly appealing and dramatic, introducing melodies suggestive of the Indian legends and Spanish lore. Miss Weber and the orchestra played a number of characteristic melodies, with their usual excellent taste and musicianship, and were enthusiastically encored.

Marjorie Dodge Warner was the vocalist of the evening, and certainly one more capable of adequately handling the solos assigned her would not easily be found hereabout. Her voice is pure soprano, of great beauty and brilliancy, and so splendidly did she acquit herself in the aria "I List the Trill in Golden Throat" that the audience refused to allow the recital to proceed until she had sung it all over again.

It must be recorded also that she sang "Natoma's Plea" and the "Indian Lullaby" beautifully, although they are both mezzo solos.

These opera evenings certainly have much educational value and afford enjoyable hours to those who have the privilege of attending, and this "Natoma" program was in every way up to standard. C. J. B.

LYCEUM ARTS CONSERVATORY

The following program was given by pupils of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory on Saturday afternoon, January 23, at 3 o'clock.

Piano—"Manuela" Liebling
Edwin Green
Voice—"Two Roses" Gilberte
Rose Brown
Readings Selections
Mary Mildred Roberts
Voice—"Damon" Stange
"Friend O' Mine" Sanderson
Mildred Small
Piano—Scherzo Schubert-Liszt
Voice—"The Rosy Morn" Ronald Marguerite Farrell
Piano—Moment Musical, Op. 7, No. 3 Moszkowski
Menuet Sivjoso, Op. 42, No. 3 Moszkowski
Pearl Brown

JOHN RANKL

John Rankl sang in Milwaukee on January 14 and with the Phillips (Wis.) Choral Society, in "Elijah," on January 20. He will be soloist with the Choral Society at Kentland, Ind., on February 1 and will sing in a benefit musicale in Austin on February 8. Mr. Rankl has many oratorio engagements booked for the spring, and has received many encomiums from directors of the most prominent societies and orchestras. Mr. Rankl will also sing in a concert in the Community House in Winnetka on February 11.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

This (Friday) evening Dr. Alma Webster Powell will give a lecture-musical at the School of Music, her subject being "Music Is a Human Need." On February 5 at 8 o'clock, Miss Esther Ward will play a piano recital.

On February 2 at 8 o'clock, the following program will be given by Clare Livingston, contralto; Dwight Defty, 'cello; David Jacobs, violin, and Charles Maschal Dennis, reader, Mr. G. A. Grant-Schaeffer furnishing the accompaniments:

May, the Maiden (Sidney Lanier) Carpenter
Come Dance the Jig (Paul Verlaine) Carpenter
The Mother's Visits (Mulock) Wathall
Autumn Song (Paul Verlaine) E. Nevin
(For Violin and Voice)
Cry of Rachel (Weese) Salter
Miss Livingston
Vous dansez Marquise (Bazot) Lemaire
Sous les orangers Holmes
La Chanson de l'oiseau bleu Holmes
Miss Livingston
Orange Blossoms Friml
Valse triste Sibelius
Scherzo Van Goens
Mr. Defty
La Ballade du Desespere (H. Murger) H. Bemberg
(The Ballad of a Despairing Man)
Mr. Dennis, Miss Livingston, Mr. Defty
Love and Eternity (Benfey) Orlando Morgan
Candle Lightin' Time (Dunbar) Coleridge-Taylor
Oranges, Sweet Oranges (L. Hunt) Leo Smith
Two Nonsense Songs (Lear) Margaret A. Lang
The Lady of Riga
There Was an Old Person of Cassel
Miss Livingston

A HIGHLAND PARK MUSICAL

Among the many notable musical events in Highland Park recently was that given at the home of Mrs. Mather Smith on January 11 by Edna McDevitt Ross, soprano; Worthie Faulkner, tenor; Mildred Marsh Henderson, pianist; Ernest Schmidt, organist, and Sidney Arno Dietch, organist-accompanist. Their program was as follows:

Organ—Lohengrin-Vorspiel Wagner
Mr. Schmidt
Songs—
Possession Clough-Leigher
Coyote La Forge
Like the Rosebud La Forge
A Song Augustus Palm
When Celia Sings Moir
Mr. Faulkner
Organ and Piano—
Intermezzo, Cavalleria Rusticana Mascagni
Mrs. Henderson Mr. Dietch
Songs—
Star of Me Rogers
Non la Sospiri, Tosca Puccini
Schlaflied Zuckerman
Her Love Song Salter
Mrs. Ross
Organ and Piano—
Kamenoi-Ostrow Rubinstein
Mrs. Henderson Mr. Dietch
Song Cycle—
Syonara Cadman
I Saw Thee First When Cherries Bloomed
At the Feast of the Dead I Watched Thee
All My Heart Is Ashes
The Wild Dove Cries on Fleeting Wing
Mrs. Ross Mr. Faulkner
Organ—
Liebestraum, No. 3 Liszt
Tristan and Isolde "Liebestod" Wagner
Mr. Schmidt

BERGEY PUPIL

The Bergey Chicago Opera School was well represented by Miss Florence Benson in an entire program which she gave before the Hammond Country Club Sunday afternoon, January 24. Miss Benson recently appeared as soloist with the Clara Vaughn Wales Concert Company at the Wilmette Woman's Club and Hammond Country Club, and she was immediately re-engaged to give an entire program.

EDNA VER HAAR SOLOIST AT WEST SIDE SUNDAY NIGHT CLUB

A wealth of splendid music, as usual, was heard by the great congregation which assembled in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, on Sunday evening, January 24, where the West Side Sunday Night Club is conducting its services.

Mr. Allen W. Bogen played an organ program which consisted of "Prelude, Sonata No. 6" (Guilmant), "Berceuse" in D (Lemare), and "Reverie" (Saint-Saens) as an opening to the order of service. These were played with all the skill and finish of the artist organist, which he is. His postlude was "The Pontifical March," by F. de la Tombelle, which was brilliantly played.

Daniel Protheroe directed the fine choir through excellent renditions of "Praise the Lord" (Randegger) and "Still with Thee," his own composition.

The special soloist of the evening was Mrs. Edna Ver Haar, who sang "Like as a Hart Desirèth" (Allitsen) at the offertory point in the program. Mrs. Ver Haar is one of the most charming and satisfactory contraltos heard in the musical field at present and there is no question but that she won a host of new admirers on Sunday night. Her voice is of the rich, velvety quality which always brings joy and the sincerity and appealing sentiment which enters into her interpretation of a song is always the occasion for much praise on the part of her hearers. She was wholly successful along these lines on Sunday night. Mr. Bogen played extra fine accompaniment to the singing of Mrs. Ver Haar, as well as for the work of the choir.

Mr. Protheroe brought an added touch of thrill to the evening's order of worship by his wonderful singing of the touching old hymn, "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" this number being exceedingly appropriate after the address of the evening, "The Case Against the Saloon," given by Dr. Charles Scanlon of Pittsburgh, Pa.

The club's second free monthly recital will be held Sunday afternoon, February 7, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Bogen at the organ will be assisted by Marie Sidenius Zendt, soprano soloist.

H. M. B.

BUSH TEMPLE

The following program was given by pupils of Harold von Mickwitz, on January 22:

Finale from Concerto, Op. 37, C minor.....	Beethoven
Miss Deborah Borovick
(Mr. Harold von Mickwitz at second piano)
Yesterday and Today.....	Spross
Elysium.....	Oley Speaks
Mrs. W. E. Williams
Nocturne, D flat.....	Chopin
Rhapsodie, No. 8.....	Liszt
Miss Georgie Jones
Aria from "Magic Flute".....	Mozart
Requiem.....	Homer
Mr. John Brantley
Scherzo, C minor, Op. 39.....	Chopin
Mr. Joe Wynne

###

Krause—Miss E. Louise Krause appeared as soloist with the First Methodist Church choir of Austin at the special morning service. Miss Krause rendered "The Pharisee and the Publican" in her usually musicianly manner. Miss Krause is filling numerous engagements this season, many of which are of no little importance.

MENDELSSOHN SERVICE AT LEAVITT STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The congregation which assembled at the Leavitt Street Congregational Church on Sunday evening, January 24, was given a rare and interesting musical treat by way of the Mendelssohn festival service which had been exceptionally well prepared under the guidance of Miss Alice R. Deal, organist and director of music.

Not only were the choir and organ numbers taken from the music of this composer, but the hymns as well, and the pastor took for his text the dramatic scene in the Scriptures which gave to Mendelssohn the words and inspiration for his great oratorio, "The Elijah." The pastor also went further and read an interesting and instructive sketch on the life of this great composer.

That Miss Deal is giving this church much excellent music can be proven by the manner in which the music of last Sunday evening was given. While the choir is not made up with a great number of voices, they nevertheless are capable of forming a fine ensemble and sing with smoothness, good enunciation, sincerity and expression. The choir as a whole or in part sang the following numbers in good style, both musically and intelligently: "How Lovely Are the Messengers" (St. Paul), "Cast Thy Burden" (Elijah), "If With All Your Hearts" (Elijah), and "I Waited for the Lord," (Hymn of Praise). All beautiful indeed, as were the organ numbers played by Miss Deal in a manner which marked her as an organist of high attainments. These consisted of "The March of the Priests" (Athalia), "Sonata No. 3," A major: "Spring Song" and "Wedding March." Miss Deal is a fine musician and knows her instrument perfectly, apparently, for her offerings were adorned with beautiful contrasts, coloring and expressive effects throughout the evening.

H. M. B.

LECTURE RECITAL

Saturday, January 23, a goodly number of music lovers assembled to hear the lecture recital of the songs of Hugo Wolf and E. A. MacDowell given by Mr. D. A. Clippinger. He was assisted by Miss Anna L. Cooper, soprano, and Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist. Mr. Clippinger's lectures are well known and liked, for they are of real value to the student, teacher or professional singer. His manner of address is so forceful and attractive that it is little wonder that many come to hear his presentation of the different composers he chooses to represent. Miss Anna L. Cooper gave illustrations. Her voice is very pleasing and she gave a good account of herself in the following numbers heard by this writer: "O Sleep, Why Do'st Thou Leave Me," by Handel, and the following by Hugo Wolf: "Island Song," "Morning Dew," "Secrecy," "A Prayer," "To an Old Picture." Mrs. Orchard gave excellent support at the piano.

###

Gallup—Miss Helen Gallup is accompanist for the West Side Choral Society (seventy-five voices) and will play at their coming concert. She is also temporary accompanist for Milton Harris' new chorus at Rogers Park.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANIST TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing

81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST

Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE

Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR

Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO

ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST

Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE

Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogies
Lyceum Arts Conservatory
Fine Arts Building Chicago

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO

27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

ROY DAVID BROWN

PIANIST

SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL FINE ARTS BUILDING

Tim Haines Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4803 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO

Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co. Management The Wolfson Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO

CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718ALICE CORY

SOPRANO

LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINEVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO

FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

Abbie Stephens FridenbergTHE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert Raymond LippittCONCERT PIANIST

437 Fifth Avenue, New York

On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice

CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS

Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS

CELLIST

PUPILS

2938 Washington Boulevard

Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST

TEACHER

622 North Kenilworth Avenue

OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe

SOPRANO

620 Kimball Hall

Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO

Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital

625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

STUDIOS...730 Fine Arts Building

Mooday and Thursday Afternoons

5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE

83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice

Coaching of Professional Singers

714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

USIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE

M. ROSE BURNS, President

463 W. 63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

CONCERT AT JEWISH ALLIANCE

Sunday afternoon, January 24, a concert was given at the Jewish Educational Alliance by Messrs. Clarence Eidam, piano; Hans Hess, 'cello; Alexander Kaminsky, violin. Miss Yetta Soboroff, soprano, was the soloist. The trio, Messrs. Eidam, Hess and Kaminsky, gave a varied program that was very enjoyable and greatly appreciated by the good-sized audience that was in attendance. Messrs. Eidam and Hess are both well known as soloists and teachers and their work was of a high order. Mr. Kaminsky draws a tone that is rich and powerful, but his ensemble work was not all that it should be. A little restraint would add greatly to his playing. Messrs. Hess, Eidam and Kaminsky gave a good rendition of the "Largo" (Handel). The trio of G major by Mozart was well liked; the first and last movements were especially well done. The Beethoven "Minuetto" was greeted with a storm of applause, as was the Arensky "Elegie." "The Extase," by Ganne, was a fine bit of playing. The "Pizzicato Gavotte" (Pach) and "March Militaire" (Schubert) were the best liked of the last group and they were given in a manner that was praise-meriting. The playing of the trio reflected much credit upon themselves and they received many compliments from the work of the afternoon. Miss Soboroff has a pleasing voice and gave much pleasure in her numbers.

CLARENCE EIDAM

H. W. P.

CHICAGO CONCERT ENSEMBLE

Sunday, January 24, the Chicago Concert Ensemble, George Dasch, conductor, gave the following program at Joliet, Ill.:

Overture, Magic Flute Mozart
Prayer from Jewels of the Madonna Wolf-Ferrari
Two Hungarian Dances Brahms
Air de Salome from Herodiade Massenet
(Miss Alberta Bragg)
Serenade Burgmeier
Polish Dance Scharwenka
Selection, Cavalleria Rusticana Mascagni
Germany (from Foreign Lands Suite) Moszkowski
Bridal March Mendelssohn

SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL

Friday, January 22, at Thurber Hall, the Sherwood Music School presented in recital the advanced pupils of Miss Kober, Mr. Schultz, Miss Marley, Miss Keller. The quality of the pupils' work in both piano and voice shows careful training, and the presentation of the varied numbers reflected much credit upon themselves and the teachers. The pupils displayed to a fine advantage the value of student recitals, for there was a good deal of surety and poise in their work that was very commendable. The program follows:

Polonaise, A major Chopin
Mollie Fox
Scherzo, E minor Mendelssohn
Gladys Smith
To You Oley Speaks
Tears and Smiles Protheroe
Edwin Kemp
Romance Tchaikowsky
Gavotte, G minor Bach
Marion Rinn
Evening (two pianos) Chaminade
Lillian Harkness and Miss Marley
Sing, Smile, Slumber Gounod
Song of Sleep Somerset
Helen Headington
Minuet Stavenhagen
Celia Ticklen
Tarantelle MacDowell
Etude, B minor Schytte
Genevieve McGreevy
Dedication Franz
Sacrament MacDermid
My Laddie Thayer
Harriet Hollingsworth
Romance Schuert
Arabesque No. 2 Debussy
Ruth Thompson
Melusine at the Fountain Wurmbrand-Vrabely
Crescendo Larson
Walburga Loeppert
Tender Farewell Schuert
Madeline Chadwick
Barcarolle Schytte
Alma Goerler and Miss Marley

WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL

Mrs. Minnie Fish-Griffin, soprano, and Mr. James Whittaker, pianist, members of the faculty of the Walter Spry Music School, and whose work was commented upon in these columns following their recent recital in the Fine Arts Theater, gave the following joint recital program in the Literary Club Rooms of the Fine Arts Building on Saturday afternoon, January 23, to a very appreciative audience:

Prelude, Aria and Finale Cesar Franck
Mr. Whittaker
Stille Thraenen Schumann
Poems by Burns
Somebody Schumann
Naebody
Highland Widow's Lament
Highland Cradle Song
Mrs. Fish-Griffin
Preludes in D flat major and F sharp minor Chopin
Mazurka in A minor Chopin
Etudes in F minor, G flat major and C major Chopin
Mr. Whittaker
Auf Fluegel des Gesanges Mendelssohn
(On the Wings of Song)
When? (Tennyson) Eilenberg
Fate (Dedicated to Mrs. Griffin) Eilenberg
Mrs. Fish-Griffin
Liesbestraum, No. 1, A flat major Liszt
Legend, "St. Francis Walking on the Waves" Liszt
Mr. Whittaker

Mr. Walter Spry played excellent accompaniments.

Radanovits — Stellan Windrow, tenor, pupil of S. S. Radanovits sang Sunday, January 24, at Brunt Hall, Bush Temple, Stringberg evening, group of Swedish songs, by Grondahl, Ackerberg and Jornefelt.

"THE CREATION" IN AUSTIN

Music News reported the very successful giving of "The Creation" by the Haydn Choral Society, under direction of H. W. Owens, at Park Avenue M. E. Church, two weeks ago, and the pleasure of hearing it was repeated on last Friday evening when the very large M. E. Church of Austin was packed to overflowing with the usual

H. W. OWENS

Austin audience, one which has been taught variously to admire and appreciate oratorio and which attends these functions in such immense numbers, also partly because the Austin churches do not ever charge admission to any music function.

This is absolutely unnecessary and it is also inartistic, inasmuch as it necessitates usually a long "begging" harangue just before the collection which could be avoided if an admission price was charged.

On Friday evening the choral perfection of the earlier performance was repeated, and not only was there present great accuracy and assurance as well as a splendidly modulated and controlled body of tone, but there was also such bravura in "A New Created World," "The Heavens Are Telling" and others of the greater choral numbers as will rarely be heard from any choral body.

Mr. Owens has proved his splendid vigor and intelligence with several choral bodies and he is now engaged in building up a church choir in Austin. The M. E. Church is fortunate indeed to have been able to secure his services.

He has a large class of vocal students and from this body he usually recruits his solo singers for oratorio performances, and also many of them are members of the Haydn Choral Society, an organization which has taken many prizes in contest and which will enter for the great Eisteddfod prize at San Francisco next summer.

At the Park Avenue M. E. Church performance Miss Augusta Collson sang the soprano solos and Miss Lillian Landwer assisted the chorus. At the Austin performance Miss Landwer became the soloist and Miss Collson graciously took her place with the chorus.

Miss Landwer has a nice presence, good vocal style, and much technic. Her work in the ensemble was particularly good, while "With Verdure Clad" was a distinctly artistic achievement.

Mr. Archer Ballentine, in the bass solos, showed a good voice and very intelligent musicianship, and Mr. H. E. Haines, tenor, again proved to be a very worthy singer. His voice is sweet and he has much adaptability and authority in oratorio.

His enunciation in full voice passages was much improved over a former hearing but is still indistinct in pianissimo work. Haydn Owens again displayed great versatility and style in his piano accompaniments and Harris R. Vail did good service at the organ.

C. E. W.

— * * *

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Kneisel Quartet will give their second chamber music concert next Sunday afternoon, January 31, at the Illinois Theater under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The quartet will have the assistance of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, and Messrs. Esser and Brueckner. The program, which is a very interesting one, is as follows: Schumann Quartet A major, Op. 41 No. 3; Arnold Schoenberg Sextet D minor Op. 4 for two violins, two violas and two violoncellos, assisted by Messrs. Esser and Brueckner and the Brahms G minor Quartet, Op. 25 with Mr. Gabrilowitsch at the piano.

Rudolph Ganz, the popular Swiss pianist, will give a recital at the Illinois Theater, Sunday afternoon, February 7, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Other February concerts under the management of F. Wight Neumann are piano recital by Mme. Olga Samaroff, Sunday afternoon, February 21, at the Illinois Theater, and Albert Spalding, violinist, Sunday afternoon, February 28, at the Illinois Theater.

ENGLEWOOD SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

The Englewood Sunday Evening Club choir, under the direction of Mr. Glenwood Preble and Mr. George R. Kurtz, organist, gave a musical program of excerpts from the "Messiah."

The assisting artists were Miss Lucile Stevenson, soprano; Mrs. Fredericka Gerhardt Downing, contralto; Edward Walker, tenor, and Marion Green, bass. Mr. Kurtz gave a good account of himself at the organ, playing the "Overture" and "Pastoral Symphony" as solo numbers. The organ at this church is not in the best condition, but Mr. Kurtz handled it with skill. Rev. A. J. Francis gave a neat talk on the "Messiah" that was much enjoyed.

The chorus, under Mr. Preble, did many things that were commendable, reflecting credit upon themselves and the directors. This quartet of well-known "Messiah" artists, Miss Stevenson, Mrs. Downing, Mr. Walker and Mr. Green, gave the allotted solos in a very artistic and finished manner.

Mrs. Downing was at her best in "He Shall Feed His Flock." Miss Stevenson, in the number "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth." Mr. Walker gave a fine reading of the recitative and air "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart" and "Behold and See." Mr. Green made much of the number "Why Do the Nations."

The evening of music was much enjoyed by the large audience, and it is safe to say the "Messiah" would be heard again with pleasure in Englewood. H. W. P.

ELEANOR
Dramatic
SopranoIn Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and StoriesHAZZARD PEOCOCKSEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow WeaverSOPRANO Oratorio & RecitalsMARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENSVOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804JOHN DOANEPUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANISTCOACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074Hazel Huntley Contralto

609 Fine Arts Building

CONCERT - RECITAL - PUPIL'S

Phone Harrison 6880

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDTSOPRANO
Phone Austin 22712

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5943 OHIO STREETCarlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The following program will be given at the College Rooms in the Auditorium building on Saturday, January 30, at 3 o'clock.

Fanfare Brilliant, Op. 303.....	Bohm
Duet for Piano
Grace Schwartz	Emma Clark-Mottl
Golden Silence.....	Edith Fortesque
Song for Mezzo Soprano
Madge Wiederman
In the Morning.....	Hannah Smith
Piano With Verses
Waltz in C major—Duet.....	Charles Dennee
Evelyn Miller (Age 7 years)
Selish Giant.....	Oscar Wilde
Reading
Hazel Blair
Polonaise, Op. 50.....	Schmoll
For Piano
Hortense Adamsky
Love Once Again in Spring Time.....	von Telzer
For Soprano
Elizabeth Rodgers
At the Brook.....	Albert Franz
Barcarolle.....	Grant Schaefer
For Piano
Roslyn Grant
Consolation.....	Mendelssohn
Barcarolle.....	Offenbach
For Guitar
Paula G. Merker
The Dancing School.....	Terrington
Reading
Hazel Blair
Frolic of the Winds, Op. 13.....	H. L. Cramm
Piano
Evelyn Bernstein
My Garden.....	Eleanor Everest Freer
A Carol.....	Eleanor Everest Freer
Otoya Mizuki
Fantasie, for Piano and Clarinet.....	Schumann
Gertrude Campbell
Ralph Kraum
Members of the Faculty

CARLILE TUCKER PROGRAM

Program of recital to be given by Carlile Tucker, baritone, and Gilbert Shorter, impressionist reader, at the Blackstone Theater Sunday afternoon, January 31, at 3:30:

Lungi dal Caro Bene.....	Secchi
Heimliche Aufforderung.....	Strauss
Printemps Nouveau.....	Vidal
Carlile Tucker
King Robert of Sicily.....	Longfellow
(With musical setting by Rosseter Cole)
Gilbert Shorter
Soufir.....	Hillemacher
Separation.....	Hillemacher
La Jeunesse n'a q'un temps.....	Hillemacher
Carlile Tucker
Aux Italiens.....	Lord Lytton
The Duet.....	Ella W. Wilcox
Gilbert Tucker
Sing Me a Song of the Lad That Is Gone.....	Homer
The Last Leaf.....	Homer
How's My Boy.....	Homer
Carlile Tucker
The Soul of the Violin.....	E. Merrell
Gilbert Shorter
May, the Maiden.....	Carpenter
Waldensamkeit.....	Reger
A Fool's Soliloquy.....	Campbell-Tipton
Carlile Tucker
Mr. Robert Gale Smith at the piano for Mr. Tucker.
Miss Florence Breyspraak at the piano for Mr. Shorter.

FRIDAY CLUB

The Friday Club will give a benefit concert at the Logan Square Auditorium this evening, January 29. The following artists will appear on the program: Miss Louise Krause, soprano; Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist; Alice Hinshaw, reader; Helen Ryan, pianist; T. Francis Hughes, tenor; Marvin Hinshaw, baritone; Hans Hess 'cellist.

A FINE YOUNG PIANIST AT TURNER HALL

Turner Hall was packed on last Sunday afternoon, and besides the fact that there were no seats for late comers, it was also true that the smoke was unusually dense and that the piano used was dismally out of tune, in spite of which drawbacks a genuine sensation was produced by Gertrude Weinstock, a ten-year-old pupil of Esther Harris, a teacher who has every reason to be very proud of her remarkable success in training the great talent of this little girl.

GERTRUDE WEINSTOCK

Miss Weinstock is small, even for her age, and on the stage she has a very engaging and simple manner.

She played the B flat "Concerto" (Beethoven), first movement, and disclosed remarkable powers for her years. First of all, she is very accurate and sure; secondly, she possesses a good, round tone, and thirdly, she discloses remarkable musicianship in her work. Her accent is definite, she makes her phrases very clear, her rhythmic sense is admirable, and of musical taste she possesses a large degree.

Altogether a splendid performance for a young student—one which reflected much praise on her teacher and which proved her own undoubted talent, as well as her industry.

For encore she played the Liszt "Second Rhapsody," with remarkable virtuosity, splendid swing, and marked piquancy, and in response to a thunderous demand for a second encore played a brilliant little "Etude" very skillfully.

In fact, there was no flaw in the performances in any particular except the already mentioned circumstance, that the piano was much out of tune.

Mr. Ballmann, with his orchestra, played a fine list of classic and popular numbers, in his inimitable way. Soprano solos were sung by Freya Marie Mack and a sensation was scored by George Milton Lipschultz and Rudolph Mangold in a duet for two violins, "Grossmutterchen," by Lange.

C. E. W.

SYMPHONY CONCERT

After one had read Mr. De Lamar's basis for his "Overture to a Fantastic Comedy—the Faun," following the picture as given by the orchestra, was easy, enjoyable, invigorating. Anyone who saw Faversham in the Knoblauch play knew just what was going on, and recalled happily the tilts between the conventional and the unrestrained. Mr. De Lamar's music fairly bubbled and danced with exuberance, as well as quaintness, and an irresponsibility that never seemed to lose its hold upon itself no matter how far it went. The orchestra did it capitably, with a real dash and enthusiasm, and made its episodes brilliant with color. A call for the composer at the Saturday night concert did not produce him.

Strawinsky's "Fireworks" is fitly named, for it is not at all worth the putter they made over its performance in London. The orchestra played it in a bored manner. The Berlioz "Queen Mab" was delicious, quite mild and insinuating as compared to the Casella "Rhapsody" that followed, which was opulent and bombastic in rioting color and popular in its romping use of the "Funiculi-Funicula." It is passing strange that Berlioz could have at one time been pushed aside as bizarre. May be he was in the eyes of the gently melodious Mr. Aufer of "Fra Diavolo" fame, but he is tame in the presence of Signor Casella.

The first portion of the program was not heard.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

APOLLO CLUB

Frances Ingram, contralto, and Warren E. Proctor, tenor, have been engaged for the first performance in America of Cowan's "The Veil," by the Apollo Musical Club, Monday night, February 22, at Orchestra Hall. Both are Chicago artists of good reputation, and their appearance on this occasion will be watched with interest. This promises to be one of the most attractive concerts of the entire season. Single tickets are now on sale at the Apollo Club box office in Lyon & Healy's.

Cosmopolitan School—Saturday, January 23, at 3 p. m., there will be a recital at the Auditorium recital hall by the pupils of the school. Pupils of Dr. Williams, Mr. Eames, Mrs. Bracken, Mr. Grandell, Mr. Lewis and members of the ensemble class will appear.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

The concert of last Saturday afternoon drew many scores more than could be accommodated in Kimball Hall, and provided great delight for all who heard it.

MME. RAGNA LINNE

Mr. Herbert Butler, in a well selected group of numbers by Tor Aulin, Dvorak and Moszkowski, gave an object lesson in good violin playing to the many students present and, in conjunction with Hans Hess, 'cello, and Mrs. Butler, pianist, presented the "Trio," Op. 66, by Mendelssohn, in splendid ensemble style.

A symphony in white was Mme. Linne, dress, hat and hair all being the color of snow, and her appearance was no less charming than was her thoroughly artistic singing.

HANS HESS

"Remembrance" (MS.), by Helen Ashley, was sweetly simple in form and construction. "Dew Drops," by Agathe Grondahl, was a gem of great refinement in its pianissimo charm suggesting Sigurd Lie's "The Snow."

Rubinstein's suave "The Dream" was sung with great refinement, and Grieg's "Kid Dance" was full of naivete and bucolic charm.

HERBERT BUTLER

C. E. W.

AN ORCHESTRA PENSION FUND

It is due to the trustees of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra to correct, on the authority of a high official of the association, an impression given in two communications in these columns, that the trustees are opposed to the formation by the musicians of a mutual aid or pension society.

The official interviewed said emphatically to the writer: "Not only are we not opposed to the pension idea, but we are, so far as I know, unanimously in favor of it."

"The contrary impression must have gained publicity from the fact that some of us have undoubtedly stated that, in view of the heavy debt which the association owes, it would be quite impossible for us, at present, to establish such a fund; but we will welcome any suggestions from members of the orchestra by which we may aid them in their very laudable desire to organize such a society among themselves."

SIMEON F. NEWHALL.

MacBURNIE CLUB ANNOUNCEMENT

The MacBurnie Studios Club will hold the monthly dinner at Kuntz-Remmler's on Thursday evening, February 4. Following the dinner will come an important meeting, at which time the professional life of the studio is to receive a new impetus. All members and friends of the studio are urged to be present for this affair.

Frawley—Mrs. Albert Frawley has been appointed to fill the position of alto soloist at the Church of the Redeemer, Warren avenue and Robey street.

MUNRO STUDIOS

People know that they are likely to be well repaid when they go to a recital at the Munro Studios, and therefore every seat in the attractive place is likely to be filled when such recitals occur. Saturday night was no exception to the rule. Mr. Munro and Miss Love know the value of the minor accessories of light, flowers and unaffected cordiality, and make good use of them.

The current program was of unusual character. Mr. Munro explained that Miss Minnie Lang, soprano, who was to present it, had been under his training for a stated period and that he regarded her as finished so far as groundwork was concerned. The program which she was to give at this time was to be repeated in June, when she should have given to it the additional work of coaching and style that he considered necessary, and those present on Saturday were urged to be present six months later and see what the cultivating process had done.

Accompanied excellently by Mrs. Elsa McMynn, Miss Lang was heard in her first group by the reviewer. Her voice is a large one, rounded and brilliant in quality and telling in its directness. The scale is even and easy, compassing without apparent difficulty the demands of the songs used. Once or twice a certain hardness that produced overtones made itself felt, but could easily have been caused by outside influences. In its present shape Miss Lang impressed as being well equipped for very good service along the chosen lines. Quite singularly she made about as good a showing in an old-time song as in any other number. Abt's old "Sleep Well, Sweet Angel" is another of Mr. Munro's revivals, which justifies his perspicacity, for it is a good song yet, even when placed right next to La Forge's extremely modern one, "Retreat." This latter was beautifully done, as were the lilting phrases of Massenet's "Open Thy Blue Eyes." To attempt the big Oberon aria, "Ocean! Thou Mighty Monster," must have required courage, and it was so commendably attacked that the applause following was well deserved. It will be interesting to see what the next six months will add to its effectiveness. It is one of the great arias for soprano, and, like marriage, not to be undertaken lightly or without much forethought, but having rewards for the worthy.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

SIGMA ALPHA IOTA ENTERTAINS CHRISTINE MILLER

Christine Miller was pledged to Sigma Alpha Iota last spring and on last Thursday evening after her Evanston recital was initiated by the Beta Chapter which is located in Northwestern University School of Music. Following the ceremonies incident to initiation, the members tendered the popular artist a reception at the home of Miss Anna Hebblethwaite.

Among the members of Beta Chapter are the following teachers at Northwestern: Bertha Beeman, Nina Shumway-Knapp, Lura Bailey, Elizabeth Shotwell Burger, Claire Livingston and Janet Hanna.

Wolffungen—De Cortez Wolffungen will give a song recital at Kimball Hall on February 4.

CECIL FANNING Baritone H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913
Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Production Oratorio and Grand Opera. Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Stoovo, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4698

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE
PIANO
HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Con-
tralto
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
548 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

The Elderly Person

January is the month of inventories, the month when books are balanced, dividends passed or declared, where the business errors and successes are gone over and faced for what they mean in the profit and loss account. It is a month for judgments, and plans, and consultations, and a sort of girding on of one's armor to meet what the coming eleven months of the year may hold in the way of strife and conquest. Things would be very quiet in the retail business world, as they certainly are in the wholesale, if it were not for the enterprise which seizes one phase of the inventory as a means to create trade where it otherwise might not be. The shopkeepers all know that people are in a state of financial collapse in January as the result of too much Christmas shopping, and that only the most drastic appearance of reductions will be considered as tempting bargains. Therefore they do mightily, and lustily, and with big patterned type, proclaim that they are slaughtering prices furiously—and we all go buy—buy, particularly mankind at the haberdasher shop.

Well, why not, if the expected scarfs, and mufflers, and hose, and brilliant shirts were not found in the Christmas stocking? True, the eyes must be shut to some very evident preparations for these same bargain days. It won't do to question whether these shirts were not really prepared against the very days they had fallen upon, or to note that the ties have a suspicious look of not being the regular stock supposed to be cruelly marked down. If you have a wife she is rather apt to suspect some of your values if you allow her to be free in expressing the thoughts. This, by way of digression only!

The Elderly Person turns to one inventory and its balance sheet that he looks over thoroughly, reverently, emotionally. It is the profit account of the inexorable Reaper whose name we couple with taxes as being unscrupulous and exacting and who takes his toll day by day and month by month throughout the year and records an appalling host as his garner. The papers which print these long rolls divide them into classes, and in every list are names of eminence and value and talent and great gifts that the world had need of, and, it would seem, could illy spare. The old saying that "the old must die—the young may die" stares out boldly, too, from the long columns. Splendid lives of ripe fulness and usefulness, as well as promising lives of service and eager enthusiasm, are always found in the reckoning of this husbandman who goes about so silently, picking here and there for the swelling phalanx which he feels he must present, at the end of the year, as the greatest of all harvests brought in.

The Elderly Person does not feel any intensity in the survey. Perhaps it is one of the good things about elderliness that with it arrives as well a philosophy about living which includes the transition from one form of it to another. But he does cling to the thought that all those who have passed on can never be so content with what they find elsewhere that they are in the least forgetful of what they left behind, but that rather, with new and enlarged vision, they have a quickened sense of the blessings which made the dwelling here of moment and beauty. The affections are not laid aside, but more likely intensified by separation. And he is sure that the loving mention of names, in mind or by voice, have some sort of quick means of communication and add that much more to the pleasures of those who dwell in those sweet fields beyond the swelling floods of which the old hymn sings. In Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" this idea is carried to a definite point, when the old grandparents reprove the children who have found their way to the "Never-Never Land" because they have not been aroused for a long time from their otherwise happy existence of dreaming, by the mention of their names.

In the literary, artistic and musical circles the necrology of 1914 scores a list that seems like a decimation of the ranks of the noted and needed. In Chicago, all those who knew him have not ceased to mourn the passing of Emil Liebling. He was a familiar figure in the fullest sense of the word, touching and illuminating every person with whom he came in contact with some of that marvellous world-richness which made up his personality. But fine as was all that he did in life, nothing was finer than the way he went out of it, as was so beautifully said of "Little Billee," and which, if it could be said of any of us, would be a requiem of as rare flavor as is that which Stevenson sang of. To meet, and face, and fight a foregone tragic surety with a smiling face and a brave sweetness is courage to be emulated, if not coveted. Almost the same might be said of W. R. French, for so long the head of the Art Institute, on whose vision and ripe standards the directors felt they could rely, and so supplied him unhesitatingly with the means to make his ideals realities, which, in turn, give to us untold and far-reaching privileges—to use a weak and inadequate word. Sometimes it really seems better to have the ideals and the visions than to have the money to work them out. Certainly Mr. French's influence will be wider in its many leadings than he could ever have hoped to make it had he been but a man of wealth who could buy pictures for himself so long as he had place for them.

Byron L. Smith was more to Chicago than just a big bank's astute president. He was so choice a man, with so large a sense of what the ministry of beauty should mean in every walk of life, that one smiles gratefully in mentioning his name. Apart from what he did for the Symphony Orchestra and Art Institute, his memory shines fresh and green in all the vines and plants which fill the boxes that crowd every vantage point on the different bank fronts in the city. He originated and set in motion the lovable example, which was quickly taken up by every bank and even spread so far that the windows of the City Hall have their boxes of plants and a man to water and care for them between frosts. S. M. Nickerson was another banker who lived beyond his day, and left a wonderful heritage to the Art Institute in those magical rooms crammed with pictures, curios, tapestries and potteries. William B. Earle, for years head of the Pilgrim Press store, made a brave effort to live out his fair measure of days, but when he found that it was not to be he went toward the unseen with such serenity and strength that he left courage behind him for those who must still wait. H. S. Perkins, a name to conjure with when the Elderly Person was a lad, and who penetrated to far recesses with his musical propaganda in the way of conventions, is on the Chicago list, and breaks a link between the past and present. But he was full of years and honors and ripe for the transition. One can't feel quite as reconciled to the passing of young Arthur Rech, so rich in natural gifts, training and possibilities. But the young lovers did what they believed to be the right thing, and the flowers on their names are fitting. Sometime such mysteries will be found to be worked out. And Gabriel Katzenberger must have mention, also, for years of honest service.

In the outer circle probably the best known man's name enrolled is that of Robert J. Burdette, the "Hawkeye Man," who went from one end to the other of the United States, preaching his gospel of cheerfulness and humor. He was a young man, contemporary with the Elderly Person, for they thrived in the same town, and he gave some of his dearest flings at that same young chap who is now the Elderly Person. There is not space for anecdote, or for more than a reference to "Bob's" devotion to his invalid wife, who after all was his real inspiration and monitor. Madame Nordica leads the list of notable women. And an intense regret goes with the comment, because there are not many or very satisfactory records in the reproducing instruments of her voice, so that she must pass into the traditions by which we keep alive the memory of the vocal triumphs of the other great divas who came before her.

Raoul Pugno was one of the first to lay down his burden in the year. Shall any of us who saw him put on his spectacles, open the score and play the Mozart concerto ever forget him? He was the one artist who never could overcome his fear of a treacherous memory. It played him false once—he never trusted it again. Zelda Sequin Wallace! What a host of memories for those who recall the Castle and Campbell, and Parepa-Rosa, and Emma Abbott English Opera Companies! They do say there was never a better Azucena or Gypsy Queen. And Emil Fischer, the hero of early Wagnerian festivities, when Theodore Thomas made himself the protagonist of "the music of the future." And Faure, who left "The Palms" for a lasting heritage to all baritones. And Sgambati, most lyrical of all modern Italians who write for piano. And noble Pol Plancon, greatest of all Mephistopheles and no mean Plunkett when the Elderly Person last heard him. . . . Like "little children tired from their play," they were all ready for sleep when bedtime came.

This enumeration does not touch the outer surface of the loss side of the ledger. We have to confess how great it is, to regret it, to feel its severity. And we know that none of those who are gone can be quite replaced, for each person's work in the world is done in his own peculiar way. This is the tremendous victory and compensation of personality. The thought should give everyone a more erect carriage and the mental poise to take himself and his work seriously. In business meetings when the inventory and balance sheet are presented, these losses, their importance and effect are first discussed and tribute paid to those who converted energy into deeds and results. Then new hands are chosen to pick up the threads and begin to weave the pattern of the next year's balance sheet. . . . Some of us are to be selected, whether we wish it or not, to contribute to the profit side and be in the inventory. May we be equal to the opportunities, fit into the endeavor with sturdy vigor and make a good showing. And for those of us who are to be chosen in the same way to join the choir invisible—may our names be spoken often and with loving inflection always.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

— # # # —

RUSSELL SCHOOL

The following program will be given at the Russell School of Music at Seventy-fifth street and Vincennes avenue, on Monday evening, February 1:

Sonata, A major.....	Mozart
Andante and Variations
Menuetto
Alla Turca
Miss Irma Hosier
Renewal of Mrs. Pixley.....	Mason
Miss Lucille E. Bourke
Menuetto, B minor.....	Schubert
Impromptu, Op. 90, No. 2.....	Schubert
Miss Irma Hosier
Crossing the Bar	Tennyson
(With musical setting)
Miss Lucille E. Bourke
Arabesque, Op. 45.....	Leschetizky
Serenade	Schuett
Polka Boheme	Rubinstein
Gavotte, E Major.....	Dreyschock
Miss Irma Hosier

— # # # —

Boston—The first performance in America of "Weeping Pierrot and Laughing Pierrot" (Pierrot qui pleure et Pierrot qui rit), comedy by Edmund Rostand and music by Jean Hubert, with English translations by Amy Lowell, will be performed in Jordan Hall, Boston, Mass., February 2, 3, 4, with Miss Maggie Teyte. Stage settings designed by Livingston Platt.

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Some recent and coming dates for teachers of the Orchard School of Music, 1535 Hyde Park boulevard:

Mrs. Jessie DeVore, violinist:

Concert—First Presbyterian Church.
Concert—Chicago Artists' Association.
Recital—Elmhurst, Ill.
Recital—Bloomington, Ill.

Mr. John Allen Richardson, who is becoming well known as a director:

January 7—With choir assisted at John Doane organ recital.

January 10—With soloists and chorus of 75 voices gave the cantata, "Holy Child," at Civics Music Association, First Baptist Church.

January 24—Musical service, St. Paul's Church.
January 28—Musical Service, Dr. Page's Conservatory.

Miss Olene Wallis, pianist:

Soloist and accompanist at concert at Chicago Heights Woman's Club.

Soloist "Civics Club," Waterford, Wis.

Recital at home of Mrs. Reynolds, president of South Side branch of the P. E. O.

Miss Zula Ziegler, pianist:

Soloist, Colony Club, Congress Hotel.

Recital—Kenwood, March 27.

Grace Saltonstall:

Program character songs in March.

Soloist Orchard faculty concert, March 2.

Mrs. Jennie Bowman Ricketts, reader:

Program Woman's Club, Hinsdale, Mich.

Program North Shore Women's Club.

Mrs. Jessie Nichols Baldwin:

Recently illustrated D. A. Clippinger's lecture on Russian Music at Arche Club, and French songs at Madrigal Club rooms.

Soloist Orchard faculty concert, March 2.

Mr. Walter Brauer, 'cellist:

Soloist at the home of Mrs. Alfred Baker.

Dates at—Hobart, Ind.; Battle Creek, Mich.; Walnut, Ill.; Aurora, Ill.; Arche Club, Southern, N. C.

Soloist musical at St. Paul's Church for Choir Boys' Camping Fund

Mrs. Charles Orchard:

Series of D. A. Clippinger lecture recitals.

Catholic Woman's League.

Bryn Mawr Woman's Club.

Playgoers' Club.

Mangasarian Lecture.

Chicago Dramatic Society.

Arche Club.

For C. W. Best Series, Rockford, Beloit, Elm.

Six Recitals, Dorothy Meadows Dramatic Society.

Rogers Park Women's Club.

Chicago Heights Women's Club.

— # # # —

Donath—Kurt Donath, the director of the vocal department, choir and glee club at the Culver Military Academy, ludicrously states that the academy is strictly neutral. Five hundred Culver boys sang "It's a long way to Tipperary," with the same spirit and enthusiasm as they sang the "Watch on the Rhine."

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall

Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.

Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.

Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

26th Year

THE BREWER-TEACHER'S AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.

Over 40,000 Positions Filled

32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W.

CLARK

BARITONE

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

THE ROUSE-PRAHL RECITAL

Charles Rouse, baritone, and Earl Victor Prahl, pianist, two of Chicago's young and favorite artists, gave a choice, interesting and enjoyable program on Monday evening, January 25, at their recital in the Little Theater. A comfortable and very appreciative audience was in attendance.

Mr. Rouse has made marked improvement since his singing in the same surroundings one year ago. He was in fine form vocally on Monday night, the rich vibrant quality of his voice, which is the source of much admiration, was never heard to better advantage. It apparently made little difference to Mr. Rouse whether the songs were German lieder, French classics, Old Irish or of the more modern school, he was perfectly at ease with all, and his exceptional powers as an interpreter gained the required effects to make each offering a real gem. His first group was made up with "Wohin," Schubert; "Widmung,"

EARL VICTOR PRAHL

Franz; "Zwei braune Augen," and "Mit einer Wasserlilie," both by Grieg. His second appearance brought forth "Bon jour Suzon," Delibes; "La Bonne Chanson," Hahn; "Si mes vers avaient des ailes," Hahn, and "Chant Venetien," Bemberg. The group with which Mr. Rouse closed the program included "Bank o' Daises" and "Irish Love Song," which were delightful old Irish melodies. "Aedh Laments the Loss of Love," "The Moods" and "The Poet Pleads with His Friend" were three songs from the mind and pen of Helen Louise Birch, and "In Haven" by Elgar, drew forth such an amount of applause from the audience that the baritone was compelled to add an encore.

Mr. Prahl easily shared honors with Mr. Rouse throughout the evening by his excellent solo offerings and accompaniments. His playing is that of a thorough student along all musical lines. His numbers made a very choice list, including "Plaisirs d'amour," Martin, which opened the program. A group composed of a "Scotch Dance," Beethoven-Busoni; "Intermezzo," Brahms, and the "Waltz" in E minor, Chopin. His last group was made up with a "Nocturne," Grieg; "Gavotte," Sapellnikoff; "Habanera," Chabrier, and "Novelette," MacDowell. To these was added a charming encore. It would be hard indeed to choose any one of Mr. Prahl's offerings as being better than any other. Each was played in a most clean-cut and very finished style technically and the tone which responds to his touch is of the most smooth and even quality imaginable. He well deserves the place which is fast becoming his, of being one of our most brilliant and satisfactory pianists. The recital was a genuine achievement for these two artists and for those present it was one of the musical treats of the season. H. M. B.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

The chorus choir of the Cuyler Avenue M. E. Church will give their monthly musical service this Sunday evening, January 31, at 7:30 p. m. This service will enlist, besides the soloists of the choir, the services of two of the best artists in the city of Chicago and promises to be the best program which has yet been given this season. The choir, under the direction of Mr. H. H. Williams, has almost doubled in size since September, and has given some very fine musical evenings, and we are sure a rare treat is in store for us this Sunday evening.

The choir soloists are Mrs. George Hart-rick, soprano; Miss Hazel Dustin, soprano;

EDITH ADELAIDE KIEN

Miss Edith Kien, well known to many Chicagoans, is touring very successfully with the Gretchen Cox Concert Company. She will return to Chicago in the spring.

KATHRYN HILLEBRAND GIVES SONG RECITAL

Miss Kathryn Hillebrand, coloratura soprano, gave a song recital in the Auditorium Recital Hall Wednesday evening, January 20. Mr. Arthur Fram, accompanist; Bianca von Weber Finney, violinist, and Richard Schroeter, flutist, assisted.

Miss Hillebrand has a coloratura voice of good quality and excellent range over which she has splendid control. The opening group of songs comprised Purcell's "Nymphs and Shepherds," "The Lass with a Delicate Air," Arne, and Bishop's "Love Has Eyes." Although a trifle nervous in the first number, Miss Hillebrand gave splendid readings of the Arne and Bishop numbers.

The German group gave ample proof of much study, for they were given with a fine regard, both tonally and interpretatively. "Horch! Horch! die Lerch," Schubert, was especially well liked. "Across the Hills," Rummell, was the occasion of much applause, and Schneider's "April Rain" was given in a manner that was very captivating. Miss Hillebrand made much of Dvorak's "Song My Mother Taught Me," the "Waltz Song" from "Romeo and Juliette" was the closing number of the fine list of songs, and Miss Hillebrand gave it in a manner that merits much praise. She was compelled to add several songs to her programmed numbers, that were heard with much pleasure. This review would not be complete without a word of commendation for the accompanist, Mr. Fram. His playing was musicianly and sympathetic, adding much to the pleasure and success of the evening. H. W. P.

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Edith Quayle Wise, contralto; Miss Marie Edwards, organist; E. B. Elmore, baritone; H. H. Williams, tenor and choir-master, assisted by Mrs. Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano; Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist; Joseph Marshall, basso cantante.

The program is as follows:

Organ prelude, Grand Chorus in D	Guilmant
Miss Edwards
Anthem, No Shadows Yonder (from Holy City)	Gaul
Chorus Choir
Trio, I Waited for the Lord (from Hymn of Praise)	Mendelssohn
Mrs. Hartwick, Miss Dustin, Mrs. Wise
Solo, A New Heaven and a New Earth (from Holy City)	Gaul
Mr. Marshall
Anthem, Lo It Is I	Faure-Shelley
Chorus Choir
Organ Offertory
Even Song	Johnston
Grand Offertoire	Batiste
Remarks by the pastor, Rev. Claude S. Moore.
Duet, Hark, Hark, My Soul	Nevin
Mrs. Sherman and Mr. Marshall
Violin, Adagio, from Violin Concerto	Bruch
Miss Woodworth
Male Chorus, When the Mists Have Rolled Away	Edwards
Anthem, "Great and Glorious Is His Name (from Twelfth Mass)"	Mozart
Chorus Choir
Postlude, Festival March in D	Smart

THE GILBERT AND SULLIVAN OPERA COMPANY

This company was seen on Wednesday night of the last week in their performance of "Trial by Jury" and "The Sorcerer" and was found to be inadequate in the most essential items.

"Trial by Jury" in its text is the sauciest piece of diction imaginable—it is full to repletion of fun and fancy, pun, quip, repartee and simile, and is altogether delightful when spoken and sung as it should be.

With the exception of De Wolf Hopper not a single person on the stage spoke the lines so that they could be heard in the balcony, where this writer had his place, and as for the singing—the less said about it the better.

De Wolf Hopper is no longer funny, he can enunciate text and he displays a certain amount of authority in stage action, which is totally lacking in most others of the company, but he never could sing well and now even his acting has grown coarse and foggy.

Every one of the principals sang off key persistently and the orchestra was also wholly inadequate, though one must concede that the stage setting was good and that the chorus could at least group themselves effectively, even if, for the most part, they could not sing.

"The Sorcerer" as played by this company was deadly dull. The setting of the first act was very pretty, and when the chorus came trooping on, richly dressed and very alert in manner, hope was born that this opera would prove more worth while than the "Trial."

This hope, however, was dashed as soon as the principals began their work, for, without exception, in no Auditorium performance has this writer ever heard so much off key singing, and the matter of enunciation of text was, as in the other opera, so bad as to preclude anyone knowing anything whatever of what was supposed to be going on.

This writer attended the performance because it happens that he had never heard "The Sorcerer," and he really wished to study its possibilities. He left before the close of the first act. C. E. W.

KATHARINE D'ORSAY

Miss Katharine D'Orsay, soprano, sang the following songs recently at the musicale given by the Count of Honor Lodge: "The Star," Rogers; "Morning," Speaks; "Just a-Wearyin' for You," Bond, and Cadman's "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water." Miss D'Orsay lived among the Ojibway Indians on the White Earth reservation for nearly a year and the knowledge gained has made her interpretations of the Indian melodies especially interesting and original.

CARLILE TUCKER IN RECITAL

On Sunday, January 31, at 3:30, Mr. Carlile Tucker will give a song recital at the Blackstone Theater, assisted by Mr. Gilbert Shorter.

This concert will be one of the most important musical events of the season in Chicago.

Mandy—Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Mandy will present their pupils in a violin and piano program at their home studio, 627 Lyman avenue, Oak Park, on next Sunday afternoon, at 2:30.

MELBA MAE FRENCH

MELBA MAE FRENCH GIVES A MUSICALE

Miss Melba Mae French opened her home studio at 5632 Wayne avenue to her friends on last Sunday evening and offered them a program of splendid value.

Miss French is a girl of many talents, among the most prominent of which are the fact that she plays the violin admirably and sings in a way to prove that should she so decide to do she may become an artist of renown.

Her voice is a dramatic soprano in effect, though it is distinctly lyric also, and she has attained great control over her resources and sings in a way to prove that her method is a fine one and that back of it is an abiding intelligence.

Her first group proved to be a most cheerful one for a cold winter night, including as it did "The Blackbird," by Scott; "An Open Secret," by Woodman, and "Down in the Forest," by Ronald.

These cheerful nature songs were given with infectious lightness and gaiety, and the tonal quality employed was refined and charming.

"Rose Dreamed She Was a Lily," by Mary Helen Brown, and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," by Quilter, were used as encores and continued the mood and the bucolic charm of the grouped numbers.

Later Miss French sang "For You," "Love's Rhapsody" and "June," by Herbert

Butler, who accompanied the songs most gratefully. Mr. Butler is Miss French's violin teacher of long standing.

The Butler songs are so good as to raise the wonder that they have not long since been published, for, despite the fact that they have been sung in public many times, they are still in manuscript. "For You" is the best of the three, and is very good indeed, though the "Rhapsody" is also an intense song and "June" is a number permitting much grace and some bravura moments—each of which items was very well taken care of by Miss French.

Other encores were demanded, and altogether the audience was distinctly enthusiastic over Miss French's good vocalism and the splendid interpretative values with which each of her numbers was invested.

As a violinist, she is not less remarkable, and the results of many years of practice are admirably shown in the clarity, brilliance and delicacy of her work.

A Volpe "Mazurka," "Liebeslied" (Kreisler), "Canzonetta" (Friml), and a little-played "Berceuse" of Townsend served to display much technical proficiency and a wide range of interpretative thought. The Friml number was possibly the most attractive of all, though the "Mazurka" showed genuine technical equipment and the "Berceuse" carried a very lovely legato line.

Mrs. French, an excellent pianist, furnished thoroughly sympathetic accompaniments for all the numbers, excepting those played by Mr. Butler. C. E. W.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Oratorio
Concert
Opera
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. | 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 | Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 888

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and
Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
Violinist Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel
3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
5607 South Boulevard Austin-Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM GIVES DELIGHTFUL RECITAL BEFORE TUESDAY ART AND TRAVEL CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon, January 19, at the Hotel Sherman, following a sumptuous luncheon the Tuesday Art and Travel Club, which was out in great numbers and fashionable attire, was given a rare musical treat through the singing of a short but excellent program by Miss Edna Dunham, soprano, of New York, with Marie Pierik at the piano.

EDNA DUNHAM

Miss Dunham is gifted with a charming personality and her abilities as a singer can hardly be surpassed. Her voice is of beautiful richness throughout its well developed wide range, and her powers of interpretation are equaled only by few.

The program opened with the "Prelude" from Ronald's "Cycle of Life," a "Slumber Song" by Gretchaninow, and "Song of Joy," Woodman, which were rare gems through the delightful presentations accorded them by Miss Dunham. A group of German lieder contained "Blich, O lieb," Liszt; "Es blinkt der Thau," Rubinstein, and "Herbst," Haile, which were sung in fine style and aided in raising the admiration for this singer to still greater heights.

"Sunset," Russell, and "Love is Meant to Make Us Glad," German, which closed the program, were two especially delightful numbers of the afternoon, and Miss Dunham, who had already added encores to the program list, was compelled to respond with two extra songs at the close before the very enthusiastic audience would cease its applause. There can be no question but that the soprano won a host of everlasting admirers upon this occasion, and her all round commendable singing merits many appearances in the leading musical functions of the country. H. M. B.

THE O'DONNELLOGS OF TRAVEL

On January 31 the subject at the Fine Arts Theater will be "Corsica and Napoleon."

Hugh O'Donnell says that with Josephine and Napoleon it was a case of love at first sight. At his first visit to Josephine he became bewitched and her life was ever afterwards woven with his. After some hesitation she accepted this devoted lover. His appointment to the command of the army of Italy hastened his wooing, for he did not wish to set out without being first married. And the ceremony took place a week after his appointment. She was older than he. The official record shows one year was added to his age and six subtracted from hers. A simple wedding without attendance, a honeymoon of two days, and he took his seat in the carriage which was to take him to the coast. That was before the day of railroads. It was a love match directly in contrast to the union of Napoleon and Louise, who married twice after the downfall of Napoleon. She heartlessly neglected her son, the Seion of the man of destiny, who was subjected to the insults of the Austrina prime minister, the duke of Metternick, in charge of his education. The boy was told nothing of his father excepting the most slanderous and only the writings of Napoleon's enemies were permitted to be read by the child. He finally died of a broken heart before he was twenty-one years of age, ten years after the death of his exiled father, the modern Mars. The boy was the duke of Reichstadt. Louise last married the Count Neipperg.

THIRD PRESBYTERIAN

The program for Sunday, February 7, at 4 p. m., under auspices of the West Side Sunday Night Club, direction of Allen W. Bogen, with Mrs. Marie Sidenius Zendt, as soloist, reads as follows:

Sonata in D flat.....Rheinberger
Maestoso lento—Allegro agitato
Pastorale
Introduction and Fugue
"Largo" from New World Symphony.....Dvorak
Aria—Hear Ye, Israel (Elijah).....Mendelssohn
Mrs. Zendt
Barcarolle (Fourth Concerto).....Bennett-Stegall
Allegretto, B minor.....Guilmant
Dead March in Saul.....Handel
"Of the Robin and the Master".....A. Walter Kramer
Mrs. Zendt
Introduction, Theme, and Variations.....Hesse
Canzona.....Wheeldon
Finale, from Symphony No. 1.....Vierne

Ray—Miss Ruth Ray gave a program before the West End Mothers' Council Wednesday, January 20, at the home of Mrs. J. Mueller, 317 S. Cuyler avenue, Oak Park.

Chas. E. WEEKS Basso
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

The Artist and His Art

By KATHARINE S. BROWN

VII.—STAGE TECHNIC: "ADDRESS"

Truth is within ourselves. It takes no vice
From outward things, whate'er you may believe.
There is an inmost center in us all,
Where truth abides in fulness; and to know
Rather consists in opening out a way
Whence the imprisoned splendor may escape
Than in effecting entry for a light
Supposed to be without. —Browning.

Truth in art becomes the artist's only in the ratio that he expresses it. He only holds it in trust, to be passed on and given to another—the public, the audience! Therefore, however much and however well he himself may feel and understand his subject, he is only more certainly the victim of sorrows if he is not equally able to express this feeling and understanding—"he is only half himself. The other half is his expression." Therefore, the public artist's immediate and ever-present problem is "in opening out a way whence the imprisoned splendor may escape." At the point where the expression of his art fails to parallel in excellence his art itself, the significance of his work fails of impression.

No class of public artists has so sure and positive an instinct for audiences as actors. In the degree in which it appears in actors it is the theatric instinct, and finds its own field in the theater and in a kind of work which involves the triangular rather than the straight line of approach to an audience. The actor produces his effect upon the audience by means of the obvious effect upon a fellow player, who becomes in such case the neutral instrument. The direct line of work finds the platform—in public-speaking, in that noble art, oratory, and in all musical arts outside of opera. Of these, singing offers the simplest problem, so far as artist and audience are concerned, for the reason that it is almost impossible for the singer to regard his neutral instrument, the vocal organ, as the place where the ultimate effect is produced, while it is not incredible that a pianist or other instrumentalist should sometimes make the mistake of regarding his neutral instrument in that light. However, the audience is invariably the ultimate instrument, and invariably, therefore, the place where all effect is produced.

Much has been worthily brought forward of late concerning American art for Americans. This cannot be too often brought to our consideration. If, however, there is a difference in value favoring the foreign artists above the American, it is in the matter of their cultivated ability to deal with audiences rather than in any excellence pertaining to their art. It is in the matter of charm and not in the matter of gifts or proficiency. This is not equally true of all European nations, of course, but in those peoples in whom distinctive charm of manner is innate that quality is naturally carried into many avenues. Its value is intuitively recognized for the arts, and so, in three certain countries of Europe at least, is the element of charm and address taken into account for exactly what it is. Its necessity for the best results in dealing with audiences is conceded and therefore the ultimate audience is taken into consideration consciously and continuously in all stages of the artist's schooling, beginning at the most primary. The art and science of dealing with audiences is so instilled into the artist-workman that it is as natural and complete an artistry by the time he is ready to use it as is his art subject. In those other peoples, who are as lacking in elegance of personal address as are Americans, elegance of address in the arts is equally lacking.

Now it has been asserted at various times that the average American lacks charm. Grant him initiative, originality, adaptability, courage, anything and everything else, but still he lacks charm! He has a fine mind, working all the time! He is excessively and untiringly alert. His ability is unique, his energy unflagging, his endurance amazing. He can think quicker and farther than most, even if he doesn't think deeply. But he has much more talent than tact, and that is why other nations have more diplomats than we and we have more politicians than all the rest of the world put together. The average American is confident of his ability to deal with any situation by sheer force or by virtue of his resourcefulness in conformity with the situation or in spite of it. Even our men of

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News.

affairs are of nearer kin to boss politics than to diplomacy.

This American attitude naturally expresses itself in all walks of life. Our much vaunted "freedom" is rather a free-and-easiness that divests us of charm at the outset. If there is charm, it lies safely concealed. We do not look upon charm as an asset, but as a sort of liability, a "give-away"—a kind of confession that we need help—that we have lost our grip on things. The "address" of the average American is more properly "attack." It lacks manner and charm, though it may be frequently overburdened with convention and ceremony. This average American quality or minus carries over into American art just as all the splendid American qualities do. The average American public artist comes to the audience with little tact but much talent, without diplomacy but with resourceful politics, not infrequently of the "boss" variety. He proclaims the self-sufficiency of all his fine and entirely admirable qualities of person and attainments as all anyone could wish; and they may be—of themselves! The entire attitude defies the world to produce better if it can. As one American poet wrote of another: "As near as I can make it out, the argument seems to be that . . . because the Mississippi is long, therefore every American is God."

Granting that our artists and our art as such are of unimpeachable standard, we are, nevertheless, forced to allow that the very quality of charm of address which comes to us at times from foreign shores is the compelling quality which gains certain artists admittance. Without it the quality of art would be recognized at once as mediocre. Many times the product is far below the average "made in America" artist, but the ability of the foreign artist, in certain cases, to use with telling and sure effect every atom of ability that he has will frequently win over the thorough workman who is baffled by an audience and whose efforts to deal with it are obviously effort, and experimental. Such obvious effort pales the most brilliant workmanship and dims its beauty. It betrays the secret difficulty at once—the artist has been too self-centered to take into account the best interests of his audience. And his selfishness hits back full in his own face. He has relied upon the necessity of the moment to bring about ingenuity in dealing with the case. His interest has been focused to himself and his work. It has fallen short of the fundamental law of "breeding" in all social relationships—sincere regard for the interests of others, their needs, their rights, and not one's own. Until the artist learns the foundational truth that his art is no more his nor for himself than it is theirs and for them, we shall have to cry, with our own Ralph Waldo Emerson:

What boots it thy virtue,
What profit thy parts,
While one thing thou lackest,
The art of all arts.

The only credential,
Passport to success
Opens castle or parlor,
Address man! address!

A. "COLORATURA BASSO"

The Mozart Club of Pittsburgh opened its season with Haydn's "The Seasons." Among the soloists was Albert Borroff, the American Basso Cantante. Although the newspaper reports of the work of both chorus and soloists were exacting in their criticism, all agreed that Mr. Borroff made a conspicuous success. "J. N.," in the Pittsburgh Dispatch, was observing, and with good judgment named the quality that has given to Mr. Borroff his eminent position in the world of music. The critic pronounced Mr. Borroff the star among the soloists, saying "he sang his difficult arias with fluency. Haydn gave the bass regular coloratura music to execute in this score, and it is not every singer who can meet the demand thus made upon him."

And the Chicago Tribune said of Mr. Borroff's singing in the "Messiah": "Vocally his most remarkable achievement was 'Why do the Nations,' which was taken at dizzy speed and the ornamentation dashed off in a fashion that was fairly Tetrizzini like."

MACBURNIE SERIES OF SONG RECITALS HAMILTON PARK FIELD HOUSE

Program No. 9 will be given on Monday evening, February 1, by Alma Leslie, soprano, and John Doane, accompanist:

Se tu m'ami.....	Pergolesi
Care Selve	Handel
Chi vuol la Zingarella.....	Paisiello
Lilacs	Rachmaninoff
At the Ball.....	Tschaikowsky
The Nereid	Glazunoff
Oh Come to Me.....	Balakirew
Aria de Lia—"L'Enfant Prodigue".....	Debussy
Music, When Soft Voices Die.....	Deis
Cuckoo Song	Quilter
Remembrance	MacFarlane
The Time of May.....	Salter

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

THUEL BURNHAM, SOLOIST OF RUBINSTEIN CLUB CONCERT

The Rubinsteiners may feel themselves happy and honored in the recollection of the lustre and glory Thuel Burnham conferred upon the program of their concert on January 16, held in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Mr. Burnham's all-around virtuosity must have indeed proved a surprise to the members of the Rubinstein Club. For Thuel Burnham is the Pianist with a Punch—not the Poet of the Gloaming. He is the artist who makes people sit up, take notice and think—also, and this is comprised in the thinking process—make comparisons.

If you were to suggest to Burnham the sub-title of, let us say, Poet of the Piano, it is dollars to doughnuts that he would point the finger of scorn and disgust at you and laugh you out of countenance.

If Burnham is a Poet of the Piano, it is the poet with unmistakable red blood in his veins; whose poetry is built upon the solid foundation of a secure technic.

In a sense all great artists are poets. Michel Angelo and Rodin and Rembrandt will be remembered when Fortuny and Meissonier are in the discard; and yet we know that Rodin is as capable of modeling a figure as he is of creating a monument to Life and Death.

And when Burnham plays the Third Nocturne of Liszt you know his exquisite delicacy of sentiment and touch is as much a matter of superb technic cum intelligence as is his magnificent exposition of the vari-voiced Schubert-Liszt "Erl-King," his Cheval de Bataille.

Well, the Rubinsteiners had food for thought on January 16, and here is a restatement of the supplied pabulum:

Impromptu	F. Schubert
Erl-King	Schubert-Liszt
From an Indian Lodge, ...	MacDowell
Improvisation, ...
Shadow Dance, ...
Polonaise

Quite a little bunch of difficulties, but Burnham touched them off with all the essentials requisite to their appropriate celebration; left his audience hypnotized, almost paralyzed, by this wonder-working apparition, and rushed out of New York by the first train he could catch, to fill probably more engagements than have fallen to the lot of any one male pianist now doing stunts on the waiting-list in little old Gotham.

Albert Spalding in Two Recitals

Albert Spalding, America's own son, and a violinist of whom she may justly feel proud, is gathering laurels on this American tour, and letting us all perceive how steadily and finely he grows in his art.

His two concerts in Aeolian Hall, one on the afternoon of January 14, the other on the afternoon of January 23, were well attended, and the young artist was warmly applauded.

At the first concert Spalding gave a ravishing performance of the unaccompanied Bach opus, the suite in E major. It is worth while being a Bach interpreter. It is an art—an accomplishment—an insight given to very few among the instrumentalists or singers who attempt the task of interpretation. For you who would explain the great old composer must have a soul specially created for the task; Bach may be arithmetical or architectural—choose as you will. He is also subtly-intellectual, and he has the secret—none more so—of lifting the spirit upon its pinions—exhilarating as well as edifying. Spalding senses this, and his playing of Bach puts you in exact rapport with this exigent composer.

Three examples of pure euphony—examples of Schumann and Schubert, especially the latter's "Rondo Brilliant"—proved the artist a poet as well as a prophet of his instrument.

He eventuated these numbers glowingly, and—praise to the gods who often play tricks with stringed instruments and their players—without any deviations from the pitch.

The tricky moods and daintinesses of the

"Rondo" slid off the tip of his facile bow, and the sweetnesses—not cloying, but healthy—of the two sane German Romanticists lingered upon the palate in exquisite reminiscence.

In the last group of several composers Spalding had included two of his own compositions, a "Scherzo Giocoso," happy as the robin trilling in aether, and a "Berceuse," divinely sweet enough to soothe to slumber the last little Belgian cradled upon its mother's knees.

The program of the recital of January 22 opened with a Brahms' Sonata, played with a thousand tone-modifications; delicate and ingratiating in the first movement, and waxing to the exhilarating in the Vivace. Mr. Benoist, the assiduous pianist of the Spalding ensemble, supplied a most satisfying complement.

The Bach Andante and Allegro (played alone) was a choice example of Spalding's devotion to the great German cantor's masterpieces, and in the Corelli Sonata in E the artist's technical equipment evidenced itself admirably; going hand in hand with the force and fervor which are becoming so salient in his work.

His own "Concerto quasi Fantasia," in F minor, proves convincingly how thoroughly his imagination imbues his talent for self-expression in composition. It is an interesting opus and should be heard again.

Two Spanish dances by Sarasate and two character sketches by Cecil Burleigh concluded the concert proper, adding to the

HAUSER PIANIST
Management
HAENSEL & JONES
Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK
Has the honor to present
The Violinist
ANDRE BENOIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER
CONTRALTO
Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO
Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER AMERICAN TENOR
Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham PIANIST
Mgr. Harry Culbertson

impression one received of the versatility of the young maestro; his earnestness and delight in his work.

Miss Mylott with Isadora Duncan

That very versatile danseuse in her own incomparable metier, Miss Isadora Duncan, and her squadron of jeunes filles and jeunes fillettes, monopolized the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on the evening of January 19, and impressed a very large and important audience with a terpsichorean reading of certain Schubert compositions. Among these were the well-known "Ave Marie" and "Du bist die Ruh," sung by Miss Eva Mylott in her very best manner, notwithstanding a change of words and verses in both songs, and the necessity of singing them in higher keys. However, the handsome contralto acquitted herself more than acceptably and helped to round out an interesting performance.

Madame Narelle Sings

Mme. Marie Narelle gave the entire program on the afternoon of January 19 at a recital in Chickering Hall. Her program was beautifully diversified and contained two request numbers—Salter's "Cry of Rachel" and Santuzza's intensely dramatic aria in the first act of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana."

The singer brought her great gifts of temperament and sensuous vocal timber to the impressive development of both these arias, and she was richly and abundantly applauded for her efforts. There was a thrilling upper C in the second part of the aria.

There were groups of Irish and English songs—the latter group including Mrs. Heckscher's exquisite "Norse Maiden's Lament" and Phillips' difficult but delightful "Enchanted Forest." Among the numerous encores was Schumann's "Lehn deine Wang," sung beautifully in German.

Kreisler with the Philharmonic Orchestra

Thursday evening, January 21, saw Carnegie Hall packed to the doors; doubtless in consequence of the announcement that the war-veteran (I presume that's the term) of the Austrian army was fiddling with our noble Philharmonic on that date.

I don't know just what happened to Kreisler while he was serving under his emperor's Aegis; but something must have happened, for I am assured that he draws enormous audiences since his appearances (if that's the right word) with the battalions of Franz Josef; and that was the exception rather than the rule upon those previous occasions when I have been in his audiences.

Why people should manifest greater interest in his appearances today than yesterday is a mystery to me. He doesn't seem to play quite as well as he did formerly, and his talents never were of the first order. He slid off the key with surprising nonchalance the other evening, and never turned a hair at these frequent deviations. Perhaps there are compensations in a stiff knee, and perhaps the neurologists will discover in the near future that a stiff knee affects the tympanum of the ear. Let us hope so; for in that case Kreisler's wanderings from the pitch are made reasonable, as it were. He played the Beethoven Concerto and brought tears, not of joy, but of reminiscence to my eyes when I thought me of the superb rendition given it in this same hall, and with this same orchestra, by the only Carl Flesch a little more than a year ago.

And yet in the announcement the pressman of the Philharmonic assured us that Kreisler was the greatest of living violinists. I assure you his effect upon me was contrari-wise.

I for one was glad when the audience quieted down, and I managed to get pleasure—the simon-pure article, too—out of Beethoven's Symphony No. 5. Its joyousness gave a filip to the second part of the program quite absent from the first. It was more than well played.

The "Dedication of the House"—you must know, fair reader, that Kreisler honored an all-Beethoven program—opened the entertainment, much to its depreciation. I should have preferred the stirring "Coriolanus," even if this Roman "unworthy" was a soldier whose knees served him elastically and unremittingly, and in more battles than you can count on your fingers and thumbs. There are intensely dramatic moments in the "Coriolanus" overture, the most dramatic Beethoven ever conceived.

Well, let us hope that the soloist (next season) of an all-Beethoven Philharmonic concert will be none other than that Darling of the Soldiers and the Ruler of the Austrian Empire, Carl Flesch.

Two Announcements

Mrs. Gertrude F. Cowen, the clever and up-to-date impresario, informs me that Mme. Charles Cahier, contralto, is now under her management.

Announcement No. 2 reads as follows: Benefit concert for the Orphanage of the Sisters of St. Frances, Aeolian Hall, February 8, 1915. Soloists—Germaine Schnitzer, world-famous pianiste; Marie Narelle, Australian (Irish) soprano. I am informed that the chairman of the committee of this concert is Miss Mary Hoey, sister of the Hon. James J. Hoey, and that one of the finest Baldwin pianos in the country will grace the stage.

Julia Culp will appear in recital at Aeolian Hall, January 30.

George Hamlin, tenor, and Christine Miller, one of the most popular contraltos in America, will give a joint recital in Aeolian Hall on Tuesday afternoon, February 16.

After an absence of six years, Mark Hambourg, Russian pianist, will give a recital in Aeolian Hall Tuesday evening, February 2.

Mr. Gustav L. Becker has sent out cards for receptions for January 30 and February 5.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Following is some further comment on the work of Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano:

Mrs. Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, the artist in the Lyceum course who appeared Tuesday evening at the Coliseum, justifies the expectations of local music lovers and friends who gathered to hear her recital of song. The tonal beauty of her singing was evident in every number, and in the songs of a light vein her personality added its charm to the dainty bits of melody. The audience was a compliment to the Rockford singer in numbers and in the cordial reception given her at every appearance, as well as in the warmth of applause with which her numbers were received.

Every soloist that has appeared at the Coliseum experiences the handicap which is presented by the very vastness of the auditorium.

Of necessity a large part of the audience is seated at a distance remote from the singer, and to span the space and enter into cordial sympathy is a heroic task.

Mrs. Bollman ignored the disadvantage and sang with the same beauty of tone, the same rare quality in the upper register that characterizes her vocalism and which makes her songs a delight.

Her program opened with the exultant lines of Handel's "Come Ever Smiling Liberty," followed by the stately measure of "Caro Mio Ben" (1743-1798), Giordani, which was one of the most beautiful offerings of the evening. "Legacies," by Mildred Hill, was a number eminently adapted to Mrs. Bollman's voice, also the "Lullaby," Herman. This group closed with "Larkin," Heland, and was the signal for an insistent applause to which she responded with the dainty "Cuckoo Song."

A group of songs in English, and a group of children's songs which Mrs. Bollman interprets as but few singers are able to do were the signal for further encores. She brought the program to a close with three numbers of increasing brilliancy, "Rapture," Cowell; "The Dancing Girl," Huhn, and the "Grand Valse," Venezano, which was a brilliant climax and put the seal of artistry on the program.—Rockford Morning Star. (Advertisement.)

WHEATON, ILL.

The Orpheus Club of Wheaton College gave "Hear My Prayer" by Mendelssohn, Thursday, January 21, with Mrs. Mabel Corlew-Smith as soloist, Miss Nelle Bibbins, director, and Miss Marguerite Dresser, accompanist. Mrs. Smith also sang two groups of songs and delighted her audience with the clear beauty of tone as well as the sympathetic quality of her voice and her pleasing interpretation. Those who heard her are anxious to have her come again to Wheaton.

Lutton—Charles E. Lutton will be one of the soloists at a concert to be given by the Ladies' Fellowship Union of the Fellowship Congregational Church at the home of Mrs. Wm. Riker Burling, 6347 Drexel avenue, this (Friday) evening.

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Personal
Representative
ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER
LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SOPRANO SONG
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue RECITAL
PUPILS

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET
Composer Soprano
1510 E. 52nd St. Accompanist WILLIAM
Phone Midway 8868

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
SOPRANO ORATORIO
Plaza Hotel, Chicago RECITALS
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

People & Events

HAROLD HENRY WITH NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

From the Urbana Courier-Herald of January 20, we reproduce the following:

Prominent features of the evening concert were the "Jupiter" symphony of Mozart, which is perhaps as close an approach to the divine as mortal music is ever likely to be, and the masterly performance of the Liszt E flat concerto, by Harold Henry, the pianist of Chicago. Altho Mr. Henry's technical attainments are indeed considerable, they are allowed to serve him but as a means to an end—the authoritative interpretation of the selection chosen for performance. The playing of this young artist is marked by exceptional warmth and color, a nice attention to detail in phrasing and delicacy of dynamic shading. There was a good deal of brilliancy, too, in the bravura passages and in the quieter portions his tone took on a winning quality. He was recalled again and again but could not be prevailed upon to grant an encore.—(Advertisement.)

KENNETH M. BRADLEY TO LECTURE IN THE EAST.

Kenneth M. Bradley, president of the Bush Conservatory, continues to hold the attention of different parts of the United States. His eastern engagements are as follows:

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., January 25.
New York City, January 26.
Albany, N. Y., January 27.
Warren, Pa., January 30.
Youngstown, Ohio, February 2.
Marion, Ohio, February 4.

In Warren, Pa., Youngstown and Marion, Ohio, Mr. Bradley is to deliver two lectures in each city. Mr. Bradley was forced to refuse a number of other engagements owing to his limited time allotted to lecture work.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER—FORT WAYNE MORNING MUSICAL

Augusta Alberti has an evenly developed contralto voice of much power and of a resonant and smooth quality which she uses with dramatic skill. The "Cry of Rachel" Madame Alberti sang particularly well, and her impression on the audience was so positive for appreciation that she appeared again and sang "My Native Land."

A group of German songs at the close Madame Alberti sang with more freedom and sympathy than her first numbers. She makes an attractive stage presence and is free from mannerisms.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

Madame Alberti's first group of songs were heavy and dramatic to suit the quality of her rich contralto voice. Her lightest number, "Yesterday and Today," by Spross, and "His Lullaby," by Carrie Jacobs-Bond were pleasing, and "The Cry of Rachel" by Salter, which closed the first group was of tragic character, and Madame Alberti displayed the power and dramatic force in rendering it. Her second group consisted of heavy German numbers which were well liked.—Fort Wayne News.—(Advertisement.)

JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON

Jennie F. W. Johnson, the contralto, gave a recital on Tuesday evening, January 26, at Kirkland, Ill. At her Chicago recital, February 22, the Brahms songs she will sing are from his Magalene cycle and will be given in English. The Chicago composers represented are Felix Borowski, Alfred Oberndorfer, Arthur Dunham, a manuscript song of Grant-Schaefer, and a manuscript song by Adolf Weidig, this being dedicated to Miss Johnson.

PUPILS OF LIDA BROWNING WHITE

The following program was given by pupils of Lida Browning White, in Gary, Ind., on January 15, assisted by a violin pupil of Wade Eversol:

Tarantelle, Op. 85	Heller
Esther Anderson
Morning Birds	Seeboeck
Merrill Nusbaum
Child's French Song	Behr
In the Month of May	Behr
William Browning White
Fairy Zephyrs	Horner
Scherzo Valse	Marie Crosby
Cecelia Pihlgren
Danse des Sorcieres	Devaux
(Witch's Dance)
Hermine Aulschuler
Dnet, Waltz (from Faust)	Gounod
Alvena Hannig and Mrs. White
Gypsy Rondo	Haydn
Helen Haas
Chaconne	Durand
Virginia Chase
Vacation Rambles	Carl Moter
Tarentelle	Van Gaej
Margaret Hunter
Violin, Air Varié	Dancla
Virginia White
(Pupil of Mr. Wade Eversol)
Merry Hunting Party	Sartorio
Pomponette	Durand
Dorothy Mayne
The Waltzing Doll	Poldini
Mary Elizabeth White
A Reverie	Wettach
Enbalancelle	Dolmetsch
Alvena Hannig
On the Water	Bartlett
Valse Cromatique	Leschetizky
Esther Anderson
Vocal—
Snow Flakes	Henri Ruifrok
A June Morning	Willeby
The Roses Cup	Ward Stephens
Mrs. Ferguson
Rustle of Spring	Sinding
Military Polonaise in A	Chopin
Ruth Anderson
Butterfly	Lavallee
Troisieme Ballade	Chopin
Florence Anderson
Trio, Barcarolle	Offenbach
(Tales of Hoffman)
Ruth, Esther and Florence Anderson

Drake—Mr. Earl Drake has completed a new comic opera. Libretto by Henry G. Hodgkins of Chicago. The work is in two acts, and its title is "The Mite and the Mighty," or the "Queen and the King." It will be given by the chorus and orchestra of the Drake School of Music sometime in April.

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

ARVID SAMUELSON IN NEBRASKA CITY

On Tuesday, January 12, Arvid Samuelson, pianist, of Lincoln, Neb., gave a very successful recital which called forth most cision and touch which seemed to make every note stand alone. The skill with which the accompaniment was subordinated to the theme revealed true artistic facility. By request Mr. Samuelson played the "Concert Arabesque" of Strauss-Schulz-Evler, based on "The Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz. It was beautiful and was superbly done.—(Advertisement.)

ARVID SAMUELSON

WILFORD MUSIC STUDIOS

The following program will be given at the Wilford Music Studios in Maywood this (Friday) evening:

Trio, At the Children's Dance.....	Streibog
Gladys Huffman, Edward Beech, Philip Sommer
The Cuckoo.....	Richter
Martha Taylor
The Primrose.....	Read
Carlos Cramton
Violin, Faust.....	Gounod-Amprosto
Walter Peterson
Paul Peterson at the piano
Lily of the Valley.....	Sartori
Elza Luttringhaus
Good Humor.....	Baumfelder
Cornelia Hawthorne
Bagatelle.....	Wilson
Esther Gonder
Song, He Giveth His Beloved Sleep.....	Abt
Nira Gray
Village Dance.....	Spencer
Ida Bernstein
At Twilight.....	Lange
Sophia Jarmulsky
Maybells.....	Bohm
Marjorie Keiler
Violin, Marionette Valsette.....	Oehmler
Luella Staub
The Marquise Minuett.....	Lack
William Graksch
Tarantella.....	Dennee
Dorliska Cramton
Song, I'm a-Longin' fo' You.....	Hathaway
Nira Gray
Minuett.....	Seeböck
Toccatella.....	Dupont
Everest Johnson
Sonata Pathétique (Last Movement).....	Beethoven
Evelyn Williams

JOHN T. PRINCE AND PUPILS IN "SWEET LAVENDER"

On Tuesday evening, January 12, Mr. John T. Prince and his pupils presented Sir Arthur Pinero's three-act comedy, "Sweet Lavender," before a large and deeply interested audience at Lincoln. The cast follows:

Ruth Rolt.....	Vera Louise Douglas
Mr. Bulger.....	William Diercks
Dr. Delaney.....	Bernard J. Townsend
Clement Hale.....	Harold M. Wilkinson
Richard Phenyl.....	John T. Prince
Lavender Rolt.....	Fairy D. Thomas
Horace Bentley Bream.....	William D. Holmes
Mrs. Gilfillian.....	Marjorie Kimball
Minnie Gilfillian.....	Clara Lee Young
Mr. Maw.....	Charles S. Thompson
Geoffrey Wederburn.....	Carl Wilke

Commenting upon this event the Nebraska State Journal said in part:

This play first presented in London in 1887 and simultaneously (six months later) in New York and Boston has had a phenomenal world-wide existence. It has been played upwards of 10,000 times and is still as youthful as when first given. It is by no means an easy task for amateurs to present it acceptably. It has an effusive flavor due to its British origin, which requires delicate and sure acting to make it do for an American audience. Mr. Prince did a fine bit of character work as "Richard Phenyl." The students played with enthusiasm and good judgment. As usual they were helped along by the open admiration of a friendly house. The general effect was satisfactory, as there was little left to be desired in stage management.—(Advertisement.)

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, won a host of new admirers at a concert given at Sherman Park, January 20, where she sang so charmingly two groups of solos with encores insistently demanded, and most generously given.

THE APOLLO CLUB WILL GO TO CALIFORNIA

The Chicago Apollo Club will attend the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco and the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego in a body, leaving Chicago on next July 10, remaining sixteen days and giving concerts at Denver, Salt Lake City, San Diego and San Francisco.

Four special trains will be run and the complete schedule is as follows:

Leave Chicago, Saturday, July 10, 1:30 p. m.
Arrive Denver, Sunday, July 11, 2:00 p. m.
Concert, Auditorium, 8 p. m. Remain in Denver until 8:00 a. m. Monday morning.
Leave Denver Monday, July 12, 8:00 a. m. Day-light ride through Royal Gorge.
Arrive Salt Lake City Tuesday, July 13, 10:30 a. m. Concert, Mormon Tabernacle, 8:00 p. m. Remain in Salt Lake City until 12:00 night.
Leave Salt Lake City Tuesday, July 13, 12:00 night.
Arrive Ogden Wednesday, July 14, 1:10 a. m.
Leave Ogden Wednesday, July 14, 1:30 a. m.
Arrive San Francisco Thursday, July 15, 6:30 a. m.
Three concerts, Festival Hall, Exposition grounds. One concert, Auditorium, San Francisco. Remain in San Francisco (Inside Inn, Exposition grounds) July 15, 16, 17, 18.
Leave San Francisco Sunday, July 18, 12:00 night.
Arrive Los Angeles Monday, July 19, 2:00 p. m.
Two concerts, Auditorium. Remain in Los Angeles one and one-half days, New Hotel Roslyn.
Leave Los Angeles Tuesday, July 20, 12:00 night.
Arrive San Diego Wednesday, July 21, 6:30 a. m.
Concert, Exposition grounds. Remain in San Diego two days, Hotel U. S. Grant.
Leave San Diego Thursday, July 22, 12:00 night.
Arrive Los Angeles Friday, July 23, 5:00 a. m.
Leave Los Angeles Friday, July 23, 6:00 a. m.
Arrive Chicago Monday, July 26, 7:30 a. m.

SHAKESPEARE AT THE BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

W. R. MacDonald, manager at the Boston Opera House, has arranged with the Henry Jewett Players for a repertory of the Plays of Shakespeare which is announced for January 1-9, "As You Like It"; January 11-16, "Romeo and Juliet"; January 18-25, "The Merry Wives of Windsor"; January 25-30, "Julius Caesar."

The production of "Romeo and Juliet," Saturday night, January 16, was excellent. The special feature was the splendid diction of all the players.

The musical program was an added pleasure and appropriate to the play, being the "Romeo and Juliet" overture, Gounod; the selection, "Wizard of the Nile," Herbert; Intermezzo, "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; "Fantasia on Hungarian Airs," Lalo; and "Kamenoi Ostrov," Rubinstein.

The "Intermezzo" and "Kamenoi Ostrov" were played by organ and orchestra. Samuel Manus was the director.

Civic Music—The Civic Music Association announced two concerts for Sunday afternoon, January 24, at 3:30 p. m. The opening concert of a series of four to be given at Eckhart Park, Chicago avenue and Noble streets, was given by Agnes Nering, soprano; Priscilla Carver, pianist, and Magdalen Massmann, accompanist. At Palmer Park, 111th street and South Park avenue, the Rubinstein Trio, Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist; Louise Smith, cellist, and Mildred M. Henderson, pianist, gave the program.

Benedict—Ethel Geistweil Benedict, the dramatic soprano, will be the special soloist for the Englewood Sunday Evening Club, January 31.

enthusiastic applause and comment. The program presented was as follows:

Carnaval mignon, Op. 68
Prelude
Serenade d'Arlequin
Tristesse de Colombine
Polichinelle	Schutt
Pierrot reveur
Caprice Sganarelle
To a Water Lily.....	MacDowell
Air de Ballet.....	Frynsinger
Melancholy, Op. 65, No. 3.....	Grieg
Bauermarsch, Op. 54.....	Grieg
Rhapsody, C major.....	Dohnanyi
Papillons (Butterflies).....	Rosenthal
Concert Arabesque "On the Beautiful Blue Danube".....	Strauss-Schulz-Evler
(By Request)

The Nebraska City Daily News had the following in part to say relative to this noteworthy event:

The small audience which, unfortunately, usually attends a high grade musical event in Nebraska City was present at the High School Auditorium last night to hear the pianoforte recital by Mr. Arvid Samuelson. They were indeed well repaid for their presence and perhaps by their enthusiasm and appreciation compensated the artist and Mrs. Stanford, the promotor, somewhat for the lack of numbers. With so many studying music, with such a good music course in the schools, we wonder why so few attend these recitals which are given periodically, almost always to the loss of the person or persons who have the courage to promote them. Those who stray away miss so much which would enrich and beautify their lives. We are reminded of Elbert Hubbard's saying: "If I had but a single loaf, I would sell half of it and buy white hyacinths to feed my soul." The man or woman to whom music like that last night does not bring return out of all proportion to the cost is poor indeed.

Mr. Samuelson is well known in Nebraska City, having played in recital here before. His program, while not long, offered a range of interpretative insight and technical skill, which no one but a first rate artist could even essay, much less accomplish. The wide variation of feeling exhibited included the beautiful little MacDowell meditation, "To a Water Lily," the exuberant, joyousness of the Frynsinger "Air de Ballet," the sustained power of the "Carnival Mignon" and the plaintive sweetness of the "Polichinelle" by Schutt against which, as a background, so to speak, was placed the moodiness of Grieg. All these numbers were played with a pre-

FLORENCE MACBETH AT THE BLACKSTONE MUSICALES

The last of the Blackstone musicales, given on Monday afternoon, was made notable through the appearance of Miss Florence Macbeth, who has become one of the greatest favorites possible in Chicago and who at this time delighted all her older friends and made scores of new ones.

Everybody expects, first of all, that Miss Macbeth in any concert will give a coloratura display and to satisfy this craving on the part of the public she sang at this time the "Shadow Song" from "Dinorah" and the "Staccato Polka" by Mulder—both famous coloratura pieces and both excellently suited to Miss Macbeth's voice.

Her trills are perfect, her staccati could not be more exact and clean and her top notes are always sweet and always well controlled no matter how high in the scale they may lie.

She received a well merited meed of approval for these numbers and again demonstrated her supremacy in this branch of vocal art.

But, at this time she also showed a newer phase of her art and one that is no whit less delightful, when she sang two Franz lieder and the "Frühlingslied" by Mendelssohn in the original texts and with a wealth of poetical feeling and a musical expressiveness beyond the possibility of the vast majority of singers.

Neither did the variety nor the excellence of her work stop there—for, in "Bid Me

Discourse," by Bishop, she proved that she has the sincerity and the style for this famous old song—one, by the way, that few present day sopranos can sing, and in "Star Trysts" (Marian Bauer) she gave a display of tenderness quite unexcelled. "Light, My Light" by Carpenter was given with breadth and full understanding of its introspective aspect, and in the encore to this group, "Youth Comes Laughing O'er the Meadows" (also by Miss Bauer), she was delightfully happy in style and finish.

Altogether the afternoon was a display of vocalism such as may seldom be heard and it showed also in a new and most attractive phase a singer who is now firmly established as one of the prime favorites of all Chicago.

The alternate artist was David Sapirstein, a pianist who labored under a good many difficulties, the chief one of which is that he is entirely of another class than Miss Macbeth, being, in comparison to her, a decided amateur.

His very best number was the "Blue Danube Waltzes" in the Schulz-Eyler paraphrase and in this he displayed some neat technic and deft coloring. He was, however, so immensely overshadowed by the recent performance of the same work by Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler that those who remembered her playing were glad when he had finished.

His Chopin playing was marked by eccentricities of rhythm wholly unwarranted and his "Spinning Song," by Mendelssohn, was devoid of rhythmic impulse though of delectable clarity.

In Brahms and Rachmaninoff he allowed himself some very abrupt accents and more muddy rhythms while in the forte passages he hammered his Steinway so unmercifully that it gave forth unwontedly distressing tones.

For final encore he played a "Danse Chinoise," by some ultra-modern whose name has escaped me at the moment, announcing first that it was played "for the first time in Chicago." One hearer, at least, hopes that this will be also the last time, for of all monstrous compositions heard recently this was by far the most hideous and the most absolutely without excuse for exploitation.

C. E. W.

GRANT KIMBELL

Grant Kimbell is one of Chicago's busiest singers these days, filling concert and oratorio engagements, besides singing in Temple Israel Friday nights and Saturday mornings and in the First Congregational Church of Oak Park on Sundays.

Mr. Kimbell also has a class of pupils Mondays and Thursdays in the Fine Arts Building, Room 730.

In November he appeared in three Sunday night opera-recital lectures, given in Fullerton Hall, under the direction of Miss Henriette Weber. The other singers were Lucille Stevenson, Louise Harrison Slade and Marion Green, and the operas were "Faust," "Der Kuhreigen" and "Madame Butterfly."

Mr. Kimbell was invariably a favorite with the Fullerton Hall audiences, which are composed of Chicago's most critical musicians. However, owing to his church position requiring his services on Sunday night, he is unable to appear at present in these opera-recital evenings.

A few of Mr. Kimbell's future engagements are:

January 29—"Hymn of Praise," Berwyn, Ill.
February 22—In solo quartet in "The Veil" with Chicago Apollo Club.
March 23—"Persian Garden," South Side Woman's Club.
April 27—"Messiah," Tiffin, Ohio.
April 28—Concert, Tiffin, Ohio.
May—"Swan & Skylark," Berwyn, Ill.
May—"Messiah," Angola, Ind.

A LETTER TO CHARLES E. LUTTON

Garrett Biblical Institute,
Evanston, Ill., January 23, 1915.

Dear Mr. Lutton:

I am sending this just to acknowledge with deep and sincere gratitude the pleasure I had in your concert last night. It was one of those occasions on which one gets a new relish for life through sheer delight in witnessing a thing worth doing done in noble fashion. You have a rare gift and I venture to offer you best wishes for a successful career in a vocation than which none can communicate more of the delight which ministers to strength and wholesome joy.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) CHARLES M. STUART.

Mr. Charles E. Lutton,
Steinway Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Pupils' Concert—Pupils of Mildred Millet and Leonore Wood gave a piano program at Wurlitzer Hall on last Friday evening, assisted by Dorothy Murdoek, soprano.

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS
530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Blvd.

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Elsie Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto—Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Hazel Huntley
Director—Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

If I Could Call the Years Back

Keys of F and D (50c)
Special Price, 25c

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Retrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH

Published by

THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

SCHNITZER

Management R. E. Johnston

Baldwin Piano Co.

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

FLORENCE MACBETH

Few indeed have been the singers who have stepped into front rank eminence so quickly and so securely as has been the case with Miss Florence Macbeth, the young American singer, whose lovely voice has brought her very great recognition both at home and in Europe.

So recent has been the story of her great successes abroad that recapitulation here is not necessary; sufficient to say that she is now under a long term contract with the Daniel Mayer Concert Direction in London and, but for the war, she would even now be fulfilling engagements of great prominence in various parts of Europe.

Her success last season as Prima Donna Coloratura with the Chicago Grand Opera Company was a sensational one and the fact of her availability for some guest appearances with the Century Company this year, both in New York and Chicago, was the occasion of very much better houses and greater enthusiasm on the "Macbeth nights" than at other times and in each role in which she appeared she scored enthusiastic success.

Miss Macbeth is fulfilling throughout the balance of this season many concert engagements under the direction of Mr. A. J. Bernhardt, formerly of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and her very great success in the Blackstone Musicales of last Monday is reviewed in the current issue of Music News.

Miss Macbeth has youth, charm of personality and splendid musicianship in addition to a voice of the most unusual compass and quality. Nothing in opera or concert is beyond her possibilities and her growth will be watched with keen pleasure and the very sure conviction that her career will be, throughout, at the same high standard maintained during its opening months.

C. E. W.

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

The fifth concert of the Chicago Woman's Musical Club will be given February 4 in the Francis I Room, Congress Hotel, by the following members: Miss Margaret Shirley, soprano; Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; Miss Carol Robinson, piano; Miss Mignonette Schruta, violin; Miss Edith Clyde, harp, assisted by Miss Olga Matuska, piano, and Dr. Frank J. Novak, 'cello.

The program follows:

Organ Fantasie and Fugue, G minor.....Bach-Liszt
Miss Carol Robinson
Och vien, non tardar (Le nozze di Figaro).....Mozart
Miss Margaret Shirley
Minnelied.....Brahms
Der Schmied.....Brahms
Sing to Me, Sing.....Homer
Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon
Harp—Miss Edith Clyde
Capriccio, B minor.....Brahms
Clair de Lune.....Debussy
Concert Etude, F sharp.....MacDowell
Miss Carol Robinson
Nymphs and Shepherds.....Purcell
Es muss ein Wunderbares sein.....Liszt
Der Lenz.....Hildach
Miss Margaret Shirley
Harp—Miss Edith Clyde
Dumky—Opus 9.....Dvorak
Miss Mignonette Schruta, violin; Miss Olga Matuska, piano; Dr. Frank J. Novak, 'cello

###

Lutton—Charles Edwin Lutton sang a group of songs at the Woodlawn Women's Club Tuesday evening, Mrs. Charles Henderson Miller, accompanying.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF OAK PARK

Music for Sunday, January 31, 1915:

MORNING

Organ Prelude—Ave Maria.....Shelley
Anthem—The Lord Is King.....Buck
Offertory Anthem—There Is a Land of Pure Delight.....Shilley

Sermon—

Response—The Golden Threshold.....Lohr
Organ Postlude—March in E Flat.....Faulkes

EVENING AT 7:45

Special Soloists—Oriental Male Quartet
E. O. Todd, tenor; W. R. Dickenson, tenor; J. K. Chapman, bass; W. A. Ward, bass
Organ Prelude—Concert Overture.....Faulkes

Double Quartet—Arise, Shine, for Thy Light Is Come.....Maker
Chorus—Jerusalem.....Gounod
Offertory Anthem—Sunset.....Van der Water
Oriental Quartet

Sermon—

Response—Double Quartet, In Heavenly Love Abiding.....Brown
Organ Postlude—The Heavens Are Telling (From the Creation).....Haydn

###

LEMUEL KILBY

Mr. Lemuel Kilby filled "Messiah" dates as follows: Indianapolis, December 6; Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Ia., December 15; Olivet College, Michigan, January 16, and Fargo, N. Dak., January 6.

Reports and letters from all speak very highly of his work.

"Fargo Forum" says:

Mr. Lemuel Kilby, baritone, sang his solos in a remarkably musical manner. Every technical difficulty was taken with great ease of execution, especially noticeable was his cleanly articulated work in the running scale passages. His voice is resonant and he has good judgment in using it.

The following is a quotation from personal letter to Mr. Kilby from the director of the People's Choral Society of Indianapolis:

I enjoyed your "Messiah" work very much indeed. You had your interpretation and technic in superb shape, and your singing gave great satisfaction not only to me but to many others. (Advertisement.)

###

EMMERAN STOEBER RECITAL

Ludwig Becker and Th. Otterstrom will assist Emmeran Stoeber, cellist, in the following program at the Fine Arts Theater on Wednesday evening, February 3, at 8:15:

Adagio and Allegro for Violoncello.....Boccherini
(From A Major Sonata)
Concerto for Violoncello.....Volkman
Sonata for Violoncello and Piano.....Th. Otterstrom
Allegro energico
Allegretto
Lento
Lugubre—Allegro con fuoco
(First Public Performance)
Trio Op. 50.....Tschaiakowsky
Moderato assai—Allegro giusto
Thema con variazioni
Finale

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

At the next regular concert of the Amateur Musical Club, to be held in Assembly Room, Fine Arts Building, on Monday afternoon, February 1, at 2:30 o'clock, a program of American compositions will be given.

Program arranged by Miss Pauline Rommeiss and Mrs. Bertha Darst Stewart; assisting artist, Mr. Rossetter Cole, reader, accompanist, Miss Eleanor Scheib.

Concerto in A Minor.....MacDowell
Andante Tranquillo, Presto
Morning Wind
Miss Marie Clement Moll; orchestral parts on second piano, Miss Olive Kriebs

Sundial Cycle.....Branscombe
Noon
In Arcady by Moonlight
Open Road

Miss Mary Ann Kaufman

By the Fireside.

Scherzando Fantastique.....Cecil Burleigh

Murmurings

Miss Minnie Cedargreen

Spirit Flower.....Campbell-Tipton

The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes.....J. A. Carpenter

A Birthday Song.....MacFayden

Mrs. Orpha Kendall Holzman

Hiawatha's Wooing (Longfellow) recitation with music.....Rossetter Cole

Mr. and Mrs. Cole

###

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

The following students gave an interesting program at the college last Friday evening: Mary Jones, Clarence Jensen, Marie Egan, Myrtle Reuschle, Rose Rubenstein, Amy Berkowitz, Pearl Wilcox, Helen Rusch, Ada Markson, Maude Johnson and Willard Groom. We were also delighted to have with us the well known baritone-composer, F. E. Hathaway, who favored us with a group of his songs.

The next recital will be given, instead of this Friday, on Tuesday evening, February 2. On Friday evening, February 5, a concert will be given by the college for the Warren Avenue Congregational Church, corner Warren and Albany avenues. The first half of the program will be given by the little folk and the last half by members of the faculty.

###

APOLLO CLUB SOLOIST

Mr. Warren Proctor, tenor, was chosen from Radanovits studio, as soloist with the Apollo Club. Mr. Radanovits has reason to be proud of the work of his pupils.

###

Congratulations—Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Craven are subjects for congratulation because of the arrival at their home on January 21 of an infant daughter, Miss NaDine Elizabeth.

William Wade Hinshaw

BARITONE

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue

PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

For Catalog Address

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO

Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON, FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano
Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET
LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT RECITAL
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319Edith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.DoellingPianist Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HARTPIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLouise LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITYW. Otto MiessnerSupervisor of Music
Milwaukee
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Bittman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
es. 867 Shepard AvDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City, IowaLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUEBULBUL W. Rhys-Herbert's Charming Operetta Performed in New York City for European War Sufferers

It is seldom that a serious-minded musician sets his expectation over-high when called upon to attend a performance of an operetta announced for a charitable purpose and most especially when given by amateurs.

The writer was of that frame of mind when laying down the price of admission to such a performance primarily in order to help along a good cause, then also in order to pass judgment on the work of a choir which enjoys an excellent reputation in New York, and last but not least to acquaint himself with the much advertised operetta "Bulbul."

There is probably no form of musical dramatic entertainment more popular in the United States than the so-called "operetta for amateurs." It should be remembered that any "operetta for amateurs" deserving the name can be musically just as good, just as entertaining and as attractive as is any other comic opera. And this applies to the text as well as to the music. As a matter of fact, the "operetta for amateurs" stands textually on a higher plane than the average comic opera text, which allows licenses and vulgarities barred in good amateur operettas. It stands to reason that certain dramatic and musical limitations have to be observed; otherwise a work of the kind could not be presented effectively by amateurs. And in the music of an amateur operetta the average vocal range and other practical considerations cannot be disregarded, a la Wagner or Richard Strauss. Neither can its text make dramatic claims that would tax a Sir Henry Irving or a Nazimova. But a really good amateur operetta, good musically and dramatically, has not only a definite art value, but an educational one as well.

To revert to the performance in question, the real reason for the presentation of the operetta was the observance of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Young Men's Association of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church. The entire receipts are to be devoted to the cause of the noble work of relieving the needy widows, orphans and non-belligerents who are suffering as the result of the European conflict.

The hall selected was the centrally located Palm Garden on East Fifty-eighth street; date, January 13; program time, 8:15 p. m.; actual starting time—in order to be real precise—9 o'clock.

The opening bars of the overture convinced all present that, for one, the orchestra was made up of bona fide musicians. The Young Men's Association of St. Peter's displayed sound judgment in engaging such competent men and also in their selecting Mr. Banford as the musical director. The work of the evening showed that Mr. Banford knew his tempi and his company and was by no means making his debut as a conductor. Once or twice in the course of the performance he was called upon to show considerable presence of mind, and he was "there with the goods." The choruses were all sung with a snap and vim. The solo parts were placed in good hands, as follows:

Tamit.....	Mr. William Rhodes Brandon
Bulbul.....	Miss Dorothy E. Bellmer
Caspian.....	Mr. E. Herman Ernst
Ida.....	Mrs. Daisy J. Tice
Lilla.....	Miss Fritz Hausermann
Alain.....	Mr. Alfred E. Harry
Dosay.....	Mr. Otto Kerkman
Justso.....	Mr. Walter A. Benkiser

Miss Bellmer (Bulbul), the prima donna, the possessor of a good, well-trained voice, sang her different solos with much taste. Mr. Ernst, as Caspian, made a very agreeable impression on the audience and at all rates surprised Princess Bulbul in the duet in the first act, "Love Is Such a Funny Thing." His work throughout was par excellence in every respect, and the audience demanded the number repeated several times.

Miss Fritz Hausermann, as Lilla, from all appearances, felt indisposed, as far as her vocal organs were concerned, which, however, did not tend to dampen her ardor otherwise. Her few solos were turned into musically accompanied recitations and were well received.

The entire chorus also deserved great praise for the willingness and attentiveness displayed in order to help make a success of the performance. Worthy of special mention was the singing by them of "Permit Us to Escort You," "A Soldier's Song" and "Croon Silver Moon," all of which were encored in no half-hearted manner.

The spacious hall was well filled. It seems a pity that only one performance of "Bulbul" was announced, considering most especially the time devoted to the preparation of the work. Costumes and stage settings were within keeping.

———

HENRIETTE WEBER'S ACTIVITIES

On February 2 Henriette Weber will deliver her lecture on "Modern Tendencies in Music" before the Tuesday Music Club of Omaha, Neb., using for illustrations piano pieces by Chopin, Liszt, Brahms, Debussy, Reger, Schonberg, Wolf-Ferrari and John Powell. The same program will be repeated in two Iowa towns on the two succeeding days.

February 5 Misses Weber and Larkin give some of their popular melodramas at the faculty recital of the Cosmopolitan School, and on February 8 programs in Davenport and Rock Island. And between these dates comes "The Juggler" at Fullerton Hall, on Sunday evening, February 7.

Misses Weber and Larkin recently gave their melodrama arrangement of "L'Amore dei tre Re" before the Woman's Club of Riverside, and they will give some short melodramas at Girton School, Winnetka, January 29.

———

Faulkner-Dietch—Worthe Faulkner, tenor, and Sidney Arno Dietch, accompanist, will make an extensive concert tour of the South, especially Florida, during the month of March.

JENNY DUFAU IN TEXAS

To Houstonian lovers of music of warmth and tone, of clarity of diction and of strength of volume, the concert of Mlle. Jenny Dufau, coloratura soprano, at the Municipal auditorium Sunday afternoon was an unusual treat. From her opening number, "Oh, Had I Jubal's Lyre," to the final gem of mellow beauty, "The Leaves and the Wind," Mlle. Dufau commanded the closest attention of the audience of 2,000 gathered in the auditorium.

In a way the program might have been called an international program, since Mlle. Dufau sang English, Irish, Scotch, French and German songs. To the people who had heard that the singer was born in one of the "lost provinces," Alsace, of French parentage, her enunciation of English words and the beauty of her expression of the words and feeling in "My Lady" was a revelation.

To single out one selection and say that was the best would be an injustice to the remainder of the program, since each number might have been termed "the best" by the lover of that particular style.

But doubtless "Wiegenlied" was as well received as any other selection and could be entered upon as a selection especially adapted to Mlle. Dufau's beauty of expression and warmth of tone. As the last note of "Wiegenlied" rose barely above a whisper and yet with the same distinctness of enunciation that the strongest notes of the remainder of the selection had, the audience sat for a minute in perfect quietness under the spell of dying music.

"Lilacs," as rendered by Mlle. Dufau, could deserve no better appellation than its own name, "Lilacs." The words, the music, both seemed to be bent upon giving the idea of the exquisite lavender flower, and the melting of the two into a perfect power of song by the singer attested to the degree of her art.

The ability of Mlle. Dufau as a coloratura soprano was particularly shown in her rendition of the Polonaise from "Mignon" and in "L'Oiseau Bleu."—Houston Daily Post, January 10.

Birmingham has had many excellent musical attractions this season—more than usual—but it can be said without exaggeration that the recital of Mlle. Jenny Dufau, coloratura soprano, at the Tutwiler yesterday afternoon, made the hit of the season.

Much was expected of this operatic celebrity, but she more than fulfilled all promises.

The fair young woman would have been exceptionally pleasing were her ability alone considered; but her personality was regularly captivating and greatly heightened the effect of her art.

Like most coloratura sopranos, Mlle. Dufau is at her best in miniatures—dainty little pieces such as made up Group No. 4 in her program. Any lover of music would have been well repaid if he or she had heard only "L'Oiseau Bleu" or "Les Filles de Cadix."

The aria from "Traviata" was sung in the operatic style and the entire program kept the audience keyed up to a rapturous pitch.

The artist was greeted with tumultuous applause and she graciously responded to several encores.

The recital was given under the auspices of Mrs. J. E. Frazier and Mrs. C. J. Sharp in the regular Sunday series. These ladies were heartily thanked after the performance, by many persons who had formed part of the audience, for having presented so delightful a singer as Mlle. Dufau.—The Age-Herald, Birmingham, Ala., January 17.—(Advertisement.)

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

Some recent comment:

A fine audience greeted Gustaf Holmquist, the Chicago baritone, at the concert given by him Thursday evening. Mr. Holmquist is possessed of a voice of exceptional beauty, its great power being tempered to a sympathetic quality that was displayed to great advantage in numerous delightful songs.

He has achieved marked success in oratorio as soloist, and last evening his singing of the "Rolling in Foaming Billows" from the "Creation," was the greatest treat of the occasion. It was interpreted with a sincere dignity, and the tone was of marvelous beauty, for notwithstanding the heavy timbre of his voice, and its breadth, he brings it into perfect control, doing the difficult baritone roles with ease.

Mr. Holmquist added a group of Swedish and English songs, which were thoroughly enjoyed.—Rockford Morning Star.

Little can be added to what has already been said of Mr. Holmquist, who has been heard in a number of enjoyable concerts previous to this. He displays a beautiful voice of uniform quality throughout, which is rarely discerned in baritone voices. In the delightful Haydn recitative and aria, "Rolling in Foaming Billows," from the "Creation," Mr. Holmquist sang with perfect control. A group of Swedish songs was most enthusiastically applauded.—Rockford Republic.

Mr. Holmquist's voice, a bass-baritone of exceptional musical quality, full of warmth and color, is under perfect control of the singer, and it was displayed to its best advantage in the program of last night.—The Rockford Register-Gazette. (Advertisement.)

LUCILLE STEVENSON

Some press comment on the work of Lucille Stevenson, soprano, reads as follows:

Lucille Stevenson, one of the most satisfactory exponents of oratorio now before the public, gave a truly beautiful and moving rendition of the soprano solos. Deep, reverent joy characterized her singing of the beloved aria, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." There is nothing sensational about Miss Stevenson's oratorio singing. It is true art, ample, adequate, satisfying. "Rejoice Greatly" was sung with faultless and brilliant vocalization.—Telegraph-Herald, December 29, 1914, Dubuque, Ia.

Miss Stevenson sang once more with the success and distinction that have made her popular with Winnipeg audiences. The beauty and purity of the upper part of her voice in particular were as appealing as ever, and her interpretation revealed a thorough appreciation of Handel's style. She has a command of the technical side of her art that calls forth great admiration; her tone production seems to be almost perfect. Her simplicity of manner and her sympathetic understanding added all that was necessary to make her singing entirely acceptable.—Manitoba Free Press, January 6, 1915.

Miss Stevenson's excellent soprano voice sounded even better than on the previous evening, and she aroused special interest by singing a number of very modern compositions. One of these, which she gave as an encore, was William Dichmont's "He's Such a Li'l Fellow." Mr. Richmond belongs to Winnipeg, and the favorable reception of the song by his fellow citizens was a genuine tribute to his ability, most of the audience not knowing at the time whose song they were applauding. Of course, much was due to the singer, who rendered the song with appropriate delicacy and tenderness. Bachelet's "Dearest Night" was one of her best offerings. It reveals plenty of individuality and is full of the kind of melody that especially suits her voice and style. Cyril Scott's "Lullaby" also has much merit, and the singer rendered it with very pleasing effect. For sheer delight "Dove Song," from Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro," surpassed the rest of her program. Miss Stevenson possesses to a very uncommon degree the ability to reveal the latent beauty of compositions for the voice.—Manitoba Free Press, January 7, 1915. (Advertisement.)

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL
TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL.

DR. J. E. BRINKMAN OF WATERLOO, IA. AND MISS CHRISTINE MILLER

WATERLOO, IOWA

The following article is reprinted from the Waterloo (Ia.) Evening Courier:

Culture, in the sense of an unnatural thing artificially acquired, is a travesty on education—a disgusting deceit which, after all, fails to deceive. But culture which means the development of personality, which adds fineness, intensity, toleration and democracy to the crude equipment of the undeveloped person, is a direct step toward divine perfection.

So diametrically is pseudo-culture opposed to the real thing that the first realization of the difference is more than likely to inspire bitter contempt. It is the kind which gruff men and small boys despise. And the gruff men and small boys are right. They are, in reality, proving their delicacy of taste when their senses are nauseated by the odor of sham.

Great people are always democratic. This is because they cannot become great without being genuine. And they cannot be genuine without being tolerant of the weaker and of those who have had inferior advantages. They love children and animals and nature and simplicity. They have the kind of culture which is the real thing.

All of which is a rather long and abstract introduction to the discussion of a local event. But I use it to enforce my point and my opinion that Waterloo has seen no more satisfying demonstration of the kind of culture I believe in than the program given here Wednesday evening by Christine Miller.

A song with the best voice and the best tone quality in the world can be a listless thing, a mere frame of words trimmed and clipped to fit a mere frame of notes. Or it can be an idealized reproduction of the most exquisite, the most powerful of human emotions. The former bores us in a minute. The latter fires and transports us.

A well done song, after all, is only a mood, strung to the music of the most sympathetic instrument of sound which we know anything of—the human voice. A smile, a turn of the head, a little gasp of delight prepares us for the abandonment which is to follow—a bird song, a child song, a love song, any song of happiness. An expression of haughtiness prepares us for the utterance of a Caesar or an Arab prince. Dignity attunes us to the majestic, and pensiveness to the dramatic.

It requires an artist, a personality, an actor, or actress, with the fundamental roots of high character, to lead us in these moods. Miss Miller did it and we liked it.

In her oratorio arias she subordinated her personality to the grandeur of her theme. We did not get acquainted with Christine Miller while she sang those four numbers. She was mostly a voice devoted to transmitting to our ears the divine conceptions of those immortal composers, Mendelssohn and Handel.

It was in the subsequent numbers that she introduced us to her personality and held us captives, whether we would or no, to the end. She led us through the whole gamut of emotions, the whole spectrum of moods, from the piccauniny song to the despair of "Separation," from the sportive love of "Ich Glaub, lieber Schatz" to the exquisite poetry of the same passion in the "Wind Song," from the spring lilt of "April-tide" to the anguish of the woman crying in the desert for the prophet whom she could not live without.

To live these parts and to carry a large audience of mixed tastes and sympathies through all these pictures of human emotions, these colors of mountain, sea, desert and peasant cottage, without scenery and without costume, requires more than a voice, more than a mere imitator. I contend that it requires a personality and a personality which loves the little human things of every day existence even as it thrills to the big and the dramatic.

We of Waterloo who pay for these entertainments also owe the artists and the managers a vote of thanks. For such presentations cannot be measured in dollars and cents. They are a gift out of life—life at its highest, most refined, most human.

We need more of this sort of thing. It makes us forget ourselves. It breaks the constantly forming crust of provincialism and makes us again citizens of the world. It revitalizes our sympathy for the weak and the humble.

The way to die young, the way to cease living before we cease breathing, is to confine our interests, to narrow the scope of our mental and emotional activities. Our tendency in Waterloo is to concentrate on business.

There is a way to avoid this early death, this congealment of our broader humanity. That is to take advantage of such truly cultural opportunities as Waterloo affords. The person and the art of which I have been writing is one example of some rare avenues which connect us with the highest and best in the world.

Goodson—Katherine Goodson will be the soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra (85 musicians) Emil Oberhoffer, conductor, at its concert Sunday afternoon, February 28, at Orchestra Hall, under the management of Carl D. Kinsey.

JENNY DUFAU

Following is some comment on the very successful Nashville appearance of Jenny Dufau:

Mlle. Jenny Dufau, prima donna coloratura soprano of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, appeared last night before a highly appreciative audience in the auditorium of Ward-Belmont. From the echoes that had reached Nashville of the success which had come to Mlle. Dufau, anticipation had run high, but however high it was they found its fulfillment in this artist, who entirely captivated her audience. Hers is the personality that makes her success. She is of a verity a gracious musician who pleases her audience with whatever she sings, as her applause and encores eloquently testified.

Mlle. Dufau's program was one of great diversity, making large demands of technic and musicianship. Possibly the number which best showed the timbre of her voice was that lyrical aria from Verdi's "La Traviata," "Ah Fors e Lui." This selection gave fine opportunity for the display of ornamentation of her voice, and the rich purity of her tones. She sang with a rippling flexibility and tunefulness that marks her for the artist of merit and attainment.

The program consisted of a group of the earlier composers, such as Handel, Monro and Bach, with songs from the German, French, Italian and English composers. The Schubert group is especially deserving of mention. This great master of song found in Mlle. Dufau an artist capable of giving the highest and truest meaning to his tuneful music. Tender and melodious flowed this exquisite music, losing nothing of its composer's meaning, but instead gaining new security by this artist's sympathetic interpretation. Not only had this young singer an exceptionally beautiful organ, but she had also unusually thorough and complete technic, which makes of her an artist that wins at once her audience.

WARRNER PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

In her accompanist, Mr. Charles Lurvey, Miss Dufau had a most sympathetic and industrious pianist, whose skill made for the complete beauty of this program.

In this, the sixth number of the artist course of Ward-Belmont, Mr. Charles C. Washburn has certainly earned the gratitude of the music folk of this city. Having the choice of the best, he, with unerring skill and with the knowledge of the true musician, chose the very best. The wisdom of his choice was evinced last evening by the repeated encores of a most enthusiastic audience.—Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean, January 20, 1915.

The appearance of Mlle. Jenny Dufau, coloratura soprano and former member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, at Ward-Belmont College Tuesday night in a recital, takes first rank in the list of the notable musical events that have been given at the school this season. Mlle. Dufau more than fulfilled all that had been heralded of her as a singer, and she was accorded an ovation after the singing of several numbers. Especially did she win a storm of applause following her rendition of the exquisite aria from "La Traviata," "Ah For e Lui." This she sang superbly, but few of her numbers affording a superior vehicle for the portrayal of her coloratura work.

Mlle. Dufau gave a program of marked diversity, many difficult selections that made large demands on her voice being rendered in a way that stamped her as the true and finished artist. She possesses a voice capable of wide range, and its volume and richness provoked many admiring expressions from those fortunate enough to hear her. She has also the temperament necessary for the pleasing interpretation of her selections. The flexibility and purity of her tones were pronounced throughout the entire program.—Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, January 2, 1915. (Advertisement.)

Fullerton Hall—"Martha" is the subject at Fullerton Hall next Sunday evening, the soloists to be Lucille Stevenson, Louise Harrison Slade, George Sheffield and Marion Green.

FLORIAN VARKONY

Some foreign press comments on the work of Florian Varkony, who has lately taken up his residence in Chicago:

Speaking of how Herr Varkony carried the role of 'Mephisto' in 'Faust,' the 'Pester Lloyd' said: 'Herr Varkony, both in his singing and acting, has wonderfully interpreted 'Mephisto.' The great singer displayed his complete self-control through his singing temperament, and his characteristic manner.

His devilish joy of triumph, and his fawning devotion (to Faust) had an overwhelming effect. Herr Varkony's skill in interpreting, and his wonderful tonal quality, mark him one of the greatest Hungarian singers of today.'

The 'Pesti Hirlap' said:

Herr Varkony played 'Mephisto,' and equally well, both by his acting and his singing, he defeated the evil spirit. Besides his masterful skill in character interpretation, and his colossal voice, his clear enunciation perfected his performance. At the 'Rondo' the audience burst forth with rapid applause in the middle of the scene.'

FLORIAN VARKONY

Speaking of Herr Varkony as 'Wotan' in 'Waltraute,' the 'Pester Lloyd' said:

In carrying the role of 'Wotan,' Herr Varkony has surprisingly surpassed all the other singers. He stepped into his part so quickly, and acted the character so well, that he seemed to live 'Wotan.' His grasp of the subject, his tone structure, and his clear-cut enunciation marked him as the premier performer of the evening.'

During the performance of 'Magyarország,' speaking of how Herr Varkony carried the part of 'Wicked Gaspar' in 'Der Schatz,' said:

During the performance Herr Kornay became so, thereupon Herr Varkony was forced to take the part without a moment's rehearsal. This deserves special recognition. Herr Varkony, because of his powerful voice, and his ability to act, makes him our choice for the wicked part. He should have been given the part finally. His master performance enthralled us. The first act Herr Varkony gave the wicked fellow's song of triumph with flawless technique, and ending in exultation. His acting in the wolves' ravine was so realistic that it made us shudder.'

The 'Budapesti Hirlap,' speaking of Herr Varkony as 'Escamillo' in 'Carmen,' said:

Herr Varkony as 'Escamillo' was a striking character; his storming passion, his keen insight, and his force, at all times controlled by a dignified voice, singled him out as a great singer. Especially the wonderful opening scene did he display his colossal voice control. Time and again, the enthusiasm of the audience broke in wild applause in the middle of the act.' (Advertisement.)

International College—Arnold Barber, a student of the International College of Music, is singing at the Jewish Educational Alliance on January 31.

GERTRUDE CLEOPHAS

Following is some foreign press comment on the work of Gertrude Cleophas, young American pianist who has lately returned to America and located in the Brooks-Evans Building, Minneapolis:

A clever and well schooled pianist is Gertrude Cleophas, who also possesses the musical insight which gives to her hearers the true inward significance of the composition she essays.—Berliner Morgenpost.

At the last Leschetizky class, the MacDowell concerto was splendidly played by Miss Cleophas when the Master Leschetizky sat back and gave expression to his satisfaction by nods of the head and a loud 'bravo' at the close.—British and American Post, Vienna, April, 1911.

Gertrude Cleophas has astounding strength of hand and wrist and a most beautiful full round tone which commanded immediate attention in the Bach-Liszt A Minor Prelude and Fugue. Especially well given were the smaller things of Chopin and Brahms.—Breslau General Anzeiger.

Gertrude Cleophas rendered at her piano recital in the Singakademie, April 18, the D minor concerto of MacDowell and the B minor concerto of Tchaikovsky, in both of which she had the assistance of the Philharmonic Orchestra under Kunwald. The young artist played with brilliancy and splendid rhythmic effect and won great success, particularly in her rendering of the MacDowell number. A real artist, it was a joy to note the musical clarity of her interpretative point of view and the technical skill with which she made the fact evident to her hearers. The tumultuous applause with which she was rewarded spoke volumes for her superb achievement.—April, 1912, Berlin Reichsanzeiger. (Advertisement.)

MARIE WHITE LONGMAN

After spending the summer in Europe and returning sooner than anticipated because of the war, Mrs. Marie White Longman is giving this winter some very unique programs in American cities.

In February and March she will be in Illinois and Michigan. In April goes to the Pacific Coast and during May will sing in Iowa.

Her program, which deals with old tales and legends, reads as follows:

Early One Morning.....Old English
Sally in Our Alley.....Beethoven
O Lass Mich Weinen (Iphigenia at Tauris).....Gluck
Reigen (The Dance).....Weber
I've Been Roaming.....Old English
Die Lorelei (poetic legends).....Liszt
Herr Oluf.....Loewe
Songs having to do with little creatures
Der Wachtelschlag (Song of the Quail).....Beethoven
St. Francis and the Cricket.....Loewe
Bauerlein, Bauerlein (the farmer receives a tiny visitor).....Taubert
The Robin and the Master (Why the robin has a red breast).....Kramer
Caecilie.....Strauss
O, Leave Me Not, Friend of Mine.....Tchaikovsky
Tramping.....Wolf
Story of Sneewittchen (Snow White), an old German fairy tale

Introduction
Song of Tom, the Dwarf
In the Forest
In the House of the Dwarf's
The Discovery
The Queen and Her Mirror
The Queen and Sneewittchen
Finale

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The second of the series of artist recitals will be given in the Auditorium Recital Hall on Friday evening, February 5. The program will be given by Mrs. W. S. Bracken, Miss Bertha Hart, Miss Anne Larkin, Miss Henriette Weber and Mr. Gordon Campbell.

Mrs. Bracken gave a song recital at Mt. St. Joseph College at Dubuque on January 27.

A pupils' concert will be given at the Auditorium Recital Hall on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

"MESSIAH" AT NEW FIRST CHURCH

The second performance of "The Messiah" will be given this (Friday) evening at the New First Congregational Church under direction of H. Augustine Smith, with John Doane at the organ.

The soloists will be Lucille Stevenson, Rose Lutiger Gannon, M. J. Brines and Gustaf Holmquist.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Tenors and basses for North Shore Men's Chorus; best music; good experience; public concerts. Raymond N. Carr, 4652 Magnolia av.

WANTED—A second hand practice clavier. Address F. L. Denhard, 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

TEACHER of artistic piano playing, with strong personality, wishes position mornings. Address L. Music News.

TO RENT—Two months or longer; furnished studio; 75 Auditorium; can be seen 5 to 6 p. m. daily; or phone Wabash 6794.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

TO RENT—Time in studio; on account of an extended concert tour, will rent time in a magnificently appointed lake front studio; Fine Arts Bldg.; for half price; address care Music News.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION "KIMBALL HALL," Wabash 3335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
426 Fine Arts Building

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Fres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE

CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs

5841 Prairie Av.

Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDEPupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years LeschetizkyThe Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIAFor years with Heermann and ServikCLEOPHASHave Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements

Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIS

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau

Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR

VOCAL INSTRUCTION

Western Conservatory

Mallers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO

University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan

Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS

4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals
2155 Pierce AvenueOratorio
Tel. Humboldt 1007Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER

GARY, INDIANA

PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamar

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE
HARRISONSLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital

1205 North State Street

Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING

GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio
South Harvey Av.Concert
Oak Park, Ill.,Recital
Phone O. P. 1478A VISIT TO "HAPPY TOWN"

The Music Festival held on January 8 proved a great artistic as well as financial success. For many months past Professor Dett has been at work with his mighty chorus of 900 to share the program with Helen Ware, the eminent interpreter of Hungarian and Slav music.

The chorus was preparing a great surprise for Helen Ware, viz.: two Hungarian Folksongs. These they sang with that wonderful emotional and rhythmic feeling which characterizes the Negroes' musical activities in every field.

Helen Ware chose the Saint-Saens Concerto in B minor for her big number. This perhaps, more than any of the other modern concertos, appealed to our music lovers who seek, first and last, melody and rhythm.

Helen Ware rose to great heights in her rendition of the concerto during the last part of which her audience was wrought up with enthusiasm equaled only by that brought forth by her Hungarian numbers.

Robert Braum was given a hearty reception for his musicianly and spirited playing of the solo numbers as well as the accompaniments for Miss Ware.

Following the impressive singing of the plantation songs by the ensemble chorus, Miss Ware played a group of solos of which the "Chant Negre" by Kramer, and her own arrangement of a Hungarian love song won Miss Ware mighty rounds of applause.

Mr. Dett's choral arrangement of "Listen to the Lambs" proved a fine work of musicianship, and in conducting it he brought forth from his chorus those fine nuances of phrasing that have made his work and the splendid chorus famous in musical circles.

When interviewed on her return to New York, Helen Ware was bubbling over with enthusiasm, and spoke of her Hampton experiences with the greatest appreciation:

"I have always been interested in the negroes of our country and have at all times appreciated their inborn talent for music, therefore it was with great pleasure that I anticipated my visit to Hampton Institute, Va. But I never dreamed of the inspiring sights and sounds that were in store for me.

"The students of Hampton are members of a race which has every reason to be sad, and yet they are the gladdest people I know of. They are busy from 5 o'clock in the morning till bedtime, but they sing at their work and are earnest in their studies. They march to luncheon to the time of a splendid band, then as they stand in the great dining hall they chant their thanks for their food. At evening they gather and sing their prayers.

"But a greater treat was in store for me. At the concert 900 of them sang plantation songs, also a great choral developed from one of the songs of Nathaniel Dett, the splendid music director of Hampton school. Such a chorus I have never even imagined. What clear, fresh voices, haunting rhythm, harmony, and most wonderful of all, the crescendo and decrescendos, the great fortes and whispering pianissimos.

"I was told afterwards that they produced the swelling and dying away of a chord by instinct. One by one without any previous arrangement they would enter or leave the huge ensemble. One could imagine a great organ played by a hand divine.

"True, they are inspired by their leader or 'Major,' a large handsome negro, who sings the song over and then begins to conduct.

"It was a new experience for me to be entertained in such royal fashion by my audience. I was confident they were all fellow musicians and I only hope they enjoyed my performance as well as I enjoyed theirs.

"The next morning at 6, I was awakened by a muffled roar of laughter, whistling and singing just outside my window. Like a flash it occurred to me that this place was not Hampton but 'Happy Town.' And it is, because of their instinct for music, rhythm and laughter. They work while they learn and sing while they work.

"There is music and sunshine everywhere."

MR. DELAMARTER'S "THE FAUN" IS PLAYED BY THE ORCHESTRA

The following comment was made in the daily press on the overture to a fantastic comedy, "The Faun," by Eric DeLamar, which was played by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra last week:

Mr. DeLamar's overture to a fantastic comedy, "The Faun," was heard here for the first time last season at one of the "American composers' concerts. Since then Mr. DeLamar has evidently amplified the expression of his thought, and to my ear lost something of the spontaneity which was so infectious at the first hearing. The opening sounded familiar with the same fresh, unexpected note, but there were places where it seemed as tho he had drawn out the thought more in accordance with what was considered proper for a concert overture than as a natural expression of what he had in mind. Mr. DeLamar has so much creative vigor in his thought that one would almost wish he might shut himself away from everybody, writing just as the thing came to him whether it were long or short. He was forced to come out onto the stage several times in response to the applause of the audience.—The Evening Post.

"The Faun," otherwise described as an overture to a fantastic comedy, and composed by the Chicago musician and ex-critic, Eric DeLamar, came to second hearing yesterday, its first performance having been under the direction of Glenn Dillard Gunn early last season. Since that time it has been to certain extent rescored and, since it was played by a larger orchestra yesterday, it took on a brilliance which it did not possess on the former occasion.

Brief as it is, it is cast along the lines of some highly original thinking. In this, as in his subsequent works, DeLamar shows a marked gift for independent expression, sprightly rhythm and a feeling for orchestral color.—The Journal.

Eric DeLamar's overture to a fantastic comedy, "The Faun," slightly revised, made a decided success with the audience, the composer being compelled to appear on the stage a number of times to acknowledge the insistent applause. It is light and even in style, its themes are handled with originality, and orchestral color and atmosphere give it a certain piquant character.

It is in the sustained sections that our Chicago composer has not yet found himself. The theme here afford but little contrast to the more sprightly and brilliant sections of the work.—The Examiner.

Mr. DeLamar's overture, "The Faun," a musical characterization of a comedy by Edward Knoblauch, was not a novelty, inasmuch as it was one of the chief features of a program of American works given by Glenn Dillard Gunn and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in 1913. Then it spoke eloquently of its creator's cleverness; it was no less eloquent yesterday. The piece is colored with those qualities of lightness and humor which a salient and attractive features of Mr. DeLamar's style. It is modern in expression, and it shows a common grasp of the things which orchestrally are effective; moreover, it does not, as so many modern productions do, permit the listener to become bored.—The Herald.—(Advertisement.)

HAZEL HUNTLEY

Miss Hazel Huntley, Chicago contralto, spending a few weeks in New York, after which she returns to her work in Chicago.

Her success in her eastern tour is shown in the press notices herewith given. Miss Huntley was soloist at an organ recital in the First Presbyterian Church in Springfield, Mass., on January 10, and sang at vespers at Smith College, Northampton, Mass., on the 17th.

She has many return engagements in the east for next spring.

Miss Huntley has a contralto voice of great richness and much dramatic power and gave all her recitals in such a manner as to gain the hearty approval of her audience. She has a pleasing personality and no mannerisms.

The first group of songs were in English and in these, as in all her numbers, her diction was very clear, all her words being perfectly understood. She next gave a group of German songs and these, with the group of French songs which followed, were given in a very artistic manner, the third one of the French group, "Les Roses d'Hiver," gaining much favor with her hearers. Tosti's "Ave Maria," was given between the German and French groups and was very feelingly rendered.

A group of five English songs were well received and served to show the versatility of the singer.

Miss Huntley's voice is at its best in the more somber songs, which is perhaps true of most contralto voices, although "Good Morrow," by Pette, was in lighter vein and was one of the most pleasing of the English group.

A proof of the singer's hold upon her audience is in the fact that she was recalled for two numbers at the end of the printed program, the first of which "Prayer," by Starr, she sang to her own accompaniment. For the last she gave "Melisande in the Wood," by Goetz.—Gloucester (Mass.) Times.

Miss Huntley has long ago won her way into Springfield's favor, and no one was surprised at the warm, rich quality of her voice in such a glowing air as the ever-popular "He Shall Feed His Flock," given with its fullest and most poetic emphasis.—Springfield (Mass.) Times.

Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto, of Chicago, gave a song recital last night in Assembly Hall. Miss Huntley has the sterling gifts—or are they acquisitions?—of intelligence and good taste, in addition to a beautiful voice. She presented a program containing Russian, German, French and English songs, chosen for the greater part, from the works of living composers. Miss Huntley grasped the spirit and the attitude of mind which distinguished these diverse temperaments, that makes the Russian stern and melancholy, or the Frenchman delicate and repressed in his expression. She delivered the songs with evident understanding of their inner meaning.

With a rich, sonorous voice, almost flawlessly even throughout the entire range, Miss Huntley is successful in a reposeful, sustained type of song. Tschaikowsky's two songs, "A Night in July," and "To the Forest," and Hahn's "Infidelite," gave Miss Huntley opportunity for impressive use of her best qualities. In "Infidelite" she held the breathless attention of her audience. The single listener who communicated with her neighbor in a sibilant whisper just as this song closed, must have been happy with the success of her effort.—Northampton (Mass.) Gazette.

Hazel Huntley was well known as a choir singer when she was in this city; since then she has had a larger experience, and her singing last evening had a pleasing firmness and breadth. Specially good was "He Shall Feed His Flock," in which the rich mellow contralto air finds a fine contrast in the soprano sequel.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Of the soloists considerable interest centered in the reappearance here of Hazel Huntley, contralto, who not so very long ago was familiar to Springfield people as a choir singer. As an artist she has grown since last we heard her and there was great delight evidenced in her work last evening, notably in her rendition of "He Shall Feed His Flock," in which she especially distinguished herself.—Springfield (Mass.) Daily News.—(Advertisement.)

Drake School—Harold Fullen Ayres, a youthful student with Earl Drake at the Drake School of Music, will give a violin recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall this (Friday) evening.

THE STANLEY-INGRAM RECITAL IN ST. JOSEPH, MO.

The St. Joseph News-Press of Wednesday, January 13, contained the following comment upon the recital given by Helen Stanley and Frances Ingram in that city:

Miss Helen Stanley and Miss Frances Ingram gave a recital at the Auditorium last night which more than sustained the high standard of the series of concerts under the local management of Mrs. Francis Henry Hill. Singers of greater fame have appeared but none has given greater enjoyment that did these two amazingly talented women. Miss Ingram opened the program with "Che Faro Senza Euridice," by Gluck, and her voice was a revelation. It seemed to leave nothing to be desired. It is an enormous rich contralto under wonderful control. Her dramatic ability was instantly shown and was sustained throughout her numbers. Schubert's "Gretchen Am Spinnrade" was pitifully tragic, Brahms' "Saphische Ode" was so gracefully given that a repetition was demanded, and "Aus Meinen Grossen Schmerzen," by Franz, was exquisite. Miss Ingram gave an unusual and at the same time convincing interpretation of this exquisite verse of Heine's. After Schumann's "Frühlingsnacht" an encore was demanded, to which Miss Ingram graciously responded. Her next group included Debussy's "Il Pleure Dans Mon Coeur," Massenet's "Crepuscle," "Dawn in the Desert," by Ross, "Good Day, Susan," by Delibes, and Salter's "Cry of Rachel." "Sing to Me," by Sidney Homer, was given an encore. The first of this group, of which the translation is "Tears Fall in My Soul," was singularly well suited to Miss Ingram, for she has tears in her voice. The next number was among the gems of the evening and in the "Dawn in the Desert" her full power was shown. She has the faculty of making every song seem peculiarly suited to herself. Her voice is no less fitted for depicting the majesty of the desert than the hopeless tragedy of the mother weeping for her son, "The Cry of Rachel."

Miss Ingram's temperament and her absolutely fascinating personality should carry her far in her profession, but when there are added to these a voice as marvelous as she possesses, coupled with the polish it displays, the singer's full charm may be appreciated. Her genius embraces every quality that should enable her to rise to the heights of her profession. In the lobby the remark was overheard: "Others may satisfy the ears, but Ingram satisfies the whole soul."

Her co-star, Miss Stanley, won more and more enthusiasm from the house as the program progressed. Her first number was Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," brilliantly given. Brahms' "Nachtigall" and "Standchen," Strauss' "Nacht" and "Cacilie" comprised the next group and were all characterized by a charming delicacy of interpretation. "Abend Dank" was an encore. In the next group "A Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, was dramatically sung. In "Apple Blossoms" her voice had the freshness of the springtime and Harold Osborn Smith's "The Place of Dreams," dedicated to Miss Stanley, was perhaps the best liked of her selections. It is an unusually beautiful song. After a fine rendition of Cadman's "Call Me No More," the encore, "Down in the Forest," by Ronald, was sung so delightfully that its repetition was necessary. The flower duet from "Madame Butterfly" closed the program. Miss Stanley's voice is noteworthy for its purity and clearness of tone and her work is of a very high order. It is trained to a remarkable state of development. The concert was altogether a treat long to be remembered. Mrs. Harriet Bacon MacDonald presided at the piano and won much commendation for her work.—(Advertisement.)

— 222 —

Doelling-Lund—A joint recital will be given by Mae Doelling, pianist, and Rene S. Lund, baritone, at the Fine Arts Theater on Sunday afternoon, March 7, at 3:30 o'clock. Alice R. Deal will be the accompanist.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ESTHER PLUMB CONTRALTO

4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York

Management M. H. HANSON

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

MID-SEASON CONCERT OF PEOPLE'S CHORAL UNION

The twelfth mid-season concert of People's Choral Union was given in Symphony Hall, Sunday night, January 17, at 7:30 o'clock. Frederick W. Wodell was the conductor, the soloists were: Mrs. Marie Stapleton-Murray, soprano; Mr. Charles Harrison, tenor; Mr. Bernard Ferguson, baritone; Miss Grace Brown, pianist; Mr. Herman A. Shedd, organist; members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Jacques Hoffman, principal, and the works given were:

Pater Noster (Our Father).....Verdi
Fair Ellen, Dramatic Cantata.....Max Bruch
The Legend of Granada.....Henry Hadley
(Women's voices)

The American Flag (New).....Frederick W. Wodell
(Men's voices—first time in Boston)

The chorus numbered several hundred voices and its singing was marked by prompt attack, fine tone quality, effective obedience to its conductor, true pianissimos and justly graded crescendos.

The instrumentalists acquitted themselves with the credit expected of veterans, and emphasized the steadiness apparent in the rest of the musical forces.

The soloists had been carefully chosen and added completeness to the entire performance.

The program showing the solo and orchestra numbers was:

March (Eli).....Sir Michael Costa
The Orchestra

Recit and Aria, Lend Me Your Aid (Queen of Sheba).....Gounod
Mr. Harrison

Pater Noster (Our Father).....Verdi
People's Choral Union

Recit and Aria, Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster (Oberon).....Weber
Mrs. Marie Stapleton-Murray

Cantata, The American Flag.....Frederick W. Wodell
Messrs. Charles Harrison, tenor; Bernard Ferguson, baritone, and the men's voices of the Choral Union

Musette (Second Suite L'Arlesienne).....Dizet
The Orchestra—Solo Flute, Mr. Brooke

Cantata, Legend of Granada.....Henry Hadley
Mrs. Stapleton-Murray, Mr. Ferguson, and the Women's Voices of the Choral Union

Air, In Native Worth (Creation).....Haydn
Mr. Harrison

Cantata, Fair Ellen.....Max Bruch
Mrs. Murray, Mr. Ferguson and the Choral Union

Mr. Harrison has a lyric voice and sings with intelligence but "Lend Me Your Aid" is of too big proportion tonally for a voice of his type, and "In Native Worth," while given a traditional presentation, has possibilities for broader treatment than a purely lyric voice can afford. But in all his work the directness of his appeal to the audience received ample recognition.

Mr. Ferguson was heard in "The American Flag" and "Legend of Granada" and impressed one with sincerity of purpose to depict his composer's text with truth and vividness. His voice, not large, had carrying quality, and his enunciation and declamation were commendable.

Mrs. Stapleton-Murray is the happy possessor of a personality; a platform naturalness, that would alone captivate her audience. These advantages, combined with a vocal organ of trained excellence, intense, yet of subtle beauty, which is directed by an intellect and a sympathetic spirit, makes her appearance in a program of interest to the layman and musician.

At the present concert she sang the Weber (Oberon) Aria with effective skill and artistry. A satisfying thing was noticed about her singing: In forte passages, either in solo or with chorus, her voice rose without unpleasant shrillness, and was commandingly dominant.

It would be a pleasure to hear Mrs. Stapleton-Murray in an aria of different type from the present work.

"The American Flag," Dvorak's immortal poem beginning "When freedom from her mountain height," has been given a musical setting by Mr. Wodell, it being composed for tenor and baritone soloists and male chorus and instrumental accompaniment.

A first hearing impressed one favorably toward the work. There were passages of beauty which the chorus effectively presented, and rhythms not usual and accentuation not too often heard.

The solos were delivered with vigor and energy.

Mr. Hadley's work, "Legend of Granada," gave an opportunity for a plausible moment as the women's voices uttered the story of "Old Granada."

Some of the chorus singing in this work was the best of the evening. The soloists, too, entered into the "Legend" with sympathetic offerings, and one could almost hear "Down the lonely passes come the black bulls stamping," and see "The city's market-place, the feast-day of Madonna," as the work begins and ends.

Bruch's "Fair Ellen," admirably produced, ended the program.

April 25, Sunday night, "Samson," Handel, is to be given by the Union, and soloists, with organ and orchestra. Mr. Wodell received beautiful floral gifts in appreciation of his seven years as conductor of these concerts. L. S. B.

Hubbard Opera Talks

Havrah Hubbard, of the Boston Opera House, assisted by Floyd M. Baxter, pianist, began a series of public talks about opera, the first in Boston, in Steinert Hall, Tuesday night, December 29, with the "Love of the Three Kings," Montmezzzi, and "The Secret of Suzanne," Wolf-Ferrari, following January 12, with "Monna Vanna," Fevrier. The schedule now is:

TUESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1915, 8 P. M.
Tannhauser.....Wagner

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1915, 8 P. M.
La Boheme.....Puccini

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1915, 8 P. M.
Francesca Da Rimini.....Zandonai

TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1915, 8 P. M.
Parsifal.....Wagner

Activities at the New England Conservatory

A concert by advanced students, accompanied by the New England Conservatory Orchestra, George W. Chadwick, conductor, brought an unusually large afternoon audience to Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon, January 12.

H. Read Wilkins, of Portsmouth, Va., received very enthusiastic applause for his performance of the aria, "In Native Worth," from Haydn's "Creation." An equally demonstrative reception greeted Ignace Nowicki, of New York, who was heard in the first movement of the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto in E minor.

Miss Joe Carr, of Memphis, Tenn., gave a popular rendering of the second movement of Edward MacDowell's pianoforte concerto in D minor. Other solos were Schumann, "Pianoforte Concerto in A minor," Ethel E. Perkins (Dorchester); Rubinstein, "Pianoforte Concerto in D minor" (second movement), Alice Allen (Minneapolis); Rossi, Aria from Mitrane, "Ah! Rendimi," Mrs. Marie Blain-Moore (Cambridge); Saint-Saens, "Pianoforte Concerto in F major" (first movement), Charlotte L. Woodbridge (Shanghai, China); Beethoven, "Violin Concerto in D major" (first movement), Alexander Blackman (Roxbury); Grieg, "Pianoforte Concerto in A minor" (first movement), Esther V. Wegard (Lynn).

h h h

At the Toy Theater

Sunday night, January 24, Mme. King Clark, an American singer, widow of an American teacher of singing, Frank King Clark, located for a long time in Paris and Berlin, sang in a recital with George Proctor, a Boston pianist, opening a series.

Homer Humphrey, of the New England Conservatory faculty, gave the ninth concert of the present Conservatory season, an organ recital in Jordan Hall, Monday evening, January 18. His program included the Choral Improvisation, "An Wasserflüssen Babylon," Sigfrid Karg-Elert; the Sonata (on the 94th Psalm) in C minor, by Julius Reubke; Toccata and Fugue in D minor, J. S. Bach; Fantasie in D flat major, Op. 101, Saint-Saens; Pastoral, Caesar Franck, and "Fiat Lux," Th. Dubois.

h h h

Personal

Miss Bessie Talbot Salmon sang in costume, groups of Russian and French songs at the Kennesse flamande, which was held in Horticultural Hall from January 21 to 24. Miss Salmon appeared on the date first written.

h h h

Dr. Arthur Mees, conductor of the Cecilia Society, has been re-engaged conductor of the Worcester County Musical Association for this year.

Rehearsals were begun in Washburn Hall, Worcester, Friday night, January 15, with Mrs. J. Vernon Butler, successor to Arthur J. Bassett, now president of the Association, at the piano.

The works to be heard this year are the "Children's Crusade," Pierne; "La Nuova Vita," (repeated), Wolf-Ferrari; "Dream of Gerontius," (first part), Elgar; "The Mad Fire Rides" (first time in Worcester), Hugo Wolf. L. S. B.

"MESSIAH" AT SAN ANTONIO

Before an audience of 2,000 persons last night Nat Washer predicted that San Antonio has arrived musically. It was just after the 2,000 persons, men and women, filling the new Empire Theater, had as the person arisen and with bowed heads heard the chorus of 250 voices sing in triumphant measure Hallelujah for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth. The kingdom of this world is become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ; and He shall reign forever and ever, King of Kings and Lord of Lords. Hallelujah!"

The chorus came at the conclusion of the second part of the oratorio, "The Messiah." It appeared as the audience had been lifted to its feet, and as the last hallelujah swept with crashing melody through the big auditorium a pandemonium of applause was the tribute rendered to conductor, soloists and chorus of the Music Festival Association.

Mr. Washer urged that San Antonio be unswerving in its support of the Music Festival Association and the Symphony Orchestra. He pointed out that those who were not so conversant with great music, but could appreciate in the fullest its beauty, could find if they came continuously that they would appreciate more and more and enjoy more and more. He called H. W. B. Barnes, the conductor, to the stage, clasping his hand and paying him the tribute of being the man responsible for the great success, stating how he had conceived the idea, directed and trained the chorus and brought the famous musicians here. Mr. Washer also paid compliments to Clarence Eddy and Harold Morris.

"The Messiah," Handel's great oratorio, presented by four of New York's celebrated singers and a chorus of 250 voices under the auspices of the Music Festival Association of San Antonio, surpassed all expectations in its immaculate production. From the first sound of the great organ under the master touch of Clarence Eddy, one of the world's greatest organists, the audience which filled the house to its capacity, remained charmed throughout the program. "The Messiah" represents the ripened product of Handel's genius and reflects the noblest aspiration and most exalted devotion of mankind.

Clarence Eddy began "The Messiah" with the overture, a fugue in which the main theme is brought out in varied and beautiful registration. This prepared the way for "Comfort Ye My People," which was sung impressively by Frank Ormsby. He then followed brightly and briskly with "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted." After the last song the chorus of 250 well-trained voices sang "And the Glory of the Lord." Frederick Martin's first song was "Thus Sayeth the Lord," which he followed by "But Who May Abide the Day of His Coming" in a voice rich and resonant. Miss Mary Jordan's first song was "Oh, Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion." Despite the fact that Miss Jordan is an operatic singer, she is well fitted for oratorio. She was probably at her best in "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd." In the second part of this song Miss Elizabeth Tudor answered with "Come Unto Him." The contrast of the soprano and contralto voices was beautifully brought out.

While the audience stood to the words, "The Lord God Omnipotent Reigneth," they could not help but look with pride on the large chorus of San Antonians who were working together in a manner that would do credit to professionals. There was an independence of the different voices and yet a blending into perfect whole. The solo voices were Mary Jordan, Miss Tudor, Frank Ormsby and Frederick Martin. Harold Morris, the pianist, is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where he studied under a number of masters on the pianoforte. He has appeared in two recitals here and is the official accompanist of the Music Festival Chorus, his work having been a great aid in the preparation of the oratorio. As an accompanist Mr. Morris has a great deal of ability; as a soloist he ranks among America's best.

Clarence Eddy, as a master of interpretation, keyboard manipulation and pedaling is unsurpassed. His name as one of the world's greatest organists is well deserved.

To H. W. B. Barnes and the Music Festival Association the city is indebted for one of the greatest musical treats San Antonians have ever heard and which will long hold a place in the memory of all who heard it.

While war crosses Europe, leaving behind a trail of blood and ashes, "The Messiah" passes over the world leaving behind a trail of heavenly harmonies, suggestions of the paradise of which men dream.—San Antonio Express.

——

American Conservatory—"Dream Faces," fantasy in one act, will be given under direction of Walton Pyre at Kimball Hall next Saturday at 3:30.

CONCERT BY THE CECILIAN SOCIETY, BOSTON

The first concert of the Cecilia's thirty-ninth season took place at Jordan Hall Thursday evening, January 21. The program, which was one of particular interest, was as follows: "Blessing, Glory and Wisdom," Bach (chorus and organ); "Les Voisins," Gevaert (chorus); "Le Sommeil de l'Enfant Jesus," Gevaert (chorus); songs—"Stizzoso, mio stizzoso," Pergolesi; "Ah! Io so" (from "Magic Flute"), Mozart; "Un verde Practicello," Wolf-Ferrari. Mme. Marie Sundelius, soprano, was the soloist. "For One Who Fell in Battle," C. Martin Loeffler (chorus); songs by Sibelius, Sjogren, Carpenter and Coleridge-Taylor (Mme. Sundelius); "St. Mary Magdalene," Vincent D'Indy; women's voices, soprano solo, organ and piano; "March of the Cameron Men," Bantock; "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," Stewart; "Drinking Glee," Brahms (chorus). Mr. Benjamin Guckenberger was the pianist, Mr. William L. Bates was the organist, and Mr. Arthur Mees the director.

In this tumultuous world of instruments and soloists it is refreshing to hear a vigorous and well-schooled chorus sing through a program of high and serious compositions. Mr. Mees is an energetic and careful conductor, who does all that he does with great earnestness. He is a past master in the secret of making vocal effects that fairly out-do an orchestra. The contrasts and diminuendos he gets out of his chorus are wonderful to hear. The work of the society, however, as a whole, would have sounded better in a larger hall.

The work of Mr. Loeffler was new to us. It exhibited the composer's technic of writing in many admirable ways, his abhorrence of doing the expected making itself felt at every point. Without pronounced melodic form, there was, nevertheless, a great deal of stirring sentiment and eloquent pathos expressed.

The work by Bantock was good English commonplace. While the closing chorus by Brahms showed the incorruptible quality of this master from the first note to the last, and the singers themselves gave a wonderfully spontaneous performance of it, it reminded us that the day of absolute music is not over, and that German influence upon it is not dead.

Mme. Sundelius' numbers were well chosen and greatly enjoyed. Her appearance in the D'Indy cantata was perhaps the saving element in a work that has in itself little distinction. It is not often one hears the Swedish language sung by one who knows it, and therefore to hear Mrs. Sundelius sing her own language is to gain a new impression of an all-too-little known realm of song.

M. E. BENEDICT.

LESLIE SCHUTTE'S CONCERT

The concert of Leslie Schutte to be given at Masonic Temple in Austin, announced in Music News for February 1, has been postponed to Monday evening, February 8.

The concert will be the artistic event of the season in Austin and will draw a very large audience, as Mr. Schutte is very popular, and this will be his last appearance previous to his trip to the west, which will be undertaken on account of his health.

FLORENCE MACBETH

Prima Donna Coloratura.—Some Press Comment on Miss Macbeth's Operatic Work

Florence Macbeth, the coloratura soprano, following her Chicago appearances with the Century Opera Company has started a tour of concerts in the West.

Some of her recent Chicago and New York press criticisms are here attached:

Miss Macbeth made a successful appearance in the role of Olympia.—Chicago Herald, December 9, 1914.

The Century Company performed "Lucia di Lammermoor" . . . Miss Macbeth made a great success and took more curtain calls than it was easy to count.—The Chicago Tribune, December 30, 1914.

She disclosed admirable quality of tone in the upper range and the bravura of the Mad Scene was excellently set forth. Miss Macbeth did not finish her artistic labors without evidence on the part of her listeners that those labors had been enjoyed, for there were presentations of flowers when she and some of the other artists appeared before the curtain.—The Chicago Herald, December 17, 1914.

Miss Macbeth sang her Mad Scene with a great sense of the beauty of the music and she was without exception in tune.—The Chicago Tribune, December 17, 1914.

As on the former occasion, she showed herself to be an expert specialist of coloratura parts, singing the florid music quite as exactly and with rather more ease and suavity than before.—Chicago Daily Journal, December 9, 1914.

Her rendition of the Mad Scene was a real vocal achievement, and her limpid tonal emission, her clear staccato passages, the flexibility with which she sang the cadenzas, and the high tones which she struck, were all done naturally and musically, and without the slightest apparent effort.—Chicago Examiner, December 17, 1914.

Martha S. STEELE
CONTRALTO
 Oratorio Recitals Concerts
 Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann
 Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
 also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON
SOPRANO
 Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
 5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
 Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian
 Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
 Conservatory School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER
Soprano
 Phone, Sunnyside 7127
 310 Lakeside Place

Pearle Williford
VOICE · PIANO
 Gann Studios Fine Arts Building

Edith Adelaide Kien
 Pianist and Accompanist
 Studio, Arlington Av. and May St. South Elmhurst, Ill.

MAX R. WALD
PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
 Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz
BASSO CANTANTE
 Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
 712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER
SOPRANO
 CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
 715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde
ORGANIST
 St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens
SOPRANO
 Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
 600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell
PIANISTE
 1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER
VIOLINIST
 Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
 67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER
VOICE BUILDER
 and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

Goldmark Reminiscences

By HELEN WARE

One by one they go, the old masters of the Hungarian school—Popper, the most jovial of all artists, is followed by his countryman, Goldmark. Both have lived to see the results of their splendid work, both of them returned to their beloved country, where they rested in peace on their laurels as if living up to the last letter of: "Extra Hungaricum non vita est."

On afterthought, to be sure Goldmark did not do much "resting." Ever young in spirit, like Popper who departed before him, melody flowed from his soul to his last days.

During my last tour in Hungary he lived down in Abbazia, on the shores of the Adriatic, where he wove his divine melodies, working industriously many hours day after day. After his day's work was over the "Meister" would strike out for a brisk walk, and with bared head, erect and sprightly, he would kick up the white sand on the beach.

I cannot avoid continually mentioning Popper's name in connection with Goldmark, for both of these men were artists of majestic appearance and worldly culture, with oceans of sunshine radiating from their souls, brilliant in conversation and witty—so witty, indeed, that on several occasions Popper was taken for a professional comedian by those who did not know him through his fame as the greatest 'cellist of his time. The bubbling humor, satire and philosophic moods of the cultured Jew seem to have reached their climax in these two artists.

Though Goldmark was born in a part of Hungary which is inhabited by the purest of the Magyars, yet it seems that in his musical creations his Jewish spirit became the supreme dominating power. Not only in his operatic and orchestral works do we find the effects of this dominating influence, but even in his violin and piano suite the andante movement is characteristically Hebrew in its expressiveness as well as form. One of his great Hungarian admirers explained this to me very convincingly. According to his theory, Goldmark was so greatly impressed with the wonderful melodic qualities of the pure Hebrew music as drilled into him by his father, the Cantor of Keszthely, that the lessons of his boyhood grew into a life work—a dearly cherished ambition to give the Hebrew influence in musical art a high and dignified position.

Unfortunately for the average American musician, he cannot form the faintest idea of the valuable lessons that Goldmark received from his early training in the synagogue's musical literature.

The Reformed Jewish Church has sadly abandoned an art that has been sponsored by most of the great Jewish composers of the past; indeed, one would search in vain for finer chorus work than that being sung at the Passover celebration in Halevy's opera, "The Jewess." The musical settings for cantor and chorus formed the most important part of the holiday services in the Hungarian Jewish synagogue. "Kol Nidrei" (arranged by Max Bruch) is but one of the numerous masterpieces that one hears during the important services.

I have mentioned all of this so as to bring forth clearly whence Goldmark's music drew its inspiration for the wonderful Oriental colorings that we find in such abundance in his works.

During the last summer I spent in Hungary I roamed all over the picturesque country surrounding the famous "Balaton Lake" (theme of many a beautiful Hungarian folksong, vide, Hubay poems). These were the scenes of Goldmark's boyhood. Let me in truth confess that at the time I was not aware of the fact that one of Hungary's greatest musicians started his career in the quaint little city of Keszthely; but this fact was impressed upon me indelibly during the following winter, when, among my numerous engagements in Hungary, we came to Keszthely.

On our arrival at the concert hall my accompanist discovered that of our opening number, the Goldmark suite, he had only brought the piano score, forgetting to include my violin part. The local manager was summoned and after many apologies he announced the change of program. Back of the stage I heard murmurs of dissatisfaction. The mishap grieved me, for it was a most unhappy beginning for my debut there. Thinking that perhaps the Beethoven sonata which I wanted to play would not please them, I inquired of the manager why they were discontented with the substitution of Beethoven for Goldmark. I was not kept long in suspense, for he flashed back with characteristic Hungarian temperament: "Because Goldmark was born here!" Now I could understand all, but it was of no avail, for I did not dare to risk playing the suite from memory, especially after hearing such news. Never before or since have I faced an audience with such anxiety to please, but they showed their appreciation in a hearty manner.

I felt happy to have conquered my evil forebodings, but my joy was premature, for when I came out to play my last encore a gray-haired old man stood up in the audience and informed me that the music lovers of Keszthely would consider it a slight to their city if I did not play the suite. His words rang sincere, and I realized that he spoke the sentiment of the audience jammed to the doors. The suspense of the following moment was cruel. Then, as if by command, about twelve or fifteen young men offered to bring their copies. No sooner was the promise made than I had a copy of the mischief-making suite. A wonderful sensation took possession of me while playing this last (rather "first") number. It seemed as if the happiness and sympathetic spirit of that audience were playing, with me as but a mere intermediary.

It was a glorious opportunity to interpret the messages of Goldmark to some of his old-time playmates, to awaken in their memories the days when little "Karoly" played his naughty pranks and received his liberal "lickings," as told at the banquet table after this memorable concert.

The gray-haired spokesman came up to the stage and in a hearty handshake expressed the gratitude of all.

Keszthely has lost one of its dearest and greatest sons, but as long as the waves of the Balaton wash its shores they will sing their praises of him who came to make this world better and more beautiful with his heavenly messages of melody.

EARS, BRAIN AND FINGERS

By HOWARD WELLS
(Oliver Ditson Company)

The title of this recent addition to Ditson's Music Students' Library summarizes the essentials of any instrumental musician, but the name of Howard Wells immediately centralizes the piano. The work is not, as might be at first imagined, some physiologically scientific exposition for the attainment of technic by a newly discovered short cut. It is, as named in the subtitle, "A textbook for piano teachers and pupils." The entire routine of piano instruction, from the first lesson upwards, is treated with the authority of an experienced teacher and a concert pianist. Among the features in which it differs from the regular instruction book—perhaps the principal one—is the constant interweaving of ear-training. Throughout, the student is called upon to obtain from tones alone, definite ideas other than merely whether he has struck the right or the wrong key. He is instructed in "hearing" different length notes, different kinds of time, on what beats melodies begin, dotted notes, triplets, etc., and later, the simpler harmonic combinations, phrasing, dynamics and pedaling. After all this, memorizing, the natural outcome of "watchful hearing," is both simple and pleasant, as well as being immensely profitable and even indispensable to the real musician. Mr. Wells' book aims, in short, at the impressing upon the student of the correct order of the factors named in the title; first Ears, then Brain, then Fingers; and not, as the average young pianist takes them—mostly the third, with a little of the first and a very little of the second.

In the concluding chapter are some interesting truths regarding interpretation and the essentials of art. The very extensive use of italics for purposes of emphasis, rather tends to frustrate its own purpose, on the principle of "The boy and the wolf,"

H. J. W.

GALESBURG, ILLINOIS

Madame Jane Osborn-Hannah will be the next artist to appear on the Grand Opera Artist Recitals given at Galesburg, Ill., under the management of Mme. Anna Groff-Bryant.

Madame Osborn-Hannah will be the guest of Mrs. Groff-Bryant during her stay in Galesburg, and a number of functions are being arranged in honor of the distinguished guest. The most important is a reception to be given on January 30 from 4 to 7 at the new vocal art studio of Mme. Groff-Bryant.

Meeker—Tessie Brownlee, pupil of Mrs. Alberti Meeker, gave a group of songs at St. Gertrude's Hall, Sunday, January 17.

Music in America

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

One of the most enjoyable events of the week musically was a recital by John Rankl, bass, of Chicago, assisted by Miss Ardelle Harrar, pianiste. Mr. Rankl's program was selected from the best of song literature. His voice is a full vibrant bass, at all times well under his command, coupled with such apparent sincerity for his art that although a stranger he added many to his list of admirers. Miss Harrar assists Mr. Miessner in the music department at the Normal School and as well as playing sympathetic accompaniments for Mr. Rankl chose for her solo number the first movement of a Sonata by Mr. Miessner. She has a clear cut rounded tone which showed to advantage in the Miessner composition.

It was definitely announced this week that Mills & Hollander had canceled all recitals for the balance of the season. This leaves us "concertless" with the exception of those already scheduled of the various choral societies and local talent. Mrs. Shepard, who so faithfully served the public for several seasons past, left early in November with her daughter for the east, where the latter is now devoting her entire time to her vocal studies.

The first faculty concert of the season of Marquette University School of Music occurred January 6 and presented Mr. Fink, violinist, and several of the younger members of the faculty. Miss Frances Floherty and Laura Kolman, pianists, and Charlotte Perge, contralto. Mr. Fink is a well-known musician to the Milwaukee public and played in his customary musicianly manner. Misses Floherty and Kolman are artist pupils of Admas Buell. Both showed immense strides in their work since last being heard. Miss Perge is a professional pupil of Mrs. Weaver and received unstinted praise both from press and public. She has been filling a series of ten engagements in Waukesha for their united church services, for which work her voice is especially appealing and was recently soloist with Bach Symphony Orchestra at West Side Turner Hall.

One of the new advents this season is a chorus connected with the Grand Avenue Congregational Church under Mr. Miessner's direction. This, in conjunction with their able quartet, Elsa Bloedel, alto; Helen Coferilli, soprano; Messrs. Elhman and Russell as soloists, makes a great adjunct to the church life. They are now preparing for an early hearing of Haydn's "Creation."

Mme. Georgia Hall Quick is to be soloist at the coming Chicago Symphony Orchestra concert and at a private hearing at one of Miss Ricker's Sunday afternoon "at homes" recently played with all the fire and color of her wonderful teacher, Mme. Carreno. These delightful gatherings have been in existence for some years and the following is composed largely of the artist students of the late Julius Klauser and their musical friends. On this particular occasion were heard also Miss Alice Stone in the Stenhammer Sonata; Miss Irving in a solo group, and Messrs. Corberry and Bronson in songs. Those attending have all the pleasure of the informality of the occasion as well as the keen musical spirit pervading the air. Possibly more real pleasure is attained in moments of this kind for the musician than any other.

Brookline Presbyterian—Sunday evening, January 31, the choir of the Brookline Presbyterian Church will give special musical service. Mr. Forsyth is the director of the choir and Miss Gunn organist.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly
TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO
ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC
LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS 516 WINBALL HALL, CHICAGO PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST
Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

MUSIC NEWS IN SOUTH BEND, IND.

A short visit to the beautiful and progressive city of South Bend, Ind., found musical activities moving along with unusual haste and a large proportion of the population is taking a part, or at least is interested to some extent, in the affairs which take place. Apparently there are just three factors around which these activities revolve at present, namely, the South Bend Conservatory, music in the public schools and a series of Sunday afternoon concerts given at the First Presbyterian Church.

Miss Fern Parker, the supervisor of music in the schools of the city, is a great success. She has worked out a system which applies to every grade in the city and the results already obtained are most gratifying. At the Northern Indiana Teachers' Convention, to be held at South Bend some time during the early part of April, Miss Parker will present a children's chorus as well as a chorus of more mature years at the different sessions of the convention. Everybody around the schools seems to take a great amount of interest in music, and as is well known that is far reaching.

The large and stately First Presbyterian Church which is located in the very heart of the city, recently inaugurated a series of concerts which take place every Sunday at 4 p. m., and are given by the leading artists of the city. No admission fee is charged for these concerts and the people of the city take a sort of municipal pride in them, and turn out in great numbers. The first concert on January 10 was given by Max Miranda, organist; Miss Dora Hershenow, pianist; Mrs. Violet Shy Parks, violinist; Mr. Milton B. Griffith, tenor. Their program was as follows:

Toccata and Fugue in D minor.....Bach
Berceuse.....Dickinson
Allegro Maestoso (Third Sonata).....Guilmant

The Sea.....MacDowell
Requiem.....Homer
His Lullaby.....Bond
A Perfect Day.....Bond

Butterfly.....Grieg
To Spring.....Grieg
Wedding Day.....Grieg

Suite Gothique.....Boellmann

Chorale and Introduction
Minuet Gothique
Prayer (Priore a Notre Dame)
Toccata

Berceuse.....Godard
Dance of the Sylphs.....Goldblatt
Hejre Kati.....Hubay

Mrs. Parks
Miss Mary Doolittle, Accompanist
To a Wild Rose.....MacDowell
To a Water Lily.....MacDowell
Air de Ballet.....Chaminade

Miss Hershenow
Evensong.....Johnson
March from "Tannhauser".....Wagner

On January 17 Miss Edna Reed, organist; Paul Anderson, basso; Hans Roeder, 'celist; Grenville Tompsett, pianist, gave this splendid program:

St. Cecile Offertoire No. 11.....Batiste
Gavotte from "Mignon".....Thomas
Sonata III.....Wrightson

Miss Reed
Open the Gates.....Knapp

Mr. Anderson
Prelude from Suite No. 1.....MacDowell
Valse Coquette.....Friml

Mr. Tompsett
Peer Gynt Suite.....Grieg
Morning
Ase's Death
Anitra's Dance

Miss Reed
On the Shore.....Neidlinger
Cradle Song.....Brahms
Invictus.....Bruno Huhn

Mr. Anderson
Message of the Violet.....Leuders
The Palms.....Faure

Mr. Roeder
Pastorale.....Foote
Overture to "William Tell".....Rossini-Buck

Miss Reed
On January 24 Miss Gertrude Miller Frash, reader, assisted by Mrs. Grace Fink-Davis, soprano; Miss Wilda Shonts, violinist; Misses Edna Reed and Helen Guilfoyle, accompanists, were heard in this program:

A June Morning.....Willeby
"Captain January"—Reading.....Laura E. Richards
Persons

Star Bright (saved from a shipwreck)
Captain January (the lighthouse keeper)
Captain Nazro (of the boast Huntress)
Bob Peet (mate of the Huntress)
The Minister (in town)
Mrs. Morton (Star's aunt)
Imogen (the cow)

Mrs. Neptune (the doll)
Mrs. Frash

Violin—
Les Fariadets.....Pente
Lullaby.....Friml

Miss Shonts
"Little Grey Home in the West".....Lohr
Mrs. Davis

The concert for January 31 will be given by Miss Hazel Harris, soprano; Miss Dora Hershenow, pianist; Frank E. Kendrie, violinist, and Irvin Dolk, harpist.

Miss Dora Hershenow is one of the busiest teachers in the city. Her class at the conservatory is a large one yet she finds time to keep in fine form for concert work and fills many engagements in and out of South Bend. On Tuesday, January 26, she appeared in recital at Highland Park, Ill.

Max Miranda is also a busy teacher, having classes in piano, organ and theory. A church position and concert engagements find time in his endurance for work.

Max Wald, the Chicago pianist and teacher, spends a part of each week in South Bend, where he has a large following at the conservatory.

Frank E. Kendrie, a violinist who has made a place and name for himself in the Middle West since coming from Boston a year ago, is also connected with the conservatory, and also is head of the violin department at Valparaiso University.

No one person has done more for South

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

JESSIE KING
PIANIST

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park

Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN

TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management
HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

WALKER
Concert—Oratorio—Recital
1325 E. 64th

Bend musically than Milton B. Griffith, who established and is maintaining with great results the South Bend Conservatory, an institution in which that city may well feel proud. Fine studios and a recital hall make up the home of the conservatory, and its location is in the heart of the city. A large and efficient faculty teaches the big enrollment of students. Besides being the head and guiding hand of this school, Mr. Griffith teaches a splendid class of vocal pupils, has charge of the music at the First Presbyterian Church, takes a leading part in all the musical affairs in the city and for several years has been the person responsible for the big spring festival which has given the people of South Bend opportunity of hearing the best artists and orchestras of the country.

The South Bend Tribune contained the following comment from this writer's pen upon a recital given at the conservatory during our visit to that city:

"The pupils' recital given at the South Bend Conservatory of Music on Thursday evening, January 21, was a highly commendable one from many viewpoints. First of all it was clearly evident to a visitor in the city that those desiring a broad course of study in any branch of the musical arts need not go to the larger cities for that development. Milton B. Griffith, director of the conservatory, has assembled a corps of teachers which would be a credit to any school in any city. The results from study with six of these teachers was displayed by pupils who appeared on the program of Thursday night.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

"There was much pleasure derived from hearing this recital and the praise due the pupils as well as their respective teachers should burst forth in abundance. Another gratifying part of the affair was the appreciative and interested audience of goodly numbers, which gathered in the conservatory's commodious recital hall.

"The program was made up with fine judgment, both as to length and variety. The opening number was played by Master David Frank, pupil of Dora Hershenow, a pianist and teacher of whom South Bend may well feel proud to call her own. Other Hershenow pupils who appeared during the evening were Miss Ruth Stouffer and Miss Gertrude Tremel, each of whom gave a splendid account of herself, denoting at all times ample technical ability and musicianship for the work at hand.

"Max Miranda presented six of his piano pupils at this concert, namely, Vivian Bigelow, Ruth Phleger, Dorothy Lee, Miriam Wuthrich, Paul Wuthrich and Gertrude Witz. Their well chosen numbers and the splendid style in which each played was a tribute to the excellent gifts of Mr. Miranda as an instructor.

"Miss Cleo Milton, pupil of Frank E. Kendrie, was the only violinist who appeared, but she brought a welcome touch of variety into the program by her well played selection, as did Miss Florence Huntsinger, whose reading is well worthy a word of praise. Miss Marie Boles is responsible for the present attainments of Miss Huntsinger as a reader.

"Paul Anderson, who possesses an exceptionally rich bass voice, proved by the singing of a well selected song that he is reaping great benefits from his vocal studies with Mr. Griffith. Miss Valeria Van Durant played his accompaniment in a wholly satisfactory manner.

"Miss Alice Johnson, piano pupil of Max Wald, proved to be a fine young pianist in her playing of the closing number of the evening.

"Many other programs are being arranged for presentation in the near future, and judging from what was heard on this last occasion the people of the city should turn out in many more numbers and enjoy these delightful musical affairs."

H. M. B.

Bulletin—The new "Bulletin" of the I. M. T. A. may be had by addressing the President, E. R. Lederman, Centralia, Ill. The next meeting will be at Centralia, May 4, 5, 6 and 7.

KANSAS CITY

The Kansas City Oratorio Society gave "St. Paul" at the Grand Avenue Temple on Tuesday, January 19. Mr. David Grosch, formerly of Chicago, is the musical director of this organization. The chorus numbers one hundred voices and showed careful training, especially in the chorals. Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdieu, soprano, charmed the audience with her beautiful voice and splendid interpretation. From the first words of the recitative, "and the many that believed were of one heart" to the last bit, "and they all wept sore and prayed," indeed to the last amen, her singing was exquisite. Mr. John B. Miller, also of Chicago, sang the tenor parts in an impressive manner, leaving nothing to be desired by even the most critical. Mrs. Elizabeth Blish Brookfield, of our own Musical Club, sang the small contralto part very carefully. Her voice is well suited to oratorio work. To say that Mr. Ottley Cranston of the Kansas City Conservatory of Music sang the bass part is enough in itself to insure that it was well sung. While Mr. Cranston is primarily the opera singer, his singing of oratorio is worthy of praise. The organist, Mr. Powell Weaver, and the small orchestra furnished excellent accompaniment. Mr. Grosch is to be congratulated on the success of his undertaking.

h h h

The third concert of the Symphony Orchestra was given early in January. Miss Florence Hinkle, soprano, was the soloist on this occasion. The program was:

Overture, "On the Rhine".....Hugo Kaun
 Canzona, "Voi che Sapete".....Mozart
 Symphony in C major.....Mozart
 "Ave Maria" from "The Cross of Fire".....M. Bruch Capriccio Espagnol, Op. 34.....Rimsky-Korsakow

h h h

McCormack will sing here in Convention Hall on Saturday evening, January 23. This concert is looked forward to with great pleasure by the people in general, although the fact that it must be given in Convention Hall is greatly to be deplored. Ten songs are on his program, as at present announced.

h h h

The next concert of the Fritschy series will be given by Elena Gerhardt. Songs by Beethoven, Schubert and Hugo Wolf make up her program, with "A Pastorale," by H. Carey; "The Bitterness of Love," by W. M. Rummel, and "Ecstasy," also by Rummel.

MARY H. FLAGG.

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

On Thursday evening Vera Allen Woodard, soprano; Lucile Wallace, pianist; May Julia Riley, reader, and Mary Thomas, violinist, appeared in a concert before the Rotary Club at the New Morrison Hotel.

The first rehearsal of the Opera School Chorus, under direction of Sig. Parelli, will be held on January 30 at 4 o'clock.

Joseph Wynne, pianist, has been engaged for a series of concerts in Oklahoma and Texas.

A pupils' recital will be given at the Conservatory on February 5.

Northwestern—The Northwestern University School of Music Orchestra will give a program at the New Trier High School in Kenilworth this (Friday) evening and will repeat the same numbers for the benefit of the Evanston public school children, tomorrow at the Gymnasium in Evanston. Bianca Marvil, violinist, will be the soloist.

Lund—Rene S. Lund, baritone, will sing at the Rogers Park Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon, February 2. Miss Marion Lychenheim will play the accompaniments.

Ballmann—The Ballmann Orchestra give their thirteenth program at North Side Turner Hall, with the following soloists: Miss Louise Krause, soprano, and Karl Schulte, violin.

Mandy—Pupils of the artist classes of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Mandy will give a violin and piano program at Kimball Hall on Tuesday evening, February 2.

Burnham—A piano recital was given by Thuel Burnham in Sioux City on Thursday evening under auspices of the Heizer School of Music.

Search-Lippitt—Frederick Preston Search, cellist, and Robert Raymond Lippitt, pianist, recently gave two concerts in St. Joseph, Mo.

Rouse—Charles Rouse sang a program of MS. songs of Helen Louise Birch before the Fortnightly Club, Fine Arts Building, on Thursday afternoon.

Varkony—Sunday, January 31, Florian Varkony will be the soloist with the Paulist Choir at St. Mary's Church.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
 FOR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
 5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

COLUMBUS AND CENTRAL OHIO

It has been announced that the San Carlo Opera Company will be in Columbus for three evenings and one matinee, early in February.

In the studio of Professor A. R. Barrington the first of a series of student recitals was given Wednesday evening, January 20. On the following evening Professor Barrington, Miss Dorothy Ward and Mrs. Lena Arrick Heaton gave a recital in Worthington.

Monday evening, February 15, Miss Helene Pugh will make her debut at the Hartman Theater, as concert pianist. She is to appear with Franz Wilczek, Austrian violinist, and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Bert E. Williams, assisted by Mr. Wilbur Gantz, tenor, gave a program of organ music Monday evening, January 18, at St. John's Church.

Under auspices of the Altruian Club and under the direction of Mrs. Charles T. Howe, a twilight concert was given at the Public Library on the afternoon of January 19.

The eighth free organ recital under the auspices of the Women's Music Club was given Sunday afternoon, January 17, at Memorial Hall by Miss Nora E. Wilson, organist; Miss Ruth Drinkworth, soprano, and Carlisle Moffit, basso.

Directed by Mr. Martin Boyer, with Miss Nellie Jacoby as pianist, the Canton Operatic Club will give "The Wizard of the Nile" next month.

Marcian Thalberg, Swiss pianist, gives a recital in Zanesville, January 22.

As director of the Wittenberg Conservatory and Springfield School of Music, Miss Miriam H. Weaver is conducting a series of weekly recitals for her students.

Franz Kohler of Erie, Pa., is planning a six weeks' tour of the central states next summer, with forty musicians from Erie and Meadville in a symphony orchestra.

Dr. D. Brown has started rehearsals of a symphony orchestra in Youngstown. Formerly Dr. Brown was at the head of a music school in Macon, Ga.

The Girls' Glee Club of Ohio State University gave the twelfth annual concert Friday evening, January 15, with Miss Mary Almack as director. Professor A. R. Barrington had charge of the club's rehearsals.

In November, John McCormack had the largest musical audience in the history of Dayton, but Fritz Kreisler's hearing, February 10, will be larger, as nearly 2,000 seats were sold a month in advance of the concert. The Civic Music League established a precedent by offering the best seats for 50 cents.

Oley Speaks, composer and critic, is spending several weeks in New York City and will be absent from Columbus until February or March.

The Maurer Sisters Orchestra, now on a tour of the central states, appeared at King Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Columbus, Tuesday evening, January 19, and thoroughly delighted with their excellent program.

The largest chorus ever organized in Dayton held its first rehearsal a few days ago under the direction of Arthur Leroy Tebbs.

Dr. J. Fred Wolle, organist and director of the Bach choir of Bethlehem, Pa., appeared for a lecture recital before the Tuesday Musical Club in Akron recently.

At the Masonic Hall in Middletown, Wuritzer's musician of Dayton delighted a fine audience recently.

Professor Ludwig Lewisohn of Ohio State University gave a lecture on the German "Lied" a few evenings ago in the Columbus Public Library auditorium. Mrs. William C. Graham assisted by singing nine lieder.

Victor Benham made his last appearance in America as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra in Columbus, Thursday, January 21. He sails from New York January 23 and will appear in concert February 17 in London.

The American Male Quartet, consisting of J. M. Sawyer, first tenor and pianist; Clayton Conrad, second tenor and cartoonist; P. E. Fairchild, baritone, 'cellist and whistler, and L. E. Gilbert, basso, violinist and reader, filled a number of Ohio engagements following the Christmas holidays. They are to appear at the Masonic Temple, Price and Purcell avenues, Cincinnati, January 28.

Bohumir Kryl, noted Chicago cornetist, comes into Ohio early in February for a short tour with his two talented daughters, Josephine Kryl, violinist, and Marie Kryl, pianist. In recent weeks the Kryls have been touring the south.

The Heidelberg Glee Club appeared at Grace Reformed Church in Akron recently. Alma Gluck sang in Akron, Wednesday evening, January 20.

Mrs. Rose LeVillie Morgan, wife of a Columbia University professor, will give a lecture recital in Ohio State University chapel, Columbus, February 1. Mrs. Morgan's mission is to raise the standard of music in the home, by reawakening interest in the old folk song choruses and the best world music.

The 1915 offering of the Youngstown Opera Club will be "The Chimes of Normandy," by Planquette. The first opera given by this club was "Dorothy"—given four years ago. Professor Ralph M. Brown will conduct the music.

The Apollo Club of Dayton, under the direction of Gordon S. Battelle, is on its fourth season. A. F. Thiele is manager and Professor Clarence Day is accompanist and soloist.

Miss Ruth Dodson is giving a series of piano recitals at the First Lutheran Church of Springfield.

Recently Professor Frank Sanzo inaugurated a series of matinee concerts at Bucyrus.

Mme. Julia Culp, with Coenraad Von Bos, pianist, gave a concert at Memorial Hall, Columbus, January 12, on the Women's Music Club series. Fritz Kreisler is to appear here February 8 under the same auspices, but independently of the series. Mrs. Ella May Smith is the music club president.

Dayton music lovers heard the New York Symphony Orchestra, January 15.

Clarence Whitehill and Florence Hinkle were substituted for Josef Lhevinne on the Civic Music League's course in Dayton, January 21.

Miss Kate M. Lacey, director of the Quality Series in Columbus, returned recently from New York where she considered bookings for next season.

Professor Harry Wilson Proctor, director of the Proctor School of Music in Dayton, gave a descriptive talk on the Italian Symphony of Mendelssohn, preceding the concert by the Damrosch Orchestra in that city. He was ably assisted by Miss Alverda Sinks.

Before the Monday Musical Club of Youngstown, Mrs. W. Shelly Jacobs gave a number of operatic selections recently. Mrs. Jacobs, who will be remembered as Mayme Carrington of the Savage Opera Company, is now teaching in Youngstown.

Dana's Musical Institute Orchestra of Warren gave a concert in Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, Youngstown, January 15.

Pavlova appeared at the Grand Opera House in Youngstown, Monday, January 18.

— — — — —

GARY, IND.

Two hundred and fifty people attended the pupils' recital given by Lida Browning White, teacher of piano, at the Library Hall last evening. The recital was a credit to both the students and to Mrs. White.

The pupils taking part were the Misses Esther Anderson, Cecelia Philgren, Herman Alschuler, Alvena Hannig, Helen Haas, Virginia Chase, Margaret Hunter, Dorothy Mayne, Mary Elizabeth White, Ruth and Florence Anderson, and William Browning White and Merrill Nusbaum.

Alice Greer Ferguson, soprano, assisted with three vocal selections, which she rendered exquisitely. Virginia White, a violin pupil of Mr. Wade Eversoll, gave the "Air Varie," by Dancia, which was greatly appreciated and showed excellent training. Florence Anderson's selection was beautifully rendered. She shows more and more marked talent at each appearance. Merrill Nusbaum, William Browning White, and Cecelia Philgren, who had never played before in a recital, did very well.—Gary Tribune.

FOR RAPID PROGRESS
IN PIANO, USE Thurn's Indicator.

It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT.

No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $50; mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THURN, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO

Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."

59 E. Van Buren Street

Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

BARITONE

Oratorio

Papils

Concerts

4051 Calumet Avenue

Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM
Baritone

324 North Spring Street

La Grange, Ill.

RECITAL

NORDIN

CONCERT

ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist

Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO

TENOR

RECITAL

1351 Granville Avenue

Music News

HOWARD VAN SWERINGEN
TENOR

Valparaíso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.50 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 54 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 522 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 5, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00

Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00

Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company and
Summy's music stores; or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	GRAND RAPIDS
Abbie S. Fridenberg	Louis McKay
110 Carnegie Hall	2 Nelson Place
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsbürger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, February 5, 1915

No. 6

Editorial

HERE ARE SOME OPENINGS

Music News is in receipt of the following announcement from the Civil Service Board of the West Chicago Park Commissioners:

The Civil Service Board of the West Chicago Park Commissioners will hold the following examinations on the dates and at the places given below. Application blanks may be obtained at the office of the Civil Service Board in Union Park or at the West Park playgrounds.

Examination No. 142

Pianist—Class D, grade 1. Pay 35 cents to 45 cents per hour. Original entrance. To be held February 10, 1915, at 1 p. m., at B. A. Eckhart Park, Chicago avenue and Noble street. Open only to women and girls eighteen years of age or over on the day of the examination. Applications must be filed in the office of the Board in Union Park before 5 p. m. of February 9.

Subjects: Special subject, weight of five; experience, weight of three; educational, weight of two.

Special subject: A practical and written test in accompanying gymnasium and dancing classes.

The duties of pianist are to accompany gymnasium and dancing classes.

Note: The pianist is employed only a few hours in the afternoon and evening, and can attend school or engage in other employment when not needed at the playground. The position offers valuable experience for persons who wish to enter playground and social work.

Examination No. 144

Musical director—Class D, grade 1. Pay $1.50 per hour. Original entrance. To be held February 11, 1915, at 10 a. m., at B. A. Eckhart Park, Chicago avenue and Noble street. Applications must be filed in the office of the Board in Union Park before 5 p. m. of February 10, 1915.

Subjects: Special subject, weight of five; experience, weight of three; educational, weight of two.

Special subject: A test in piano playing and an oral and written test of the candidate's qualifications to perform the duties given below.

The duties of the musical director are to

Realism means Truth, not Vulgarity;
truth of the higher as of the lower forms;
truth of passion and truth of manners.

—George Henry Lewes

organize and instruct orchestras and choruses at a playground and to conduct concerts and entertainments.

FRED G. HEUCHLING,

Superintendent of Employment.

January 22, 1915.

###

'TIS HARD FOR MUSIC CRITICS TO PLEASE

The following letter was published in the "Voice of the People" Department of the Tribune:

'TIS HARD FOR MUSIC CRITICS TO PLEASE

Cedar Springs, Mich., January 24.—(Editor of the Tribune.)—I have been a subscriber of the Sunday Tribune for a long time and read with a good deal of interest the notes, comments and criticisms relating to the drama, art and musical affairs appearing in your esteemed paper. But I must say that the contributions of this man W. J. Henderson you have writing from New York City is the biggest grouch in the business. In his article entitled "Les Huguenots' a Massacre of Lyric Song," he roasts every singer in the opera, and in all of his other remarks he gives scant praise. The only good performers in his opinion are the ones that are past and gone.

"Les Huguenots," stripped of its veneer, revealed a very meager and ill fed nakedness." "Caruso cuts a sorry figure." "Mr. Braun was a barking Wotan." "Destinn was conventionally meritorious." "Hempel, in these dull vocal days, was actually brilliant." "Polacco conducted admirably, but—he is not so good as last season." "Amato's singing is unpardonably slovenly—he sings off pitch and his tone quality is simply saddening." "Miss Lagston's singing demonstrates that good contraltos are still scarce." "Bourstin would be all right if he had more repose and finish and a good violin." "Samaroff is a light running domestic pianist." "Stokowski's cheap bag of tricks with the symphony" (referring to the Philadelphia orchestra).

My diagnosis of Mr. Henderson's trouble is that he has an aggravated case of liver complaint with chronic dyspepsia, complicated with an extremely exaggerated idea of himself. I have never heard one of these artists, but other critics say they are good and the public seem to like them. Such criticisms are no pleasure to read and make everybody sore. I like to read a good, honest criticism, and if a singer is rotten the public ought to know it, but you cannot tell me they are all so rotten.

CHARLES N. BRAYMAN.

###

BAD ELEVATOR SERVICE

The Fine Arts Building is the home of Assembly Hall, Little Theater, Thurber Hall and many clubs on its upper floors, and there is scarcely an evening but that hundreds of people attend music functions of various sorts in these various places and are compelled to depend upon the elevators.

Under these circumstances it is but natural to suppose that the management of the building would provide swift and frequent service. However, the contrary is most emphatically true. No matter how many people may be wanting transportation it is the policy at the Fine Arts Building in the evenings to run only one, or at the most two elevators and these are maddeningly slow. Each car stands at the first floor a distressingly long time and the men who run them seem to care not a whit whether customers are anxious to reach the upper floors or not.

Mabel-Helen ROGERS
HARPISTE
Concerts - Recitals - Musicales
Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando
CONCERT HARPIST
Care of
MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

CAROLINE E. BUCKLEY
CONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts Building

MARGUERITE DRESSER
PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER
TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

Arthur Uhe PUPILS
RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBORG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER
VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Mayme E. Bolger
ACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy Recital
Oratorio
Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakenwald Avenue CHICAGO

MUSIC PAPERS VASTLY MORE IMPORTANT THAN DAILIES

Often the advertising musician gets a wrong focus on the publicity proposition and it is not uncommon to hear the "immense" circulations of the daily papers quoted as against the comparatively modest circulations of the music journals.

The big circulation of the daily has absolutely nothing to do with the matter of determining advertising value—for, out of the very many readers of the daily an infinitesimal number ever turn to the music news column or to the music advertising page.

This has been proven again and again, and out of the many thousands which read any daily there are only a few scores who attentively peruse the music news columns.

Also, the music loving and patronizing part of the public is divided in allegiance among a half dozen Daily papers, whereas, every musician and music lover of the community reads the few music papers.

And, the readers of such a journal as Music News, for instance, read it carefully. They read it all. They digest it and act upon its suggestions.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA

In the notice of the coming concert of the Minneapolis Orchestra in Chicago, which appeared in Music News last week our printer made us say that the body is composed of thirty-five men. As a matter of fact the number is eighty-five and not only is the complement of men at the highest point but the quality is absolutely of the best throughout the Orchestra.

Furthermore, Mr. Emil Oberhoffer, the Director, is a man of the highest ideals in a musical way and has no superiors in this country as an interpreter. The concert is to be given at Orchestra Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 28, and will be the musical event of the season in Chicago.

NOT FOR SENSATIONALISM

Music News leaves all the details of Murders, Suicides and Scandals, even when they occur among musical people, for the Daily Press, which is keen for such items and considers them of more news value than the performance of fine programs.

We do not believe that such matters should be exploited at all, beyond the bare fact, and Music News, at least, will always carefully refrain from giving details in such cases.

A BENEFACTION FOR THE ORCHESTRA

Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge of Pittsfield, Mass., daughter of the late A. A. Sprague, who was a great patron of music, has given $100,000 as a nucleus for a pension and sick fund for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and thereby has proven her great common sense and has at the same time provided a perpetual memorial to her father, of the most worthy kind.

The men of the orchestra have long wanted a pension fund and most of them have been willing to work and to sacrifice in order that they might have it. Most of the directors also have wished it, but there has been an unaccountable opposition from certain sources which has, up to this time, prevented the establishment of any such fund.

The gift of Mrs. Coolidge, however, wipes out all difficulties, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will now be in a position to care for its sick and superannuated players in a way that has been possible for but few great orchestras of the world.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, February 5

Orchestra Hall, 2:15, Symphony Orchestra.

Music Hall, Evanston, 8:00, Piano Recital—Esther Ward.

Fine Arts Theater, 8:15, Violin Recital, Alfred Goldman.

Saturday, February 6

Kimball Hall, 2:00, Chicago Piano College Concert.

Kimball Hall, 3:30, American Conservatory Concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15, Symphony Orchestra.

Monday, February 8

Masonic Temple, Austin, 8:15, Testimonial Concert to Leslie Schutte.

Tuesday, February 9

Y. W. C. A., 8:15, Piano Recital, Alfred Calzin.

DE LAMARTER ORGAN RECITAL PROGRAMS

On Thursday afternoon, February 4, Eric De Lamarter played at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, where he is organist and director of music, the following program:

Toccata and Fugue.....	Bohuslav Cernohorsky
	(18th Century Bohemian)
Dawn.....	Lemare
Evening.....
Sonata in B flat Minor.....	Rheinberger
Grave-Allegro moderato
Romanze
Fantasia and Fugue
Midsummer Caprice.....	Edward F. Johnston
Suite in Classic Vein.....	Eric De Lamarter
Overture
Minuet
Aria
Rondo
Symphony for Organ, in B Major.....	Widor
Allegro risoluto
Moderato cantabile
Allegro
Adagio
Finale

On next Thursday afternoon, February 11, at 4:30 o'clock Mr. De Lamarter will play this program:

Chanson du Soir.....	II. Alexander Matthews
Rhapsody.....	Rossetter Col:
Improvisation.....	Lily Wadhams Moline
Adagietto.....
Toccata.....	Eric De Lamarter

Bush Temple Conservatory—A children's concert was given at the Bush Temple Conservatory on last Saturday afternoon.

Music in Chicago

SPLENDID RECITAL HEARD AT RIVERSIDE

The music-loving populace of Riverside was given a genuine musical treat on Tuesday evening, January 26, when Monica Graham Stults, soprano; Walter Allen Stults, bass; Clarence Eidam, pianist, and

MONICA GRAHAM STULTS

A. Cyril Graham, accompanist, appeared in recital at the Riverside Town Hall under the management of Miss Rachel Busey Kinsolving. A large, fashionable and appreciative audience was present and apparently enjoyed the program from beginning to end.

The successes of the above-named artists in concert and other musical activities have been many and are well known. Added interest was taken in this particular recital because of the fact that Mrs. Stults was appearing in her old home town, which fact applies to Mr. Graham as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Stults opened the program with "Gondolieri" (Henschel), a duet very grateful to their voices and sung with splendid results, and in bringing the program to a close these two artists chose the duets, "Venetian Boat Song" (Blumenthal), "Sweet and Low" (Hollis) and a duo from "Hamlet" (Thomas), which were leading enjoyable moments of the evening.

Mr. Stults' rich bass voice is not heard in concert nearly as often as it should be. He possesses those requirements which bring real pleasure to an audience, namely, the complete command of a smooth, resonant voice, a strong personality and the power to interpret with telling effect every line of any song, apparently, which he chooses to offer. He sang as his first group "The Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," "Zueignung" (Umlauf), "Der Wanderer" (Schubert) and "Der Sieger" (Kaun). At his second appearance he sang "Vulcan Song," from Gounod's "Philemon and Baucis," "Boat Song" (Ware), "The Monotone" (Cornelius), "How's My Boy" (Homer) and "Young Tom O'Devon." To these was added a delightful encore. This splendid and varied list of songs was given in a commendable manner throughout and were a test for any singer. Mr. Stults came through with flying colors.

Mrs. Stults sang two groups of four numbers each. The first, composed of "Vissi d'Arte," from "Tosca" (Puccini), "Le Violette" (Scarlatti), "The Children's Prayer" (Max Reger) and "Ariette" (Vidal), brought forth the many admirable sides of her art in a fine manner. She well deserved the flowers which came to her at the completion of this group. Her last numbers were "Pleurez mes Yeux," from "Le Cid" (Massenet), "Enticement" (Ruckauf), "Gaelic Lullaby" (A. Cyril Graham) and "Surrender" (Niewiadowski). Mrs. Stults possesses that clear, pure soprano type of voice which easily adapts itself to any style of song. There is real warmth and fervor in her delivery and at all times sincerity of purpose. She is a wholly satisfactory singer; it will always be a pleasure to hear and see such a person on the concert stage.

WALTER ALLEN STULTS

Mr. Graham, who accompanied the singers throughout the evening in a most musicianly, sympathetic and artistic manner, came in for no small part of the applause and praise accorded the artists for his excellent attainments as a composer. He had to repeatedly acknowledge the applause which followed Mrs. Stults' singing of his lullaby, which had to be repeated as an encore to the last group Mrs. Stults sang, another delightful and musical composition from the hand of Mr. Graham.

Mr. Eidam was indeed a welcome addi-

Glenn Dillard Gunn

The well known pianist, teacher and critic, writes of the

Mason & Hamlin

Cable Piano Company,

Wabash and Jackson.

Gentlemen:

Mason & Hamlin Pianos are the most consistently artistic instruments that are made today. Not only do the Concert Grands completely satisfy the demands of the artist, but those qualities of touch, beauty, even scale, and responsive action that so eminently characterize them are possessed in a similar degree by the smaller Grands and Uprights.

GLENN DILLARD GUNN.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

tion to the evening's list of good things. He is one of Chicago's best pianists and made a deep and lasting impression with the people of Riverside on Tuesday night. He played the "Prelude," G minor (Rachmaninoff), "Nocturne" (Debussy), "Octave Etude" (Sauer), "Nocturne" (Chopin) and "Rhapsodie No. 6" (Liszt). There is grace, authority and utmost finish in every line of Mr. Eidam's playing. One could not desire more than came from the instrument during the playing of these numbers. The "Octave Etude" and Liszt "Rhapsodie" apparently pleased the audience most. Encores were again granted. H. M. B.

— — — — —

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Rudolph Ganz, who was engaged by F. Wight Neumann for a recital to take place Sunday afternoon, February 7, telegraphed Mr. Neumann to postpone this date until his return from the coast, as his manager was able to secure for him the entire coast tour booked for Mr. Lhevinne, who was not allowed by the war department to leave Germany. Mr. Ganz' recital will take place later in the season.

— — — — —

Mme. Julia Culp will make her first appearance in Chicago this season in song recital under the direction of F. Wight Neumann, Sunday afternoon, March 14. This song recital was originally announced for February, but owing to the illness of Mme. Culp a rearrangement of her dates was necessary.

FRANK
WVan DusenPIANO-ORGAN
American
Conservatory
Kimball HallLUCILLE STEVENSON

4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred CookinghamPIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd AvenueMASON SLADEPIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUEIRVING C. HANCOCKOrganist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903Mary
Hinman STEELETEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGOKENNARD BARRADELL

Kimball Hall. TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN
SCHOOL OF
MUSICClarence Eidam Pianist

Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, TenorVoice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August FirstMendelssohn ConservatoryCarrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGOStephen Adolph Erst

Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist

YOSTAddress
INDIANAPOLIS
CONSERVATORYH. EVAN WILLIAMS

TENOR. Concert, Recital, Oratorio

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIOSilas Wright MountzVocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song RecitalsConcert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE

KIMBALL HALL

CHICAGO, ILL.

SEBASTIAN BURNETTI

JOINT RECITAL AT DOUGLAS PARK AUDITORIUM

Myrtle Elvyn, pianist, and Sebastian Burnetti, baritone, appeared in joint recital before a large and enthusiastically appreciative audience at the Douglas Park Auditorium on Thursday evening, January 28. The affair was under the auspices of the Temple Judea, and was apparently a success from every viewpoint. Not only was the crowd immense, but the artists which offered the choice, well-balanced and enjoyable program were likewise of very great value in their work of the evening.

Mr. Burnetti, who came to Chicago with many laurels hanging over him from numerous opera and concert engagements in all parts of the musical world, and who has taken a place among this city's leading voice teachers, made a great success on this occasion and won a numberless throng of staunch admirers by his brilliant singing.

His voice is of that rich, resonant quality, full and powerful throughout its extra long range, such as we hear only "occasionally." Combined with this excellent vocal equipment is deep musicianship, confidence, sincerity of purpose, unusual interpretative ability, and an artistic stage presence. His hearers felt and saw those things on Thursday night and were great in their shower of approval. Mr. Burnetti was wise in his choice of songs, all being very grateful to his voice and style of delivery. At his first appearance he sang the "Credo," from Verdi's "Otello," and "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann, in wonderfully effective style, and the audience demanded an encore. A delightful Italian aria was the baritone's response.

At his second appearance Mr. Burnetti sang "Pastoral," by Bizet, which was wholly enjoyable; "Tambourin," by Weckerlin, which was so utterly captivating through his exceptional use of the mezzo voce that its repetition was necessary to quiet the applause, and "Vision Fugitive" ("Herodiade"), by Massenet, which disclosed in a beautiful light the high gifts of this singer along operatic lines. His voice had improved as the evening progressed, and this aria brought forth his best singing of the evening. An encore was added to this list and even its repetition was required before the program could proceed. Mr. Burnetti will indeed be welcome should he choose to sing in Douglas Park again.

Miss Elvyn, who has been heard amid the same surroundings before, achieved her usual success. Her numbers included:

Rondo Capriccioso	Mendelssohn
Nocturne, Op. 37, No. 2.....	Chopin
Marche Militaire	Schubert-Liszt
Caprice Viennois	Kreisler
Schoen Rosmarin	Kreisler
Prelude (from Pour le Piano).....	Debussy
Rigoletto Paraphrase	Verdi-Liszt
Twelve Hungarian Rhapsodies.....	Liszt

Her playing was elegant along every line and encores were demanded by the enthusiastic audience. H. M. B.

HERBERT HYDE GIVES ORGAN RECITAL

Herbert E. Hyde, organist and choir-master at St. Peters Church, played the weekly organ recital at the Fourth Presbyterian Church on Thursday afternoon, January 28.

The position of Mr. Hyde among the organists of Chicago is a leading one. His admirers are many and the occasion to hear one of his recitals is a source of much pleasure to all those which love music from the king of instruments as offered by a master of its mechanism and possibilities. At the completion of Mr. Hyde's choice, varied and interesting program the fact was evident why he had been chosen to give one of the many splendid recitals heard at this church. It was one of the most thoroughly satisfactory from every viewpoint that has been given since the church with its magnificent organ was completed last year.

HERBERT E. HYDE

The first movement of "Sonata," No. 14, by Rheinberger, with its rich, powerful and harmonious strains of much movement made an excellent opening number as played by Mr. Hyde and the contrast offered through his following this with a "Cradle Song" by Grieg was charming indeed. The delicate flow of tone necessary to bring out the simplicity of this number came forth in a very effective manner from both the main and echo organ.

A rare portion of the program came in Mr. Hyde's masterful rendition of Bach's "Fantasie and Fuge" in D minor. Its difficulties require great technical and musical ability, two assets with which this organist is exceptionally well gifted. The Fugue was especially distinct and evenly played.

Handel's beautiful and inspiring "Largo" gave the organist ample opportunity to show his skill at using effective combinations. Its rendition was indeed an accomplishment on the part of Mr. Hyde and those who were fortunate enough to be present should feel well repaid for their trip to the church in hearing this one number only. A short but cleverly written number written by Seeboeck entitled "A L'Antico" was skillfully played and well deserved its place upon this program.

The master qualities of this organist were again called upon in the playing of the "Chromatic Fantasie" by Thiele. He taxed the resources of the great instrument at his disposal to the full and did not find it wanting. Neither did we in the pews. It was a great piece of playing.

An "Offertory on Two Christmas Hymns," by Guilmant brought variety and added pleasure to the list of good things offered during the afternoon as did the "Andantino" by Chauvet which was given a splendid performance.

Mr. Hyde chose to close his program with "Lied des Chrysanthemes" and "Caprice Heroique" by Bonnet. Numbers well and brilliantly played were they and formed a fitting climax to the attainments reached by the organist on this particular occasion. H. M. B.

O'DONNELLOG'S OF TRAVEL

As a part of the O'Donnello on Africa Hugh O'Donnell will take his audience at the Fine Arts Theater Sunday night from Durban to Zululand, by the motion camera. It proves to be quite a surprise to Americans who believe their nation monopolizes the contrasts of civilization. Durban, the capital of Natal, is one of the most progressive cities in the world, let alone Africa. It prides itself on the immaculate character of its streets and the beauty of its parks and public buildings. Double decked street cars of the most advanced models is the established mode of locomotion and the satyr-like Zulus gaze at them with an indifference which might not be shared by a paler and supposedly more intelligent brother. On the outskirts of the city are splendid beaches where the long surges of the Indian Ocean break and roar continually. There we can see the people bathing and in the distance the porpoises cruising along the outskirts of the beach. In the interior of Zululand the chiefs are coming to pay their respects to Lord and Lady Gladstone. According to custom they have brought with them many complaints to set before their white masters. In the old days one could purchase a very satisfactory wife for two cows, now the price is nearer twenty. The high cost of living seems to have a worldwide application.

SUCCESS OF YEATMAN GRIFFITH STUDENTS

Mr. Yeatman Griffith, who has removed his studio from London to New York, has received word of the success of his students Miss Nora Jansen Dutch, soprano, who has been singing at many public and private affairs in The Hague, Holland, and Miss Lydia Griffith of Dallas, Tex., who has been meeting with marked success in her song recitals in Dallas and other cities in Texas.

Spalding—Albert Spalding will give his Chicago recital at the Illinois Theater on Sunday, February 28.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

Eleanor C. Schneider

TEACHER OF PIANO
ABROAD FOR THE SUMMER

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4303 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

Abbie Stephens FridenbergTHE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert R. LippittCONCERT PIANIST

Carmel by the Sea, Calif

On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOODSchool of Piano and Voice

CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave.

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLESOPRANO

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS
2938 Washington Boulevard

CELLIST

PUPILS
Tel. Garfield 2192

F. M. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST
622 North Kenilworth Avenue

TEACHER
OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Aze

SOPRANO

Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLENSOPRANO

Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS...730 Fine Arts Building

Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5416 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice

Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

USIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE

M. ROSE BURNS, President
463 W. 63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

A CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

The recently organized Society for the Uplift of Chamber Music on the West Side of Chicago presented a delightful program last Sunday at Stiles' Hall, Twenty-second street and Millard avenue, at the first of their series of concerts, before a very representative, enthusiastic, large assemblage of deeply interested hearers. The earnest promoters of the society are to be sincerely congratulated on the success attending their initial effort, and must feel highly gratified at the warm support so promptly accorded. Such concerts as these open up a fine opportunity for hearing chamber music of the greatest, performed by eminent and sterling artists whose devotion to their divine art leads them to these efforts to share their treasures thus broadly and generously. Artistically, socially and educationally, this effort is one entirely in the right direction, especially in a large district which up to now has had but few opportunities of the kind.

Dr. J. E. Salaba-Vojan, L.L.D., one of the most eminent Bohemian litterateurs, now resident in America, delivered the introductory address, with highly interesting and valuable comments on the works to be performed—an illuminating feature, adding vastly to the enjoyment of those not familiar with musical history, especially in this particular branch, chamber music, now being so finely brought before them. The first item, Dvorak's superb Piano Quintet, Opus 81, received a magnificent rendition by Helen Novy, piano; George Hrusa, first violin; Joseph Roda, second violin; Albert Belsan, viola, and A. V. Cerny, violoncello, whose ensemble work, in which every detail was accounted for with that strictness in taking pains of which genius is said to consist, showed their remarkable unanimity of purpose. Helen Novy gave an excellent exposition of the exacting piano part, sure and well balanced. Seldom is the 'cello heard to such advantage as in the frequently recurring solo phrases, and, in the hands of Mr. A. V. Cerny, a matured artist, the noble instrument toned forth those exquisite strains with the pathos, dignity and power they demand. Here he was as adequately answered by George Hrusa's fine violin passages, and most ably did Messrs. Joseph Roda, second violin, and A. Belsan, viola, add their excellent share.

The Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," in which Madame Julia Pribyl-Geringer's clear, sweet soprano voice was heard to fine advantage, with accompaniment of organ and piano and 'cello obligato, was a much appreciated number, as also Mr. Joseph Hurt's selection of the "Carmen" aria, and, as encore, a charming little Bohemian folk-song. Helen Novy, the very talented young pianist, gave a powerful and thoroughly sympathetic interpretation of Napravnik's fine "Concert Fantasie on Bohemian Airs," with a brilliance and surety that delighted and won her round after round of applause, to which she responded with a charming encore number.

Of George Hrusa's violin solo, the "Faust Fantasie" (Wieniawski), nothing but the most unqualified praise can be given; his virtuosic performance was a triumph throughout, satisfying the most critical, and bringing bursts of the warmest applause till he responded with the dainty and ever favorite "Ronde de Lutins" (Bazini). Later his excellent arrangement of Rubinstein's "Kamennoi Ostrow" for strings, piano and organ—in which Miss Hattie Kovarik rendered valuable assistance at the organ—proved one of the most deeply appreciated excerpts. "Der Freischutz" overture, joyously performed in exhilarating style by the quintet, ended an afternoon concert of unusual value and pleasure—the bright forerunner of the series arranged for Sundays, February 7 and 21 and March 7, at 3 p. m. AGNES BELDON.

A BOYS' CHORUS THAT SINGS

A visit of one hour at the Brown School, Warren and Hermitage avenues, on Tuesday afternoon, January 26, offered the privilege of hearing a boys' chorus of seventy-five voices do considerable fine singing under the direction of Miss K. Bestes. An enjoyable hour it was indeed. There was nothing special about the affair so far as the boys were concerned. It was their regular singing period, just as it takes place twice each week. This extra well-behaved class started their work with hardly a word from the director. The first sound heard was a beautifully blended humming chord, which was followed by a number of exercises with different vowel formations which were sung in perfect unison as to tempo and shading. Then came the part songs, which were beautifully sung throughout. A waltz song, full of expression, excellent tone quality and elasticity of tempo was a fine bit of singing, and the familiar "Holy Night" was given a rendition as rare as anyone ever expects to hear. The splendid reading ability of this chorus was revealed in their singing of the "Gloria" from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass," no small task for our choruses of grown-ups. The boys seemed to delight in its difficulties and bigness. Miss Bestes is apparently the right person in the right place. She knows her work and its results perfectly and seems to gain the end of her desires with little effort, either on her part or that of the boys. If anyone thinks or believes that a class of schoolboys at the age of about twelve do not take an interest in singing they should visit the Brown School on Tuesday and Thursday at 2:30 and become convinced.

Mr. Rene S. Lund, baritone, was present and besides giving a very interesting and instructive talk to the boys, set a splendid example for those desiring to become professional singers to follow. He sang three numbers, namely, "Compensation" (William Lester), "I Know a Little Girl" (Porter Steele) and Sidney Homer's "Banjo Song." His rich, resourceful voice and commendable ability as an interpreter was a genuine treat to the class and they applauded his work most vigorously. Public school children should hear more such singing as Mr. Lund offered. Miss Alice R. Deal was the accompanist for Mr. Lund and was wholly satisfactory in her part of the affairs of the afternoon. H. M. B.

Liebling Club—The regular monthly meeting of the Emil Liebling Musical Club (pupils of Mrs. L. J. Stumpf, Aimee Stumpf, and Dorothy Heywood) will be held Monday evening, February 1, at Hamlin Park Hall. There will be a short musical program, followed by a social time.

THE LITTLE THEATER

Miss Miriam Marmein made her debut at the Little Theater as a dancer last week and impressed with the originality and the beauty of her program.

She has, unquestionably, taken Isadora Duncan as her model, but Isadora never had such a congenial atmosphere in which to work (at least in Chicago) and the lighting effects provided by the Little Theater were a revelation indeed.

While much like the Duncan evolutions, the dances of Miss Marmein are, each one, distinctly original in themselves, and each one has a definite idea and a unique tone.

The shadow accompaniment for the Clown dance, for instance, is absolutely original and the "Fountain" is not only different but it is very unusually characteristic.

On the other hand, Miss Marmein's imitation of the Russian dancers is distinctly poor—the manner does not suit her at all.

The music chosen was thoroughly good and the evolutions were made to fit the pieces very definitely.

"Temptation" to a Brahms "Rhapsody" proved to be a lady-like case of delirium tremens which was, nevertheless, an interesting study. Cyril Scott's "Autumn" was made wonderfully potent and the lighting effects were superb. Grieg's "In the Hall of the Mountain King" was easily persuaded to typify "Evil" and Miss Marmein's characterization was convincing.

"The Spirit of Oyone," a Japanese study with music by Miss Marmein, was less convincing but, very likely, with much polishing it may be made a big success. It is original at any rate. "Caprice," set to Mendelssohn music, was very dainty, the "Fountain," as stated before, was of extraordinary value and "In Karnak's Hall," set to music (very badly) from "Aida," was distinctly unique in conception but not effective in the fact that the imitation of the Russian angular movements did not seem to suit Miss Marmein at all.

This young lady, however, may feel very certain that she has done something entirely worth while and that after she has studied more and has polished each of her creations to an absolute finish she may very reasonably hope for an extended success; as her work stands at present it is highly entertaining.

C. E. W.

ESTHER MUENSTERMANN

Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto, who is filling many engagements this season, gave the musical program at the Englewood Woman's Club January 4. On February 2 she will sing at the River Forest Women's Club. On February 23 she will be one of the soloists with the Orpheus Choral Society when that organization gives a performance of "The Messiah" at the Y. M. C. A.

LECTURE RECITAL

Friday evening, February 5, Mr. D. A. Clippinger will give a lecture on the songs of Robert Schumann. He will be assisted by Mr. Robert Quait, tenor; Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist.

Little Theater—The following bill will be played this week at the Little Theater. Love in Danger, Three Cornish plays by Mrs. Haverlock Ellis.

GRACE METHODIST CHOIR IN GOUNOD PROGRAM

Under the energetic and alert baton of Mr. William A. Willett the chorus choir of Grace M. E. Church gave an exceedingly pleasant concert on January 25. The event deserved much better patronage than it received, for the different choruses had been well prepared, the parts were well balanced, and the tonal body good, and there was no let or hindrance to the enthusiasm of the singers. They acquired it in no small measure from Mr. Willett himself, who did everything possible to focus his means and make the musical message go straight. The program naturally included favorites,—the "Praise Ye the Father," the always and enduringly beautiful "Sanctus" and "Benedictus" from the "St. Cecilia" Mass, which have never yet been equaled, melodiously, and the "Unfold" and "Lovely Appear" from the "Redemption." The final number was the "Gallia" complete—a fitting climax, and made doubly effective by the fine spirit and understanding with which Miss Annette Pangbourne presented the pathos and sadness of the first solo, and the supreme appeal of the famous "Jerusalem" aria. Intelligent and well balanced were her approaches and climaxes, and her voice was obedient and responsive to the mental spirit dominating.

Miss Grace Grove was at the organ, capable, unflagging in zealous endeavor to support, supplement and enrich the vocal score, and also gave a good account of herself in an unfamiliar but brilliant "March Solennelle."

Mr. Collins J. Brock seemed to be a great favorite at the church, receiving the first recall offered. He sang "She Alone Charmeth" from the "Queen of Sheba," and on this occasion did the very best work that has come to the ear of the reviewer since his return to Chicago. There was a fine resonance to the voice, studied and impressive nuance and a new vigor and color to the tones that made for keen enjoyment. Not least of his merit was the smoothness and elasticity he gave to the very angular English text.

The choir is rich in soloists. In addition to those mentioned Miss Myra Hull sang sweetly, if not always true to pitch, the lovable "Green Hill" and the "Benedictus." Mrs. O. J. Emmons has a light clear soprano and did the "Sanctus" as well as the "Ave Maria" set to the Bach study. Miss Grace Daniels has nearly everything in her favor, youth, freshness of voice, temperament and good range, but all incomplete. She sang the solo in "Lovely Appear" as well as an aria. It is to be hoped a good teacher and the valuable discipline of training may be in store for the wise husbanding and use of such rare natural gifts.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MRS. CHARLES L. KRUM

Monday, January 18, Mrs. Charles L. Krum and Lillian White Freyn, Mrs. Lewis, accompanist, appeared in a musical program before the Chicago Artists' Society.

Wednesday, February 3, Mrs. Krum has charge of the musical program to be given at Armour Square. Mrs. Freyn will be the assisting artist.

Gamble Hinged Company—Mr. D. A. Clippinger's fine book, "Systematic Voice Training," on which the comments have been universally favorable, has been issued by the Gamble Hinged Music Company.

Middelschulte—Mrs. Wilhelm Middelschulte will give an organ recital at St. Paul's Universalist Church on next Sunday evening. She will be assisted by Bruno Steindenz, 'cello.

Diederich—Mr. Walter Diederich sang in concerts at Kentland, Ind., on February 1 and will appear at Logansport, Ind., February 16.

ELEANOR
Dramatic
SopranoIn Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANISTPUPILS--NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988COACHING--608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 22712

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

5943 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL ARTIST SERIES

This evening, February 5, the following artists of the faculty of the Cosmopolitan School will appear in recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall:

Mrs. W. S. Bracken, contralto; Miss Bertha Hart, pianiste; Misses Anne Irene Larkin, and Henriette Weber, melodrams; Mr. Gordon Campbell, accompanist.

Sonata, Op. 22 Schumann
So rasch wie möglich
Andantino
Scherzo
Rondo

Ombra mai fu (Xerxes) Handel
Spesso vibra per suo gioco Scarlatti
Oh, cessate di piangere Scarlatti

Gitanjali (Tajore) Carpenter
Credo

When I Bring to You Colour'd Toys
On the Day When Death Will Knock at Thy Door
The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes

Apple-Blossoms Martin-Weber
How Beautiful Were Once the Roses

The Elf's Dream turgenev-Arensky
The Barrel-Organ Alfred Noyes

Immer leiser wird mein Schlummer Brahms
Ein Jungling liebt ein Mädchen Schumann

Condescend MacFarlane
Thanks for Thy Hand Grieg

Nenia Sgambati
Toccata Sgambati

Etude Henselt

Miss Hart

ALFRED CALZIN RECITAL

Mr. Alfred Calzin will present the following program at the Y. W. C. A. Hall in Michigan boulevard, on Tuesday evening, February 9, under auspices of the Drake School of Music:

Variations on a Theme by J. S. Bach Liszt

Intermezzo, Op. 117, No. 1 Brahms

Rhapsodie, Op. 119

Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 2

Waltz, Op. 60

Ballade, Op. 52

Erotic Grieg

Humoresque, No. 1 Grieg

La Nuit Glazounov

Valse de Concert (Le Bal) Rubinstein

Nocturne, Op. 58, No. 5 Cyril Scott

Danse Negre, Op. 54, No. 5 Cyril Scott

Berceuse, Op. 11, No. 1 Liapounow

Campanella Liszt

###

DR. J. LEWIS BROWNE DEDICATES

NEW ORGAN

J. Lewis Browne, organist of St. Patrick's and Our Lady of Sorrows' Churches, inaugurated the new Austin organ in the Immaculate Conception Church, North Park avenue, on Sunday evening last. Full musical vespers prevailed, in addition to the organ numbers, the vocal forces being the combined choirs of St. Patrick's Church. The church was entirely filled with a congregation which thoroughly appreciated the splendid order of music.

###

Illinois College of Music—2831 Washington boulevard. The following students played last Tuesday evening at the college. This recital was postponed from last Friday, the regular evening. LaVera Nelson, Beulah Bassett, Roy Melind, Grace Behan, Katherine Austin, Roberta Brashear, Ralph Merrick, Frances Steinberger, Ellsworth Waters, Franklin Paul, Oscar Hollenbeck, Jessie Donaldson.

BENSON CHOIR BUREAU

The following is one of the many excellent programs presented by the Benson Concert Orchestra at the Chicago Athletic Club, Sunday afternoons, throughout the winter season. Edgar A. Benson has under his very proficient management several orchestras which give concerts every Sunday at the Del Prado and Chicago Beach Hotels as well as at other prominent Clubs. Mr. Benson, himself, a musician, having a number of years ago toured this country as a cellist in a well-known trio, has always before him in his work the high standard which is so amply illustrated by the talent

EDGAR A. BENSON

he employs and the comprehensive arrangement of his programs.

Soloist, Mr. Herbert Miller, baritone.

Overture—Hungarian Lustspiel Keler Bela

Selection—The Only Girl Herbert

I Hear You Calling Me Marshall

To a Wild Rose MacDowell

Suite—Cleopatra (in four parts) Oefmler

In Cleopatra's Barge

Anthony's Love Song

Egyptian Dance

Cleopatra's Death

A Toast Mary Turner Salter

Sacrament MacDermid

Love, I've Won You Ronald

Mr Herbert Miller.

Mr. Herman Schucher, Accompanist.

Intermission

The Opera Mirror Tobani

Containing Excerpts from Carmen, Barber of

Seville, Il Trovatore, L'Eclair, Faust, Rigoletto,

La Gioconda, Lucia di Lammermoor

Whispering Flowers Von Blon

Woodland Whispers Czibulka

March—Tannhauser Wagner

###

Rouse-Prahl—Charles Rouse, baritone, and Earl Victor Prahl, pianist, gave a program of songs by Helen Louise Birch at the Fortnightly Club last Thursday and will present a private musicale at the residence of Senator Beveridge in Indianapolis on next Sunday, when the Birch Songs will again be given.

ORCHARD SCHOOL OF MUSIC AND EXPRESSION

The following pupils program was given on Saturday afternoon at the School, 1535 Hyde Park boulevard:

Puppen-Tanz Mercadante

Melodie Maud Cameron

Aria from Lucretia Borgia Arr. by Gustave Damm

In Elfland Helen Tucker

Were My Song with Wings Provided Catherine Sefton

Se Saran Rose Hahn

Apple Blossoms Mrs. Corrinne Booth

Austrian Song Carlin Crandall

Air De Ballet J. A. Packer

Minuet Winifred Mosier

Boat Song Julia Tomlinson

Swedish Folk Song Etienne N. Mehul (1763-1817)

Bagatelle Arr. by Willy Burmeister

Little Romance Alexander Alison

Roses in June Poldini

Joy of the Morning Catherine Gardner

To a Wild Rose Gustave Damm

Erotik Schumann

The Little Grey Home in the West Kathryn Kennedy

April Morn German

Miss Ada Long

Mrs. Jean De Shon

Clarabelle Rice

Lohr

Batten

Miss Inez Tucker

###

PUPIL OF MAX. I. FISCHER

Alfred Goldman, a violin pupil of Max I. Fischel and Abe L. Shynman, pianist, will present the following program at the Fine Arts Theater this (Friday) evening.

Sonata, Op. 100 (A Major) Brahms

Allegro

Andante

Vivace

Allegretto

Mr. Goldman and Mr. Shynman

Concerto, D Minor (No. 2) Bruch

Adagio

Recitativo

Allegro molto

Mr. Goldman

Nocturne, C Minor Chopin

Etude, B flat Minor Mendelssohn

Fantasie, Carmen Mr. Shynman

Gavotte Mr. Goldman

French Song Mozart-Auer

Humoresque arr. by Burmeister

Bohemian Dance Borowski

Mr. Goldman

###

THE CHICAGO MARCHESI CLUB

The first meeting of the newly organized Chicago Marchesi Club was held Tuesday evening, January 12, at the home of Mrs. Edgar Finney, 123 East Chestnut street. A musical program of the evening included numbers given by Mrs. Eklund Scherstrom, soprano; Miss Kathryn Hillebrand, soprano; Mrs. Dove, mezzo-soprano, and Mrs. Gilbert Weeks, contralto. A musical function will be given on Tuesday evening, February 9, at the home of Mrs. Charles Wik, 5714 South Peoria street.

###

Van Sweringen—Mr. Howard Van Sweringen, whose picture is on the cover page of Music News today, is now located at 614 Fine Arts Building.

###

Hamilton—Jessie Mack Hamilton will give a studio song recital at her home, 5057 Winthrop avenue, on next Sunday at 4 p. m.

CARLILE TUCKER IN RECITAL

Mr. Carlile Tucker knows the value of environment and his song recital at the Blackstone Theater had the advantage of a well-contrasted and unique program, as well as a fine accompanist and an assistant artist who was not only very good but also distinctly different from the vast majority.

In choosing his program Mr. Tucker was careful to get great variety and much value into a short space of time, and his audience had cause to be grateful for the artistry and effectiveness of arrangement.

CARLILE TUCKER

Mr. Tucker is a master of languages and is equally at home in Italian, French, German and English text. He enunciates all these excellently and his English pronunciation is of such value as to make the story of each song in the vernacular absolutely effective.

Also Mr. Tucker has a truly poetic feeling for his texts, and very often, too, he rises to a dramatic climax. It may be seen, therefore, that his Homer group was particularly effective, for, aside from the musical values involved, he made "Sing Me a Song of a Lad That Is Gone," "The Last Leaf" and "How's My Boy?" each one distinctly characteristic, involving also a free and effective play of color and of poetic fancy.

"Lungi dal Caro Bene" (Secchi) comprised the Italian contribution to the program; "Heimliche Aufforderung" (Strauss) and "Waldensamkeit" (Reger) were the German contributions, sung with much intensity, and "Soupir," "Chanson" and "La Jeunesse n' a q'un Temps" (Hillemacher) and "Printemps Nouveau" (Vidal) were the French numbers, proving a particularly good enunciation of that text by Mr. Tucker, and the program contained such other English text songs besides Homer as "May the Maiden," by Carpenter, and "A Fool's Soliloquy," by Campbell-Tipton.

In all these Mr. Tucker showed much musicianship and great good taste in interpretation, and in these items he was amply seconded by his accompanist, Robert Gale Smith.

Mr. Tucker sang several encores, the most charming of which was the "Four-leaf Clover," for which he played his own accompaniment. Not only was the song well presented, but the accompaniment was exquisite, giving further proof of Mr. Tucker's talent and versatility.

The alternate artist was Gilbert Shorter, an impressionist-reader of great power and artistic finish.

Not many readers can so vitalize a story as can Mr. Shorter, and not a single one is

EDWARD

WALKER

Concert---Oratorio---Recital

1325 E. 64th

TENOR

in mind who excels him in finesse of expression.

"King Robert of Sicily," "Aux Italiens," "The Duet" and "The Soul of the Violin" were all read with great expressiveness, and by way of encore Mr. Shorter gave a half dozen little skits, which were delicately humorous and dexterously pointed.

GILBERT SHORTER

Mr. Shorter's accompaniments were played by Florence Breyspraak. C. E. W.

Prahl—Earl Victor Prahl, pianist, played at the Playgoers Club last Sunday.

STEIN CONSERVATORY

The pupils of the Stein Musical-Dramatic Conservatory certainly have the advantage of appearing on numerous and successful recitals which prove the faculty to be of the best.

Another interesting one was given last Wednesday evening by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Stein, Mr. Erst and Mr. Hrusa. The vocal duet, the solo by Miss Reincke, the reading by Miss Dahly, and the piano solo by Miss Palmer stood out as being especially artistic, and the play, as always, was distinctly well done, Mr. Sheffield, as the impatient bridegroom, and Miss Paulsen, as the aunt, carrying off the honors.

Following is the program:

Scarf Dance	Chaminade
	Mildred Montessor
Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 2	Chopin
	Thania Vojan
All That I Ask	Coleman
The Blackbird	Weatherly
	Christine Deuel
Valse in E Minor	Chopin
	Camille Kosar
Air	Fibich
Caprice	Bigelow
	Harry Mandel
Love	Pinsuti
	Ruth Dahly—Maurice Fisher
Momento Gioioso	Moszkowski
	Anna Svikhart
Dumka	Friml
	Henry Zika
Ballade, Op. 20	Reinecke
	Marion Ledgerwood
Helene Thamre	Phelps
	Ruth Dahly
Il Bacio	Arditi
	Blanche Reincke
Autumn	Moszkowski
	Hazel Palmer
The Sheriff	Bagg
Time—The day of the wedding at Miss Adam's house
Frances Page	Eleanor Grimm
Ethel Ross	Marion Spiegel
Inez Adams	Marguerite Sheffield
Parker Glenn	Joseph Roda
Mabel Adams	Jeanette Winters Wright
Chester Phelps	Adelbert Sheffield
Sara Adams	Dora Paulsen
John Phelps	Gerrit Fisher
Anna	Matilda Stolarsky

NORMAL PARK BAPTIST CHURCH

On December 31 the choir of the Normal Park Baptist Church sang a Gounod program to a large congregation. The following numbers were given:

Organ—Minuet	Gounod
	Miss Beulah Lee Taylor
Chorus—Send Out Thy Light
Chorus—Nazareth. (Bass solo, Mr. Gordon.)
Soprano solo—O Divine Redeemer
	Miss Edna Miller
Chorus—Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee
Soprano solo—Ave Maria
	Miss Eva Peterson
Violin obligato, Miss Violet Ricketts
Chorus—Songs of Praise the Angels Sang
Tenor solo—There Is a Green Hill Far Away
	Mr. William Griswold Smith
Chorus—Unfold, Ye Portals (Redemption)
Postlude—March	Gounod
	Miss Taylor

Craven—The Presbyterian Choir of La Grange, under the direction of Carl E. Craven, sang, on last Sunday morning, "O Lamb of God" (Brewer) and "A Friend in the Homeland" (Havens), and Mrs. Avery and Mr. Craven were heard in the duet "I Will Magnify Thee," by Mosenthal. The personnel of the quartet is Mrs. W. G. Avery, Mrs. Carl A. Shumaker, Carl E. Craven and R. B. Hayward, with Mrs. Ethan Taylor as organist.

CECIL FANNING BaritoneH. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, Oratorio and Grand Opera. 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM Soprano

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS 131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER 82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS 54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS 1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE 419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott Teacher of Piano

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

800 KIMBALL HALL. Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter Contralto

Concerts Oratorios Recitals 548 Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

A "MESSIAH" PERFORMANCE AT THE NEW FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

H. Augustine Smith, director of the many elegant musical festivals held at the New First Congregational Church, presented his united choirs of 220 voices in two performances of the "Messiah" on Thursday and Friday evenings, January 28 and 29, to capacity crowds. The soloists were Lucille Stevenson, soprano; Rose Lutiger Gannon, contralto; M. J. Brines, tenor, and Gustaf Holmquist, bass, with John Doane, organist, and Mrs. Roscoe King, pianist, furnishing the accompaniments.

The high standard established at former festivals was well maintained throughout these performances. It is always possible that improvement may be shown, and just as possible that improvement may not be shown by a chorus as it passes through a season or many seasons, and perhaps one work is more grateful to a body of singers than another. At any rate, Mr. Smith gained some splendid and beautiful effects with his singers at this festival, which was not so prominent as heretofore, and a decided improvement was thereby disclosed. The chorus sang "And the Glory" in fine form, and their "O Thou That Tellest" was as bright and crisp as it should be to gain the proper effect. "For Unto Us" afforded the opportunity for a disclosure of improvement over their singing at former times. A splendid balance and unity of tonal volume was attained, and instead of the usual fortissimo entrance Mr. Smith held the singers down to a beautiful and very effective pianissimo, which continued to swell to a rousing and inspiring climax at the word "wonderful." It was indeed a praiseworthy accomplishment. The chorus gained the same effect in "Behold the Lamb." "Glory to God" was thrilling, as was "Surely," which is one of the most difficult of the numbers for chorus. "Lift Up Your Heads" was satisfactory and the "Hallelujah" chorus was immense. As is always the case, for the greater part of an audience, this number left a deep impression and was most vigorously applauded. The short numbers, "Since by Man," "For as in Adam" and the powerful "Worthy Is the Lamb" closed the performance. The singing of the chorus was elegantly supported by Mr. Doane at the organ, by his complete command of both the score and instrument. Mrs. King, at the piano, also filled out the ensemble to still better form.

Mr. Doane, by his excellent rendition of the overture, "Pastoral Symphony" and the difficult accompaniments which come with some of the solos, made a great success, and received a well merited share of the applause. No organist could have done better than he on this occasion.

The quartet of soloists took a great part in making the entire performance a genuine artistic success. Each of the four are singers of wide reputation, and the appearance of one alone is the occasion for a large crowd and much rejoicing on the part of an audience. Place them in a performance of the "Messiah," a work in which each has won numberless successes, and people will come from far and wide. Such was the case on Thursday and Friday nights. People journeyed from all parts of the city to hear such a fine array of talent. The singing of these solos by Miss Stevenson, Mrs. Gannon, Mr. Brines and Mr. Holmquist has been commented upon time after time in these columns. The results and successes heretofore gained were all repeated at this time and the pleasure accorded the vast audience was gratefully returned by continuous applause.

Mr. Smith, for his excellent work at this church, deserves all the praise and support which he now receives and more, if that can be possible.

H. M. B.

COLONIAL LADY QUARTET

Eleanore Capps-Hostler, director of the Colonial Lady Quartet, had charge of the musical program of the Massachusetts Colony and Shawmut Village Clubs at the meeting held at the Auditorium Hotel. The Colonial Quartet was assisted by Miss Mary Johnson, violinist; Miss Lucile Bourke, reader; Mr. Charles Riddel, tenor, and Mrs. Fannie Barnett Preiser, accompanist. The Colonial Quartet, the personnel of which is Mrs. Hostler, first soprano; Mrs. Crum, second soprano; Miss Volckmann, first alto, and Mrs. Krebs, second alto, opened the program with the Brahms' "Minnelied," which was given a good rendition. "Snowflakes," Cowen Parks, and Schubert's "Hark! Hark! the Lark" were received with much favor and won them much applause. Mrs. Hostler and Mrs. Krebs did some splendid singing in Hildach's "Passage Bird's Farewell" that was much enjoyed. Miss Johnson gave a good account of herself in the "Faust Fantasie," Sarasate. She draws a pleasant tone from her instrument and she plays with much assurance. Mrs. Preiser furnished a splendid accompaniment.

Mr. Riddel gave much pleasure in his solo, as did Miss Bourke in a reading, "The Frogs' Singing School," Bartlett; "Annie Laurie," Buck, and "The Rosary," Nevin, were the closing numbers sung by the Colonial Ladies' Quartet, winning them much applause, that was merited. Mrs. Hostler is to be congratulated for the success of the program. The hotel management would do a great service if they would make arrangements for a piano that was at least in tune.

H. W. P.

NORA LORAIN OLIN

A recital was given under direction of Miss Nora Loraine Olin at First Presbyterian Church of Aurora on Saturday evening January 23, the program being as follows:

List the Cherubic Hosts	Alfred Gaul
The Misses Patrick and Mills, Mesdames Kelley, Dickinson, Gustafson and Mr. Fryer
April's Message	Mary Turner Salter
Love Song	Haesche
Yesterday and Today	Gilbert Spross
Miss Grace S. Mills
The Gypsy	Adolf Weidig
Noon and Night	C. B. Hawley
The Little Grey Home in the West	Herman Loehr
Mr. Nelson W. Myers
June	Mrs. H. H. A. Beach
Love's Echo	Ernest Newton
Apple Blossoms	William Lester
Mrs. Flora Lindsay Kelley
Come, Gentle Night	Edward Elgar
The Windmill	Herbert Nelson
Mr. James A. Fryer
O for a Breath o' the Moorlands	Benjamin Whelpley
Reverie	Hahn
At Dawning	Charles W. Cadman
Mrs. Beulah Dorchester Dickenson

CUYLER AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

The special musical service at Cuyler Methodist Episcopal Church, Sunday, January 31, had as soloists Miss Marie Edwards, organist; Miss Mabel Woodworth, violinist; Mr. Joseph Marshall, bass; Mrs. Emma Sollitt-Sherman, soprano; Mrs. Geo. Hartrick, soprano; Miss Hazel Dustin, soprano; Mrs. H. H. Williams, soprano; Mrs. Edith Quayle-Wise, contralto; Mr. E. B. Elmore, baritone; Mr. H. H. Williams, director.

That Miss Edwards is a very reliable and capable organist, is a well known fact. She played some excellent organ solos and the accompaniments were of high order. Miss Edwards gave Guilman's "Grand Chorus in D"; "Even Song," Johnson; "Grand Offertory," Batiste, and "Festival March," by Smart, during the evening, adding much to the excellent program and the pleasure of the evening. Miss Woodworth is a charming violinist, giving the Adagio from the Bruch Concerto with a fine quality and color of tone that was a pleasure. Miss Woodworth made an excellent impression, as always, and added many new admirers to her already long list. Mr. Marshall gave as his solo number "A New Heaven and a New Earth," from Gaul's "Holy City," making a good impression with his splendid voice. Later he was heard to a fine advantage in a duet with Mrs. Sherman. They gave Nevlin's "Hark! Hark! My Soul" with a fine style, both vocally and musically. The chorus under Mr. Williams' direction gave a good account of itself throughout the evening. "No Shadows Yonder," Gaul, was well done and a distinct credit to themselves. The male chorus did some good work in the Edward number, "When the Mists Have Rolled Away." The trio, "I Waited for the Lord," Mendelssohn, was given with good understanding by Miss Dustin, Mrs. Wise and Mrs. Hartrick. "Great and Glorious Is Thy Name," Mozart, was given a rousing rendition. H. W. P.

— # # # —

WILLIAM CLARE HALL ACTIVITIES

The studio of William Clare Hall in the Fine Arts building is an exceedingly busy place this season. It apparently makes little difference what day or hour a person drops into this stronghold of song, there is always to be heard a voice of extraordinary possibilities going through a lesson or one of Mr. Hall's professional pupils receiving the benefits of his services as a coach, or perhaps Mr. Hall's excellent tenor voice will be heard rehearsing his own lengthy and varied repertoire of oratorio roles, operatic arias and concert songs preparatory to the many excellent engagements which he has and is filling this season.

Detroit will hear Mr. Hall in "The Creation" in the near future, and St. Louis will hear him in Schumann's "Paradise and the Peri" when the Pageant Society of that city produces that work soon.

Other engagements equally as notable are being perfected for Mr. Hall and will be announced later.

— # # # —

Fourth Presbyterian—A Bach Cantata was given at the Fourth Presbyterian Church on last Sunday afternoon with Cora Libberton, Emily Louise Stretch and Lemuel Kilby as soloists.

THE NEW KIMBALL BUILDING

"Another large building is announced for the Chicago loop district. Its estimated cost is placed at $2,000,000, and it will be erected by the W. W. Kimball Company on the site of the present Kimball Hall at the southwest corner of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard. It is the second big building project announced in the downtown district during the present week, and it serves to emphasize the rapidly improving general business conditions.

"It will also emphasize the importance of the corners of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard as the musical center of the city, as with the proposed new Lyon & Healy building on the site of the Wellington Hotel, at the northeast corner of the two streets, all four corners will be occupied by modern fireproof buildings owned by large musical concerns, the Steger building occupying the northwest corner and the Cable building the southeast corner.

"The Kimball Company building will be 200 feet high, the ordinance limit, and will contain sixteen stories, attic and three basements. It will front 122 feet on Wabash avenue and 109 feet on Jackson boulevard, with an extension in the rear to the alley, making an over-all extension east and west of 172 feet. The company will occupy part of the ground floor and some of the upper floors of the building with its general offices, warerooms and salesrooms. The Jackson boulevard frontage will be devoted to shops on the main, second and third floors. The upper floors will be rented for music studios and offices.

"One of the features will be the new Kimball Hall, 40x120 feet and 25 feet high, located on the second floor. The building was designed by Graham, Burnham & Co. It is planned to build it in two sections."—The Chicago Tribune.

— # # # —

FRANCIS MACKAY

Mr. Francis Mackay is presenting his pupils in monthly recitals. January 27, the following pupils at the home of Miss Bihl gave a very interesting musical program: Miss Esther Bihl, Miss Mildred Mayfield, Miss Ena Douglas, Miss Minnie Liner, Miss Dorothy Irvine, Mr. Fred Wise, Mr. Chester Tallman, Mr. Harry Blucker.

The purpose of these recitals given at the different homes is to prepare the pupils for public appearances.

SEBALD AND LEVY IN ENSEMBLE

The second ensemble evening of the series by Alexander Sebald and Henriot Levy at the Little Theater was given on Tuesday of last week and the success scored at the first evening was repeated at this time, when the Beethoven Op. 12, Bossi, E minor, and Brahms' Op. 100 (sonatas) were given with splendid success.

Mr. Levy is a pianist of the most distinct breadth and musicianship and with a graceful style which complements these qualities to perfection.

Mr. Sebald is a violinist whose technic is superb and whose musical feeling is on a like plane—the combination, therefore, of these two artists is ideal and the results obtained by them are at the highest plane of ensemble virtuosity.

The program of Tuesday was beautifully proportioned and balanced. Beethoven in his Opus 12, No. 3, is at his best; the adagio is particularly beautiful and the rondo wholly delightful.

M. Enrico Bossi, who was born so long ago as 1861, is yet distinctly ultra in many aspects of his writing.

Grove's Dictionary says: "His compositions are marked by great boldness of harmonic treatment, much originality of design and a certain severity of style. It was no doubt this last quality which induced him to give up operatic composition."

However, it is this very severity of style, combined with his originality and finish, which makes his chamber music so thoroughly fine and the Sonata in E Minor is one of his very best works. It is replete with variety and contrast and requires of the two players an immense amount of virtuosity.

The program ended with Brahms, which was not heard by this writer, but which, no doubt, served as an admirable foil to Bossi.

All three of the works were played with absolute seriousness of purpose and with a full complement of technic.

The tonal quality of both instruments was kept at the point of perfection and the interpretative thought injected was of the best.

There was present a goodly sized audience, and all friends of this kind of music will welcome the announcement that there is still another program to be given, the date of which is March 1, and this also will be given at the Little Theater, the program to include sonatas by Mrs. H. H. Beach, Brahms and Beethoven. C. E. W.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

26th Year.

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet.

AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

EARL R. DRAKE PRESENTS HAROLD FULLEN AYRES

Friday evening a goodly audience assembled to hear the young violinist, Master Harold Ayres, in recital given at the Auditorium Recital Hall. Master Ayres draws a tone of good quality and power. His technique is equal to the demands made upon it, which were many. He gave a varied program in a manner that was a distinct credit to himself and his teacher. The De Beriot Concerto No. 7 was given with a fine quality of tone and a good understanding of its musical values. Master Ayres in the Mendelssohn Concerto, Op. 64, gave a very convincing reading of the Andante and Finale. "The Bee" (Schubert) and the Schubert-Wilhelmi "Ave Maria" comprised the third group. "Ave Maria" was especially well done. The "Polish Dance" (Drake) was well liked, and Mr. Ayres gave it with an abandon that was very effective. The closing group, "Folk Songs," played by request, won him added applause that was much merited. He should be very successful in the musical field. Mr. Drake was at the piano throughout the program, furnishing accompaniments that were of high order.

H. W. P.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Program for Saturday afternoon at Kimball Hall, 3:30:

Symphonic B Minor.....Schubert
Allegro moderato

Orchestra

Violin—
Romance.....Butler
Canzonetta.....Townsend
Mazur.....Borowski

Miss Thelma Olms

Concert-stueck for Piano and Orchestra.....von Weber
Miss Dorothy Jacobi

Violin Concerto (First Movement).....Tchaikowski
Miss Ruth Ray

Serenade Op. 24.....Sandre
Molto moderato
Vivace ma non troppo
Andante con moto (violin solo, Miss Ray)
Allegro molto animato

Orchestra

Herbert Butler, Conductor

RADANOVITS ROYAL CHEF

Sandor S. Radanovits, who was presented the silver loving cup by the Press Club, for the staging of their program last spring, has been called upon in another capacity. Mr. Radanovits has been chosen to prepare the feast of Hungarian dishes to be served the members and guests of the Palette and Chisel Club this Friday evening, February 5. The Scoop speaks in terms that are very commendatory of Mr. Radanovits' ability as a teacher of voice and a singer of no small ability. The Scoop also recommends his cooking as well worth a special effort to enjoy.

PARK AVENUE M. E. CHURCH

The following music program was given last Sunday night under direction of Haydn Owens:

DUDLEY BUCK PROGRAM

Organ Prelude—At Evening
Chorus—Arise, Shine
Solo—Fear Not Ye, O Israel
Malcolm E. Wychoff
Quartet—Lead, Kindly Light
Euclid Male Quartett
Solo—My Redeemer, and My Lord
Miss Mayme Jenkins
Chorus—Festival Te Deum
Sermon—"The Elements of Music in Life"

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Friday, February 19, Mrs. Edna Swanson Ver-Haar, contralto, and Mr. Arthur Oglesbee, pianist, will be heard in joint recital in the recital hall of the Columbia School. Mrs. Ver-Haar is presented by George Nelson Holt and Mr. Oglesbee is presented by Mrs. Reed.

The Columbia Quartet has been filling some engagements in churches in and around Chicago with considerable success and will be heard in St. Charles Ill., on February 16 as a part of a regular course there.

The Columbia School Chorus (seventy-five voices), Louise St. John Westervelt, conductor, will be heard in their eighth annual concert Sunday, February 28 at the Blackstone Theater. The chorus will be assisted by Miss Anna Chinlund, pianiste, and Mr. Norman Saxby, violinist.

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.

218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

MABEL CORLEW SOLOIST AT ROGERS PARK

Although the weather was most inclement on last Sunday night, a good sized audience was in attendance at the Rogers Park Baptist Church. The regular quartet was assisted by Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, who sang the solos in the anthem, "Come Ye Disconsolate," by Ellis, and the contralto aria, "Woe Unto Him," from "Elijah." Miss Corlew was most happy in her selection. This contralto has a most appealing quality in her pianissimo tones, which were used most effectively in the Mendelssohn number. The regular quartet, Helen Headington, soprano, Antoinette Cleveland, alto, Maurice Mattison, baritone, Samuel B. Garton, tenor and director, sang most effectively "O Savior of the World," by Goss.

INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC

Saturday, January 30, the International College of Music and Expression presented pupils of the vocal, piano, expression, guitar departments in recital. The pupils of the different departments gave a good account of themselves in their various numbers, giving evidence of good training. The piano numbers were given by Grace Schwartz, Emma Clark Mottl, Evelyn Miller, Hortense Adamsky, Roslyn Grant, Evelyn Bernstein, Gertrude Campbell, and vocal numbers by Madge Wiederman, Elizabeth Rodgers, Otaya Mizuki. Reading by Miss Rosamond. Two fine songs by Eleanor Everest Freer were of especial interest.

JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

The consecration of the Rev. Herman Page, D. D., as Bishop of Spokane took place on January 28 in St. Paul's Church, Chicago—the church where Doctor Page had been rector for fifteen years. The service was a noble and impressive one, and the music for the occasion was well planned, appropriate, and very well rendered under the direction of Mr. John Allen Richardson, the organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Church.

In addition to the stately and inspiring processional and recessional hymns and other hymns in course of the service, the order of the musical service was as follows:

JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

Prelude—
(a) Etude, Op. 25, No. 7.....Chopin
(b) Adagio.....Max Bruch
Cello, Harp and Organ
Processional
Kyrie.....Tallis
Gloria Tibi.....Paxton
Offertory.....Gounod
Sanctus.....Gounod
Gloria in Excelsis.....Old Chant
Recessional

No especial singers outside the usual choirs were engaged for the service. The regular choir of boys and men, together with the St. Cecilia choir of women voices, gave the music in a beautiful and fitting manner. It was an evidence of the careful, conscientious, devoted work which Mr. Richardson has been organizing and conducting for several years.

The quality of tone was pure and beautiful, especially in the boys' voices in the Sanctus, and the different parts were well balanced. There was a simplicity and dignity, a reverent and churchly character in all the choral work that added much to the inspiration of the service. The opening numbers given by the three instruments were in harmony with what was to follow, and the organ under Mr. Richardson's playing held just the right proportion in the different compositions.

EDITH HIBBARD.

BALATKA ACADEMY OF MUSICAL ART

Thursday evening, January 28, pupils of Anna H. Balatka, Albert Koeppler, Ella Bachman, Jean Wilson, Max Bing, Albert Green and Anna Parker Saylor appeared in recital at the Auditorium Recital Hall.

The packed recital hall is proof enough of the interest taken by friends and music lovers, in the work of the Balatka School. The program speaks for itself as to the standard set by the teachers. Members of the ensemble class under Mr. Green's direction opened the program with Schubert's "Impromptu," and later furnished the accompaniment for the 'cello solo played by Leo L. Lillas. The work done by the pupils is much to be commended. Mae Purcell played the first movement of the C Major Concerto, Beethoven; Theresa Meyer was heard in Gottschalk's "Last Hope"; Mildred Dougherty gave Rubinstein's "Valse Caprice"; Ethel Scholefield in the "Capriccio Brillante," Mendelssohn; Lillian Skoglund, "Romance, F Sharp," Gruenfeld; Winifred Youngberg, "March Militaire," Schubert-Tausig; Winifred Gibbons, "Alice, Variations," Asher; Josephine Simonds, Moszkowski "Caprice"; Fred Pelaske, Weber-Liszt "Polacca Brillante." The violin numbers, Henry Schmitt, gave the Wieniawski "Souvenir de Posen." Misses Witzeman, Skoglund and Humpf, played a trio by Dancla; Evelyn Bittel sang "A May Morning," Denza; Esther Oppenheim, "Widmung," Schumann; "Elegie," Massenet, violin obligato was played by Louise Harber; Fannie Swarts, "God Remembers When the World Forgets," Bond; Mr. Bing and Lottie Krause were heard in "Calm As the Night," by Goetze. A farce comedy was presented by pupils of Anna P. Saylor. Miss Anna Balatka furnished the second piano parts, in a manner that speaks well for her ability. Accompaniments were played by Misses Krause, Bing and Carl Weiss. H. W. P.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, OAK PARK

Patriotic service in commemoration of Lincoln's birthday, Sunday evening.

Organ Prelude—
Offertory in E.....Wely
March—Hail Columbia.....John Hopkinson
Mr. Kinsey
The Star Spangled Banner.....Samuel Arnold
Choir and Congregation
Let the Hills and Vales Resound.....Brinley Richards
Quartet and Chorus
Song—Just Before the Battle, Motner.....George F. Root
Mr. Kimbell and Quartet
Song—Battle Hymn of the Republic.....Julia Ward Howe
Mrs. Gale and Congregation
Song—The Bugler.....Pinsuti
Mr. Dunford
Song—Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.....George F. Root
Miss Kaufman and Chorus
Organ—The Vacant Chair.....George F. Root
Mr. Kinsey
Song—Tenting on the Old Camp Ground.....Walter Kettredge
Mrs. Gale and Quartet
Song—Battle Cry of Freedom.....George F. Root
Mr. Dunford and Congregation
Sermon
Song—My Country 'Tis of Thee.....Henry Carey Congregation
Organ Postlude—March of the Priests.....Mendelssohn

Clark—Ella Clark, pianist, appeared as soloist before the Women's Club of La Grange, Ill., on last Tuesday, the occasion being a "Wagner program."

PALMER PARK

Sunday, January 31, the following program was given at Palmer Park, by local musicians.

Piano—Transcription of Sextet from "Lucia".....Smith
On the Wings of Song.....Mendelssohn-Liszt
Miss Effie C. Matthews
Solo—Because I Love You, Dear.....C. B. Hawley
Ethel Marshall
Josephine Pignata, accompanist
Violin—Legende.....Wieniawski
Louis Schneider
Solo—Melodie.....Gastaldon
Harry Germakian
Reading—Whea Love and Duty Meet.....May Ellis Nichols
Mildred Verhoeven
Piano—Valse in D Flat.....Wieniawski
Miss Effie C. Matthews
Announcements
C. H. English, Director
Violin—Mazurka de Concert.....Musin
Louis Schneider
Solo.....J. L. Roedel
Ethel Marshall

KURT DONATH

Wednesday evening, January 27, the pupils of Kurt Donath gave the following program at his studio in the Fine Arts Building:

My Delight.....Chopin
My Dear Old Mother.....Dvorak
Joseph Hurt
The Rosary.....Nevin
Julia Montague
An Irish Love Song.....Ruthven Long
Mildred Nisted
My Little Grey Home in the West.....Loehr
Maude Hirsch
Good' Bye.....Tosti
Mathilde Schuber
Sin Mai.....Kleffel
Irene Graf
Habanera from "Carmen".....Bizet
Pearl McAdams
Trio—Act II from "Der Freischuetz".....von Weber
Irene Graf, Pearl McAdams, Joseph Hurt
Aria from "The Messiah".....Handel
Open Thy Blue Eyes.....Massenet
Es muss ein Wunderbares sein.....Liszt
Minnelied.....Brahms
Aria from "Romeo and Juliet".....Gounod
Kurt Donath

CARL SCHURZ HIGH SCHOOL

The following musical program was given under direction of Charles Lagerquist at the Commencement Exercises of the Carl Schurz High School on January 28:

Grand march, Athalia.....Mendelssohn
Waltz, Les Patineurs.....Waldteufel
Carl Schurz High School Orchestra
Chorus
How Lovely are the Messengers.....Mendelssohn
Lullaby of Life.....Leslie
Elizabeth's Prayer (Tannhauser).....Richard Wagner
Miss Elizabeth Larson and Graduating Class
Chorus, To the Castle.....Melusina
Graduating Class

Schwickerath—Joseph Schwickerath will present his artist pupil, Elsa F. Holinger, in a song program, in conjunction with Clara Rubey, pianist, at the Chicago Settlement on next Sunday afternoon at 3.

Operetta—The Lake View Musical Society presented "Trial by Jury" at the Wilson Avenue Opera House last night. Review next week.

ANITA BAILEY

Miss Anita Bailey, soprano, of Gary, Ind., is a charming young woman with a beautiful voice, which she uses with no little artistry. Well known among the younger set in Chicago, Miss Bailey has been soloist in St. Patrick's Church, this city, upon a number of important occasions. Miss Bailey is coaching with Dr. J. Lewis Browne, who anticipates much success for her.

ANITA BAILEY

WOODLAWN M. E. CHURCH

The following program was very successfully given on Sunday evening, under direction of Charles E. Lutton:

Organ Prelude—Secret l'Amore.....B. O. Klein
Singing—Hymn No. 106
Prayer
Anthem—The Lord Is My Light.....Horatio Parker
Reading—Psalter, fifth Sunday
Solo—Crossing the Bar.....Buck
Mrs. Herbert Bailey
Anthem—Glory to the Trinity.....Rachmaninoff
Offertory—Soft Floating o'er the Evening Breeze.....Root
Quartet and Choir
Solo—From the Accursed.....Verdi
Mr. Lutton
Singing—Hymn No. 78
Motet—Hear My Prayer.....Mendelssohn
Mrs. Bailey and Choir
Choral Benediction.....Lutkin
Choir
Postlude—Grand Choeur.....Guilmant

Stevens—Miss Bertha M. Stevens will present a group of her piano pupils in recital at Auditorium Recital Hall on Thursday evening, February 11.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
E E C
Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard Concert
Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-
Violinist Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone
Drexel 3469)
SPERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA SMITH
MAY
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music
Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
5607 South Boulevard Austin-Chicago

WILLIAM WADE HINSHAW AS IMPRESARIO

It is perhaps not generally known to the many admirers of William Hinshaw's art on the operatic and concert stage that the big baritone was artistic director of an opera company in Chicago, not so many seasons ago—and what is more—that it was a highly successful opera company, both artistically and even—yes even—financially.

The Metropolitan Grand Opera Company of Chicago, as it was known, was organized and incorporated by William Wade Hinshaw, whose official title, general director, gave but small idea of the all-important role he played in every phase of the operatic management. Not only did Mr.

WILLIAM WADE HINSHAW

Hinshaw engage the artists, try the voices of all applicants and prior to the arrival of the musical director, conduct the rehearsals himself, but during the season of fourteen weeks, the first ten at the International Theater and last four at the Auditorium, he sang in one hundred and twenty-six of the one hundred and thirty-two performances—a record before unheard of—in grand opera.

Though the successful management of an opera company is indeed one of the most difficult, and to the layman well nigh impossible task, to a man of Mr. Hinshaw's vast knowledge—both musical and dramatic—his wide experience and unquestioned ability—the thing is comparatively simple.

"The chief point," says Mr. Hinshaw, "is to choose good voices and then train the singers—incessantly and thoroughly. Rehearse them—each one—every day and any day—until they are note perfect and wholly at ease in their stage action. The failures of so many operatic ventures laid at the door of an unappreciative public have been due more to a lack of thoroughness and true knowledge of fundamental requirements on the part of the directors and stage managers, than to any lack of public support or interest.

"When the public's confidence has not been abused and their critical judgment insulted by putting on mediocre performances with 'half baked' singers, they have responded enthusiastically and eagerly, for, all disparaging arguments to the contrary, the American people are musical and do understand and appreciate the best."—Musical Courier.

THE BARTHEL DUO

Among the choicest of local ensemble groups is the Barthel Duo, composed of Mr. and Mme. Alfred Barthel, sterling musicians and fine personalities.

For twelve years Mr. Barthel has been principal oboist of the Theodore Thomas and Chicago Symphony Orchestras, having been secured by that keen judge of musicians and of men, the lamented Theodore Thomas, while playing in the famous orchestra of the Paris Conservatoire. In our judgment, he is easily the first oboist in America.

His side-partner, Mme. Barthel, is an accomplished pianist and charming woman, and their "team-work" is most satisfactory.

Few concert-goers realize the beauties of the oboe as a solo instrument; those beauties will be demonstrated at the concert next week, Friday and Saturday, when Mr. Barthel is to play, with orchestral accompaniment, arranged by Mr. Stock, the wonderfully beautiful concert in D, by Mozart.

It was our good fortune to hear this work at the Barthel home in Maywood, Mme. Barthel furnishing the piano accompaniment. To say that the work so played was delightful, is faint praise; it was delicious.

L. F. N.

CHARLES ROUSE

Charles Rouse has been honored with an engagement of a private musicale to be given at the home of Senator and Mrs. Albert Beveridge, in Indianapolis, Ind., on Sunday afternoon, February 7. His program will be made up of English and French songs and manuscript songs of Helen Birch, the Chicago composer.

Mr. Rouse sang two groups of new songs with great success before the Fortnightly Club on Thursday afternoon, January 28, at their rooms in Fine Arts building.

Mr. Nicolai Sokoloff, the Russian violinist, was on this program.

Mr. Victor Prahil accompanied Mr. Rouse and will accompany him at the musicale in Indianapolis.

Mr. Rouse's fourth musicale evening will be on Monday evening, February 8, at his studio, 712 Fine Arts building. He will give a short talk on "History of Song," and a program of Folk songs from France, Germany, Italy and British Isles.

Chas. WEEKS Basso
E.
Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

People & Events

HOWARD VAN SWERINGEN

Howard Van Sweringen, tenor, whose picture appears on the front cover of this issue, is a young Chicago artist of unusual musical qualifications. Every turn in his life has brought with it an added experience in music. Born in Fort Wayne, Ind., of musical parents, with talented brothers and sisters, Mr. Van Sweringen at an early age sang as a boy soprano in the Episcopal Church of that city. Later he became the tenor of several quartets in the largest churches, all the while studying the piano with a view to concert playing. He came to Chicago to further develop his piano artistry, but his increasing interest in singing led him to begin serious vocal study with the late L. G. Gottschalk, and shortly after with Miss Liela A. Breed.

An interview with Mr. Van Sweringen discloses that he has made a most comprehensive study of tone—not alone of the voice but of the piano, violin, cello and other instruments. In the realm of the voice, he has in interesting theory that a remarkable "natural" voice is not the first requirement, but he holds that any person possessing a fair speaking voice, ordinary human intelligence, and the ability to work, is enabled by these three factors to sing well, to make a beautiful art of his singing. He bases this optimistic theory on his own work and observation, and his manifest sincerity is a sufficient guaranty for its working out. Mr. Van Sweringen finds that the study of singing has a far-reaching and entirely beneficial effect on the student, quite apart from the acquirement of a lovely art; for in learning to sing, one's speaking voice is greatly enriched and improved, a fuller appreciation and understanding of the world's great music is developed, and one is given the pleasure of being able to express otherwise muted thoughts in the happy medium of song. The entire personality is given a new force and growth by a proper study of song-art. And Howard Van Sweringen appears to be thoroughly equipped to provide this proper sort of music-study. His own splendid voice enables him to illustrate his unique and helpful ideas. His present success and his brilliant promise are fully justified.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Further comment on Mme. Bollman's work reads as follows:

Mme. Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano, artistically delivered the music of the part of the Hero. Mme. Bollman, preceding the cantata, presented a song group which included "The Little Gray Dove" and "The Song Fairy," in which she executed the trills and fluency and tone.—Milwaukee Sentinel, December 11, 1914.

Mme. Maude Fenlon Bollman, soprano soloist, who took the Hero role in the cantata, sang a group of little songs, in various tongues, in a flutelike voice, embellished with trills and cadenzas that won her warm favor. Two Brahms numbers were in the list.—Cantata, "Hero and Leander," given by Handel Chorus, Milwaukee, Wis.—The Evening Wisconsin, December 11, 1914. (Advertisement.)

Schlieffarth—Mr. George Schlieffarth of the Kimball Company has just issued a new song, "The Busy Signal" which is having a fine success.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG MUSICIANS

Among the opportunities which are being given by the National Federation of Musical Clubs to the American musician not least to importance is the newly formulated plan of providing music students of talent with the chance of demonstrating his or her ability to the world.

This plan, whereby twelve young American taught musicians may have the privilege of appearing on a program, as soloists, at the great biennial to be held in Los Angeles next June, emanates from the student department of the federation. This department announces state and district contests in voice, piano and violin, for musicians not over 30 years of age, whose training has been received entirely in the United States. The winners of the state and district contests are to give a concert at the biennial, and, later, secure engagements from federated clubs.

The state contest will be held at Peoria, Ill., some time after the first of March next, the exact time to be announced later, and in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News.

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

is open to any musical student of one of these three branches who complies with the conditions. If not a member of a federated club a fee of $1, which pays for membership in the student department, is all that is required. The judges, five in number, will be chosen from the ranks of the best musicians in each locality—one vocalist, one pianist and one orchestral conductor and one musical critic.

The conditions of the contest will be as follows:

Contestants must have received all their musical training in America.

Contestants must not be over 30 years old.

Contestants must perform entirely without notes before state jury, and later before district jury, at least three, or, if desired, more compositions, namely:

Vocalists—One air by Handel, Mozart, Gluck or an early Italian composer. A short group of German (Schumann, Schubert or Brahms), French and American songs. One modern oratorio or opera aria (English language preferred).

Pianist—One work by Bach or Beethoven, one work by Chopin or Schumann, one work by MacDowell, and, if desired, one work by Liszt or some other important modern composition.

Violinists—A Bach unaccompanied sonata or early classic Italian work or a Handel sonata, one movement from a Bruch, Saint-Saens, Mendelssohn or other standard concerto; two or three good short character pieces, showing style, finish, color, charm and individuality; one brilliant "show piece" by noted violinist composer (such as Paganini, Sarasate, Wienawski).

Contestants must perform behind screen and be known to jury by number only, thus insuring absolute impartiality. Contestants need not be members of a federated club, but, to be eligible, must join national club within student's department (for advanced students and young professionals), by sending with their names and addresses the fee $1, to vice president of their state, who will remit to federation treasurer.

Contestants must arrange for their own expenses in the contest, except where clubs are willing to help defray such expenses or when final winners give a concert (benefit) in their respective cities or clubs.

The prize will consist of the opportunity to secure engagements from the 309 federated clubs, whose delegates will come to Los Angeles with instructions to engage from these winners, if satisfactory, the artists for their American day program.—Chicago Herald.

LUCILLE STEVENSON

Some of the press comments of Miss Lucille Stevenson:

Miss Lucille Stevenson of Chicago, who is well known to musical Winnipeg, took the soprano solos. Miss Stevenson was in excellent voice, and enjoyed a most enthusiastic reception. She was perhaps heard to best advantage in the aria "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion," when she received quite an ovation.—The Evening Telegram, Winnipeg, January 6, 1915.

Miss Lucille Stevenson, vocalist, scored a veritable triumph and the audience were hardly able to get enough of her singing. Another visit will be eagerly awaited from this talented Chicago singer. Her selections included "Dove Sono," from Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro"; "Dearest Night," Bachelet; "A Rose Garden," Spross; "Her Love Song," Salter; "Summer Time," Ward Stephens; "Lullaby," Cyril Scott; "Sing to Me, Sing," Sydney Homer.—The Evening Telegram, Winnipeg, January 7, 1915.

Miss Stevenson, the Chicago soprano, and well known and liked here, sang with her accustomed vocal skill. Her beautiful voice is well adapted to oratorio work, as was brilliantly shown in the florid aria, "Rejoice Greatly," but the intensity of her individuality, and the poetic expression of a pure vocal tone and style in the solos, "Come Unto Him" and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," held her audience absolutely spellbound, so beautifully artistic were her smooth legato tones, yet modulated with devout feeling in her enunciation of the words.—The Winnipeg Tribune, January 6, 1915.

Miss Lucille Stevenson vocalized Mozart's aria, "Dove Sono" from his opera "La Nozze di Figaro," with exquisite charm of voice, and was no less successful in her two groups of songs which included "A Rose Garden," by Spross, "Summertime," by Ward Stephens, and a lovely "Lullaby," by Cyril Scott. In one of her encores she sang with much finish a pretty little ballad, "He's Such a Li'l Fellow," by our local composer, William Dichmont, whose songs are finding much favor in the east, and should be more generally recognized in the west, especially by singers in his home city of Winnipeg.—The Evening Tribune, Winnipeg, January 7, 1915. (Advertisement.)

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

Mr. Holmquist, basso, was heartily welcomed by the many friends who heard his recital two years ago, and by his splendid rendition added many more admirers. One cannot help but be impressed by the bigness of character which shines through his work and his solos were of additional enjoyment from their tonal beauty. Especially powerful were his renditions of "Who Shall Abide" and "Why Do the Nations."—Brookings, S. D. (Advertisement.)

Holzworth—Congratulations are in order for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holzworth on the arrival of a daughter, Lois Cooper. Mr. Holzworth is in the Summy Company employ and is also organist at the Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

GERMAINE SCHNITZER, STAR OF STARS, WITH THE PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

Not the least interesting of the concerts where the Philharmonic Orchestra has functioned this season was the one in which this body of performers was heard to such excellent advantage in a program of superior merit, on the afternoon of January 27, in Carnegie Hall.

This concert was arranged as a benefit performance for the Diet Kitchen Association, of which philanthropy Mrs. Henry Villard is president, and the house was crowded to its limits, doubtless in consequence of the drawing power of two famous names—cosmopolitan in the far reaching grandeur of their renown—and advertised several weeks ahead. The one was Germaine Schnitzer, pianiste; the other, Ernestine Schumann-Heink, contralto. Unfortunately the eminent prima donna of the luscious voice was indisposed, and as it was impossible, I am informed, to secure either Mme. Olive Fremstad or Miss Christine Miller, two American singers of enviable repute, whose engagements are many and continuous, Mme. Julia Claussen was substituted and sang a group of Wagner songs with good effect.

However, Mme. Schnitzer, who has a reputation for promptness, stepped on the platform on the dot after the conclusion of the first orchestral number, Bizet's Suite "L'Arlesienne," No. 1, played with fastidious care and feeling for the light and dark of contrasted shadings in this opus, so brimful of melodic material which later composers, even including Wagner, have not hesitated to avail themselves of, and proceeded toward the great Baldwin concert grand; herself a vision of grace, sprightliness and beauty, in a gown of palest orchid pink, with silver cuirass and garlands of silver poppies and roses clasping her slender waist, and clouds of pink drapery floating from her rounded shoulders.

Mme. Schnitzer has the art of choosing as well as wearing gowns, and Watteau himself has never painted a woman whose physical charms, whose tints and ethereal draperies were so encompassingly ravishing in effect.

The artiste presided at the piano in the development of the ever-delightful Liszt Concerto in E flat Major for piano and orchestra with inimitable authority and grace.

This concerto is a composition attractive in all its parts, and yet characteristic entirely of its composer's two contrapuntal hobbies: brilliancy and difficulty. The aerial significance of its trills alone define the masterhand in the enunciation of the finer technical effects; the runs and arpeggios flow like chaplet upon chaplet of evenly-ranged pearls.

Mme. Schnitzer is a virtuoso of the many phased. Her technic shows indomitable virility, energy and decision of purpose, and the insuperable power of calculating to a nicety the disposition of her effects; culminating in overpowering climaxes. Hence it was no task for her to clear up the difficulties and obstacles Liszt has set up for the demolition of the immature and presumptuous pianist who ventures upon the Abbe's sacred ground. She acquitted herself with that all-conquering power and matchless accomplishment, which made her Master Pugno divine, in the years of her childhood, the genius which was to enthroned Germaine Schnitzer in her early adolescence as a sovereign of the keyboard.

That she ingratiated herself with her audience was proven by the wildness and insistence of the applause. The recalls upon recalls that fairly stormed for an encore, and pleaded in the many sheaves of roses—great American beauties; baskets and bouquets of orchids, violets and lilies; a veritable riot of hot-house blooms and exotics.

A compliment must be paid to Mr. Stran-sky for his admirable reading of the concerto and the balance his conducting struck with the playing of the fair soloist. The orchestra held itself in hand to a man, and the result was a magnificent ensemble.

□ □ □

Germaine Schnitzer, Pianiste, and Marie Narelle, Soprano, in Recital

These two distinguished artists will be heard in concert in Aeolian Hall on the evening of February 8, and will render the following program:

My Mother Bids me Bind my Hair.....	Haydn
Two Gypsy Songs.....	Dvorak
Le Printemps.....	Gounod
The Foggy Dew.....	Milligan Fox
The Cry of Rachel (by request).....	Mrs. Salter
Mme. Marie Narelle
Two Etudes.....	Chopin
Toccata (by request).....	Saint-Saens
Mme. Germaine Schnitzer

GERMAINE

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

OF the Metropolitan Opera Company

BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL

HAUSER PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915

ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway

NEW YORK

Has the honor to present

The Violinist

ANDRE BENICIST, Accompanist

STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.

Harry

Culbertson

Aria "Adieu Forets" (Jeanne d'Arc).....	Tchaikowsky
Mme. Marie Narelle
Sous Bois	Staub
Venezia e Napoli	Liszt
Mme. Germaine Schnitzer
Die Allmacht	Schubert
Irish Lullaby	Hamilton Harty
Pretty Girl Milking her Cow.....	T. Moore
Danza, Danza	Durante
Der Schmied	Brahms
The Year's at the Spring.....	Mrs. Beach
Mme. Marie Narelle

Thuel Burnham's Successes

Thuel Burnham, the ardent young pianist, goes from triumph to triumph. His activities have been and are so numerous that a series of six recitals he was to have given in certain fashionable homes of the Metropolis have perforce been abandoned for the present, and probably pushed to the extreme of the season—long after Lent.

Burnham's personality wins before he strikes a note, and he duplicates in his pianistic enticements the buoyancy and piquant attractiveness of virile youth.

His many press notices strike one as echoes of this impression of youthful power. One western scribe announces in his particular journal:

"Prince of artists here. Thuel Burnham, than whom there is no better American pianist of his age today, is with us. After efforts spent in vain to bring this young master to us, Mr. Burnham responded with a recital, and all the technic of Mason and Leschetizky have come with Mr. Burnham."

Also the discerning critic descants upon his subject thus:

"Mr. Burnham's interesting personality is quite as attractive as his artistic abilities, and never was truer word written."

In Valley City there is the following summing up:

"Colossal technic, beautiful tone, absolute precision are common property with artist-pianists, but as one critic puts it: Underneath the brilliancy and technical fineness of Thuel Burnham there breathes in his playing that gentle breath of sentiment, poetry, imagination, passion, soul—whatever you may choose to call it, the still, small voice speaking to responsive hearts only when the true artist is at the instrument."

□ □ □

Mme. Julia Culp in Recital

Mme. Culp entertained a fair-sized audience in Aeolian Hall on the afternoon of January 30, with a program of rather conventional character in its choice of numbers. Groups of songs by Schubert, Schumann and Erich Wolff making up the whole.

While not in the freshest of voices, Mme. Culp seems to have given pleasure to many among those in the auditorium; she is the mistress of certain phases of expression, and makes her best points in the upper reaches of the voice when she does not push the tone or explode upon it.

She sang Schubert's "Forelle" with naïvete and archness, though somewhat rapidly. It is a pity that the majority of Lieder singers adopt a too accelerated tempo in this charming song, which demands something more of the laissez faire to emphasize and not obscure its setting forth of cunning against cunning in the eternal warfare in the struggle for existence.

□ □ □

Miss Isabel Hauser's Activities

Miss Isabel Hauser, a true devotee of the pianistic art, whose superb playing with the well-known Saslowsky "String Ensemble," has broadened her style, clarified her tempi and bestowed upon her the breadth and repose implied in the term, "all-around Virtuoso," has appeared recently as a soloist in a recital of strong interest given by her in New Rochelle, where her gifts are abundantly recognized and admired.

The recital took place in the residence of F. W. Baumer, of the well-known piano house of Steinway & Sons.

Miss Hauser offered a brilliant and varied program, proving how many-sided is her virtuosity. Its temperamental phases; delicacy, fineness, repose, reserve and energetic integrity.

The following numbers elicited warm applause and an insistence upon many encores, amiably and good-humoredly vouchsafed by this beautiful and gracious woman.

Rhapsodie, G Minor	Brahms
Scherzo from Sonata, Op. 5.....	Brahms
Prelude, C Minor.....	Rachmaninoff
Sonata, B Flat Minor.....	Chopin
Polonaise	MacDowell
Tarantelle

On January 13 Miss Hauser was soloist at the meeting of the New York Browning Society in the ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria.

She was rapturously applauded for a sensuously-warm rendition of that essentially Russian masterpiece of Rachmaninoff, the less-often heard "Prelude in G Minor," Op. 23, No. 5, a grateful and admired opus.

Miss Hauser also played with fine authority and evident understanding Brham's "Rhapsodie," Opus 79, No. 2.

Miss Hauser has been obliged to cancel several dates in consequence of her contemplated two weeks visit to the West. She will leave on the twelfth of February.

On the evening of February 11, Miss Isabel Hauser will give a dinner of twelve covers in her beautiful apartment in The Aphorpe, in honor of Mme. Germaine Schnitzer.

□ □ □

Miss Mylott Sings

Miss Eva Mylott, the Australian contralto, sang a program of length and merit on the evening of January 18 in Columbia University, assisted by Alexander Block, violinist. Miss Mylott was in excellent voice, and charmed her audience with her repose of manner, charm and temperamental singing.

Among the numbers greatly enjoyed and applauded were the lovely "Spring" Aria from "Samson et Dalila," "L'Angelus," "Oh That We Two Were Maying," and two groups of German and English songs.

□ □ □

Miss Christine Miller Visits the Metropolis

It was a great treat to have a visit and luncheon with Christine Miller, the charming young American contralto on a flying trip to New York to make records for the Edison and the Victor people; not only because it is good to be in the company of a successful vocalist who takes her conquests modestly, eschewing airs and graces, but for the pleasure one derives from looking at a naturally, peachily rosy complexion, innocent, ingenuous yet roguish blue eyes, and the pearliest teeth in the world, accompanying a perfectly natural dimpling smile.

Then, too, and what appealed to me greatly, this young artiste has a healthy appetite with a fine and commendable preference for good roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, a combination too often overlooked by the woman of the world who imagines that a luncheon ought to have as its piece de resistance the questionable Rech-auffee, the ambitious chef concocts and adorns with Gallic labels, whose integrity might unseat the intellect of a Brillat-Savain. And Yorkshire pudding is an experimental, even debatable, item even at the Plaza, though upon this occasion the difficile pasty was a thing of perfection.

It is plain to discover that Miss Miller is healthily optimistic in her outlook upon life as in her art, which she palpably adores and delights in. That she has a philosophy very much of the twentieth century and the cordial, wholesome breeziness of the spiritual diathesis going with such a philosophy is deliciously evident.

Up-to-date, cheerful, charged with the simplicity of an unspoiled spirit, Miss Miller has no reason to fear obstacles in her upward and onward voyaging as a discoverer in the sea—sometimes uncharted—of musical strivings and endeavors. She has steered her bark so successfully, and with vim and courage ever so much to the good and the pleasant as well as the helpful, that one senses involuntarily the special stars of happiness and prosperity in her heaven.

Miss Miller came to New York this time almost incognito, looking like the sprite of winter in her sealskin coat and furred toque with its cheerful posies, and she hurries back to her native occupations with an au revoir for her return to sing for us on February 16 in Aeolian Hall.

The charms of this peach-cheeked maiden are irresistible, so how can one help wishing to see her in New York as frequently as her many engagements permit.

□ □ □

Notes

Mme. Germaine Schnitzer has entrusted her affairs artistic for the near future and the next season to the hands of those bright go-aheadative, up-to-date managers, Messrs. Haensel & Jones, and many good things

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

HECKSCHER

CELESTE D.

COMPOSER

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

NORA LORAIN OLIN
VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8858

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri Res. 6811 Woodlawn Av

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

we may be sure are in store for her and her adoring special public.

Mrs. Robert Goldbeck, widow of the celebrated composer and pianist, and artist-pupil of Gustav L. Becker, is appearing in musicales and concerts. She will play in an exacting program on January 27 and again in a musicale her teacher is giving in his studio on February 3.

Mme. Narelle will give a recital on February 12 in New Rochelle. She will sing an aria from "Carmen" and several request numbers, among these Celeste D. Heckschers "Songs of Hungary."

It is promised that Thuel Burnham will be heard in one or two recitals sometime during February in New York. His pupils, of whom he has a number,—mostly advanced and in the professional class—have thus far waited for their coveted lessons in vain.

Mrs. John MacArthur will play the Schumann "Sonata" at the Scholarship Concert of the Thursday Musical Club on the eleventh of February.

MR. AND MRS. M'DERMID

Sibyl Sammis-MacDermid and James G. MacDermid opened their Western tour at Salt Lake City Monday evening, January 25, assisted by the Tabernacle Choir, Evan Stephens, conductor, and J. J. McClellan, organist. The program follows:

Il re Pastore	Mozart
(Violin Obligato, Bert Shepherd)
I've Been Roaming	Horn
Allah	Chadwick
When Phylis Takes Her Vocal Lesson	Garnet
Das Kraut Vergessenheit	Hildach
Les Cloches	Debussy
Quando me'n vo soletta (La Boheme)	Puccini
God Is Our Refuge	Dudley-Buck
Evan Stephens, Conductor; J. J. McClellan, Organist
Scend du Miroir (Thais)	Massenet
Tabernacle Choir.
My Love Is Like the Red, Red Rose Sacrament
Fulfillment
If You Would Love Me	MacDermid
The Song that My Heart Is Singing
If I Knew You and You Knew Me
Charity

The Salt Lake Tribune comments as follows on the recital:

Varied enough to appeal to music lovers of many tastes, and generally well presented, was the recital program given last night by Sibyl Sammis MacDermid, soprano, and James G. MacDermid, composer-accompanist, in Assembly Hall, under the management of Fred C. Graham. Mrs. MacDermid is a concert singer of high talent, who appears at her best in the interpretation of lyrics that touch the heart. She opened the recital with the Mozart "Il re Pastore," with violin obligato splendidly played by Bert Shepherd. Her best dramatic number was the "Quando me'n vo soletta," from Puccini's "La Boheme." In response to an enthusiastic encore, she sang with delightful expression "Guardian Angel" (Lehman).

More appreciated than any other selections of the evening was the rendition of Mr. MacDermid's compositions for a group of lyrics, seven in number. All were well presented, but "Charity" was the artistic gem.

The tabernacle choir sang "God Is Our Refuge," by Dudley Buck, with Evan Stephens conducting and Professor J. J. McClellan at the organ. The rendition called forth an encore.

The MacDermids will appear tonight in Ogden under the management of Mr. Graham and the auspices of the Ogden tabernacle choir.

(Advertisement.)

Plumb—Miss Esther May Plumb sang in "Samson and Delilah" on Wednesday evening at Tiffin, Ohio.

MME. VERLET'S VARIED REPERTOIRE

Although the coloratura artist's sphere of activities is known to be considerably more circumscribed today than it was several decades ago and although the taste for operatic music of the dramatic order has resulted only too frequently in a deplorable negligence of those perfectly legitimate principles of vocalism upon which florid singing is based, it is manifestly erroneous to assume that the vogue of brilliant ornamental song is extinct. On the contrary, the relative scarcity of its exponents today serves to lend signal interest to the appear-

ALICE VERLET

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE RALF KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD VIOLIN

CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

New Music Books of Exceptional Value

Four New Volumes of The Musicians Library

BOUND IN PAPER, EACH, $1.50 POSTPAID
FULL CLOTH, EACH, $2.50 POSTPAID

Send for complete list of volumes published, and Easy Payment Plan Booklet. Free on request.

Anthology of German Piano Music

Volume II. Modern Composers Edited by M. MOSZKOWSKI

A superb collection of pieces by German composers of the modern period, with biographical notes and critical comment on the pieces, by the Editor.

ONE HUNDRED SONGS OF ENGLAND

High or Low Voice

Edited by GRANVILLE BANTOCK

The most valuable collection of English songs ever issued, covering the period from the 13th to the 19th centuries. The Editor has contributed an authoritative discussion of folk-song and the examples in the book.

SIXTY FOLK-SONGS OF FRANCE

Medium Voice. Edited by JULIEN TIERSOT

French folk-song has charms and beauties wholly peculiar to itself. The Editor has made an admirable and interesting selection, which he has discussed in his scholarly introductory essay. Mons. Tiersot is an authority on the subject.

Five Quatrains from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam

By JAMES H. ROGERS

High and Medium Voice

Mr. Rogers' melodic vein was never more fluent, his harmonic scheme more vital, nor his economy of means to produce just the right emotional effect more sure. These songs will adorn any artistic recital program. Price, Each, $1.25 Postpaid.

DREAM PICTURES

By WILMOT LEMONT

Op. 6. Price $1.25 postpaid

Nine charming piano pieces. A pleasure to play and a delight to hear. The cover is a marvel of the printing art, in four colors, tied with silk cord, making the collection a most attractive gift to a musical friend.

"Destined to be the most successful suite since WATER SCENES."—Musical Courier.

LOVE'S TRIUMPH

By BRUNO HUHN

A Cycle of Five Songs. High and Low Voice. Price, each, $1.25 postpaid.

The superb vocal quality of Mr. Huhn's music adds the final word of recommendation to intelligent singers.

"Those who look for real songs, which are not only good music but vocally effective, will raise a paean of praise when they examine this work."—Musical America.

EARS, BRAIN and FINGERS

A New Text Book for Piano Teachers and Students
By HOWARD WELLS

Price, $1.25, Postpaid

Mr. Wells is an exponent of the Leschetizky method and has been a successful teacher of the piano in Berlin for a number of years. The object is to place in the hands of teachers and pupils, material which covers the fundamental needs of pupils, and a method whereby "Ears, Brain and Fingers" are trained to co-ordinate action. The chapters on ear training present much new and practical exercise. Every progressive teacher will want this book.

"A wonderful little work, absolutely unique, and remarkably complete in every department."—William Hatton Green.

Some Staccato Notes For Singers

By MARIE WITHROW

Price, $1.00, Postpaid.

The material consists of short, concise paragraphs on matters connected with singing, technical, artistic and interpretative, the purpose being to help singers to attain artistic freedom and independence. "Staccato Notes" refers especially to the numerous pithy and extremely practical and illuminating sentences which are scattered throughout the book. We predict a big success for this work, which is the fruit of a long and valuable experience as a singer and teacher.

"A unique little book. Abounds in good sense."—School.

Five Vignettes for the Piano

Op. 7

By F. MORRIS CLASS

Price, $1.00 postpaid

Sensitive mood pictures, excellent for interpretation and portrayal of emotional color. Handsomely printed with fine art title. A beautiful gift.

"Truly exquisite, with a flavor and fragrance that makes a most subtle appeal. I am going to put them on a program December 11th."—Leslie Hodgson.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY

150 Tremont Street, BOSTON, MASS.

CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.

10 East 34th Street, NEW YORK, N. Y.

ance of every gifted one. And as the love for dazzling vocal fireworks seems to be as inherent as ever in the public at large, the advent of a capable coloraturist is very often hailed with extravagant demonstrations of popular approval.

Such has been the case whenever Alice Verlet, the brilliant coloratura soprano of the Paris Grand Opera (national), Paris Opera Comique, Paris Gaiete Lyrique, Brussels Theater de la Monnaie, Monte Carlo, Nice and Lyons, has been heard, although Mme. Verlet is, so to speak, a coloratura singer, combining fluency, facility and brilliancy of the older school with the dramatic sense, the intelligence, the musicianship and the poetic feeling which is demanded today. By virtue of these qualities she imparts a degree of new life to many works widely regarded as old-fashioned. Her repertoire is far more comprehensive than that of average coloratura singers today, few of whom are equal to the stringent exactions of many of the older operas, having neither the necessary flexibility, range or knowledge of the distinctive style.

Mme. Verlet is at home in operas that are little more than historic names to the present generation of music lovers. This repertoire comprises a number of modern dramatic works, as well as the older ones.

Holt—In a recent "Running Comment" item Music News stated that Mr. Eames is president of the American Society of Musicians. This is a mistake, of course, for the office is held, and with great credit, by Mr. George Nelson Holt.

ALBERT SPALDING

Recent press comment:

A novelty was John Alden Carpenter's Sonata in G, which employed Mr. Spalding and Andre Benoist. . . . Mr. Spalding and Mr. Benoist gave it a reading which was a labor of love.

Especially commendable was his performance of the Bach suite in E major for violin unaccompanied. He gave it in pure classic style, with poise, vigor and sustained warm tone.—New York Tribune, January 15, 1915.

Mr. Spalding played yesterday as an artist, with simplicity, dignity, directness, with true feeling and depth, with ample assurance in technic. He offered interesting matter in his program, notably John Alden Carpenter's Sonata in G for piano and violin. . . . Mr. Spalding and Mr. Andre Benoist played the sonata with much sympathy and conviction.—New York Times, January 15, 1915.

In Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon Albert Spalding, American violinist, played at his second recital this season a sonata of John Alden Carpenter, of Chicago. . . . Its reception by the audience was one of hearty approval. . . . The well known qualities of refined, finished violin playing, always in tune and with good tone, were to be found in Mr. Spalding's interpretation of the Carpenter sonata, as well as in Bach's suite in E major for violin alone.—New York Herald, January 15, 1915.

Albert Spalding, the American violinist, assisted by Andre Benoist, gave the first of two violin chamber music recitals yesterday afternoon at Aeolian Hall.

The Carpenter sonata received an excellent reading from the two players. Warmth and beauty of tone and fine balance were qualities among its prominent features, while a rich and sweeping style served to give the composition the interest it merits.—New York Sun, January 15, 1915.

Yesterday afternoon, in Aeolian Hall, before a large audience, Mr. Spalding proved that he may become as much a factor among violinists as was his uncle Albert, long ago among baseball pitchers.

Mr. Spalding gave evidences, in the first two movements of John Alden Carpenter's sonata in G, of a distinct improvement in his art since a year ago. He played the third movement with success approximating his early efforts, and in the performance of the finale he surpassed anything he had done.—New York World, January 15, 1915.

Aeolian Hall was filled with distinguished and serious music lovers yesterday afternoon, when Albert Spalding, the talented American violinist, gave a concert of chamber music. Mr. Spalding has arrived at an enviable position in his profession. He has devoted himself seriously and studiously to his art, and the result reflects credit on his diligence and determination. His program yesterday was a mixture of the classic and the semi-romantic schools. His interpretations proved his versatility in style, taste and musicianship. The opening number was the Sonata in G by John Alden Carpenter. The work was filled with passages of great melodic beauty and technical brilliancy, each of which was revealed with feeling and finish.—New York American, January 15, 1915.

Mr. Spalding is always heartily welcome to New York. . . . His tone remains fresh, resonant and pure, and his vigorous interpretations are informed with that highly honorable enthusiasm which induced him to adopt his profession, and has animated him to his studies and in his spirit and attitude toward the masters that he renders. He began his program with a sonata by John Alden Carpenter, which, relatively speaking, had a certain dignity and picturesqueness of outline. In all senses the concert was an artistic success. . . . Andre Benoist was at the piano.—New York Telegraph, January 15, 1915. (Advertisement.)

OREGON, ILL.

Mr. Clarence Eddy played the following program here on January 19:

Concert Prelude on a German Choraie.....	William Faulkes
Song of Sorrow.....	Gordon Balch Nevin
"Will o' the Wisp."
Third Sonata in E Major, Op. 43 (new).....	Rene L. Becker
Prelude andante maestoso
Adoration, adagio sostenuto
Finale, toccata, allegro vivo
Boatmen's Song on the River Volga.....	Anon
Vorspiel to Lohengrin.....	Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Fantasia on "My Old Kentucky Home".....	J. E. W. Lord
At Evening (new).....	Ralph Kinder
Jubilate Amen (new).....	Ralph Kinder
Rondo—Soeur Monique.....	Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue, in D minor.....	Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song.....	William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction.....	J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Toccata in F Major.....	Thomas J. Crawford

ORCHESTRA CONCERT IN OAK PARK

The following program was presented Thursday evening, January 28, in the Second Congregational Church, by the Sunday School Orchestral Association, W. P. Robbins, musical director, assisted by Mrs. Mable Corlew-Smith, soprano:

Military March—Pomp and Circumstance (No. 2) Edward Elgar
Overture—Martha F. v. Flotow
Patrol—The Whistling Johnnies F. W. Hager
Songs—
Sing to Me Sing Sidney Homer
Way Down South Sidney Homer
Suite Caractéristique A. Tregina
Rhapsodie Hongroise
Polonaise
Lamente Persane
Danse Cosaque
Song—Lullaby from "Jocelyn" Benjamin Godard
(Violin obligato by Mr. Elmer Meisterling)
Concert Waltz—Athen Chr. Bach
Meditation—Twilight N. I. Hyatt
Galop Militaire—Attaque des Ulans C. Bohm
Songs—
A Spirit Flower Campbell-Tipton
Welcome, from Morning of the Year Cadman
Searf Dance, from Ballet Callirhoe C. Chaminade
Military March—Pomp and Circumstance (No. 1) Edward Elgar

This was the eleventh concert given by this orchestra since it was organized, four years ago. A fine spirit was manifested by the players throughout the program, and much commendable work was done. Doubtless, still better effects would have been gained in a larger room. A sixty-piece orchestra is much too ponderous for the ordinary-sized church auditorium.

Mrs. Smidt sang beautifully, as usual.

Her voice is too well known about Chicago to need description in this review. Her rich tones, excellent interpretation, and gracious manner won the audience.

Mrs. Leslie H. Burlin, who accompanied Mrs. Smidt at the piano, was in every way equal to the occasion, and gave fine support. As to the piano, we will refrain from expressing our thoughts, except to voice the hope that the time will soon come when committees who have the good judgment to secure first-class musical talent for their programs will see the advantage of furnishing a correspondingly good instrument for accompaniments. C. J. B.

MARIE SIDENIUS ZENDT

Marie Sidenius Zendt will be heard, but not seen, when her brother is married, February 10, at Patterson, N. J. She is having a record made of "O Promise Me, and it will be reproduced just before the ceremony.

Mrs. Zendt will be soloist at the West End Club Friday, singing two manuscript songs by Fanny B. Earle of Wilmette, Ill., "The Lilacs" and "Slumber Song."

Also at the Third Presbyterian Church Sunday afternoon, when Allen Bogen gives an organ recital.

Meeker—Augusta A. Meeker, contralto, was the special soloist Sunday at the Memorial Church of Christ.

THE AMATEUR CLUB CONCERT

The Amateur Musical Club's program for Monday afternoon, February 1, was opened by a performance of the "Andante Tranquillo" and "Presto," from MacDowell's "Concerto," in A minor, with Miss Marie Clement Moll taking the solo part and Miss Olive Kriebs furnishing the orchestral part on a second piano. The audience, which was somewhat fewer in numbers than usual, gave proof of their appreciation of the fine playing done by enthusiastic applause.

Mary Ann Kaufman furnished the audience with a delightful rendition of the "Sun Dial Cycle," by Gena Branscombe. "The Morning Wind," "Noon," "In Arcady by Moonlight" and "Open Road" are the four charming pieces which form the cycle, and are particularly grateful to the voice and style of delivery of this much admired soprano.

Minnie Cedargreen, violinist, is a welcome addition to any program, and she chose "Murmurings," "By the Fireside" and "Scherzando Fantastique," all by Cecil Burleigh, as her offerings upon this occasion. These are elegant numbers, and were played in a beautiful and very praiseworthy manner by Miss Cedargreen. Orpha Kendall Holstman was another singer who appeared during the afternoon and brought added enjoyment through her singing of "Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton; "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes," by Carpenter, and "A Birthday Song," by MacFayden. Her singing is marked for the intelligent use of the voice and splendid interpretation of the song at hand. She was very successful on this occasion.

These three soloists were accompanied by Eleanor Scheib in a sympathetic, finished and artistic style. One could not have desired more from the piano score.

The program closed with Mr. and Mrs. Rossetter Cole, giving the former's recitation with music, "Hiawatha's Wooing," which the writer could not stay to hear. H. M. B.

CAROL ROBINSON

The following program was given before the Chicago Woman's Club "Open Door" Department on Sunday afternoon, January 31, by Miss Carol Robinson, pianist:

Kinderszenen Schumann
Capriccio, B minor Brahms
Nocturne, C sharp minor Chopin
Fantasie and Fugue, G minor Liszt
Clair de Lune Debussy
Etudes Bortkiewicz
Nocturne for Left Hand Alone Scriabine
Concert Etude MacDowell

Signor Frosolono's quartet assisted, and played the Dvorak "Quartet."

On January 25 Miss Robinson played at a musicale at the home of Mrs. J. A. Farwell, and on January 29 at the Birchwood Country Club. On February 4 she played for the Chicago Woman's Musical Club, at the Congress Hotel, and on February 6 for the Woman's Club of Springfield, Ill.

Early in March Miss Robinson will play in Chicago, under the auspices of the Society of American Musicians, the recital being the prize won in the national contest for American trained pianists.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austh
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto—Permelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Hazel Huntley
Director—Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

If I Could Call the Years Back

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Retrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH

Published by

THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY ORCHESTRA AT KENILWORTH

Quite innocently, I promised to go out to Kenilworth last Friday evening, to hear Mr. Knapp's orchestra in a program that looked very inviting, indeed. I believed the statements of the editor and his satellite, that it was an easy trip of an hour, and followed their instructions dutifully. But, like the people in the song, who said farewell to the bright lights of Piccadilly, I found that everything was a long, long way from the center of affairs. At 7:15 I was ready for an Evanston express on the elevated. But one didn't come along until 7:30. I had a good book with me, so the time did not seem long until I found it 8:30, and Davis street not at hand. Hurrying to the electric a bit later, I found another fifteen-minute wait icily ready for me. I didn't dare say what I felt to the superior ticket seller, because all those North Shore people regard "The Electric" as a sort of sacred feature of the landscape. It always makes me think of the old lady who had a pet rooster and mentioned it always as "Him," with a big H. The fifteen minutes spread to twenty-three. The motorman said the time needed to get to Kenilworth was eleven minutes. That was lengthened into twenty. At last I was dropped near that picturesque depot. And opposite me was a building all aglow with lights, with the sound of orchestral din echoing forth, and with many motorcars standing about. I dashed towards it, and encountered a policeman. "Indade," he said, "and it's not the New Trier High School at all. It's a party at the clubhouse by the swells." Then would he tell me how to find the high school? It was a short wauk through the bit of a parruk beyant where I cud see the big light. Then to go two blocks narth and one east, till I came to the place.

It was a glorious night; bright, glittering moonlight overhead and the crisp, crunching snow under foot, and the gaunt, wide-stretching arms of the forest trees making all sorts of writhing figures among themselves and reproducing all their fantasies on the sparkling snow spread everywhere. I put on my ear muffs, turned up my coat collar, and didn't care whether school kept or not, for it was perfectly regal to be alone in the marvelous quiet, amidst such glorious pictures. Kenilworth is laid out like Riverside, as you may know, and so I was not surprised when my "two blocks north" landed me at a railroad track, and no way eastward save a short-cut through a back yard. I didn't quite like the way the dog barked, but when I heard his chain rattle I felt safe, for he could only bark so long as he was chained up. When I got to a road east bound, I followed its windings cheerfully, planning my revenge on the people who had sent me astray. Imagine what the proceedings would have been like had it been a dark night! I was about ready to give up, when I sighted what seemed a group of automobiles a good two blocks away. It was the right lead, and I was soon in the auditorium—two hours and a half from starting time.

Naturally, I heard but little of the concert. There was not a good audience present, although a long list of patronesses were listed. Had I passed them at the clubhouse? The auditorium is an echoing place, accoustically on a par with our own delightful Orchestra Hall.

Mr. Harold A. Knapp has his force of enthusiastic workers well in hand. They do a number of things that are along the best sort of lines, and, rather surprisingly, make their best showing in the more reposeful numbers. They felt the weirdness and mystery and charm of the Lohengrin "Vorspiel," working out its weavings to the rousing climax and then tapering off to the thread-like tones that are its beginning and endings. This was more satisfactory than the Charbrier "España," which was, at times, more noisy than brilliant.

The concert closed with a school song, accompanied by the orchestra, reciting the glories of New Old Trier. The pupils sang it with an irresistible gusto, and everybody stood up in its honor. As for me, I enjoyed it so much I wished I could sing in it myself. It quite repaid me for the jaunt. And there y' are, gentlemen!

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY

The Mendelssohn Conservatory, Carrie Scott, director, will give the following program at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Logan Square, Wednesday evening, February 10:

Quintet	Schumann
Margaret Andersen
Philharmonic String Quartet
Concerto, A minor, for pianoforte	MacDowell
Anna Swanson; Hazel Reid, second piano
Philharmonic String Quartet
Requiem	Homer
Mother o' Mine	Tours
Hvis du har varme tanker	Haken Brøsen
Mr. Joel Mossberg
Quartet	Torvald Fredericksen
(The composer is the organist of this church.)
Allegro moderato (D major)
Andante funebre (B minor)
Allegretto scherzando (G major)
Philharmonic String Quartet
The Fountain	Bartlett
Mendelssohn Conservatory Ladies' Quartet
Concerto, E flat	Liszt
Clara Andersen; Margaret Andersen, second piano
Philharmonic String Quartet
Violin Solo—Serenade	Haydn
Mr. Dasch
Canzonetta	Mendelssohn
Cello Solo—Etude	Chopin
Mr. Brueckner
Philharmonic String Quartet
Why Do the Nations (from Messiah)	Handel
Mr. Mossberg
Quintet	Mozart
Allegretto
Larghetto
Theme and variations
Philharmonic String Quartet
Iensome Stunde	Ole Bull
Now Good-Night	Parks
Mendelssohn Conservatory Ladies' Quartet

VAN DUSEN PUPIL

Mr. Marme Larson, a talented young piano pupil of Mr. Van Dusen, has written a musical setting to "The Courtship of Miles Standish," which was presented before the Fort Henry Dearborn Chapter of the D. A. R. at the Florentine Room of Congress Hotel on Tuesday, January 26, with Miss Marion Robb, reader, and Mr. Larson at the piano.

LESLIE SCHUTTE'S CONCERT

The program for the concert to be given by Leslie Schutte at the Masonic Temple in Austin next Monday evening reads as follows:

Capriccio in B Minor	Brahms
Rhapsody in G Minor	Brahms
Mr. Leslie Schutte
Sarabande	Geniniani-Nachez
Minuetto	Exaudet-Nachez
Russisch	Zimbalist
Mr. Aage Fredericks
Night and the Curtains Drawn	Serrata
The Morning Wind	Branscombe
Invictus	Huhn
The Floral Dance	Moss
Mr. John Rankl
Mrs. Haeffner at the piano
Where Blossoms Grow	Sans Souci
Across the Hills	Runnel
Nocturne	Nevin
Michaela's Aria from "Carmen"	Bizet
Mrs. Anna Breining Greulich
Larghetto	Mozart
Scherzo	Dittersdorf-Kreisler
Oriente	Cesar Cui
Mr. Hans Hess
Mr. Blair at the piano
Stella Del Marinar	Ponchilli
My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice, from "Samson and Delila"	Saint-Saens
Dawn in the Desert	Ross
Cry of Rachel	Salter
Miss Mildred Pillinger
Caprice in E Major	Schumann-Paganini
Etude, Op. 25, No. 9	Chopin
Etude, Op. 10, No. 12	Chopin
Mr. Leslie Schutte

Bachman—Miss Ella Bachman sang recently at two meetings of the Circle Intime, giving numbers by Massenet, Gounod, and Goddard, and has given groups of old and modern songs, preceded by explanations at a number of places—the Woodlawn Mothers' Club concert at Tracy, Ill., and a reception on Drexel boulevard. Miss Bachman's pupils, Miss Esther Oppenheim and Miss Leah Marks, sang on February 2, at the Hamilton Park Field House.

Proctor—Warren Proctor, tenor, will be heard in joint recital with Mrs. Mackson, contralto, at the Illinois Athletic Club, Sunday, February 7, p. m. Mr. Proctor has appeared at this club before on several occasions and has received great ovations at each appearance. The members of this club are to experience a rare treat in hearing this combination in solo and duet.

Minneapolis Orchestra—Katharine Goodson will appear as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Emil Oberhoffer, conductor, at its annual Chicago concert Sunday afternoon, February 28, at Orchestra Hall, under the management of Carl D. Kinsey.

Eppling—Miss H. Ruth Eppling will give a musicale at her residence studio, 1257 Early avenue, on February 12 at 8. Her pupils are preparing a Bach program, to be given in March.

Hartman—Miss Lucy J. Hartman will be the soloist with the Elgin Choral Society in Elgin, Ill., February 11.

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue
PEORIA, ILLINOISOpens September 11
For Catalog AddressStrong Faculty
Excellent Equipment
FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON, FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES
Soprano
HERBERT M.
BaritoneBAILEY

JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball Hall

Betsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET
LAWSONMULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLONBOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEWORATORIO CONCERT
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MABEL
CONTRALTO
RECITALMELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319CONCERTS
ORATORIO
OPERAEdith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.M
A
EDoellingPianist
Teacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HARTPIANIST
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, Illinois

Louise

LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITYW. Otto MiessnerSupervisor of Music
Milwaukee
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Bittman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard AvDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles Ott IowaLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church 2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUECLARENCE EDDY AT MONMOUTH, ILL.

The Knights of St. Paul, an organization of the First Presbyterian Church, are to be congratulated for providing for the music lovers of Monmouth an organ recital of such incomparable quality as the one given last night by Clarence Eddy, the eminent concert organist of Chicago and New York.

In view of the fact that the eminent performer has been proclaimed a virtuoso by musical critics in this country and in Europe, Mr. Eddy did not need to come to Monmouth to enhance his reputation; that was established long ago. Because of his reputation the large audience that greeted him last night was more expectant than usual, and only so great an artist as Mr. Eddy proved himself to be could adequately meet the anticipations that had been aroused.

The arrangement of the program was itself a work of art, the well-balanced numbers revealing a skill in selection not possessed by the tyro. Mr. Eddy's repertoire includes practically everything that has been written for the king of instruments, and some of the more celebrated of these compositions, together with original manuscripts dedicated to the eminent performer, were heard in the program last night.

Some of the numbers gave Mr. Eddy the opportunity to display his superb technique, of which he has been acclaimed the master, while others gave ample scope for his equally great interpretative genius. His wizardry with the pedals and his control of the whole organ were no more admirable than the charm with which he played the simple, sweet "Song of Sorrow," or the light, quick and dainty "Will o' the Wisp."

It would be difficult to say which of the numbers were the more pleasing, but it was evident some of them made a stronger appeal than others. The "Boatman's Song on the River Volga" and Wagner's "Vorspiel to Lohengrin" were a particularly satisfactory duo, but it remained for the "Fantasia on 'My Old Kentucky Home'" to bring out the most prolonged applause. The first number, "Concert Prelude on a German Chorale," proved a wonderful vehicle for Mr. Eddy's versatility, and its brilliant execution set the keynote for the entire performance. The skill in execution was also remarkably illustrated in Bach's "Tocatta and Fugue in D Minor." The performer was gracious with his encores, and gave an extra number at the close, when it was evident the audience was not ready to say good-night. —Monmouth Daily Review. (Advertisement.)

ORATORIO SOCIETY OF NEW YORK

Conditions in Europe prevented the delivery, in time for adequate preparation, of the music of Bossi's "Joan of Arc," which was to have been sung by the Oratorio Society of New York on March 24. In its stead will be heard a repetition of Bach's "Magnificat" and Wolf-Ferrari's "La Vita Nuova," with these soloists: Mme. Marie Sundelius, soprano; Miss Rose Bryant, contralto; Mr. Alfred D. Shaw, tenor, and Mr. Clarence Whitehill, bass.

Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari's bewitching and passionate cantata, based on Dante's touching narrative of a "new life," was sung for the first time in America by the Oratorio Society, December 4, 1907. It was repeated just a year later. Bach's "Magnificat" had its first presentation by the society, February 28, 1910. Singularly enough, Mrs. Edith Chapman-Goold was soprano soloist for all of these events.

"Joan of Arc" will be reserved for the first concert of next season, and to insure a fitting performance, the present rehearsal season will be extended for at least six weeks after the March concert. This decision was received with marked complacency by the younger choristers, who appear to sing with a peculiar zest in the balmy days of spring.

Willett—Stuart Woodbridge of the Willett School of Singing appeared as soloist before the Insurance Men's Club January 26.

KENNARD BARRADELL PRESENTS
"THE GOLDEN LEGEND" AT CLINTON, IA.

The Mendelssohn Choir gave the first concert of its seventh season under the direction of Kennard Barradell, "The Golden Legend," by Arthur Sullivan, being the work offered.

Mable Corlew-Smith sang the soprano role in a most satisfying manner, her voice having beauty and power enough to enable her to more than sing the part. In her group of songs following the cantata she pleased the audience greatly with her charm of manner. She is one of the most satisfying sopranos in the west.

Frank Barnard sang the tenor part easily and splendidly. His voice is always pleasing and adequate and his musicianship makes him reliable at all times.

Burton Thatcher sang the difficult part of Lucifer and did the trying music thoroughly and well, the "Piff Paff" number receiving most generous applause. Mr. Thatcher was dramatic enough to get well into the part, and in the trying ensemble passages was musically accurate.

Mrs. Phillips, a member of the choir, sang part of Ursula's music, and disclosed a naturally round and pleasing contralto tone. Miss Jessie Thompson won recognition by her smooth and comfortable singing of the aria in the last scene.

Robert White, another Clinton singer, sang the Forester part with splendid, vigorous tone.

The choral passages won more than previous approval, the shading being more in evidence than formerly. The epilogue number was aided by the strings from "The Clinton," under the leadership of Mr. Charles Lutz.

Excellent support was had at the piano. Miss Maud Arnold and Miss Alma Nissen alternating, the former playing for the song groups later and winning her customary expressions of delight from the singers.

The same gathering of music lovers was in attendance. Miss Olive Barker, soloist at the First Presbyterian Church of Sterling, Ill., and Mrs. Head, the excellent organist of the same town and church, were present, and, being there, they made the best of things. C.

CAROLYN WILLARD

Miss Willard entertained informally at her home on the nineteenth and on last Friday evening was a guest at the home of Mrs. John Cozode of E. Pullman street in Grand Rapids, on the occasion of a reception to Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Clara Clemens-Gabrilowitsch, another guests being Grace Dudley Fenton, a singer once well known in Chicago.

Bach Choral Society—The Bach Choral Society will sing the "Passion according to St. John," Bach and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," at Orchestra Hall on March 2, the soloists being Mable Corlew-Smith, Edith Ayers McCullough, Helen Bright-Bengel and George Hamlin.

Beresford-Snyder—Lorena Beresford-Snyder, formerly well known in music circles in Chicago, died in Texas last Thursday.

MARCELLA CRAFT

Recent press comment:

One of the season's biggest musical successes was the concert last evening in the Mohammed Temple by Marcella Craft, grand opera prima donna under the direction of the Amateur Musical Club. Miss Craft, who is just as good to look upon as she is a lovely singer, has a voice of remarkable volume, which she uses in a thoroughly finished way. It is a clear, pure soprano of beautiful quality. After hearing her last evening it was not hard to understand just why she had such pre-eminent success abroad. Miss Craft opened her program with a group of old Italian songs which she sang most capably, but she scored her greatest success in the "Madame Butterfly" group, possibly because "Madame Butterfly" was not only her biggest triumph in the operatic world, but because in the character of Madame Butterfly she put aside her own personality, giving herself up wholly to the spirit of the little Japanese "Butterfly." From the gay, happy entrance of Butterfly to the sad, plaintive wail of Piccolo Addio, "Farewell to the Baby," she was superb, holding her listener with decisive admiration. Her every number was splendid, displaying her wonderful musical qualifications that come from undeniable gift. Miss Craft was the recipient of great armfuls of exquisite flowers, gifts of admiring friends.—Peoria Journal, January 13, 1915.

Marcella Craft, one of the loveliest and most youthful of America's operatic prime donne, sang to a brilliant audience which filled Mohammed Temple to overflowing with fashion and culture last night. To a voice of rare purity and sweetness Miss Craft adds the further beauty of a bel canto as smooth and liquid as honey. Her songs are given with such perfection of phrasing and finish that each one is like a finely cut jewel and in spite of the lyric quality of her voice, her operatic training enables her to impart a notable dramatic value to her heavier numbers. No more admirably selected program has ever been heard in Peoria. The different song groups were not only calculated to show the art of the singers of piquant advantage, but were so cleverly contrasted as to gain greatly enhanced value thereby. The operatic numbers were of exactly the modern brilliancy and smartness which best emphasize the essentially modern art of this charming singer. Miss Craft created the soprano role of "The Secret of Suzanne," and the colorful and charming music of that role she sings with the most enchanting vivacity and zest, and a freshness and beauty of tone that were delighting to the soul. . . . Her rendition of "Schlagende Herzen," by Strauss, was so striking as to arouse the audience to a pitch of great enthusiasm, and a group of Italian songs, notably the much sung "Caro Mio Ben," to which she lent quite new loveliness, by the way, was also a favorite part of the program, the liquid Italian vowels being especially adapted to displaying the rare purity of the singer's voice. A group of songs by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach were admirably done, and in response to an enraptured encore Miss Craft sang the beloved "The Year's at the Spring," greatly to the delight of her audience.—Peoria Star, January 13, 1915. (Advertisement.)

###

CECIL FANNING

Recent newspaper comment:

A dramatic vocalist, a combination of singer and actor, . . . with a big voice, a young entertainer with the finesse of a veteran, was disclosed in Cecil Fanning, baritone. This pleasing gentleman is worth two of the ordinary singers because he has not only tone but descriptive power, aided by gesture. The expressiveness of Mr. Fanning's voice is marvelous, and while it is full and rich he can subdue it to a whisper or make it break into a laugh or fade in a sigh. His pictorial gift adds greatly to the interpretation and to the interest of the audience. Mr. Fanning, who has just returned from a successful tour in Europe, started his program energetically with the prologue to "I Pagliacci," sung in English. "The Sands of Dee," by Frederick Clay, showed the variety of the singer's art. "A Song of India," Rimsky-Korsakoff, was a surprising illustration of delicate runs given by a heavy male voice. Loewe's songs, "Henry the Fowler" and "Edward," . . . were really remarkable exhibitions of dramatic power and vocal modulation. . . . Two old French songs, with excellent diction and vivacious gesticulation, were exquisite, and the old English songs continued to show the aggressiveness of dramatic perception and the diversity of a voice trained to variety in expression. Mr. Fanning, who also took the solo part in the stirring "Song of Ancestry," Saint-Seans, had a brilliant and helpful accompanist in his teacher, H. B. Turpin, of Dayton, Ohio.—Troy Times, January 14, 1915.

. . . With a burst of song Mr. Fanning literally took Trojan music lovers by storm. His first effort was Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci" (prologue), wherein he proved himself an individualistic artist. With wonderful modulation and voice control Mr. Fanning added the personal equation of the true actor. His numbers, nearly all of which were of the same style and affording plenty of opportunity for the display of a vivacious personality, followed in quick succession. "The Sands of Dee" (Kingsley), Frederick Clay; "A Song of India," Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Henry the Fowler," Carl Loewe, and "Edward" (Percy's Reliques), Carl Loewe, were given with unending humor, purity of tone and sweetness blended with remarkable force and gusto. But five numbers could not satisfy an audience that had once had a taste of such a personality. . . . Mr. Fanning was again introduced in five numbers, which were even more effective than the first. "Le Petit Bois d'Aour" and "Le Cycle Du-Vin," from the old French, were presented with action as they were given when written before the introduction of the piano. In the second song the planting of the seed, the growth of the vine and picking and treading of the grapes were portrayed with a daintiness and humor that was climaxed in a long draught of the imaginary nectar. "Dame Durden" and "No, John! No!" from the old English, and "The Last Leaf," Sidney Homer, were given with the same satisfaction to the audience who called loudly for an encore.—Troy Record, January 14, 1915. (Advertisement.)

###

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

Ruth St. Denis, assisted by her company of six dancers, appeared at the Potter Theater January 21 and opened the series of Philharmonic concerts under the local management of Mr. E. F. Herbert, which are to be given here during the next three months. The first of this series each year marks an event in the social life as well as the musical life of Santa Barbara, and is comparable—in kind, if not in proportion—to the opening night of grand opera as it used to be graciously meted out to the music lovers of Chicago by the Metropolitan Company in a two-weeks engagement at the Auditorium. Various were the motives which impelled the large audience to greet Miss St. Denis on last Thursday night, and different were the opinions as to the artistic merits of such appearances; but long before her closing number she had made many of them present forget her physical self, forget even her own magnetic personality and think only of that which she was trying to present to them. Noble is her art, high, pure and uplifting, and refined is her presentation of it. She cast a peculiar spell over her audience in her first number, the "Hindoo Snake Charmer," which lasted throughout her appearances in "The Peacock," "Arranging the Flowers," "Danse Impromptu" and "The Mystic Dance of the Five Senses." She was assisted by an excellent company, including Ted Shawn, whose duet work with her in "Chaconne Shawn" (a dance of the time of Edward the Fifth) and the "St. Denis Mazurka" were moments of dazzling beauty and grace; Mlle. Psychema, depicting the straight lines of the "Egyptienne Danse;" Hilda Beyer, Saidee Vonhoff and Willard Foote. A thoroughly adequate orchestra, perfect stage management and elaborate scenery accompanied the entire performance.

A. B. BARNETT

###

Ross—Mrs. Edna McDevitt Ross, soprano, has filled the following engagements during January: 17, special soloist, Englewood Sunday Evening Club; 18, recital, Sorosis Club of Oak Park; 22, group of songs, Arche Club (at Lincoln Center); 24, group of songs, Central Eleanor Club (Stevens building). Mr. Ross is soloist at Trinity Episcopal Church, Highland Park, and on the evening of January 22 substituted at Temple Emanuel, in Buckingham place.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

MR. and MRS.

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL Mrs. Herman Devries

TEACHER STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL.

A DEVRIES OPERA EVENING

Last Monday evening was the stormiest of the season in Chicago, but this fact did not materially lessen the attendance at the opera performance given by Herman Devries at the Fine Arts Theater, and as for enthusiasm—never has it been so much in evidence, even at a Devries function, and never was it more deserved than at this time.

Mr. Devries is so well established as an operatic coach that he draws to his classes professionals as well as the very highest grade of amateurs, and therefore he is able, at any time, to put on an operatic performance which will measure up to the work of the best professional productions.

On Monday evening, among those appearing were Florian Varkony, who has made pronounced successes in various European opera houses; Lemuel Kilby, who sings at the Fourth Presbyterian Church and is well known throughout the middle west and the west as an oratorio and concert singer; Hazel Eden Mudge, who has made an Auditorium debut; Cameron Stewart, a singer whose concert and oratorio appearances have been many; Beecher Burton, a tenor who has sung in many big events, including oratorio at the Auditorium, and Marie Yahr, a splendid contralto, whose professional engagements in opera have been many.

The first two acts of "Don Giovanni" were presented with a breezy swing and a musical clarity entirely exceptional. The stage setting was good, the costuming very rich, the chorus highly effective, and as for the accompaniment, could anything be better or more sympathetic than Herman Devries at the piano?

Mr. Devries knows all operas, both musically and in their acting traditions, and when his pupils present any work whatever there is present the very maximum of authority and the true essence of the music.

Lemuel Kilby made a very handsome and a thoroughly musical "Don Juan." His enunciation especially was as perfect as any ever heard in opera. In this respect he was equaled by Mrs. Mudge, who also sang excellently.

One of the most charming moments of the whole evening occurred when Mr. Kilby and Mrs. George Hixon sang "Give Me Thy Hand," this being quite the vocal gem of the opera, and it was, at this time, sung flawlessly.

Mrs. Hixon, as Zerlina, was very chic and very effective. The audience liked her immensely.

Beecher Burton, as Don Ottavio, had not a great deal of opportunity, but such as he had was utilized to the utmost, and his parts in all the ensembles proved him a splendid musician, as well as the possessor of a fine voice.

Florian Varkony acted the part of Leporello with great unction, and showed himself not only an extraordinarily good singer but also the possessor of histrionic abilities and experience of the highest type. We ought to hear and see this artist with the Chicago Grand Opera Company.

Ethel Magie dressed the part of Donna Elvira sumptuously and sang it acceptably, and smaller parts were well done by Frederic T. Blum and Raymond Gifford.

This opera was followed by an act of "Lakme," the charming Delibes opera, which has music not excelled by any in beauty and which in story, costume and setting is brilliant in the extreme.

The Devries forces gave it wonderfully well, and the audience stayed until a late hour, enthusiastic to the very end.

Huntington B. Henry sang "Gerald" very effectively, Florian Varkony was absolutely authentic as Hilakantha, Lemuel Kilby sustained his good reputation as Frederic, and Cameron Stewart showed splendid voice in the small ensemble part of Hadji.

Mrs. Thomas Prindville disclosed a remarkable coloratura soprano voice and much good style as Lakme, and Marie Yahr, as Mallika, disclosed not only a glorious voice but also a stage bearing and action that were wholly appealing.

Dorothy Cannon, as Ellen, was cunning enough to warrant the enthusiastic applause of the audience for her one little song, and Filomena Sarconi and Margaret Gaffey sustained their parts well also.

Throughout both operas the dresses of all the principals were appropriate and rich, the costuming and grouping of the choruses were effective, and every detail of stage management was fine.

Probably there have never before been so many flowers in the Fine Arts Theater at one time as were passed over the footlights on Monday evening.

C. E. W.

WARRER PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

FRIDAY CLUB CONCERT A SUCCESS

The concert on January 29, presented by Mr. Marvin Hinshaw, assisted by Miss E. Louise Krause, soprano; Francis Hughes, tenor; Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist; Miss Alice Hinshaw, reader; Miss Helen Ryan, pianist and accompanist, and Mr. Hans Hess, 'cellist, proved a success to the club, both artistically and financially. The concert was given at the Logan Square Auditorium, one of the largest concert halls on the northwest side. Each number of the program was warmly received by a large and appreciative audience. This concert was the third and the most successful from all standpoints.

— # # # —

Krum—Below is a partial list of the public appearances of the professional pupils of Mrs. Charles L. Krum. Miss Klea Orschel sang at a large private luncheon at the Congress Hotel January 30. Lillian White Freyn appeared in recitals January 20, at Guthrie, Oklahoma, giving a miscellaneous program in the afternoon and a costume recital in the evening. Miss Myrtle Moses appeared on the program at the convention at the Congress Hotel.

— # # # —

Wengerd—Charles Wengerd, a Chicago singer and teacher of voice, has been missing from his studio, and his home since January 11. He left his home without preparation for a trip of any kind and was supposed to be going to his studio. He never arrived there, nor has he since been at his home, and his whereabouts and his fate have become a mystery.

MABEL CORLEW SOLOIST AT EPIPHANY RECITAL

For the eighth organ recital of the current season given by Dr. Francis Hemington at the Church of the Epiphany, Miss Mabel Corlew, contralto, was chosen as the assisting artist. With such help as this singer is capable of giving, combined with the well-known abilities of Dr. Hemington as a program builder and interpreter of the compositions with which he builds, results in a concert of great interest, charm and praiseworthiness.

Miss Corlew sang "Lord to Thee Each Night and Day" (Theodora), by Handel, which demands of a singer the power to sustain a full, sonorous tonal volume at times, dramatic intensity, at others, and unusual flexibility of voice always. She accomplished these feats in a highly commendable manner. She is also to be praised for the delightful rhythm notable throughout the number. She possesses a rich, resonant contralto voice, very suitable to this large church, and her poise and personality brings added enjoyment to the songs she offers.

Miss Corlew's other number was "The Lord Is My Light," by Oley Speaks, which is an exceptionally good setting of these words and a song very grateful to the voice of this particular singer. Her splendid enunciation was very noticeable in this song and her interpretation was teeming with fervor and deep expression. Her numbers were much enhanced by Dr. Hemington's fine accompanying. His organ solos were many and varied, but all were played in his usual finished and musicianly style. In opening the program came the "Overture" to "Oetius," by Handel, which is seldom heard but proved worthy of many hearings when played in the masterful style of this organist. A "Canzone," by King Hall, brought forth some delightful effects, and three movements from Guillemant's "Sonata," No. 7, showed Dr. Hemington and his instrument at their best. It was played so skillfully that one's interest was sustained at a high point from the first tones to the last. The "Caprice Heroique," by Bonnet, was excellently played, as was the beautiful "Moonlight," by d'Ervy, which displayed the excellent voicing of many of the stops in the Epiphany organ to good advantage.

A cleverly written and melodious little "Minuet in F," by Claussmann, was much enjoyed, as was the "Toccata," in D major, by Ralph Kinder.

A group of three request pieces, which included the "Polonaise," in A major, by Chopin; "Salut d'Amour," by Elgar, and the "Grand March," from "Tannhauser," closed the program, but was not heard by the reviewer.

H. M. B.

— # # # —

Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church Concert, Oak Park—A concert will be given by Marie Edwards, pianist; Edna Reiner Marshall, reader; A. L. Preiser, violinist, and C. W. Edwards, piano, at the Cuyler Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church on Friday evening, February 12.

— # # # —

Lyceum Arts Conservatory—A studio recital will be given on Saturday, January 30, at 3, by Maude Smith, Jessie Deers, Alma Merriman, Louise Milligen and Elizabeth de Barrie Gill.

LOUISE BURTON

The Galesburg (Ill.) Evening Mail comments as follows:

Miss Burton sings with confidence and ease, together with sincerity and great power of tone. Being possessed of a wonderful dramatic ability and a personality that charms, Miss Burton, throughout her entire program, gave genuine pleasure.

None is more critical than child listeners, who demand that things "ring true." Each child seemed to follow the mood of the songs, their faces expressing sympathy with the pathos or enjoyment with the mirth of the text. Many times they laughed aloud, and always their hands aided heartily in the applause.

Miss Burton changed from the stately singer of Italian arias to the real childhood of song. The metamorphosis was complete, for the second part of the program was sung in the dainty costume of a little girl. This surprised mothers and children alike, and aided in the perfect personification of the child in song. At the close of the program many little tots seemed to feel that the singer was one of themselves, and a number of childish voices piped: "I liked your songs, Miss Burton." (Advertisement.)

ESTHER PLUMB IN MINNEAPOLIS

Following is some comment on the recent "Messiah" performance in Minneapolis:

Miss Plumb's singing of the contralto solos was of the highest type. Only the organ voice of a Clara Butt could have magnified Miss Plumb's perfection. . . . a fitting purity of voice and individualized expression. It is hard to conceive of a more uplifting rendition.—Minneapolis Daily News.

Miss Esther May Plumb gave a beautiful account of herself in the contralto part.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Miss Plumb's voice is of true contralto quality, while the artist seems imbued with the best oratorio traditions. Her work was finished throughout, but naturally came in for chief attention in the airs "He Shall Feed His Flock" and "He Was Despised."—Minneapolis Journal. (Advertisement.)

Gale—Some of the recent appearances of Permelia Newby Gale: January 25, afternoon musicale at the Culture Club; Saturday, January 30, Mrs. Gale gave a musicale at the residence of Mrs. E. V. Gale, assisted by Miss Ruth Simmons; Sunday, January 31, Mrs. Gale was the soloist with Singer's Orchestra at Fullerton Hall.

Frothingham—George B. Frothingham, well known singer of light opera, died at Burlington, Vt., last week. He played the part of Robin Hood over five thousand times, the last time being the evening before his death.

Williams—Mrs. Frances Foxwell Squires and Mrs. Frances Lydston Murray, pupils of Mrs. Stacey Williams, presented a song program at her Kimball Hall studios on Tuesday evening of this week.

Kortzenborn—Mr. George Kortzenborn has been appointed choir director at the California Avenue Congregational Church and will begin his work there next Sunday.

La Roche—Miss Pearl La Roche will present her pupil, Master Clarence Buyer, in piano recital at the Little Theater on Monday evening, February 8.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA WINS GREAT SUCCESS IN THE EAST

The Eastern tour of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in March, 1912, which included Chicago, Louisville, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Washington, New York and Buffalo, was a succession of artistic triumphs most gratifying to the many admirers of Mr. Oberhoffer and the remarkable orchestra which he has brought to such a high degree of perfection.

It is most interesting to note the unanimity with which the New York critics and musicians commended the playing of the western orchestra, and the general feeling of surprise that Minneapolis should possess an orchestra rivaling the best in the country.

Mr. Meltzer, considered by many the most able critic in New York, wrote as follows in the American: "It is safe to say that with the exception of the great Bostonian organization founded by Colonel Higginson, no body of musicians in this country which devotes itself to symphony has excelled the Minneapolis society. But for local pride I might be tempted to add—none has equaled it."

The following are some of the expressions elicited from other leading critics and musical authorities, and which indicate that the enthusiasm of the great audience which listened to the concert was fully justified.

"The achievement of these musicians from Minneapolis has been simply astounding."—Alfred Hertz, Metropolitan Opera House conductor. "An orchestral performance of the first quality."—Irving Weil, Journal. "A very able conductor and well trained musician, worth hearing in any place and at any time."—Sylvester Rawling, Evening World. "Only the very best organization affords as much pleasure, and they not always."—Henry E. Krebbel, Tribune. "Many rubbed their eyes and ears and could scarcely believe that this northwestern city had so serious and spirited a symphony orchestra."—Edward Ziegler, Herald. "The Minneapolis orchestra contains good material. Especially rich and solid were the lower strings."—Globe. "A man capable of holding his own among the best conductors in America, and a body of players worthy of his baton."—Max Smith, Press. "Mr. Oberhoffer is a conductor of ability and authority, a musician of sympathy and understanding."—Richard Aldrich, Times. "Without doubt Emil Oberhoffer, the conductor, deserves the highest encouragement for what he has accomplished."—The Sun. (Advertisement.)

Manierre—Miss Julie Manierre sang "Frühlingsglaube" (Schubert), "Sylvelin" (Sinding), "Liberte" (Massenet), "Soft Footed Snow" (Lie), and "A Birthday" (Huntington Woodman) at a reception given by Mrs. Wheaton Aegur on February 1.

Dufranne—Music News is in receipt of the announcement of the birth of a daughter, Jacqueline, to Mr. and Mrs. Hector Dufranne, at Chatou, France. Congratulations.

Fullerton Hall—On next Sunday evening "The Juggler of Notre Dame" will be given at Fullerton Hall, the soloists to be Julie Manierre and Marion Green.

Kinder—Mr. Ralph Kinder has just completed a series of four important organ recitals on Saturday afternoons at the Church of the Holy Unity at Philadelphia.

Stavenhagen—Bernhard Stavenhagen, a German pianist who successfully toured America some years ago, died in Geneva, in December.

Stanley—Miss Helen Stanley has added to her concert repertoire Harold Osborn Smith's "The Place of Dreams" and is singing it with much success.

Benedict—Ethel Geistweit Benedict will sing February 7 at Grace Church, Oak Park, when the choir, under the direction of Arthur Randolph Fraser, will give "The Prodigal Son." She has also been chosen to sing the Gounod "Gallia" at a later date, with the same choir. On February 16 she will sing for the Tuesday Club.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

WANTED—Tenors and basses for North Shore Men's Chorus; best music; good experience; public concerts. Raymond N. Carr, 4652 Magnolia av.

WANTED—A second hand practice clavier. Address F. L. Denhard, 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

TEACHER of artistic piano playing, with strong personality, wishes position mornings. Address L. Music News.

TO RENT—Two months or longer; furnished studio; 75 Auditorium; can be seen 5 to 6 p. m. daily; or phone Wabash 6794.

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio. Suitable for voice or violin. Electric fan and telephone. 516 Kimball Hall.

TO RENT—Time in studio; on account of an extended concert tour, will rent time in a magnificently appointed lake front studio; Fine Arts Bldg.; for half price; address care Music News.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall CAPACITY 200

FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist
Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

HAROLD HENRY

CONCERT PIANIST
426 Fine Arts Building

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

THE BARTHEL DUO

ALFRED BARTHEL, Oboe
Soloist, Chicago Symphony Orchestra
MME. BARTHEL, Piano

AVAILABLE FOR MUSICALES
For Dates, Terms or Specimen Programs, Address S. F. Newhall, Glencoe, Ill., or ALFRED BARTHEL, 1509 South Sixth Avenue, Maywood, Ill.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE

CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304, Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs

5841 Prairie Av.

Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building,
Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Meermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIST

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Labece Bureau

Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Mellers Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Concert Recital
Oak Park, Ill., Phone O. P. 1478

Music in America

ST. PAUL, MINN

The following program was given by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra at the fifth concert in the St. Paul Institute series at the Auditorium. Alice Verlet, a Belgian coloratura soprano, was the soloist:

Overture to "Fidelio," Op. 72, No. 4.....Beethoven
Symphony No. 2, in E minor, Op. 27.....Rachmaninoff
Largo-Allegro moderato
Allegro molto
Adagio
Allegro vivace

INTERMISSION

Aria—"Caro nome," from "Rigoletto".....Verdi
Symphonic Waltz, Op. 8.....Stock
"Bell Song," from "Lakme".....Delibes
"Les Preludes," Symphonic Poem No. 3.....Liszt

The Rachmaninoff Symphony was the special feature of the program and though unusually long, held the attention of a large audience. The characteristic, melancholy and impetuous nature of the Russian people was felt throughout the work which Mr. Oherhoffer read with feeling and rare insight.

Mme. Verlet was an artistic singer. Her program numbers she sang with great ease but was at her best in the French songs she gave as encores.

The Symphonic Waltz, by Stock, was played with delightful rhythm.

The Beethoven overture and the Liszt symphonic poem were both wonderfully played and we were especially grateful for the latter.

The different sections of the Schubert Club have presented some admirable programs the past month.

An exceptionally interesting program was given at the Masonic Temple by Mildred Phillips Kindy, reader; Bessie Parnell Weston, pianist, and Harry Philips, basso cantante, all local artists.

Mr. Phillips pleased his hearers with his beautiful voice and interpretation of Wotan's "Farewell" from "Die Walkure" and songs by Brahms, Schubert, Carpenter and Arthur Farwell. Margaret Gilmore McPhail was a most excellent accompanist.

Bessie Parnell Weston was heard for the first time by many of her friends after a season of study with Rudolph Ganz, and was enthusiastically received. Rachmaninoff's three preludes, Nos. 2, 8 and 10, constituted her first group and were played with finish and given a masterful interpretation. Mrs. Kindy gave a dramatic reading of "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," Browning's poem set to music by Arthur Bergh, formerly of this city, which was delightfully played on this occasion by Carrie Zumbach Bliss. Mrs. Weston closed the program with Glazounow's Gavotte, Op. 49, No. 3; Etude, Op. 48, No. 11, by Liadow; Humoresque, Op. 10, No. 2, by Tschaiowsky and the fascinating Polichinelle by Rachmaninoff.

Mrs. Frank O'Mera, the popular St. Paul contralto, gave a very successful recital before the Matinee Musical of Duluth. Mrs. Harry Crandall was at the piano.

The active section of the Schubert Club gave a program made up of American composers at the residence of Mrs. Charles O. Krueger. A paper, "American Composers," by Kate D. Williams, was given, and those taking part were Nellie Fales, Ada Dahlgren, Marie Meyer, Ten Breck, Martha Rogers and Mrs. George E. Gere.

The St. Paul Composers' program given by the Schubert Club was one of the most interesting of the season.

"Heart of the World," by Gertrude San Souci; "For the Sake o' Somebody," by W. Rhys Herbert; a Scotch Folk Song and Gondola song by Leopold G. Bruenner, were delightfully sung by Alma Peterson. "Variations on an Original Theme," a serious and interesting work for piano, by Carl Helmaier was extremely well played by Dorothy Holmes. Two male quartets, "Night and Thee," and "Hymn Before Action," by G. H. Fairclough, were sung by the Apollo Quartet, Walter Mallory, Harry E. George, Grant Kelliher and Carl Larson. "The Heart of Farazda," a song cycle by Malcolm D. McMillan, was sung by Mrs. Frank O'Meara, with the composer at the piano, and it did seem that this singer was never more glorious.

A concert waltz by George H. Fairclough, was played with admirable finish by Charlotte Burlington, pianist.

A duet, "Within My Heart," from the opera "The Duke of Ebro," by Paola La Villa, sung by Alma Peterson and Mrs. Frank O'Meara closed the program. Altogether the program was one of which St. Paul could well be proud.

An organ recital was given by Mrs. Harry Crandall at the new House of Hope Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the church, where it is proposed to give a series of week-evening musical programs. Mrs. Crandall was assisted by the senior mixed chorus of the church numbering about sixty-five voices under the direction of Owen J. Bowman. Mrs. Crandall, as organist of the church, is to be congratulated on having so magnificent an organ at her command, and was heard to excellent advantage in the prologue by Rogers, Sonata in A minor, by Andrews, "Ave Marie," by Gounod, Intermezzo by Archer, Allegro Vivace by Wolstenholme, and Toccata in G minor by Matthews. The chorus gave evidence of splendid training in "Lift up Your Heads, O Ye Gates," "And the Glory of the Lord" and the "Hallelujah Chorus," by Handel.

Mr. Lemuel Kilby, a visiting soloist from Chicago, sang "It Is Enough" from "Elijah," and impressed his audience with the beauty of his voice and his admirable diction.

Added interest was given to the study of Russian music by the student section of the Schubert Club by the delightful and interesting lecture-recital of Russian music Constance Purdy gave before a large audience of club members. After her travels in Russia, where she spent five years of study, Miss Purdy went to Paris and studied with Charles W. Clark, Oscar Seagle and Jean de Reszke. Miss Purdy appeared in costume and was accompanied by Miss Mabel Hammond, who gave much pleasure with her artistic accompaniments. Following is the program:

Recitative and Aria from "A Life for the Tzar".....	Glink
Olga's Air from "Russalka".....	Dargomijsky
The Bells.....	Kallinnikov
Romance.....	Rubinstein
Lullaby.....	Balakirev
Rich and Poor.....	Borodine
Trepak.....
Hostess' Song from "Boris Godounov".....
Vision.....
Selections from the Children's Songs.....	Moussorgsky
Night.....	R. Korsakov
Pauline's Air from "Pique Dame".....	Tschaikowsky
The Water Lily.....	Rachmaninov
I Must Have Rejoicing.....	Gliere
Hushed the Song of the Nightingale.....	Grechaninov
Drinking Song.....	Glazounov

ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

The concert given by the Erie Symphony Orchestra on Sunday afternoon, January 10, brought out a record breaking crowd, due, no doubt, to the extremely popular program that had been announced. While it was not as satisfactory to the musicians of the city as some of the previous concerts given, nevertheless, the masses seemed to be very happy over such numbers as the "Thais" "Meditation," Rubinstein's "Kamenoi-Ostrow," and a selection from Friml's charming "Firefly." To the mind of the writer, the orchestra did its best playing in the prelude to the fifth act of "King Manfred," by Reinecke, in which the work of the strings was most praiseworthy. To the soloist of the afternoon, however, went the honors of the afternoon, for after his opening aria, "Ridi, Pagliacci," Joseph Erhart was given an ovation that would gladden the heart of any artist. He was compelled to add "La Donna e Mobile" and the charming "Siciliana," from "Cavalliera Rusticana." Mr. Erhart, who has had wide experience as an operatic tenor, is a native of Erie, and about a year ago returned to his home town, where he has made a splendid success as a teacher. His voice is a beautiful one and was never heard locally to better advantage than on his appearance with the symphony orchestra.

Victor Vaughn Lytle, organist of the First Presbyterian Church, will give a recital in the church on Sunday afternoon, January 23.

The second concert of the Apollo Club series will be given next Tuesday, when the club will have the assistance of Evan Williams, tenor, and Fritz Goerner, 'cellist.

The Erie Choral Society, with Henry B. Vincent as director, will make its initial appearance in a concert to be given in Masonic Hall on Monday evening, February 8. Mr. Vincent intends to make this program an all-American one, with Nevin's "Day in Venice" as one of the features, as well as one of Mr. Vincent's own choral compositions. Mrs. C. W. McKean, soprano of the Park Church Quartet, will be the soloist for this concert.

Victor Vaughn Lytle inaugurated a series of organ recitals for Sunday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church last Sunday from 4:00 to 5:00 at which time the following exceptionally well arranged program was given:

Giant Fantasia.....	Bach
---------------------	------

Prayer and Cradle Song.....	Guilmant
Andantino in D-flat.....	Lemare
In The Morning.....	Grieg
Lamentation in D-minor.....	Guilmant
Andante from Fifth Symphony.....	Tschaikowsky
Religious March.....	Guilmant

Mr. Lytle made his program doubly interesting by giving an informal talk on the works which he interpreted, thus enabling his hearers to listen with added appreciation. His performance of all the numbers was musicianly but in the "Andante" from the Tschaikowsky symphony he excelled, for in this number he obtained orchestral effects which were nothing short of marvelous. From a technical standpoint the playing of this "Andante" was a remarkable feat, for Mr. Lytle used the Lemare arrangement which is considered the bugbear of organists in general. The recital was attended by a large number who await with pleasurable anticipation the announcement of Mr. Lytle's next program.

The Apollo Club gave its second concert for the current season in the Park Opera House last Tuesday evening with Evan Williams, tenor, and Fritz Goerner, 'cellist, as soloists. Mr. Williams proved himself a superb artist as usual, even though suffering from a severe cold. Fritz Goerner, who journeys to Erie every month to play with the local symphony orchestra, was greeted with great enthusiasm and played as if inspired. Indeed, his playing was one of the most pleasant features of the evening. The Club was in splendid form and has never been heard to better advantage. Especially commendable were the fine pianissimo effects in the opening number.

Henry B. Vincent appeared before the University Club in the Hotel Lawrence ball room on Wednesday evening, January 27th, in his timely lecture on "Musical Indigestion." He was heard by a large audience of his townsmen and given a very hearty reception.

Mrs. Chas. W. McKean, who will be the soloist for the all-American program of the Erie Choral Society, has announced that she will sing a group of songs by Erie composers, comprising Harry Burleigh's "Bring Her Again to Me," Henry B. Vincent's "Love's Day" and Albert H. Dowling's "Constancy."

Francis Macmillen, the violinist, will open Mrs. Eva McCoy's Artists' Series, when he appears in recital at Masonic Hall next Thursday Evening.

Dunford—Mr. Frank Dunford sang in "The Morning of the Year" before the Culture Club at the La Salle Hotel last Monday, the other artists of the quartet being Mr. and Mrs. George L. Tenney and Mrs. Permella Newby Gale. Mr. Dunford was also a member of the Artists Double Quartet which appeared in "The Song of Miriam" at the Presbyterian church in Oak Park last Sunday afternoon.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue

New York Management M. H. HANSON

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard

Mrs. Charles Orchard

Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMAS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

THIRD ELLIS CONCERT, WORCESTER

Tuesday night, January 19, the third concert of the Ellis course was given in Mechanics Hall with a fair audience in attendance. The program was arranged for Mme. van Endert, soprano, and Miss Ada Sassoli, harpist. Richard Epstein sat at the piano.

It is unnecessary to write of the singer's work, voice, or artistry—it is secure, if she continues her painstaking efforts, and the pleasure that her listeners experienced at the late concert, was made very evident in the way audiences have, and she responded in the usual manner of the Ellis concert artists, by appearing upon the platform and bowing. For this some in the hall were grateful as it prevented the program from being too long, a grievous error.

Miss Sassoli was a new comer to the writer, and it has been a misfortune not to have heard her play the harp before. The harp is, a trite remark, an instrument with its own individuality ineffaceably stamped upon it, and it resents an attempt to make it speak a language not its own. This has been tried, by some that forgot the personality of the harp, and the result was undesirable. But Miss Sassoli knew her instrument, and gently coaxed it to say the things she desired, and the result was a triumph; and more love for this beautiful instrument.

Mr. Epstein deserves mention for his excellent accompaniments.

The vocal composers presented were Schumann, Schubert, Brahms, Gounod, Rogers, an Old English song, MacDowell, Leoni. For the harp, Bach, Pierne, Massenet, Zabel, Hasselmans.

The fourth Ellis concert will be Tuesday night February 9, with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Karl Muck, conductor, and Anton Wittek, violinist, as the program givers.

One month later the orchestra with Mme. Marie Sundelius, will close the Ellis season in Worcester.

Mme. Julia Culp, mezzo soprano; Albert Spalding, violinist, and Coenraad V. Bos, accompanist, were the attractions in Mechanics Hall Wednesday night, January 25, when the last concert of this season's Steinert's Series took place.

The size of the audience was encouraging, although empty seats were scattered here and there about the auditorium which accommodates more than 2,000.

The program was begun by Mr. Spalding, who played with a high degree of artistry, Porpora's "Sonata in G." This violinist, an American, by the way, has a future before him, no matter what victories have been left behind. He impresses one with his sincerity of purpose to achieve and, "where there's a will, there's a way," will be proved in his case.

Virtuosity in the technic of the violin, musicianship in phrase and nuance, tonal beauty of high degree, all were present, and with less restrained emotion, Mr. Spalding would have leaped the barrier into the field where so few of the world's violinists are found.

The audience was very demonstrative at each of his appearances, and he added once to his program.

Mme. Culp sustained her reputation as a lieder singer, and gained the approval of Worcester concert goers besides.

The program was:

Sonata in G.....	Porpora
Im Abendroth.....	Mr. Spalding
Die Post.....	Schubert
Ave Maria.....	Schubert
Adagietto.....	Mme. Julia Culp
Hungarian Dance No. 7.....	Bizet
Von ewiger Liebe.....	Mr. Spalding
Standchen.....	Brahms-Joachim
Wiegenlied.....	Brahms
Andantino Quietoso.....	Mme. Julia Culp
Mazurek.....	Cesar Franck
When I Am Laid in Earth.....	Mr. Spalding
I've Been Roaming.....	Purcell
Mignonette, ..	Old English
Alabama.....	Mme. Julia Culp
Waves at Play.....	Spalding
Campanella.....	Grasse
At Parting.....	Mr. Spalding
Wind Song.....	Paganini-Spalding
The Star.....	Rogers
	Mme. Julia Culp
	h h h

An Old Folks Concert

Tuesday night, January 26, there was an Old Folks Concert at the Old South Church. The program consisted of many old-time anthems, quartets, trios, duets, solos and choruses. A solo well known and sung many years ago, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," was given by Waldo E. Whiting, a singer of most promising voice. Another, "The Bandelero," was sung by W. Brown, the bass soloist at the church. Miss Lucile M. Brown sang Lohr's "The Little Gray Home in the West," Miss M. Whittlesey appeared in the soprano solo, "Grandma's Advice." "Dost Thou Love Me, Sister Ruth," was sung by J. Padgett and Miss Kendall, and "Larboard Watch" was the offering of H. Padgett and F. Sellars. "Cousin Jedidiah" was performed by Mr. Brown and the chorus; Miss Morrisette gave "I Hid My Love in the Heart of a Rose," Miss Kendall and Miss Boutelle offered "Across the Lagoon," and W. Karl Lations sang "Witch Woman." "Greeting to Spring" gave an opportunity to hear a male quartet, H. Padgett, Mr. Stickney, J. Padgett, W. Brown, and the "Light as Air" quartet and chorus from "Faust" closed the concert.

Faust was represented by Roy Vail, tenor; Marguerite by Miss L. Brown, soprano; Siebel by Miss Morrisette, alto; Mephisto by W. Brown, bass.

Three Periods of Music Described

Walter W. Farmer, a local organist and piano teacher, was the lecturer at the Levana Club, a club largely composed of teachers of the public and private schools of the city, recently. His subject was "The Three Great Periods of Music and Musical Composition," and he gave musical illustration of the types of music and composition described.

His first period included the "Fugues" of Handel, Bach and Mendelssohn, the second, described as the Classical, mentioned Mozart and Haydn, and that beauty and idealism was the distinguishing trait of the classical school. He declared that the sensation in listening to music of this period was that of being lifted to an ideal world, far above the pettiness of everyday life. He asserted that the flawless perfection of the music of this type was apt to become wearing, and one longs for the human interest of the third great period, or "Romantic Music."

Mr. Farmer compared Romantic Music with former periods and pointed out wide differences. Classical music, being impersonal, modern, or romantic, music decidedly personal, full of unrest, passion, tenderness, and the human appeal of life itself. Schumann was the composer chosen from this school and "Whims" furnished the musical illustration.

Contrasting the two latter forms, the lecturer said:

The difference is somewhat like that between epic and lyric poetry, as the epic is written by the man as an onlooker, and the lyric is the personal expression of the master. After all, we are all human, and are intensely interested in the emotions and lives of our fellow creatures.

I am always more moved and thrilled by the modern music. The peculiar rhythm should be accented, as that is what gives the character to the piece. Paderewski was severely criticised on his last appearance in Worcester for his emotional playing, but that is what the modern music calls for, after all. The changing moods portrayed by the Schumann "Whims" are one of the finest illustrations of the spirit of modern music.

The Quintonians, an organization consisting of first violin, Arthur Hanson; second violin, William Sargent; viola, Charles Meyer; cello, Clifford Stoughton; piano, the composer, Roy Stoughton, gave a unique and interesting program before the Northboro Woman's Club and its patrons in the Town Hall Tuesday night, January 12.

The program follows:

Petit Bolero.....	Tobani
	Quintonians
Poupee Valsante.....	Poldini
	Quintonians
Bourree.....	Squire
	Arthur Hanson
Berceuse.....	Godard
	Clifford Stoughton
Humoreske ..	Dvorak
Serenade ..	Herbert
	Quintonians
Prelude Op. 13 ..	Chopin
Prelude Op. 19 ..	Chopin
	Miss Jessie Cushing
Pansies ..	Bendix
Lilies ..	Bendix
	Quintonians
Reverie ..	Falconier
Elegie ..	Falconier
	Quintonians
Henry VIII Suite ..	German
Shepherds' Dance ..
Pastoral Dance ..
Morris Dance ..
	Quintonians

New England Conservatory Notes

Eurhythmics after Dalcroze was demonstrated Friday evening, January 22, before a large audience in Jordan Hall by a New England Conservatory class under direction of Mlle. Renee Longy, who has studied the method in Paris. This is the second season in which there has been instruction in eurhythmics at the conservatory, and the first in which the work has seemed sufficiently advanced to make a public demonstration. Director George W. Chadwick, during his sabbatical year, spent in Europe several years ago, lived for a time at Geneva and became well acquainted with M. Dalcroze, who was then perfecting the details of his system.

Mlle. Longy was assisted by Alfred De Voto, pianist, and Homer Humphrey, organist, both of the New England Conservatory faculty, and by a string orchestra. A class of thirteen young women executed exercises in mental concentration and independent control of the limbs, rhythmic plastic interpretation, ensemble rhythmic and plastic and other similar interpretative movements in accordance with the principles developed at Hollerau before the war interrupted M. Dalcroze's classes.

A course in Dalcroze work is now regularly offered at the New England Conservatory.

At the "Toy Theater"

On February 8 Mr. B. Iden Payne and Mr. Livingston Platt will bring to the Toy Theater their production of "Chitra," by Tagore; "The Bear," by Tchekoff; and "Womenkind," by Gibson.

Mr. Livingston Platt is really famous in Boston; because for two years he mounted the plays in the little Toy that was a stable on a fifteen-foot stage and created an illusion of space that seemed miraculous.

Mr. Iden Payne was for several years producing manager at Miss Horniman's Gayety Theater in Manchester, England. In fact, it is said to have been Mr. Payne who made the reputation of the Horniman Company.

Miss Mona Limerick, who will play the role of "Chitra," was leading woman in the Horniman Company for some time. An actress of unusual charm and of a strange, compelling personality, she has come from England especially for this engagement, as Mr. Payne found no woman in New York who satisfied his conception of the part.

L. S. B.

Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler

Mme. Zeisler will give the following program in Steinert Hall Thursday afternoon, February 18.

Mnuet, G Major (No. 2 from 6 Menuets).....Beethoven
Sonata (Apassionata), Op. 57.....Beethoven
Allegro assai
Andante con moto-Allegro ma non troppo
Moment musical, Op. 94, No. 3.....Schubert
Menuetto (No. 3, from Fanastie or Sonata, Op. 78).....Schubert
Song without words, Op. 62, No. 6 (by request)
.....Mendelssohn
Song without words, Op. 67, No. 4.....Mendelssohn
Invitation to the Dance, Op. 65.....Weber
Ballade, Op. 52.....Chopin
Etude, Op. 10, No. 7.....Chopin
Etude, Op. 10, No. 12.....Chopin
Valse, Op. 64, No. 2.....Chopin
Scherzo, Op. 31.....Chopin

New England Conservatory Notes

Members of the senior class of the New England Conservatory of Music gave a concert before a large and enthusiastic audience in Jordan Hall of the Conservatory building last evening (Friday, January 29). An important number was Cesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus," sung by Gladys Zimmermann, with violin obligato by Ruth Bullard, pianoforte accompaniment, Lyle P. Truselsel, and organ part by Charles H. Sharpe, Jr. Miss Joc Carr presented a group of songs from Rhene-Baton, Oswald and Cyril Scott, and Marjorie C. Shockey from Schubert. Other soloists were Adolph H. Vogel, Jr., Stanley Jacob Schaub, Marion Grey Leach and Lelia N. Harvey.

The one act operetta, "Pierrot who Laughs and Pierrot who Weeps," the music by Jean Hubert, verses by Edmond Rostand and translation by Louise Llewellyn, which had its first performance in English at the New England Conservatory December 6, 1912, will be given professionally in Jordan Hall by Maggie Teyte and associates on February 2, 3 and 4 next. The original cast consisted of three pupils of the New England Conservatory dramatic department: Mrs. Victoria Sordoni-Gilbert, Miss Llewellyn and Miss Marion Feeley.

BORRO
RECITALS ORATORIO
SPRING TOUR NOW BOOKING
504 KIMBALL HALL
CHICAGO

THE KNEISELS AND SCHOENBERG'S SEXTET

Mr. Schoenberg certainly carried off the honors on Sunday afternoon at the Illinois Theater, when the Kneisel Quartet gave its second concert. For this number they were admirably supplemented by Mr. Carl Brueckner, 'cello, and Franz Esser, viola.

Almost at once there was felt the touch of ability in the music. And before long even the most obtuse must have felt that they should be excited. For the usually phlegmatic Mr. Kneisel was moving himself animatedly, shaking his head and dashing his bow in quite an unorthodox manner. Even the immovable Mr. Esser grew active. The only one who refused to unbend was that figure at the viola, Mr. Svecenski, who plays and plays and never turns a hair or moves a facial muscle.

The sextet is irresistibly charming, running over with all manner of invention and strange eerie harmonies. Debussy-like shimmerings, and winding up with strains fascinating in their evanescent melodiousness. It could be done again and again to increasing enjoyment, and it seems deplorable that this one fleeting glimpse is to be all that can be looked for at present.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

McGranahan—Thomas McGranahan will sing at the Kenwood Club Friday evening, February 5.

MARGARET SMITH LESTER

Following is some newspaper comment on the very successful recital given by Mrs. Lester at Keokuk, Ia.:

One of the most artistic recitals of the year was given last evening in the Y. W. C. A. Auditorium by Margaret Smith Lester of Chicago. . . . Mrs. Lester has a soprano voice of much sweetness and her youth and delicacy of expression, her exquisite control of tone, and her distinctness of enunciation were things that gave her immediate and pronounced recall.

Mrs. Lester was accompanied by her husband, and although Mrs. Lester has a voice of much charm, the manner in which she is sustained at the piano by his control of that instrument adds much to the expression of the songs. The Schumann "Der Nussbaum," Mozart's "Del Vieu Fron Fardare," the "Hindoo Song" of Bemberg, Massenet's "Ouvre tes yeux bleux" and "The Chimes," by Worrell, were gems.

Mr. Lester's songs, many of them charming, were developed by the artistic interpretation which Mrs. Lester gave, . . . possessing much beauty, the range being widely divergent.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester make an impression of exquisite simplicity, which is art. Mr. Lester possessed such ease at the piano that no effort was detected to catch his audience by unusual tricks. There was an immense gathering.—The Daily Constitution-Democrat, January 19, 1915, Keokuk, Ia.

Mrs. Lester has a fine voice and uses it with the greatest skill and good taste. Her singing was both appealing and satisfying, because it expressed a beautiful sentiment and showed the style of the trained and finished singer. She was received by the audience with continued and enthusiastic applause.

The last ten songs on the program were short songs, written by Mr. Lester. They are written in the modern style, and are all that one would call professional songs. Their originality, which seems to be unquestioned, and their absolute removal from the commonplace in both conception and development give them charm. Probably "Apple Blossom," the last number on the program, would come the nearest to being what we might call a "popular" song. Keokuk music lovers, who were present in goodly numbers, pronounced this one of the best and most delightful programs the club has been sponsor for.—The Keokuk Gate City, January 19, 1915. Keokuk, Ia. (Advertisement.)

###

"WHEN THE KYE COME HAME"

Little short of remarkable is the success attending the recent publication by the Presser Company of George B. Nevin's song, "When the Kye Come Hame."

In the list of artists who have sung it the ever popular Christine Miller heads the list in number of concert performances. Within two weeks she sang it six times, and on January 21 sang it at the third artists' recital at the Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston, Ill.

In a letter dated January 23, she writes as follows:

My Dear Mr. Nevin:

Enclosed are copies of recent programs.

Your little song was received with the greatest enthusiasm and there were many remarks about it after the performance. I find it a very grateful number to sing.

With most cordial greetings, I am

Sincerely yours,

CHRISTINE MILLER.

This is one of a list of "made in America" songs which Miss Miller is featuring this season.

###

Ballmann—At the North Side Turner Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 7, Mr. Ballmann will have as soloists Ferne Gramling, soprano; John A. Wiederhorn, piano, and R. Mangold and George Milton Lipschultz, violinists.

###

Sinai Temple—Sunday evening, February 7, Louise Harrison Slade will be the soloist with the orchestra. Mrs. Slade will sing "The Battle Song," from Armenius' "Bruch," and a group of songs.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing, Recitals, Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av., Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian

Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Chapman School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
830 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE · PIANO
Gann Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
500 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

If Director Emil Oberhoffer in his masterly and musicianly reading of all works past and present can be said to do some one composer better than another that composer is Wagner. It would be impossible for even a wild imagination to conjure up any idea of an interpretation of Wagner music that could excel the reading given the following program on New Year's night.

Wagner Program, Julia Claussen, contralto, soloist.

Introduction to Act III and Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin."
Overture to "Tannhaeuser."
Senta's Ballad from "The Flying Dutchman."
Prelude to Lohengrin.
Ride of the Valkyries from "Die Walkure."
"Waldweben" from "Siegfried."
Three Songs with Orchestra
"In Treibhaus"
"Stehe Still"
"Traume."
Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"
Prelude and Isolde's Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" (Madame Claussen)
Finale to "Rheingold" Entrance of the Gods into Walhalla.

Wagner, the master of orchestration, who has molded harmonies turbulent with human passion and emotion which at all times stir one's vitality, was never revealed in more exquisite detail than in the two numbers from "Lohengrin." The Prelude especially seemed to show up new beauties. The minute shading of the different sections was especially noticeable. The "Tannhaeuser" overture, "Ride of the Valkyries" and "Finale to Rheingold" were nothing short of tremendous in their stormy demand and yet through all the storm there was an entire absence of any deafening roar of brasses, which so often spoils Wagner music. The "Waldweben" with its dreamy whisperings and rustlings of Nature's creatures and the Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" with its theme of merriment rounded out the program to answer every human emotion.

The program filled one to overflowing with pleasure and was a splendid New Year greeting.

Sunday, January 3, the popular concert gave us a varied and at the same time unusually good program, with Albert Lindquest, the Chicago tenor, and Leonardo de Lorenzo, first flutist of the orchestra, as soloists. Mr. Lindquest has a very excellent voice with a big full-toned upper register.

Mr. de Lorenzo played "Andante" from "L'appassionato" ("Fantasie sentimentale"), Op. 5, and Valse de Concert "Gioialita," MS., Op. 15, two of his own compositions, and as Mr. de Lorenzo ranks very high as a composer for the flute there was more than ordinary interest displayed. The "Andante" illustrated the exquisite lyrical possibilities of the flute and the Valse and his encore, "Peitler Study," with a cadenza and finale of his own, the brilliant technical possibilities of the instrument. After listening to the artistic performance of this soloist it is not at all difficult to understand how the flute has lived through the ages as a favorite instrument.

Mr. Czerwony gave his usual finished performance in the violin solo part of Borodine's "Nocturne," and the program closed with Grieg's "March of Homage" from "Sigurd Jorsalfar."

January 5 the third concert of the Beethoven Cycle, Fannie Bloomfield Ziesler, soloist, gave us:

Symphony No. 4, B flat major, Op. 60.....Beethoven
Adagio—Allegro vivace
Adagio
Allegro ma non troppo
Concerto for piano, No. 5, in E flat major, "Emperor".....Beethoven
Allegro
Adagio un poco moto
Rondo: Allegro ma non troppo
Symphony No. 5, in C minor, Op. 67.....Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Andante con moto
Scherzo: Allegro
Finale: Allegro

The fourth symphony of Beethoven, written during the period in which he was engaged to be married to the Countess Theresa von Brunswick, is full of happiness and romance. The first movement is full of impetuous joy and the second of a noble passion expressed in wonderful lyrical mood. The third movement, a graceful minuetto, and the fourth an irresistible rondo.

The immortal Fifth Symphony is too well known to need any special treatment except the mention of Mr. Oberhoffer's wonderful reading of it, which brought forth deeper respect for this marvelous work which ranks next to the Ninth Symphony. The sweetness of the theme in the "Andante" movement given out by the cellos and violas was surely never more nobly brought out than at this performance. Familiar as it is, new depths were revealed, and the same was true of the third and fourth movements.

The "Emperor" concerto, Beethoven's last, was "Emperor" in every sense under the magic fingers of this wonderful woman. She fairly electrifies one with her unlimited art. Her technic, so perfect that we cease to consider it as technic, leaves us marveling that it could be accomplished in one life time. We are indeed once more truly grateful for the opportunity afforded us in this Beethoven cycle. With such finished performances by orchestra and soloists of the first magnitude, the memory will linger on and be ever delightful.

January 5 marked the passing of Carl Woempner, after a serious illness following a surgical operation last summer. For five years Mr. Woempner had been first flutist of the orchestra and was an excellent musician and also very popular with his associates in the orchestra, Mr. Oberhoffer and the Orchestra Association, and he will be greatly missed by his large circle of friends.

January 7 the Thursday Musicale gave its second artists' recital with Cornelius Van Vliet, 'cellist, soloist. Mr. Van Vliet's work needs no commentary as he is an artist well known and of consummate skill. His program contained selection from Bach, Milandre, Mozart, Mehul, Dussek, Chopin, Schumann, Franz Neruda and MacDowell's two beautiful sketches, "A Deserted Farm" and "To a Water Lily," arranged for 'cello by Klengel. "The Water Lily" was repeated and in response to vociferous applause at end of program Mr. Van Vliet played it a third time. He shows splendid versatility in his work entering with real artistic vim into every change of mood.

At the close of the program, a guest of the club, Mr. Lemuel Kilby of Chicago, favored a group who lingered with a delightful treat by singing several songs of widely different character, displaying his musical baritone in most effective style. He sings with ease and in a finished artistic manner with a wholesome personality back of everything he does. Mrs. Harry Crandall, an active member of the club and an old friend of Mr. Kilby, played his accompaniments with a true value of her part and in her customary inimitable style which always adds immeasurably to the performance of any artist she assists. Mrs. Crandall entertained informally the same evening for Mr. Kilby and the writer and a number of local artists had the pleasure of hearing him in a varied repertoire. It is to be hoped this locality will be favored in the near future by another visit from this splendid young artist.

The following program, given January 10, was another one to go down in history as a beautiful and at same time well balanced popular program.

TWELFTH PROGRAM

Soloist, Eleanor Spencer, Pianist
 War March of Priests from "Athalie".....Mendelssohn
 Overture to Fidelio.....Beethoven
 Symphony No. 8, Unfinished, B Minor.....Schubert
 Allegro moderato
 Andante con moto
 Concerto for Piano, No. 1, E flat Major.....Liszt
 Scherzo, Op. 45.....Goldmark
 Liebestraum.....Liszt
 Orchestration by Emil Oberhoffer and first performance
 Waltz, On the Beautiful Blue Danube.....Strauss

Never has the melodic beauty of Schubert's masterpiece appealed stronger and to think he was called from this sphere at the untimely age of 31! The Goldmark Scherzo is a bright and charming composition and interesting just now on account of the recent death of the composer. The sentiment of the verse on which Liszt's Liebestraum is founded is fully expressed in the poignant longing of the music and the orchestration by Mr. Oberhoffer enhances its beauties many fold. To cap the climax of desire the strains of the most beautiful of waltzes set every one afire with longing to rise and sway to that glorious rhythm. We don't think it was ever played better if as well.

Miss Eleanor Spencer, soloist of the day, is a very talented American girl with excellent technic and admirable poise and an unaffected girlishness that is very pleasing. She gave a very good performance of the exacting Liszt Concerto and showed surprising strength which was very actively appreciated by the audience and she graciously responded with a very interesting technical Sonata by Scarlatti arranged by Leschetizky.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

Civic Music—The second concert at Eckhart Park, under the Civic Music Association was given on Sunday afternoon. The program was by John R. Rankl, baritone; Miss Clara Louise Thurston, harpist, and Grace Grove, accompanist.

Browne—J. Lewis Browne will inaugurate the new organ in the Immaculate Conception Church, North Park avenue, near Schiller street, this coming Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Browne will be assisted by the entire choir of St. Patrick's Church.

Wing—Eloise Hilton Wing, soprano, sang at the Girton School Faculty Concert last week, her program including numbers by Chaminade, Carpenter, Radecke, MacDowell, Reichardt and Batten.

CARBONDALE, ILL.

In view of the Harold Henry concert, fifty members of the Tuesday Musical Club met on January 18 to hear George Mortimer Brush, president of the club, speak on musical appreciation in general, and piano playing in particular. Mr. Brush also played excerpts from MacDowell's "Keltic Sonata," which will be the principal number on Mr. Henry's program January 26.

Tentative plans were also formed for the securing of either John McCormack or Alice Nielsen.

Mr. George Cummins, recently appointed director of the choir at the First Methodist Church, is rapidly demonstrating his efficiency and talent, both as a director and soloist. He is an alumnus of McKendree College and received highest honors from its musical department (Miss Myrick, directress) at graduation. Mr. Cummins' naturally true tenor voice, with his decidedly pleasing personality, are great and welcome acquisitions to local musical circles.

Harold Henry, Master of Technic and conservative artist, appeared Tuesday night, before a large and representative audience, in a program which gave irrefutable proof to a statement made recently by one critic.

"This brilliant young American is one of the most superb pianists of the present day, and we do not forget that such artists as Bauer, Gabrilowitch, Zeisler, Ganz, and others, are at the zenith of their powers."

From first to last Mr. Henry's listeners were charmed with his well selected program, his personality, and the clarity and polish of his playing.

For a brief resume of the program: The first group—The Schumann Andante from Sonata Op. 22, the Schubert Impromptu Op. 90 No. 4, and the Chopin Fantasie (so brilliant and clear cut that it stood out as one of the finest numbers of the evening)—gave immediate assurance that not once is there a haphazard measure in any of

Mr. Henry's work—but that every detail is founded upon careful thought and brought to a finish of perfection.

After the Keltic Sonata, a masterpiece both in composition and execution, followed a group selected with thought to variety. The descriptive "Music Box" (Friedman) and "The Wind" (Alakan) charmed the audience generally—as did the saucy "Puck." Debussy's imaginative number and the Grieg Nocturne were pleasingly tranquil, and the Cyril Scott Etude was one of the best heard.

After the magnificent "Isolde's Liebestod" the audience demanded another encore and Mr. Henry very generously added the third one. In all, they were, a Brahms Intermezzo, MacDowell's "To the Sea," and Liszt's Sonette De Petrarca No. 123.

The Tuesday Musical Club was widely congratulated upon securing Mr. Henry for the opening recital on their Artist Series.

DENVER

Lola Carrier Worrell, one of the best known of America's women composers, is also a pianist of no small ability, and is very busy this season in her home city, Denver, as a member of a talented group of women, known as the Chamber Music Quintet. This delightful organization is giving several series of chamber music recitals in Denver, which are considered quite the most exclusive and artistic affairs of the season. Mrs. Worrell's "Song of the Chimes" still continues to win her laurels, both at home and abroad, and quite as popular are two other interesting songs of this talented woman, "Waiting" and "In a Garden," which are now being used on the programs of many of the leading artists.

On Monday evening, January 25, Mme. Rosa Olitzka was greeted by the large audience in the Denver Auditorium with a round of applause when she began singing Mrs. Worrell's charming "Song of the Chimes." Her rendition of the song was most finished and artistic, arousing great enthusiasm.

GRACE BRUNE

MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE

FAULKNER

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO
ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 WINBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto
American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

Friday evening, January 15, the program for seventh Symphony Concert with Alice Verlet, soprano soloist, was as follows:

Overture to "Egmont," Op. 84.....Beethoven
Symphony after Byron's "Manfred" Op. 58.....Tchaikowsky

Manfred wandering in the Alps

The Fairy of the Alps

Pastorale

The Underground Palace of Arimanes

Aria, "Caro nome" from Rigoletto.....Verdi

Symphonic Waltz Op. 8.....Stock

Bell Song from "Lakme".....Delibes

Festival March and Hymn to Liberty Op. 29.....Kaun

The "Egmont Overture," more or less well known, was given an excellent performance. A close study of Byron's wild dramatic poem, which is far from being one of his masterpieces, leads us to the conclusion that the Tchaikowsky music is far more subtle than the poem. The weird and heartbroken Manfred theme of the first movement is offset by the piercingly sweet Astarte motif and with a magnificent blending of the two the movement ends in a whirlwind fortissimo that fairly lifts one's hair. The dainty fairy theme of the second movement is a beautiful interlude developed by wood winds to accompaniment of strings and harp, the movement ending in a delicate trill. The third movement, opening with Pastoral theme, carried into shepherd dances and a wild return to the despairing Manfred theme, which in a measure prepares us for the grandeur of the fourth movement with its bacchanale by strings, woodwinds and horns and we are now swept along the entire gamut of human emotions to the death of Manfred, illustrated by a short passage on the organ, and the music dies away in long, soft notes of the woodwind.

"The Symphonic Waltz," by Stock, is hardly symphonic in character but rather an elaborate concert waltz of pleasing melody. The "Festival March," a good big composition, with the interesting addition of the organ, brought the audience up standing with its finale of "Star Spangled Banner."

The soloist of the evening, the dainty, charming Belgian artist, Alice Verlet, a coloratura such as we get all too few in this country, won her way immediately. From her smiling face to her exquisitely shod feet this singer is first of all artistic in everything she does. Her voice has a very sweet rich quality, lacking all harshness in attack of the difficult high tones, cadenzas, and trills and her breath control in sustained high tones was most remarkable. Her French and Italian were perfectly articulated and in addition to her two solos she responded graciously to enthusiastic encores with "Printemps Nouveau" by Paul Vidal and "Les Filles de Cadiz" by Delibes, two exquisite numbers which rounded out the program to a perfect completeness. Mlle. Verlet's art and ease in the arias make one long to see and hear her in an entire role.

The Sunday, January 19, popular concert with the well known contralto, Christine Miller, presented some very pleasing numbers. "Scotch March," Debussy; Overture "Land of the Mountain and the Flood," MacCunn; Symphonic Poem, "Sleeping Beauty in the Woods," Bruneau; two "Slavonic Dances," Dvorak, and the novelty of the afternoon, Mandl's "Hymn to the Rising Sun," for strings, harp and organ, the latter played by Mr. Hamlin Hunt, was exquisitely beautiful in theme and rose to magnificent climaxes. The familiar "Introduction to Act II" and "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" closed the program of orchestra numbers. Miss Miller gave the aria, "Farewell Ye Forests" from Tchaikowsky's "Joan of Arc" and two songs, "When I Bring You Colored Toys," Carpenter, and "Spring Is Here," by Hugo Wolf. Miss Miller has a very winning personality and her upper tones are clear and of good quality. Her success was emphatic and in her encore selections she was charming.

Tuesday, January 19, fourth concert of the Beethoven Cycle. The orchestra numbers were "The Leonora Overture No. 1," Op. 138, with its broad, sweeping melody, and the third or Eroica (Heroic) Symphony embracing so many varied motifs, expressing noble, lofty ideals in the opening movement, solemn inspiring beauty in the march theme of second, ecstatic buoyancy of the scherzo and manifold emotions in the finale, embracing all degrees from delicacy to greatest strength, put the audience in splendid form to greet our beloved and talented American violinist, Maud Powell, who gave a perfect interpretation of Beethoven's only concerto for the violin. This artist, with all her womanliness, has a bigness in her art that belongs to a man and a technical finish that not many women can reach. She enters so absolutely into the work that one would be woe not to get the mood of the composer from her playing. This was especially noticeable in the delicate hint of humor in the Rondo which she seems to think into her playing and convey in some subtle manner to her auditors.

The Thursday Musical fortnightly concert January 21 had a very good program. Miss Arline Folsom, violinist, and Madame Florence Bodenhoff, a new singer in Minneapolis, active members of the club, and the Arpi Male Chorus and Mr. Harrison Wall Johnson, pianist, assisted. The chorus, which is one of the best and most popular choruses in the Northwest, did some excellent work, and Mr. Johnson's playing of Tchaikowsky's Sonata, Op. 37, was in his usual finished style, and for encore he played a Rachmaninoff Prelude. The Thursday Musical always has a large, interested and enthusiastic attendance, an inspiration to musicians who work for it.

The same evening the Minneapolis Trio, Messrs. Fabbrini, Scheurer and Van Vliet, gave the second concert of their series, with the following program:

Trio for Piano, Violin and 'Cello.....J. Jongen

Allegro appassionato

Andante molto sostenuto

Allegro deciso

Sonata, D minor, Op. 31, for Piano.....Beethoven

Allegro

Adagio

Allegretto

Trio Op. 50 for Piano, Violin and 'Cello.....P. Tchaikowsky

Moderato assai

Tema con variazioni

The "Trio" by Jongen, a Belgian composer, is of the modern French school with more than usual harmonious working of theme and an enormous amount of technical display. Through it all a strain that is reminiscent of other works. The Tchaikowsky "Trio," supremely beautiful in theme and variations with all of its delightful changes of mood and tempo, was by far the most effective of the two trios and we are all the more willing to cling to the old composers when they are brought where we can compare them to the modern ones. Mr. Fabbrini gave a most poetic reading of the beautiful and seldom heard Beethoven "Sonata." He has a facile technique without any mannerisms to detract from his performance.

The fourteenth Sunday concert given by the orchestra with Henry J. Williams, harpist of the orchestra, as soloist, had a most delightful offering in the beautiful Mozart E flat major "Symphony," familiar to all music lovers, especially the Minuetto movement which is heard frequently in the piano arrangement. This "Symphony" with its clear figure and perfect harmony should be a good example to some of the modern composers who desire to mystify our poor senses with their complex jumble of weird

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichol, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo., Ill.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park

Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN

TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

sounds. The "Turkish March" orchestrated from "Sonata for Piano" and "Overture to the Magic Flute," both by Mozart; "Cavatine," arranged from Boehm's composition for violin; "Larghetto" from "Suite for Orchestra" by Spendiarow, with the special feature in it of oboe solo played by Bruno Labate who played it on the occasion of its first performance in this country at a concert of the Russian Symphony Orchestra in New York. The Harlequin Serenade from "Suite" by Massenet with flute and oboe solos had to be repeated and the closing number was "The River Moldau" from a cycle by Smetana.

Mr. Williams played Dubois' "Fantasy" for harp with orchestra, a modern composition that is an exception for simple attractive melody. Mr. Williams is a musician of highest attainments and was enthusiastically greeted and applauded for his very meritorious work. He responded to several recalls with "The Prayer" by Hasselmans, a beautiful and fitting addition to the program.

Monday evening, January 25, Hazel Fleener, a young contralto recently returned from Germany, assisted by Paulo Gruppe, cellist, gave a very pleasing recital. Miss Fleener, a pretty, unaffected brunette, with a sincerity about her work that spells future, and makes up for a present lack of poise which is bound to come with more frequent appearance in concert, has a deep, rich contralto voice, an absence of any breathing difficulty, which is particularly pleasing, and a splendid articulation in all of her songs, French, German and English.

Paulo Gruppe needs little comment on his work, which is permanently in the stellar class.

The two very excellent accompanists of the evening were Mrs. Louise Albee for Mr. Gruppe, and Miss Gertrude Dobyne for Miss Fleener.

MRS W C. VAN KIRK.

Beebe—Mrs. Ray R. Hemingway, a pupil of Mrs. Agnes Leist Beebe, spent a short time in her old home, Gary, Ind., last week, and while there sang with great success at the First M. E. and the Congregational Churches.

MacLeish—Miss Lillian MacLeish gave her characteristic Scotch program, in costume, with great success before the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park on last Monday evening.

Johns—Miss Ethelle Florence Johns will sing a group of songs at the Austin Woman's Club, Masonic Temple, Austin, on February 8, and will be accompanied by Mrs. Lenore Falk Harris.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN

During the week of final examinations at the University of Michigan, an unique series of "relaxation recitals" has been given in Hill Auditorium, under the auspices of the University School of Music. Each day at 4:15 o'clock at the close of the examination periods, short programs have been given, most of which were in the nature of organ recitals, Earl V. Moore, head of the organ department, appearing in three programs, while Frank A. Tabor, a senior in the organ department, and John Alexander Meldrum, a member of last year's graduation class, each contributed one. A. J. Whitmire of the violin faculty, appeared as soloist at one of the programs, while the series was brought to a close by the University Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. S. P. Lockwood, head of the violin department. This organization consists of over fifty players and has accomplished remarkable results. Two soloists, N. Falcone, clarinetist, and John A. Meldrum, pianist, were heard on this occasion, when the following program was given:

Symphony No. 2, D major, Op. 36.....Beethoven
 Larghetto, Scherzo, Allegro molto
 Orchestra
 Concerto No. 1, F minor, Op. 73.....Weber
 Orchestra and N. Falcone, Clarinetist
 Concerto No. 2, G minor, Op. 22.....Saint-Saens
 Orchestra and J. A. Meldrum, Pianist

The present week has marked a temporary exodus of several prominent Ann Arbor musicians who have left for concert engagements in different directions.

Theodore Harrison, head of the vocal department, left Ann Arbor Thursday evening to appear in recital in Carnegie Hall, New York, under the joint auspices of the Orpheus Club of Philadelphia and the University Glee Club of New York City.

Mrs. George B. Rhead, acting head of the piano department, left Friday morning for St. Louis, Mo., where she will give a piano recital under the auspices of the Apollo Club.

Albert Lindquest, tenor, and Miss Leonora Allen, soprano, also left at the same time, Mr. Lindquest for Montreal, where he will appear in a joint recital with Madam Donalda, returning to Ann Arbor by way of New York and Philadelphia, while Miss Allen will sing with the Minneapolis Orchestra at Minneapolis.

Owing to the war in Europe, the pre-festival concert series has undergone some changes. Ferruccio Busoni, pianist, who was first scheduled to appear in November, will be heard in Hill Auditorium, March 2, while Madame Olive Fremstad will give a song recital April 8, as a substitute for Leo Slezak, who failed to come to America this year.

On February 17 the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, with its full quota of players, under Director Ernst Kunwald, will be heard as originally scheduled.

Final arrangements are being made regarding the May Festival artists and program and a complete announcement will be made in the near future.

The second semester of the University School of Music will begin Monday, February 8, and the number of inquiries and advance registrations indicate that the enrollment will even exceed that of the first semester, which has been the greatest in the history of the institution.

Recently an Alumni Association with the following officers was formed: Mrs. Minnie Davis-Sherrill, '01, piano, president; Maude Charlotte Kleyn, '09, voice, first vice-president; Mrs. E. S. Perry, '14, piano, second vice-president; Ruth Olive Smith, '10, piano, secretary; Ada Grace Johnson, '06, voice, treasurer.

C. A. S.

Apollo Club—Leonora Allen, soprano, and Andrea Sarto, baritone, are to assist the Apollo Musical Club of 300 singers in its performance of Schmitt's new setting of "The Forty-seventh Psalm" and Cowan's new choral work, "The Veil," Monday night, February 22, at Orchestra Hall. Miss Allen appeared with the club last season for the first time and Mr. Sarto sings with the club this season for the first time.

Smith—Among the January engagements of William Griswold Smith were the following: January 2, annual Eastern Star installation, Woodlawn Chapter; January 18, Woodlawn Mothers' Club; January 20, Chicago Woman's Club, Fine Arts Theater; January 29, Temple Emanuel.

Church Concert—A concert will be given at the Warren Avenue Congregational Church this (Friday) evening by the Illinois College of Music. Among those who will appear are Mr. C. W. Edwards and Mr. Albert Leo Preiser.

Columbia School of Music—At the recital hall of the school, in the Ohio building, two recitals will be given by "The Girls of the School" on Saturday, February 13, and Saturday, February 20, at 2:30.

Mills—Volney Mills and Harrison Hollander, formerly managers in Milwaukee, were adjudged bankrupt on January 9.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

Miessner's "Festival Overture" Played at Milwaukee Symphony Concert

Last season Milwaukee inaugurated a series of Sunday afternoon concerts to be played by the Auditorium Symphony Orchestra, Herman A. Zeitz, conductor, at Milwaukee's attractive and roomy auditorium.

W. OTTO MIESSNER

The music loving populace responded in great numbers from the first and has steadily increased up to the present date.

The twelfth concert of the second season was given on Sunday afternoon, January 31, and was heard by fully four thousand people.

FOR RAPID PROGRESS IN PIANO, USE Thurn's Indicator.

It teaches all scales, chords, runs and the principles of HARMONY AT SIGHT.

No complicated directions. Saves years of time. Develops the fingers. Makes pleasure of practice. A great benefit to teachers and pupils. Worth $50; mailed for 50 cents.

G. N. THURN, 1572 N. Halsted St., CHICAGO.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO

Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

BARITONE

Concerts
4051 Calumet Avenue

Oratorio

Pupils

Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM
Baritone

324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill.

RECITAL

NORDIN

CONCERT

ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist

Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO RECITAL

1351 Granville Avenue

ple, in spite of very disagreeable weather.

A body of between fifty and sixty very capable musicians form the orchestra at present and they are playing excellently, under the direction of Mr. Zeitz, a long, varied and commendable repertoire, judging from the program presented on last Sunday afternoon.

Notable among these numbers was the "Festival Overture" written by W. Otto Miessner now of Milwaukee but formerly of Chicago, a musician and composer who has achieved great success in his chosen lines of endeavor and is well known from coast to coast through the many excellent compositions which have come from him to the musical world.

This work was first performed in 1910 by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra with the composer conducting, and since that time it has received several praiseworthy productions, one of which came upon this occasion. An atmosphere of civic pride seemed to surround this particular concert through the recognition accorded Mr. Miessner and the placing of his music in such good company as that of Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Handel, Saint-Saens, etc.

The different movements of this overture are classified as "Prelude," (Morning Moon), "Introduction," (The Industrial Spirit), (The Festival Spirit).

The work represents an effort to depict in musical moods, the groping towards artistic expression in a new country concerned primarily with the development of natural resources and the accumulation of wealth, upon which Art is so dependent.

The "Prelude" describes an early morning scene in a small manufacturing town. In the "Introduction" the spirit of industry is in evidence. One hears the blasts of the whistles calling the men to their work—the buzz of the machinery and the song of the men at work. This is interrupted by blasts of whistles and the peal of chimes announcing a holiday.

The three themes of the final movement picture a pageant or festival procession. They represent the optimism of youth, the charm of maidenhood and the determination of middle age. All of these are interwoven contrapuntally and developed thematically, so as to form a unified whole expressing the striving for artistic expression.

At the close the "Star Spangled Banner" is heard, accompanied by melodic fragments from the themes of the principal movement.

The work as a whole is remarkably clever in its scoring, the descriptions are skillfully woven along melodic lines and only the composer who is thoroughly acquainted with the possibilities of the modern orchestra, could produce such a work. Mr. Zeitz and his men played it in so admirable a manner that the effects produced made a most decided impression upon the large audience. Great enthusiasm was shown and the composer, who occupied a conspicuous box, was compelled to arise and bow repeatedly in acknowledgment of the applause created by the pleasure his music had afforded. The last part of the work had to be repeated.

Mr. Zeitz announced to the reporters during the intermission that the work will be played again at the concert given on February 18.

If Mr. Miessner's "Overture" can create such enthusiasm as that of last Sunday we should have it played in Chicago by our own orchestra. Mr. Stock has offered many works much less worthy. There are friends by the thousand in Chicago of this composer who would welcome a hearing to this "Overture."

Besides Mr. Miessner's work, the orchestra was heard in performances of two movements from Beethoven's "Symphony No. 4," the "War March of the Priests," Mendelssohn; "Overture" (Martha) Flotow; "Symphonic Poem" (Phaeton), Saint-Saens, and a Strauss Waltz.

The soloists of the afternoon were William L. Jaffe, violinist, who played two movements from the "Concerto" in G minor by Burch, and Phillip C. Gates, basso, who chose for the display of his powers the aria, "Hear Me Ye Winds and Waves," Handel. Mr. Gates possesses a rich, resonant voice which he uses in a very intelligent way, and he achieved another of the successes of the afternoon. His encore was "Invictus," by Huhn, and was very satisfactorily given.

On Tuesday evening, February 9, this orchestra will be heard in the following program with Marie Yahr, contralto, and Ella R. Smith, pianist, as soloists:

Overture Lenore No. 3.....	Beethoven
Symphony B Minor	Schubert
Allegro Moderato
Andante con moto
Concerto for Pianoforte G Minor.....	Saint-Saens
Andante sostenuto
Allegro scherzando
Presto

Miss Ella R. Smith

Overture "1812"	Tschaikowsky
Aria "Ihr Baalspriester" aus der Opera "Der Prophet"	Meyerbeer

Mrs. Marie Shorse Yahr

Symphonic Poem "Le Rouet d'Omphale".....	Saint-Saens
Einzug der Gotter in Walhall aus "Das Rheingold"	Wagner

H. M. B.

THE C. W. BEST ARTIST SERIES

Seldom, indeed, may one see so superb a preliminary announcement as that which Mr. C. W. Best is showing his friends and which is to act as the advance courier of his series of artists' concerts for the season of 1915-16.

Mr. Best believes in taking time by the forelock and his companies for the next season are therefore already full, even though the dates for the current season will not be entirely fulfilled by the old companies for some months.

The new circular sets forth three companies for the coming year, all these to appear only in courses.

Company No. 1 includes Antonio Sala, the distinguished cellist; Mignonne Meeker, soprano, and Lois Brown, pianist.

Attraction No. 2 consists of an evening of classic readings by Fenetta Sargent Haskell.

Company No. 3 is headed by Alberto Salvi, a harpist of international fame, and includes also Marguerite Austin, violinist, and Florence Hedstrum, soprano.

Tallarico—Pasquale Tallarico, was a Music News visitor last Friday, being enroute from the West to Allegheny where he gave a piano recital on February 3. In St. Louis he appeared very successfully with the Symphony Orchestra and also with the Chaminade Club and the Ferguson Club.

Music News

THUEL BURNHAM

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:

"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

F. urth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 52½ Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 12, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	GRAND RAPIDS
Abbie S. Fridenberg	Louis McKay
110 Carnegie Hall	2 Nelson Place
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flag	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano
430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, February 12, 1915

No. 7

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

As an illustrator of the old saying, "Penny wise and pound foolish," the University of Chicago bears away the palm.

For instance, on last Tuesday evening at Mandel Hall there was present a thoroughly representative and distinguished audience to hear Horatio Parker's exposition of the $10,000 prize opera, "Fairylend," and the best the management could afford in the way of a piano is the worn-out and thoroughly disreputable old instrument which serves at chapel and which has been heartily condemned by many artists on whom it has been foisted at various of the summer night concerts.

h h h

Hail to the new music center of Chicago! Where? Where else than the corner of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard? The Cable Piano Company is now safely ensconced in one of the corners of this intersection and the fine new Steger Building occupies another. Lyon & Healy will soon build on a third, and the Kimball Company, already occupying the fourth corner, will, by piecemeal, put up a magnificent sixteen-story building which will accommodate all the old tenants and many new ones, will have a splendid new hall, and will, furthermore, be built in such way that nearly all tenants can be accommodated during the process of building and need not go to another building, even temporarily.

h h h

If it ever occurred to you that the attending of concerts in all parts of the city and suburbs is an easy achievement and that the task of music news reporters is a simple one, just read Mr. Cotsworth's experience as detailed in one of his reviews last week. And this is only typical of hundreds of trips we have to make month after month. The trouble is wholly in transportation, for Chicago, no matter what claim may be made to the contrary, is still cursed with the most countrified systems of transportation ever endured by any large city. The Oak Park Elevated is an open laugh to everybody that uses it, B. L. T.'s description of the difference between an "express" and a "local" train fitting the case exactly when he said that "an express train does not stop at Ann street." The Evans-

*Every item of publicity is like a messenger sent on an endless errand.
Good ones come home and bring results; inferior kinds hardly ever return; they bear trouble if they do.*

—"Nemo" in the Manager's Forum (Musical Courier).

ton "express" is even worse, if such a thing could be imagined. Think, for instance, of a management which will halt its trains at the edge of Evanston and have men come on to collect the new fares while the train is held at a standstill, instead of having this work done while in motion to the next station!

h h h

Music News, very modestly, claims that it had much to do in making propaganda for the new Pension Fund for the orchestra; for we have printed few issues lately in which there was not some reference to the matter. The result shows what perseverance may do.

h h h

Last year, when Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson wanted to take up the study and practice of voice in ensemble with various instruments the question was "Where to find a repertoire?" Everybody said: "Ask Mr. Limbach at Summy's—he knows everything." And so to Mr. Limbach Miss Johnson went, with the result that she has now in her repertoire some of the most unusual as well as the most charming of compositions in which the solo voice line is only a part of an intricate and harmonious whole. In her concert last week she sang a Bach work with piano and oboe accompaniment and the Scheinplug cycle with the accompaniment of piano, English horn and violin, the result in both cases being exquisite.

h h h

Music News hereby introduces you to Mr. George Whitehead of the Redpath Bureau at Columbus. Mr. Whitehead will contribute news of Central Ohio to this paper. And, by the way, have you noticed what interesting letters are coming from Minneapolis? These are written by Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk.

h h h

Some years ago a certain actress made a boast of the fact that she had played "Romeo and Juliet" 500 times. The unfeeling and ungallant critic of a certain Chicago paper made the remark that "it would be much more to her credit if she had played it once—and played it well."

Lately Saperstien played six big piano recitals in New York on six consecutive days—a feat which his managers seem to think worthy of commendation. After hearing him at the Blackstone the thought came irresistibly to mind that it would be much better to have played only one recital—and to have played it well. Six recitals of such playing as that offered here would be beyond endurance.

h h h

In today's issue of Music News Alfred White, our London correspondent, tells, in a belated letter, of some carol singing he heard in London in December, and also of a "Messiah" performance. His comment on Clara Butt is not flattering, but coincides exactly with the opinion of many who heard her in Chicago. Judging from Mr. White's letter, the ancient and honorable custom of choral singing in London has suffered something of a deterioration.

h h h

Why should anyone ever present a cut-and-dried, commonplace-conventional song program when it is possible, by the exercise of a little thought and care, to evolve such a magnificent feast as that spread before her hearers by Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson at the Fine Arts Theater on last Tuesday night on the occasion of her recital? And, speaking of attractive novelties, did you ever hear anything more delightful than the Scheinflug cycle, for voice, violin and English horn, in which Miss Johnson was assisted by Herbert Butler and Alfred Barthel?

h h h

And, speaking once more of novel programs, that given by Miss Annette Pangbourne at Kimball Hall on the same evening was something unique also. It was made up of four groups, the composers being Theodore Streicher, Christian Sinding, Jean Sibelius and Mary Turner Salter, an alliteration of S's in which the American did not come out least important of all.

h h h

The first meeting of a number of state presidents of Music Teachers' State Associations took place at the studio of D. A. Clippinger in Kimball Hall last Wednesday, it being understood that the initiative for this move was made by E. R. Lederman of Illinois. It would seem that a permanent organization, leading eventually to a federation of the clubs would be an excellent thing. The special matter under discussion on Wednesday was standardization, the subject which this year again will occupy attention at practically all conventions—though one might suggest as an equally important topic PUBLICITY FOR THE MEETINGS.

Thousands of teachers throughout the country would attend the state association meetings if they were told in any way what and when these are to be—and in this connection Music News once more offers its columns freely. We will print notices and programs of ANY AND ALL STATE

ASSOCIATION MEETINGS which may come to our office.

On last Wednesday the following list of dates for ensuing meetings was secured by Music News for its readers: Wisconsin (Leboris Semman, president), La Crosse, April 19, 20, 21; Ohio (Lynn B. Dana, president), Toledo, May 26, 27, 28; Missouri (W. B. Morse, president), St. Joseph, May 24, 25, 26, 27; Kansas (Dean C. S. Skilton, president), Hutchinson, December 3, 4, 5; Indiana (Percy Nussbaum, president), Greencastle, April 29, 30; Iowa (Mrs. Frederick Heizer, president), Waterloo, last week in May; Illinois (E. R. Lederman, president), Centralia, May 4, 5, 6, 7.

h h h

A reader of Music News called up this office on Friday, just after the new paper was out, and attempted to remonstrate with us because of the fact that the issue contained no comment on the performances of the Gilbert & Sullivan Opera Company, claiming that these were of such importance that all papers should give space to extensive reviews.

In answer to this comment, Music News wishes to say that in the issue of January 29 we stated our unbiased and whole opinion of this company, and, not deeming it worth any further consideration, we refrained from anything more. We admit, as our friend-over-the-phone said, that "The Yeoman of the Guard" was a distinct novelty; but, as it was our opinion that the Gilbert & Sullivan Company was not equal to it, why inflict our readers with any further comment on their inadequacy?

h h h

Someone wanted to know the other day whether we did not consider it an inconsistency that Mr. Cotsworth, in Music News columns, should praise very highly the composition of Schoenberg when other writers in the paper have stated in unequivocal terms that his work is not good. In answer to this we have only to reply that Music News prides itself on the individuality of its various writers and the fact that they all have brains enough to form independent opinions. Not for a moment would the editor wish to hold any contributor or reporter on the paper to his exact views. If he did the result would soon be one of deadly dullness.

h h h

The Fine Arts Theater was occupied every night last week by high-grade musicales, and on Monday, when the Devries forces appeared in opera excerpts, the managers showed what they could do in the way of stage settings and provided really good backgrounds for the various acts.

On all the other evenings of the week,

however, it was deemed sufficient to provide one dull, drab setting and let it go at that, this setting reminding one of a dining room in a thirty-dollar-a-month flat, with its window curtain of cheap chintz and with a mantelpiece at one side so badly in need of cleaning that the dust could be seen from the back seat of the hall.

Just by way of suggestion, why not have given Miss Johnson a comfortable, homely room, with as wide spaces as possible and a general air of sincerity? Why not have given the Stoeber recital a setting suggestive of the real chamber music period—a setting copied after some picture of Mozart with his friends? And for Mr. Henry, in consonance with his elegance of program, why not a rich drawing room? And so on, through the list.

We make no charge whatever for these suggestions.

h h h

Emmy Destinn of the Metropolitan Opera Company has taken out her citizenship papers for the United States, and thus, while emulating Mme. Schumann-Heink and some other foreign singers, she also shows her independent good sense.

—###—
A LETTER

February 2, 1915.

Mr. Charles Watt:

Dear Sir—Enclosed you will find amount for Music News for the coming year. I find this paper especially valuable in finding music, etc., worth using on programs. Can you tell me who was Florence Macbeth's teacher? If so, will you kindly do so? She is a wonder, I think. Thanking you,

MRS. H. D. THOMPSON,
LaBelle, Mo.

(Editor's Note—Miss Macbeth's teacher is Yeatman Griffith, now located at 318 West Eighty-second street, New York City.

—###—
A LETTER

Bourbon, Ind., February 5, 1915.

Mr. Charles E. Watt, Music News, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Watt:—Enclosed check for two dollars for subscription to your excellent "Music News," which is well named. I enjoy reading the criticism, especially the ones signed C. E. W., in that they seem fair and not over-sugary, but plain, honest truth.

Yours sincerely,
F. W. KRAFT.

Northwestern University—The University String Quartet gave a concert last Thursday evening, the program including the Haydn "Quartet," Op. 20, and Dvorak, Op. 96. Mr. Leslie Putnam sang on February 9 and this (Friday) evening a program will be given by Leon L. Iltis, pianist, and Robert C. Long, baritone.

h h h

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer sang at a musicale at the home of Mrs. White, 4707 Vincennes avenue, Friday evening, January 30.

Music in Chicago

AT FULLERTON HALL

On last Sunday evening "The Juggler of Notre Dame" (Massenet) was given at Fullerton Hall and Miss Weber had the satisfaction of again facing a sold out house.

This certainly showed good taste on the part of the public, for "The Juggler" is a work of infinite charm, even though that charm is of the most fragile nature and is not at all like that to be found in some of the established favorite operas.

JULIE MANIERRE

Miss Weber, always authentic and pleasing, seemed to have outdone herself in the study of this opera, and her preliminary talk was particularly lucid and edifying. It is entirely likely that each member of the audience knows much more about Massenet and the French school than he did before Sunday night, and the detail analysis of the particular opera under consideration was as fascinating as it was clear.

The instrumental excerpts were well played and the "Legend of the Sage Brush," made so thoroughly popular in Chicago through the wonderful performance of Hector Dufranne at the Opera House, was well done by Marion Green at this time.

In casting about for someone to sing the part of "Jean," Miss Weber could not have decided better than when she selected Miss Julie Manierre, for not only did this singer sense the part accurately and deliver it with entire dramatic conviction, but also, her voice proved to be of exactly the right kind—sweet, sympathetic and clear—and her musicianship was amply sufficient to cover all the intricacies of the score.

She sang the "Hallelujah" and "The Song to Liberty" with very great feeling for the musical values and with such sympathetic feeling for their moods that the audience became very enthusiastic in expression of pleasure and insisted on a repetition of the "Liberty" number, which indeed was the gem of the evening. C. E. W.

— — —

WILLIAM BREACH IN RECITAL

William Breach, baritone, a pupil of Mr. Edward Clarke, was presented at the American Conservatory in a song recital on last Thursday evening and both his teacher and himself may well be proud of the fine results obtained.

Mr. Breach has a fresh, young voice, full of temperament and with sufficient power to cover a wide range of interpretative thought. He showed excellent knowledge of Italian, French and German text and his English enunciation was of unusually good quality.

Mr. Clarke prefaced each of the foreign text groups with a few explanatory remarks and proved himself unusually adept in this cheerful pastime.

Three arias from Scarlatti, sung in Italian, showed facility of technic and a clear insight into the mild temperamental qualities of the music.

WILLIAM BREACH

The songs of Schubert were given with very considerable intensity as well as good musical values. Schubert's "Am Meer" was particularly well done.

Three French songs were given with engaging lightness and proper "atmosphere," while the John A. Carpenter group was also thoroughly well done and disclosed the

JULIA CLAUSSEN

THE GREAT SWEDISH CONTRALTO

Writes of Mason & Hamlin
the - - -

Chicago, Jan. 2, 1913.

CABLE PIANO COMPANY,

Wabash and Jackson.

Gentlemen,

It is a pleasure to tell you how much I appreciate the Mason & Hamlin piano. Its unusual delicacy of tone quality, coupled with its immense power, makes it an unequalled instrument of expression for a musician. Count me as one of its sincerest friends.

Very truly yours,

Julia Claussen

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson

Chicago

afore-mentioned powers of clear enunciation of text especially.

The Scotch and Irish ballads with which the program closed were not heard by this writer.

Accompaniments of good quality were played by Esther Hirshberg.

Midway of the program, Rachel Steinman Clarke appeared in a group of violin solos and showed herself to be a technically virtuosic and temperamentally fine player. She has individuality and fine style.

Her numbers included the Maud Powell "Deep River" arrangement and two of the well liked Kreisler numbers. For encore she played the Debussy "Little Shepherd" beautifully. C. E. W.

— — —

Snow—The American Grand Opera Quartet, Marjorie Dodge Warner, soprano; Marie Yahr, contralto; Beecher Burton, tenor, and Gage Christopher, bass, under the management of Harriet Martin Snow, has been booked for a concert under the auspices of the Deutscher Club of Milwaukee. They will give acts from "Romeo and Juliet" and "Faust" (in costume), also solos, duets and trios. They have been carefully coached, under the direction of Herman Devries, and success is assured for them. John Wiederhorn is the accompanist.

— — —

Schwickerath—Mr. Joseph A. Schwickerath has been engaged to sing the baritone part in the oratorio "The Bell," by Romberg, to be performed next Monday evening, February 15, by the Elmhurst Seminary chorus at Elmhurst, Ill.

FRANK W. Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Hinman STEELE
TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord American Violinist
YOST Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

H. EVAN WILLIAMS
TENOR, Concert, Recital, Oratorio
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING

"TRIAL BY JURY" PRESENTED BY LAKE VIEW MUSICAL SOCIETY

Members of the Lake View Musical Society presented the operetta, "Trial by Jury," on Thursday afternoon, February 4, at the Wilson Avenue Theater. A capacity house greeted the performers of the afternoon, a notable list of box-holders and patronesses being among those present. Mrs. Luella Chilson Ohrman, soprano, a member of the society, gave a short recital preceding the operetta.

Katherine Howard Ward was the musical director of the performance and the smoothness and precision with which the operetta unrolled was a tribute to her abilities as a director and proof positive of the hard, untiring study and rehearsing of the principal cast and choruses.

A small but very satisfactory orchestra with Mrs. Ward at the piano played the accompaniments in fine style.

Frederica Gerhardt Downing took the part of the "Judge" and looked capital. Her rich contralto voice was well suited to the music allotted this part and she acted the part in a manner which created great enthusiasm in the audience. Bessie Andrus Mills, who possesses a fine soprano voice, took the part of the "Plaintiff" and did herself proud. She looked charming.

Miss Claribelle Rice, as the "Counsel for Plaintiff," carried her part with flying colors. She was made up in great style, looked the part to perfection and delivered her vocal parts with appropriate finish, confidence and conviction. She drew many a hearty laugh from the audience.

Miss Bessie Beyer made a fine "Defendant." Her voice was one of the best on the stage. She knew her score exceptionally well and she acted the part in great style.

Mrs. Christine Nielson Dreier was one of the best dressed men on the stage and took the part of "Foreman of the Jury." She left nothing to be desired from that source.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Wynekoop as the "Usher" was great and displayed good vocal and acting abilities.

The chorus of "Bridesmaids," which included twelve beautifully dressed personages, formed an elegant picture, sang exceedingly fine and acted extra well indeed. The "Jurymen" were a "scream" as they marched in and were the center of attraction most of the afternoon. A large chorus of "Spectators" were also on the stage and created more amusement, yet, nevertheless, taking a great part in some excellent singing heard during the afternoon.

The affair apparently was a great success from every viewpoint and no doubt more such will be forthcoming. This performance was for the benefit of the scholarship and extension fund of the society, which is threefold in its purpose, namely:

To raise a fund sufficient to help with temporary loans, musical students financially embarrassed. These are called honor loans and are made without guarantors and without security.

To continue the extension work which is placing of the society's own members before various clubs, to arrange programs to be given by them for charitable bodies, the society bearing the expense (in other words, engaging the club members to present these programs and paying for their services from the club's fund).

Municipal work also is a factor—bringing the student members into close communion with the institutional and charitable bodies where they may be heard and where they may obtain confidence in appearing before various audiences. On these occasions, too, the students appearing are remunerated from the society's fund.

CLARIBELLE RICE

The scholarship award of $100 or more to the woman students competing is doubtless one of the most interesting of the many benefits derived from the organization.

H. M. B.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

The Clayton F. Summy Company is sending out the following circular in their music: "The hall in Steinway Hall Building, which was first remodeled to serve the New Theater venture, afterwards known as the Whitney Theater, and which for the past year or so has been known under various names, is at last to be restored to its original purpose—that of a first-class concert hall, available for only high-class concerts, recitals and entertainments suitable to a hall of this nature.

"It is to be christened Central Music Hall. It will be under the management of Harriet Martin Snow, with office in our store and through whom arrangements for renting the hall can be made.

Kimbell—Mr. Grant Kimbell will be the offertory soloist at the First Congregational Church in Oak Park on Sunday morning, his number being "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul."

MacDermid—A postcard from the MacDermids locates them at San Diego, Cal. They have a fine booking of dates on the Pacific coast.

Sala—Antonio Sala, 'cello, of the C. W. Best Concert Company, has been engaged as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for February 21.

THE BARTHEL DUO

ALFRED BARTHEL, Oboe
Soloist, Chicago Symphony Orchestra
MME. BARTHEL, Piano

AVAILABLE FOR MUSICALES
For Dates, Terms or Specimen Programs, Address S. F. Newhall, Glencoe, Ill. or ALFRED BARTHEL, 1509 South Sixth Avenue, Maywood, Ill.

COLUMBIA QUARTET

The Columbia Quartet gave a concert at the Berry Memorial Methodist Church that was credible in every respect. The opening group of quartet and Miss Zeman's solo numbers were not heard by this writer, who arrived in time to hear the quartet: Misses Jessie Zeman, soprano; Elizabeth Pease, contralto; Ernest J. Davis, tenor; Edward H. Quinn, bass, give a splendid rendition of numbers by German, Lee and Brahms. This quartet is doing some singing that is entirely worth while, for they are all young singers with good voices and have attained a good degree of smoothness in their concerted work. The Brahms "Lullaby" and German's "O Peaceful Night" were sung with fine tonal quality and the blending of voices that lends so much to quartet singing.

Miss Pease, pupil of Mr. Holt, has a contralto voice of good quality, excellent range, and she used it to a good advantage in her solo numbers. "Magical June," Tilton-Turvey, was so well liked that a repetition was demanded.

Miss Zeman, soprano, was not heard in her solo group, but in the Mendelssohn number, "O Man of God," sung with Mr. Quinn, she disclosed much beauty. The duet was well done by Miss Zeman and Mr. Quinn.

Edward H. Quinn has a voice of good quality, range and power and he is gaining a fine place for himself in musical circles. Mr. Quinn was heard to an excellent advantage in Lohr's "Little Grey Home in the West," "Were I a Star," Hawley. Mr. Davis was in good voice and made a lasting impression by his splendid renditions of Flotow's "M'Appari" (Martha), Clay's "I Sing Thee Songs of Araby" and Bartlett's "Dream." The Flotow and Bartlett numbers were given with a fine style that was very effective. Mr. Arthur Oglesbee was at the piano throughout the evening and gave splendid support for the solo and quartet numbers. Mr. Oglesbee played as solo numbers the well known "Sextet" for left hand, and "Roses from the South," Strauss-Schutt. He has a good technical equipment, fine sense of rhythm and a musicianship that makes his work very effective.

H. W. P.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, OAK PARK

Peace anniversary service, Sunday evening at 7:45:

Organ Prelude—
Fantasia on Patriotic Hymns of All Nations.....
.....Arranged by Kinsey
Mr. Kinsey

Quartet—
Recessional DeKoven
Chorus—
Peace and Union Verdi
(Tune, Anvil Chorus)

Quartet—
My Native Land Peace Be To Thee.....Thayer
Offertory Duet—
O Lovely Peace (From Judas Maccabaeus).....
.....Handel
Miss Kaufman and Mrs. Gale

Sermon
Quartet—
Angel of Peace
(Tune, Keller's American Hymn)

Organ Postlude—
Grand Chorus in F.....Salome

Howard—Miss Kathleen Howard will give a song recital at the Aeolian Hall in New York on February 16.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANISTE TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Res. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebling Pedagogies
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago
Fine Arts Building

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4383 Woodlawn Avenue

MARGARET KEYES

CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfsohn Bureau

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 716

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

Abbie Stephens FridenbergTHE METHOD OF PORPORA

From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching

VOCAL STUDIOS

Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

Robert R. LippittCONCERT PIANIST

Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave.

Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory

Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST

Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Aze

Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO

Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Mooday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
463 W. 63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

TRINITY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Irving C. Hancock, organist and choir-master at Trinity Episcopal Church, makes the following announcements:

On Sunday afternoon, February 14, at 4,

BENJAMIN F. LEWIS

the cantata "Daughter of Jairus," by Stainer, (Redeemer and Trinity choirs combined); March 28, motet, "Gallia," by Gounod, and on Good Friday, at 8 p. m., Gaul's "Passion Music."

At all the above services the regular soloists and choir will do the work, Masters Stuart McCombs and Eugene Farrell, sopranos; Eddie Verner, alto; Arthur Scott, tenor; Raymond Gifford, baritone, and Benjamin F. Lewis, basso.

Each service is preceded by an organ recital of a half hour, either by Mr. Hancock or a visiting organist from some Chicago church. Mr. Mason Slade of Christ Church, Woodlawn, will play the recital before the cantata on next Sunday, February 14.

ARTHUR SCOTT

The public is cordially invited to all the services at Trinity. No admission is ever charged in the Episcopal Church.

The programs for the organ recitals read as follows:

FEBRUARY 7

Festival March }
Pastorale } Arthur Foote
Allegretto }
Serenade Chaminade-Kraft

FEBRUARY 14

Scherzo, in G minor Callaerts
Funeral March and Song of Seraphs Guilman
Gavotte Moderne Lemare
Spring Song (from the South) Lemare
Marche Militaire Schubert

FEBRUARY 21

Six transcriptions from works of Edward MacDowell—
Idylle—Starlight
Pastorale—To a Wild Rose
Romance—At an Old Trysting Place
Legend—A Deserted Farm
Reverie—With Sweet Lavender
Maestoso—A. D. MDCXX

FEBRUARY 28

Festival March, in D major Henry Smart
In Summer (sketch) Charles A. Stebbins
Toccata in F Charles M. Widor
From the Land of the Sky Blue Water Cadman-Eddy

CAROLYN WILLARD

Tuesday evening the Kenwood Evening Club had as soloists Miss Carolyn Willard, pianiste, assisted by Mrs. Burton Hanson, reader. Miss Willard is one of the best known pianists and teachers before the public, and her work is deserving of the highest commendation. Miss Willard opened the program with the Bach-Saint-Saens "Gavotte B minor," playing it with a breadth of style, color and power of tone seldom heard. The Henselt "Duo Repos D'Amour" was a splendid example of legato playing. Imagination is Miss Willard's to the fullest extent, yet she plays with enough restraint that she doesn't force her instrument. The Chopin Etude Op. 10, No. 2, and Prelude, G Major and B Minor were so well done that one thought of nothing but the spirit of the music in its melody and poetry of expression. The remainder of the program was not heard, for there were other things to hear.

KENWOOD EVANGELICAL

Sunday afternoon, February 14, at 4 o'clock, Palmer Christian will give an organ recital at the Kenwood Evangelical Church. He will be assisted by Herbert Miller, baritone. The program follows:

Agitato (Eleventh Sonata) Rheinberger
En Bateau Debussy
Allegretto in B Minor Guilman
Prelude Saint-Saens
Love Never Fails Root
A New Heaven and a New Earth (The Holy City) Gaul

Mr. Miller
Fantasia and Fugue, in G minor Bach
Capriccio Faulkes
Berceuse Spinney
Overture in C (composed for a military band) Mendelssohn

Snow—Harriet Martin Snow is furnishing the artists for a course of twilight musicales at South Bend, Ind. The first musicale was given Thursday, February 11, and the artists on this occasion were Ethel Connely Cutler, Margaret Smith Lester, Agnes Hansel Harter and Clare Pearl Livingston, booked as the Fine Arts Quartet. At the second musicale, February 25, Beecher Burton, tenor, will give the program. Others will be announced later.

AN INTERESTING SERVICE AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Mr. Joseph A. Schwickerath, the musical director of St. Paul's Church, corner Fullerton Parkway, Kemper Place and Orchard street, prepared with the use of his organist and two splendid choirs an interesting and novel program for the morning service on February 7. All the musical numbers presented were works of Chicago composers and each number represents a characteristic style of its composer.

JOSEPH SCHWICKERATH

The service began with a Prelude, "Minuet" in G, by Felix Borowski, arranged for organ by Chas. W. Pearce, F. R., of Oxford College, England. This number is a gem and proved to be the best organ number heard during the morning. At any rate, the organist, C. A. Weiss, was more successful in its presentation than in the Offertory which was the "Romanza" in D by Arthur Dunham, or the Postlude which brought forth Rosseter G. Cole's "Allegro, Quasi Marcia." Mr. Weiss, who has been organist at St. Paul's for twenty-eight years, came in for a share of the honors of the morning as the composer of "The Night Is Past," which was sung by the Uhlich Home Choir, a body of children which apparently are capable of doing splendid work but upon this occasion were placed so far from the organ that neither their rhythm nor pitch was with the organ at many points in the anthem.

The adult choir which is doing an unusual amount of good singing under Mr. Schwickerath's direction was in the choir loft and so experienced none of the difficulties forced upon the children.

The older choir sang "Savior, Thy Dying Love," a hymn anthem by Daniel Protheroe of the Central Church and West Side Sunday Night Club, written in one of his most happy veins, not difficult but beautiful, which should be in the library of every church choir, as should "The Lord Is My Shepherd," by Eric Delamarter, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church. This number is in pastoral style and proved to be one of the rare gems of the morning, being especially well sung by the choir and Miss Alice Schwickerath, who took the soprano solo part with which the work opens.

The other composer represented at this service was David Nyvall, Jr., whose cantata, "The Nativity," was presented by this choir with splendid results a short time ago. The work offered on Sunday morning was a glorious new festival anthem, "O Sing unto the Lord," dedicated to St. Paul's choir, sung for the first time and still in manuscript. The composition is big, brilliant and inspiring with its rich, harmonious movements. A splendidly written recitative and solo for contralto divides the anthem and was sung in fine style by Mrs. George C. Ickes at this service. Mr. Nyvall shows a virile originality which promises well for the future. Mr. Schwickerath's initiative thus to exploit local composers of music bears imitation. He is doing great things at St. Paul's Church, this being only one of several praiseworthy achievements.

H. M. B.

BERRY MEMORIAL

The choir at the Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, J. S. Fearis, director, was heard with much pleasure in the anthem, "Bow Down Thine Ear," "Ashford" and some spirited hymn singing. The choir male quartet gave a good rendition of Byshe's "A Clean Heart," R. C. Stevenson singing the solo part. The new pipe organ at this church is in the capable hands of Miss Electa Austin. She played "Andantino," Lemare and Guilman's "March" in D and from all that we hear she is gaining a fine place among the church organists.

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Saturday, February 6, the Chicago Piano College gave a recital and the following pupils appeared: Misses Fisk, Guido, Silverstein, Willis, Watson, Peterson, Perry, Friedman, Leitch.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC

Friday evening, February 5, the Illinois College of Music gave music lovers and friends a musical treat at the Warren Avenue Congregational Church. A portion of the program was given by the pupils of the school in a manner that gave evidence of good training. There were children in various grades of piano study, and they had mastered their numbers in a manner seldom heard. Two violin pupils appeared and they maintained the same high standard of presentation and training. The pupils appearing from the departments were Grace Behan, Helen Rusch, Franklin Paul, Ethel Rawitch, Beulah Bassett, Gladys Welge, Bernice Heilman. Miss Mabel Peterson, a pupil of the dramatic department, is a young lady of much natural ability, a winning personality and manner of presentation that is very attractive.

Members of the faculty who appeared were Miss Edwards, organist; Mr. Preiser, violinist; Mr. Edwards, piano; Miss Bird, pianist; Miss Moore, reader.

The Liszt "Liebestraume" for piano, violin and organ was played in a very effective and musicianly manner by Miss Edwards, Mr. Preiser, and Mr. Edwards. They also gave an excellent rendition of the "Adagio," Fesca, and Kretschmer's "Eriks-gang and Kronungsmarch." Miss Bird gave a good account of herself in the Moszkowski "Waltz in E Major," giving much pleasure by her praise-meriting reading. Mr. Preiser was heard with great pleasure in a Preiser-Gounod arrangement of "Sing, Smile, Slumber." He draws a good tone from his instrument and he displays excellent musicianship. Miss Moore was heard in a selected reading that was listened to with much pleasure by the audience.

H. W. P.

Allen—Miss Leonora Allen appeared as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on January 31.

ELEANOR
Dramatic
Soprano
In Programs of
Songs and Arias
and Children's Songs and Stories

HAZZARD PEOCOCK

SEASON
1914-15 in
America

Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson

437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

Marcella Craft

Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich

Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction

M. H. HANSON

437 FIFTH AVE.

NEW YORK

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Faculty Concert Series being given by the Cosmopolitan School of Music is a remarkable exposition of the fact that in this progressive school there are many teachers whose public work will rank with the best that is ever presented by visiting artists, and, in fact, very few reach their standard.

The concert of last Friday evening was particularly fine and presented, first of all, Mrs. W. S. Bracken, a contralto of lovely voice and very great personality.

MISS HENRIETTE WEBER

Mrs. Bracken is a teacher and a choir singer in such demand that beyond an occasional recital or concert she does not appear outside her regular duties, but such is the beauty of her voice and such the authority of her interpretations that she should be heard everywhere.

On Friday she presented first the stately "Largo" from Handel's "Xerxes," and sang it in a way to give great delight to every hearer. This, in fine contrast, was followed by two Scarlatti arias and these amply proved again the clarity and the finish of her vocal art.

Two German songs (Brahms and Schumann) were of great power, "Condescend," by MacFarlane, showed much technical skill, and "Thanks for Thy Hand," by Grieg, was an exposition of tone at once broad and beautiful. Altogether Mrs. Bracken again impressed as a wonderfully potent singer and one we would fain hear much oftener. Mr. Gordon Campbell provided accompaniments which were models of elegance. No finer combination could be desired.

Miss Bertha Hart, new to Chicago this year, opened and closed the program, for the latter service choosing some little-known numbers by Sgambati and an

MISS BERTHA HART

"Etude" by Henselt, which were not heard by this writer.

For her opening number she chose the Schumann "Sonata," Op. 22, and this was truly an exposition of piano playing at its clearest and best estate.

Miss Hart has a thoroughly ingratiating personality and a style of performance very pleasing. Her technic is absolutely fine and her playing clear cut and expressive.

Never does she force the piano beyond valid limits and yet her tone is invariably round and free, much of this being due to her expert use of the damper pedal.

An unusual feature of the program was the introduction of some melodramas by Miss Anne Irene Larkin and Miss Henriette Weber, the former giving charming presentations of the text and the latter embellishing this with piano playing of unusual beauty and effect.

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN

Very much could be written of this delightful feature of the program but it must suffice for the present to say that never have the John A. Carpenter settings of the "Gitanjali" songs been so well understood as after hearing the fine interpretations of Miss Larkin and Miss Weber, while the lighter things used to round out a fine group were, by turn, capricious, humorous, merry and sad, and in every case the originally intended mood and color were carefully and most convincingly conserved.

Perhaps the very finest bit of work of the whole group was "The Elf's Dream," by Hugo Wolf, for in this Miss Larkin was absolutely convincing as to text and Miss Weber excelled herself in the daintiness and finish of her piano accompaniment.

C. E. W.

AN ALUMNI RECITAL AT NORTH-WESTERN

The fourth of a series of alumni recitals was given by Miss Esther Ward, pianist at Music Hall, Northwestern University School of Music, on Friday evening, February 5.

Miss Ward graduated with the class of 1910, and is at present director of the Department of Music at Grand Prairie Seminary, Onarga, Ill.

The giving of such a series of recitals is in some ways unique and in others interesting and enjoyable. Music Hall was filled on Friday evening with faculty, students and friends of Miss Ward, which proved these events are popular and successful.

The program offered by the former graduate was well arranged, contained a wealth of interesting and enjoyable compositions, and was played with the assurance, seriousness and finish of the genuine artist.

The opening number, "Rondo" in G, by Beethoven, was not heard by the reviewer. A group of Chopin containing the "Etudes" in G flat and C sharp minor and the "Ballade" in G minor were excellently played and were a tribute to the pianistic attainments of Miss Ward as a Chopin interpreter. "In Silent Forests," "Beside the Lonely Spring" and "Intermezzo" were three Strauss numbers played in a delightful vein and displayed the pianist's ability as a performer of the more modern compositions in an admirable way. "The Lark," Glinka-Balakirew, was a brilliant point in the program and the "Arabesque," by Debussy, was perfect in the hands of Miss Ward.

"Consolation," "Liebestraum" and "Gnommenreigen," all three by Liszt, formed a fine and very interesting group from the audience standpoint and the technical proficiency of the young pianist, which had stood her in good stead throughout the evening, was better still in playing the Liszt works.

With Mrs. W. H. Knapp playing orchestral parts on the second piano, Miss Ward played in a most finished and brilliant manner Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy," which was, according to the program, to close the recital, but a request was handed the pianist for Leschetizky's arrangement of the sextet from "Lucia" for left hand alone which she most gracefully delivered. She surmounted its difficulties with ease and achieved another success.

Miss Ward, besides being splendidly equipped as a pianist, is endowed with a charming personality and most graceful stage presence. She should be heard more than at present. H. M. B.

Bengel—Helen Bright Bengel, contralto, will give recitals this week at Fort Dodge, Ia., (second return engagement) and at Burlington, Ia. She will sing with the Bach Choral Society in "St John" and "Bide With Us" at Orchestra Hall on March 2. Mrs. Bengel substituted for Mrs. Dickey at St. James Methodist Episcopal Church on January 23 and February 21 will sing at the Pilgrim Congregational Church.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

Steinway Pianos Used
FOR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

JOHN DOANE

Mr. John Doane leaves Chicago on February 15 and will play an organ recital at Los Angeles, Cal., on the 19th, and has been asked also to play at the exposition at San Diego.

He gives four recitals at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, the dates being March 2-3-4-5.

When it was known that Mr. Doane would be in the West he received a great number of requests for recitals at various places on the coast and in Colorado, but has found it possible to fulfill only a recital date at Colorado College at Colorado Springs on March 8 and another at Greeley, Col., on the 11th, returning to Chicago on the 13th.

JOHN DOANE

Mr. Doane's programs for the exposition in San Francisco read as follows:

Program to be given in Festival Hall at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., March 2, 1915:

Marche Heroique Edwin H. Lemare
Sylvine (from La Farandole Suite).....Theodore Dubois
Toccata and Fugue in D Minor.....
.....Johann Sebastian Bach
Sonata No. 5 in C Minor.....Alexandre Guilmant
Allegro Appassionata
Adagio
Scherzo
Sposalizio Franz Liszt
Fantaisie Rustique (Un souvenir nuptiale).....
.....W. Wolstenholme
Lullaby Edwin H. Lemare
Sonata on the Ninety-fourth Psalm.....Julius Reubke
Introduction
Fugue

Program for March 3, 1915:

Piece Heroique Cesar Franck
(a) Romanza W. Wolstenholme
(b) Allegretto W. Wolstenholme
Sonata No. 12 in D Flat Josef Rheinberger
Phantasie
Pastorale
Fugue in D Alexandre Guilmant
Liebestod (Tristan and Isolde) Richard Wagner
En Bateau Claude Debussy
Con Grazia George W. Andrews
The Curfew Edward I. Horsmann
Fantaisie Symphonique Rosseter G. Cole

Program for March 4, 1915:

Marche Pittoresque Ernest R. Kroeger
Two Duologues—
(a) Le Soupir
(b) Le Sourire
Fugue in E Flat Johann Sebastian Bach
Fantasia in F Minor Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart
Angel Scene (Hansel and Gretel).....
..... Engelbert Humperdinck

(a) Minuet A. Arensky
(b) Romance A. Arensky
Toccata in G Minor Harry Alexander Matthews

Program for March 5, 1915:

Toccata in D Minor Johann Sebastian Bach
Prelude de "La Damselle Elue"..... Claude Debussy
Romanza in D Flat..... Jean Sibelius
Allegro Vivace from Symphonie No. 5.....
..... Charles Marie Widor
Sonata No. 6 in D Minor.....
..... Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy
(a) Christmas Song..... Edwin H. Lemare
(b) Spring Song (From the South).....
..... Edwin H. Lemare
Caprice (The Brook) Gaston M. Dethier

MISS PANGBOURNE IN SONG
RECITAL

Mr. William A. Willett invited his clientele to hear his artist-pupil, Miss Annette Pangbourne, in a very unique song recital at Kimball Hall on last Tuesday evening, and the result was a capacity audience and great pleasure for each individual member of that audience.

Miss Pangbourne has a most ingratiating personality and a definitely charming style. Her voice is suave and sweet and her interpretative thought covers a wide gamut of thought.

Her program contained groups by

WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1325 E. 64th St.

Streicher and Sinding, not heard by this writer, as also well-selected examples of the art of Sibelius and Mary Turner Salter.

The Sibelius songs were of great beauty and undeniable intellectual appeal, and were charmingly sung. The list embraced "In the Night," "Jubal," "Was It a Dream?" and "Spring Is Flying." The Salter numbers were better known and proved again to be delightful. They suited Miss Pangbourne, too, to perfection, and were delivered with much effect.

Accompaniments were provided by Bessie M. McAllister, and it would indeed be difficult to imagine more careful or more pronouncedly sympathetic work. Mrs. McAllister has not been long in the local accompanying field, but it is very evident that she is destined to take high rank. C. E. W.

BENSON BUREAU

The following artists were presented by the Benson Social Service under the direction of Miss Lounsbury.

German Club, February 9—Mme. Elsa Arendt, soprano; Edith Clyde, harpist.
Wilmette Country Club, February 10—Mme. Elsa Arendt, soprano; Mabel Church Van Alstine, reader; Alfred Goldman, violinist.
Traffic Club, February 12—Mme. Elsa Arendt, soprano; Edith Clyde, harpist; Watahwaso, Penobscot Indian maid, in native legends, songs and dances.

CHICAGO CONCERT QUARTET

Miss Mary Ann Kaufman, soprano; Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale, contralto; Mr. Grant Kimbell, tenor, and Mr. Frank M. Dunford, basso, with Mr. Carl D. Kinsey at the piano, are to sing at the Baptist Social Union banquet at Hotel La Salle, Tuesday evening, February 23. This is a return engagement.

FACULTY RECITAL AT "NORTH-WESTERN"

The following program was given at the faculty recital in Music Hall, Northwestern University School of Music, on Tuesday evening, February 2, by Miss Clare Livingston, contralto, assisted by Mr. Dwight Defty, 'cellist, Mr. David Jacobs, violinist, and Mr. Charles M. Dennis, reader. The accompaniments were furnished by Professor G. A. Grant-Schaefer.

May, the Maiden (Sidney Lanier).....Carpenter
Come Dance the Jig (Paul Verlaine).....Carpenter
The Mother's Visits (Mulock).....Wathall
Autumn Song (Paul Verlaine) for violin and voice
..... E. Nevin
Violin, Mr. Jacobs
Cry of Rachel (Reese).....Salter
Miss Livingston
Vous dansez Marquise (Bazot).....Lemaire
Sous les oranges Holmes
La chanson de l'oiseau bleu.....Holmes
Miss Livingston
Orange Blossoms Friml
Valse triste Sibelius
Scherzo Van Goens
Mr. Defty
La Ballade du Desespere (H. Murger).....H. Bemberg
Mr. Dennis, Miss Livingston, Mr. Defty
Love and Eternity (Benfey) Orlando Morgan
Candle Lightin' Time (Dunbar).....Coleridge-Taylor
Oranges, Sweet Oranges (L. Hunt).....Leo Smith
Two Nonsense Songs (Lear).....Margaret A. Lang
The Lady of Riga
There Was an Old Person of Cassel
Miss Livingston

Miss Livingston, who has recently become a member of the school's teaching force, is a pupil of G. A. Grant-Schaefer, and much reason he has for being proud of the fact. Miss Livingston's voice is rich in quality and of good range. She sings with authority.

The variety and character of the vocal numbers on the program were such as would tax one's versatility to an extreme degree, but Miss Livingston possessing splendid interpretative ability and vocal resources, was able to present all in a manner entirely praiseworthy and pleasing. "Artistic" is a word that characterizes her work.

Mr. Defty's 'cello playing was a feature of the program, altogether enjoyable, and Mr. Jacobs, who played the violin scores in "Autumn Song" and "La Ballade du Desespere," did so with skill and judgment.

"Le Ballade du Desepere" is a novelty which added much to the interest and variety of the evening's offerings, requiring a reader as well as voice, violin and piano. The whole composition manifested careful preparation and artistic skill on the part of the performers.

Professor Grant-Schaefer deserves great credit for the success Miss Livingston has achieved and also for the success of the evening's recital, for of course the burden of responsibility for its preparation and performance fell to him. C. J. B.

HENRY B. RONEY

Mr. Henry B. Roney gave his lecture, "Boys, from Cradle to Manhood," before the Social Circle of the People's Church at Belvidere Hall on January 25. His pupil, Master Milton Campbell, of Iowa, contralto, gave a short song recital in connection, including the following:

Invictus Bruno Huhn
The Two Grenadiers Schumann
Bedouin Love Song Pinsuti
Angels Ever Bright and Fair Handel
The Deathless Army Trotere
Loch Lomond Foote
and several ballads. The songs were given in handsome costumes.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913
Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Stuoio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY
800 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Con-
tral-
to
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

HAROLD HENRY IN RECITAL

A piano recital which will measure up to any given by a visiting artist this season and which, for general intelligence and excellence, surpasses most of them, was that given by Harold Henry at the Fine Arts Theater on last Thursday evening.

Mr. Henry's qualities of mind and heart are so well known that they need but little recapitulation at this time and it is only necessary to say that on Thursday these were in full evidence to indicate that the recital was one which was very much enjoyed by the audience which braved very bad weather conditions to be present.

HAROLD HENRY

In consonance with his well established reputation for placing always works of strong import on his programs, Mr. Henry offered the Schumann Sonata Op. 22 in entirety and the colossal "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue," by Cesar Frank, as his chief items.

These were played with splendid virility and served as the vehicles also for fully equipped technical display.

Brahms, Schubert and Chopin were also chosen from wisely and well and each of these standard composers was treated with deft touch and infused with rare temperamental qualities by Mr. Henry.

His last group was more novel and was played with much display of facility, some humor and much grace.

"To the Sea" (MacDowell) and "Rhapsody" (Dohnanyi) have been heard in the Henry interpretation before and again were they found worthy. "Tabatiere a Musique," by Friedman, was both novel and fascinating. It had to be repeated.

"Kobold," by Grieg, was boldly played and the "Nocturne" by the same composer was again charming, while the "Vallee d'Obermann," by Liszt, completed a thoroughly representative list and was given with becoming virtuosity.

C. E. W.

BARTHOLOMEW PUPIL WINNING SUCCESS

Mr. Lawrence B. Reeder, tenor and pupil of H. B. Bartholomew of Kimball Hall, recently gave a recital in Aurora which was a genuine success from all viewpoints. Mr. Reeder sang the following program:

Adelaide	Beethoven
Faith in Spring	Schubert
Impatience	Schubert
Die Nacht	Strauss
Verborgenheit	Wolf
Ich Liebe Dich	Grieg
Folk Songs—
Drink to Me Only (Old English)
My Love's an Arbutus (Scotch)
Volklied (German)
I'm Not Myself at All (Irish)
Last Night, I Heard a Nightingale	Salter
Banjo Song	Homer
Irish Love Song	Lang
Recompense	Hammond

In commenting upon this recital, the Aurora Beacon had this to say:

H. B. Bartholomew presented to an Aurora audience last evening at the First Baptist Church a young singer, Lawrence Burton Reeder, tenor, who is destined to go far in his profession, friends say. Mr. Reeder possesses a pure lyric tenor voice, of unusual quality and smoothness, and of ample power for either recital or oratorio. He was commended for his perfect enunciation, as well as his ability to interpret songs of such a varied type. The program consisted of Beethoven, Schubert, Wolf, Strauss and Grieg works, as well as modern compositions. (Advertisement.)

LAURENCE B. REEDER

Mr. Laurence B. Reeder, who is fast making an enviable position among Chicago's best soloists, is an exclusive product of the Bartholomew studio, having done all of his work with Mr. Bartholomew.

Mr. Reeder possesses a tenor voice of unusual sweetness, as well as power sufficient for either the recital or oratorio field.

LAURENCE B. REEDER

Mr. Reeder has many dates booked in the near future, among them Gaul's "Joan of Arc," with the Batavia Musical Club, February 23, besides recitals at Aurora, Naperville and Elgin.

Mr. Bartholomew is not only acting in the capacity of teacher and accompanist, but as manager as well. All inquiries for dates should be addressed to him at 502 Kimball Hall.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK MANDY PRESENT ARTIST PUPILS

The name Mandy has become synonymous with "good work," and with high grade concert performances; so that it was not surprising to find Kimball Hall completely filled on last Tuesday evening when

MRS. FRANK P. MANDY

Mr. and Mrs. Mandy presented artist pupils in a violin and piano program, nor was it more than the usual case to find also much enthusiasm in this audience.

Both the Mandys are thoroughly consistent and artistic musicians, and their programs are always made up from the best repertoire and are invariably the medium for the exploitation of much good talent, some of which is just being formed and other of which has reached the advanced stage of effective concert performance.

MR. FRANK P. MANDY

The work of each of these teachers is beautifully supplemented by that of the other, and Mr. Mandy's violin pupils are particularly fortunate in having for their accompanist Mrs. Mandy, a player who has had wide experience and unflinching good taste.

The program of Tuesday evening presented six solo pianists, five solo violinists and an ensemble made up of Harry Beekmann, Walter Slania, Charles Hudson and Mr. and Mrs. Mandy, which played with much finish and style the violin quartets, with piano, "Largo" (Handel), "Evening Chimes" (Kriens) and "Tarentella," by Hellmesberger.

The pianists of the evening were Thomas Findlay, Mary Hull, Helen Harris, Mabel Sullivan, Beulah Cummings and Elsiemarie Fritz, their numbers ranging through Grieg, Liszt, Weber and Arensky, most of the work being in the form of "concerto" movements, which were played with precision and in such good interpretative style as to reflect much credit on Mrs. Mandy.

The solo violinists were Charles Hudson, Jessica Boddy, Dorothy Mason, Harry Beekman and Walter Slania, all of whom showed the result of good training, and each one giving promise of much excellence on the most difficult of instruments, the violin. Their numbers embraced works by Vieuxtemps, Remenyi, Joachim and Sarasate and were played with commendable authority.

C. E. W.

Chamber Music Evenings—Three evenings of chamber music will be given at the Fine Arts Assembly Room, the dates being February 23, March 9 and March 25, under the direction of Rachel Busey Kinsolving. The first will be a 'cello recital by Carl Brueckner, assisted by M. Jennette Loudon, pianist, and Marie White Clark, soprano. The second will be given by the Beethoven Trio, Miss Loudon and Messrs. Roehrborn and Bruckner. The third will be given by Harry Weisbach, violinist, and Miss M. Jeannette Loudon, pianist.

Weber—Henriette Weber gave programs in Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, last Monday, February 8. The Weber-Larkin melodrama arrangement of "Der Kuhreigen" was heard by the Woman's Club of Kenilworth February 11.

BALLMANN ORCHESTRA

Despite the wind and rain, the orchestra at Turner Hall played to a well-filled house. This being the second request program of the season, there was reason for the extra enthusiasm that reigned. Mr. Ballmann offered a varied list of particular favorites, and gave them with a spirit that was very catching. Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," in B minor, made an especially good impression.

Mr. Ballmann gave a rousing rendition of the "Second Rhapsodie," by Liszt, and Lumbye's "Fantasia Dream Picture," with its varying moods, was well worked out and was very effective. The soloists of the afternoon were Miss E. Louise Krause, soprano; Mr. Karl Schulte, violinist, and Mr. George Meni, tenor.

Miss Krause is making rapid strides in work, and well she might, for her voice is a soprano of excellent range, good quality and, added to that, is an engaging personality that makes her singing very attractive. Miss Krause gave a good account of herself in Woodman's "A Birthday" and "The Moon Drops Low," by Cadman. In "A Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton, she was at her best, and was called upon to repeat it, which she graciously did.

Mr. Karl Schulte gave the Wieniawski "Legende," Op. 17, and "Mazurka," Op. 16, as his programmed numbers. He draws a tone of much power and of good quality. He plays with such assurance and certainty that one cannot help but enjoy his work. Mr. Schulte's playing has breadth, and he displays good musicianship. He was accorded much applause for his playing of the Wieniawski numbers. Mr. Schulte gave the Kreisler "Liebesfreud" as an encore and played it with fine success.

H. W. P.

Foerster—At the First Presbyterian Church in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on last Sunday evening, all the music was from the pen of Adolph M. Foerster, whose birthday it happened to be. The numbers used were "Prelude," "Pastorale," "Epigram" and "Postlude" for organ; the anthem "Christ Is Our Cornerstone," and the offertory solo "Song to the Saviour."

Bush Conservatory—Miss Lucille Wallace, pianist, and Mrs. Lorraine Decker Campbell, soprano, pupil of Charles W. Clark, gave a very interesting and successful concert at Bush Temple on last Friday evening.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract 26th Year.

THE-BREWER-TEACHER'S-AGENCY

ERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet. AUDITORIUM BUILDING. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application. Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

CONCERT BY LUTHER LEAGUE OF CHICAGO

Mr. Carl Faulk arranged a lengthy and pretentious program Tuesday evening, February 2, in the Immanuel Lutheran Church, which enlisted the services of eight soloists and the Lutheran Choral Club. The concert, a very long one, was handicapped with a half hour delay in starting.

Mr. Frederick P. Johnson naturally takes first place in any review of the evening, as he appeared in the capacity of organ soloist as well as director of the Choral Club. This organization (some sixty-five voices) is a thoroughly enjoyable one in a capella work. The two numbers done without accompaniment disclosed many splendid points, but when called upon for great volume, as in "The Lord Is Great," by Righini, disappointed through a tendency to force. Mr. Johnson has done most commendable work with these young singers and is to be congratulated on the really fine rendition of "The Twilight Shadows Fall," by Wood, and the traditional "When Peaceful Night." Mr. Johnson gave further account of himself as a musician in three good organ solos. Especially fine was the "Vorspiel to Lohengrin," in which he made the organ sound orchestral.

Mrs. Sigfrid Janson-Hathaway, violinist, played the Borowski "Adoration" in fine style. Mrs. Hathaway is very sure of herself, knows how to play, and seemed to have a real message to deliver. Her bowing is firm and the tone true. I should have enjoyed hearing more of her work.

Miss Clara Anderson gave us the "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 12," by Liszt, in good style. She doubtless was uneasy, as were all who had to touch the piano, because of a miserable instrument. It is hardly fair to judge of Miss Anderson's work or that of Mr. Arnold C. Boedecker, inasmuch as they labored under tremendous difficulty. Mr. Boedecker offered the "Rhapsody No. 2" and, except when his memory played sorry tricks, he seemed to have the work well in hand. I hope I shall hear these young people again under favorable circumstances.

Miss Minnie L. Langguth gave a commendable reading. The program said she would read with violin and piano accompaniment; I wonder why she read without. The reading was really fine, as it was given, but I imagine "The Soul of the Violin" would have been exceedingly interesting with the music.

Miss Georgina Huebner was heard in the "Jewel Song from Faust," and disclosed a well trained lyric soprano voice. I felt that the selection was not the most happy one for her. However, I enjoyed the free, well-placed tone and thoroughly fine enunciation.

Miss Huebner was splendidly supported by her accompanist, whose name was not on the program.

Master Earl Abramson, the boy soprano, sang "With Verdure Clad," from Haydn's "Creation"; "The Swallows," by Cowen, and a waltz song by Batten, "April Morn." Master Abramson is a talented young man, and sings with much ease, certain intonation and good breath control.

Mr. A. Alfred Holmes, organist of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, opened the program with Batiste's "Offertoire," in D minor, very well played.

Mr. A. J. Haupt gave much pleasure with his rendition of the tenor solo in the Mann "Magnificat." It is a pity that he could not have been heard in a more grateful number. He sang with intelligence and good tone. Miss Edna L. Johnson supported him, as well as the Choral Club, with musicianly accompaniments.

J. W. N.

KURT DONATH

Kurt Donath, 426 Fine Arts Building, will give, with pupils of his opera school, acts from "Carmen," "Freischuetz" and "The Huguenots" at the Chicago Little Theater on March 8. Leading parts: Carmen, Pearl McAdams; Frasquita, Irene Graf; Mercedes, Maude Hirsch; Don Jose, Joseph Hurt. In "Der Freischuetz," Agnes, Irene Graf; Anna, Pearl McAdams; Max, Joseph Hurt. In "The Huguenots" Miss Graf will sing Valentine and Kurt Donath the part of Raoul. Cesare Gonzalez, a pupil of his vocal class at the Culver Military Academy, will sing a group of songs, and Miss Marie Simon will accompany and play a group of piano selections.

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD

the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 MCCLURG BLDG.

218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279 Chicago, Ill.

RUSSELL SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Monday evening, February 1, the recital at the L. Douglas Russell School of Music was given by Miss Irma Hosier, pianiste, assisted by Miss Leper, reader. Miss Hosier gave a good account of herself, both technically and musically. She opened the program with the Mozart sonata in A major, playing it with good understanding and commendable accuracy. The andante and variations found her at her best. Schubert's Impromptu, Op. 90, No. 2, and the B minor Menuetto comprised the second group by Miss Hosier and she strengthened the good impression by the renditions given these numbers. Her last group, including numbers by Schuett, Leschetizky, Mozart, Rubinstein and Dreyschock, were well done, the Serenade and Gavotte being especially commendable. Miss Leper is a reader of much talent and pleased greatly in her musical readings.

H. W. P.

Civic Music—Sokoloff played at Eckhart Park last Sunday afternoon, and the Sherman Park Choral Club appeared under the direction of Rossetter G. Cole. On February 21 the Commonwealth Edison Orchestra will play at the same park (Sherman), and on March 7 Miss Agnes Hope Pillsbury, pianist, will be heard.

CHICAGO WOMAN'S MUSICAL CLUB

The Francis I Room of the Congress Hotel was full and overflowing with people anxious to hear the splendid program that had been arranged for the meeting of February 1. Miss Carol Robinson opened the program with the Bach-Liszt G minor "Organ Fantasie and Fugue," playing it with a surety, poise and display of efficient technique that was very convincing. Miss Robinson in her second group presented numbers by Brahms, Debussy and MacDowell. She has temperament, a keen insight of the musical values of her numbers. Miss Robinson's last group found her at her best, for she played them with a breadth of style, power of imagination and feeling that won her much sincere praise and applause.

ROSE LUTIGER GANNON

Rose Lutiger Gannon, always a great favorite and a charming singer, was given a cordial welcome. She gave Brahms' "Minnelied" and "Der Schmied" and Homer's "Sing to Me, Sing." Mrs. Gannon sang the Brahms numbers in a manner that might well be taken as an example of splendid interpretation. Homer's "Sing to Me, Sing," is well liked and on this occasion Mrs. Gannon delivered it in a manner that was particularly effective and musicianly, winning such a storm of applause that a repetition would have been welcomed.

Miss Edith Clyde, harpist, received much applause for her efforts.

Dvorak's "Dumky," Opus 90, was given a good rendition by Misses Mignonette Schruta, violinist; Olga Matuska, pianist; Mr. Frank J. Novak, cello; Miss Margaret Shirley, a singer little known in Chicago, sang numbers by Mozart, Liszt, Purcell and Hildach. Miss May Anderson and Mrs. Mac MacAvoy were the accompanists.

H. W. P.

American Conservatory—Adolf Weidig's second lecture recital on the development of chamber music will take place Saturday afternoon, February 20, at Kimball Hall. The program will present illustrations from the Romantic composers, including such compositions as Beethoven, Kreutzer Sonata, Schubert's Forellen Quintet, Quintet by Schumann and Mendelssohn's D Minor Trio.

MISS JENNIE F. W. JOHNSON'S RECITAL

Music Hall was crowded on Tuesday evening when Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson gave her recital, and there was no limit to pleasure, enthusiasm and hearty spirit. It seemed as if her friends had been bottling up their cordiality and good will to pour it out in spontaneous tribute of admiration for the splendid woman. The musical people had some strong competition to encounter in the militant suffragettes, who count Miss Johnson and her voice as one of their prime assets, and they were present in round numbers and unafraid in their demonstrations. It was altogether a fine testimonial to genuine worth and sincerity, and doubtless afforded the recipient a rare glow of satisfaction and happiness, because of its unquestioned genuineness and heartiness.

But if Miss Johnson was well received because of her personal merits, she made herself an individual place because of the worth of the program offered. Not only was she well equipped to do what she had prepared, but the material and its arrangement and decoration was unusual and brilliant beyond the ordinary. Nearly everything given was new and novel, and the use of instruments other than pianos afforded such variety and color as to keep the musically interested quite on the alert.

The notably bright spot in the list was the cycle of Scheinplug, for voice, piano, violin and English horn, a sort of fantasy in "Never-Never Land," wherein the poet and musician walked amid changing scenes of nature. The group found its climax in the "Autumn Walk," a most remarkable wedding of text and fluent tonal coloring and effective in every detail. There was no separation of any of the factors used, but a most engrossing fitting together of them to present the incidents of dramatic adventure. Quite in contrast with the turgid emotions this aroused was the longing voiced in the "Epilogue"—that unceasing wish for something seen only in visions.

In this cycle Miss Johnson had the assistance of Mr. Herbert Butler, violin, and Mr. Alfred Barthel, English horn. Only an original could have planned the effects produced by the peculiar intervallic dissonances used at times, but the gentlemen played these with such certainty that the composer's intentions were made plain and direct. It was a choice bit of artistry to see beyond the obvious, and submit to the farther sight of the designer. Mr. Barthel was an aid also in a Bach offering, which opened the program, playing his oboe with his notable smoothness and always delicate color.

Miss Johnson did also a group of the less used Brahms songs, and did them capitally. For a finale she complimented Chicago composers, making a great deal out of a song of A. Oberndorfer, built on a sort of monotone, and phrasing Arthur Dunham's big "Pilgrimage" in the broadest, most massive manner. Grant-Schaefer's "Scotch Lullaby" was so charming that it was begged for again, and Adolph Weidig's "Evensong" was used to reveal not only its own melodiousness, but the range and brilliancy, and vigor, and purity of Miss Johnson's voice. Coming at the end of a taxing program, the song was given with superb fire and undiminished energy.

At the piano Mr. Marx Oberndorfer was everything that could be desired in resourcefulness, feeling, support and individuality.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

KARL RECKZEH

Pupils of Karl Reckzeh, in the Chicago Musical College, will give the following program at the Recital Hall, 624 Michigan avenue, on Wednesday evening, February 17:

Toccata and Fugue, D minor.....	Bach-Tausig
Irvin Antes
Fantasie, C minor.....	Mozart
Eitel Brosseit
Valse, A flat major.....	Chopin
Edith Cox
Berceuse	Chopin
Margaret Wilson
Etude, B flat minor.....	Mendelssohn
Helen Printeville
Barcarolle, G minor.....	Rubinstein
Anna Alberti
Barcarolle, A minor.....	Rubinstein
Mamie Thilo
Kamenoi Ostrow	Rubinstein
Mabel Rippe
Prelude, C sharp.....	Rachmaninoff
Beatrice Wais
Three Etudes	Seeling
Julia Kryll
Cantique d'Amour	Liszt
Ethel Caleur

Mr. Reckzeh will play the Weber "Concertstueck," with Mr. Adolf Brune at the second piano.

RUSSELL STUDIO NOTES

Mr. Glenn Sherwood will sing for the First Presbyterian Church of Austin Tuesday evening.

David R. Pershing sang for the Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. at their men's meeting. Mr. Edward Narramore furnished good accompaniments.

The Russell Quartet presented a program before the Men's League of the Sunday Evening Club at the City Club Wednesday evening, January 27. They were well received. Miss Bernice Austin accompanied them.

The Russell Choral Club gave an entire program before the Woman's Club of the Esther Falkenstein Settlement on Saturday evening, January 30. Despite the storm there was a large audience and most appreciative of the work of the young ladies. Miss Charlotte Beck furnished the accompaniments.

Durno—Some of the piano pupils of Josephine Rogers, an assistant in the Jeannette Durno studios, appeared in a studio recital Friday afternoon, February 5. Those who played were: Margaret Libbe, Richard Loeb, Rhoda Dattelbaum, Grace Glidden, Lillian Siegel and James Slifer.

Spencer—Allen Spencer will give his annual piano recital Sunday afternoon, February 21, at 3:30 at the Fine Arts Theater. The program, which is of exceptional interest, will be as follows:

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, February 12

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra, Julia Claussen, soloist.

Saturday, February 13

Kimball Hall, 3:30; American Conservatory Concert.

Columbia School Recital Hall, 2:30; Pupils' Concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, February 14

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Julia Culp.

Auditorium, 3:30; Kreisler.

Fullerton Hall, 8:00; "Carmen."

Monday, February 15

Hamilton Park Field House, 8:15; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bailey, song recital.

Fine Arts Theater, 2:30; Spry Music School Concert.

Tuesday, February 16

Mandel Hall, University, 4:15; Gogorza.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Chicago Band.

Wednesday, February 17

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Chicago Band.

Thursday, February 18

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Chicago Band.

Sunday, February 21

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Samaroff.

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Bauer-Casals.

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Allen Spencer.

JESSAMINE E. ALLEN

Jessamine E. Allen, western manager of the Lahee Bureau, Fine Arts Building, has just returned from New York and Boston, where she completed the arrangements for placing Carolina White of the Chicago Grand Opera Company in vaudeville. Miss White will make her debut at the Palace Theater in New York, February 8. She was booked through Mr. Claude Humphries of the United Booking Offices, Chicago, where the idea was originated and brought to its final culmination. The fact that big acts can be booked from Chicago demonstrates the fact which the musical world is beginning to see; and that is, from the managerial standpoint, Chicago is becoming more and more a city of importance.

Harter—Agnes Hansel Harter, contralto, will appear with the Dolly Varden Quartet at the Oliver Hotel (South Bend) Twilight Musicale on February 11, and will sing before the Ladies' Club of the First Congregational Church of Oak Park on the 12th. February 15, musicale at the home of William Peterson, North Shore. In March, a concert with Mrs. Grace Brune Marcusson and Worthie Faulkner at the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A.

Christian-Morgenson—Julian Morgenson, tenor, and Palmer Christian, organist, appeared on the program of the Sheboygan Music Club, at their open meeting Friday, February 5, at Sheboygan, Wis.

Thomas N. MacBurney
Baritone Voice Production Song Recitals
608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR

Mgt. Harriet M. Snow, 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff

SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch

Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church, 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER

CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

ESTHER B. BENEDICT

DRAMATIC SOPRANO

609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAAKE

DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston, Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE. 868

Frank L. Denhard

Concert
Pianist and
Teacher

TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon

CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH BROKAW

Violinist

Power-Meyer
Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis KORTZENBORN

BARITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1985

Richard B. DE YOUNG

Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC

(Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH

CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien

SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK

CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

Central College of Music

Florence Wells Metz, Pres. James Pinedo, Vice-Pres.
5607 South Boulevard Austin-Chicago

EMMERAN STOEBER IN 'CELLO RECITAL

One of the most artistic concerts of the entire season was that of last Wednesday evening when Emmeran Stoeber, a member of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, appeared in recital at the Fine Arts Theater, having the assistance of T. H. Otterstrom, piano, and Ludwig Becker, violin.

Mr. Stoeber, when he played as soloist with the orchestra, showed himself the possessor of technic in the highest stage of development and also of a 'cello tone which is rich, full and vibrant.

In his recital he again disclosed those fine aspects of the 'cello art and also proved himself to be in possession of unlimited musicianship and an interpretative ability which covers a wide range.

The Boccherini "Adagio" was played with a wonderfully good musical tone and the Volkmann "Concerto" disclosed 'cello virtuosity of the best and highest type.

EMMERAN STOEBER

The "Sonata" for 'cello and piano was played by Mr. Stoeber and its composer, Mr. Otterstrom.

Beyond any question it is a monumental piece of work and it is equally certain that it was played splendidly, barring the fact that the piano much too often assumed the aspect of a solo instrument.

Mr. Otterstrom has not very evenly balanced the two voices—piano and 'cello—and has given the former much too brilliant a part as compared with the latter; also, he played it too vigorously.

In the Tchaikovsky "Trio," Op. 50, Mr. Stoeber and Mr. Otterstrom were joined by Ludwig Becker, a violinist of superb equipment and excellent style, and the work was carried to great heights of eloquence. C. E. W.

University—The Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave a concert at the University of Chicago on last Tuesday afternoon, the program being devoted to Wagner.

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mme. Olga Samaroff, who has not been heard in recital in Chicago for six years, will give a piano recital at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, February 21, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. Mme. Samaroff will play the following program:

PART I.

Organ Fugue, in G minor.....Bach-Samaroff
Gigue.....Graun (1701-1759)
Bagatelle, in E flat.....Beethoven
Giga.....Padre Martini (1706-1784)
Turkish March, from "The Ruins of Athens".....Beethoven

(Arranged by Rubinstein)

Sonata Eroica, "Flos Regum Arthurus".....MacDowell
Slow, with nobility. Fast. Passionately. Elf-like, as light and swift as possible. Tenderly, longingly, and yet with passion. Fiercely. Very fast.

PART II.

Theme and Variations.....Ernest Schelling
Nocturne, D flat major.....Chopin
Waltz, D flat major.....Chopin
Polish Song (Bacchanale).....Chopin-Liszt
En Bateau.....Camille Zeckwer
Ride of the Valkyries.....Wagner-Hutchinson

Mr. Alfred Spalding, violinist, will be heard in recital Sunday afternoon, February 28, at the Illinois Theater, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann.

Other attractions under the management of F. Wight Neumann are a piano recital by Josef Hofmann, at Orchestra Hall, Sunday afternoon, March 7, and Mme. Julia Culp, song recital, Sunday afternoon, March 14, at the Illinois Theater.

MAC BURNEY SERIES OF SONG RECITALS

At Hamilton Park, on February 15, Anna Agnes Bailey, soprano; Herbert M. Bailey, baritone, and John Doane, accompanist, will present the following program:

The Hunt.....Huhn

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey
Recit.—And God Said, Let the Waters (from Creation).....Haydn

Aria—Rolling in Foaming Billows
Mr. Bailey

Mifanwy.....Forster
Love's Echo.....Newton
Slumber Song.....Mayhew
May Morning.....Manney

Mrs. Bailey

Birdling.....Rubinstein
Give Me Thy Hand (from Don Giovanni).....Mozart
Mr. and Mrs. Bailey

By the Gaily Circling Glass.....Arne
By the Forest Brook.....Kaun
Sing Me a Song.....Homer
Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind.....Sarjeant
Mr. Bailey

O Don Fatale (from Don Carlos).....Verdi
Mrs. Bailey

Pronta io son (from Don Pasquale).....Donizetti
Mr. and Mrs. Bailey

Johns—Miss Ethelle Florence Johns will sing a group of songs at the Woodlawn Woman's Club banquet, to be held in the Auditorium Banquet Hall, on February 9. Miss Pearl Nora Higby of the Higby Music Studio will be the accompanist.

Walter Spry School—Friday evening, February 12, the Walter Spry School of Music presents Cedrie Wilmot Lemont in his own compositions at the Literary Club Rooms, Fine Arts Building.

L. DREW MOSHER

TENOR—Teacher of Singing
137 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

The Elderly Person

Do you remember old Caleb Osbaldistoni in Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor?" No, he does not appear in "Lucia," nor take part in the "Sextet." He was identified with the Ravenswood side of the family feud, being the oldtime servitor who remained with his master when troublous times came upon the household. So loyal was he, that in the course of events he became the main stay so far as the essentials of bread and butter were concerned. If you do remember him, you will not have forgotten his plausible stories as to the greatness of the clan now fallen upon dark days. Always and continuously did he endeavor to put on a bold front as to the decay and poverty only too evident to the most casual observer. To hear him explain away conditions, was to receive the impression that the shadow was quite temporary and more the result of other and loftier demands. Particularly solicitous was he that no one should entertain the idea that there was lack of the customary hospitality. And many were the subterfuges he adopted to make the hospitality evident, even going so far as to appropriate ducks that had wandered from home, in a way that fowls have of doing, and thus becoming worthy prey, according to Caleb's stressful creed, or, failing to find the wherewithal to spread a bounteous board, he cheerfully lied to explain its absence.

There are some others of the same stamp in other tales, one of the best being that old darkey in one of Hopkinson Smith's stories, who kept up appearances, and an existence, when any ordinary man would have confessed failure and want. He starved himself and worked determinedly, just so that his young-old master might retain his place with the pride that is an inheritance, where family is felt to be more than industry and the dignity of earning one's own living.

As he takes his walks abroad, the Elderly Person has grown to believe that there is a servitor in the world of nature which closely resembles the faithful human beings he has cited as unusual examples of devotion to the family life, after the splendor is gone and the hard rubs have to be met. He is quite confident that the lilac bush is a fit comrade to walk with Caleb and Sambo. It is, for one reason, quite as common in door yards, as the seneschal used to be in the castle. Whatever else is planted in the way of tree or shrub, a "laylock" is apt to be included in the list. For another reason it is so hardy that it is reliable and not easily damaged by those elements which can play havoc with more choice plant life. You never hear of any sort of moth, or spider or cocoon making serious trouble on a lilac bush. On some years it quietly makes up its mind not to bloom, but no one feels anxious. The mood is accepted as easily as is the kitchen's tenant's on the eloquent wash day. Both will come out all right later on, if you let them alone. And, like a good servant again, it is eager to be at work. It is one of the first harbingers of spring and rushes the sap into its buds a bit early, and not unfrequently finds itself done up and blighted with a cold snap.

One of those cold rains when the drops congeal into ice as they fall, loves nothing better than to envelop an over-ambitious lilac bush with its chill embrace and to dissolve with laughter in the sunshine as it leaves its victim all undone. While the bush appears crestfallen at its failure in enterprise, it generally gathers itself together, and goes right straight ahead and puts forth a new set of buds cheerfully, and is up and smiling with the best of them when the spring is in full feather.

All along those streets where the houses are what we call "run down," and where the mistakes and blunders which life has thrown aside as unfit, find a refuge and drag out the days that have no promise in them, the lilac bush is the last emblem of respectability. It survives the disappearance of paint, and sees the steps grow one-sided, and the porch lose its railing and balusters, and its roof become a sieve, and its floor a pitfall. It sees the handsome cresting yield to rust and weather, and the fence become decrepit and then disappear. It sees the bell-pull withdrawn from public life, the door panels split, and the window glass fall out for want of putty, if it is not broken before that. It sees all the sod

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News, which was once the pride of the man who used the lawn mower on it, yield itself up, blade by blade, to the tramping of restless feet and the lack of moisture. It finds itself neglected, and the accumulations of dead limbs allowed to cumber it until by their decay they fall off. It almost cries out for the pruning shears and the enrichment of soil and the clipping of the shoots at its base. And, very soon, it gives up its task of bloom and is content to just hang its leafy banner out and be grateful for existence. It grows accustomed to dirty unkempt children and perhaps it wonders, as does the Elderly Person, how it is that the children are seldom in the ragged clothes read of so often. The clothes are for the most part whole and good, but always dirty, the faces and hands and bare feet keeping them company and the hair untidy and unclean. Of course, as it is on the ground and itself suffers from the many things which make dirt, it has learned to realize that that same dirt is the monster which apparently cannot be overcome in the abandoned districts. It has tried itself, maybe, as it has seen the inhabitants strive, to preserve a semblance of cleanliness, and by that means retain a respectability. But it has had to learn that dirt is the master and that the last thing it wishes to cultivate is self respect. When the desire to put the best face on things is gone, and that apathy of despair comes on the scene, all the other horrible evils which poverty has in its train are possible.

The people may, many of them, die as hard a death as does the loyal lilac bushes.

There is no one to tell just how many brave and splendid struggles have been made, before these dejected men and women and unpromising children gave up the fight. We only see their failures, not the many times they have fought law and won out. The lilac does not yield easily. In the yards there are many which stand up sturdily still, and have wide spreading bushes to assert their domain. There are some which still watch over patches of lilies of the valley which manage to keep going. There is one which exchanges greetings with a "rockery" which yet lingers as a part of former greatness. Quite likely the rocks feel the loneliness of the long winter, and look cagerly to see whether they shall have comrades again or be the last remnant to hold the fort. And one bush, sadly shrunken in size, yet lingers near one of those wide stone urns or vases which are used to embellish gardens. Each spring the rocks down underground, which cannot see the change and decay around, push up new shoots to the light and do the best they can with the soil given them to work with, and wonder at the short stay of the life they create. Year by year the bushes confess the weight and difficulty of their self appointed task. Many of the older ones grow gnarled and crooked and almost complaining in their attitude. They discourage all endeavors towards new shoots or new limbs, but bend all energies to keep alive the old stalk. The instructions are not always obeyed, as if the powers below felt that the old trunk had served its purpose, and their training told them that the thing to do was to propagate something to take the old place. . . . And so it comes about that where the lilac finds root is seldom without its hopeful green signal of allegiance, in all sizes and conditions of patient hopefulness. It is not always cheerful in its message, it may not be a cheerful plant in the complete sense of the word, but that does not seem to fret it in the least or prevent it from keeping eternally at it, so long as there is a ghost of a show. . . . There is a whole lot of application which might run into more words, but that would be preaching, perhaps, and that's dangerous. But, like the lilac bush—Keep-a-going!

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL

Mr. L. A. Torrens, dean of the vocal department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and director of the Elgin Choral Society, will give a concert in Elgin on Thursday evening, February 11.

The soloists are Mabel Corlew Smidt, soprano; Lucy Hartman, contralto; Herman Barnard, tenor; James A. Fryer, bass, and Palmer Christian, organist.

The Ensemble Department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art will give a recital in Auditorium Recital Hall on Monday evening, February 15. Henry P. Eames is the director of the Ensemble Department.

A pupils' recital will be held at the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art on Saturday afternoon, February 13.

Mandy-Stein—Pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Buren Stein and of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mandy appeared in a program at the parish house in Waukegan, Ill., on Tuesday evening.

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

ETHEL LEGINSKA

Soloist of the New York Symphony Orchestra, Stirs Audience to Wildest Enthusiasm and a Dozen Recalls

Before me in a delft vase on my desk is a posy of roses, carnations, sweetpeas and lilies, encompassed by trailing feathery asparagus vines and glossy ferns. They almost nod at me, and seem to smile with the bonnie eyes of their donor, Ethel Leginska, as she smiled in the Artists' Room of Carnegie Hall, Saturday afternoon, when she divided one of the sheaves of many hot-house flowers handed to her after her triumphant exposition of the Rubinstein Concerto in D Minor.

The posy rapidly gathered for me and placed in my hands, Ethel Leginska deftly and daintily attached a tea bud to the coat of smiling, broad-shouldered, handsome Walter Damrosch, and then turned swiftly and pinned, not a rose but a carnation on the coat of blushing, smiling Alexander Saslavsky, General Damrosch's able and dashing lieutenant-concertmaster of the orchestra over which the magnetic Walter presides.

Miss Leginska had the rapid gracile motions of a humming bird as she wheeled toward the spot where her manager, the handsome, blonde Fitzhugh Haensel, waited for his floral insignia.

There was excellent reason for the buoyancy of spirit and the light of joy in the sparkling orbs of the young pianiste, for she had just been the recipient of a remarkable ovation; so how could she help enjoying the exaltation of an irresistible triumph, especially after having given an epoch-making, vividly-radiant reading of two movements of Rubinstein's brilliant, passionately brilliant concerto for piano and orchestra in D minor. (The movements the moderato assai and the allegro.)

The musical function was one of those several popular concerts offered of afternoons during the season in Carnegie Hall, and entitled symphony concerts for young people. On this occasion (afternoon of February 6) the boxes, galleries and parquet were filled; not only with young people, but gave evidence of many music-lovers of an older growth, who enjoy Walter Damrosch's forcible, illustrated expositions at the piano of the darling themes of the special symphonic number this orchestra will later elaborate. And as Ethel Leginska's name has always been a powerful magnet, there seems to have been an extra inrush of eager people just before Leginska came, on the stage—a throng flowing into the aisles and vacant seats.

And their coming was well worth while, and their reward great; because the audience enjoyed an opportunity of listening to a grippingly-moving, characteristically-significant development of Rubinstein's powerful opus.

Miss Leginska in the first place struck the right balance with the orchestra dynamically, rhythmically and emotionally, and the orchestra reciprocated with a complement tintured in all the elements for making a forcible whole of the masterpiece and its musical setting forth; and providing the elaborate but logical background for the pianiste's fiery narration of her theme; its significance; its poetry; its power; its peculiar weaving of Occidental and Oriental mind and art qualities (pregnant of the compositional endeavors of Heine's co-religionist, Anton Rubinstein) and her almost divine intuition into all that the composer would have his concerto reveal, set forth and emphasize.

Miss Leginska was in surprisingly magnificent form. The brilliancy, crispness, crystalline clarity of her pianistic diction, has not been excelled if it has been approached this season, and those who heard her on Saturday will have put her performance as a tradition-making, standard-effecting point in their minds, to be considered as authoritative when next they hear this concerto played.

Leginska is absolute mistress of herself—a sine qua non for masterful performance. Her scintillating tone—sparkling and clear as a blue diamond—is the seal and stamp of her master, Leschetizky, were she not also his great disciple in her perfection of sane, sure, secure technic. The vitality of her pianistic characterization in the two movements of this concerto proclaim the intellectual and poetically-passionate student, who studies her composer seriously and reverently and—mark this, ye young aspirants—thoroughly, before translating him to her public. This alone makes Leginska's art so unusual, so precious, so treasurable.

It is difficult to conceive how this young artist can ever play more wonderfully than she did Saturday. The marvelous mellow-ness, flexibility, resonance and ringing pur-

GERMANIA

SCHNITZER

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

The acknowledged
Queen of the Piano.
In America Season
1914-1915

William Wade Hinshaw

Of the Metropolitan Opera Company BARITONE

Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET

OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS

Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

ISABEL

HAUSER PIANIST

Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway
NEW YORK

Has the honor to present
The Violinist

ANDRE BENICIST, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

SPALDING

CHRISTINE MILLER

CONTRALTO

Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO

Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER

AMERICAN TENOR

Exponent of Bel Canto.

205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

THUEL

Burnham

PIANIST

Mgr.
Harry
Culbertson

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES

AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

ity of the tone she evoked from her instrument at once legitimized the function of the piano as part of the orchestra en miniature.

If her tone was spirited, it was also spiritualized. There was a velvety richness that covered the sentimental passages with glamour, and charged with poetry those measures in which the pianist-composer Rubinstein revealed the inevitableness of the deeply sympathetic in his nature.

It is one thing to play the piano reasonably well as do the majority of the foreign pianists now literally ravaging the country; it is another and the rarest thing to be a prophetess of the instrument; and in Leginska this miracle is fulfilled.

The program opened with the Schumann Symphony (The Rhenish) in five—not exactly serpentine nor sinuous—movements, which the New York Symphony Orchestra began, developed and ended with the most finished care. The twentieth century will go on recording its impressions of Schumann, and the twenty-first century will either immortalize him among the gods, or push him off his pedestal with an emphatic thud. Of course all this may happen when Schoenberg, as well as Schumann, shall have become as popular with an educated proletariat as is today the tame and syrupy “popular hit.” (We shall not be here to see, alas!) Grieg’s “Norwegian Wedding Procession” and a “Nocturne” by Dvorak concluded the program.

□ □ □

Music News readers, male (I doubt not) as well as female, will not fail to accept my statement that Miss Leginska looked as youthful and innocent as any little maid in the audience, as she floated into the radius of vision bewitching in a simple, silken gown of white, with a bodice of net and silver embroideries. Nature, which has given her the astonishing powers of musical agility, force and energy worthy a Moritz Rosenthal, with her temperamental pianistic poetic powers, has fashioned her tenderly slenderly—a veritable human bud in youthful charm and sweet graciousness.

□ □ □

Miss Leginska’s engagements are still numerous. Tuesday evening as soloist of a recital at the exclusive and fashionable Colony Club, and Sunday afternoon, February 14, at Aeolian Hall with the New York Symphony Orchestra.

□ □ □

Christine Miller in Recital with George Hamlin

The appearance of Christine Miller in recital will be one of the events of the season, as Miss Miller is a favorite in New York and an artist whose appearances are welcomed as the first vernal blossoms.

The program of the concert at which she will be heard with George Hamlin is as follows:

Nur wer die Sehnsucht kennt.....Schubert
Licht und Liebe Schubert
Miss Miller and Mr. Hamlin

Nichts.....
Das Geheimnis.....
Blauer Sommer.....
Hoffen und wieder verzagen.....
Wie sollten wir geheim sie halten.....
Mr. Hamlin

Liebeslied.....Robert Schumann
Marienwuermchen.....Robert Schumann
Mit deiner blauen Augen.....Richard Strauss
Sie wissen's nicht.....Richard Strauss
Hans und Gretta.....Gustav Mahler
Dank des Paria.....Hugo Wolf

Le Soir descend sur la Colline.....Saint-Saens
Miss Miller and Mr. Hamlin
The Crying of Water (from “Four Sea Lyrics”).....
Campbell-Tipton
(Written for and dedicated to Mr. Hamlin)
The Glory of the Day Was in Her Face.....
(M. S.) H. T. Burleigh

O Bimba, Bimbetta.....Sibella
Mr. Hamlin

Trost.....
Agnes.....
Robert Kahn

Miss Miller and Mr. Hamlin
On the Seashore of Endless Worlds.....J. A. Carpenter
Morning Song.....Horatio Parker
A Nocturne (dedicated to Miss Miller).....A. W. Kramer
Ferry Me Across the Water.....Sidney Homer
A Birthday.....Arthur Whiting

Miss Miller
So lass uns wandern.....Brahms
Miss Miller and Mr. Hamlin

□ □ □

Thuel Burnham, One of the Busiest of Soloists

Accounts are constantly coming in of the appearances, successes and re-engagements of Thuel Burnham, who in his meteoric rushes through different States is regarded not as a modern angel of the Miltonic Lucifer variety, but as a risen star, whose progress through the firmament is unusual in its rapid rise to extraordinary eminence.

We are still waiting for him in New York. Among the recent pretty things I have heard about him is the following. This time from Davenport, Iowa: “Thuel Burnham, the wonderful young American pianist, who set Europe wild a year ago by his playing, and about whose gifts and genius the critics vied with each other in saying complimentary things was heard in Davenport Tuesday in an afternoon recital at Unity Hall.

“A large number of music lovers and students made up an audience that from the casual interest of individual anticipation, became when Mr. Burnham began to play, a wholly enthusiastic delighted unit of applause.

“Mr. Burnham’s program was well balanced and full of contrast, and he was liberal, giving fifteen numbers as announced and adding extra numbers after each group.

“Mr. Burnham’s playing especially commends itself for its perfect sincerity and wonderful musical understanding; for what he avoids doing as well as for what he does so well. The program awakened the imagination and inspired the familiar concert numbers with a beauty never before realized. Mr. Burnham having a wonderful way of bringing the story the composer has to tell.

“Mr. Burnham played the ‘Erl King’ as it has never before been played in Davenport. He made the piano, which was a Steinway concert grand, literally talk, and his pianissimo with the whispering voice of the Erl King’s daughter was just as wonderful and as well controlled as the thunderous threats of the King.

“Mr. Burnham’s recital was one of the best if not the best of its kind that has ever been heard in the city.”

□ □ □

John MacCormack, tenor, will sing in Carnegie Hall on Sunday afternoon, February 14.

The Musical Art Society, Frank Damosch, conductor, will give its spring concert in Carnegie Hall, March 11.

Marcella Sembrich will be heard in recital in Carnegie Hall, Tuesday afternoon, February 23.

The Oratorio Society’s last concert will be given in Carnegie Hall on the evening of March 24, under Louis Koennenich, conductor. Among the soloists will be Marie Sundelius, soprano.

—♦♦♦—

Krum—Mrs. Robert F. Kolb, pupil of Mrs. Charles L. Krum, sang a group of songs at Armour Square February 10. Mrs. Mabel Nevin Schoelfield, Mrs. Krum’s pupil, will give a Japanese costume recital at the Berwyn Woman’s Club February 8. Mrs. Lewis will be the accompanist at both programs.

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

Helen Stanley SOPRANO

437 Fifth Avenue New York

Management M. H. HANSON

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO

ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

HECKSCHER

C
E
L
E
S
T
E
D.

Personal
Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

C
O
M
P
O
S
E
R

Edith V. Rann TEACHER
OF PIANO
Res. Tel. Drexel 4418 620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

A
G
N
E
S
LEIST-BEEBE ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS
SOPRANO
804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

NORA OLIN
LORAIN VOICE
303 KIMBALL HALL Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER Composer
Soprano
Accompanist
1510 E. 52nd St Phone Midway 8888

HAYDN OWENS
Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO
RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS-ORATORIO
249 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4775 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

People & Events

CHRISTINE MILLER'S OVATION IN MINNEAPOLIS

From the leading Minneapolis papers:

"It is a number of years since Miss Miller, the charming contralto, has appeared with the orchestra; and I am sure that everyone who heard her yesterday registered a mental hope that not so long a time will be allowed to elapse before she is heard again. She is one of the few vocal soloists who fit as accordantly into the orchestra ensemble as any other instrument in the band. In person, psychological attitude and artistic intelligence, as well as in her rich, true, flexible and colorful voice she succeeds in making herself an inherent part of the orchestra with which she appears. Furthermore, she sang only one aria which, thank goodness, was neither from 'Samson and Delilah' nor 'Le Prophete.' It was that vocal masterpiece, 'Farewell Ye Forests,' from Tchaikovsky's 'Joan of Arc,' which is rarely heard, possibly because it accords as much prominence to the wonderful orchestration of its accompaniment as to the singer. Her second number, and both of her encores, were genuinely beautiful and detached songs with orchestra, sufficient unto themselves and not torn bodily from the story and action of some operatic work. Ward Stephens' 'Nightingale' was her first encore; her second programmed number consisted of two songs, 'When I Bring You Colored Toys,' by John A. Carpenter, and 'Spring Is Here,' by Hugo Wolf, and as a second encore she sang James H. Rogers' wonderfully appellant and peaceful vocal nocturne, 'The Star.'—Caryl B. Storrs, Morning Tribune, January 18, 1915.

"One of the very few singers who are universally received with genuine affection is Christine Miller. With her rich contralto voice and absolutely no nonsense about her, Miss Miller's songs always add a true womanly grace and elevation. Carpenter's 'When I Bring You Colored Toys' took one back to the lovely children's verses of Eugene Field. Wolf's 'Spring Is Here' is a true ecstasy. The two extra songs, Stevens' 'Nightingale' and Rogers' 'Star,' also added much to this afternoon's compensation for the meteorological extremes of nature."—Harlow Gale, Daily news, January 9, 1915. (Advertisement.)

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Some recent comment:

A vocalist of magnetic personality and rare temperament, Miss Hazel Dell Neff, delighted her audience and held them in rapt attention last evening. Her clear, high, sweet voice carries a depth of meaning and is proof of years of devoted study. In her first selection, the "Recitative and Polonaise," from "Mignon," by Thomas, Miss Neff demonstrated the wonderful range and flexibility of her voice. A pleasing feature of the program was her rendition of Russian folk songs while in peasant costume. She was heartily encored. Miss Neff also sang a pleasing group of Russian songs in a beautiful royal court costume brought from Petrograd, Russia.—Owasso Evening Argus.

Probably the greatest interest centers about the work of Miss Dell Neff, whose beautiful soprano voice, clear, full, well trained, of wide range and wonderful flexibility, delighted her audience in each of her numbers. Added to this is a most pleasing personality and a winsome smile, which won the hearts of her audience when she first appeared. In a group of Russian folk songs she appeared in a Russian peasant costume, while in her last numbers she wore the Russian court costume, magnificent in its splendor.—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

Miss Neff's singing is termed by many vocalists of local note as the best ever heard in Owosso. Certainly none better has ever appeared on a local platform. Possessed with a voice of rare sweetness, clarity of tone, and strength, Miss Neff sings as easily and as naturally as a bird. Her range seemed almost without limit, and to hear her was truly delightful. She introduced numerous Russian costumes in rendering her Russian folk-songs, and the long and enthusiastic applause that followed the conclusion of each of her numbers was a tribute to her remarkable work.—Owasso American. (Advertisement.)

Ballmann—George M. Lipschultz was violin soloist at the concert at Turner Hall last Sunday afternoon.

WARREN PROCTOR

The following are a few of the press comments received by Warren Proctor on his recent trip through Iowa, in recital:

Jefferson society was given a great treat Monday evening, the feature being a recital by Warren Proctor, tenor. Mr. Proctor has appeared here before, so the event was anticipated with confident expectation of pleasure, but he far exceeded the hopes of his admirers. Mr. Proctor has a tenor voice of rarest sweetness and power, which flows on with a limpid and satisfying charm. His interpretation of his renditions was so perfect that he seemed to be controlled by them, instead of controlling them, and that he really felt the spirit of his songs was evident from the fact that he made the audience feel it as well. Perhaps the most beautiful of all was 'I Hear You Calling Me,' which in delicacy and taste and soft tenderness produced an effect that was close to tears. Mr. Proctor was enthusiastically applauded, and at the close not only he but his hosts and hostesses were congratulated by those present on an evening of extraordinary delight.—The Bee, Jefferson, Ia.

Those fortunate enough to be present at the song recital given by Warren Proctor heard some rarely beautiful singing. Mr. Proctor has the requisites of the successful concert artist—a fine presence, an authoritative style, musical insight, faultless enunciation, a rare interpretative ability, and a beautiful tenor voice, with a control of soft singing that one hears only from great artists. Through a long program, which included the "Elijah" aria "If With All Your Hearts," to the Pagliacci "Lament," Grieg's "Ich liebe dich," Schubert's "Wohin" and Clough-Leigher's "O Heart of Mine," he was always convincing, winning by a sincerity of purpose as well as by his fine singing. The encores demanded and given were too numerous for us to keep record of, but they included Lohr's tender "Little Grey Home in the West" and Sidney Homer's "Uncle Rome," which was given the finest interpretation ever heard by the writer. The fine singing he gave us Thursday demonstrated the results that come from worth-while ideals and work.—Frank Parker, in the Osage News, Osage, Ia.

Warren Proctor, tenor, gave the finest recital ever heard in Osage last Thursday evening, consisting of five groups of masterpieces, and while it may have been a trifle heavy for the average audience, was highly enjoyable and was heard throughout its hour and a half's length without any manifestation of uneasiness in the audience. In fact, one got the idea that no length or weight of program could mar one's enjoyment of that wonderfully pleasing voice.—Mitchell County Press, Osage, Ia.

Warren Proctor, tenor, was heard here in recital last Friday night. He has truly a wonderful voice. We offer the prediction that he is one of the coming tenors of this country. He has the voice, he has the interpretation of the spirit of music, and he is fast gaining the reputation that will place him among the foremost of tenors. Pure high tenor voices are few.—Riceville Recorder, Riceville, Ia. (Advertisement.)

MASON SLADE ACTIVITIES

Mason Slade played Sunday afternoon, February 7, at Convention Hall, Buffalo, N. Y., under the auspices of the municipality. The organ is the one formerly in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American Exposition.

He will play a recital preceding the afternoon service at Trinity Church, 264 Michigan, Sunday, February 14, at 4 o'clock.

The program will include:

Scherzo	Callaerts
Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique	Guilmant
Spring Song (from the south)	Lemare
Gavotte Moderne	Lemare
March Militaire	Schubert-Best

Chicago Piano College—The Chicago Piano College will give a valentine entertainment to the children in the school on Saturday, February 13, at 11 a. m.

H. ROWLAND ROBERTS

"IOLANTHE" PRESENTED AT VALPARAISO

About one year ago the Opera Society of Valparaiso University, under the direction of H. Rowland Roberts, presented "The Chimes of Normandy" with great success and the excellent work of all who took part at that time was commented upon in these columns. On Tuesday evening, February 2, this same organization, under the same direction, gave a very praiseworthy performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's delightful operetta, "Iolanthe," to a capacity audience in Valparaiso's Grand Opera House.

An endless amount of praise is due Mr. Roberts for making this performance possible. Only one with untiring energy, high ideals and ability to work out every detail could have attained the same results. The cast, which calls for an even dozen live, capable singer-actors and a chorus which numbered about thirty voices, was with one or two exceptions recruited from the music student body at Valparaiso University. Each character of the opera was in very capable hands, denoting skillful choosing on the part of the director and the duties of all concerned were excellently performed.

Mr. Roberts is a conductor of great ability, knowing apparently all angles of a correct opera performance, and he held his forces together with a master hand throughout the evening. The accompanying orchestra was a small but proficient body of musicians who did their work well and completed a splendid ensemble with the performers on the stage. The principals and chorus were exceptionally well costumed and knew their music and stage deportment well.

Miss Leota L. Whitney took the part of "Iolanthe" and did herself proud. She possesses a beautiful voice and acted the part with considerable conviction. Miss Lena M. Neal as the "Queen" of the Fairies looked charming, is exceptionally well endowed vocally and acted with appropriate finish and grace. Miss Leleth M. Abbott as "Phyllis" displayed a fine voice and knew the work at hand as well as any seen during the evening. The Misses Chisholm, McInnis and Kaga were three Fairies who made beautiful appearance and left nothing to be desired from those parts. Upon the shoulders of Mr. C. H. Schneider as "Strephon" fell a large part of the work of

EQUALIZING EXERCISES FOR ALL SCALES

A Scale and Arpeggio Book for Piano Study

By GEORGE BAILHE

(Summy Edition No. 63)

Each phase of technique embodied in scale playing is generally accomplished by separate sets of exercises. You have never been able to give one set of studies embracing all this training—that is what we offer you in Mr. Bailhe's book. Each exercise applies immediately and effectively to the scale, for each one is indeed, a part of the scale itself.

Make each minute of your pupil's practice time count, by having him use these exercises.

Strongly endorsed by Moritz Moszkowski, Joseph Lhevinne, Isidor Philipp and others.

Price, $1.50

CLAYTON F. SUMMY CO.

PUBLISHERS

64 E. VAN BUREN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader

MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1866

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Pupils
4051 Calumet Avenue Oratorio Telephone Kenwood 627

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone
324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill. RECITAL CONCERT ORATORIO

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Willman Kelley and Alexander Heinemann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

PUPILS OF VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY IN "IOLANTHE"

the performance. He came through with flying colors. He used his voice intelligently and acted likewise. Mr. E. E. Morley made a splendid "Lord Chancellor." His ability as an actor is quite original but natural and he pleased the audience immensely. H. A. Phillips and A. B. Mulford as "Earl Tolloller" and "Earl of Mountarat," respectfully fulfilled their duties with ease and were entirely satisfactory. Mr. C. L. Brownell as the "Trainbearer" brought loads of fun into the performance and was the center of attraction most of the time he was on the stage. Mr. H. W. Willis in the part of the "Private" was also well liked by the audience for his graceful action.

The solos from these different personae was excellent as were the duets, trios and quartets. In fact these youthful singers did so well at all times with their intonation and enunciation that the Gilbert-Sullivan Company which has been singing at Chicago Auditorium, could not be compared with them along those two lines.

The chorus sang with much life, well balanced tone volume, crisp entrances and considerable expression. The entire production was a tribute to Mr. Roberts and the audience showed its approval by great enthusiasm. Valparaiso University is to be congratulated for having within its walls such an array of talent as presented itself upon this occasion.

H. M. B.

FREDERICK CLARK IN STUDIO RECITAL

Frederick Clark, baritone, has a commodious and cheery studio in the Auditorium Building, and to this, on last Sunday afternoon, came a group of his friends to hear him in a short song recital.

Though the time occupied by the program was short, the variety offered was very great, and each one of the audience went away feeling that a fine treat had been enjoyed.

Mr. Clark will shortly go on a recital trip to the west, and he may be assured in advance that his success will be a great one, if the work done on Sunday is a fair sample of what he will offer his audiences.

His voice is rich and full, and his musicianship is undoubtedly great, in addition to which he has a personality which is very pleasing.

Another great asset in his equipment is a dramatic instinct of unusual keenness and power.

He opened the program with "Songs My Mother Taught Me" (Dvorak), presented with much vocal beauty; "Uncle Rome" (Homer), which he invested with a neat dramatic touch, and "Chanson Bacchique," from Thomas' "Hamlet," which was sung with real virtuosity. As an encore to this group, Lulu Jones Downing's charming "Only a Rose" was given.

For his next group Mr. Clark donned a beautifully characteristic costume and sang "Lord, God of Abraham" and "It Is Enough," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," with unwonted fervor and splendid effect.

So telling are these songs with the appropriate costume that the wonder grows that no one ever thought of doing them in this way before.

This did not complete the list of Mr. Clark's accomplishments and successes, however, for he also gave some very attractive readings with piano accompaniment, a line of work in which he is particularly brilliant.

Not only did Miss Al Meda Wadhams furnish ideal accompaniments, both for the songs and the readings, but she also gave a solo group with distinction.

Not often is the MacDowell "Concert Etude" played with more of accuracy and clarity, coupled with such fire and vigor, and the Chopin "Nocturne," used as a companion piece, was also most successfully negotiated, the tone being always musical, the phrase poetical and the mood entirely as it should be.

Piano numbers were also played by Miss Dellena McConnell, who showed good musical feeling in "Liebeswaltz," by Moszkowski; "Etude," by Wollenhaupt, and "Anitra's Dance," by Grieg.

C. E. W.

Wilson—H. Lane Wilson, well-known English composer, died in London last week.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals

Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago

Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austh
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2831 Washington Boul

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano--Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano--Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto--Pernelia Newby Gale
2nd Alto--Hazel Huntley
Director-Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

If I Could Call the Years Back

(A song that wears the stamp of approval.)

Keys of F and D (50c)
Special Price, 25c

New Song Cycle, PICTURES IN THE FIRE, consisting of 7 songs, Retrospect, A Song of Youth, The Dawn of Love, Wedding Bells, Lullaby, Anguish, Constancy, High Voice. Only in book form ($1.50) special price, $1.00.

Words and music by

At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.

ISABEL STEWART-NORTH

Published by

THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

THE STORY OF A SONG

A few years ago John A. West came to Charles W. Clark with a song he had just finished. He had been ill, there were traces of suffering on his face and there were tears in his eyes.

"Charles, I have written a song for you; sing it for me." As Clark sang it, the suffering left West's face, but the tears turned to sobs.

He took the song to Clayton F. Summy, who promised to look it over. "No," said West, "I must sell it at once. I will sell it now for $5.00, if not to you, to someone else;" and, as many another masterpiece, as many another child of inspiration, it was sold "for a song" to Mr. Summy, who afterwards, however, arranged that he should have a royalty as long as he lived.

Fortunate in its interpreter, Mr. Clark has immortalized the song. Many an audience has felt as did Mrs. Chandler Starr, who when thanking him at the end of his recital, said "That Sweet Story of Old." Mr. Clark, was worth your entire fee."

One day when Mr. Clark was with his brother, Doctor Frederick Clark, making his round of professional calls, they entered a home o'er which the black angel "Death" was hovering. A young man was lying on his mother's breast struggling for his last few breaths. There was every evidence that the end of the journey was nigh. The boy had been unconscious for hours. No physician's services were needed, only consolation for the bereaved parents. Then in the spirit of prayer, Mr. Clark voiced "That Sweet Story of Old." How can the wonder of it be told! He who had apparently gone sat up, looked up into his mother's face, and breathing and speaking normally, said: "Oh mother, do you hear it, and isn't it wonderful! Oh, I'm all right now, everything is all right now! Oh, mother, isn't it sweet!"

As the last of the story was sung, the boy slept away to awaken and hear the heavenly choir only echo "That Sweet Story of Old."

WAGNER PROGRAM

Mme. Julia Claussen, contralto, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra—Frederick Stock, conductor—at its concerts to be given Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. The program will be devoted entirely to works from the pen of Richard Wagner and will be as follows:

Overture, "The Flying Dutchman"

"Tannhauser"—

Tannhauser's Pilgrimage to Rome (Paris version)

"Elizabeth's Prayer"

Elizabeth, Mme. Claussen

"Lohengrin"—Vorspiel.

"Siegfried"—Siegfried in the Forest

Three songs—

"Schmerzen"

"Der Engel"

"Traume"

"Tristan and Isolde"—

Act 2, Introduction

Love Scene and Brangaene's Warning

(Arranged for concert performance by Frederick Stock)

Act 3, Introduction

Tristan's Vision

Arrival of the Ships

Isolde's "Love Death"

Isolde, Mme. Claussen

Varkony—Mr. Florian Varkony will sing an aria from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" at St. Mary's Church (Wabash avenue) on next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

BARTHEL IS SOLOIST WITH SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The soloist at the symphony concerts last week was Mr. Alfred Barthel, the first oboe player of the Chicago Orchestra. It was just as gratifying for the regular patrons to have this opportunity of testifying how highly they valued him as it must have been to him to receive the ovation which went spontaneously to him when he came forward to play. It is no small tribute to be welcomed for the real affection that is entertained for these men who make this glorious music for us week after week. The imported soloists come and go, but Mr. Barthel has been at his desk right along and there has been the regular course of enjoyable music of which he has been a valuable integral part, and the audience was glad to tell him they liked it, and him.

But Mr. Barthel made himself welcome, as an artist, in no uncertain way. The Mozart concerto for oboe was gratefully musical in its flowing stream of melody, and there were all sorts of difficulties for the player to surmount to make its brilliant moments. There was a charming slow movement played with a velvety tone of smoothness and a dashing finale that called for long running phrases to be handled with one breath. The occasion was in every way enjoyable by reason of Mr. Barthel's contribution to the program.

The Tchaikowsky "Mozartiana" was intensely pleasing, notably the playing of the ever-beautiful "Ave Verum" in its orchestral dress.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

SCHUBERT PROGRAM IN OAK PARK

A double quartet, including Mable Corlew-Smith and Esther Nelson, sopranos; Harriet McConnell and Margaret Lauder, contraltos; Grant Kimbell and Claire Hart, tenors, and Collins Brock and Frank Dunford, basses, presented a sacred program of Schubert compositions Sunday afternoon, January 31, at the First Presbyterian Church, Oak Park, under the direction of Edgar Nelson, the regular organist and musical director of the church.

The compositions sung by the double quartet were "The Omnipotence" and "Song of Miriam." The incidental solos in the latter composition were sung by Mrs. Smith. Miss McConnell sang "Ave Maria." Mr. Nelson's organ numbers were also by Schubert.

So enjoyable was the program that many requests have come to Mr. Nelson that it be repeated at an early date.

A BOON TO PIANO STUDENTS

Mnemonics is a subject but little understood and, when applied to music study specifically it is even less so than in other connections.

However, doubtless there are very definite laws governing all phases of memorizing and the fact that the definite ones surrounding the memorizing of music have been discovered and systematized will prove a God-send to many young artists.

Belle Squire, who was a long time pupil of Emil Liebling and others in piano as well also as with Earl Drake in general musical interpretation and who has been a well known figure in the pedagogic fields of LaGrange and Aurora, has now a studio at the Fine Arts Building and on the principle that the world will make a beaten track to the abode of anyone who has something unusual and of unique value to offer, it may safely be inferred that this studio will become the mecca for many students who have sought long for a definite system of memorizing but hitherto have found it not.

The Belle Squire Memory System is original, modern, and in accordance with the best educational thought of the day.

It is based on a purely natural principle and is the outcome also of a vast experience.

The memory gained through this method is indelible and absolutely permanent, and, knowing that it is such, the student is freed of all fear and consequently gains immensely in poise and expressiveness of playing.

"The Bo'sn's Bride"

A Nautical Yarn in Two Acts
For Amateur Organizations

Church choirs, school choruses, etc.

Book and lyrics by Maude Elizabeth Inch.

Music by W. Rhys-Herbert.

Composer of "Sylvia"

"A Nautical Knot" and "Balbul"

Vocal score with full dialog, net $1.00

A copy will be sent on approval subject to return by applying either to the publishers or to your regular dealer.

The Publishers

J. Fischer & Bro. New York

7, 8, 10 and 11 BIBLE HOUSE

TWENTIETH YEAR
CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE

Earnest students developed and carried through a most comprehensive course of study, leading to a degree

HARMON H. WATT, ELEANOR F. GODFREY, Directors

304 South Wabash Avenue, Kimball Hall

Chicago, Illinois

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue

PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11
For Catalog Address

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

JENNY DUFAU

COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.

MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON. FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

GLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163THEODORE HARRISONBARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano
Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET
LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT CONTRALTO
3958 Drexel Boulevard Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319Edith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling PianistTeacher
4141 N. Hermitage AvGeorge Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HART PIANISTCOSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLouise LE BARONMEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITYChas. E. WEEKS Basso

Tel. Highland Park 927 71 Auditorium Bldg.

DORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City IowaLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUEFANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER

After the very successful appearance of Mrs. Zeisler with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra the press of that city commented as follows:

What, indeed, shall here be said of Mme. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler that has not been said many times hitherto? The Rubinstein D minor concerto, with orchestra, is more of a piano composition, per se, than a combination of the two. Anton Rubinstein was first and foremost a pianist—a pianist of colossal and in some respects never since equaled greatness. The percussive sequence was a part of his musical temperament—those lofty, sustained strophes as the orchestra sings them, were not his to duplicate on the piano. Master though he was, he lacked the imagination to combine orchestra and piano. Yet with so complete a mastery of the instrument as Mme. Zeisler displayed, the alignment seemed perfect.

Never before have we heard, or shall it be said, witnessed such a consonance of time-beat between soloist and seventy odd players. All seemed as one. The interpretation of the work came from under the pianist's fingers as if it were an impromptu, unconsciously, subjectively, to use a philosophic phrase, and not as the replication of a composition which the performer had played many times under similar circumstances. Genius, talent and skill were reflected in her performance and a devotion to a natural art rare in these days of untoward estimate and false applause.

Mme. Zeisler's encore number, on which the audience insisted with an earnestness that would not be denied, was Chopin's "Morceau de Concert Minute Waltz." It takes ordinarily but sixty seconds to play it. The artiste finished it in fifty-five seconds. So much for speed.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is seldom that a single instrument can be made to express great power. Loudness is within the reach of even mediocre performers, but the tones which express high musical climaxes must come, ordinarily, from many combined instruments. But Bloomfield-Zeisler's powerful passages on the piano keyboard yesterday were neither strained nor futile. They reached.

The Rubinstein Concerto doubtless is a more elaborate and "showy" piece than it would have been if its composer had not been the most effective pianist of his day, as well as a composer of great ingenuity and imagination. Thus it offers technical difficulties, and makes demands upon the sheer strength of the player, quite out of the ordinary.

For this reason those who took note of the far from robust physique of yesterday's soloist must have felt misgivings as the composition grew from point to point in complexity and assertiveness. Yet so eagerly were the accumulating difficulties overcome—as if they were opportunities rather than difficulties—that the audience would presently have welcomed the utmost degree of stress and difficulty, knowing that in such a mood the artist before them could not fail.

If there be one phase of this artist's playing more striking than her ease in surmounting the difficulties of forte passages, it is the exquisite finish of her piano passages. To strike many notes in rapid succession in such a way that perfect lightness is suggested and yet without any loss as to precision and accent and tone quality, must be the crowning achievement in pianistic work—and it is in this department of her task that Bloomfield-Zeisler stands quite alone.—St. Louis Republic.

Madame Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler, pianist, played at the Odeon yesterday afternoon. When she had struck the last delicate sentence of the tempestuous Rubinstein Concerto in D minor, the audience clapped hands enthusiastically, snapped many a seam in an expensive glove and even pounded the floor with feet rendered quite unconventional with the magic of her art. Generous lady that she was—she played the Minute Waltz of Chopin as a compromise.

And what fine event the concerto was—how old, how new! It was quite a new thing in the hands, nay, under the marvelous finger tips of a woman like Madame Zeisler. She played it with a rare impetuosity, yet withal there was the womanly quality. That her little compact frame should respond so evenly, so superbly to the immense demands of the first movement with its gigantic crescendo, its octave passage and brilliant cadenzas, left nothing further to be asked from the madame as an interpreter.—St. Louis Star.

The poetic charm inherent in Mme. Bloomfield-Zeisler's work was most in evidence in the perfect phrasing of the cadenza in the first movement and throughout nearly the entire second movement, especially in the final strain where the voice of the clarinet is so sweetly sounded, and I do not remember ever to have heard this artist in a better interpretative mood than that which characterized her achievement in the several beautiful moments here created.

There is, however, a deal more than the gentler poetic spirit in Bloomfield-Zeisler's fabric as an interpretative artist, and her greater power called for recognition both early and late during the progress of her program performance. It first was encountered in the splendid vigor with which her instrument was made to sound its opening cry in the concerto's first movement, again in her big response to the orchestral fortissimo later in this same movement, then more than once in the third, culminating ultimately in the solo instrument's reply to the 'cellos in the great score's final moments.

The audience was tremendously enthusiastic in its acclaim of Mme. Bloomfield-Zeisler's performance, the long-continued applause bringing her again and again to the footlights. At the last she yielded to this fervid expression of approval and gave as an encore Chopin's "Morceau de Concert Minute Waltz," brief, exquisitely dainty, and calling for the shrewdest technique in its playing.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

And Mme. Zeisler. She played Rubinstein. It would have taken the composer himself to give a more enthusiastic performance. The greatest of the women pianists is still supreme. She tested to the full the capacity of a great, sonorous Steinway, in strenuous moments, and the lighter passages had the inimitable charm and grace that is peculiarly Zeisler's. Her staccato retains its sparkle, and the limpid scale of perfect, as of yore.

Mme. Zeisler is a law unto herself in the matter of interpretation, as she can well afford to be, though the young pianiste were wiser not to follow the great one, in the matter of breaking chords and octaves. Only one of Zeisler's stature may, with impunity, indulge in fancies. The embryo Zeislars and Paderewskis, not bringing to a composition what a Zeisler brings, had best stick close to the letter of the printed page.

Mme. Zeisler's performance, throughout, was a superb manifestation of pianistic powers, temperament and musicianly taste.

The wonder woman contributed in her most characteristic manner, the Chopin "Minute Waltz" as an encore.—St. Louis Republic. (Advertisement.)

Highsmith-Lyding—Mrs. Catherine Lytle, a pupil of Mrs. Mary Highsmith-Lyding, sang on February 2 at the LaSalle Hotel for the Daughters of Indiana, and on January 28 at the Auditorium for the Protestant Association.

"The Messiah"—"The Messiah" is to be given at the Central Y. M. C. A. under direction of William D. Johnson on February 23. The soloists will be Louise Krause, Esther Muenstermann, M. J. Brines and Gustav Berndt.

Mayme E. BolgerACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257CAROLINE E. BUCKLEYCONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts BuildingMARGUERITE DRESSERPIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.DIEDERICH WALTERTENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988Arthur Uhe PUPILSRECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
INDSBORG, KAS.

Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

ELLA JANE DERDIGERVOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO TEACHERS' CHORUS

The Chicago Teachers' Chorus, consisting of 100 women singers, under the direction of Mr. O. E. Robinson, will give a concert Sunday afternoon, February 14, at 3:30 o'clock, at Eckhart Park, Chicago avenue and Noble street. This concert will be given under the auspices of the Civic Music Association. The chorus will have the assistance of Mr. Clarence Loomis, pianist; Miss Kathleen Grant, pianist and accompanist, and several soloists who are members of the club, including Miss Laura D. Earnist, Miss May Roselle James, Miss Diana R. Hilfer and the Misses Mary, Elizabeth and Margaret Hughes.

The chorus will sing:

Persian Serenade	Matthews
Spinning Chorus	Wagner
The Lord Is My Shepherd	Schubert
To Daffodils	Foot
'Tis Spring	Weidig
Sic Vita	Damrosch
Nymphs and Fauns	Bemberg

Mr. Loomis will play the "Hungarian Dance," by Brahms, and "Scherzo," by Chopin. Miss Grant will play "Intermezzo in D Minor," Op. 4, by Schumann. Miss Earnist will sing "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint-Saens. Miss James will sing "Ave Maria," by Bach. Miss Hilfer will give "Vergebliches Staendchen," by Brahms.

ALBERT BORROFF AS A PROGRAM MAKER

"One of the most admirable features of Mr. Borroff's recitals is the unhackneyed character of his programs. The singer possesses the happy knack of being able to discover and to sing vocal music that is good as well as unfamiliar," says the Herald of Chicago. When it is known that Mr. Borroff's voice is a bass, the kind of voice for which it is supposed to be difficult to get music of sufficient variety to make up a recital program, it is remarkable to find the critics almost unanimous in commendation both of the selection and arrangement of the songs as well as enthusiastic praise of the singer and his art. Thus reasons for Mr. Borroff's high reputation are easy to be found. That his repertoire is large may be seen from the fact that he gave six complete recital programs in Chicago with only one repetition. All this means work of the most exacting kind. To succeed a singer must work and work hard, and Mr. Borroff is both a worker and a student.

ST. PAUL'S UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

An hour of rarest pleasure was afforded all who attended the Middleschulte-Steindel "musical evening" last Sunday, February 7. The writer anticipated much, in fact, would have been disappointed with ordinary attainments, but the evening was so filled with good things that he felt quite "carried away." Everything was so polished and complete that one could sit back and thoroughly enjoy himself.

An analysis of the program is unnecessary, but we cannot refrain from special mention of the Ritter "Finale," the Guilmant "Dreams" and "Berceuse," by Kjerulf. In these numbers Mrs. Middleschulte afforded the writer the keenest pleasure. The audience was large and one noted the presence of many musicians, but it is a pity the south siders do not appreciate such an opportunity and leave no seat unoccupied.

J. W. N.

HORATIO PARKER'S "FAIRYLAND"

Dr. Parker met a distinguished audience on the evening of February 2, at Leon Mandel Hall, University of Chicago, when he gave a reading of his new prize opera, "Fairyland." The opera will be presented in Los Angeles early in July, and many Chicago musicians desired to know the character of the work.

Dr. Parker read large portions of the text and played a piano arrangement of the principal motifs, some of which he told his audience he thought they would like.

The songs were melodious, not particularly striking, and yet one could scarcely get an idea of what the opera itself may be from the bits given.

The plot may perhaps lend itself to a pleasing production as a whole, but it was exceedingly difficult to gain a clear and connected story from the reading.

A report of the real performance will be awaited with some interest. M. W.

Durno—Jeannette Durno had charge of a large musicale given by the Starrett School at Warwick Hall on Thursday evening, February 11. The following members of the musical department of the school, of which Miss Durno is the director, presented the program: Jeannette Durno, Mary Cameron and Josephine Rogers, pianists; Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, and Ramon Girvin, violinist.

American Conservatory—Advanced pupils of the school will give a program tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. There will be organ numbers by pupils of Wilhelm Middelshulte.

ROSE HANAPEL

Miss Rose Hanapel, whose studio is at 4740 Prairie avenue, presented a number of her piano pupils in recital at Kimball Hall Monday evening, February 8. A goodly audience was in attendance, and if one may judge by the applause accorded the performers it is safe to say the program was greatly enjoyed. Miss Hanapel no doubt has made a special study of the needs of her pupils, for the quality of the work heard on this occasion was certainly praiseworthy. Pupils from the beginning grades to those in the more advanced studies appeared, each doing their part in making the evening a successful one. The following pupils appeared: Eleanor Mitchell, Colletta Mitchell, Edith McDonald, Christina Flynn, Gertrude Curtin, Mary Ford, Laura Melchior, Merwyn Ladoeueur, Madeline Murray, Eleanor Smith, Marcella Morgan, Marie Hazard, Myrtle McFadden, Freda Babbe, Mary Creighton, Leo Mitchell, John Mitchell.

Civic Music—The board of directors of the Civic Music Association gave an informal supper at the City Club on last Thursday evening.

Meeker—Augusta Alberti Meeker was the special soloist at the Memorial Church of Christ Sunday evening, February 7, singing with much success.

Muenstermann—Miss Esther Muenstermann, contralto, substituted for Mrs. Dickey at the St. James M. E. church on Sunday, January 23.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

TENOR
SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEIN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL TEACHER Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, OAK PARK

I slipped into this church for a few moments on Sunday afternoon and heard Mr. Edgar Nelson's reorganized choir for the first time. With Mr. Thomas McGranahan as special soloist they were doing the Gounod "Sanctus" and it went through with a lovely rhythm, slow and graceful and befitting its appealing text, and with a nice gradation of tone which left something for use when the climax came. The voices blended well and Mrs. Corlew-Smith, in her new environment, carries with her the admirable qualities which make her an unusual choir soprano. The balance of parts is admirable and Mr. Nelson is almost a model for neatness and alertness as accompanist.

Mr. McGranahan's voice is of a mellow sweetness, and of good body and carrying power. He phrased the "Sanctus" with continual beauty, preferring that its innate purity could be best shown in a direct simplicity. For offertory he used Handel's "Waft Her, Angels" from "Jephtha," which he has, in some sort, made his own, by reason of the excellent way he has worked it out and can touch and influence those who hear it.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

HAZEL HUNTLEY

CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE

CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ

Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau

MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD

CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD

TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY

PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO

PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

Leo Zelenka - Lerando

CONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWS

RICE CLARIBELLE

SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

LUCY J. HARTMAN

Miss Lucy J. Hartman with the Topeka Musical Arts Society "Messiah" performance:

Topeka, Kan., January 12.—The music-loving people of Topeka have long hoped for a choral and orchestral organization that would produce the best music and make use of the talent of the city, and that wish is to be realized. The realization will come through the efforts of Horace Whitehouse, dean of the Department of Fine Arts of Washburn

LUCY J. HARTMAN

WARREN PROCTOR

CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

College, Topeka. In the latter part of October Dean Whitehouse invited the best singers of the church choirs, of the college glee club, the musicians of various bands and orchestras and others to join in giving "The Messiah."

Over 200 singers and a large number of instrumentalists responded to his invitation and the oratorio was presented in the auditorium. Nearly 3,000 persons attended the performance and the audience was surprised at the high quality of the performance.

The result was a demand on the part of the public and of the musicians that the Topeka Musical Art Society be made permanent and that productions be given at regular intervals. The organization has been perfected and plans are being made for regular spring and fall events.

Dean Whitehouse, who trained the chorus and the orchestra and who managed all of the business details, deserves credit for the success. The chorus numbered 200 and the orchestra forty-nine. The soloists were Gertrude Rennyson, soprano; Lucy Hartman, Chicago, contralto; George Deane, Kansas City, tenor; Charles E. Lutton, Chicago, bass.

Miss Rennyson's "Rejoice Greatly" was sung in a manner that was fully up to her fine reputation. Miss Hartman proved herself one of the most promising oratorio contraltos. She sang "He Was Despised" with a dramatic interpretation that was realistic. Mr. Lutton's "Why Do the Nations Rage" took the audience by storm. Mr. Deane scored a personal success and was heartily applauded.

The "Hallelujah" chorus was sung with a thorough understanding of its possibilities, and the chorus did not miss a single attack. The audience demanded a repetition of the chorus, "Unto Us a Child Is Born." There was complete sympathy and understanding between Conductor Whitehouse and the soloists.—Musical America.

Smidt—Mable Corlew-Smith has been re-engaged for the Spring Festival at Wheaton, Ill.

CHURCH CONCERT

Program for concert at Cuyler Avenue Methodist Church, Oak Park, on Friday evening, February 12, given by the Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington boulevard:

Marie Edwards Pianist
Marie White Clark Soprano
Edna Reiner Marshall Reader
A. L. Preiser Violinist
C. W. Edwards Pianist

PROGRAM

Trio—
Liebestraum (organ, violin, piano).....Liszt
Miss Edwards, Mr. Preiser, Mr. Edwards

Violin—
Larghetto and Allegretto Nardini
Mr. Preiser
Mrs. Preiser at the piano

Piano—
(a) Toccata Leschetizky
(b) The Fisherman's Hut MacDowell
(c) From Long Ago MacDowell
(d) Concert Etude MacDowell
Miss Edwards

Reading—
"When Ignorance Was Bliss".....Anonymous
Mrs. Marshall

Vocal Selected
Mrs. Clark

Organ—
(a) Fanfare Lemmens
(b) Minuet Boccherini
(c) Burlesca e Melodia Baldwin
Miss Edwards

Trio—
Adagio Fesca
Miss Edwards, Mr. Preiser, Mr. Edwards

Violin—
(a) Serenade Gounod-Preiser
(b) German Dance Dittersdorf
Mr. Preiser

Piano—
Blue Danube Waltzes Schultze-Evler
Miss Edwards

Reading—
Sweet Day of Rest Hall
Mrs. Marshall

Trio—
Eriksang and Kronungsmarsch.....Kretschmer
Miss Edwards, Mr. Preiser, Mr. Edwards

—###—

Fabbrini—Giuseppe Fabbrini appeared last week at Enid, Okla.; Little Rock, Ark.; Alva, Okla.; Ponca City, Okla., and Belton, Tex.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio; on account of an extended concert tour, will rent time in a magnificently appointed lake front studio; Fine Arts Bldg.; for half price; address care Music News.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development and Repertoire
Management Sam 1B. Carlton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Marie Sidenius Zendt

SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler

PIANIST Teaching Recitals
Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

LESLIE SCHUTTE CONCERT

The audience assembled at the Masonic Temple last Monday night, both in size and enthusiasm, was enough to renew faith in the goodness of human nature even in the breast of the most hardened pessimist.

Leslie Schutte was born in Austin and grew up there. Very early he developed a remarkable music talent and though he is now just approaching twenty years of age, he has for a long time been a factor in the music life of that suburb, playing and teaching continuously for the past several years.

LESLIE SCHUTTE

Everybody knows young Mr. Schutte and everybody likes him. To the whole town, seemingly, he is just "Leslie."

And not only by his charming personality but in the extent and value of his musical accomplishments he has won the regard of all his down-town teachers and also a very wide circle of musical acquaintances.

When therefore it became known that, because of his health, it would be wise for him to go to Colorado for a time, all his friends, legions of them, rose up with one accord and desired him to give a farewell concert, when they might buy tickets and at the same time wish him God-speed.

The event took place on Monday night. Something like 800 people bought tickets and, at the concert, each one of these turned into a genuine enthusiast for the young man and seldom indeed has a more cordial reception and farewell been given any one.

Leslie Schutte may, and very probably will, face many musical triumphs in the years to come, but never again will he be greeted with more genuine admiration and affection than on last Monday night.

He has often played the piano in public in Austin, as elsewhere, and it was not necessary to prove his powers at this time, but, anxious to show his appreciation, he not only officiated as one of the accompanists in a very superior style which he has made his own, but also he played two groups of solos, one by Bråhms and one by Chopin, showing again the fine quality of his talent, his remarkable technical advancement and his abiding good taste.

After his final number he was given a genuine ovation and responded by playing the difficult "Octave Etude" of Leschetizky.

His assisting artists were many and fine. Unfortunately, Mr. Aage Fredericks, violinist, was ill and unable to fill his part of the program, an omission which was made up by the fact that every other artist on the program willingly and beautifully gave encore numbers.

Mr. John Rankl showed his splendid voice and fine musicianship to excellent advantage. A novelty of his group was "Night and the Curtains Drawn," by Serrata, which proved to be a beautiful song, excellently suited to Mr. Rankl and done with much authority.

"Invictus" (Huhn) was especially well received and "The Floral Dance" (Moss) was given with much facility.

Anna Breining Greulich, the possessor of a lovely soprano voice, is a prime favorite in Austin and at this time was greeted with great cordiality. She showed much artistic feeling and much musical finish in all the

Leginska

PIA IST

Has been engaged for FIVE appearances as soloist with the
NEW YORK SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
Walter Damrosch, Orchestra
Exclusive Management of Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York City.

songs of her group. "Across the Hills" (Rummel) disclosed her ability to do pianissimo work of the most beautiful sort. The Nevin "Nocturne" was properly gay, and the "Michaela Aria" (Carmen) disclosed musical charms and accomplishment of very high order.

Mr. Hans Hess, always a finished artist and very popular concert figure, showed some beautiful 'cello tone in "Larghetto" (Mozart), was properly virtuosic in "Scherzo" (Dittersdorf-Kreisler), and created a genuine sensation with "Orientale" (Cui), which he was forced to repeat.

Miss Mildred Pillinger, dramatic soprano, and another big favorite in Austin, was greeted with much cordiality on her appearance and each of her numbers aroused a storm of applause. She has a remarkable dramatic talent, a great voice and much good concert style. She gave four songs, besides encore, among them "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" (Samson and Delilah), with much display of vocal skill, and "The Cry of Rachel" (Salter), in an unusually dramatic and effective manner.

Additional accompanists were Earl Blair and Lillian Grant Haeffner. C. E. W.

Sinai Temple—The fourteenth concert of the third season of the Sinai Orchestra is to be given Sunday evening, February 14, at Sinai Temple, Forty-sixth street and Grand boulevard, at 8:15 p. m., Mr. Arthur Dunham, conductor. Mrs. Beatrice Fischer Erlinger, soprano, will be the soloist.

PEARLE LA ROCHE PRESENTS
PUPIL AT LITTLE THEATER

A remarkable young pianist in the person of Master Clarence Buyer was heard at Chicago's Little Theater on Monday evening, February 8, by a capacity audience. Master Buyer, who has not yet reached his thirteenth birthday, has received all his instruction from Miss Pearle La Roche, a successful teacher, located at 419 Fine Arts Building. The work of the young pianist throughout a rather taxing program was a high tribute to the excellent and thorough teaching abilities of Miss La Roche, and stamped very forcibly upon the minds of those present the impression that should this young gentleman continue his study of the piano and music with the same thoroughness and under the same or equally as good instruction, in the coming few years the music world will have at its call another artist of high rank. Master Buyer not only plays his numbers with assurance and a swift, sure technic, but he possesses a stage presence which is a delight and not equaled by many of our well known pianists of the present day.

The program was well chosen and arranged and the numbers offered were not too big for the present efficiency of the performer, as is often the case at children's programs. This fact alone is commendable.

Master Buyer dashed off a Bach "Invention" in fine style, as his opening number, and with Miss La Roche at the second piano, he played the "Sonata" in C Major, by Mozart-Grieg, with splendid technical control and keen insight as to musical values. This number was perhaps his highest achievement of the evening. However, other numbers pleased his hearers more. A "Spanish Dance," by Moszkowski, was delightfully played, as was a "Tarantelle," by Pieczonska. "Butterfly," Op. 43, No. 1, Grieg, was a smooth and finished gem of the evening and Nevin's "Napoli" created a brilliant effect and welcome contrast. Beethoven's beautiful "Minuet in G" received an elegant and intelligent performance at the hands of the young pianist and he displayed praiseworthy knowledge of the art of Chopin playing by offering the "Valse," Op. 64, No. 1, and "Nocturne" in E Flat from that composer's many beautiful works. Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" was a favorite with the audience and also with the performer. He maintained its beautiful, melodic line with fine tone and rhythm. The march from "Tannhauser" was played with strength and mastery and furnished an elegant number with which to close the program. The audience demanded more, however, and Master Buyer responded with a short but delightful encore. The evening was a pronounced success for both teacher and pupil. H. M. B.

— — — — —
Chicago Commons—A concert of American songs will be given by the chorus of the First Congregational Church of Oak Park and the Tabernacle Chorus of Chicago, at Chicago Commons this (Friday) evening, under direction of H. B. Humphrey.

— — — — —
Cowan—Phelps Cowan was accompanist for Mrs. Orpha Kendall Holstman in a recital at the La Salle Hotel on Monday.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT
606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON
TEACHER OF PIANO
THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST
BASSO
304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius
TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL
Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs
5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE
Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA
For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements
Address, Kirsti Cleophas
Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI
PIANIST
Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen
TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Malters Bldg.

Leonora Allen
SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.
Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS
4547-N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL
SOPRANO
Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE
ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER
GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter
SOLO SOPRANO
Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL
BARITONE
608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE Contralto
Concert Oratorio Recital
1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA GERHARDT DOWNING
CONTRALTO
Oratorio - Concert - Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

Music in America

SPRING FESTIVAL IN WICHITA

Wichita is instituting a musical event that will be of interest to every music lover in the vicinity. It is to consist of a large musical festival and musical contest. Liberal prizes are to be offered in chorus, glee club and solo contests, culminating in two concerts by the Damrosch (New York) Symphony Orchestra, the last of which will be with the combined choruses of probably 1,000 voices and visiting soloists. Money prizes aggregating over $1,000 are offered, besides special prizes of a like amount, as follows:

Musicians of Kansas have already heard of the contest and inquiries are coming in to the committee. Indications are that the competition in the vocal solo department will be unusually keen. Kansas is a state of singers and the contest in Wichita probably will draw the largest array of native talent ever in its history.

CHORUS CONTEST CLASS "A"

For choruses of seventy or more voices.....$350
Contest song: "He Watching Over Israel," from Elijah.

CLASS "B"

For choruses of thirty to fifty voices—

First prize$150
Second prize 100
Third prize 75
Fourth prize 50
Contest number: "Gloria," from Mozart's "Twelfth Mass."

GLEE CLUB CONTESTS

Male voices—

First prize$50
Second prize 25
Contest number: "Good Bye Sweetheart," by J. L. Hatton. Arranged by Nevin. Published by Ditson.

Women's voices—

First prize$50
Second prize 25
Contest song: "Stephanie Gavotte," by Czibulka. Arranged by Clough-Leigher. Published by Ditson. (Wichita choruses and clubs barred from above.)

QUARTET CONTESTS

Male voices, prize.....$10
Contest number: "Lead Kindly Light," Arranged by Buck.

Women's voices, prize.....$10
Contest song: "Annie Laurie." Arranged by Dudley Buck.

Mixed voices, prize.....$10
Contest number: "God Is a Spirit," by Sterndale Bennett, from "The Woman of Samaria."

SOLO CONTESTS

Piano, class A, (no one over twenty-five years of age eligible).....$15
Contest number: First movement from Schumann's "Carnival of Vienna," Op. 26.

Piano, class B, (no one over twenty-one years of age eligible).....$10
Contest number: Prelude and air from Grieg's "Holberg Suite," Op. 40.

Violin, class A.....$15
Contest number: Lento and finale from Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen."

Violin, class B.....$10
Contest number: "Meditation," from Thais," by Massenet.

Vocal, soprano, class A.....$15
Contest number: "The Willow," by Goring-Thomas.

Soprano, class B.....$10
Contest number: "A Song of Sunshine," by Goring-Thomas.

Contralto, class A.....$15
Contest number: "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah."

Contralto, class B.....$10
Contest number: "Sunset," by Dudley Buck.

Tenor, class A.....$15

Contest number: "Were I a Prince Egyptian," by Chadwick.

Tenor, class B.....$10
Contest number: "Dear Love, When in Thy Arms I Lie," by Chadwick.

Bass, class A.....$15
Contest number: "Arm, Arm, Ye Brave," from Handel's "Judas Maccabeus."

Bass, class B.....$10
Contest number: "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann.

In addition to contest numbers given, each contestant will select a number not to exceed five minutes in length.

There will be a special contest in glee clubs of Wichita, for which certificates will be given but no cash prizes. Contest numbers the same as used in the regular contest.

In all contests there must be at least three entries or no prizes will be awarded.

An entrance fee of $1 is required of all contestants. The $1 fee admits the chorus or club contesting.

The choruses and clubs must learn the choruses to be sung at the closing concert and must attend the final rehearsal and concert. The choruses of the final concert will be: "The Heavens Are Telling," the bridal chorus from the "Rose Maiden," and the two contest choruses.

No person may compete in class A and class B of a solo contest.

The contest fee admits contestants to all concerts during the festival.

Contests are open to anyone (at the discretion of the committee) unless otherwise specified.

All applications for entries must be made before April 17. Names and addresses of every competitor, including membership of choruses and clubs, must be given the committee in charge.

Contest judge or judges are to be selected from outside the state of Kansas. Preliminary judges may be selected from Kansas.

Solo performances must be from memory.

Proposed programs:

Thursday, April 29, a. m.—Preliminary contests in all lines in different halls.

One o'clock to five—Final contests in glee clubs, quartets and solos of all kinds before the official adjudicator.

Eight o'clock—Concert in Forum by prize winning clubs and soloists.

Friday, a. m.—Contests of class "B" choruses and an attraction of extraordinary merit, to be announced later.

One o'clock—Grand final concert by Damrosch Orchestra and all choruses combined. Damrosch conducting.

The festival is guaranteed financially by a company of leading business men of Wichita, and the musical arrangements are in charge of the Musicians' Club, which comprises all the leading musicians of the city. It is in no way an individual undertaking and is not conducted for the profit of anyone. It is earnestly hoped by the business men who have it in charge, as well as by the musicians, that it may be the means of awakening and stimulating an interest in musical matters all through this part of the west. They have planned it to the advantage of musicians outside of Wichita rather than for our home talent. Every young musician in this vicinity is urged to enter the lists and try out his metal. Every community is urged to organize a chorus and come in force, determined to carry away a prize. Your community will be benefited by the endeavor, even though you may fail to win the money.

The committee will help to organize the chorus and, if desired, will send a man to drill it. A very small fee will be asked in this case, to cover the expenses. Write us and we will give you the plan in detail. Anyone wishing to enter as a soloist is urged to write the committee, and we will gladly furnish further information.

Address the chairman of the Musical Festival, Wichita, Kas.

Members of the committee are: Frank Power, chairman; Otto L. Fischer, secretary; Charles Davis Carter, Lucius Ades, Mrs. Jetta Campbell-Stanley, Theodore Lindberg, Miss Jessie L. Clark, Rafael Navas, Ralph Brokaw and T. L. Krebs.—From the Wichita Beacon.

LONG BEACH, CAL.

Since the report of a fortnight ago the "Queen of the Beaches" has been highly favored with both vocal and instrumental artists, and from present indications there are more to follow.

The constant arrival of tourists and guests for the season, has enabled some of the better class hotels to institute evening musicales and the Kenebec hostelry inaugurated a series on last Sabbath evening. The spacious parlors were crowded and Mrs. John P. Hight, who is always sure of a royal welcome, sang a number of favorite songs, which fully demonstrated the pure qualities of her rich soprano voice.

The Woman's Music Club gave a MacDowell program Monday morning in the hotel Alexander, and luncheon in honor of Miss Cora Calvert Foy, president of the Woman's Symphony Orchestra, of Los Angeles. The parlors and corridors there-to were filled to overflowing. Miss Lora Sprague was in charge of the program and graciously presided. Miss Mayme Allen read a well prepared paper on "MacDowell the Man of Moods." She handled the subject in a masterly manner, not only making the audience familiar with his poetic imagination but also his sincere personality and nobility of character.

Miss Pauline Farquhar played one movement of Eroica Sonata with remarkable skill and finished technic. Miss Charlotte Gooding played the Concert Etude with pleasing effect and artistic finish. Miss Edith Noble sang "The Sea," and to an encore, "Clover," much to the great pleasure of all. Mr. Edwin Kirkpatrick played "To a Wild Rose," on the violin, and to an encore, "The Water Lily," with pleasing effect. Mrs. C. W. McKinley was at the piano and added much to the inspiration of the memorable occasion.

Shakespeare in music was very cleverly presented Monday afternoon, by Miss Emily F. Wheeler, past president of the Ebelle club. Too much could not be said of Miss Wheeler's far reaching and cultured dissertation. Shakespeare, she declared, was not an educated man from the generally accepted viewpoint of book learning, but that genius does not need to acquire learning from books. That he had intimate associations with statesmen, musicians, ministers and great men of the time, and from these he drew his inspiration and formulated his picturesque imaginings and dream poems and prose poetry; showing in glowing word pictures that all the favorite children of his brain loved music. She touched briefly on the music of the Elizabethan period, when all organs and church music were confiscated and destroyed.

In illustration of the speaker's interesting discourse, Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, played "Lady Cary's Dump;" the "Kings Masque;" the "Greensleeve," referred to in the "Merry Wives of Windsor," and other familiar compositions, with a keen interpretation and realistic description. The "Fairies Chorus" was sung by Mrs. Ada Potter Wiseman and Mrs. T. G. Harriman, whose perfect blending of tone and sympathy in full accord with the charming accompaniment by Mrs. Emery was a delight to all. The story of "Midsummer Night's Dream," written when Shakespeare was about 26, was set to music by Mendelssohn at 17, and played by Mrs. D. M. Shreve and Mrs. C. W. McKinley with an inspiring faultlessness worthy the reputation of these popular pianists who have often pleased the Long Beach music lovers.

Perhaps the most important musical affair of the season was given at the hotel Virginia, when Mrs. L. J. Shelby, of Los Angeles, who has a beautiful contralto voice, was heard in the delightful program arranged in five epochs of sacred history and represented with selections from oratorios and sacred music of more modern production. Mrs. M. H. Robinson, the clever pianist of the Woman's Lyric Club, Los Angeles, was the accompanist. The stage setting was aptly arranged to bring out the solemnity of the theme. The scene was nighttime and dawn when the Star of Bethlehem appeared.

The program arrangement was:

God and His Creation—God is Spirit (Mendelssohn), The Earth Is the Lord's (Schnecker), Behold What Manner of Love (MacDermid).

God's Covenant With Man—The Mighty God Has Spoken (Lincoln Case), Ninety-First Psalm (MacDermid), Sing! O Daughter of Zion (Bochau).

Prophecy and Birth of Jesus—Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive (Handel), The New Born King (L'Espoir), The Virgin's Lullaby (Buck), Simeon (Cornelius).

The Teachings of Jesus—Rest (Bischoff), Consider the Lilies (Gertrude Ross), Keep My Commandments (Neidlinger), The Lord's Prayer (Austin Ball).

Crucifixion and Resurrection—Looking Unto God (Lincoln Case), There is a Green Hill Far Away (Gounod), The Risen Lord (Hammerel).

Prof. Clarence E. Krinbill, who has been organist at the First Christian Church for some time, refused a flattering inducement by way of increased salary from the First M. E. Church, Los Angeles, and will remain in Long Beach. The vacancy in the M. E. Church was caused by the organist, Mr. Clyde Collison, accepting the position of organist with the Mission Inn, at Glenwood.

JOHN RANKL

Some recent comment:

"Music lovers had a rare treat in listening to the superb voice of Mr. John Rankl, bass-baritone, from Chicago, who was the soloist engaged by the club for this occasion. Mr. Rankl's selections covered a wide range, including oratorio and secular numbers, all of which were given with a wonderfully artistic and refined interpretation, showing him to be a singer of rare ability and being endowed with a sense of true musicianship. Phillips was indeed fortunate in having the opportunity of hearing a singer of Mr. Rankl's wide experience and intelligence."—Phillips, Wis., Bee.

The foregoing comment appeared after Mr. Rankl had sung as soloist with the Phillips Glee Club on January 20. (Advertisement.)

Hotchkiss-Love—Mrs. Mary Hotchkiss-Love, director of the Waukegan Conservatory of Music, gave a concert in that city on January 29, to introduce Clayton W. Lunham, tenor, and Miss Mossie Lowrie, reader, and met with much success. Mrs. Love was the accompanist of the evening.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON

SOPRANO

520 Fine Arts Bldg.

Phone Drexel 8183

COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

1535 Hyde Park Boulevard
Mrs. Charles Orchard
Director

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
OLENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

On Sunday afternoon a delightful program of songs was given by Jessie Mack Hamilton at her home. She was assisted by Grace E. Keesler, accompanist. Mrs. Hamilton is an artist of high rank, and the interpretation given the splendid songs might well be taken as a model of artistic attainment. Mrs. Hamilton has absolute command of her vocal resources. She opened the program with Handel's air from "Alexander" and air from "Rinaldo," giving them with such artistic finish that one couldn't help but wish to hear her in a Handel program, but versatility and intelligence are hers to the full, for with each number came added interest. Hugo Wolf's "Verborgtheit" and Dvorak's "Als die alte Mutter" were made very attractive. "Mai" and "L'Incredule," by Reynaldo-Huhn, and Debussy's "Mandoline" brought the program to the American songs. "L'Incredule" and the Debussy number were given highly artistic interpretations.

Mrs. Hamilton offered Ronald's "At Dawn," "A Burden" and "My Flower" in the first group, adding to each many touches of beauty. The "Song for June," by William Spencer Johnson, and Roger's "Autumn" were the closing numbers of a most delightful program.

Grace Keesler came in for a share of the artistic program by playing accompaniments that were sympathetic and musically, adding much to the success of the program. H. W. P.

INTERNATIONAL EISTEDDFOD, 1915

(Special dispatch to Music News.)

The "five good men and true" chosen as board of judges to decide musical contests at the San Francisco Exposition Eisteddfod during the last week of next July are:

Ernest R. Kroeger (chairman), St. Louis.
Professor E. D. Lloyd, South Bend, Ind.
Dr. Henry Houseley, Denver, Col.
Professor David Davis, Cincinnati, O.
Redfern Mason, San Francisco, Cal.

The first four are well known in the Eisteddfod circles. Mr. Mason is the musical critic of the San Francisco Examiner, he is a Cambridge man, and a pupil of the late Sir George A. Macfarren, president of the London Royal Academy of Music.

Elgin—Mr. L. A. Torrens, dean of the vocal department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music, and director of the Elgin Choral Society, will give a concert in Elgin on Thursday evening, February 11. The club will sing "Judge Me, O God," Mendelssohn; "Two Lovers," Hecht; "Work of Destiny," Brahms; "Inflammatus" (Stabat Mater), Rossini, and "The Lord Is Great," Haydn. The soloists are Mabel Corlew-Smith, soprano; Lucy Hartman, contralto; Herman Barnard, tenor; James A. Fryer, bass; Vera B. Plummer, pianiste, and Palmer Christian, organist.

Eddy—Clarence Eddy has played organ recitals the past week as follows: February 7, Jacksonville, Fla.; February 8, Palm Beach; February 9, Miami; February 10, Daytona and 11, St. Augustine. Today he starts for Chicago and from February 22 to 26 will play at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco.

IN BRIEF FORM

Stead—At Peoria Musical College, last week, an organ recital was played by Franklin Stead, president of the college, assisted by Mabel Riggs Stead, pianist.

Smidt—Mable Corlew-Smith, soprano, will be the soloist at the first of a series of popular concerts to be given at the Evanston Theater, on Sunday evening, February 14.

La Roche—Lillian Kaufman, a talented eight-year pupil of Miss Pearle La Roche, will play the Mendelssohn "Wedding March" at the wedding ceremony of Miss Ruth Hollander on February 28.

Rankl—Mr. John Rankl will be soloist at the Butler Memorial Sunday afternoon concert on February 14. Herbert Carothers, a pupil of Mr. Rankl, will sing for the Scottish Clan this evening.

Mulford—Miss Margaret Mulford, contralto, sang before the Detroit Federation of Woman's Clubs last Friday, her numbers including works by Chadwick, Neidlinger, Ashford and Clough-Leigher.

INCREASE YOUR MEMORY CAPACITY

By means of the

SQUIRE MUSIC MEMORY SYSTEM

A modern, safe, sane and scientific method of not only increasing the memory capacity, but of attaining Permanent Memory.

By this method you can memorize from 4 to 10 different pieces at once with more ease than you can memorize one piece by the ordinary methods now in use.

TAUGHT BY

BELLE SQUIRE,

Teacher of Piano and Music Memory

522 Fine Arts Bldg. CHICAGO

Ballmann—The orchestra at North Side Turner Hall, under the direction of Martin Ballmann, gives an extra concert Sunday afternoon, February 14. The following soloists will appear: Mac F. Panoch, soprano; Glen M. Stark, baritone; Vilmos G. Saska, piano.

Hall—Bertha Lotta Sorenson, a pupil of William Clare Hall, sang before the Sorosis Club last week, disclosing a rich, full contralto voice in a list of songs by Verdi, Salter, Pinsuti, Foote and Hammond, and creating especial interest in a "Lullaby" by her mother, D. Elsie Louise Morris.

Scott—Miss Mary Eleanor Shippert, assistant teacher of Miss Vivian Scott, gave a successful pupils' recital Friday evening, February 5, on the ninth floor of the Auditorium. The pupils presented were Ruth and Olive Bass, Meriam Sharp, Jessie Swanson, Pearl Snyder, Mary Harger, Ruth Todd, Irene Brown and Grace Towle.

Amateur Musical Club—The next regular program will be given February 15, at the assembly room of the Fine Arts Building. The program will be given by Misses Louis Adler, Josephine Large, Anna C. Braun, Ruth Breytspraak, Jessie King and Mrs. Morris S. Rosenwald.

Birch—The piano pupils of Robert R. Birch were heard in recital at his home last Saturday afternoon, with a large number of friends in attendance. They were assisted by some of the vocal pupils of Miss Anna C. Braun, contralto, in a long and very successful program.

Henry—Mr. Harold Henry is now under the exclusive management of Haensel and Jones, of Aeolian Hall, New York, and wishes it understood that the announcement that he would appear under the auspices of the Music League of America was not authorized.

Cosmopolitan School—Mr. Henry P. Eames, director of the piano department of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, will be the piano soloist with the Chicago Wood Wind Choir at their concert on Thursday evening, February 18, in the foyer of Orchestra Hall.

Radanovits—A splendid tribute has been paid by Opie Read, as music critic, upon hearing Mr. Sandor S. Radanovits sing at the Press Club of Chicago. Mr. Read exclaimed: "Emotion is the voice of genius. Your voice has compelled me to take off my hat. It is the tone of true emotion, the throb of artistic truth."

Scott—The following pupils of Miss Vivian Scott will appear in recital Saturday afternoon, February 13, on the ninth floor of the Auditorium: Fanchon Bennett, Winifred Cook, Mildred Lewis, George Smith, Ruth Henion, Hilda Flemming, Charlain Welter, Dorothy Kohler and Charles Williams.

Minneapolis Orchestra—Emil Oberhoffer, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, has elected to play Rachmaninow Symphony No. 2 in E minor at the annual Chicago concert of the orchestra Sunday afternoon, February 28, at Orchestra Hall, under the management of Carl D. Kinsey. Katherine Goodson, the English pianist, will be the soloist of the afternoon and will play the Tchaikowsky Concerto in B-flat minor.

Apollo Club—One week from this Monday night at Orchestra Hall, the Apollo Musical Club of 300 singers, Harrison M. Wild, conductor, will present Florent Schmitt's setting of the "Forty-seventh Psalm" for the first time in the west and Cowan's new choral work, "The Veil," for the first time in America. The solo artists will be Leonora Allen, soprano; Frances Ingram, contralto; Warren Proctor, tenor, and Andrea Sarto, baritone; with Hazel Huntley, contralto, and Grant Kimbell, tenor, as assisting artists. The entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra will furnish the accompaniments, with Edgar Nelson at the organ.

AT THE THEATERS

Fine Arts Theater

The first of the three popular classical concerts to be given at the Fine Arts Theater will take place next Monday afternoon, February 15, at 3:30 p. m. These concerts were arranged especially to meet the requirements of the large number of musical students residing in the city, and the price of admission is very nominal. Following is the program of the first concert:

Soloists—Bettina Freeman, Hugo Kortschak, Walter Spry.

Accompanists—James Whittaker, Walter Spry.
Duo—Rondo Brilliant, Op. 70, for Piano and Violin
Schubert

Messrs. Spry and Kortschak
Liebestod (from "Tristan and Isolde").....Wagner
Miss Freeman

Gartenmelodie Schumann
Slavonic Dance, No. 2.....Dvorak
Hungarian Dance, No. 1.....Brahms-Joachim

Mr. Kortschak
Song Without Words, B minor.....Saint-Saens
To a Water Lily (from "Woodland Sketches").....MacDowell

Mazurka in B flat, Op. 7, No. 1.....Chopin
Paraphrase—Rigoletto (Verdi).....Liszt
Mr. Spry

Je t'ecris Raymond Roze
J'ai pleuré Hue
L'ultima canzone Tosti
Call Me No More.....Cadman

Miss Freeman
Polonaise de Concert, Op. 4.....Wieniawski
Mr. Kortschak

h h h

No pictures shown this winter in any of our theaters or halls have been more interesting than those on "Africa," shown at "The O'Donnellops" on Sunday night last. Mr. O'Donnell is interesting in what he has to say and the pictures are thoroughly convincing. More people applied for tickets on last Sunday than could be accommodated, and it was therefore announced that the same lecture and pictures will be repeated next Sunday night at the same place.

#

The Little Theater

An evening spent at the Little Theater in contemplation of the mild-problem plays of Mrs. Havelock Ellis, is an evening well spent, indeed.

"Love in Danger" is the general title and the three small plays are labeled, specifically, "The Subjection of Kezia," "The Pixy" and "The Mothers."

In the first the unreasonableness of the young wife, as opposed to the kindness of the husband is shown, finally, to have been caused over worry as to the question of children. When a baby is finally and definitely known to be approaching, peace and happiness are restored.

In the second play Mrs. Ellis propounds a sort of enigma, and leaves it unanswered. Is the young husband, who has sublime faith in the purity of his dead wife, a plain fool or is he an unhaloed saint? You must answer for yourself and probably no two will quite agree in their estimates.

"The Mothers" is lighter in vein than the two other plays but it teaches a lesson also, i. e.: how easily two women, in collaboration, may manipulate a man, force him to be true to the proper one, and still leave him with the comfortable impression that he has managed affairs himself.

The Wife in this instance was beautifully played (name unprogrammed), while Mr. Maurice Browne as the Husband in the first play was superb, and Edward Moseman, who appeared in all three plays proved himself an actor of rare and much-diversified gifts.

C. E. W.

h h h

At the Little Theater one is always sure to see or hear something out of the ordinary, with its quiet air, its simplicity, its restful coloring. It seems a most satisfying home for plays, music or lectures.

A course of twelve lectures by John Cowper Powys of Oxford University, England, is just now drawing to a close. He has given two series, Sunday evenings and Monday mornings, six each. The engagement ends with his lecture on "Henry James," Sunday evening, February 14, as announced by Mr. Maurice Browne, who also announced a course of eighteen lectures for next season. Mr. Powys' Monday morning lectures have been on "Dante," "Rabelias," "Victor Hugo," "Paul Verlaine," "Goethe" and "Heine."

He is a man young in years, of strong convictions and the courage to speak those same convictions. He paid, in spite of his British prejudices, a most loving tribute to the great Goethe on last Monday morning. His interpretation of Goethe's life and work was profound and inspiring. He gave the impression that in one short hour he could only begin to give his thoughts on so great a personality.

Professor Powys has many ardent admirers in Chicago, and his return next season is an event for congratulation.

M. W.

h h h

Majestic

Always there is something of absorbing interest on the bill at the Majestic and the special item of last week was, of course, Gertrude Hoffman. So alert and so greatly diversified and all-comprehending are the gifts of this woman that the wonder arises as to why she should still consider it necessary to cater to the vulgarly inclined.

She is marvelous in her abilities and in some of her developments and thoroughly disgusting in others, for, the note of sensuality is never wholly absent and sometimes it is obstreperously in evidence. Her act last week included so many details that it would be difficult to schedule all of them. Suffice it to say that at her cleanest and best, she is a wonder.

This week Karl Jorn, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is the headliner.

— # # —

Cramer—Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, will be the soloist at the Fashion Show Saturday afternoon and evening. In the afternoon she will sing a group of children's songs. "The Swing," "The Cuckoo," by Liza Lehmann, and "Happy Song," by del Riego. Phelps Cowan will be the accompanist.

— # # —

Walker—Edward Walker is engaged to sing on a special program given by the Woodlawn Woman's Club, Chicago, Tuesday evening, March 16. Also Arkadelphia, Ark., Thursday evening, April 1, in recital; Friday evening, April 2, the tenor role in Gaul's "Holy City."

— # # —

Rice—Miss Claribelle Rice, soprano, sang on Thursday afternoon for the Neighborhood Woman's Club, Miss Olene Wallace being her accompanist.

TWENTY-NINTH SEASON

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT
President

Chicago's Foremost School of

MUSIC Offers modern courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Public School Music, Harmony, Composition, Orchestral Instruments, etc., 75 eminent artists. Superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for Colleges. Diplomas and Degrees. Unrivaled free advantages.

WALTON PYRE School of Expression and Dramatic Art is affiliated with the Conservatory. Students may enter at any time. New Catalog Mailed Free.

646 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO, ILL.

AMERICA'S GIFTED YOUNG BARITONE

CECIL FANNING

IS SINGING

MARY JANE and SUMMER WINDS

Two New Songs by

ESTELLE MERRYMON CLARK and
PALMER JOHN CLARK

Both Numbers may be had at all Dealers

Ask to see them

GAMBLE HINGED MUSIC CO.

67 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SOLOS and QUARTETS

FOR CHURCH AND SYNAGOGUE By

HELENA BINGHAM

REMEMBER NOW THY CREATOR (Medium)
THE TWENTY-FIFTH PSALM (Medium)
BE MERCIFUL TO ME (Two Keys)
LIFE (Medium)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (High)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Low)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Soprano and Alto)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Mixed Quartet)
SUNSET AND EVENING STAR (Women's Voices)
BEATITUDES (Medium)

AT ALL MUSIC STORES

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE
HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store) TELEPHONE WABASH 6740

SEBASTIAN BURNETTI

Leading Barytone Montreal Grand Opera Company and Comic Oper Co., Berlin, has reopened his Studio at 505 Kimball Hall. Mr. Burnetti was for years the star pupil of Jean de Reszke, Lombardi, and Lamperti, the world's 3 greatest masters of voice culture. This training, later supplemented by his extensive concert and operatic experience, makes him an unrivaled exponent of the knowledge of voice and of repertoire of Songs and Opera in Original Languages.

Reception hours 2 to 4. Send for Booklet.

KATHERINE D'ORSAY

Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
61 Auditorium—Merrick Bldg.—Phone Englewood 9748

Harold Henry

PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Alfred Kaufmann

Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE • PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST
Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Calbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

Mrs. Fletcher DOBYNS

DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

LOS ANGELES

The seventh of the series of the People's Orchestra, Eduardo Lebegott, director, was well received, the opening being Wagner's "Rienzi" overture and closing with Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie." Mr. Ray Hastings, conducted two of his own compositions, his march, "Victory," and "Just for Fun," an interlude from "Lustspiel" suite, both quite enjoyable bits for orchestration.

Mrs. Edith Norton Dooley, soprano, gave, in a very pleasant tone and clearness of attack, the "Polacca" from Thomas' "Mignon," and responded in an encore number, giving splendid satisfaction throughout. Beethoven's "Concerto for Violin" had a good interpretation from Mr. Ralph Wylie, a well-known violinist of our city, who is always heard with pleasure. These concerts are proving to be of excellent grade and at popular prices they merit a larger patronage from the general public. New soloists are introduced and frequently local composers' works are presented for a hearing.

The Brahms' Quintet Club appeared in their second of the season, both at the rehearsal and concert. The Auditorium was completely filled, showing the favor they are gaining on their good music and artistic performance. The quartet "Aus meinen Leben," by Smetana, was a delicate piece of work and a peculiarly interesting composition. The piano quintet, "Trout," by Schubert, was more entertaining throughout. The playing was masterful in all details of construction. These chamber music writings seem to reach the very core of music language, and appeal to the finer musical sense perceptions.

Miss Aurelia Wharry was the soprano soloist in four German songs, and responded in encore with an English text selection, much to the delight of her English-speaking audience. She has a voice of good quality and sings with vocal understanding. Miss Mary L. O'Donoghue's accompaniments were in her usual excellent taste and adaptability, as her extensive and long experience suggests.

The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra again appeared in their third pair of concerts. The opening was the Franck "Symphony in D Minor." It was full of interest and had an excellent interpretation and reading from the baton of Herr Tandler and the well-trained orchestra. The soloist was Sigmund Beel, the concertmeister of the orchestra, who gave a highly artistic rendition of Beethoven's "Concerto in D, for Violin and Orchestra." There seemed to be the most perfect understanding between soloist, director and orchestra, resulting in a perfected performance of this beautiful work of musical art. The closing numbers were from Berlioz' "Damnation of Faust," the "Minuet of the Will-o-the-Wisps," "Ballet of Sylphs" and the "Rakoczy March," which seemed to charmingly round out the program and sent all home in good spirit. The full space was about occupied and the success financially as well as musically seems assured for the orchestra association.

A pleasant evening was spent at the concert given by a new artist late from Europe, in the person of Miss Lillian Powers, who has been with Leschetizky and shows the training, this being her first appearance here. She gave two groups of standard classical works, including "Pastorale," by Scarlatti-Tausig; the Paganini-Liszt "Grosse Etuden, No. 2"; Debussy's "Arabesque"; Chopin's "Etude, Op. 25, No. 2," and Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsodie." We welcome the pianist in the lists of our numerous able teachers.

Mrs. Harry Shoemaker, a contralto of good vocalism, gave a group of four English songs, Thomas' "My Heart Is Weary" and MacDermid's "Faith, Hope and Charity," always well received. Miss Madeline Bryant, violinist, gave two Kreisler numbers and Sarasate's "Les Adieux," displaying artistry. Mrs. George Howard, as accompanist, and on second part in the "Rhapsodie," manifested marked pianistic ability.

The Sunday afternoon song recital at the Trinity Auditorium, by Miss Viola Ellis, contralto, with Mr. Will Garraway as accompanist, pianist and organist, proved highly enjoyable and was heard by a splendid audience. Miss Ellis has a voice of great power, breadth and dramatic expression, showing well in Schubert's "The Almighty," "He Was Despised," from the "Messiah," was particularly effective. "Destiny," by Frank Colby, met with a good reception. "Amour viens Aider," from "Samson and Delilah," was the great performance. She is becoming a favorite by her great voice, fine presence and interpretation.

The musical profession must record with sadness the departure of one of the oldest and most devoted musical promoters that Los Angeles has had for forty or more years, in losing by death Herr Adolph Willhartitz, aged seventy-eight years. He was the organizer, or a prominent assistant, in every department of vocal and instrumental movements, and for the educational uplift. The Gamut Club, of which he was the first president, gave a funeral memorial service in remembrance of his faithful long-time service.

The Musicale Matinee Club today had a program of vocal compositions by local artists, many playing their own accompaniments or piano numbers. Mr. F. W. Blanchard gave a talk, as president of the local committee of the Federation of Musical Clubs for 1915, which will hold their biennial in June and July, in this city.

The composers were: Director Adolf Tandler, Homer Grunn; Mrs. Marie Sweet-Baker sang well Gertrude Ross' popular song, "Dawn in the Desert," and Alexander Karnboch's songs, "My Garden of Dreams" and "Ich Eile"; Roy Lamont Smith, in two violin pieces, played well by Mrs. Sydney Webb; Mrs. William Jamison's two songs, "Violin Strings" and "The First Bluebird," were charmingly sung by Mrs. Carleton Stockwell; Miss Ida Lavar played Fannie Dillon's "Two Preludes, Op. 8," compositions of choice construction and merit. Mrs. Pearl Lindsey Conklin's two lady quartets, "Won" and "Cradle Song," were very taking pieces. Vernon Spencer's three pieces, "Night Gossip," "Longing" and "Thou Art So Like a Flower," in which he furnished the accompaniments, are as good as the best new songs. Mr. Irving H. Andrews sang "O Golden Sun," by Adele Freeby. Mrs. Lillian Ballagh, president of the Matinee Club, is to be praised for such a recognition of local composers, and the local artists' presentations—a movement in the right direction.

John MacCormack, in three recitals, overcrowded the seating space, proving a great card to our local manager, Mr. Behymer. The opera is promising to the management and the artists are attractive.

h h h

Good fellowship reigned supreme last week at the Music Teachers' Association banquet, to which about one hundred and twenty plates were set. At the conclusion of the courses, a form of introduction in humorous verse by Carl Bronson, the poet of the club, to the lilt of some familiar tune, was sung by the assembly, serving as a cue to individual acknowledgment, or a speech, song or story. Vernon Spencer, president of the association, in a happy introductory speech oiling the musical cranks to move at an up-to-date speed rate, which reached its climax in a festive dance.

The greatest values, however, were in hearing a gracious program of violin selections from the talented and finished artist, Gregory Alexander Gaiz-Hocky, a late arrival from Russia. He played the "Scottish Romance," by Vernon Spencer, who exquisitely essayed all the accompaniments. This selection was especially enjoyed. The "Gypsy Airs," by Sarasate, and a Kreisler number were equally charming.

Superintendent J. H. Francis, of the Los Angeles public schools, gave an inspiring talk on the suitability of a musical education in the early life of the boy and girl as a most valuable part of elementary training, wherein rests the hope for growth in the higher appreciation of the "Art of Arts," for the oncoming future.

F. W. Blanchard, the president of the musical committee of the biennial meeting of the Federated Musical Clubs, enthused the music teachers in happy announcements of the success in securing lately $25,000 for the promotion of the program and expenses, which includes the presentation of the "Fairyland," prize opera by Horatio Parker, for which they have raised $10,000.

The musical profession is again sad to hear of the "passing out" of one of their long-time associates in the death of Professor Thomas William Wilde Monday, January 26, 1915. He came to Los Angeles in 1888. He has been organist at St. Vincent's (Catholic) Church, and seventeen years at the Church of the Angels. His prominence and usefulness in the musical colony for the past twenty-seven years has endeared himself to a host who have come and gone in the interim. He leaves a wife and three children. He came from Manchester, England. He was 54 years of age.

Herr Tandler promises us a novelty for March 19 and 20 in the presentation of Scriabine's "Prometheus," with all its peculiar and unfamiliar instruments as, the "Tom-tom," "Campane," "Campanelli," and hopes to secure in time the "Clavier a lumieres," a color suggesting apparatus to heighten the effects in its higher and lower vibrations, ascending to a "Golden yellow"—how fitting for the Golden state, at a Golden period, and a Golden opportunity. Let come what will, we are ready for the newest in art and expression. It is intended to conform to the composer's idea of rendition and show the relationship of music and color.

The eighth of the series of the Lebegott Orchestra was perhaps the best yet. The concert master, Herr Marcel Meier, shared in the honors of the baton and conducted with skill and authority.

The soloists were especially interesting. Herman Seidel, a youthful violinist, manifested no small amount of skill and training in the Beyle "Concerto, Opus 10," in three movements, with the orchestra, and also in the Bach "Concerto in D Minor" for two violins, in which Mr. Meier played the other violin part.

Mrs. V. Budrow, soprano, gave an aria from Donizetti's "Favorita," in good tone and interpretation, drawing forth an encore song. The ovation was left for Miss Lillian Ammalee Smith, in the "Hungarian Fantasie," by Liszt. To the encore on first call she played the "Brook" by Leschetizky and the second call, gave Ole Olsen's "Butterfly." In these selections, as well as the "Fantasia," the brilliance of touch and the scintillating stream of tonal expression was a charm and delight to hear. There is close approximation to veritable virtuosity in this artist and worthy a hearing in the best places.

The program closed with the orchestra in the "Mignon," overture by Ambrose Thomas.

The Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Arts gave an organ and song recital at the Pro-Cathedral (St. Paul's), by Ernest Douglas, organist, and Mrs. Marie Bitter, soprano, Mrs. Ione C. Kisselburg, contralto, who gave a rendition of "He Shall Feed His Flock," from "Messiah," in good style. Miss Bessie R. Fuhrer, in Rheinberger's "Overture for Organ and Violin," displayed virtuosity in tone and expression, with Douglas in an excellent organ accompaniment. The three character pieces by Mr. Douglas, "Fantasy," "Pastorale," and "Scherzo," were gems worth a hearing from the organ.

Signor Pietro Buzze presented some of his pupils in a song recital last night in Symphony Hall. Some excellent work and promising voices were heard. The operatic numbers were given by Miss Adele Levy, who sang from "Rusticana," "Voi le Sapete O Mamma," also "Vissi D'Arte," from "Tosca." Mrs. Celia Davidson Rosenthal sang "Mi Chiamano Mimi," from La Boheme. Miss Arndt as accompanist and piano soloist was highly acceptable to all artists and auditors. She gave Mendelssohn's "Rondo Capriccioso." All others in a good list of English songs were very praiseworthy in performance and fine presence, all receiving beautiful floral offerings. Signor Buzzi's recitals are always quite attractive and crowd the place wherever given.

Efrem Zimbalist is listed for the 4th of February as a Behymer course attraction. The former appearance won such favor that a good audience may be anticipated.

The National Opera Company is in full blast and doing a splendid business. Their work is more than ordinarily good, orchestra and Director Guerrieri up to all demands. Staging and the scenic effects are very attractive. The chorus could be much improved, but the solo attractions are making their reputation valuable at each appearance. We are having their first rehearsals but with the season's work we may hear them again with a larger and improved experience. The venture is proving that our city perhaps could sustain a permanent opera company. "Aida," "Faust," "Thais," "I Lombardi," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore," "Ruy Blas" and "La Gioconda" for the first and second week, now closing. "Lombardi" is popular. Miss Sarame Rainoldi is most effective in the "Giselda" role; Mario Rodolfi, at "Arvino," sings well; Olinto Lombardi, basso, is intensely popular, so also is Signor Italo Picchi and Eveliora Parnell, Florencio Constantino, fully sustains his excellent reputation in "Faust" and "Rigoletto" appearances. He will appear in "La Gioconda." The season will include three weeks.

S. W. MOUNTZ,

1651 Sixth avenue.

Myrle Irons—Miss Cecilia Weissgerber, a piano pupil of Mrs. Myrle Irons, played with much success at the meeting of the Virginia Colony of the Colony Club at the Auditorium on last Wednesday.

Dietch-Diederich—Sidney Arno Dietch, organist-accompanist, and Walter Diederich, tenor, will be heard in recital at Logansport, Ind., February 16.

GRACE BRUNE MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

ORATORIO, CONCERTS, RECITALS, Individually and Jointly

WORTHE FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

GRACE DICKINSON PATTERSON

The usual monthly talk on musical history was given on January 21 by Grace Dickinson Patterson to her pupils in her studio, 420 Fine Arts Building. The subjects discussed this season have been "Orlando Di Lasso, Palestrina, Bach and Handel." The next lecture will comprise the development of the oratorio and the life of Haydn. A short program by a number of the pupils is also given each month. Those taking part in January were:

Master Harold Ham, Margaret Harvey, Helen Emmons, piano; Helen Newhall, contralto; Alice Matsen, soprano.

The Economy in Buying the HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Chorleader and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park
Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN

TELEPHONE OAK PARK 5749

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall
Exclusive Management
JOINT SONATA RECITALS
HARRY CULBERTSON

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg. Teacher, Concerts

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire Accompanying
715 KIMBALL HALL
Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue Phone Humboldt 4569

FESTIVAL SERVICE, GRACE CHURCH, OAK PARK

Mr. Arthur Randolph Fraser has taken hold of the organ and choir of Grace Church in a vigorous manner, and in the short space of two months has succeeded in placing himself in so favorable a light that hearty congratulations are his reward and the church people are shaking hands with themselves over their wise choice of a choir director.

Mr. Fraser can be classed under the agreeable head of a "beautiful player." He does everything smoothly, fluently and easily. There is a flowing style, but it does not lack in color by any means, save that color is incidental, not the objective point. He proportions his effects and works towards them, and what is added by way of adornment does not obtrude itself, but seems to fit in by reason of its need. Rounding out these thoroughly admirable qualities is zeal, spirit and an enthusiasm that puts fire and purpose into every measure. He is, in substance, another of our fine group of young men organists who are going to mold musical matters in the coming years, if they stick to their tasks, keep their heads level and work for other ends than their self-glorification. It is one of the delights of an older man to see these young men, splendidly endowed and trained, coming to the front as the natural leaders for the future, and he enjoys patting them on the back and wishing them God-speed.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

The organ at Grace Church is a sorry affair for the modern organist to deal with, and on Sunday when Mr. Fraser and his choir gave Sullivan's "Prodigal Son," it was worse than usual, sounding all the time as if the tremolo was drawn. Now that Mr. Fraser's successes are adding a stimulus to the church work, they should give him the encouragement of a good organ to work with. This one now comes under the head of a "chest of whistles."

For his working forces he had the choir of boys and men augmented to one hundred voices by a Saint Cecilia choir of girls, and he directed from the organ. The choruses were well done, good attack and volume, a bit stiff at times as to rhythm, and proceeding cautiously over stony places. But the total effect was good and as the work is very singable, the impression was all that could be desired. Mr. Fraser made his accompaniments elastic and plastic, with enough assertion to guide, and yet enough subjection to make them part of a fine whole. Naturally the "Bacchanal" chorus had to be subdued to proper limits to fit a Sunday afternoon service in a church in Oak Park, a place called the Saints' Rest by the envious and something else by the irreverent.

Ethel Geistweit Benedict sang the soprano solos as well as the offertory, the latter a setting of "Ninety and Nine" by the always interesting Frederick Stevenson. It is stunning in its design and, if one may trust a first impression, is too weighty and dramatic for the light weight text. Mrs. Benedict did it superbly with an intellectual use of color effects quite out of the ordinary, and she was equally satisfactory in the arias in the oratorios, lending to all of them a fine sense of fitness of inflection and vocal beauty.

Mr. J. Parnell Egan carried the brunt of the solo tenor work and revealed a big dramatic voice and tense style that met the demands of the score admirably. And most commendable was his reserve, noticeably in the final phrases of the first solo, where the impulse is really operative, but which Mr. Egan rounded out beautifully in a quiet manner and gave to the moment a quickened meaning. He sang the recitatives capably and seemed in every way to be resourceful and schooled for such endeavors.

Miss Madge Martin did the contralto parts neatly. The great solo in the oratorio, "Love Not the World," was given to a lad, Charles Hughes by name, who sang it very well indeed, with sweetness and purity if not with great understanding. Mr. Lyklema of the choir sang the bass parts and the really remarkable rector, Rev. F. R. Godolphin, used a new authority and judgment in an abbreviated service which gave the music the right of way at this time. If they only would all see it so and that they make everything, including themselves, the stronger thereby.

Since writing the above I learn that the "great" of the organ "acted up" on Sunday and insisted on playing all the time if it played at all, so that Mr. Fraser had no real volume on hand for the brilliant passages. Which accents the need of a better instrument. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Yahr—Mrs. Marie Yahr appeared as soloist at the Auditorium in Milwaukee on February 9.

Williams—Evan Williams will give his annual New York recital at Aeolian Hall on February 21.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction

Wolfsohn Musical Bureau

1 W. 34th St., New York
In America Continuously Summer. Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
Steinway Piano Used

Music Abroad

LONDON LETTERS

(Delayed in Transit.)

The "Messiah" in London

I have just attended a performance of the "Messiah" in the Royal Albert Hall here in London. Before criticizing the performance, I will tell of conditions under which it is given and something of the difficulty of giving any kind of music in this mammoth place.

The building is very large, and in circular form. The chorus sits in a semi-circle, with the organ and orchestra between them. At one time, after hearing "Elijah" given there by the same society, I measured the outside of the hall by stepping it, and I can safely say that the two extremes of the chorus are nearly 175 feet apart. There are about 1,000 singers in the chorus, and to separate them, as is necessary in Albert Hall, makes good choral singing impossible. This is the first difficulty. The next seems to be a lack of careful rehearsing. Let the rest of the difficulties take care of themselves. I was disappointed in both of the performances I have heard the Royal Society give. I will not admit that I have been expecting too much. I know the "Messiah" and have sung it under some of our good directors in America.

The performance was not without merit, to be sure. There were times when good work was done. An English orchestra always plays well, and the good, healthful music of Handel's was good to hear. Sometimes we get "fed up" on the modern kind of music. We can always have the Handels and Schuberts to fall back on.

The soloists on this occasion were Mme. Clara Butt, contralto; Miss Ruth Vincent, Ben Davies and Herbert Brown. I must speak plainly in all cases. It is unfortunate that Mme. Butt tries to sing the "Messiah." The "break" in her voice comes right where it is in evidence about all of the time. It was more like a crackle than a break most of the time. It is too bad. She has a wonderful voice, and would have been a fine artist but for the lack of voice training. Miss Vincent sang well on the "Come Unto Him," and the rest of the work falling to her was acceptably sung. Mr. Davies still forces badly on his top tones. His voice stands it better than most voices would. He knows the music, and will always do his part in the oratorios well. Mr. Brown is a young singer. He has a splendid voice, and will succeed in that kind of singing. His tone is a little blatant now, but the size of the building scares most of the older singers. It is not to be wondered at that he made the mistake of overdoing for power. His was the best performance of the day, however. They all erred in word forming on the same side. Such a common error too. They all put a vowel in between the words when they should have been connected, as un-a-to, then-a-did, flesh-a-shall, it-a-takes. I can see no reason for this one most noticeable error in our country, as well as here. The use of the liaison, as in French, makes it so easy to handle, and the words are understood as well without the "stutter" of the other way of doing.

Choral singing is not good here. It seems they have neglected it. I am told that they have the best choirs in the north of England, about Sheffield and Leeds. The smaller cities usually do have better choir singing. They have not the many things to take singers away from rehearsals. We have many singing bodies in America that do the best work though, and some of them are in the large cities. I shall not try to find good choral singing here any more. ALBERT A. WHITE.

h h h

Christmas Carols in London

I have heard much about the carol singing in England at Christmas season. My mother was born in England, and has told me carols were sung at that time. She was very young when her family sailed for our "Land of the Free," however, and she could tell me little more than I have mentioned.

I am spending a Christmas season in London. To be sure, that does not entitle me to write on "Carol Singing in England," but I can tell of what I have heard here in London.

Most of the carolers I have seen are the usual street performers who make the rounds each week, so I presume the carols are being neglected by those who have done it in years past for "tradition's" sake. The regular street minstrel is very systematic. He runs on schedule, as it were. They never miss their time very far each week. I will not try to mention all I have heard of them, but I will try to tell of the ones who passed my door on Christmas Eve.

The caroling began more than a week before Christmas, and they perform them on all manner of instruments, as well as sing them. True, they are not carols unless sung, but that makes no difference to the modern seeker after the penny.

On the night mentioned I found a small boy on the doorstep before dark. He had a fiddle about his own size. I could not tell what he was trying to play, so I asked him. He said he was playing carols. I met more of them on the way to supper. On returning I found an old man who has been confining himself to "national airs" puffing carols from his old flute. A flute makes little impression on London atmosphere. I did not hear a penny jingle onto the pavement, so he soon moved on. His place was taken by a young man with a cornet and a whale-bone lipe. I am sure the cornet was one of the old E flat brand. He seemed to make each succeeding note a little sharper than the rest. They sing all of the verses of every song here and so they play as many verses as they sing.

Before my ears were adjusted to anything but the paper-splitting tones of that cornet, an old man with a guitar steamed in. The man is very old, and his voice not new, so I got some rest from noise at least. Another old chap followed this one. He plays the first baritone horn ever used in England, I am sure. He is not due until 11 o'clock on Saturday. He always plays from music, and as it was very dark by this time, he had to stand near one of the dimmed street lamps. There is one near my door. I do not know how many or which of the old tunes he played. They all sound alike when he has the floor. Each tone as it was "expelled" would split and come out in pieces, and his time reminded me of a big black bass well hooked and growing tired. He was not so bad as if he had been a little better, however. After about a half hour of him, two pennies fell to the street, and he moved up another notch.

They have great sense of honor, these carol crews. One will not begin until the last one is at least fifty yards away.

The vacancy was filled by a man with an accordion. He was not so bad as some of the rest. He would go to the doors and knock for his penny. He could not knock and play at the same time.

Then came a band of three. An old woman and two small children, a boy and a girl. The boy played the fiddle, and the other two sang, the little girl just behind the old woman, I presume so that we would know there were two people singing.

Our stentorian basso was next to appear.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
ORCHESTRA BLDG.
CHICAGO

W. OTTO MIESSNER

Following is some recent newspaper comment on the work of W. Otto Miessner, composer, and director of the School of Music in the Milwaukee State Normal:

In the case of Mr. Miessner's symphonic "Festival Overture" the writer had had the pleasure of reading the score at Cincinnati, later had heard the rehearsals, and finally the public performance and it must be recorded that in his judgment it is one of the finest pieces of orchestral writing any American has done. It is a beautiful work with big broad themes, finely conceived as to rhythmic basis and beautifully worked out from the standpoint of composition and counterpoint. It was as it deserved, a veritable triumph, and Mr. Miessner was recalled a dozen times.—Oscar Hatch Hawley, in New York Musical Courier.

A feature of the festival is the presence of an Indiana musician, W. Otto Miessner, who is both singer and composer, and has just returned from a period of musical study abroad. A group of his songs entitled "Love Lyrics," sung by Mrs. North, proved to be songs of musical worth of the modern character, expressive of the text, and the accompaniments are rich and well harmonized, though of more than usual difficulty. It was interesting to hear the songs and their accompaniments played by the composer.—Indianapolis News.

When Milwaukee finally is placed on the musical map, it will be indebted largely to W. Otto Miessner, who made his debut as a composer through the Auditorium Symphony Orchestra Sunday afternoon with "A Festival Overture."

To him who hunts for true American music, here is a work which is a strong contestant for distinction. The composer makes no attempt to stamp it American by any resorts to negro strains or Indian tomtoms on which others with the same ambition have so freely relied. Instead, he symbolizes the one thing so symbolical of American life—its industrialism. The hum of activity is heard throughout the overture. The men enjoy their labor and sing at their tasks. Presently a holiday is announced, the workers rejoice at their liberty and burst into rhythm until with true American patriotism they close the day with a grand chorus of the "Star Spangled Banner," which brought the audience to its feet and precipitated such applause that Director H. A. Zeitz was compelled to repeat the last movement.

The orchestra fell into the spirit of the overture and gave it in such a manner as to elicit unstinted praise from the composer, who was present. This was the first time in the history of the orchestra that the audience included the composer of one of the works on the program.—The Milwaukee Journal.

Besides the "Art Song Cycles" for children (already reviewed in Music News), he has written many other things, among his larger works being the "Love Lyrics" Cycle and the two cantatas, "Queen of May" and "Christus."—Music News.

Mr. Miessner sang a group of songs Thursday afternoon—"Faith in Spring," "Death and the Maiden," Schumann's "Dedication" and Weingartner's "Love Festival." Mr. Miessner sings well and his work in the "Creation" in the evening was superb.

His repertoire has previously consisted of "Off to Philadelphia" and "Hearts of Oak," but he knows carols, he does.

I cannot describe all of it, though, nor do I think anyone else could, at least not in polite society. We had more carols, five, mouth-harp, clarinet, and so on. I must not dwell on the dark side of it all of the time though. An old fellow with a melodeon under his arm sat down on his camp stool and sang remarkably well. He has a big, rich baritone voice, and he uses it better than many of the present-day concert singers of London. I found him a very interesting old chap. He has had a stage career. A band of six or eight brass pieces played the old hymns well too.

I retired while the merry time was still at full swing, and managed to fall asleep to the "strains" of "O Come Let Us Adore Him," sung by several people, about 1 a. m. I don't know what happened after that.

Now I try to be philosophical at all times. I have always said that where there is heart there is art. If any of my old friends see this they will likely remind me of it when we meet next. I will have them remember that I did not include stomach in the saying.

Concerning carols? Well, perhaps it was the old tale about "A quail a day for thirty days" that did the damage. Our friend George Ade once said that "The most delicate of perfumery does not give the same effect when applied with a garden hose." I think I can "draw the veil" and remember the man and his little organ, and the brass band.

ALBERT A. WHITE.

DRESDEN, GERMANY

Despite the war there has been no abatement of interest in matters musical in the Saxon capital. Operatic performances continue in the Royal operahouse and a number of concerts and recitals have occurred. Willy Burmester was one of the first to offer his services for the sufferers of the war. His concerts took place in the Royal opera house and he was, in the Mendelssohn concerts, accompanied by the Royal orchestra, which made the performance quite a memorable occurrence, for Burmester never played better, and he surely never was better accompanied. The famous violinist at present has attained a finish of technical and spiritual perfection, that should be termed supreme. On the occasion the orchestra brought out a novelty for Dresden, Armas Jarnefelt's "Kleins praludium" which under the lead of our new, gifted conductor, Fritz Reiner, so strongly took with the audience that it had to be repeated at once. It is a fascinating composition in the filigree style, which will prove a success for any orchestra, capable of producing shades and pianissimo effects. The production of the orchestra was a virtuoso performance of first order. As for Burmester he further contributed a number of interesting selections, new and old music, in his old setting. For January 20 he will give another recital with the assistance of Emerich Kries, with whom he will play sonatas by Brahms and other composers, also a Paganini selection and several miniatures.

The last symphony concert on January 7 by the Royal orchestra was conducted by Richard Strauss as a "guesting" leader. He brought out Mozart's C major (Jupiter) symphony with exquisite care in the true Mozart style, also Beethoven's "Egmont" which did not, however, meet expectations, also his own "Don Quixote" diction and in honor of von Schuch's memory "Death and Apotheosis," needless to say to great perfection in every detail.

Among brilliant pianists we heard Teresa Carreno, who this time excelled in her smaller selections by Schumann ("Bird as Prophet") Chopin and others. Dr. Ludwig Wullner achieved a colossal success both as a reciter and a singer. He too will be heard again this month.

Lehmann and Flesch

Lilli Lehmann and Carl Flesch were the soloists of the first Philharmonic concert. Lilli Lehmann's interpretation is, of course, as great as ever, but her voice is miserably declining. Carl Flesch swept everything before him by his model interpretation of Beethoven's unique concerto which he did full justice to, and even more than that, he played it in an inspired way making it stand out as a revelation.

Laura Rappoldi-Kahrer distinguished herself as an interpreter of some less known Henselt compositions. She also played Liszt exquisitely.

A young Hungarian violinist, Emil Tchnanyi, introduced himself favorably as an artist of genuine musicianly qualities exquisitely equipped both technically and spiritually. His performance of Tartini's "Trill" was his best effort as long as he also achieved full recognition as an interpreter of a Busoni Sonata for violin and piano. He had the assistance of our new, excellent conductor at the court opera—a worthy successor to the late von Schuch—Fritz Reiner, who made Busoni's work stand out in a way that was scarcely anticipated. Reiner appeared as its re-creator infusing it with soul and spiritual content. This young musician is Dresden's gain. He is full of idealism, artistic ardor and physical magnetism and power, shunning no labor to attain a full success for what he attempts to introduce to the public. He is an artistic personality of individual strength. Reiner has already reworked several operas. "The Freischuetz," "Carmen," some Mozart operas, and he also distinguished himself as a leader of the Royal Symphony concerts. In one of these Emil Sauer was the soloist. In the next one several novelties will be brought out, about which more in my next.

A. INGMAN.

1915, Dresden, Franklinstrasse 20, January 11.

Beck—Miss Alma Beck, contralto, will appear as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on March 7.

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

Lambert Murphy Recital
Oratorio
Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfsohn Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

SIG. FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwald Avenue - - - - CHICAGO

80.5 25.000K
MUN
EIGHTH ARTICLE—THE ARTIST AND HIS ART.

TEN CENTS A COPY
TWO DOLLARS A YEAR

CHICAGO, AMERICA

FEBRUARY 19, 1915

PHILIP SPOONER

TENOR

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President
42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians

by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:
"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 524 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 19, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid.....$2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth Avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George W. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodls
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schubert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrass 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance
Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers

Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free

Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher

Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595

Residence Congress Hotel

Vol. 7.

Chicago, February 19, 1915

No. 8

Editorial

MR. BURNHAM'S PICTURE

The very handsome picture of Thuel Burnham used on our cover page last week was made from a photo taken by Gerschel in Paris and is one of the latest of the pianist.

—###—

ANOTHER OPENING

On April 3 it is planned to hold an examination at various points in Illinois to provide an eligible list for use in filling the position of director of music at the Illinois School for the Blind at Jacksonville, Ill.

The salary of the position ranges from $100 to $150 a month, with board and lodging in addition at the institution. The examination, which will be open to residents of Illinois over twenty-five years of age, will inquire into the training, experience and general ability of the applicant to supervise the entire music department of the school, directing teachers of classes in voice, piano, organ, violin and other lines of musical study.

Applicants should have thorough knowledge of modern methods of teaching music, with particular reference to work with blind children.

Application blanks may be secured by addressing the State Civil Service Commission, Springfield, Ill.

—###—

A LESSON FROM TIRES

An advertisement of Goodrich tires printed in the daily papers last week contains food for thought in the offices of several Chicago music schools.

This advertisement stated that an iron-clad, gold standard price list had been adopted for the Goodrich tires, in consequence of a policy pursued by most of the other manufacturers whereby "price lists were printed up for the sole purpose of being discounted down by the retailer."

The advertisement went on to show that a standard price was better for all concerned.

Many Chicago schools of music in the past have printed extravagant prices for lessons and have systematically cut these prices when talking to prospective students, using the "free" bait to attract the

Do not consider it wasted time to submit yourself to any influence which may bring upon you any noble feeling.

—Ruskin

attention of the pupil, and the "partial scholarship" plan to hold him.

Music News figured a long time ago just how this matter works out, to the amusement of the public and the intense disgust of at least one school.

Supposing a teacher is advertised as worth $3 an hour and that he be assigned by the management twenty pupils at that price and twenty at "half rates," as well as one on a "free scholarship."

Any school child can cast up an average and tell you in a few moments that the teacher is worth just $2.19 (and a fraction) per hour.

If that is all he is worth, the pupil who pays $3 is cheated and the one who is assigned a "free scholarship" does not get so very much after all.

—###—

TOO MUCH LIKE A GOLD BRICK

The National Federation of Musical Clubs has invited all the young musicians of America to enter the competition for place on the programs at Los Angeles next summer.

To do this they must first—each one—forward one dollar as membership fee in the Students' Department of the Federation.

It is very easy to guess that through this means alone the national treasury will be enriched many thousands of dollars, all of which will come out of the pockets of students, the vast majority of whom cannot afford it.

Then, those students who win in the state contests will go to Los Angeles "at their own expense" and play before the meeting there, their reward to be "the opportunity to obtain engagements from the 309 federated clubs, whose delegates will go to the convention with instructions to engage from these winners, if satisfactory, the artists for their American day programs the next year."

Undoubtedly the framers of this plan think it will work out and unquestionably they desire it to do so, but in our opinion, the whole result will be simply this:

The delegates will, entirely as usual, if they happen to like any of the successful contestants, offer them engagements at the lowest possible figures on the ground that they are "young and unknown." If these engagements are accepted it will mean, probably, a big loss on the whole transaction to each one who pays out good money to go to Los Angeles.

On the other hand, if the young artists hold out for a good price for the "American concerts," they will be politely discarded in favor of artists already known whose agents will be on the ground ready to offer active competition to the newly risen stars. Also, while each club will probably give, as requested, an "American Day" next year, it is also morally certain that each one of them will pay some foreign artist the biggest fee of the season, and all of them will expect, as heretofore, to get the young Americans at ridiculously low prices.

If the Federation really wants to aid the artist students of America they must offer a better plan than this.

An out-and-out cash prize should be the first emolument for the winners in the state contests and this should be supplemented by positive engagements with the various clubs, MADE PRIOR TO THE PAYING OUT OF MONEY FOR THE CALIFORNIA TRIP, with its attendant "honor" of appearing on the Federated Clubs' programs—for nothing.

—###—

WORTH WHILE EFFORT

Often, at Fullerton Hall on Sunday evenings, this writer has watched the audience instead of the stage in an effort to analyze the thoughts of the immense throngs which gather there to hear the "Opera Evenings" presented by Miss Henriette Weber. Invariably, and no matter what may be the opera, there is enjoyment written plainly on every face and not for a moment could it be doubted that great educational good is being accomplished every week.

In conversation with Miss Weber recently she was asked for some impressions as to what the work has really accomplished. "So much has resulted," said she, "that it is very difficult to tell you even a small part; for instance, again and again I am stopped in concert halls and on the street by people who recognize me as the lecturer at Fullerton Hall and am told of their keen delight in what I am doing. One solid business man, perhaps fifty years old, stopped me just yesterday and said, 'I want to thank you, Miss Weber, for the intense pleasure you have given me on Sunday evenings; until I had learned better from your lectures I never knew that a tune really meant anything.'"

At one of the prominent banks in Chicago there are employed thirty girls. One of these some months ago happened to go to Fullerton Hall one Sunday evening and was so impressed and pleased with what she heard that she told the others with the result that by twos and threes they all began going and finally it has become such a part of their life that a Tuesday Morning Club has been formed and, for one hour each week, with the permission of their employers, these girls study opera with the aid of such books and lectures as may be obtained on the subject.

A music function which can show results of this nature is well worth while and congratulations are due those back of the venture as well as to Miss Weber who has so beautifully worked out her original idea.

—###—

CONCERT HALLS IN CHICAGO

The Auditorium was never designed for anything less than exceptional events—orchestra, chorus, opera, etc. Solo effort there, unless it be of the most impressive proportions, falls flat usually, especially in all parts of the house other than the first floor.

Orchestra Hall is the worst built and arranged place possible to imagine. Besides, it also is too big and too expensive for recitals.

Thus, for several years Chicago has been without a really suitable hall for recitals and small chorus affairs, and has had to use the theaters, always unsatisfactory, for the purpose.

The Fine Arts Theater was, for a time, the accepted place, but it has been so much used for moving pictures and its price is so prohibitive that it is no longer considered altogether desirable, besides which it is seldom available.

Of course, there are a score of small halls which do very well for the smaller events of the various colleges, but there has been a crying need for something bigger and better.

Thurber Hall, in the Fine Arts Building, has proven to be eminently delightful for small events and doubtless it will continue to hold that place, for it is neat, attractive and of easy access.

Central Music Hall, just now coming into the field, has, however, a very large place to fill, for, seating as it does 700 people, it is very nearly the ideal size for most recitals and is quite big enough for most choral events. Succeeding the ill-fated New Theater—Whitney—Joe Howard—Germania (and several other names), it now emerges, newly refurbished and placed in splendid managerial hands, as Central Music Hall, a name dear to all old-time concert-goers and one which will speedily grow to stand for much also with the newer generation.

—###—

A MUSICAL STORY

(Told by Mr. Kennard Barradell.)

A young woman who had never been in the country, on her first visit there saw a cow. "What is that?" she enquired of her escort. "A cow," he replied. "And what are those things in front?" was the next question. "Why, those are horns," was the answer. Just then the cow emitted a gentle "Moo-o-o." "Oh, listen!" said the girl. "She is playing on them. But, please tell me which horn she blew on that time."

—###—

PERHAPS THE PLAYING WAS MUDDY

The following is copied (with our own caption) from the "Voice of the People" in the Chicago Tribune:

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(Editor of The Tribune.)—Can you advise me when there is any likelihood of your having a musical critic for your paper? If Mr. Ronald Webster is not to suffer violence at the hands of the music loving people of this community it is just about time you put him on board a train some dark night and let what will happen. He commits the sin of sins against the Holy Ghost by calling Brhams "muddy"! MARY C. BIRD.

THE ORGANIST

By R. S. G. A.

I'm dowie and wae for the Sabbaths are sad noo

And weary the kirk-road by what it has been

And the soun' o' the bell ne'er mak's my hert glad noo

Sin' they worship the Lord wi' a pumpin' machine.

O sair did we plead at the deith o' Tam Lowry

They'd thole wi' the auld fowke wha held it a sin,

But the younkens were wud and they cared nae a cowry

They bocht them an organ and bigget it in.

They hadna a player but seekers cam' heapin And Sawbaths were tint in a graun' play-in' match.

And orra one sairly his worship was keepin' The lave had an eye to the wale o' the batch.

Ah brawly I min' whan we croodit the preaching

But sweer i' thae days wi' the younkens to come

Noo gie them their fill o' this blawin' and screechin'

The kirk 'll be techt as the heid o' a drum.

The feck o' the men were for wee Robin Perritt,

A donee, canny chiel and a son o' the manse,

He's a wee auld and crabbit and twice he's been mairret

But, wae's the puir body, he had nae a chance

For the lassies a' plumpit for Donald McEwen

As ilka one hopit to tak' him in tow—

A bonnie bit birkie aye smirkin' and booin'

Wi' a heid-fu' o' hair like a stack in a lowe.

There's nae peace ava noo for Donald's aye dirlin'

He's at it afore I can win to the laft, He vows that our herts are uplift to the skirlin'—

There's times, I jalouse that the creatur' is daft.

Oh I lo'ed the auld Psawls as they lilted them slowly,

But the gait that they're sung noo wud anything cow

And after the blessin' the silence seemed holy,
Now he gars us a' flee wi' that rowdy-
dow-dow.

Ilk ane has his nest that some ither will harry
And mine was the kirk wi' its sough o'
the past;
It's gane and there's nocht but the mind o't to carry
Whaur the deid are forgathered forgotten
at last;
Sair, sair is my hert noo my life's at the gloamin'
As a stranger I sit in the kirk o' my frien's.
But I dream o' the sang that I'll hear at my homein'
In the Land o' the Leal whaur they need nae machines.

— # # # —

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND"

If you appreciate nonsense, pure and simple, then go and see "Alice in Wonderland" at the Fine Arts Theater.

There are many kinds of nonsense, of course—that illustrated in "The Young Lady Across the Way," in the Daily News, and in many of the "funny pictures" in the Sunday supplements is one kind—and it is a deadly dull and intensely sickening kind to people of anything more than the ordinary intelligence.

But "Alice" is quite different, as everyone who has read the Carroll book knows (and that is everybody, of course), for it is nonsense of the most deliciously naive kind, nonsense tintured always with humor and filled to overflowing with poesy and fantasy.

To actually visualize this story on the stage would seem almost an impossibility, and yet, at the Fine Arts Theater it has been done so deftly that there are left no opportunities for carping criticisms, and he who views the work of the Players Producing Company there has no room in his heart for anything but gratitude for the charming entertainment.

The "Alice" of Vivian Tobin is clever and all the long list of eccentric characters is sketched deftly and worked out to wonderful finish. Particularly good were the "Gryphon," "Mad Hatter," "Duchess," "Cheshire Cat" and "Caterpillar."

The investiture provided at this theater is neat and exact. The color effects are fine and the lighting effective.

All the lines are well spoken and the action is at all times convincing. Special music has been provided by Eric DeLamarter and, while it is music of light caliber, it is always appropriate, always melodious and absolutely apropos.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

Eddy—A Music News visitor of Monday was Mr. Clarence Eddy, who had just returned from an unusually successful trip in the south and was leaving on Tuesday for California, where, in connection with some dates in Texas, he will remain nearly a month. On February 26 he will play at the dedication of the Illinois State Building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, there having been installed there a fine three-manual Hinners organ, manufactured at Pekin, Ill.

SARI AT THE ILLINOIS

Those Chicagoans who have been waiting for a genuine operetta—a legitimate successor of "The Merry Widow"—need wait no longer, but will find at the Illinois Theater exactly what they want.

Beauty of investiture, harmony of colorings in dress and appropriateness of scenic environment have been carefully conserved in the production and the general effect is one of extreme beauty.

The chorus is unusually attractive and well mannered, and the orchestra, under direction of Chevalier Oscar Spiresen, plays with great vitality and a true sensing of the sensuous rhythms of the music, much of which is of distinctly Gypsy flavor.

This music is by Emmerich Kalman and while rather light in import is nevertheless well written and in many instances it is of a lilt and flow which make it very easy to remember and which give it also the power to cling indefinitely to the susceptible mind.

The company is agreeable throughout in the matter of principals and in the case of Mizzi Hajos, who plays the part of "Sari," it is much more than that.

This part is unique in the annals of the comic opera stage, for the simple country girl (in this case distinctly Gypsy in type) not only assumes all the gaucheries and crudities of any other comic opera first act, but, in entire defiance of the usual custom of writing such entertainment, she retains them throughout the play. She is very ingenuous, nevertheless, and decidedly attractive while her sense of humor is strong and her ability to act and to dance is undoubtedly good.

The fact that she cannot sing is merely an incident and not a very important one at that, for the role would be a very distinctive one even if she did not try to sing at all.

Irene Pawloska has a much better voice but does not always use it to the best advantage. However, she made the biggest impression of any singer of the cast in her two or three big numbers. The men are about equally good; J. K. Murray, H. W. Marsh, Albert Hedges, Charles Meakins and John Squires each one doing vocally all that was necessary and each one also, holding up the dramatic side of his work effectively and well.

The story is not much in the line of dramatic continuity and yet it is strung upon a sufficiently taut thread to hold pleased attention, and each one of the parts has a distinct flavor if not wonderful strength.

To add, further, that this is a Savage Company and that everything about it is managed with the Savage suavity is quite the same thing as reiterating the statement made at first that the entire production is one of great merit and that it will doubtless give undisguised pleasure to capacity audiences throughout its tenure of the Illinois Theater.

C. E. W.

— # # # —

Bach-Mendelssohn—Tuesday, March 2, the Bach Choral Society, 100 voices, John W. Norton, conductor, assisted by Mable Corlew-Smith, soprano; Helen Bright-Bengel, contralto; Edith Ayers McCullough, mezzo-soprano; George Hamlin, tenor; Palmer Christian, organist, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, will give Bach's "Passion," "Bide with Us" and selections from "Seht Was Die Liebe Tut," Bach, and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise."

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, February 19

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Saturday, February 20

Columbia School, 2:30; pupils' concert. Kimball Hall, 2:30; American Conservatory concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, February 21

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Samaroff. Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Bauer-Casals. Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Allen Spencer. Fullerton Hall, 8; lecture-recital, "Tannhauser."

Monday, February 22

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Apollo Club.

Tuesday, February 23

Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, 8:15; "The Messiah."

Wednesday, February 24

Mandel Hall, 8:15; University Chorus.

Sunday, February 28

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Minneapolis Orchestra.

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Albert Spalding, violin recital.

Blackstone Theater, 3; Columbia School concert.

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Flonzalay Quartet.

— # # # —

CAROL ROBINSON

On March 5, Miss Robinson will give a piano recital at Fullerton Hall under auspices of the Society of American Musicians, assisted by William Preston Phillips, baritone. Miss Robinson will play the following numbers:

Fantasia and Fugue, G minor.....	Bach-Liszt
Intermezzo, Op. 118, No. 2.....	Brahms
Capriccio, Op. 76, No. 2.....	Brahms
Rhapsodie, Op. 11, No. 2.....	Dohnanyi
Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 1.....	Chopin
Valse Impromptu.....	Liszt
Widmung-Schumann.....	Liszt
Arabesque, Op. 31.....	Arne Oldberg
Valse.....	Carl M. Beecher
Prelude C sharp minor.....	Th. Otterstroem
Concert Etude, Op. 36.....	MacDowell

Tickets are free to all who will address William Beard, Fine Arts Building.

On Sunday afternoon, March 7, at Assembly Room, Fine Arts Building, Miss Robinson will give a sonata recital with Josephine Gerwing, violinist, the program to include the sonatas, Schuett D minor, Brahms A major and Richard Strauss E flat major.

— # # # —

Brock—Collins Brock will be the soloist at Memorial Church of Christ, on Oakwood boulevard, next Sunday morning. He will sing Mrs. A. H. Taylor's setting of the familiar hymn, "There's a Beautiful Land on High." Mr. Brock has sung this solo before many Sunday chautauqua audiences during his seasons with the Chicago Lyric Quartet, and it has proved to be a great favorite.

— # # # —

Columbia School—Saturday, February 20, at the Columbia School recital hall, Edna Swanson Ver Haar, contralto, and Arthur Oglesbee, pianist, with Mrs. Holt as accompanist, will give a joint recital at 8 p. m.

The Elderly Person

The Organist mopped his forehead persistently and yet the perspiration insisted upon renewing itself. His breath was in long pants. His usual neatness of appearance was mussed and his up-to-date manner decidedly lagging. He was excited, but badly used up at the same time. He gave out the general impression of having been considerably worsted in whatever he had encountered.

"What's the matter," said the Elderly Person consolingly. "You look like an automobile whose steering gear is out of order and which had been bumping into everything that came along and then met the inevitable. Were you a part of the old problem about an irresistible force meeting an immovable body? Tell me about it."

"There are seconds which seem hours, and minutes which drag on like days," said the Organist, tragically. "I've just been through something which has added years to my life. If I had more hair it would be grayer. It was like this. A nervous father engaged me to play at his daughter's wedding at high noon on Thursday, the nineteenth of the month. On Monday evening we had the customary rehearsal, which you know, uses up more time than ten weddings. We went through all the throes of trying out the tempos of the 'Lohengrin.' If you play it in double time, as it is written, only the experienced can march to it. Usually it results in playing it like a funeral march, because of those who must put one or other foot down on each beat in the measure. The 'Mendelssohn March' is just as bad. No one can march to it, but as it comes as a postlude after the ceremony, the groom is then master of ceremonies and he takes his own time to get out of the place, and that is apt to be a rapid gait. He is so glad that he's got his girl and that the fuss and feathers is over, that he fairly prances out and the others have to accept the new order of things. I'm always sort of glad to see him do it. It is a sort of assertion of masculine rights. Up to that time in the affair he has been a sort of necessary hanger on. Everything has centered about the bride, and her maids and matrons, and that wonderful entrance to the church. So it turns out that the wedding party practices the 'Lohengrin' with endless patience, and much discussion, and a lot of heavy standing around of the male persuasion, and then takes the Mendelssohn in a hit or miss sort of way. And really it does seem amusing to me every time we wrestle with these, that custom and fashion should dictate two un-marchable marches as the only ones that may be used on these state occasions where pomp and circumstance are of importance. No, I did not play, or have sung, 'O, Promise Me' just before the vows, although it does not seriously fret me as it does so many who protest against its too frequent use. It has just as funny a lack of fitness as do the marches, but despite these it is quietly forging into a permanent place in the marriage function. What always amuses me is the expressed desire of some one to be allowed to 'sit beside you in your eye.'

I generally play the 'Swan' music from 'Lohengrin' while the service goes on, but quite often I am asked to play some desired bit that has personal sentiment back of it. Once I was asked by the bride to use the 'Cujus Animam' from the Rossini 'Stabat Mater!' Her only reason for the desire was that 'she had always liked it.' The translation of the Latin text makes the first line read: 'From His bleeding side.' As she wrote her request, I could laugh all I wanted to at its unfitness, and if you are one of those who want to know how things turn out, I'll add that I didn't play it at the function."

"I enjoy your smiling countenance," interrupted the Elderly Person. "It is quite expansive in its color and illumination and restored equanimity. But haven't you gone somewhat afield? It was not to tell me the 'Cujus Animam' story that you started out, although it is a good one and you tell it well."

"How I do run on," answered the Organist comfortably. "But if I didn't digress, you would never have any new stories. I notice that you work them all in. To proceed, then, we practiced all the details, the bride promised to be on time and every one was full of the excited anticipation that follows a rehearsal. It's like being half married already. I went to my office and on my daily calendar pad I wrote on Wednesday, 'Don't forget the wedding tomorrow' and on Thursday I wrote 'Wedding at twelve' and felt at ease about remembering."

"Aha" said the Elderly Person, "I guess the sequel. Your forgettery was in good working order, and your wife was away. Today is Wednesday and the nineteenth and you failed to show up, and lost your fee as well as a slice of reputation."

The Organist groaned: "That's part of it. I just depended on the Thursday part of the date, and did not lay any heed to the nineteenth part. If I had told my wife the two dates, she would have gone to the calendar and corroborated them. This morning I had my beard barbered properly for the occasion, and had just come in from the shop, when the telephone rang furiously. There was something so ominous in it that I answered it myself. The voice asked excitedly if Mr. Organist was anywhere about. I answered with forced calmness that there I was. The voice grew heavy with tragedy and I recognized it as the clergyman's voice: "Are you going to play at the wedding this morning?" it said. "Tomorrow," I shouted. "Today. Now!" it answered. "Golly," I yelled, forgetting his reverence. "Are you coming?" said he. "Isn't it too late?" says I. "I'll hold 'em if you hurry," says he. "I'll make it quick," says I, and I dropped the receiver, put on my hat and coat in one breath and flew out of the office. I forgot the taxi-cab's ability to speed, in my haste, and tried the unfriendly street car. Therefore the expected happened. I was bridged by a boat two thousand feet long being pulled through the draw by a puffing old tug, and there were fifty street cars, more or less, and a million carts and teams and automobiles lined up waiting. At least it seemed as if these were the dimensions and figures.

"Slightly exaggerated," purred the Elderly Person, "but I suppose you finally got there."

"Yes, I did, and rushed into the church. Nobody down stairs. I had been seeing the funny side of it, in spite of my distress, and that miserable old song, 'There was I, awaiting at the church, when I found he'd left me in the lurch,' kept ringing in my ears all the time. Wonder is I didn't play it in the place where the other bride wanted 'Cujus Animam!' I found the groom and parson and best man in the vestry. 'Don't say anything to me,' I cried out, as I took two and three steps at a jump. When I opened my little door and stepped into the organ loft and faced the crowded church filled with people in gala costume, I realized the enormity! An audible smile went up. I heard it, but I had eyes for only one person—the bride's mother. She wasn't smiling. I had a sort of heart-sinking spell. I knew that two men, her husband and myself, were in for it. In less than half a minute I was ready, and looked up into my glass to see if the procession was. Then I got a double shock, first at the very negligible appearance of myself—I hadn't thought of wedding clothes when I left home in the morning. The second was the sight of the two bridesmaids standing in the doorway. They looked like statues, as if they had been in position all the time I was en route. I couldn't help it—I just had to laugh, it was so typical of the song's legend. They certainly looked as if they had been waiting, patiently, at the church."

"And," added the Elderly Person, "I suppose that you wrecked the music and spoiled everything."

"Not on your life. I never played better. There was ginger in the rhythms of those old marches that made the party keep step. Even the bride's father marched, but he looked hot and uncomfortable. He had reason to be. We had a session afterwards, in which he confessed that he felt that he might have said Thursday, but he knew it was the nineteenth, held to that in extenuation and he left it that way with me, and I left with my fee and a drooping spirit. The bride was very sweet and forgiving, and said that now that it was safely over, she would have an unusual incident to speak of in connection with her wedding. That I had supplied the original feature which all brides desired to incorporate into such events! But that papa would probably have what she spoke of as 'a time' with mama trying to explain how he got mixed on the one thing she trusted to him. But they were a fine young couple and I guess they'll live happily hereafter. But me—I shall never be the same man again."

"Let us hope not," said the Elderly Person.

THE ELDERLY PERSON.

———

Dobyns—Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns sang before the Calumet Club at Milwaukee on last Thursday, her numbers being "Zueignung" (Strauss), "Der Bekehrte" (Stange), "Der Lenz" (Hildach) and an English group. The president of the club has written to Mrs. Dobyn expressing very great satisfaction with the work, pronouncing it the best of the season.

Music in Chicago

ALFRED GOLDMAN IN RECITAL

Mr. Max I. Fischel, who has been unusually successful in presenting to the public pupils who afterwards went forward rapidly into professional life, introduced another of his proteges on Friday, February 5, at the Fine Arts Building. The young man is Alfred Goldman, and he brings to the front as his desirable traits a remarkably big tone and a technic that seems ready to grapple with serious things, a skill in brilliant moments and a mellow mood for the quieter effort.

ALFRED GOLDMAN

His large offering was the Bruch "D Minor Concerto," and his conception and development of its brooding character was, on the whole, to be commended. The work is not always grateful, the "Recitative," which Bruch seems over-fond of using, calling for the rather exceptional interpretative faculties which, somehow, belong to fuller maturity, but the adagio had loveliness and appeal in its tone and a fine legato to commend it, with many touches of feeling and taste, as the theme was used again and again.

The "Carmen" fantasie of Hubay added a certain color to the program and called for many of "the tricks of the trade," which Mr. Goldman seemed to have ready for use. The last group of small things was excellently done, with a fuller sense of repose than elsewhere shown and with continual richness of tone and taste in phrasing.

Assisting Mr. Goldman was a young pianist of good parts, Abe L. Shynman by name, who joined with Mr. Goldman in an enjoyable performance of the Brahms "A Major Sonata." Together they made much of its variety of mood and alternate light and shade. It is a lasting memorial of the sunshine in much of Brahms music. Mr. Shynman gave a further account of his abilities in a very poetic delivery of the not much used and therefore refreshing "C Minor Nocturne" of Chopin and a scintillant touch in a Mendelssohn "Etude."

Each player was the recipient of encores, and much enthusiasm was engendered during the evening. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

One of the most finished concerts ever given by the American Conservatory students' orchestra took place last Saturday at Kimball Hall. Under the direction of Herbert Butler, the young people played Schubert's unfinished "Symphony" and a "Suite" by Sandre in a way that delighted the audience which more than filled the house. Ruth Ray gave a splendid performance of the first movement of Tschaikowsky's "Violin Concerto" and Miss Olms as well as Miss Jacoby distinguished themselves by their fine work.

Advanced voice students of Madam Ragana Linne and piano students of Louise Robyn, both of the American Conservatory faculty, gave a recital at Kimball Hall Saturday afternoon, February 13.

Adolf Weidig will give his second lecture on the "Development of Chamber Music" before the students of the American Conservatory Saturday afternoon, February 20. The illustrations will include the Forellen Quintet of Schubert and other classic compositions.

Allen Spencer will give his annual piano recital at the Fine Arts Theater Sunday afternoon, February 21, with an illustrating program, which will contain novelties by such American composers as John A. Carpenter, Arthur Olaf Andersen and Norman O'Neill.

CHICAGO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The concerts of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, to be given in Orchestra Hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, will be the means of bringing to notice to Chicago music lovers for the first time Frederick Converse's symphonic poem "Ormadz."

The program will be as follows:

Overture to "The Bartered Bride".....	Smetana
Symphony, B flat major.....	Haydn
Symphonic Poem—"Ormadz".....	Converse
Overture—"Sappho".....	Goldmark
English Rhapsody—"Brigg Fair".....	Delius
"Midsummer Wake," a Swedish rhapsody.....	Alfen

Keller—On Monday, February 15, Mr. Walter Keller gave a lecture on "American Composers" before the Musical League at the home of Honorable Joseph Carman in Danville, Ill.

Derdiger—Mrs. Mae Meekin, a pupil of Mrs. Ella Jane Derdiger, sang at the Odd Fellows Lodge entertainment on February 9.

A CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

The Society for the Uplift of Chamber Music on the West Side presented another excellent program at their second concert, Sunday, February 7, at Stiles' Hall, the soloists being Miss Zdenka Cerny, 'cello; Miss Ella Kolar, contralto, and Mr. Charles Bednorz, piano. Again the promoters were complimented by a very large attendance, who showed great appreciation of the efforts of the society in this most interesting departure from the usual concert program routine.

The Cerny Trio, Messrs. Charles Bednorz, piano; George Hrusa, violin, and A. V. Cerny, 'cello, presented the magnificent Arensky "Piano Trio," D minor, Op. 32, with their usual sterling artistry; also a dainty, old-world "Pastel Minuet," by Paradis, and the very changeful, brilliantly-ending "Slavonic Dances," by Dvorak, as a rousing finale. A unique item, for three 'cellos and piano, David Popper's noble and transcendently beautiful "Requiem," was most impressively performed by A. V. Cerny, Zdenka Cerny, Janos Kmety and Jaroslav Kosatka, piano.

Miss Zdenka Cerny, the highly gifted and charming young 'cellist, has probably never played to such brilliant advantage as in her group of solo numbers, the exquisite "Le Cygne" (the swan), by Saint-Saens; Popper's fascinating "Arlequin" (masquerade scene), and the famous "Tarantella," for which she received an ovation and an exquisite basket of flowers. To the urgent recalls she gracefully responded with a piquant version of Van Goen's "Scherzo."

Miss Ella Kolar has a rich contralto voice, and gave the Saint-Saens aria very pleasingly, but appeared to her best advantage in her encore number, a delightful "Bohemian Song," by Chvala, worthy of being far more widely known.

Mr. Charles Bednorz gave a very poetical interpretation of Suk's "Love Song," one of the most aesthetically beautiful tone poems ever written for piano. A brilliant performance of Liszt's "Venezia e Napoli," from "Tarantella," was well done, technically and interpretatively and showing decisively his musicianly capacities and individuality of interpretation. The explanatory program notes, compiled and excellently presented by Dr. J. E. Salaba-Vojan, LL. D., are one of the most valuable features of these concerts.

The splendid accompaniments of Mr. A. V. Cerny were of the utmost assistance to the soloists, especially in the Popper "Tarantella," adding superb effect to his daughter's masterly performance of this ultra-brilliant composition. The Dvorak Quartet, Mme. Harriet M. Smulski, soprano; Miss Myrtle Greene, piano, and Mr. Herbert Butler, violin, will appear at the third concert Sunday, February 21, at 3 p. m.

AGNES BELDON.

Orchestra Hall—The Sunday Night Club presented patriotic music last Sunday evening, among the numbers being "The Star Spangled Banner," in the Buck arrangement, played by Katherine Howard Ward; "Beloved Columbia," sung by Mabel Sharp Herdien, and "Land of Home and Glory" (Elgar), given by John B. Miller and chorus.

P R A N K W
Van Dusen
PIANO-ORGAN
 American Conservatory
 Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
 4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
 Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
 65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
 Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary Steele
Hinman STEEL
TEACHER OF SINGING
 503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELL
 Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
 COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
 Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
 Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
 Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
 Carrie Scott, Director
 Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
 Address
 INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
 Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler
PIANIST Teaching Recitals
 Bush Temple Conservatory, Chicago
 Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

Silas Wright Mountz
 Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
 Lecture Song Recitals
 Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
 Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

AMATEUR CLUB CONCERT

The Amateur Musical Club's bi-monthly concerts at the assembly room of the Fine Arts Building remain, as usual, a glowing portion of the season's musical activities, and those fortunate enough to attend are always sure of hearing a delightful program rendered as only the members of this club are capable of presenting. The concert of Monday afternoon, February 15, was up to the usual high standard and was given by Miss Jessie King, Miss Lois Adler and Miss Josephine Large, pianists; Miss Anna C. Braun, contralto; Mrs. Morris S. Rosenwald, soprano; Miss Elisabeth Harting, violinist, with Miss Marion Lychenheim and Mrs. Edith Shaw Brown as accompanists.

Miss King opened the program with a group of three interesting and enjoyable numbers for piano, composed of "The Lark," Balakirew; "Valse," Op. 42, Chopin, and "Jardins sous la Pluie," Debussy, each of which possesses excellent material for the display of Miss King's attainments as a pianist. She has a fleet and solid technic very much at her beck and call and her ideas of interpretation are wholly pleasing and convincing. A gracious stage presence is also hers and adds much to the success which she achieves when and wherever she plays.

Miss Braun sang "Madchen kam vom Stelldichein," Sibelius; "Blackbird's Song," Cyril Scott; "Sheep and Lambs" and "Sing to Me, Sing," both by Homer. This completes an unusually fine group of songs which are well suited to the contralto voice of Miss Braun, who uses it to best advantage in the more dramatic portions of a group such as this. She at all times displays a definite idea as to musical values and there is likewise an assurance in her work which pleases and convinces.

Miss Harting was called on very short notice to take the place of Miss Ruth Breytspraak, who was ill and could not appear. The program suffered none, apparently, from the change. Miss Harting played "Wiegenlied," Reger; "Shon Rosmarin," Kreisler, and "Obertass," Wieniawski, in a most enjoyable and commendable manner. Mrs. Rosenwald proved to be a very fine singer and the audience was very enthusiastic over her singing of "The Star," Rogers; "Three," Aylward; "Oh, si les Fleurs Avaient des Yeux," Massenet, and "Summertime," Stephens.

The concert came to a brilliant close through the very finished performance of Alexis Hollaender's "Variations on a Theme by Schubert," played by Miss Adler and Miss Large, two pianists of high attainment and capable of presenting just such a work as this in the most musical and finished manner. They were entirely successful in the reading of this excellent composition and the audience showed in unstinted terms its approval of their contribution to the afternoon's program.

H. M. B.

Marie Edwards—Miss Theodosia Bird, an artist pupil of Marie Edwards, appeared as soloist at the Warren Avenue Congregational Church on Friday evening last. Miss Marian Allers, another artist pupil, appeared as soloist at the Nakama Club in Oak Park.

HAROLD BAUER

The Master Pianist Who Will Appear in Recital
 Sunday, February 21, at Orchestra Hall

Writes of Mason & Hamlin
 the - - -

MASON & HAMLIN CO.,
 Boston, Mass.
 Gentlemen:

It gives me keen pleasure to testify once more to the excellence of your pianos.

Since my first visit to this country, eight years ago, my admiration for these noble instruments has increased with each successive tour.

The instruments I have used this year not only represent the most perfect examples of the piano maker's art, but fulfill every imaginable requirement from the point of view of both pianist and audience, and are the most superbly beautiful instruments that I know.

(Signed) HAROLD BAUER.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS
 are for sale only at the warehouses of the

Cable Piano Company
 Wabash and Jackson Chicago

ALFRED CALZIN'S RECITAL

Tuesday evening, February 9, Mr. Alfred Calzin, director of the piano department of the Drake School of Music, gave a piano recital at the Y. W. C. A. hall. The lovers of good piano playing, many professionals and the friends of Mr. Calzin, were there, and it is perfectly safe to say they were not disappointed, unless it was because they couldn't gain admission. Mr. Calzin offered a feast of good things; in fact, he had prepared a program that people of ordinary ability should not attempt and expect to be as successful as he in giving it. Mr. Calzin has technic, temperament and a musicianship of high order, and he proved beyond doubt that he has a fine control of his powers. He opened the program with the Bach-Liszt "Variations," and played it with fine breadth and understanding. The Brahms "Intermezzo," Op. 117, No. 1, and "Rhapsodie," Op. 119, were fine examples of interpretative thought and variety of tonal color and quality that made them very effective. The "Humoresque," No. 1, Grieg, was given an excellent reading, as was the "Valse de Concert, Le Bal," Rubinstein. Mr. Calzin gave a very original and effective interpretation of Cyril Scott's "Danse Negre," Op. 54, No. 5, and the "Berceuse," Op. 11, No. 1, was exquisite in beauty of tone. The Liszt "Campanella" was used as a closing number and Mr. Calzin played it in such an effective manner that the merited and sincere applause did not cease until he granted an encore, which was the "Rhapsodie, No. 12," Liszt, which was given a masterly rendition. H. W. P.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CONCERT

The series of three popular classical concerts at the Fine Arts Theater on February 15, March 1 and March 15, was inaugurated most auspiciously on last Monday when a very large audience was in attendance and enthusiasm ruled the hour.

Mr. Hugo Kortschak, violin, and Mr. Walter Spry, piano, opened the program with a classically correct rendition of the Schubert "Rondo Brilliant," Op. 70, a number of much charm not heard recently but of a value to warrant its frequent resurrection.

It was played with much elegance of style and with fine tonal quality throughout.

Mr. Kortschak in the solo group heard by this writer was legato and musical to the limit in "Gartenmelodie" (Schumann) and in "Slavonic Dances," No. 2, (Dvorak), and "Hungarian Dance," No. 1 (Brahms-Joachim), again disclosed those brilliant technical qualities which have made his playing so much admired and which, coupled with his strongly temperamental gifts, rank him among the most satisfactory violinists of the day.

Mr. Spry, in his solo group, played again the lovely "Song without Words," by Saint-Saens, which is used by no one else, and in "To a Water Lily," by MacDowell, he was especially refined and effective.

WARREN PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone River Forest 4138-L

A Chopin "Mazurka" was strong in rhythmic appeal and the "Rigoletto" paraphrase by Liszt was again made to glitter through its popular phrases.

Miss Bettina Freeman sang a Wagner excerpt and short songs by Roze, Hue, Tosti and Cadman, only one of which was heard by this writer. C. E. W.

AMATEUR MUSICAL CLUB

George Hamlin, tenor, will give a recital (under the auspices of the Amateur Musical Club) in the Blackstone Theater on Monday afternoon, March 1, at 2:30 o'clock. This recital is open to the public and the following program will be given:

In Thee I Bear So Dear a Part.....	Haydn
An Eine Quelle.....
Liebhaber in Allen Gestalten.....	Schubert
Der Wanderer an den Mond.....
Der Knabe mit dem Wunderhorn.....	Schumann
Der Hidalgo.....	Schumann
Aria from "Le Roi d'Ys".....	Lalo
Two Little Songs—
Frage.....	Van Eyken
Ich und Du.....	Fleck
Hoffen und wieder verzagen.....	Strauss
Wie sollten wir geheim sie halten.....	Strauss
When I Bring to You Color'd Toys.....	Carpenter
The Glory of the Day Was in Her Face (new; manuscript).....	H. T. Burleigh
A Prayer (new; manuscript).....	H. T. Burleigh
Post im Walde.....	Weingartner
Deine Blumen (dedicated to Mr. Hamlin).....
	Mrs. Beach
The Crying of Water (written for and dedicated to Mr. Hamlin).....	Campbell-Tipton
The Bracelet (from the cycle "To Julia").....	Quilter
The Maiden Blush (from the cycle "To Julia").....	Quilter
The Night Piece (from the cycle "To Julia").....	Quilter
O Bimba, Bimbetta.....	Sibella

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Olga Samaroff, pianist, will give a recital at the Illinois Theater next Sunday afternoon, February 21, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Organ Fugue, in G minor.....	Bach-Samaroff
Gigue.....	Graun (1701-1759)
Bagatelle, in E flat.....	Beethoven
Giga.....	Padre Martini (1706-1784)
Turkish March, from "The Ruins of Athens".....	Beethoven

(Arranged by Rubinstein)

Sonata Eroica—Flos Regum Arthurus.....	MacDowell
Slow, with nobility. Fast. Passionately. Elf-like, as light and swift as possible. Tenderly, longingly and yet with passion. Fiercely. Very fast.

PART II

Theme and Variations.....	Ernest Schelling
Nocturne, D flat major.....	Chopin
Waltz, D flat major.....	Chopin
Polish Song (Bacchanale).....	Chopin-Liszt
En Bateau.....	Camille Zeckwer
Ride of the Valkyries.....	Wagner-Hutchinson

Albert Spalding, violinist, will give a recital at the Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, February 28, under the direction of F. Wight Neumann. The program is as follows:

Sonata in G.....	John Alden Carpenter
Larghetto
Allegro
Largo mistico
Presto giocoso
Andantino Quietoso.....	Cesar Franck
Hungarian Dance No. 7.....	Brahms-Joachim
Mazurek.....	Anton Dvorak
Concerto in B Minor.....	Saint-Saens
Allegro non troppo
Andantino quasi
Allegretto.
Molto.
Maestoso.
Allegro non troppo
Romance.....	Albert Spalding
Scherzo Giocoso.....	Albert Spalding
Nocturne, C flat.....	Chopin-Sarasate
La Campanella.....	Paganini-Spalding
Andre Benoist, accompanist

— — — — —

MELVIN MARTINSON AT INGLESIDE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Down on Seventy-sixth street the wide spaces abound, but a very attractive center of the life that cares for the best things is found in the substantial Methodist Church on Ingleside avenue. There is a cosy auditorium, comfortable seats, a good organ, and the interior parlor arrangement, which makes for social convenience and enjoyment. A group of cultured people filled the seats on the 9th inst., when the young men of the church brought Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Martinson to play violin and piano for them and Miss Matthys to read and recite some humorous interludes.

Mrs. Martinson played the accompaniments deftly and neatly, with a sympathy that gave them character without obtrusiveness. Mr. Martinson draws a full, round tone and plays easily, earnestly and surely. His work is guarded, careful, sane and substantial, and so honest of intention that it wins for him quick recognition and applause. On this occasion he used the Thais "Meditation," playing it with broad phrasing; a lovely, delicate "Slumber Song" of Drake; the Pierne "Serenade," and Wilhelm's decorations to Schubert's "Ave Maria." For encores he added the Bach "Air" and the Dvorak "Humoresque," if I recall it correctly; all done with commendable adequacy. ALBERT COTSWORTH.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANIST — TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management — HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing
81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR
Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST
Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE
Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Liebbling Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory Chicago

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO
27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANIST
Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach
Lectures, Recitals
4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler
CONCERTS — PUPILS
25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS
510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO
LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST
AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO
FINE ARTS BUILDING CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER Violinists
ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.

A.M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo. Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford M. Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN Helen Aze

Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.
SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS...730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC, PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
63rd Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

A CONCERT OF AMERICAN SONGS

At Chicago Commons on Friday evening, February 12—Lincoln's birthday—a patriotic concert was given where nothing but the well known American songs were sung and the audience was made up entirely of foreigners, mostly Italians and Poles. Portions of "The First Congregational Chorus" of Oak Park and "The Tabernacle Chorus" of Chicago, under the direction of Horace B. Humphrey, occupied the stage and led in the singing to which the audience was urgently requested to participate.

The concert was not intended as a display of finished singing to any great extent, yet nevertheless there was some extra fine singing offered by the chorus and soloists present, but the prime factor of the evening was an attempt to demonstrate the development of social singing of American songs by foreign-born citizens, which as far as we can learn has never been attempted in Chicago before on so large a scale. The experiment proved very successful and such events should become regular features of the activities in the foreign quarters of the city. Just such events as this is one of the best methods of constructive citizenship which can be worked out.

A more expectant, interested and eager to learn audience never assembled than that which the Commons auditorium held on Friday night. With Mr. Humphrey directing, this audience took part in the singing of such songs as "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," "Star Spangled Banner," "Home, Sweet Home," "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Old Folks at Home," as well as several more unfamiliar songs with spirit and enthusiasm.

Frederick W. Root was present and with two of his artist pupils, namely, A. Ray Carpenter and St. Clair Carter, led in the singing of such rousing and inspiring numbers as "Rally Round the Flag," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching," "The Vacant Chair" and "Marching Through Georgia," which were even more vigorously sung than those earlier in the evening, if such was possible. Mrs. Beatrice Hunter, soprano, and Mrs. Grace Cook Blackman, contralto, members of the Oak Park chorus, sang some obligato parts in various numbers in a beautiful style and the audience liked it immensely.

Mr. Charles E. Weeks, basso, with his talented wife as accompanist, were also present and offered the only thoroughly solo number of the evening, this being Sidney Homer's delightful "Banjo Song," which has become so popular and will no doubt live to be classed with American folk songs. Mr. Weeks possesses a rich voice of much power and smoothness and his interpretations are always intelligent and convincing so he made a great impression on this audience and they were not slow in showing their unstinted approval.

Two verses of "God of All Nations," the words of which are set to the music of the famous "Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore," was a great favorite with the audience; they sang it lustily and whole heartedly.

Mr. Graham Taylor spoke on "America for Peace," and William E. Barton on "Why the Twelfth of February," two messages which fitted into the order of things for the evening in fine style.

H. M. B.

SUNDAY EVENING CONCERTS FOR EVANSTON

The first of a series of Sunday evening concerts to be given in the Evanston Theater under the management of Miss Rachel Busey Kinsolving took place on Sunday evening, February 14, before a packed house. Seven members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra formed a small but well balanced orchestra and furnished the greater part of the program. Mable Corlew Smidt, soprano, was the special soloist for this opening concert. No better choice could have been made. Mrs. Smidt is fast taking a place as one of Chicago's most satisfactory concert artists and her singing on Sunday night pleased the Evanston audience immensely. Her voice was in great form, as were her interpretative powers and her charming and gracious stage presence was an added enjoyment. The soprano made two appearances during the evening and sang a group of three numbers each time, songs which were of varied character, very grateful to her excellent gifts and suitable to the taste of every person in the theater.

The orchestra offered the same variety of numbers played with all the beautiful tone quality, expression and finish for which the Symphony men are known. Many encores were given by both the orchestra and singer. While the music offered is of very high class, these concerts are given purely to satisfy the popular taste and the admission price is of that order.

Miss Kinsolving predicted that such a series of concerts would keep the people, especially the younger set, from coming into Chicago on Sunday evenings for entertainment and judging from the response of the public on this occasion her prediction proved true. In fact so successful was this first concert that an announcement was made from the stage that several additions will be made to the orchestra for the next concert and a change of soloist will come with each Sunday night.

H. M. B.

EDWARD CLARKE

Edward Clarke, baritone, of the American Conservatory of Music, will appear with Rachel Steinman Clarke, violinist, and Earl Victor Prah, pianist, before the Sorosis Club of Oak Park, Ill., on Monday, February 15th, and on Tuesday will give his recital on "Songs from Shakespeare" for the Woodlawn Woman's Club. This will be Mr. Clarke's third appearance before this club. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke have been filling a large number of engagements this season. Mr. Clarke has appeared either with Mrs. Clarke or in recital at the following places since September:

Streator, Ill.; Birchwood Club, Chicago; Arche Club, Chicago; Kimball Hall, Chicago; Ravenswood Club, Chicago; Mokence, Ill.; Mt. Morris, Ill.; Alma, Mich.; Delaware, Ohio; Woodlawn Presbyterian Church, Chicago; Elgin, Ill.; Goshen, Ill.; Naperville, Ill.; Kokomo, Ind.; Marion, Ind.; Springfield, Ill.; Bedford, Ind.; Tiffin, Ohio; Michigan City, Ind.; Wilmette, Ill.; Herrin, Ill.

The above list does not include the many musicales that the Clarks have given at private homes in and out of Chicago.

Murphy—Mrs. John Freemont Murphy sang with fine success for the Lois Dunning Arts Club on Thursday, February 11.

PUPILS OF THE CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE PLAYING THE TOY SYMPHONY, LOIS WATT, CONDUCTOR

CHICAGO PIANO COLLEGE VALENTINE PARTY

"You Have Our Heart" was printed on the heart-shaped, gold-arrow-pierced program used by the Chicago Piano College at their children's concert at Kimball Hall last Saturday morning.

Judging by the big crowd of youngsters and their happy assimilation of every item of the brief list of numbers, this college certainly has the heart of its pupils, and the work done on the stage, while out of the ordinary by far, was of an artistic nature, to reflect much credit on the school also.

Young Mr. Carlyle Walker contributed a 'cello solo and Mrs. Mary B. Hattendorf, a charming reader of children's stories, pleased everybody very much.

The "Toy Symphony," by Romberg, was given by a group of little girls dressed in white tissue paper gowns, plentifully besprinkled with red hearts, and Lois Watt, a thirteen-year-old conductor, showed skill and grace in her work.

Paul Trapier Gervais, a prestidigitator of about the same age, did some clever sleight-of-hand tricks and proved that he can excel in this line should he choose to carry it out to a logical conclusion.

A big crowd of children, with their parents, was present, and the hour was as joyful as it was unusual.

— — —

Durno—Miss Cecilia Bellaire, pupil and assistant of Jeannette Durno, presented her junior piano pupils in a recital at 707 Fine Arts Building on Sunday afternoon, February 14. Those who played were: Margaret Prest, Beatrice Olsen, Mary Harroun, Natalie Combs, Barbara Thorp, Grace McWilliams, Lucille Fesler, Edith Olsen, Harriet Thorp, Mildred Seifert, Jane Thorp and Marian Fesler.

BERTHA M. STEVENS' PIANO RECITAL

The Bertha M. Stevens Studio is noted for the excellence and the sincerity of the piano teaching done there and Miss Stevens always plans it so that the public recitals of the institution are full of variety and interest. It is evident, always, that accuracy is required, even from the smaller pupils and that finish and style are infused into the playing as rapidly and as thoroughly as possible.

One feature on which stress may always be laid is the fact that the pedaling of the Stevens pupils is always of excellent quality and another thing which is a joy in each of these concerts is the fact that the pupils have been taught good stage manners—few indeed are the recitals where these items are better taken care of.

On last Thursday evening many pupils appeared, ranging from small children to advanced pupils, and the program was closed by Gertrude M. Freter, an assistant to Miss Stevens, who played three Chopin "Preludes" and the Moszkowski "Caprice Espagnole" very well indeed.

Among the pupils of Miss Freter who appeared were Margaret Osborne, Irene Kittrick, Laura Henschel, Carl Josef, and Rose Brieske.

The Stevens pupils appearing were Frances Augsburg, Mae Hathaway, Byron Spaulding, Joseph Hellmuth, Daphne Spencer, Leland Smith, Adelaide Mahreck, Phyllis Mahreck, Leona Witte, Gabrielle Witte, Clara Keen, Sophia Karlinski, Cecilia Mallek, and Gertrude M. Freter.

The program was well balanced and filled with effective contrast and climax.

— — —

Longman—Marie White Longman appeared in recital before the Gary (Ind.) Musical Club last week.

Iva Bigelow WeaverSOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL,
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR
WESTERN CONSERVATORY
Voice Teacher Coaching
PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST
COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO
Phone Austin 10273

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS
5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

CONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

JEANNE BOYD

It is always delightful to get acquainted with the work of a new American composer and particularly fine is it if she will herself submit her works to you and give them the benefit of her sympathetic and authentic interpretations.

One day last week Miss Jeanne M. Boyd played three of her songs for me and Mr. Arthur F. Platz sang them, the result being one of pure delight.

Mr. Platz has a fine voice and delightfully sufficient musicianship, while Miss Boyd plays the piano with intelligence and sympathy. But it was neither of these factors which made the half hour so particularly delightful; it was the songs themselves.

JEANNE M. BOYD

The first one is entitled "Wind from the South" to text from an unknown writer and dedicated to Mr. Platz.

The words are hauntingly beautiful and Miss Boyd has enveloped them in a veil of mystery and beauty.

The melody is absolutely fitted to the words and the accompaniment is a wonderful play of short arpeggios—suggesting irresistibly a fountain in the sunlight.

The other two songs are "In Italy" and "La Tarentella" to text by Scharmel Iris. This young writer gave his consent to the use of his words only on condition that the music should be submitted to him before it was given to the public. After hearing it he said: "They are both fine and both thoroughly fit. The 'In Italy' will be liked by Americans very much, but 'La Tarentella' will be adored by the Italians also."

"In Italy" is full of characteristic color and glows with inspiration, and in "La Tarentella" Miss Boyd has definitely caught the difficult rhythm of the dance and has made it serve her purposes to a nicety.

There is no question but that these songs will attain great success, and equally certain is it that whatever Miss Boyd writes will glow with intelligence and charm.

This young writer is a native of Illinois and has never studied abroad. Her present teacher is Edgar Brazelton in the Lyceum Arts Conservatory.

On February 23 Mr. Platz will sing the three Boyd songs at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium and again at Wilmette on March 5 to the accompaniment of the composer.

Maude Fenlon Bollman is also singing these songs and will give them at her Chicago recital on March 12 at which time she will also present a group of children's songs called a "Child's World," which was dedicated to her by Miss Boyd.

C. E. W.

FRANCIS A. MACKAY

The Granville Avenue Methodist Church choir under the Mackay direction is preparing Schaeffer's cantata, "The Risen King" to be given in the near future. Mr. Mackay, organist and director of the choir at the Church of the Redeemer, will present Gaul's "Passion" and Stainer's "Crucifixion" every Sunday evening during Lent. The combined choirs of the Redeemer Church and the Trinity Church, Irving Hancock, organist and director, will give Stainer's "Crucifixion." The combined choirs of the Redeemer Church gave a program of Russian music February 14 at 7:30 p. m.

University of Chicago "Glee Club" under the direction of Mr. Francis A. Mackay, will render the following program on February 21 at the South Shore Country Club.

Cavalier Song	Werrenrath
Night Witchery	Storch
Rockin' in the Wind	Neidlinger
Hail Smiling Morn.....	Sofforth
The Difference	West
Winter Song	Bullard
Mother o' Mine	Neidlinger
Alexander	Brewer
A Hong Kong Romance.....	Hadley
Perfect Day	Bond
Long Day Closes	Sullivan

The Glee Club will give a concert at Northwestern University March 6.

DOELLING-LUND RECITAL

A joint recital will be given by Mae Doelling, pianist, and Rene S. Lund, baritone, at the Fine Arts Theater on Sunday afternoon, March 7, at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Doelling will play compositions by Brahms, Rameau, MacDowell, Scarlatti, Chopin, Sapellnikoff, Rachmaninoff and Schulz-Evler. Mr. Lund will sing Swedish, German and French songs, and two groups of songs by American composers.

Miss Alice R. Deal will play accompaniments for Mr. Lund.

White-Longman—Miss Kathryn Ready, soprano, pupil of Marie White-Longman, has been engaged as soloist at the Sixth Presbyterian Church.

CIVIC MUSIC CONCERT

The last of the civic music concerts at Eckhart Park was given Sunday, February 14, by the Chicago Teachers' Chorus, under the direction of O. E. Robinson. The chorus was assisted by Clarence Loomis, pianist; Kathleen Grant, accompanist; Elizabeth Hughes, violin; Mary Hughes, violin; Margaret Hughes, pianist; Laura Earnest, May James and Diana Hilfer, vocalists. The purpose of the teachers' chorus has been commented upon in these columns in the past and it is well to say they are doing many things they started out to do. Sincerity of purpose was very evident in their singing on this occasion. They give a good variety of numbers and did some very commendable singing under Mr. Robinson's direction. "The Persian Serenade," Matthews; "'Tis Spring," Weidig, and "Nymphs and Fauns," Bemberg, were given with a fine spirit and especially well liked and received. Miss Grant gave the Schumann intermezzo in D minor, Op. 4, and gained much applause for her efforts. Miss James has a voice of good quality and she gave of her best in her solo number, "Ave Maria," Bach-Gounod. Miss Earnest displayed much talent and a good voice in the Saint-Saens number. Miss Hilfer gave much pleasure in the Brahms "Vergebliches Staendchen." Mr. Loomis, pianist, who recently returned from Europe, displayed much pianistic ability. His sense of rhythm is good and he gave an excellent rendition of Chopin's scherzo in B flat minor. He should go far in his field of work. The Misses Hughes were heard with much pleasure in numbers by Papini and Elgar.

H. W. P.

BACH CHORAL SOCIETY

At the concert by the Bach Choral Society at Orchestra Hall on March 2, two numbers will be given that have never been sung previously in Chicago. George Hamlin will sing the tenor aria from "Ich bin ein Guter Hirt," accompanied by the strings of the orchestra and cembalo. This selection, "Seht was die liebe tut" is one of the most exquisite numbers by Bach, and Mr. Hamlin is undoubtedly pre-eminent in this country as a Bach interpreter.

Selections from the Bach "Passion according to St. John" will also be sung for the first time. This work is the most lyric of the three "Passions" by Bach, and is truly a beautiful exposition of Bach's marvelous ability as a choral writer.

Columbia School of Music—Clarence B. Johnson, barytone, and Miss Anna Chindlund, pianist, of the Columbia School of Music, were two who appeared on a benefit program at Bethel Mission, Edgewater, February 11, 1915. Miss Chindlund is a member of the faculty of the Columbia School of Music, and Mr. Johnson is a pupil of George Nelson Holt and is soloist of the Christian Science Church of Highland Park, Ill. Others appearing on the program were Mrs. Westerlund, soprano; Edris Miller, reader, and Miss Westerlund, violinist.

FANNIE BLOOMFIELD ZEISLER Steinway Pianos Used
FOR TERMS AND DATES, ADDRESS
ALINE B. STORY
5749 WOODLAWN AV. CHICAGO

AT FULLERTON HALL

Not since the series at Fullerton Hall began has there been more enthusiasm than on last Sunday night when several hundred people were turned away after the tickets were all sold and Miss Henriette Weber spoke to an absolute capacity house.

This artist is so fine as a raconteur that one thinks of her first in that connection, and then, when she plays the piano it seems that after all that is her true metier.

But these two gifts, important and prominent as they are, do not exhaust the list of her attainments by any means, for she is a musician through and through.

After hearing many of her evenings, the wonder as to where she finds all the instrumental arrangements of the opera numbers had grown so strong that the question was put to her direct.

"I write them myself," said Miss Weber, "and it certainly takes many hours each week to do it."

When a prominent member of the Symphony Orchestra who plays with Miss Weber on Sunday nights first accepted the engagement, he was somewhat dubious as to results of playing "arrangements" of opera numbers, but when he saw the first score submitted to him by Miss Weber he said, "Why, this is not the work of a pianist; it is the work of a musician."

Miss Weber, on Sunday, gave an unusually interesting talk. In speaking of Bizet and his "Carmen," she remarked particularly on the Spanish color so freely in evidence. "This use of local color," said she, "is fatal in the hands of mediocrity, but in the hands of genius it brings superb effects."

The soloists were exceptionally attractive. Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade repeated her magnificent singing of the principal "Carmen" arias and again demonstrated remarkable dramatic ability as well as splendid voice.

Mr. Alfred Kanberg, called on three hours' notice to substitute for Mr. Brines, who was ill, acquitted himself admirably.

The duets with "Carmen" and "Michaela" were negotiated with much display of musicianship and great musical skill, while the "Flower Song" was an exposition of vocal art at once suave and convincing.

Miss Julie Manierre, who made so big a success in "The Juggler" on the preceding Sunday night, again proved her great ability and her fine power to please immensely in the big duet with tenor and again in the lovely solo for "Michaela" in the last act of the opera.

Her tones were very sweet and pure, her manipulation of breath and consequent musical phrase were admirable and her interpretative thought was, throughout, fine and strong.

Her stage presence is always good, but at this time she looked particularly well and seemed to realize to the utmost nicety the fragility and innocence of the soprano heroine of the Bizet work. C. E. W.

Clippinger—On Saturday, February 20, Mr. D. A. Clippinger will present Mrs. Jessie N. Baldwin and Mrs. George A. McGaw in a program of songs and duets, with Mrs. Charles Orchard at the piano, at his studio in Kimball Hall at 3 o'clock.

PALMER CHRISTIAN IN ORGAN RECITAL

Mr. Palmer Christian, on Sunday afternoon, at the Kenwood Evangelical Church, drew a splendid audience to his monthly organ recital and gave them a fine treat of classical and popular organ numbers.

The organ at this church is so unusually beautiful in tonal quality and has such a wide variety of effects that, with such a master on the bench as is Mr. Christian, there seems to be no end to the surprises which may be brought forth, and each program more and more solidifies the impression that Kenwood Church has been most fortunate in its organ and more than fortunate in having Mr. Christian to play it.

The program of Sunday opened with numbers by Rheinberger, Debussy, S. S. Wesley and Saint-Saens, which were not heard by this writer.

The "Fantasie and Fugue" (Bach) was played with positive adherence to the hard and fast lines of such composition, a "Capriccio" by Faulkes was gaiety personified, the Spinney "Berceuse" was delightful, introducing most deftly the chimes, and an "Overture" by Mendelssohn (written originally for brass band) was the very epitome of popularity.

All these were done by Mr. Christian in

EDWARD

WALKER

Concert—Oratorio—Recital

TENOR 1325 E. 64th St.

his usual splendid style, and the audience went away feeling that a rare treat had been experienced.

The singer of the afternoon was Mr. Herbert Miller, who gave first a very dreary work by Root, entitled "Love Never Faileth," with much excellence of enunciation, however, and "A New Heaven and a New Earth," from Gaul's "Holy City," a work which in itself is of surpassing beauty and which was sung with great finish at this time. Mr. Miller has much of the very best of the singer's art under such absolute control and sings with such intelligence, as well as beauty, that it is always, as at this time, a great pleasure to hear him. The accompaniment was a marvel of effectiveness, the "Holy, Holy" celestial chorus interlude being simulated by Mr. Christian at the organ in an altogether exceptional way. C. E. W.

ALEXANDER SEBALD

Tuesday evening, February 23, at the Auditorium Recital Hall Mr. Alexander Sebal, violinist, will give the following program. He will be assisted by Oscar Deis, pianist:

"La Follia" XIma Sonata (Op. Vta)..... Corelli-Thomson
Entrata—Ciaccona—Corrente—Epilogo
Mr. Deis at the piano
Adagio and Fuga, G minor (for violin alone)..... Bach
Piano—
Ballade, Op. 52..... Chopin
Mr. Deis
"Zigeunerweisen" Op. 20 {
"Jota Navarra" Op. 22 { Sarasate
"Jota de San Fermin" Op. 36 }

MR. LEMONT'S COMPOSITIONS

The Walter Spry Music School has attracted great attention to its Children's Department, very largely through the work of Mr. Cedric Wilmot Lemont, who is head of the department there and whose success is well established.

Mr. Lemont is also a composer of no small attainments, and it was therefore a most grateful opportunity which was provided by the school on last Friday evening, when he appeared in an entire program of his own works at the Literary Club rooms in the Fine Arts Building.

The program played was as follows:

FOR CHILDREN

Story Book Folk, Op. 7—
Old King Cole
Little Bo-Peep
Little Miss Moffet
Little Boy Blue
The Old Witch
Storiettes—
The Goblin
Lament for the Fairies
Tag
The Shepherd's Pipe
Chasing Butterflies
In Elfland
Cinderella

FOR INTERMEDIATE GRADES

Springtime Sketches, Op. 8—
A Roundelay
An April Shower
Shadow Pictures
Clotilde
La Debutante
In Springtime

FOR MORE MATURE PLAYERS

Dream Pictures, Op. 6—
Lotus Bloom
Serenade Mexicaine
At Eventide
The Nautch Girl
Valse Intermezzo
The Caress
Creole Sketches, Op. 15—
A Banjo Dance
A Creole Croon
Memories
On the Levee

At the intermission Mr. Walter Spry appeared for a moment and made some very nice remarks about the work of Mr. Lemont.

He said, quite truly, that, while Americans have great talent and have accomplished much in the line of developing playing artists, that in the compositions of the country there has been, very generally, a lack of those imaginative qualities which have found fuller development abroad.

He named this little developed quality as one of the characteristics of Mr. Lemont's work, and in this he was entirely within the bounds of truth, for certainly the works played by the composer were very generally of a quality to prove his own imaginative gifts and to arouse that faculty in the pupils who might study them.

In the easier numbers the well-known facility of the late W. C. E. Seeboeck was suggested and in the more advanced works, particularly the "Dream Pictures," Ethelbert Nevin was approximated in fantasy and style.

Mr. Lemont played the program sincerely and simply. He let the works stand for just what they could without any display of virtuosity or undue amount of temperament.

To this writer "The Roundelay" was the gem of the program, second choice falling to "An April Shower," "Serenade Mexicaine" and "Memories." C. E. W.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1913

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Preparation for Song Recital, 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Production Oratorio and Grand Opera.

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS
131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER
82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS
Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS
54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS
1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE
419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO
Studio, 621 Fine Arts Bldg. Res. 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ VOICE PIANO HARMONY

300 KIMBALL HALL.
Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Contra-
Concerts Oratorios Recitals
Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

STARRETT SCHOOL MUSICALE

Members of the Musical Faculty of the Starrett School for Girls, Mrs. Helen Ekin Starrett, president, at Forty-seventh street and Vincennes avenue, presented a very enjoyable program at Warwick Hall on Thursday evening, February 11, in honor of the graduating class of that institution. Jeannette Durno, Josephine Rogers and Mary Cameron, pianists; Alice Ione Cramer, soprano, and Ramon Girvin, violinist, were the musicians heard, and the audience, which was of goodly numbers and very appreciative, enjoyed the program from first to last.

Miss Durno and Mr. Girvin joined forces in a performance of Mozart's "Sonata" in C major, a work which demands adherence to the closest unity of rhythm, tonal flow and expression on the part of both musicians. These demands were met with unusual splendor by this pianist and violinist and one of the rare artistic parts of the program came in this opening number. Later in the evening these artists appeared in solo numbers. Mr. Girvin chose two fascinating numbers, the "Chant Negre" by A. Walter Kramer, and "Liebesfreud" by Kreisler for the display of his much admired art. He is a fine musician, handles his instrument with a master hand and there is deep feeling in the music which he offers. The Kreisler number was especially well played.

Miss Durno for her solo numbers played the "Scherzo" in E minor, Mendelssohn; "Reverie," R. Strauss, and "La Campanella," Liszt, three very enjoyable numbers and especially grateful to the brilliant attainments of this pianist. Her technic was superb, her interpretations inspirational and expressions beautiful. Miss Durno also contributed greatly to the success of the evening by furnishing the most sympathetic and artistic of accompaniments for Mr. Girvin and Miss Cramer.

Miss Cramer's beautiful soprano voice is being heard with much pleasure at numerous musical affairs this season and she added another success to her list on this occasion. She sang one of the heavy arias from Massenet's "Herodiade" in a brilliant and effective style and the audience showed its unstinted approval by enthusiastic applause. Miss Cramer was compelled to sing an encore which came in the form of Worrell's beautiful "The Song of the Chimes" which proved to be a rare gem of the evening. A group of songs, "Serenade," Strauss; "Way Down South," Homer, and "Ecstasy," Rummel, came later in the program and were charmingly sung by the soprano.

Miss Rogers, a pupil of Miss Durno, and a teacher of the school at this time, proved a very satisfactory pianist and played her group which included "Arabesque," Debussy; "The Little Shepherd," Debussy, and "Danse Negre," Cyril Scott, with brilliancy and effectiveness. She also was compelled to grant an encore.

Miss Cameron played a "Polonaise" by Blanehet, and "Rhapsody" by Dohnanyi in a manner which marked her as a very musicianly and satisfactory pianist. Her offerings were very enjoyable and the audience gave her an enthusiastic shower of applause.

The concert was a tribute to the abilities of the Starrett music faculty and gave proof positive that those seeking instruction at this school are receiving the very best.

H. M. B.

STULTS AND HAAKE PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

On Tuesday evening, February 9, Mr. Leslie Putnam, baritone, assisted by Miss Ruth Bowen Goodsmith, pianist, gave the fifth alumni recital at Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston.

A fair-sized and cordial audience was present, and an unusually interesting program was what they heard.

Mr. Putnam is a pupil of Walter Allen Stults and is a member of the class of 1914, as is Miss Goodsmith, who is a pupil of Charles J. Haake. The splendid delivery of a taxing program on Tuesday night was not only proof of the present high attainments of these two musicians, but a distinct credit to the two teachers represented and the name of Northwestern as well.

Mr. Putnam has at his command a rich baritone voice, which he uses intelligently; his interpretations are sincere and convincing, and his stage presence, which is quiet but very courteous, is a strong factor for his future success on the concert stage.

His opening number was "Where'er You Walk," by Handel, and brought forth his pure legato tone in fine style. A group of old and beautiful songs, which included "Vittoria mio core," Carissimi; "Caro mio ben," Giordani; "Love Me Not," Secchi, and "Meet Me by Moonlight," Wade, were sung in a commendable manner throughout, the singer's enunciation being especially good. "Who Is Sylvia," Schubert; "When thro' the Piazzetta" and "Row, Gently Row," both by Schumann, were wholly enjoyable and showed the voice of Mr. Putnam to better advantage than at any other time of the evening.

"Shepherd, See Thy Horse's Foaming Mane," Korhay; "The Barber of Thurin," Russell; "Night and the Curtains Drawn," Ferrata; "Widdecumbe Fair," Andrews, and "A Toast," Salter, formed a varied, interesting and enjoyable group with which to close the program. The baritone's renditions of the Russell and Andrews numbers were of a humorous vein and pleased the audience immensely. Mr. Putnam should go far in his chosen work.

Accompaniments were played in a very commendable manner by Miss Stults. She was entirely successful with her share of the program.

Miss Goodsmith came in for a good share of the honors of the evening through her playing of a "Gavotte" in A major, Gluck-Brahms; "Intermezzo," Brahms, and one of Mr. Oldberg's compositions. The pianist showed a decided amount of sincerity for her work, a well developed technical force, and good musicianship in her reading of these works. It was, however, in the "Third Suite," for two pianos, by Arensky, when she was assisted by her teacher, Mr. Haake, at the second piano, that she displayed her attainments to best advantage. The theme and its many variations were played brilliantly and with due expression, thereby bringing out the varying moods with telling effect.

H. M. B.

Rockford—Maude Fenlon Bollman presented Miss Nellie Cockburn and Mr. Walter Lindsey in recital at Mendelssohn Hall February 10. They were assisted by Miss Marion Johnson, Helen Lohmann. Lila Lund was the accompanist.

PHILHARMONIC STRING QUARTET

GEORGE DASCH OTTO ROEHRBORN CARL BRUECKNER HJALMAR RABE

MENDELSSOHN CONSERVATORY
CONCERT

The Mendelssohn Conservatory, under the direction of Carrie Scott, gave a faculty and advanced pupils concert at the First Evangelical Lutheran Church on Fullerton avenue last Wednesday evening to a capacity house and, as all the tickets were sold, contrary to the usual custom of school concerts, a fine sum was netted for the organ fund of the church.

JOEL MOSSBERG

The basis of the concert was the Philharmonic String Quartet; which, composed as it is of George Dasch, Hjalmar Rabe, Otto Roehrborn and Carl Brueckner, all established artists of the first class, is an ensemble of most artistic personnel and one capable of giving unbounded musical delight.

The Mozart "Quintet" (with Mr. Meyer) was played, as also that by Schumann, in which the piano score was splendidly handled by Margaret Andersen.

The "Quartet," by Torvald Fredericksen

(organist of the church), was also used, and proved him to be a writer of originality and fine musical development. The "Scherzando" movement proved particularly fine and facile.

These numbers were done in the highest style of ensemble art and proved the worth of the organization without any quibble remaining possible. In some lighter works also much pleasure was afforded.

In the Haydn "Serenade" Mr. Dasch showed a beautiful violin tone in the solo line, and in the Chopin "Etude" Mr. Brueckner delivered the 'cello solo with authority and fine tone.

These players also provided the accompaniment for the MacDowell pianoforte "Concerto" in D minor and the Liszt Opus in E Flat, the first played by Anna Swansen and the latter by Clara Andersen, each of whom disclosed good technical preparation and much musical authority, the second piano being played in the first case by Hazel Reid and in the second by Margaret Andersen, while the quartet accompaniment was entirely fine.

Accompaniment of the same kind was furnished for "Why Do the Nations" ("Messiah"), sung by Joel Mossberg with distinction.

Mr. Mossberg appeared also in a solo group (with piano) and created a genuine sensation with his fine voice and breadth of style. Particularly suave was the Homer "Requiem" and decidedly pleasing to the audience was a Swedish text song by Alnaes.

The Mendelssohn Conservatory Quartet, composed of pupils in the school, again appeared and once more showed that the choice of voices has been most carefully made and the training has been along thoroughly good lines. The numbers given were "The Fountain" (Bartlett), "I en somme stunder" (Ole Bull) and "Good Night" (Parks). Encores were demanded of these young ladies as, indeed, from every artist on the program. C. E. W.

— # # —

MRS. STACEY WILLIAMS' PUPILS IN
RECITAL

At her commodious studios in Kimball Hall, on last Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Stacey Williams entertained a goodly audience with a song program by Mrs. Frances Foxwell Squires and Mrs. Frances Lydston Murray, each of whom sang a fine list of solo numbers and who together delighted the audience at the close of the program with the "Flower Duet," from "Madame Butterfly."

Each singer was heard by this writer in but one group.

Mrs. Squires has a clear, lyric soprano, of considerable range and great sweetness. Her musical style is excellent and her enunciation exceptional.

"Lovers in the Lane" (Lehmann) and "To You" (Bohannon) showed great variety of attainments in the vocal art, and "The Blackbird Song" (Scott) proved to be a gem in her reading.

Mrs. Murray has a voice of somewhat lower range, being probably classed as a mezzo-soprano. Her tone is of exceptional purity and richness and her development to this date is thoroughly good and gives ample promise for the future.

She was heard in "The Little Red Ribbon" and "An Evening Song," effective bits by Gilberte, and in the well-made song "Yesterday and Today," by Spross.

Accompaniments of superior quality, such, indeed, as proved an inspiration to each singer, were furnished by William Lester. C. E. W.

— # # —

Yahr—Marie Yahr, following her big success last week in Milwaukee with the Symphony Orchestra, has been engaged for the "Requiem" (Verdi) performance by the Milwaukee Musical Society on April 5.

B. F. Clark Teachers Agency

Chicago—414-416 Steinway Hall
Kansas City, Mo.—New York Life Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.—Munsey Bldg.
Spokane, Wash.—Chamber of Com. Bldg.

The Agency with the Short Understandable Contract 26th Year

THE BREWER-TEACHER'S AGENCY

has had THIRTY-ONE years of experience, co-operating with TEACHERS, PRINCIPALS and SUPERINTENDENTS. Write for our free booklet. AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Fisk Teachers' Agency

28 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.
Over 40,000 Positions Filled
32nd YEAR

We have this year broken all previous records of the Agency. We are now seeking teachers for emergency vacancies, and for the fall of 1915. Circular and membership form sent on application.

Other offices: NEW YORK, WASHINGTON, DENVER, PORTLAND, BERKELEY, LOS ANGELES.

CHARLES W. CLARK BARITONE
BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY, CHICAGO

Two Festival Services Under the Direction of H. Augustine Smith

JOHN W. NORTON

Concerts will be given at the New First Congregational Church on Thursday, February 25, and Friday, February 26, at 8:15.

On Thursday organ numbers will be played by John W. Norton, Alice R. Deal and Arthur Randolph Fraser and on Friday by Katharine Howard Ward, A. F. McCarrell and Hugo Goodwin.

ALBERT COTSWORTH

ALICE R. DEAL

Effa Ellis Perfield

Teaching System and how to teach Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building may be studied with

Normal Teachers in the large cities and finished with

EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator

Learn How to Teach

The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.

Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.

SUITE 950-955 McCLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

HUGO GOODWIN

The quartet and choral faces for both nights will be as follows:

Mrs. Mable Corlew Smith, soprano, the Choral Union.

Miss Lucy J. Hartman, alto, the Treble Clef Choir.

Dr. Leon Jones, tenor, the Cecilian Choir.

Mr. Roscoe King, bass, the Boy Choir.

150 Singers.

The service will be played by Mr. Albert Cotsworth, who, at this time, observes the completion of ten years of service in this church as organist and director of the quartet.

H. AUGUSTINE SMITH,
Director-Manager.

MAURICE J. MATTESON

Maurice J. Matteson, young baritone, was heard recently in a short studio recital and gave exceptional pleasure by the beautiful quality of his voice and in the ease and enthusiasm with which he accomplished his work.

Mr. Matteson is soloist in one of the Rogers Park churches and has appeared often also in concert. It is safe to say that his prestige will be a rapidly growing one and that he will be heard often and invariably with pleasure.

His voice is rich, full and vibrant, his musical style is excellent, and his enunciation is especially good.

Among the songs given by him was "The Toreador's Love Song," one which was made famous by the late Pol Plancon and which suits Mr. Matteson also to a nicety. He gave it with a fine rhythmic swing and much musical beauty.

Also, particularly good was his reading of "To the Forest," a magnificent song by Tchaikowsky, which he sang with much intelligence and effect. C. E. W.

CHICAGO ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION

The second meeting of the Chicago Artists' Association was held on last Tuesday afternoon, at the Congress Hotel. The artists were Glenn Dillard Gunn, Bettina Freeman, Sara Suttle, Rowland Leach, Gordon Campbell and Edgar Nelson.

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT

On Tuesday evening, February 23, the following program will be given at the Fine Arts Assembly Room under direction of Rachel Busey Kinsolving:

Sonata for 'cello and piano.....Strauss
 Allegro con brio
 Andante ma non troppo
 Allegro vivo
 Mr. Carl Brueckner and Miss Jennette Loudon
 Feldeinsamkeit Brahms
 Widmung Schumann
 Er ist's

Mrs. Marie White Clark
 Etude Chopin
 Am Springbrunnen Davidoff
 Concerto A minor Saint-Saens

Mr. Brueckner
 The World is Full of April.....Clough-Leigher
 The Star Rogers
 Chanson provencale

Mrs. Clark
 Sarabande Bach
 Gavotte

Mr. Brueckner
 Album Leaf Popper
 Mazurka

Mr. Brueckner
 O Cara Memoria Servais
 Mr. Brueckner

###

REDEEMER CHURCH

The united choirs of the Church of the Redeemer, Francis A. Mackay, organist and director, gave a program of Russian music Sunday evening, February 14. The soloists of the choir are Mrs. John Edmunds, Dorothy Elwine, Mrs. F. A. Mackay, Esther Bihl, Walter Chambers, Elmer Telford, Harry Blueker, Robert Betty and Chester Tallman.

Mr. Mackay has a finely balanced choir, and he secured some splendid effects in tone quality and phrasing. The "Magnificat" and "Nunc Dimittis," by Cruickshank, received excellent renditions. The choir led in some rousing hymn singing, and closed the service with "The Cherubic Hymn," by Gretchinoff, which was sung unaccompanied and was given a fine rendition. The attacks and phrasing of the choir deserve special mention, and the tonal quality as a whole is seldom excelled. Mr. Mackay was at the organ throughout the evening, and gave the singers the best of support.

###

OAK PARK

The following is the musical program given at the First Congregational church, Oak Park, Sunday evening, February 21:

Special soloist, Andrea Sarto, baritone.
 Organ Prelude—
 Andantino and Finale.....Wolstenholme
 Mr. Kinsey

Anthem—
 King All Glorious.....Barnby
 Response, Trio—
 Abide with Me.....Chadwick
 Offertory Solo—
 In Thee, O God, Do I Put My Trust.....Spicker
 Mr. Sarto

Sermon
 Anthem, Solo and Quartet—
 The Pilgrim's Message Craig
 Organ Postlude—
 March in F Nessler

###

Choral Club Concert—The Calvary Choral Club will give a concert, under the direction of Milon R. Harris, at Calvary Presbyterian Church, Jackson boulevard and Keeler avenue, on Friday evening, February 26, at 8:15. Besides choral numbers, there will be solos by Laura D. Earnist, soprano; H. C. Carothers, baritone, and Emil Nissen, tenor. Helen Gallup will be the accompanist.

THE SOUL OF THE EDITOR

THE SOUL OF THE EDITOR

On last Sunday afternoon, on the occasion of a valentine party given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Borroff, some very clever entertaining was done by Mrs. Lillian Swan, who, with scissors and blank paper, made "Soul Pictures" of all present.

It is an open question as to what psychic force may be employed by Mrs. Swan or what occult agent is invoked, but whatever it may be she certainly does some wonderful guessing.

The accompanying cut represents the "Soul" of the Editor of Music News, as drawn by Mrs. Swan.

The various protuberances and appendages each one stand for definite items in his life and personality.

The reader is left to guess what most of these may be, but it is not difficult to understand the admonitory finger with the notes attached.

Mr. Watt has just completed arrangements to go to California with the Apollo Club and the elongated feet of the "Soul" are therefore easy to understand when it is kept in mind that, according to Mrs. Swan, this item stands for "a long journey."

###

A SPLENDID ACHIEVEMENT

After years of study and experiment Belle Squire has discovered a system of memorizing that is thoroughly scientific while at the same time it is rational and of easy application. From four to ten pieces can be memorized at the same time by this method and the memory is permanent. Miss Squire's studio, 522 Fine Arts Building, is a busy place in consequence of the great interest manifested in her remarkable discovery.

FOURTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
ORGAN RECITAL

The constantly increasing attendance at the weekly organ recitals given in Fourth Presbyterian Church by Mr. Eric DeLamarter attests to the worth of his work. Thursday afternoon, February 11, he placed upon his program compositions by three Chicago composers, viz.: A rhapsody by Rossetter Cole, an improvisation by Lily Wadhams Moline and two of his own works, "Adagietto," a quaint, restful number, and "The Toccato," a captivating, sprightly sketch whose name bespeaks its character. The program, proving longer than was anticipated, the rhapsody by Cole was omitted and will be played next week. The program began with a symphony for organ by Widor. It is safe to record that in the interpretation of works of this kind there is no better exponent than Mr. DeLamarter. In all things his performances are characterized by cleanness and precision. When a theme is to be found he possesses the requisite skill to bring it forth, no matter how obscure, and this without disturbing the tone values or the fine balance necessary to the other parts. In this respect Mr. DeLamarter excels. The improvisation by Lily Wadhams Moline contains real charm; there is an insistent theme throughout which holds the attention and makes the number well worth a place upon the program of the concert organist. Mrs. Moline has been asked to play a number of her compositions at the Iowa State Music Teachers' convention, which meets in Waterloo, Iowa, in May.

GRACE DICKINSON PATTERSON.

Thomas N. MacBurney

Baritone

Voice Production

Song Recitals

608-609 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Phone Wabash 8988

BURTON TENOR
Mgt. Harriet M. Suow. 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago
Oratorio
Concert
Opera

Hazel Dell Neff
SOPRANO
CARE MUSIC NEWS

Sidney Arno Dietch
Voice Accompanying Coaching
Supervisor of Music, Highland Park, Ill. Organist and Director
Trinity Episcopal Church. 210 E. Park Ave., Highland Park
Telephone Highland Park 1144.

CHARLES MITCHELL MIXER
CONCERTS VIOLINIST PUPILS
American Conservatory Home Phone Rogers Pk. 5401

BENEDICT
DRAMATIC SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Bldg. 6120 Pleasant St.
Wabash 8988 Oak Park 3421-R

CHARLES J. HAKE
DIRECTOR NORMAL PIANO METHODS DEPARTMENT
PIANO INSTRUCTION
Northwestern University School of Music Evanston Ill.
CHICAGO STUDIO, PHONE EDGE 888

Frank L. Denhard Concert Pianist and Teacher
TECHNIC SPECIALIST
Hinshaw Conservatory 606 Kimball Hall, Chicago

Rose Lutiger Gannon
CONTRALTO
715 KIMBALL HALL Res. Phone Lawndale 1335

RALPH Brokaw Power-Meyer
Violinist Conservatory
WICHITA, KAN.

George Francis Kortzenborn
BAPITONE
Concert Oratorio Recital Pupils
4734 N. SPRINGFIELD AV. TEL. IRV. 1935

Richard B. DE YOUNG
Baritone
TEACHER of SINGING
American Conservatory Kimball Hall

WM. APMADOC (Res. Phone Drexel 3469)
SHERWOOD MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY - Auditorium Bldg.
WALTER SPRY MUSIC SCHOOL Fine Arts Bldg.

LUCIA MAY SMITH
CONCERT SOPRANO TEACHING
7019 Stewart Av. Phone Stewart 3378

Mabel Sharp Herdien
SOPRANO
5132 Kenmore Av. Tel. Edgewater 7252

MARY ERNESTINE CLARK
CONCERTS PIANIST INSTRUCTION
1443 E. 60th Street Tel. Midway 4180

KATHERINE D'ORSAY
Concerts Dramatic Soprano Teaching
16 Auditorium-Merrick Bldg.-Phone Brglewood 9748

MUSICALE AT THE BERGEY STUDIO

When Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bergey invite their friends to a Studio Musicale the response is always so prompt and generous that not all comers can get inside the doorway, but there is such a feeling of good fellowship and so keen a desire to hear the excellent programs always provided that nobody minds the big crowd and all are glad to get in even though the seats may all be taken.

On Saturday night, last, Mr. Bergey presented Josephine Fuchs-Ashton, soprano, in a song program, assisted by Leslie Voightmann, tenor, and Irving Engel, pianist, the latter a pupil of Mrs. Bergey.

The program opened with a long scene from "Tosca" and closed with duets from "Aida," sung by Mrs. Ashton and Mr. Voightmann, these being done with such fine operatic style and presenting such a display of vocal excellence as to please the audience very much indeed.

Mrs. Ashton sang two groups of solos besides, and proved herself the possessor of a very sweet voice and a fine personality. She understands very fully the art of individualizing and vitalizing a song and her work is full of variety and effect. Not the least important element was her clear and distinct enunciation in which factor indeed she excelled far beyond the ordinary.

"Angel of Beauty" (Schubert), and "It Was the Time of Lilacs" gave opportunity for pure lyric display. "At the Spinning Wheel" (Saar), proved to be unique in composition and piquant in delivery, and "Mein Schwesterchen" (Hugo Kaun) was also a fine piece of writing, well presented.

The last group (not heard by this writer) included "A Song of India" (Rimsky-Korsakow), "Spuk" (La Forge), "The Star," (Rogers) and the quaint "Sylvain" by Sinding.

Mr. Engel is certainly a talented young man and if he continues to improve at the same rate as during the past year he may reasonably expect to take very high rank eventually. He has much brilliance of style, much clarity in detail and an altogether good tone.

He played an "Etude," "Nocturne" and "Ballade" by Chopin, the famous "If I Were a Bird" by Henselt, and a Liszt "Rhapsodie" individualizing each one accurately and investing all of them with much charm.

SPECIAL MUSICAL SERVICE AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

On Sunday afternoon, February 21, at 4 o'clock, will be sung a special musical service at St. James' Church, Cass and Huron streets. The choral numbers include the Righini motet "The Lord Is Great," Cruickshank's "Magnificat in G" and the "Deus Misereatur," in G, by Dudley Buck. The duet for soprano and tenor "Love Divine," by Stainer, will also be sung, and at the close of the service a short organ recital will be given by John W. Norton. The program follows:

First Movement from Sonata One Bach
Etude Symphonique Boss
Minuetto (Louis Quatorze) Shelley
Romanza Walter Keller
Grand Choeur, in B flat Dubois
Introduction to Act III of Lohengrin Wagner
Berceuse Clarence Dickinson

ILLINOIS COLLEGE CONCERT

The Illinois College of Music gave the third of a series of concerts at the Cuyler Avenue Methodist Church in Oak Park Friday evening, February 12. The artists appearing on the program were Marie Edwards, pianist-organist; Marie White Clark, soprano; Edna Reiner Marshall, reader; Mrs. A. L. Preiser, accompanist; A. L. Preiser, violinist; C. W. Edwards, pianist.

Miss Edwards opened the program with a group of organ numbers, "Fanfare," Lemmens; "Minuet," Boccherini; "Burlesca e Melodia," Baldwin. The "Fanfare" and the "Minuet" were especially well liked and played with splendid effect and fine display of musicianship. Later Miss Edwards gave piano numbers by Leschetizky, MacDowell, Schulz-Evler. The Leschetizky number was dashed off with an abandon that was very effective. Three MacDowell numbers, "From a Fisherman's Hut," "From Long Ago," "Concert Etude," made a deep impression. Miss Edwards has technique, a fine sense of rhythm, and she gets a tone that is colorful and of good quality and carrying power. The playing of the MacDowell numbers might well be taken as an example. The Schulz-Evler number was given a brilliant reading.

Mr. Preiser was heard in the Gounod-Preiser "Serenade" and the "German Dance," Dittersdorf. The "Serenade" was played with a fine style and beauty of tone that won him much applause. The "German Dance" was played with an abandon that was very captivating and heartily enjoyed.

The trio, Miss Edwards, organ; Mr. Preiser, violin; Mr. Edwards, piano, gave some excellent playing of numbers by Liszt, Fesca, Kretschmar. The Liszt and Kretschmar numbers were especially well done. Mrs. Marshall gave some humorous readings that gave much pleasure and were well received. Marie White Clark, soprano, has a voice of good quality and range. She was heard in Ware's "Sunlight Waltz," "Down in the Forest," Ronald; "A Spirit Flower," Campbell-Tipton. Mrs. Clark sings with much ease and her renditions of "The Spirit Flower" and the "Sunlight Waltz" were very commendable.

FRANK VAN DUSEN

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Dusen entertained Mr. Van Dusen's pupils at a studio valentine party on Saturday evening, February 13. The studio was very beautifully and appropriately decorated for the occasion and a short musical program was presented. The pupils who played were Misses Idorna Newmark, Margaret Hughes, Clara Vollendorf, Ruth Liljegen, Grace Elizabeth Graham, and Mr. Marne Larson. In addition to the musical program, Miss Marion Robb gave a reading of the "Courtship of Miles Standish" with a musical setting composed by Marne Larson, one of Mr. Van Dusen's pupils, with Mr. Larson at the piano. Also Miss Bonnie Laurine Beaumont gave a few splendid readings. At the close of the musical program the young folks enjoyed a dance.

L. DREW MOSHER
TENOR—Teacher of Singing
17 West Fourth Avenue CINCINNATI, OHIO

CONSTANCE PURDY

Constance Purdy, the American singer of Russian songs, has just returned from a trip to several cities of the middle west. In St. Paul, where she gave a recital of Russian songs before the Schubert Club in the series with Julia Culp and Katharine Goodson, she met with what the Daily News of that city called "enthusiastic appreciation." The critic of that paper further says, "Miss Purdy possesses a splendid voice and brought to her performance a thorough understanding of the spirit of Slavie music that added much to its musical excellence."

CONSTANCE PURDY

Following this gratifying appearance, for the Schubert is one of the three largest musical clubs in this country, Miss Purdy had the unusual and delightful experience of singing for the Sisters of the Visitation Convent in St. Louis. Not only is St. Louis Miss Purdy's home city, but the Convent of the Visitation was her home for many years and to the excellence of the musical training which she received there she attributes much of her present success. The occasion was entirely informal, but in spite of the few hours' notice, an audience of more than two hundred had been assembled to hear the program of Russian songs, sung partly in their original text and partly with the singer's own fine translations. On the same day Miss Purdy had the experience of losing one engagement through a conflict of dates, and of immediately booking another for the opening of next season. The ability to give a convincing interpretation of the Russian songs is so rare and Miss Purdy's power is becoming so widely acknowledged that she is already receiving many inquiries for dates for next year.

After a private recital in Indianapolis Miss Purdy hastened back to New York to keep her engagement to sing at a matinee of Russian folklore and song given at the Berkeley Theater. The entertainment was for children, and was given for the benefit of the American Hospital at Petrograd. Consul-General M. Oustinoff, Prince Pierre Troubetzkoi and Charles R. Crane were among the patrons and those present in the large audience, which included many grown-ups. Through an accident to the engine, Miss Purdy's train was so delayed that she reached New York only two hours before the opening of the program. But in spite of weariness she was able to fulfill her part of the program, which consisted in her inimitable rendering of some of the Nursery Songs of Moussorgsky, and sang with her accustomed charm of voice and diction.

MABEL HELEN ROGERS ACTIVITIES

Miss Mabel Helen Rogers, harpist, has filled a number of splendid recital engagements during January, winning her usual well-merited success. The following speaks for itself:

January 6—Consecration service of Walter Taylor Sumner, D. D. Was ordained bishop of Oregon at Cathedral SS. Peter and Paul.

January 8—Played for Modern Woodmen of America, at Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, "Reverie," by Lebano, and "Andante," by Parish-Alvars. Numerous encores.

January 11—Played for Normal Park Chapter, O. E. S., installation (public), "Dance De Sylph," by Godefroid, and "Española," by Tedeschi. Encores.

January 14—Played at Forestville Chapter, O. E. S. installation (public), "Priore," by Hasselmans. Encores.

January 18—Played at Lutheran Ladies' Seminary, Red Wing, Minn.

January 19—Played at Immaculate Conception Academy, Davenport, Ia.

January 29—Played at Logan Square Auditorium, under the auspices of the Friday Night Club, "Ballade," by Zabel, and "Impromptu," by Tedeschi. Encores.

February engagements are announced as follows:

February 18—Reception at the home of Mrs. William C. Hazzard, 6351 Kimbark avenue. (Just the harp program.)

February 22 (afternoon)—Washington's Birthday program, at Englewood Woman's Club, Englewood Masonic Temple.

February 22 (evening)—Normal Park Chapter, O. E. S., Englewood Masonic Temple.

February 25—Woodlawn Woman's Club Choral Society. Mr. Gustaf Holmquist also soloist.

At Red Wing, Minn., and Davenport, Ia., the entire program was given by Miss Rogers, and was as follows:

Haïpe Eolienne	Godefroid
Andante	Parish-Alvars
Priere	Hasselmans
Petite Etude	Rogers
Gnomentanz	Rogers
Southern Fantasie	Smith
Scotch Airs	Smith
Irish Airs	Smith
Marche Solennelle	Gounod
Harp and Piano
Fantasie	Korarovic
Espanola	Tedeschi
Ballade	Godefroid
Reverie	Godefroid
Ballade	Zabel
Home Sweet Home

Numerous encores and repetitions.

Northwestern University—Leon L. Iltis, piano, and Robert C. Long, baritone, will give a program at the University School of Music this (Friday) evening.

Kreisler—Fritz Kreisler appeared at the Auditorium on last Sunday afternoon to a somewhat smaller audience than at the time of his first concert.

Foerster—Anton Foerster, formerly well known pianist in Chicago, died in Germany last month.

MABLE CORLEW-SMIDT

The first part of the program consisted of a group of songs by Mrs. Mable Corlew-Smith, who is a well-known Chicago singer and who is the possessor of a wonderfully rich and perfectly placed soprano voice. Her range is exceptional and of exquisite quality; her high tones clear and sweet and most pure, while her low voice is remarkably rich and full. It would be difficult to say which of her numbers was enjoyed the most, as each received hearty applause, and after several numbers she graciously responded with encores. However, nothing more artistic could be asked than her exquisite singing of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." With every note under perfect control, she sang with such individuality and charm that she delighted her audience throughout the entire program.

The cantata by the club was excellently given. The dramatic phrases were brought out with force and were well attacked, while the pathetic parts were well shaded and intelligently rendered. Mrs. Smidt's interpretation of this work was most beautiful. She colored the dramatic phrases brilliantly, while the more mournful phrases she sang with much pathos.—Wheaton Illinoian.

The program, which was unusually fine, was in two parts, the first being several groups of songs by Mrs. Smidt and the second a cantata by the Orpheus Club. Mrs. Smidt has a soprano voice of rare and beautiful quality, and that, combined with her personal charm and very gracious manner, immediately won her audience, and each number was applauded with enthusiasm and many encores. Her opening number, "I Know My Redeemer Liveth," from the "Messiah," was unusually well done. The first group of songs was delightful, and was composed of "Morning," by Speaks; "The Plaint," by Brown; "Sacrament," by MacDermid, and "Welcome Song," from Cadman's "Morning of the Year." The second group was "Sing to Me, Sing," by Homer; "Flower in the Crannied Wall," by Mrs. Mason, and "Thought Fancies," by Jones. The Homer number was especially enjoyed and enthusiastically applauded by the audience. Both groups were beautifully done, and showed to good advantage Mrs. Smidt's splendid voice, good interpretation, her beautiful high tones, and equally beautiful low ones, which are almost of contralto quality.—Wheaton Progressive. (Advertisement.)

JOHN RANKL

Some press comment on the work of Mr. Rankl:

Mr. Rankl of Chicago delighted his audience, which evidenced its appreciation by repeated encores. He sang for encores "Heinrich der Vogler," by Loewe, and "Du bist wie eine Blume." This latter is one of the great heart songs of the German nation, and Mr. Rankl was able, even singing it in the German, to convey its power and feeling to the audience.—Kentland (Ind.) Democrat, February 5, 1915.

Part two was opened by a group of songs by Mr. John Rankl of Chicago, a leading bass-baritone of that city, and he so captivated the audience that his numbers were almost doubled; one encore being in German. He possesses a remarkable voice, and one that is pleasing to the ear of even the uninitiated.—Newton County (Ind.) Enterprise, February 4, 1915. (Advertisement.)

MR. BORROFF ENTERTAINS

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Borroff entertained the pupils of Mr. Borroff at their home on Sunday afternoon at which time a charming program was provided by Miss Bertha Hart, Mr. Borroff, Miss Gertrude Hemken, reader, and a number of pupils in the Borroff class.

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

Some recent comment:

Mr. Holmquist, whose appearance has long been anticipated, again proved his skill and musicianship. His voice, with its rich, mellow beauty, enabled one to forget the vocal gymnastics which are so often made most prominent, impressing upon the mind the real beauties of the work. Especially impressive were the arias "But Who May Abide" and "The People That Walketh in Darkness," while the famous "Why Do the Nations" was rendered with apparent ease, notwithstanding its tremendous requirements in dynamic and vocal technique.—Brookings, S. D. (Advertisement.)

Music in New York

By ABBIE STEPHENS FRIDENBERG, 110 Carnegie Hall

HECKSCHER

C E L E S T E D. COMPOSER

Personal Representative

ABBIE S. FRIDENBERG
110-111 Carnegie Hall

PUBLISHERS
NOVELLO EWER

LILLIAN NORDICA said of the
NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT
"It is a Gem"

H. EVAN WILLIAMS
TENOR, Concerts Recital, Oratorio
Wolfson Musical Bureau 456 W. Market St.
NEW YORK AKRON, OHIO

MARGARET KEYES
CONTRALTO
Chicago Philadelphia Grand Opera Co.
Management The Wolfson Bureau

Abbie Stephens Fridenberg
THE METHOD OF PORPORA
From the Rudiments to Artistic Finish
Professional Coaching
VOCAL STUDIOS
Suite 110-111 Carnegie Hall NEW YORK CITY

THEODORE HARRISON
BARITONE Director, Vocal Dept., Ann Arbor, Mich.,
Conservatory, Mgt. M. H. Hanson, N. Y.

Louise LE BARON
MEZZO-CONTRALTO
248 W. 105th Street NEW YORK CITY

Alfred Kaufmann
Principal Basso Century Opera House, New York
also Covent Garden and Turin Opera

Lambert Murphy Recital
Oratorio Opera
Available Entire Season 1913-14 Wolfson Bureau, 1 W. 34, New York

BENEFIT CONCERT AT AEOLIAN HALL FOR THE ORPHANAGE OF THE FRANCISCAN NUNS

"Acknowledged Queen of the Piano" is the legend upon Mme. Germaine Schnitzer's card in what a certain New York journalist calls the famous New York Section of Music News, and acknowledged Queen of the Piano was the verdict heard upon all sides on the evening of February 8, when Mme. Schnitzer proved once more how thoroughly and deeply her master, Pugno, had divined the extraordinary qualities; the astounding gifts of his peerless artist-pupil, then but a mere child.

Audible comments ran through the auditorium of Aeolian Hall; for there were many music-lovers to whom Schnitzer's name spelled magic in that large audience assembled in the boxes, the balcony, the parquet and even on the stage.

One hypercritical man who is captious and fastidious in his criticisms whispered to me: "There is an indescribable something in this woman's playing which makes her own the rarest art in the world."

One aged Irishwoman (and the Irish-Americans of New York were in the majority in the audience that evening), said to her meekly-acquiescing husband (at least they represented the Darby and Joan idyl) in a decided but here untranslatable brogue: "Now who would ever think she could make all that foine music with those little white fingers she's got."

One girl (evidently an earnest piano student) said to a mature, elderly woman: "Oh! I shall dream of that wonderful wrist movement forever."

Four black-robed priests sitting in a row seemed as though hypnotized by Mme. Schnitzer's powers; spell-bound they sat as if entranced as she made her smiling exit. The applause was the murmurous kind of people deliciously stunned, who had seen a vision.

Mme. Schnitzer looking spirituelle as an angel, all in white net and maline embroidered with rhinestones and pearls and great ropes of pearls engirdling her waist, was a vision of loveliness as she appeared; seeming to float across the stage light as thistle-down-made flesh.

She seemed in exuberant spirits and literally made the piano speak; especially in her earnest, virile, fiery interpretation of Liszt's "Venezia e Napoli," into which she infused something of that demoniac force and impulse she exhibits upon occasion, and whose possession so abundantly irradiates with glow her renditions of works demanding the full flowing, sweeping technique of the master pianist; what G. Bernard Shaw might aptly name the "super-pianist."

Her filigree-like delicacy of touch; the lacy flutter of notes (sunshine coquetting with the forest leaves), was happily contrasted in Staub's "Sous Bois," which might have given a poet the stimulus for an ode to the glades and vales.

Mme. Schnitzer played two etudes of Chopin in the opening of the first group, and played them with a chaste yet richly diversified fancy.

Saint-Saens' "Toccata" concluded the first group and it too was eventuated in never-to-be-forgotten style. A request number, it must have given intense satisfaction to those in the audience whose preference it was.

The great pianiste was applauded to the echo, and applauded again until she consented to play encores.

Her floral gifts were very beautiful, varying from a bunch of Parma violets to a huge laurel wreath (almost as tall as the young artiste herself), tied with long streamers of white satin, hand-painted by the nuns with words of love and appreciation.

Mme. Marie Narelle, the soprano loved of all Irish hearts, opened and closed the program with groups of songs by Brahms, Durante, Gounod, Dvorak, sung in German, French and Italian; English songs by Haydn, Mrs. Beach, Mrs. Salter and Mrs. Heckscher; and Irish songs familiar and beloved by an audience whose appreciation extended throughout the soprano's program and her several encores.

Mme. Narelle excelled herself in the great aria from Tchaikovsky's "Jeanne d'Arc." She sang with deep devotion and a dark and potent power that put her easily in the very front rank of dramatic singers.

In the "Cry of Rachel" (a request number) she again demonstrated the unusual type of vocal gifts she owns; the depiction of frenzied anguish and despair.

Deeply dramatic also was the singing of Schubert's "Die Allmacht." The "Prin-temp" of Gounod and the fetching "Danza" of Durante showed a different side of the vocalist's talents, and she was arch or coy, and tender or sentimental in the Irish songs. Mme. Narelle was the recipient of many flowers.

Miss Kathleen Narelle played admirable accompaniments.

At the close of the program Corporation Council of the City of New York John J. O'Brien made an address of appreciation

CARL FLESCH

Management
HAENSEL & JONES
AEOLIAN HALL
NEW YORK
Knabe Piano used

in felicitously chosen words. He spoke as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: In behalf of the Franciscan Sisters of West Hoboken, I desire to express their deepest appreciation of the kindness of the artistes, Mme. Narelle and Mme. Schnitzer, who have out of the abundance of their talents gratuitously furnished us such a delightful entertainment tonight, and of the kindness and of the unstinted effort and zeal of Miss Katherine Hoey, whose work led to this achievement, and of Mr. and Mrs. James Kerrigan, through the generosity of whose family the ground for the present orphanage was secured, let me thank you a thousand times, you, whose generosity has made possible the result of tonight's gathering, which measured in round numbers means one thousand dollars for the work of mercy carried on by the sisters.

"This result speaks volumes for your kind, responsive spirit. The years 1914 and 1915 will go down in history for their matchless record of want and woe, distress and despair at home and abroad. The calls for help have been many, and in our own metropolis you and all your friends have felt this winter the constant demand or appeal for assistance. Hence your aid and assistance extended to the orphans is all the more worthy in that it has come out of purses already well drained.

"The sisters, whose work is supported by the daily appeals which they make from home to home, well understand how you, overwhelmed by requests, have not allowed their own call to go unanswered and you have their enduring gratitude.

"I would convey the same word to the artistes who have made the evening a memorable occasion, and further assure them that they have the sisters' best wishes for their continued professional success as well as their sincerest prayers."

Miss Katherine A. Hoey, sister of the Hon. James J. Hoey, was the chairman of the financial and entertainment committees, and to her efforts and the magnetic attraction of the artistes, is due the collection of over $1,000 for the orphanage.

A large contingent of the audience flocked to the spacious artist room to meet the artistes. Among those were Hon. James J. Hoey, the Misses Hoey, Messrs. Harry Currie of the New York Central railroad; Dr. Leo Buerger, a well known New York surgeon and husband of Mme. Schnitzer; Mr. Sylvester Rawlings, music critic of the Evening World; handsome Mr. MacSweeney, John MacCormack's right-hand man; Corporation Counsel O'Brien, Warren Baldwin, C. D. Gibson, Reginald Narelle, Misses Eva Mylott, Hilda Aiken, Rita Narelle, Mrs. Sophie Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Penbross, Misses Martha Neuman, Cherry Steers, Mr. I. Prival and many others, including Mrs. Richard Watson, of Flushing, and about fifty more.

"The Norse Maiden's Lament."

A few measures of this captivating song will adorn the front page of the next issue of Music News. The song is rather short and lends itself admirably to groups or encores.

In itself it constitutes a note of difference, and has an unusual effect upon the listener. Its unusualness is helping to make it known in all parts of the land, and to

JENNY DUFAU COLORATURA SOPRANO
Chicago Grand Opera Co.
MANAGEMENT HARRY CULBERTSON. FINE ARTS BLDG CHICAGO

ELEANOR Dramatic Soprano
In Programs of Songs and Arias and Children's Songs and Stories
HAZZARD PEOCOCK SEASON 1914-15 in America
Management, Concert Direction M. H. Hanson 437 Fifth Ave., NEW YORK

Marcella Craft Leading Soprano Royal Opera Munich
Now in America Exclusive Management Concert Direction
M. H. HANSON
437 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK

SCHNITZER The acknowledged Queen of the Piano.
In America Season 1914-1915
Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

William Wade Hinshaw BARITONE
Of the Metropolitan Opera Company Personal Address, Hotel Ansonia, New York

ALICE VERLET
OF GRAND OPERA AND OPERA COMIQUE, PARIS Management M. H. HANSON, 437 Fifth Avenue, New York

HAUSER PIANIST
Management HAENSEL & JONES
Personal Representative, Abbie Stephens Fridenberg, 110 Carnegie Hall

SEASON 1914-1915
ANTONIA SAWYER, 1425 Broadway NEW YORK
Has the honor to present
The Violinist
ANDRE BENCI, Accompanist
STEINWAY PIANO

CHRISTINE MILLER CONTRALTO
Personal Address, 1003 Heberton St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Management Haensel & Jones, Aeolian Hall, New York

CONSTANCE PURDY CONTRALTO
Personal Representative, Mabel Hammond, 400 Riverside Drive, New York

Philip SPOONER AMERICAN TENOR
Exponent of Bel Canto.
205 West 57th Street
NEW YORK

Burnham PIANIST
Mgr. Harry Culbertson

Yeatman Griffith

Teacher of FLORENCE MACBETH, Prima Dona Coloratura and many other Artists and Teachers
318 W. 82nd St., New York. Tel. Schuyler 8537

Helen Stanley SOPRANO
Management M. H. HANSON
437 Fifth Avenue New York

IVY SCOTT SOPRANO
ST. FRANCIS HOTEL
NEW YORK CITY

render the name of Celeste D. Heckscher one to be considered as typical of the very, very best in American music.

Upon one of the occasions that I saw the late Lillian Nordica—before her departure for the Australian tour—I brought to her notice the songs of Mrs. Heckscher. The diva was immediately interested, and promised to add the collection to her very large, yet choice repertory.

Mme. Nordica was not only a great singer; she was also endowed with excellent musical taste and knowledge, and quick apprehension of the vital points of a song. As I played for her the accompaniment of the "Norse Maiden's Lament" on the fine grand in her beautiful music room, she practically read the ballad at sight, stopping me at times and exclaiming: "I will sing it thus," or, "This is a phrase to be emphasized." She said, too, "I love the song; it is a gem."

Mrs. Heckscher has distinguished herself by the composition of her remarkable suite, "The Dances of the Pyrenees," scored for full orchestra; by her suite for piano and violin, entitled, "To the Forest"; by her opera, "The Flight of Time," which promises to make a new standard for the progressive woman in music, and to force the world to recognize the fact that there is no sex in art or music.

Caruso and Germaine Schnitzer at the Second Biltmore Concert

Mr. R. E. Johnston, the well known and greatly esteemed impresario, is a man of quick intuition and resourcefulness. When Mr. Godowsky, who had been announced as one of the artists to appear with that brilliant star of the Metropolitan Opera House, Enrico Caruso, on the Biltmore Thursday morning recital, decided he was too great a man and pianist to endure being overshadowed by the extra publicity given to the eminent tenor's only appearance in concert this season, and could not possibly play under the circumstances, Mr. Johnston recalled to mind the fact that one of the world's "five or six" great pianists (to quote several New York dailies) was in the city—that Germaine Schnitzer, if she could be secured, would prove a drawing card more than well worth while. Mrs. Schnitzer, an admirer of Caruso's singing, expressed her willingness to ap-this reviewer or that, else art is a dead letter to us as individuals and as integral parts of an intellectual-musical whole) no pianist stands higher in my esteem than de Pachmann, and when I bracket Mme. Schnitzer in my mind with the subtle Vladimir, I am paying her the highest compliment it is in me to give.

The audience felt her magnetism, and her recalls were numerous and flattering, and her encores given with the amiability of an artless being. In whatever she played one felt the fine, logical, introspective spirit wedded to the subtle poesy of a versifier in harmony.

Mr. Caruso was heard in several groups of songs and many encores. His closing number was the first part of the aria for the tenor from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine": "Paradiso."

All his solos were warmly applauded; the enthusiasm of a Caruso audience was unrestricted, and the encores insisted upon by the singer's inevitable train of admirers.

Perhaps his most welcome and interesting offering was a song by Leoncavallo—a little gem by that composer of many gems, who as yet is known only in this country by his popular "Pagliacci."

Mme. Marie Rappold of the Metropolitan Opera House also sang several groups of songs.

Miss Isabel Hauser as Hostess

Miss Isabel Hauser entertained a party of ten on the evening of February 12 in her handsome apartment in the Apthorpe.

The guest of honor was Mme. Germaine Schnitzer, who looked very charming in a gown of white charmeuse and silver spangled net, with garlands of small silver buds and foliage.

After the dinner the hostess played several selections, a Chopin etude and the less well-known but beautiful prelude in G by Tchaikowsky.

The women were all beautifully gowned. Miss Hauser wearing a French creation of pink with white jeweled net. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Jungen, Miss Morone, Dr. Leo Buerger, husband of Mme. Schnitzer; Mr. Alex Saslavsky, concert master of the New York Symphony orchestra, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen F. Gitterman.

The Third Biltmore Morning Musicales will take place on Friday morning, February 26. On this occasion Mme. Frances Alda, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House; Mr. Fritz Kreisler, violinist, and Mr. Giovanni Martinelli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera House, will appear.

Mary Garden sailed for Europe on the steamship Adriatic February 10. Before her departure, she made a contract with R. E. Johnston to return to America next October for a series of concerts, and her first appearance in this city will be at the Biltmore Friday Morning Musicales next fall.

Miss Minnie Tracey, soprano, and Elena de Olloqui, pianist, will be heard in a joint recital program at the MacDowell Club, on the afternoon of March 1. Miss Tracey will sing a number of Scandinavian and modern French songs.

GERMAINE SCHNITZER

HENIOT LEVY PIANIST

Kimball Hall

Exclusive Management

HARRY CULBERTSON

JOINT SONATA RECITALS

Alexander SEBALD VIOLINIST

81 Auditorium Bldg.

Teacher, Concerts

ARTHUR RANDOLPH FRASER

Choirmaster and Organist, Grace Church, Oak Park

Pupils — PIANO and ORGAN

TELEPHONE

OAK PARK 5749

Grace E. Keesler

Song Repertoire

Accompanying

715 KIMBALL HALL

Res. 2841 Dickens Avenue

Phone Humboldt 4569

Edith V. Rann TEACHER OF PIANO

Res. Tel. Drexel 4418

620 FINE ARTS BLDG.

LEIST-BEEBE

AGENTS

SOPRANO

804 McClurg Bldg. and 4348 Indiana Avenue

ORATORIO
SONG
RECITAL
PUPILS

NORA LORAIN OLIN VOICE

303 KIMBALL HALL

Phone Wabash 8028

LESTER

MARGARET
Soprano
WILLIAM
Composer-
Accompanist

1510 E. 52nd St

Phone Midway 8868

pear at practically a moment's notice, and received not the least applause vouchsafed the trio of artists on the program.

The place was the great ballroom of the Biltmore, the time a Thursday morning of February 11, and add thereto a group of piano solos the young virtuoso had played a few evenings before in Aeolian Hall, plus Schubert's "March Militaire," given with dash, brilliancy and a conquering display of consummate dynamics. Mme. Schnitzer knows and in knowing proved her feeling for fine climaxes. The more one hears of her art, the more one realizes that she has an absolute knowledge of her own artistic gifts and the powers, greatness and limitations of the piano; and knowing these she establishes a delicious entente, a reciprocity as it were. Something like the alliance of that wizard of pianistic wizardry, de Pachmann's spirit with the piano's spirit. As far as I am concerned (and each of us is his own critic whether we pin our faith to

People & Events

OLITZKA IN THE WEST

Mme. Rosa Olitzka, the Russian contralto, who for ten years sang leading roles at the Metropolitan (New York) and Covent Gardens (London) is now devoting her time to concert work. She sang in Denver recently to an audience of 3,500 in the Auditorium. It was her first visit to Denver since her appearance there last February, when she gave a big benefit concert to raise funds to send the members of the stranded Canadian Opera Company back to New York. Mme. Olitzka received such an ovation as must have satisfied her of her place in the hearts of the people of Denver. Few artists have ever aroused such enthusiasm and she was immediately engaged for two concerts in that city in the spring.

At Salina, Kas., Mme. Olitzka was obliged to promise that she would return and give another concert in April. Mr. William Adair, the manager of the Newton (Kas.) Festival came over to Salina to hear Mme. Olitzka sing and engaged her at once for his spring festival. At the State University at Lawrence, Kas., where this artist appeared last Monday, Dean Skilton of the music department said: "In the history of this institution no artist has ever created such a profound impression and aroused such enthusiasm."

MRS. MARIE YAHR

Some comment on the great success of Mrs. Yahr with the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra reads as follows:

Mrs. Marie Schorse Yahr possesses a rich contralto, full of warmth and color, that grows on the listener. Mrs. Yahr sang the aria "Ihr Baalspriester," from Meyerber's opera "Der Prophet." Mrs. Yahr's personality aided greatly in her expression, and the applause which followed her performance elicited two encores.—Milwaukee Journal, February 10, 1915.

Mrs. Marie Schorse Yahr, a home artist, was one of the soloists, and a Milwaukee audience had every right to be proud of her. Although Mrs. Yahr has recently been living in Chicago, Milwaukee will naturally insist upon regarding her as home talent. Her singing was a delight and a surprise to hundreds of people who had no idea that she had developed into a concert artist of such excellent ability.

RICH CONTRALTO

Singing the aria from Meyerber's "The Prophet," Mrs. Yahr disclosed a contralto voice of gloriously rich quality, the tones of organ-like opulence. And this vocal wealth is directed by dramatic ability and intelligence that give an air of supremacy to the singer's art. Besides, nature has furnished this singer with a comfortable endowment of ease and poise and graciousness, all of which helped to set off her art.—Milwaukee News, February 10, 1915. (Advertisement).

Nichols—John W. Nichols, tenor, has a very busy time these days filling special Sunday afternoon engagements, besides doing solo work in his own church. A few Sunday evenings ago he sang Mathieu's "Conversion" in St. James' Church, Brooklyn. Last Sunday afternoon he took part in a special service at St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia University, under the direction of Walter Henry Hall. Next Sunday he goes to New Haven, Conn., to sing at St. Thomas'. He has been to New Haven once a year for a number of seasons to sing at special Sunday afternoon recitals which are given in St. Thomas'. On April 29 he sings with the Chicago Mendelssohn Club.

MR. EDDY'S PROGRAMS

Clarence Eddy played the following splendid programs:

February 2—De Land, Fla.

Concert Prelude on a German Chorale..... William Faulkes
Song of Sorrow (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Will o' the Wisp (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Third Sonata in E major, Op. 43 (new)..... Rene L. Becker
Prelude—Andante maestoso
Adoration—Adagio sostenuto
Finale—Toccata, allegro vivo
Boatman's Song on the River Volga..... Anon
Vorspiel to Lohengrin..... Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Fantasia on My Old Kentucky Home..... J. E. W. Lord
At Evening (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Jubilate Amen (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Rondo—Soeur Monique..... Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue, in D minor..... Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song..... William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction..... J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Toccata in F Major..... Thomas J. Crawford

February 4—St. Petersburg, Fla.

Concert Prelude on a German Chorale..... William Faulkes
Song of Sorrow (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Will o' the Wisp (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Third Sonata in E major, Op. 43, (new)..... Rene L. Becker
Prelude—Andante maestoso
Adoration—Adagio sostenuto
Finale—Toccata, Allegro vivo
Boatman's Song on the River Volga..... Anon
Vorspiel to Lohengrin..... Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Vocal Solo—Mrs. F. A. Wood
Fantasia on My Old Kentucky Home..... J. E. W. Lord
At Evening (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Jubilate Amen (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Rondo—Soeur Monique..... Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue in D Minor..... Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song..... William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction..... J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Toccata in F Major..... Thomas J. Crawford

February 5—Gainesville, Fla.

Concert Prelude on a German Chorale..... William Faulkes
Song of Sorrow (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Will o' the Wisp (new)..... Gordon Balch Nevin
Third Sonata in E major, Op. 43 (new)..... Rene L. Becker
Prelude—Andante maestoso
Adoration—Adagio sostenuto
Finale—Toccata, Allegro vivo
Boatman's Song on the River Volga..... Anon
Vorspiel to Lohengrin..... Richard Wagner
(Arrangements by Clarence Eddy)
Fantasia on My Old Kentucky Home..... J. E. W. Lord
At Evening (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Jubilate Amen (new)..... Ralph Kinder
Rondo—Soeur Monique..... Francois Couperin
Toccata and Fugue, in D minor..... Johann Sebastian Bach
Nuptial Song..... William Faulkes
Nuptial Benediction..... J. Frank Frysinger
(Dedicated to Clarence Eddy)
Toccata in F Major..... Thomas J. Crawford

Johnston—Clifford Johnston, tenor, appeared with much success at a concert given at Wesley Hospital on Saturday afternoon, February 6. Mr. Johnston is a new addition to the list of Chicago tenors, and will be heard from. He is soloist at the First United Presbyterian Church at present.

A GENTLE ADIEU

It all happened in Upsals, Sweden, during the early days of Wilhelmj's artistic career. The young artist was greeted by a handful of music lovers, to whom he gave his very best, sadly surveying his meagre audience in the pauses.

The following morning the press heralded him as one of the greatest artists of his age. This late arrival of publicity brought hundreds of music lovers to the railroad station to bid him farewell. Wilhelmj was deeply touched by their imposing number and outbursts of enthusiasm, and expressed his sentiments in the following words:

"Friends, I thank you heartily and can assure you that next time I visit your city I will give my concert here in the railroad station and not in your concert hall."—From Helen Ware's "Scrap Book."

Doelling-Lund—Mae Doelling, piano, and Rene Lund, baritone, will give a joint recital at the Fine Arts Theater on March 7.

Henriette Weber

Piano Instruction Operatic Accompanying
1900 LINCOLN AVENUE TELEPHONE DIVERSEY 3185
Down Town Studios—Cosmopolitan School, Auditorium Bldg.

Thurber Hall

CAPACITY 200
FINE ARTS BUILDING, CHICAGO
FOR RECITALS, MUSICALES, DANCES, ETC.
W. Scott Thurber Art Galleries, Phone Harrison 1784

MARVIN HINSHAW

CONCERT BARITONE
Teacher of LYRIC DICTION KIMBALL HALL, Wabash 8335

ADA SLOAN WHITE, Reader
MARIAN CORYELL WEBSTER, Pianist

Joint Recitals, Original Programs. Residence Studio, 689 Broadway, Gary, Ind.

AUGUSTA ALBERTI MEEKER

CONTRALTO
Glen Dillard Gunn in the Tribune.—"A voice of great native beauty, of surprising range and adequate power."
59 E. Van Buren Street Tel. Wellington 1896

LOUIS KREIDLER

Concerts BARITONE Pupils
Oratorio Telephone Kenwood 627
4051 Calumet Avenue

H. WILHELM NORDIN

Baritone 324 North Spring Street
La Grange, Ill. CONCERT ORATORIO
RECITAL

Marie Hoover Ellis

Concert Pianist
Management, Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

J. PARNELL EGAN

CONCERT ORATORIO TENOR RECITAL 1351 Granville Avenue

W. Otto Miessner Dir. School of Music
Milwaukee State Normal
COMPOSER, CONDUCTOR and Teacher of Singing
Pupil of Edgar Stillman Kelley and Alexander Helmennann, Berlin
Res. 867 Shepard Av., Milwaukee, Wis.

H. B. BARTHOLOMEW

PIANO AND VOICE
Recitals Accompanist
502 Kimball Hall

VIRGIL PIANO CONSERVATORY

Misses Emma Lipp and Marion Blair displayed remarkable talent in their joint recital at the Country Life Permanent Exposition, Saturday afternoon, January 16. Both of these girls are members of the Artist Students' Class, personally conducted by Mrs. A. M. Virgil, and have been doing very intelligent work.

Upon the solid foundation of a practical fluent finger technic, Mrs. Virgil has built up their splendid tone and knowledge of the pedal, and last, but not least, she has inspired them with a sincere appreciation of the compositions studied. It was a notable achievement for each one of the young pianists to render sympathetically and effectively such a long list of widely different numbers.

Between parts one and two Mrs. Virgil delivered a short, concise lecture upon technical points of interest, including the use of the Tekniklavier as an aid to studying rhythm and velocity and memorizing of pieces. Misses Lipp and Blair played several exercises showing the results of this study.

The audience was enthusiastic in the expression of its approval, and applauded without stint.

The program was as follows:

Polonaise	MacDowell
Emma Lipp
Recollections of Home.....	S. B. Mills
Concert Polka	Bartlett
Marion Blair
Liebestraume	Liszt
Spring Night	Schumann-Liszt
Emma Lipp
Funeral March	Chopin
Rhapsodie, No. 4.....	Liszt
Marion Blair

Five Minutes' Talk.....Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Subject: "The Value of Practice Instruments in Piano Study." Illustrations by Emma Lipp and Marion Blair, on two "teks" (practice instruments), velocity varying from 600 to 1,152 notes per minute.

Romanza Passionato.....Mrs. A. M. Virgil
Black Key Etude.....Chopin

Emma Lipp
Nocturne (for left hand alone).....Scriabine
Staccato Etude.....Rubinstein

Marion Blair
Nocturne.....Chopin
Rhapsodie, No. 10.....Liszt

Emma Lipp

LEO ZELENKA-LERANDO

Some recent press comment:

Leo Zelenka-Lerando is composer as well as artist, as his splendid playing of his own "Improvisation" demonstrated. His appearance on the program gave a pleasure as marked as it was rare, because harpists are so infrequently heard on programs given here. An ensemble number, "The Smile of Spring" (Fletcher), creating heartiest applause, closed the program.—Jackson Citizen Press.

Leo Zelenka-Lerando, the harpist, gave a demonstration of that much-written-about but rarely heard instrument's possibilities. Easily called the masterpiece of his program was the Russian nocturne, a selection which best displayed the musical powers of the instrument. Hearing it one could realize the hold which it is said to have possessed, in the early days of instrumental music. This was heightened by the impressions following his playing of "Old Black Joe." The program would have suffered a decided loss with his contributions omitted.—Jackson Patriot.

Leo Zelenka-Lerando, harpist, captivated his audience. The naturally soft and rich tones of the harp were made richer and sweeter under his magic touch, and as the artist went through his several numbers, the audience was almost breathlessly silent.—Owasso American.

Leo Zelenka-Lerando, a noted harpist, who has received much applause in the cities of Europe, first rendered a "Fantasie," by Saint-Saens. His playing is marvelous and he was repeatedly encored. Among other selections were a improvisation by Mr. Lerando and a Russian nocturne by Joseph Klicka.—Owasso Evening Argus. (Advertisement.)

IN BRIEFER FORM

Hall—Edythe Pruyn Hall was accompanist for Frances Carey Libbe at the Athletic Club on February 14.

Claussen—Mme. Julia Claussen, contralto of the Chicago Grand Opera last year, appeared with the Symphony Orchestra last week.

Sinai Temple—The fifteenth concert by the orchestra will be given at Sinai Temple Sunday evening, February 21. Miss Nellie Wulfe, violiniste, will be the soloist.

Tenney—The Lewis Institute will present a pageant at the Auditorium on February 26, the music to be under direction of George L. Tenney.

Orchestra Concert—At Myrtle Masonic Temple the eleventh concert of the series under George Dasch will be given this evening with Alexander Zukowsky, violin, as soloist.

Western Conservatory—At the Western Conservatory in the Mallers Building a program will be given by pupils of Mr. Scott and Mr. Owens on Tuesday evening, February 23, at 8.

Cosmopolitan School—The Cosmopolitan School offers an ensemble program by pupils at the Auditorium Recital Hall this (Friday) evening and tomorrow at 2:30 pupils of Vivian Scott and other teachers will appear.

Moline—Lily Wadhams Moline officiated at the organ in the Grace M. E. Church Thursday evening during a contest between Grace Church and Wesley M. E., playing the "Fanfare," by Lemmens, and "The Deserted Farm," by MacDowell, for encore.

Ballman—Sunday afternoon a popular concert will be given by the orchestra under the direction of Martin Ballman. The soloists will be Ralph Ginsburg, violinist; Miss Jean White, soprano; Miss Grace Desmond, pianist; Miss Sophia Ginsburg, accompanist.

McCullough—Edith Ayers McCullough has taken the position of soloist in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Oak Park. She sang at a Nakama Club entertainment at the residence of Mrs. Louis E. Yager on Thursday evening.

Scofield—Julia Flaville, a pupil of Mrs. W. C. Scofield, will be soloist at a musicale and reception given this (Friday) evening at the residence of Mrs. Ellis Kirk Kerr in Oak Park. She will sing an Ardit number and a group of English songs.

Civic Music—February 21, Sherman Park, 3:30; Commonwealth-Edison Orchestra, Hamilton Park, 3:30; Minnie Fish, Griffin, Emmeran Stoeber and Leroy Shields, Goldstein Park, 3:30; Pauline Meyer, Eva Edwards and Hans Dressel, Dvorak Park, 8:00; chorus under direction of Albie Sladek.

A FINE EASTER SONG

In His Pity He Redeemed Us 3 Keys--G, F, Eb Special price 25c
(Fifty Cents)

THE FABLE---Piano solo for left hand alone. An excellent pedal piece, with beautiful melodies, outlined by a story (65c) Special price - - - - - 33c
(At your dealer's or direct from publishers, post paid, on receipt of special price.)

By ISABEL STEWART-NORTH PUBLISHED BY THE NORTH PUBLISHING CO., Bradford, Pa.

CLARENCE EDDY

Organ Dedications and Recitals
Address 510 Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago Tel. Douglas 9027

ROOT STUDIO

SEVENTH FLOOR, KIMBALL HALL

All the new ideas in photography. Mr. Root gives personal attention to each sitting.

Sandor S. Radanovits

Voice Production

Operatic Coaching

404 Athenaeum Bldg.

59 E. Van Buren St.

Florence Macbeth

PRIMA DONNA COLORATURA

Concert Direction, Daniel Mayer, London

A. J. Bernhardt, Congress Hotel, Chicago

Preiser Violin School

ALBERT LEO PREISER Director

Phone Austin 4043

STUDIOS

530 N. Pine Av., Austin
5407 S. Halsted St. and
2631 Washington Blvd

COLUMBUS AND CENTRAL OHIO

Fritz Kreisler appeared at Memorial Hall Monday evening, February 8.

Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, American pianist and composer, and Miss Marcella Craft, soprano, appeared February 9 in a joint recital which was well received by Columbus people.

Mrs. Wilbur Thoburn Mills gave an organ recital in the new Central Presbyterian Church in Zanesville recently.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will be at Memorial Hall February 25.

Professor K. H. Eschman, director of the Denison Conservatory of Music, has arranged a series of seven recitals to be given this spring. The feature of the series will be the annual May festival May 19 and 20.

The Wittenberg College Glee Club gave a successful concert at Trinity Lutheran Church in Springfield February 3.

It is probable that Evan Williams will appear at Mt. Vernon as soloist in the May Festival. A guarantee fund is being raised.

The Oberlin College Glee Club will give the annual home concert Saturday night, February 13.

Rebecca Davidson, concert pianiste of New York City, appeared on the Ohio Wesleyan School of Music series February 4. In recent years Miss Davidson has appeared many times with the Damrosch orchestra.

The four operas given in Columbus by the San Carlo Company were triumphs in every way. Fortune Gallo, the general manager, has shown remarkable ability in piloting such an exceptionally talented company through a strenuous season. Mme. Edvige Vaccari and Angelo Antola were the general favorites. "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "Tales of Hoffman" and "Aida" were the operas enjoyed. The company also appeared in Dayton, Springfield, Akron, Canton and other Ohio cities.

Maggie Teyte sings at Memorial Hall February 16 on the Lacey Quality series.

Franklin Riker, New York tenor, will sing at a St. Valentine's tea at the Lazarus Restaurant Saturday afternoon, February 13.

The Ohio State University Glee Club, under the direction of Professor A. R. Barrington, will give a home concert February 12.

The Ziegler-Howe Concert Company of Columbus is under contract for a several weeks' Chautauqua tour next summer for the Redpath-Brockway Company in Pennsylvania. The members of this company are Franc Ziegler, violinist; Charles T. Howe, flutist; Thomas E. Griselle, pianist, and Albert Armbruster, cellist.

"The Influence of the Folk Song" is the theme of a series of illustrated lectures being given by Dr. Alexander S. Thompson, director of the college of music in Ohio University at Athens.

Miss Katherine Gleason, assisted by Mrs. Arthur G. Ellis, appeared at Memorial Hall Sunday afternoon, February 7, at the Women's Music Club municipal concert series.

Bohumir Kryl and Company of Chicago are to begin an Ohio tour Monday, February 15. Josephine Kryl, violinist, and Marie Kryl, pianist, are two talented members of this company.

Thomas E. Griselle recently joined the J. Walter Wilson Company, as pianist, for a ten weeks' tour of central and western states.

Dr. Kunwald and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra will play February 15 at the Hartman Theater when Miss Helene Pugh makes her debut as concert pianiste.

The Princeton Players, featuring Dollie McDonnell, have been enjoying great successes in Warren, Youngstown, Niles and other Ohio cities.

Saturday evening, February 6, a piano-forte recital was presented by several pupils of Mrs. Lucille Pollard Carroll at her studio, 112 Hamilton avenue.

Anne Virginia Culbertson, who has returned to her native state and is now making her home in Delaware, O., has written "Down in Old Virginia," a southern song destined for great popularity.

Some of the noted musical companies to tour America next season under the direction of the Redpath Bureau (offices in Columbus and a dozen other cities) are: The Kaltenborn String Quartet and Elsie Baker, the C. Edward Clarke Concert Company, the Dolejsi Bohemian Orchestra and Signor Bartolotta, the Fidelio Grand Opera Company, the Haseltine Opera Company, the Savranoffs and the Kellogg-Haines Singing Party.

ORGANISTS' GUILD "HIGH JINKS"

Ask any of the thirty people who participated in the annual frolic of the Illinois Chapter of the A. G. O. whether they had a good time at the Brownleigh Club last Thursday evening and you will at once see the famous "smile that won't come off." Anything savoring of formality slipped off into a corner and hid itself, while the high-browed unbent themselves and poked good-natured fun at one another. Miss Tina Mae Haines led the carnival, and in her train of jesters and mummers were Walter Keller, John H. Norton, William Lester, Rosseter G. Cole, William Belknap and Albert Cotsworth. There was only one particular in which the endeavor was deficient. Organists may be able to play, but as a singing body they are nil—even in "Tipperary." Perhaps it was too simple and they would have done better in a Bach "Fugue."

If you wish to know who laughed loudest and longest, ask Miss Georgia Kober or Mrs. Permella Gale.

REED MILLER

Tenor

—AND—

NEVADA VAN DER VEER

Mezzo-Contralto

ARE RECOGNIZED THE COUNTRY OVER AS

Concert and Oratorio Singers of Very Exceptional Attainments

"The Tenor, Reed Miller, offered exceptional ability as an interpreter; his sustaining and uniting of tones being admirable; his enunciation clear, and his style musicianly and broad."

NEW YORK WORLD

"Madam Van der Veer was found to be in possession of a powerful voice, of good, even quality, which she uses judiciously and with a variety of effects."

NEW YORK TIMES

Now Under the Exclusive Management of LOUDON CHARLTON
Carnegie Hall, New York

Peoria Musical College

102-104 North Madison Avenue

PEORIA, ILLINOIS

Opens September 11

Strong Faculty

Excellent Equipment

For Catalog Address

FRANKLIN L. STEAD, Director

Treble Clef Quartette

300 Fine Arts Building

Tel. Harrison 2255

1st Soprano—Else Harthan Arendt
2nd Soprano—Edith Ayers McCullough
1st Alto—Permella Newby Gale
2nd Alto—Hazel Huntley
Director—Accompanist
TINA MAE HAINES

Mayme E. BolgerACCOMPANIST
1916 POTOMAC AVENUE Phone Humboldt 1257CAROLINE E. BUCKLEYCONCERT PIANIST and TEACHER
315 Pleasant Street, Oak Park 426 Fine Arts BuildingGLADYS HAWKINSPIANIST—Teacher of Leschetizky Method
815 WILSON AVENUE TEL. EDGEWATER 8163ANNA AGNES
HERBERT M. BAILEYSoprano
Baritone
JOINT RECITALS—ORATORIO 522 Kimball HallBetsy M. HowlandPIANIST and TEACHER
Just returned from abroad Studio: Chicago Piano College, Kimball HallMARGARET
LAWSON MULFORDCONCERT CONTRALTO PUPILS
871 FERRY PARK AVENUE DETROIT, MICHIGANMAUDE
FENLON BOLLMANCONCERT SOPRANO
STUDIO, 721 FINE ARTS BLDG. Personal Address, Rockford, Ill.CORLEW MABELORATORIO CONCERT CONTRALTO
3958 Drexel Boulevard RECITAL
Tel. Drexel 4674MELBA MAE FRENCHSOPRANO SOLOIST, VIOLINIST, READER, PIANIST
Concerts Recitals Receptions
Residence 5632 Wayne Av., Edgewater Telephone Edgewater 8322MARIE YAHNCONCERTS ORATORIO OPERA
CONTRALTO
849 LAKESIDE PLACE TEL. RAVENSWOOD 2319Edith Ayers McCulloughMezzo-Soprano Oratorio Recital Concerts
Bliss School of Music, Oak Park, Ill.Doelling Pianist
Teacher

4141 N. Hermitage Av

George Nelson Holt, BassoTEACHER OF VOICE 509 S. WABASH AVENUE
Harrison 2580BERTHA HART PIANISTCOSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC
Ninth Floor Auditorium Building Chicago, IllinoisLeo Zelenka - LerandoCONCERT HARPIST
Care of MUSIC NEWSDORIS PFEIFFERVIOLINIST MEZZO-SOPRANO
PUPILS ACCEPTED Charles City IowaLucy HartmanCONTRALTO Oratorio—Recital—Church
2422 S. LAWNDALE AVENUEThe Artist and His Art

By KATHARINE S. BROWN

(Copyright, 1915, by Katharine S. Brown)

VIII. STUDIO-ART: TEACHING

"Take the desire of teaching—the entirely unselfish and noble instinct for telling to those who are ignorant, the truth we know, and guarding them from the errors we see them in danger of; there is no nobler, no more constant instinct in honorable breasts."—Ruskin.

It is a sort of foregone conclusion that a good public artist cannot be a good teacher and that a good teacher seldom becomes adequate in public work. There is no relentless rule and reason for this exclusion of the one from the other. Only each is a life-work and a life-study in itself and one man rarely does more than one life-work supremely well. Time rather than any limitation of artistic possibility is the reason for this; though no doubt a predominant gift for one over the other is often determining.

However that may be, it is too often the case that an artist, disappointed in his attempts to deal successfully with public work where his preference lies, sinks back upon the studio. He looks upon that of all places as his stronghold where he can assuredly be successful by virtue of his mastery of his subject alone. Recognizing his inadequacy in dealing with the audience-subject, though rarely understanding it, he, nevertheless, assumes that he has the right and the ability to prepare others for public work. And so the public failure and public inadequacy among otherwise proficient workmen, multiplies itself and replenishes the earth constantly with disappointed artists.

On the other hand, the artist with the true teaching gift, however successful he may be in public work, gives to the studio the first fruits of his thought and labor; and he exemplifies and justifies his teaching by his public as well as his studio art.

The relation between teacher and pupil is as fixed and unalterable as is that between artist and audience. Each, in both cases, is obviously impossible without the other. And just as the audience is, as a rule, a disinterested and credulous body when it comes to the artist, so is the pupil disinterested and credulous when he seeks out a teacher. His mental process is similar to that of the audience. For some or for no tangible and explainable reason he comes to a particular artist-teacher only because primarily he has faith in him so far as the mastery of the subject is concerned. The artist's way of dealing with an audience and the teacher's way of dealing with a pupil becomes an index by which his entire professional capacity may be justly standardized.

What then is the attitude of the true teacher toward his chosen work? What is his aim? and what may justly be required of him above and beyond that fundamental requirement, which in this case as in public work, may be taken for granted—technical mastery of his subject?

A true teacher is a master-workman. He is a maker of artists and a maker of men. A man may find in teaching an outlet for his whole energy. Through it he may give vent to his greatest gifts. By means of it he may express his greatest thoughts. It may become to him the egress of his consummated talents, training, and desires. The public artist addresses the public mind "awakening in the beholder the same sense of universal relation and power which the work evinced in the artist," Emerson states. The teacher tangibly procures the next step "—and its highest effect is to make new artists."

No more inspiring task, nor nobler labor can any man assign himself than to teach. The gift of impartation is that which not only unfolds the subject to the mind of the pupil but simultaneously opens the pupil's thoughts to discern and to receive the subject; which cognizes the line of the pupil's greatest receptivity, and by means of that prepares the way and fertilizes the ground. The whole aim of teaching is to set the pupil free. A pupil is well taught whose capacities have been liberated through sound training of all his talents and who becomes therefore independent of his teacher as a person, and the teaching as a working principle becomes sufficient unto his needs.

True teaching is liberation. It may enlarge a teacher's constituency but its aim is not that. It may furnish good advertising material but that is not the end sought. It may prove the greatness of a teacher's method by means of a gifted pupil's ability to play or sing, but that is not the purpose of teaching. Its purpose is only, and at all times, and under all circumstances to open out "a way whence the imprisoned splendor may escape," and to do it by sound and sure technical training.

The teacher is always under greater obligation, ethically considered, to the pupil than is the pupil to the teacher. The true teacher invariably feels this and endeavors to live up to the moral responsibility more literally and far better than the average sincere pupil does, who should indeed feel an enduring gratitude, deep as his own art's life, to the teacher who has fulfilled the obligations of a teacher to him. It is a trite and foolish saying too often heard, "I owe my teacher nothing. I paid him for everything he ever gave me!" That is impossible in art. Money pays a teacher for his time—never anything more than that. It never could pay for a great gift loyally expressed. It never could pay for patience and tender nurturing through clouded days. And too often a pupil forgets. It can only be regretfully added, however, that the teaching ranks are overcrowded with so-called "teachers" who are vastly overpaid when they have received money for their time.

The studio should always be to the pupil a sort of haven, a place of inspiration as well as a work-shop and a crucible. It should never be a social-center, an advertising medium nor a business agency. It is not a place where the teacher can prove what he himself can do, but a place where the teacher proves to the pupil what the pupil can do. The spurious teacher stands in front of his pupil bidding him follow into the gorgeous realm of denatured art he has entered into by means of the press. The true teacher is always behind the pupil and at his shoulder, pointing out the way—not his way but the way of truth in art, counseling, protecting and upholding him. To give the pupil room—plenty of room to be himself—to be the pupil's friend, to command through the consciousness of the dignity of the work that respect which allows any sincere confidence yet admits of no familiarity, which lifts the pupil to an understanding of relationships and demands from him a wholesome reverence for the work and for the one who presents it, is to establish a true teaching relationship.

For all this is proffered, not in homage to a teacher's authority but because, being a true teacher great in himself and aglow with a great gift, he taught.

———

SING BY WIRELESS

Train the Mind of the Singer Instead of the Physical Voice—New Method of Producing Tone by Principles Involved in Wireless Telegraphy—Will Save Singers Two-thirds of Time and Expense of Study

New discoveries of a method of singing, founded on similar principles to those used in wireless telegraphy and producing remarkable results in one-fourth to one-third the time required heretofore, are the claims made by Marvin Hinshaw, director of the Hinshaw Conservatory of this city.

MARVIN HINSHAW

The new system makes it impossible for the singer to force the voice with the muscles of the throat or mouth, the most common trouble nearly all singers have to contend with, or to sing what is known as breathy tones, but develops a clear, ringing, resonant tone, of great ease, beauty and power, and can be successfully applied by any well-educated singer or teacher when they learn and understand the process by which the results are attained.

This new discovery makes the teaching of singing and the art of singing itself almost entirely a mental instead of a physical training. The new process of tone production has been carefully worked out and thoroughly tested, and the immediate change in the singer's voice is very marked and is creating great excitement among those who have been investigating it. Mr. Hinshaw is demonstrating the method to singers and teachers who wish to learn it, ten to fourteen hours a day, and they are able to begin to apply it at once, both in their singing and teaching.

———

Hughes—Violet Martens Hughes, accompanist, who appeared on programs recently at Arch Club, Red Room, La Salle, and banquet at Congress Hotel, will assist Miss Blish in giving program in Ivory Room, at Mandel's, Saturday, February 20.

ALBERT SPALDING

Some recent press comment of Albert Spalding:

Albert Spalding, American violinist, opened his first chamber music recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall with a work by a talented compatriot.

For many in yesterday's audience, no doubt, Carpenter's sonata for piano and violin was new. A few years ago Mischa Elman played the work in the very same room.

It made an agreeable impression at that time as it did again on this occasion; thanks to the performance of Albert Spalding and his associate at the piano, Andre Benoist.

Nothing reflects greater credit on Albert Spalding than his unswerving devotion to high ideals, but Spalding has always shown that his ambition was to win legitimate recognition in a legitimate way, and he has succeeded not only in increasing the respect he inspired from the beginning, but in approaching closer every year to the artistic goal he has in mind.

To give the artistic satisfaction he gave yesterday even to the most critical listeners is by no means a small achievement, however, in a season that has brought so many of the world's greatest virtuosi to this side of the Atlantic.—New York Press, January 15, 1915.

Mr. Spalding's program began with John Alden Carpenter's "Sonata in G," a work of great beauty in the modern manner, which the violinist played with sympathy and understanding.—New York Telegram, January 15, 1915.

A "Sonata" by John Alden Carpenter was the first number on Albert Spalding's Aeolian Hall recital program yesterday afternoon. Mr. Spalding played the "Sonata" in a way to inspire gratitude in the heart of its composer. He also played interestingly the well-known and ever-delightful Bach "Suite in E Major."—New York Evening Post, January 15, 1915.

The best thing about Spalding is that this clean cut American has been seen and heard all over Europe.—New York Evening Sun, January 15, 1915.

The Carpenter "Sonata" has considerable originality and a melodiousness that is not forced, and Mr. Spalding played it with conviction.—New York Evening Journal, January 15, 1915.

In the afternoon Albert Spalding gave his second violin recital of the season, playing John Alden Carpenter's "Sonata in G," Bach's "Suite in E Major" and shorter pieces by Schumann, Schubert, Franck, Paganini and himself. . . . Spalding's own composition, a "Scherzo Giocoso" and a "Berceuse," had more to recommend them, particularly from the violinist's point of view. He closed with his arrangement of Paganini's brilliant "Caprice No. 24," to which several encores had to be added.—New York Evening Mail, January 15, 1915.—(Advertisement.)

———

THE WORK OF OPERA-CONCERT AND ORATORIO SOCIETY

The Bertrand de Bernyz Opera-Concert and Oratorio Society of New York City, of which Professor Bertrand de Bernyz is president, and which is organized for the purpose of aiding needy American talent and to promote grand opera in English and foreign tongues, gave a concert Saturday evening in Brooklyn. This concert was under the auspices of the Wage Earners Theater League and Brownsville Labor Lyceum. There was a soloist ensemble of forty voices, all pupils of Professor Bertrand de Bernyz. The principal soloists of the evening were the following: Misses Matilda Oberd, Marguerite Powers, Anna Nebel, Katherine Lieber, Katherine Nicastro, Jane LaBranch, Marguerite Le-feber, Mrs. Moltini, sopranos; Misses Myrtle Stitt and Mary Esther Corcoran, contraltos; Mr. Wendell Hart, tenor; Mr. Oscar Sayers and Reynolds Whitney, basses. This was the first of a series of concerts for the people to enlarge the interest in grand opera and classical music in the English and foreign tongues. The musical leader was Mr. Paolo Giaquinto and Mr. Luigi di Francesco conducted the ensemble numbers. Mr. Giaquinto also played a group of piano selections. A very large and enthusiastic audience enjoyed the very fine program.

Bertha Beeman

Contralto - Teacher of Voice

Northwestern University School of Music, Evanston

MR. and MRS.

TENOR SOLOIST

Karl Buren Stein

DRAMATIC READER

RECITALS-PUPILS

STEEN MUSICAL-DRAMATIC CONSERVATORY, SUITES 54-55 AUDITORIUM BUILDING, CHICAGO

DAVID BAXTER, Scotch Basso

With BUSH CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CHICAGO
RECITALS CONCERT ORATORIO

The C. W. Best Artist Series

SEÑOR ANTONIO SALA

M. EMILE FOLLMER

HELEN WATSON POWERS

HELEN DESMOND

'Cello

Tenor

Soprano

Piano

M. ZELENKA-LARENDO

MARGUERITE AUSTIN

HAZEL DELL NEFF

Harp

Violin

Soprano

MRS. FENETTA SARGENT HASKELL, Reader, in George Middleton's "Nowadays"

SEASON OF 1914-15

Louise George

Children's Harmony

Chicago Piano College

HERMAN DEVRIES

Formerly Baritone with the Metropolitan Opera House, New York; Covent Garden, London; Grand Opera and Opera Comique, Paris; Theatre Royal de la Monnaie, Brussels, Etc.

Residence 5438 Harper Avenue

Telephone Midway 8383

VOCAL

TEACHER

Mrs. Herman Devries

STUDIOS: 518-528 Fine Arts Bldg.

ASSOCIATE VOCAL INSTRUCTOR

CHICAGO, ILL

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton School

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, 'Cello
4053 Warwick Avenue Tel. Irving 3040

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange. 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
CONCERTS AND TEACHING VIOLIN
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bldg

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

MRS. GALE AT HEMINGTON RECITAL

Dr. Francis Hemington provided another collection of organ numbers for his recital at Epiphany Church on Monday evening. The organ was in good shape save one or two buzzing pedal notes and the top note in the reed he used to close the "Last Hope," which was out of tune sadly. On each program there are some pieces marked with an asterisk, to indicate that they are played for the first time in these recitals. For this concert Mr. Hemington used an elaborate but not altogether convincing "Toccata" of Federlein. Somehow it just misses being something big and splendid, by certain vagaries. Harry Rowe Shelley contributed an "Ave Maria," smooth, fluent, musical, and with the almost invariable touch about it that makes it "get over" and deliver the kindly message this composer generally has in mind. Cesar Franck's "Piece Heroique," poetic and ingratiating, and Bonnet's "Spring Song," brilliant with color, were also on the list.

Mrs. Permelia Newby Gale was the soloist. She was in capital voice, and the tones, with their emphasis and purpose, made good use of the acoustic properties of the church. The texts to her two songs came out clearly and distinctly and no shade of meaning was lost in the inflection with which she compassed them. She used Mrs. Salter's "Gethsemane," so rich and varied in its well worked out setting, and Stevenson's superb "Salutation to the Dawn," easily one of the best songs coming from an American pen. Mrs. Gale sings it con amore, its tensely envelops her, and the phrases come out with a dramatic fervor. Mr. Hemington gave her a masterful accompaniment and together they made the song something not easily forgotten.

During Lent the recitals are suspended, but are replaced, in a measure, by short organ programs given twenty minutes before the evening service.

ALBERT COTSWORTH.

MENDELSSOHN CLUB

The Chicago Mendelssohn Club will give the following program at Orchestra Hall, Thursday, February 25:

Strike the Anvil, Make It Sound.....Alberto Randegger
Valentine Horatio W. Parker
Alexander A. Herbert Brewster
Du bist die Ruh' Schubert
Auf dem Wasser zu singen Schubert
Ich hab' mir mein Kindel Hermann
Schlagende Herzen Strauss
Farewell to Minka
Russian song harmonized by William Rees
A Toast (to Woman) William G. Hammond
Song of the Viking George W. Chadwick
Omnipotence, Op. 70 Frederick Stevenson
Soprano—Miss Florence Hinkle

INTERMISSION

Spring Night, Op. 44 Max Filke
Soprano—Miss Florence Hinkle
The Northland
Ghosts } Op. 40 William Lester
A Song of Joy
Life and Death Coleridge-Taylor
Under the Lindens Marschal-Loepke
I Know My Love Old Irish
Summertime Ward Stephens
The Chafer and the Flower W. H. Veit
Carpathian Folk Song Patty Stair
Song of May, Op. 23, No. 2. Frank van der Stuecken

Miller—Mr. H. Ernyst Miller gave two pupils' recitals at his studio, 409 Kimball Hall, on Lincoln's Birthday, the hours being 2:30 and 8. A total of forty-eight pupils appeared on the programs.

ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF MUSIC, 2831 WASHINGTON BOULEVARD

The following students gave the program at the Pupils' Recital Club meeting last Saturday afternoon: Ellsworth Waters, Gladys Hughes, Florence Atkinson, Shirley Biggs, Gladys Wagner, Bonnie Donaldson, Clarence Fine, Roy Casper, Elmer Schweikle, Paul Currier, Lucille Linneman, Helen Golding, Isabel Barenz and Carl Wagner.

The following students will give the program next Tuesday evening at the college recital hall: Genevieve Godfrey, Adolph Kraus, Lucille Linneman, Gladys Hughes, Bonnie Donaldson, Cora Webster, Leah Rubin, William Learn, Clarence Fine, Gladys Wagner, Carl Wagner, Roy Casper, Florence Atkinson, John McArthur, Ellsworth Waters, Francis McMaster, Dorothy Ferney, Shirley Biggs and Miss Myrtle Sassman of the faculty.

The next recital will be given on Friday evening of next week at the college.

WANT ADVERTISEMENTS

(Advertisements under this head will hereafter be accepted at 20 cents a line.)

EXPERIENCED CONTRALTO desires church position; address A, Music News, or phone 3952 Austin.

TO RENT—Time in studio; on account of an extended concert tour, will rent time in a magnificently appointed lake front studio; Fine Arts Bldg.; for half price; address care Music News.

HAYDN OWENS

Pianist, Accompanist, Musical Director
2112 Washington Boulevard Tel. Seeley 1147

T. Francis Hughes
TENOR Hinshaw Conservatory, Kimball Hall, Chicago

SABA DOAK CONCERTS
ORATORIO RECITALS
SOPRANO Plaza Hotel, Chicago
Tel. Superior 2680

LYRAVINE VOTAW
CONTRALTO Recitals, Concerts, Instruction
Studio 103 Auditorium Bldg., Tues. & Fri. Res. 6611 Woodlawn Av.

J. E. Wilford
PIANO - VOICE
KIMBALL HALL and MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

ALMA BECK CONTRALTO
CONCERTS—ORATORIO
294 McCormick Place, Cincinnati, Ohio

JULIE MANIERRE
SOPRANO
CONCERTS RECITALS ORATORIO PUPILS
1507 Dearborn Parkway Tel. Superior 2287

MARIE EDWARDS
PIANIST AND TEACHER
Illinois College of Music, 2831 Washington Blvd., Chicago
Phone Kedzie 228

IDA MELCHER
TEACHING SOPRANO CONCERTS
4725 MILWAUKEE AV. TEL. IRVING 5710

PHILIP SPOONER HAS SOMETHING TO SAY

The prominent young American tenor touches upon some pertinent and interesting points relative to singing:

Philip Spooner is possessed of decidedly individual views and tastes concerning the art of singing, of which this prominent young American tenor is a brilliant and conscientious exponent.

Mr. Spooner's success in the concert field during the past several years is, it might be stated, the result of adhering to an ideal in the form of the best principles and traditions governing vocal lore and science, as well as maintaining a careful observation of the loftiest aims and purposes involved in the whole scheme of music.

Mr. Spooner is mentally alert at all times, a necessary asset, of course, and therein is to be found another vital reason for this singer's steadily expanding activities and prominence before the public.

Philip Spooner is not alone a musician of established repute, but is also blessed with the gift for painting. This interesting fact inspired a Musical Courier representative, during a recent chat with Mr. Spooner, to propound to him this question:

"What prompted you to choose of these two arts a musical career?"

"In the first place," replied Mr. Spooner, "I have sung since I was three years old. Song had been the dominant force in me always, and it was difficult to think of anything else for long at a time. The only possible rival to music in my affections was painting, which I have studied all my life. It might be well to add here that in the distant future, after my public singing work is finished, it is my purpose to devote the balance of my life to painting.

"When I came to New York from the west, it was for the purpose of following the career of a professional painter and to pursue the study of music merely as an accomplishment. Gradually, however, while doing a portrait my mind would constantly revert to music. The desire to concentrate my whole energies on the latter study finally conquered and I surrendered unconditionally to the moving impulse of my life.

"You ask me," continued the tenor, "how I have attained success? If it can be said that success really has been attained by me at all thus far in my brief career, I would say that it is due to several factors which, to me, are the most important ones in the success of any young artist.

"In the first place, I did not make my debut in public or even sing in small drawing room affairs until I felt certain of having studied sufficiently long to be really prepared; at least as well prepared as a student can be. I did not feel prepared, as so many do, while my voice was uneven in quality, that is to say, while one tone was too open and another too closed, etc. I at least endeavored to match all the tones of my voice as one would the stones in a necklace.

"Secondly, continued Mr. Spooner, "I did not attempt songs that were not suited to me just because others had always sung them, or tried to. Thirdly, I was never satisfied with anything I did, nor am I now for that matter, despite what anyone says in a complimentary way, be he friend or unbiased critic. I am my own severest critic, and the fact that some tones in my voice, while singing a song, may occasionally please me, does not cause me to lose my sense of proportion for a moment and make me forget that in certain phrases of the song I did not fully realize either my own ideals or those of the composer, I never wholly do. This keeps me working, working, working, and I glory in it; it is not drudgery to me, it is my life.

"Many young singers depend upon the natural beauty and freshness of the voice for success," Mr. Spooner declared. "That brings applause and some dollars for a while, but when the first bloom of the voice is worn off, what is there left? A few dazzling notes, perhaps, if the voice ever was of exceptional natural beauty, and that is all. The beautiful phrasing, the finished enunciation, the light and shade, in fact the real art of singing which should carry the singer successfully through middle life and make him always worth listening to, is not there.

"My advice to other young artists," as you ask it, said Mr. Spooner to the interviewer, "would be: Do not criticize the work of other singers as severely as you do your own. Do not copy the faults in the great singers, but only their virtues. Do not think that you can sing as well as a Caruso, a Sembrich or other renowned stars; just try it. I predict that you can not. Do not be so pleased and satisfied with yourself that you cannot brook to hear criticism of your work. Do not fail to listen to your own voice as though you were listening to that of another. In short, qualify yourself to be a real critic by constant study and hearing the best in music, and then be your own most exacting critic."

The interviewer next asked Mr. Spooner whether or not he found this to be a satisfactory season, to which the tenor replied:

"I have already been on two concert tours, each of which covered several thousand miles, and on each appearance I received my guarantee. To most artists this would represent success, especially as the present season is deemed by many to be an off one.

"Yes, I have already sung in New York three times this season and have other engagements in the metropolis and its vicinity during the present season."—Musical Courier.

W. R. SPALDING CONGRATULATES HANNA BUTLER

HARVARD UNIVERSITY DIVISION OF MUSIC
5 Berkeley Place, Cambridge, Mass.,
January 25, 1915.

Mrs. Hannah Butler,
Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

My dear Mrs. Butler,

I take great pleasure in stating that at the recent recital, which you gave at Harvard University under the auspices of the department of music, you showed yourself to be a singer of unusual excellence in every department of your art. Your voice is beautifully placed and is the best possible testimonial of your own well known method of voice training. Your clearness and ease in enunciation are remarkable features of your singing, in fact, every word in the four different languages in which you sang

ALBERT BORROFF accepts pupils in all branches of singing. He shows the beginner how to use the voice properly, the amateur how to sing better, and the professional to add finish and style to interpretation.

Studio 504 Kimball Hall

HOURS 10 TO 3

Phones Wabash 8021, Kenwood 837

could be distinctly heard. Your program was a varied one and you were equally at home in the artistic interpretation of standard songs from German, French, Norwegian and Italian literature. Above all, Mrs. Butler, you have that indefinable, but indispensable quality for real success, personal magnetism, and your beautiful singing deserves every encouragement.

(Signed) W. R. SPALDING.

THE APOLLO CLUB

On Monday evening, February 22, at Orchestra Hall, the Apollo Club of 300 members, under direction of Harrison Wild, will sing Schmitt's "Forty-seventh Psalm" for the first time in the west and Cowan's "The Veil" for the first time in America. The soloists will be Leonora Allen, Frances Ingram, Warren E. Proctor and Andrea Sarto. Assisting soloists will be Hazel Huntley and Grant Kimbell.

Brueckner—Mr. Carl Brueckner will give a cello recital at the Myrtle Masonic Temple, 4240 Irving Park boulevard, on Tuesday evening, March 2. He will be assisted by Miss Jennette London, pianist.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT M. BAILEY IN SONG PROGRAM

The tenth program of the Hamilton Park Field House series of programs being given by Mr. Thomas N. MacBurney was presented on Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Bailey, baritone and soprano.

A delightful feature of the work of these young artists is the fact that they have a large repertoire of duets and have gained great facility and a fine ensemble in this mode of expression.

The voices blend beautifully and the interpretative thought of the two, as well as their methods of vocal art, are so closely analagous that the effect is, in every case, one of absolute beauty and fine effect.

"The Hunt" (Huhn) made a gay opening number and "Pronta io son," from the Donizetti "Don Pasquale," which closed the program, proved to be a most striking piece of ensemble also, while "Birdling" (Rubinstein) and "Give Me Thy Hand," from "Don Giovanni" (Mozart), used midway of the program, added still further variety and interest.

Mrs. Bailey, for her greater number, sang "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's "Don Carlos," with much display of vocal facility and good musical style. For her group she sang works of Foerster, Newton, Mayhew and Mannes, excelling particularly in "Love's Echo" (Newton) and "May Morning" (Mannes). Mrs. Bailey has a very sweet voice, a correct and musicianly style, good presence and fine enunciation.

Mr. Bailey, for his greater number, sang "Rolling in Foaming Billows," from "The Creation," with splendid style, and in his group of lesser numbers was thoroughly convincing also. "By the Gaily Circling Glass," by Arne, proved to be a quaint old song, fine for Mr. Bailey's voice, and in "Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind," by Sargeant, he disclosed real virtuosity of voice and style.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have good voices and much musicianship, and should take high rank among the young singers of Chicago. They will shortly go on a brief concert trip to the west and should meet with pronounced success.

Accompaniments of splendid quality were furnished by Miss Grace Grove, who has no superiors in her particular line of work.

C. E. W.

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA

In its Orchestra Hall, Chicago, program, Sunday, February 28, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Emil Oberhoffer, will present the "Fidelio" overture (Beethoven), symphony in E Minor, Op. 27 (Rachmaninoff), concerto B Minor (Tchaikowsky) and the tone poem, "Don Juan," by Strauss. Katherine Goodson will be soloist.

Pinch—Alice Miriami Pinch made a most successful debut in Saviglione, Italy. She sang Violetta in "La Traviata" six nights. She will undoubtedly remain in Italy for some time singing in opera before she returns to America. Miss Pinch sang a number of times in Chicago, having studied here with some of the prominent teachers. Her "honeur" night was on December 11, and she received a real ovation, and many flattering press notices.

Anna Groff-Bryant

STUDIO OF VOCAL ART

606 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

The Anna Groff-Bryant System of Rounded-Out Vocal Education is now fully launched at LOMBARD COLLEGE, GALESBURG, ILLINOIS, under the personal direction of its founder. At the College: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. In Chicago: Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

For full particulars address

ANNA GROFF-BRYANT

606 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill.

GEORGE G. EMERSON

TEACHER OF PIANO

THE ARCADE CLEVELAND, OHIO

GUSTAF HOLMQUIST

BASSO

304 Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

Julia Claussenius

TEACHING MEZZO-SOPRANO RECITAL

Specialty of Programs of Children's Songs

5841 Prairie Av. Phone Normal 1346

GERTRUDE

Pupils 5 years Zeisler
5 years Leschetizky

The Brooks-Evans
Building

Minneapolis, Minn.

CORNELIA

For years with
Heermann and Sevcik

CLEOPHAS

Have Returned from Europe
and are Open for Engagements

Address, Kirsti Cleophas

Kensett, Iowa

GIUSEPPE FABBRINI

PIANIST

Mgt. Jessamine E. Allen, Lahee Bureau Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

Dr. Thomas M. Mendsen

TENOR VOCAL INSTRUCTION
Western Conservatory Malters Bldg.

Leonora Allen

SOPRANO University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Michigan
Chicago Address, 904 Lakeview Bldg.

J. S. FEARIS & BRO.

Publishers of the FEARIS and other COMPOSITIONS

4547 N. St. Louis Avenue

MILDRED IRENE ROMSDAHL

SOPRANO

Concerts Church Recitals Oratorio
2155 Pierce Avenue Tel. Humboldt 1007

Lida BROWNING WHITE

ACCOMPANIST, COMPOSER, TEACHER

GARY, INDIANA PHONE 1345

Rubee Wilson DeLamarter

SOLO SOPRANO

Fourth Presbyterian Church

JOHN RANKL

BARITONE

608 Fine Arts Building

LOUISE HARRISON SLADE

Contralto

Concert Oratorio Recital

1205 North State Street Tel. North 5718

FREDERICA DOWNING GERHARDT

CONTRALTO

Oratorio Concert Recital
709 South Harvey Av., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 1478

Music in America

LOS ANGELES

It is our pleasure to be especially favored with some remarkably good talent and ambitious students who have come somewhat earlier from Europe to their home country, due to the war across the Atlantic.

Miss Molly Byerly Wilson, who has spent seven years abroad in the vocal work and studying for opera in German and Italian, gave us a song recital the past week which displayed a voice of excellent power and quality, well placed and under fine control. She lists herself as a contralto, but has a compass which would enable her to do fine work in the songs for a dramatic mezzo-soprano. She is especially satisfactory in her English diction and clear in foreign texts. She opened her program with Handel's "Laschia ch'io Pianga," from "Rinaldo." Her German selections were from Strauss, Franz and Brahms. Perhaps the most effective was the "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's "Don Carlos." We are pleased to observe she saw fit to recognize American composers as worthy of a hearing from an accomplished artist. Besides a Henschel, Chadwick and Lohr number in English, she gave from local composers Roy Lamont Smith's "Heart and Soul," Frank H. Colby's "Destiny" and Grace Adele Freebey's "O Golden Sun," all meeting with enthusiastic reception from her fitting rendition. Miss Wilson, at several public performances, has been so favorably received she will become a popular favorite. Mr. Will Garroway was an efficient helper as accompanist.

This, her debut, was made on an evening while a torrential downpour hindered, yet a fair audience greeted the singer, with no regrets for weathering the heaviest rain storm of the season.

The Musicians' Club of Los Angeles celebrated the first anniversary of their organization with a banquet at the Hollenbeck hostelry, January 29, for whom some 150 plates were set, for actual members and special invited guests, visiting personages, some public-spirited business men who believe in music, the press and impresarios, and star artists. It was the pleasure of the Los Angeles correspondent of the Chicago Music News to be thus favored, and my opinion is that more of these "get-together" fellowship meetings would make a larger, more magnanimous spirit of helpfulness than the too common segregation of the so-called musical profession. The all-sufficient and sumptuous banquet was followed by well-prepared papers and off-hand speeches, stories and humor from the parties, so well introduced by Mr. Thomas Taylor Drill, who acted as chairman and toastmaster of the evening. Subjects: "Our Officers," by the ex-president, Mr. Clifford Lott; "Our Guests," by the incoming president, Morton F. Mason; "Our Club," by Father W. H. Lott, the original guide in clubdom; "Our Beloved California," by the author of the great mission play, Mr. John S. McGroarty, and his song of "Welcome." "A Musician's Idea of Business" was wittily given by Mr. Vernon Spencer and was full of suggestion as to haphazard, unbusiness-like methods employed by teachers and artists. The following talk by Mr. Herbert L. Cornish, a live wire in real estate business, on the subject of "A Business Man's Idea of Music." It abounded in practical hints that might even place a musician on "easy street," if persistently practiced. The last, "Musical Reminiscences," given by the first honorary member of the club, the well-known Mr. George P. Upton, to Chicago Tribune readers, who is seen annually in our mild winter resort. His paper was most interesting to the younger of the profession, covering the ground from early opera and oratorio presentation and the teachers who prepared the artists, down to the present-day doings, and the growth of music and musical education for the masses. As a postlude to the program, a fine musical program was given to all who could remain, which led on to the wee small hours of the night, which necessitated long waits for "owl" trains, or a sojourn in the heart of the city. The artists were Clifford Lott and Anthony Carlson, in a group each of German songs; two string quartet numbers by the Tandler Quartet, Messrs. Tandler, Copp, Simonsen and Karnbach, Mr. Spencer at the piano for his own songs and others, and a fine violin solo performance by Julius Bierlich of the Symphony Orchestra. Combination versus segregation is the spirit motto of the Musician's Club. May it continue to grow.

Two organ recitals this week worthy of mention are the Sunday afternoon at the Trinity, by G. A. Mortimer, late of London, now in Pasadena, Cal. The program was of the best popular works of great writers for the organ. The program was historically outlined and described, serving an educational purpose as well. He has a masterful control of the great instrument. Mr. Edwin House, a popular baritone, was the assisting soloist, who sang Handel's "Arm, Arm, Ye Brave" and "Lord God of Abraham" as an encore, also two compositions of the organist, Mr. Mortimer, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul" and "Children of God," both very serviceable and well sung by Mr. House. The other recital was the fourth of a series of six in Christ Episcopal Church, by the organist, Archibald Sessions. Some prominent people are the patrons of this course, which is free to all. The number in attendance proves a goodly degree of interest in this grade and class of music. Mrs. Catherine Shank was the soprano soloist on this occasion. Mr. Sessions plays with painstaking care and authority. "Hear Ye, Israel," from "Elijah," was the opening song of Mrs. Shank, with organ accompaniment, both well done.

The Los Angeles Community Music Center, under the directorship of Professor Howell Isaac, a late arrival from Oregon or Washington, is establishing concerts where pupils of good attainment may have an appearance to sections where a paid artist could not be secured. A fund for such work is being raised, through societies who believe in the values of music in community life. Some popular artists are aiding in giving good programs for its support.

The monthly banquet last night at the Gamut Club was one of special interest. The guests of honor were Efrem Zimbalist, the youthful Russian violinist; Mr. Samuel Chezinoff, his accompanist and pianist; Irma G. Wright, a dramatic soprano; our Chicago favorites, Mr. and Mrs. James (Sibyl Sammis) MacDermid, composer and dramatic soprano soloist; Miss Ida Selby, pianist of Berlin study; Margaret Jarman, Los Angeles contralto of operatic fame and now making a great reputation in the National Grand Opera Company, closing their three weeks' season; also Mlle. Rainoldi and Signor Picco of the same company. These and several of our own after the banquet gave a free program. Those were Miss Peycke, humorous piano and song artist, in pianolog; Miss Ebert, as accompanist; Mr. Carlson, as baritone soloist; Mr. William Phelps, as violinist; Mrs. Anna Schulman, accompanist; also Miss Byerly Wetson, contralto, with Mr. Will Garroway at the piano; Mrs. Myrtle Prybil Colby, in a cycle of dainty, cute songs from Mr. F. H. Colby's cycle, "In a California Garden." They are well written, beautifully sung by Mrs. Colby, and played by the author in his choicest skill in playing. Then, until a late hour, being wives and ladies' night, the dance went on, in a merry round, in happy merriment.

The Mission Play opened for the year at San Gabriel Mission House Sunday evening, and every tourist will wish to see and hear the MacGroorty story of the "mission" work of the early settlement of historic California.

The National Grand Opera Company has been, in most every way, a success, the attendance remarkably good and even, orchestra and artists as good as many of the best, and may be a continuous operatic fact on the Pacific coast.

S. W. MOUNTZ.

1651 Sixth avenue.

SANTA BARBARA

The past two weeks have held much of interest for the music lovers of Santa Barbara.

On January 24 Mr. George H. Namington gave a twilight organ recital at the Unitarian Church, and while he was compelled to play to a very few listeners, owing to the weather, he presented one of the best programs he has given.

The best local ensemble program which has ever been heard here was given under the direction of Frederick Stevenson at the Congregational Church, January 31. The forces under his baton consisted of a mixed chorus of twenty voices, assisted by Mrs. Caro Clerbois, violinist; Stephen Thaxter, cellist; Georges Clerbois, pianist, and Reginald N. Martin, organist. The worth of the compositions used and the manner in which they were given would do credit to an organization with several seasons of rehearsals back of it. Mrs. Helen Mandree Barnett, Mrs. Hazel Landers Hummel and Mrs. Audrey Turner Lapham were the soprano soloists, Miss Winifred Smith, contralto, and Mr. Arthur N. Miller, bass.

Much could be said of each of these if space permitted.

Mr. John Marquardt, violinist, assisted by Mme. Alexandria Marquardt, harp virtuoso; Mrs. Leila Ruth Briscoe, soprano, and Mr. Reginald W. Martin, pianist, gave the first of two recitals Tuesday evening, February 2, in Trinity Hall Parish. Mr. Marquardt, although a recent arrival in Santa Barbara, is well known among the musicians here, having appeared in recital work a few seasons ago. The program opened with Handel's "Sonata in A Major," for violin, and was followed by Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll." These were both played with an ease in execution and a smoothness of tone which showed that Mr. Marquardt is sure of himself and has utter confidence in his own resources. There was a noticeable lack of warmth and beauty of tone in these two numbers, which was possibly partly due to unusually low temperature in the room at this time. During the next number, a harp solo, "Chants Seraphiques," by Parish-Alvarz, there was greater warmth, both literally and figuratively, Mme. Marquardt possessing a charming personality and playing with a grace and refinement which was admirable. Mrs. Leila Ruth Briscoe was heard in "Ave Maria," by Gounod, with violin and harp, and showed a voice of pleasing quality. The other violin numbers were "Andante," by Mendelssohn, from "Concerto in E Minor"; "Perpetuum Mobile," by Philip Scharwenka; "Romance," from "E Minor Concerto," by Chopin; "Traumerei," by Schumann; "Melody," by Charles G. Dawes, and Dvorak's "Humoreske." These brought out the fact that Mr. Marquardt has a technic which is truly wonderful. The highest praise is due Mr. Martin for his excellent accompaniments. There was not a moment when they failed to be entirely satisfactory.

A. B. BARNETT.

Donath—Mr. Kurt Donath is rehearsing with his opera school act four of "Il Trovatore."

PARK RIDGE, ILL.

The performance of the "Messiah" by the Handel Oratorio Society at Park Ridge, January 26, was one of distinct merit.

Miss Ida Belle Freeman's conducting is decisive and concise and the chorus responded to her leadership with sharp attack and finished phrasing, and the heavier numbers brought forth a satisfying volume of tone.

Miss Irene Briggs sang the soprano solos with artistic taste, giving the arias with an ease and freedom that was greatly appreciated. Her singing of "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" was especially pleasing.

The handling of the contralto solos by Miss Lucy J. Hartman was musicianly at all times. Her "He Was Despised" was remarkable for its careful shading and beauty of tone.

Mr. Arthur Henning may justly lay claim to a method of tone production wholly free from throatiness. While his voice is not large, it is distinctly carrying and its gratifying quality was much in evidence in "Behold and See if There Be Any Sorrow."

The bass solos were given with great gusto by Mr. Milton Severinghaus. His voice is characteristic of its owner, big, healthy and robust. The voice readily lends itself to oratorio style and should be heard often in that field ere long.

J. S. HAMILTON.

Orchard School—Saturday, February 13, pupils of Mrs. Saltonstall, Miss Zeigler, Miss Wallis, Mrs. DeVore, Mrs. Orchard, Miss Thoms, gave a recital at the school. The following pupils appeared: Claribelle Rice, Mrs. Frederick L. Brown, Mrs. Corrine Booth, Louise Howe, Josephine Lewis, Ada Long, Ethel Tucker, Julia Tomlinson, Alexander Alison, Charles Taff, Louise Leonard, Inez Tucker, Mable Baker, Lucy Hays.

COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL of MUSIC and DRAMATIC ART

MRS. W. S. BRACKEN, President

Assisted by eminent faculty of 50 artists. Offers to prospective students courses of study based upon the best modern educational principles. Diplomas and degrees conferred. Many free advantages. Students may enter at any time. For particulars address Secretary, Box 48 Auditorium Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

The KATHERINE SCHUSTER SCHOOL of LYRIC DICTION and EXPRESSION

Teaches TONGUE TRAINING for DISTINCTIVE UTTERANCE in SPEECH and SONG

71 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

PLUMB CONTRALTO
4173 LAKE PARK AVENUE
Phone Oakland 3240

LOUISE BURTON
SOPRANO 520 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Drexel 8183
COSTUME RECITAL A SPECIALTY

The Orchard School of Music and Expression

Piano—Voice—Violin—Organ—Harmony and Theory—Public School Music—Cello—Expression and Dancing

FACULTY INCLUDES

ZULA ZEIGLER
LENE WALLIS
BERTHA THOMS
JESSIE DE VORE

FLORENCE WOOD
ELSIE RAWLE
WALTER BRAUER
JOHN ALLEN RICHARDSON

MRS. GRACE J. SALTONSTALL
JESSIE NICHOLS-BALDWIN
MARGARET TARRANT
JENNIE BOWMAR RICKETTS

Boston, Mass.

Editor
LESTER S. BUTLER

A LONG, HONORABLE CAREER ENDED

In 1868, S. Henry Hadley, father of Henry Hadley, conductor of the San Francisco Orchestra, became the director of music in the public schools of Somerville, and at different times he has taught the subject in the schools of Everett, Reading, Weston, Medford, Watertown and Brockton.

Mr. Hadley died Tuesday, February 2, at the City Hospital, Boston, after an illness of about three weeks.

He was born in Boston, November 22, 1844, a son of Samuel D. and Mary (Oliver) Hadley; was educated in the public schools of the city and Somerville, where the family moved when he was a boy. He married Martha T. Conant of East Somerville, October 28, 1869, who with two sons Henry K. Hadley, conductor and composer, and Arthur D. Hadley, known chiefly as a 'cellist, having played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, several years, survive him.

Mr. Hadley was also an organist of ability, beginning his work as organist at a Medford church when fifteen. Eleven years he was organist at the Winthrop Congregational Church, Charlestown, and served similarly in several Somerville churches.

He was a popular conductor for musical societies, conducting many years the Charlestown Amateurs, and was prominent in this respect at the Peace Jubilee of 1870.

The writer remembered him as a most genial and interesting gentleman, at the meetings of public school directors of music, where these instructors of Massachusetts discussed methods to be used in their work and told their experiences in carrying it on.

A career like that so briefly mentioned is more worthy emulation and of greater community value than many held before the youth of the land as something to strive for and battle to attain.

A Commendable Purpose

The following item about a very commendable movement is, or should be, of interest to all who have belief in the educative value of the drama:

The Modern Drama Players is an educational movement which aims to take to the smaller cities and towns of our country a group of plays, perfect in settings and staging, and acted by an all star cast. In order that this movement be of wide benefit and influence, the management is desirous that the public of Boston and Massachusetts, to whom the other cities and states look for example along educational lines, may lend its co-operation in the initial performances, which will be given at the Toy Theater, Boston, for the week of February 8, 1915.

"Chitra," a Hindoo play by Tagore, is the first of the group. It is a play of idealism, and will have as "Chitra" Mona Limerick, an English actress, already pronounced an artist by certain Boston critics, and being herself partly Hindoo. She has come from London for the express purpose of appearing in this play.

"The Bear," a play by the great Russian writer, Tchekoff, is the second of the group and is a play of realism.

"Womankind," by W. W. Gibson, is the third play and combines the realistic and ideal.

"Julius Caesar" at Boston Opera House

The productions of "Julius Caesar" just ended at the Boston Opera House by the Henry Jewett players have been well attended by an appreciative audience, that were entertained and instructed by the excellence of histrionic ability displayed by the actors, and their splendid enunciation and diction.

The writer had the pleasure of attending the performance of Saturday night, February 6, and the impression which this company made at a Romeo and Juliet production earlier in the season.

Beginning Monday, February 8, "The Merchant of Venice" holds the stage, with R. D. MacLean, a powerful "Brutus," "Shylock," and Miss Birkett, "Portia." Miss Mary Forbes, newcomer, is "Jessica"; Miss Compton, "Nerissa"; Mr. Ralph, "Bassanio"; Mr. Crocker, "Antonio"; Mr. Mudie, "Gratiano."

The real worth of the actors forming the new company, the elaborate productions permitted by the equipment of the Opera House, and the extremely reasonable scale of prices, all combine to make the new theater as great a popular as it is an artistic

CONSERVATORY FOR SALE

in a thriving city of 65,000—two hours from Chicago. Vocal Teacher and Director who is a Tenor would have advantage. Choir position open. Address S. B. C., Music News, success. The permanency of the company now seems assured; and the possibility of its becoming a recognized Boston-institution looms large.

Lectures for Prospective Supervisors of Public School Music

Mr. Frederic H. Ripley, principal of the Prince School, Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Ada J. Danforth, formerly supervisor of music in the public schools at Gardner, Mass., announce a course of ten lectures and conferences on methods of teaching and supervision in public school music, at 410 Huntington Chambers, 30 Huntington avenue, Boston.

The series will include lectures on the general principles upon which the harmonic course is founded, and demonstrations of these principles with children from various grades in school. The lectures and demonstrations will be followed by a general discussion of the morning's work.

These lectures are intended for those who already have a general knowledge of the rudiments of music, and desire to acquire power to supervise music instruction in public schools.

At a recent meeting, the Lexington Outlook Club was entertained by Myron W. Whitney of Boston, in a song recital. His singing, together with his genial personality, won his audience completely, and the applause was very enthusiastic, recalling the artist several times. His closing number, "Kerry Dance," Molloy, was most appreciated and the applause was so insistent that Mr. Whitney responded with an encore. Among the composers represented were Rubinstein, Brahms, Wolf, Reger, Debussy, Massenet and Molloy. His program would have been more appreciated if a majority of the songs had been sung in English.

The Lexington Music Club met lately with Mrs. Richard Tower on State road. The program was wholly of Richard Strauss' music, and was opened by Miss Elenor Whittemore of Boston, violinist, and Mrs. William D. Jamieson, pianist, in Sonata, Opus 13, Improvisation and Allegro. The second part of the program was the reading of Enoch Arden by Miss Tryon, with Mrs. Jamieson at the piano. It was a most interesting program and one much enjoyed.

Last week the Lexington Music Club met with Miss Rose Tucker on Massachusetts avenue. The program opened with two eight-hand piano selections, Mozart's "Turkish March" and Raff's "Impromptu Valse," with Mrs. Clarence Sprague and Miss Tucker at first piano and Mrs. Trott and Mrs. E. S. Kelley at second. This was followed by a group of Margaret Ruthven Lang's "Nonsense Songs," which were very pleasingly sung by Miss Gertrude Smith. Mrs. Trott and Mrs. Kelley then gave Peer Gynt Suite, "Le Matin," "La Morte d'Ase," "La Danse d'Anitra," by Grieg; also "Finale," by Bohm, in piano duet. The program was brought to a close by Mrs. Alfred Pierce, soprano, and Miss Lillian Smith, contralto, in a group of duets, "Absence," Lassen, and "Blue Bells," Mendelssohn. K. B.

A "Helping Hand" Society

Enlarged membership is sought for the Beneficent Society of the New England Conservatory of Music in a campaign which has been quietly started by the officers. A circular letter just mailed to a large number of persons known to be interested in music states that the "work of the society is to loan money without interest to needy music students, who, when they are in position to do so, begin to repay such loans. In the twenty-nine years of our existence, although a very small society, we have loaned over $33,000 to 262 students, a large percentage of whom have repaid the loans in full, and most of the others are making partial payments." Among the privileges of membership in the society is that of admission, on application, to many concerts and recitals given at or under the auspices of the New England Conservatory. The officers of the Beneficent Society for 1915 are: President, Mrs. Charles H. Bond; vice presidents, Mrs. Richard H. Dana and Mrs. Eben D. Jordan.

The New England Conservatory orchestra, George W. Chadwick, conductor, gives the twelfth concert of the present season in Jordan Hall this evening. Two advanced students assist: Edith M. Woodman of Everett, in the aria "Before My Eyes Beheld Him," from "Der Freischutz," and Stanley J. Schaub of Logan, Utah, in the first movement of the Chopin pianoforte Concerto in E Minor. The purely orchestral numbers are Schumann's Symphony in E flat Major, and a suite of dances from "La Damnation de Faust."

h h h

Music for the Community

A concert by the Chadwick Club, Worcester, was given at the Rockdale Congregational Church, Northbridge, Friday night, February 5, 1915, at 8:15. Local director, William A. Adams.

Miss Cora F. Woodbury, Soprano
Stephen E. Rich, Tenor
Waldo E. Whiting, Basso Cantante
Miss Alice C. Heaphy, Pianist and Accompanist

A MALE QUARTET

Stephen E. Rich
Charles E. Adams
Waldo E. Whiting
William A. Adams

THE ROCKDALE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH QUARTET

Mrs. R. Hoggarth, Soprano
Mrs. C. E. Adams, Alto
Charles E. Adams, Tenor
William A. Adams, Bass

This is one of a series of concerts for "Music for the Community" that the writer is directing. Each concert represents types of music, the present one being folk music and songs of the sea. There was a good-sized audience, and the program went off with a degree of artistry that reflected credit upon the program givers and gave pleasure to the listeners. The program was:

Sea Pieces, Opus 55.....MacDowell
To the Sea
Nautilus
In Mid Ocean
From a Wandering Iceberg
Miss Heaphy

Alpine Horn.....Geibel
Church Quartet

Foggy Dew.....Irish Type—Fox
Beautiful Dreamer.....American Type—Foster
Leezie Lindsay.....Old Scotch—Lawson
When Love Is Kind.....Old English
Mr. Rich

Meditation.....Borch
Evening Love Song.....Sheldon
The Flower May Hide Its Lovely Face.....G. L. Osgood
Long, Long Ago.....Bayly-Butler
Miss Woodbury

Darkies Lullaby.....Lester S. Butler
The Male Quartet
Calm As the Night.....Goetze
Miss Woodbury and Mr. Whiting

Impromptu, Opus 90, No. 2.....Schubert
Miss Heaphy
Perfect Day.....Bond
Absent.....Metcalf
Mother Machree.....Olcott-Ball

William A. Adams
Go Where the Mists Are Sleeping.....Daniel
Miss Woodbury and Mr. Rich

Wolf of the Bowman.....Nelson
I Fear No Foe.....Pinsuti
I Love a Lassie.....Scotch Type—Lauder
Mr. Whiting

The Harmonious Blacksmith (Fifth Suite).....Handel
La Gigue (Jig).....MacDowell
Danse Negre, Opus 58, No. 5.....Cyril Scott
Miss Heaphy

O Restless Sea.....White
The Chadwick Club

L. S. B.

h h h

HARRY K. GERMAKIAN, ARMENIAN TENOR, TO GIVE RECITAL

Harry K. Germakian, the well known Armenian lyric tenor, gives a recital at Bush Temple, Saturday evening, February 20, 1915.

Mr. Germakian will sing in six different languages and has a magnificent voice. He is a pupil of Ettore Titta Ruffo of Chicago Musical College.

He is assisted by Karl Schulte, violinist. Effie Mathues will be accompanist.

ARMENOUHE HOVHANISIAN.

OMAHA NOTES

Five years ago the Mendelssohn Choir of Omaha entered into a contract with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra (then the Theodore Thomas Orchestra) for a series of annual concerts to be held in the spring of each year in the Auditorium. The contract will expire with the concerts which are to be given on Monday and Tuesday evenings, and Tuesday matinee, April 27 and 28 of this year.

The Mendelssohn Choir and its work has been so frequently and enthusiastically exploited in this column that further comment is unnecessary at this time, but it is to be hoped that after all the work that has been put into this annual scheme of concerts, the music-loving people—regardless of whether they are in any way identified with the Mendelssohn Choir or not—will unite in one comprehensive and universal support of the present series in the hope that the occasion will be so successful financially that a renewal of the contract may be secured, and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra be induced to enter into another five-year series.

On Tuesday evening, February 9, Henry Cox's Violin Choir of twenty members was presented, playing the "Hungarian Dance" in G minor by Brahms.

h h h

A benefit musicale was given at the home of Miss Jessie Millard for the Social Settlement, on Wednesday afternoon, February 3, at 4 o'clock. The program was participated in by Mrs. L. F. Crofoot, pianist; Mrs. A. I. Root, contralto; Miss Harriet Metz, soprano; Miss Somers, violinist; accompanists, Mrs. Walter Silver and Miss Ellen Anthes.

h h h

The Plymouth Congregational Church, on Fifteenth and Emmet streets, which was destroyed by the cyclone, has been rebuilt and its completion was celebrated by dedication services beginning Sunday, January 31, and lasting a week. A pipe organ has been added to the church, which was dedicated by a musical program on Tuesday evening, February 2. A new organ in a community is and should be an occasion of great rejoicing and the event was fittingly inaugurated by one of Omaha's ablest musicians, Mr. Ben Stanley at the organ. Mr. Stanley was assisted by Miss Madge West, violinist; Miss Eloise West, organist, and Mr. Charles C. Brown, baritone.

The joint operatic recital given by Louise LeHouse, and Mr. Walter Wheatley, leading tenor of the Century Opera Company at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium, on Thursday evening, February 4, created considerable interest. Miss LeBaron is not unknown to Omaha music lovers, for she has appeared here several times with the Aborn Opera Company. Cancellation of their contracts to sing in London at the Covent Garden was forced by the war and we consequently had the good fortune of hearing these artists in an operatic recital in which scenes were given from "Tannhauser" and "Aida."

h h h

The Omaha Conservatory of Music and Art presented Edith L. Wagner in a piano recital at the Conservatory Auditorium, Metropolitan building, 2301 Harney street, on Thursday afternoon, February 4, at 4 o'clock.

h h h

Universal interest is manifest in the concert to be given Friday evening, February 19, at the Boyd Theater, when Miss Frances Nash, pianist, will make her first appearance since her return from European study, as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Although Miss Nash is proud to claim Omaha as her home she has spent but little time here during recent years. She is deeply in earnest and has spent years in serious and intelligent study.

h h h

White-Longman—Marie White-Longman recently appeared with pronounced success in a recital, including "Old Tales and Legends," before the Gary Musical Club.

ARCANGELI

ITALIAN VOCAL SCHOOL
300 Athenaeum Bldg. CHICAGO

DR. CARVER WILLIAMS, Basso

Concert, Oratorio, Recital, Voice Development
and Repertoire
Management Sam'l B. Garton, 323 S. Wabash Av., 2nd Floor

Two Festival Services

AT

New First Congregational Church

Thursday, February 25, and Friday, February 26, at 8:15

Six Artist Organists, Quartet and All Choral Forces of the Church

ADMISSION BY (FREE) TICKET.

SILVER OFFERING.

The ALBERT TEACHERS' AGENCY

623 South Wabash Av., Chicago
We make a specialty of securing positions for teachers of music in Colleges, Conservatories, State Normal Schools, Etc. Send for booklet.

Martha S. STEELE

CONTRALTO
Oratorio Recitals Concerts
Wightman and Fair Oaks Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa.

JESSIE MACK HAMILTON

SOPRANO
Teacher of Singing. Recitals. Concerts
5057 Winthrop Av. Tel. Ravenswood 325.
Studio 714 Kimball Hall

Arthur Uhe

PUPILS RECITALS
HEAD OF VIOLIN DEPARTMENT BETHANY COLLEGE
LINDSBURG, KAS.
Graduate of Brussels, Pupil of Cesar Thomson.

Palmer Christian

Concert Organist - Pupils - Coach - Accompanist
Cosmopolitan School of Music Auditorium Building

MARJORIE DODGE WARNER

Phone, Sunnyside 7127
810 Lakeside Place Soprano

Pearle Williford

VOICE • PIANO
Gunn Studios Fine Arts Building

MAX R. WALD

PIANIST AND ACCOMPANIST
Studio 716 Fine Arts Bldg.

G. Magnus Schutz

BASSO CANTANTE
Oratorio Concerts Recitals Pupils
712 Fine Arts Building

HILDRED HANSON HOSTETTER

SOPRANO
CONCERTS CHURCH RECITALS ORATORIO
715 Forest Av., Oak Park, Ill. Tel. O. P. 3216

Herbert E. Hyde

ORGANIST
St. Peter's Church, Chicago

Nelda Hewitt Stevens

SOPRANO
Oratorio Concerts Costume Recital
600 Diversey Parkway Tel. Wellington 7379

Daphne Edwards Bell

PIANISTE
1 Elizabeth Court, Oak Park, Ill.

LUDWIG BECKER

VIOLINIST Columbia School of Music
Management Harry Culbertson, Fine Arts Bldg.

MARGUERITE DRESSER

PIANIST, ACCOMPANIST, TEACHER, ORGANIST
Director of Music Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Chicago, Tuesday and Friday.

DIEDERICH WALTER

TENOR
TEACHING ORATORIO RECITAL
608 Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Wabash 8988

CLEMENS A. HUTTER

VOICE BUILDER
and Choir Director 501 KIMBALL HALL

KANSAS CITY

The Symphony Orchestra gave a concert on Saturday, January 30, at the Assembly Hall of Central High School. Though the day was cold and disagreeable, a large audience greeted Mr. Busch and his orchestra. The concert began with the "Hamlet Overture," by Niels W. Gade—that charming and weird composition. Following this, Henri Shostac, concertmaster and soloist for the occasion, played the Saint-Saens "Concerto in B Minor," Op. 61, No. 3. Mr. Shostac played in a masterful way the allegro non troppo, the even and melodious andantino, and the brilliant finale. The whole-hearted applause of the listeners was proof of their appreciation. "Dreams," a study to "Tristan and Isolde" (the orchestration by Johann Svendsen), a beautiful and poetical work, was the second number played by the orchestra, and this was followed by the Mendelssohn "Symphony No. 4," in A major, the four movements ending with the gay salterello presto. The performance was very brilliant. This program was given for the teachers of Kansas City, and was given again on the following Tuesday for the public.

We have now a Popular Concert Association, and the first concert of this organization was given in Convention Hall, on Sunday afternoon, January 24, by an orchestra of fifty men and women, under the direction of Julius Osier. The soloist for the affair was Otley Cranston, baritone. The program was well chosen for a Sunday "pop," the numbers for the orchestra being the good old favorites, with which the general public should be familiar—"Athalie" (Mendelssohn), the "William Tell" overture (Rossini), "Les Patineurs" (Waldteufel). Introduction to the third act of "Lohengrin" (Wagner), Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffman" (Offenbach), "Poet and Peasant" (Suppe)—for all of which it seems needless to name the composers—and a grand American "Fantasia," arranged by Tobani. As an encore, the orchestra played a dainty and appealing "Serenade," by Mr. Osier. Mr. Cranston sang, in his very pleasing way, the "Prologue" from "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo) and two other songs, and the audience had to be content, although desirous of hearing more. Mr. Osier is an interesting conductor, and the orchestra played with good style and splendid spirit. It is the plan of the association to give a concert every other Sunday afternoon. We hope that nothing will interfere with the success of this undertaking.

The first concert of the orchestra of the Central Night High School was given Friday evening, February 5, at the Central Assembly Hall. G. W. O'Donnell is director of this orchestra, and is making rapid strides for the first season, having already sixty members in his classes. The program consisted of three numbers, played by the orchestra, "Magic Fire Overture," by H. O. Wheeler; "Mingling Harmonies," by H. O. Wheeler, and "Heroes of War," by Charles Johnson, and in addition to these a number of solos by members of the orchestra.

Edwin Arthur Kraft, city organist of Atlanta, Ga., will play here in March, under the auspices of the Association of Organists. This association meets each month at some church, and programs are given by the members. The artist's concert given here some weeks ago, when the club was first organized, was that of Clarence Eddy. There will probably be a third public concert later in the season.

The fifth attraction of the Fritschy series will be Tina Lerner, Russian pianist, and Ralph Osborne, basso cantante.

We are looking forward with pleasure to the Busoni concert in March, under the management of Miss Myrtle Irene Mitchell. Miss Mitchell has also announced that the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will be here on Sunday afternoon, February 21, which brings joy to our hearts.

Our own Schubert Club will sing for us again at the Schubert Theater, February 18, and Maggie Teyte will be the soloist. The Schubert Club recently sang at Manhattan, Kas., of which affair we hear splendid reports.

The Forbes String Quartet, now in its second season, will give a concert at Morton's Hall, in February, with the assistance of Miss Lucille Vogel, pianist.

The Kansas City String Quartet, in its first season, will play at the Grand Avenue Temple next week. The members of this quartet are Henri Shostac, first violin; Mrs. Henri Shostac, second violin; Hans Petersen, viola, and Alfred Buch, cello. Mr. Boguslawski, pianist, will play with the quartet the Schumann piano quintet.

Miss Winifred Repp will give a recital in the Studio Building on Saturday afternoon. She will sing Mimi's aria from "La Boheme" and some French songs, and a group of new English songs. She will be accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. Jennie Schultz. Assisting on the program will be Miss Geraldine Shepard, who will play the Mendelssohn "Concerto in D Minor," with orchestral parts on second piano by Miss Lichtenwalter.

The music teachers of Kansas City have recently organized the Kansas City Music Teachers' Association, with the very worthy object of working for the musical advance of Kansas City. The president is Alfred G. Hubach.

MARY H. FLAGG.
311 Studio Building.

Potter—En route to Minneapolis, where she sang last Sunday, Miss Mildred Potter was a Music News visitor last Thursday. Besides having one of the finest contralto voices yet evolved in this country, Miss Potter is a splendid type of American womanhood and her comment on many affairs musical was thoroughly worth while. She has been engaged for "Caractacus" at the coming North Shore Festival and her Chicago and North Shore friends will have another opportunity of hearing her fine singing at that time.

Brown—Miss Helen Axe Brown appeared as soloist with the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra last Sunday afternoon.

DENVER

The last two of the Philharmonic Concerts have followed upon each other so closely that the response to the attractions has been marked. With John McCormack as the attraction, the Auditorium was packed. As long as he continues to sing for the "people," he will be a banner attraction.

The Beethoven aria, from the "Mount of Olives," will not be the style of work for him to follow, however, if he expects to hold his popularity. Irish songs are the strong point in his line of work, and ballad singing, but not oratorio.

His group of old Irish songs, arranged by Hamilton Harty and Herbert Hughes, were done in inimitable style, and were insistently encoored and responded to by probably six or eight other songs, including Cadman's beautifully melodious "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," Tours' "Mother of Mine," "Macushla," and others. In spite of repeated calls, McCormack wisely refused to sing a song with which his name has lately been closely associated.

Donald McBeath played the "Meister-singer Prize Song" on the new violin recently acquired by McCormack, evidencing a beautiful and clear tone.

Of the orchestra much may be said. In the "Entrance of the Gods," from the "Rhinegold," they played with more abandon and better tone than has been heard this season. Director Tureman, also, completely gave himself over to the work. Probably never has this work been as well played in Denver. The program was closed by the Rimsky-Korsakow "Caprice on Spanish Themes," well done but too long after so long a vocal program.

The next attraction was Elena Gerhardt. A wonderfully clever lieder singer, who should give her work to chamber concerts instead of orchestral selections. Her wonderful breath control, pure diction and true cantabile singing is worth going miles to hear, and it is to be hoped that Robert Slack may secure her for another appearance.

Her program opened with two Schubert numbers, "Die Allmacht" and "Der Erlkonig." The latter is not for Elena Gerhardt. Handel's "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me," the "Pastorale," by Carey, and two Rummel songs were deliciously sung, and no singer of this class of work has ever been more rapturously recalled than was Gerhardt. Again the program proved too long, owing to the repeated recalls of the singer, and when the last number was being played by the orchestra, Borodin's dances from "Prince Igor," many of the audience were leaving. The accompaniment to "Die Allmacht" was splendidly done; the "Erlkonig" not so well. In Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" prelude the forces under Mr. Tureman again shone. The Philharmonics are now certainly showing fine ensemble work, and the next concert, with Alma Gluck, will doubtless eclipse the last two.

Our veteran conductor, Henry Houseley, has been selected as one of the five judges at the San Francisco Eisteddfod, to be held during the summer months. His mature experience will prove invaluable to this committee.

OMAHA

On February 19 the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will appear at the Boyd Theater. Much local interest seems manifest, owing not only to the excellence of the orchestra, which is no stranger in Omaha, but also because it will mark the debut of Miss Frances Nash of our city as a piano soloist. Miss Nash, who has been for a number of years in Germany, studying piano, was to have made her debut in Berlin with the Symphony Orchestra, but was driven back by the war.

At the Y. W. C. A., on February 4, Miss Edith Martin presented Miss Louise Le Baron, contralto, and Walter Wheatley, tenor, in a most delightful joint recital. Miss Le Baron was heard to advantage in her operatic numbers, in which she reflects years of successful operatic experience. Her program was well chosen, giving opportunity for the display of versatility of interpretation and a voice of wide range and rich quality. Miss Le Baron has been heard several times in Omaha with visiting opera companies, and was received with great favor as a concert artist. The duets were especially delightful, as Mr. Wheatley's voice, which is beautiful in quality, blended well with Miss Le Baron's. In addition to their operatic numbers, each artist sang a group of lighter songs, which won many recalls.

Pupils of Helen Mackin gave a recital of piano numbers in the studio of Frank Mach, in the Arlington Block, January 28. They were assisted by Mildred Stepp, soprano, a pupil of the Dickerman School.

The ever-popular Carrie Jacobs-Bond gave a recital January 11, and on this, as all previous occasions, she more than pleased her audience. It is delightful to see how she has crept into the affections of the Omaha people, and how they crowded the North Side Christian Church to hear and applaud her. The church is especially indebted to her, as she has now helped them to clear the organ debt.

On January 22 Laura Wessel, mezzo-contralto, and Tress Keys, child dialect entertainer, gave a recital at Myrtle Hall.

GOODWAL DICKERMAN.

MILWAUKEE

The Little Theater of Milwaukee was organized June, 1912, and incorporated under its present title May, 1913, with the following objects in view:

1. To establish in Milwaukee an endowed theater, with a children's theater in auxiliary.

2. To stimulate a popular interest in the more cultured, vital and permanent forms of dramatic art. After three years of faithful, unremitting labor, the Little Theater has at last secured its own home, and now aims to produce under its auspices many special programs expressing the correlation of the arts. A recital of last week was given by Mr. James Gregg, baritone, assisted by Minna Strasen, violinist. While both are amateurs, there were moments of considerable virtuosity on the part of each. Mr. Gregg's voice is of a mellow, baritone quality and one could easily trace in his interpretation the influence of his dramatic experience as a member of the Little Theater. Miss Strasen is a talented pupil of Miss Pearl Brice and has made splendid strides in her work the past year.

The Little Theater is under the able direction of Mrs. Edith Adams Stewart, and she has secured many able lecturers, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Ongawa, in their Japanese music play; Dorothy Meadows of Chicago, in readings, and Mrs. Eugene Friend, in a musical reading of Humperdinck's "The Goose Girl."

A special evening concert by the Auditorium Symphony Orchestra in the near future will feature Miss Ella Smith, pianist, and Mrs. Marie Yahr, contralto, as soloists. These concerts are attended by several thousand people Sunday afternoon, and are among the most appreciated efforts of municipal undertakings.

Mr. Beecher Burton is soloist at Second Church of Christ, Scientist, and a most popular adjunct of that service. His voice is of a particularly beautiful quality, together with good diction and sincere regard for the text in interpretation, which accounts for his popularity.

Huntley—Miss Hazel Huntley gave a song recital at Pittsfield, Mass., on February 16. She is returning to Chicago today.

GRACE BRUNE
MARCUSSON

SOPRANO
609 Fine Arts Building

WORTHE
FAULKNER

TENOR
Phone Harrison 6880

Frank Olin Thompson

PIANIST

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

KATHARINES. BROWN STAGE
TECHNIC

LYRIC AND DRAMATIC SPEECH ARTS

516 KIMBALL HALL, CHICAGO

PHONE WABASH 4805

ALLEN SPENCER PIANIST

Mason & Hamlin
Piano Used

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Jennie F. W. Johnson Contralto

American Conservatory and
4937 Michigan Av., Chicago

PITTSBURGH

The following remarkable program was given by Mr. Cecil Fanning at Braeface, Edgeworth, on January 29 with great success:

Der Neugierige (Muller)	Schubert
Aufträge	Schumann
Der Flieger (Meinhard)	Pataky
Teufelslied (Volker)	Haile
Russian Songs—
Morning	Rachmaninoff
A Song to India	Rimsky-Korsakoff
O, Thou Billowy Harvest-Field! (Tolstoi)	Rachmaninoff
French Folk Songs—
Pauvre Jacques (Mme. De Travanel)	Inconnu
Les Belles Manieres (XVIII Eme Siecle)	Inconnu
Le Cycle Du Vin (Chansons Dites a Danser)	Inconnu
Vision Fugitive (Herodiade)	Massenet
La Princess Lointaine (Cecil Fanning)	Guy Bevier Williams
Lights in the Fishing Boats in the Harbor	Gustave Ferrari
For a Dream's Sake (Christina Rossetti)	Fred H. Cowen
A Fairy Love Song (Ella Higginson)	Charles Willeby

The Economy in Buying the

HARDMAN PIANO...

The makers of the Hardman Piano for three-quarters of a century have held an unparalleled position as makers of the highest grade instruments—the Hardman is their highest achievement.

The very finest materials, the greatest care, the most expert workmen and the long experience of renowned makers, have placed the Hardman Piano in its recognized position of leadership among world-famous critics.

Because of this care in manufacture—because of the Hardman-Metal-Key Bottom, which prevents warping in any climate, and other exclusive patented devices, the Hardman Piano retains its rare musical qualities in perfect condition through many, many years of service.

It is higher priced than most, but the economy will be apparent years later in the Hardman durability.

F. S. SPOFFORD

Chicago Representative, 7th Floor Republic Bldg., State and Adams Sts.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates, Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.
6 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store)

TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

CHARLESTON, W. VA.

For the past few weeks all activities in musical circles seem to have been along formative lines, generally. Some of the teachers are announcing recitals, and the churches (those of them that are out from the throes of revival services) proclaiming musicales and special services of song, etc. The Charleston High School Chorus is at work on "The Gondoliers" for its annual opera offering, harder than ever and more enthusiastic. The Charleston Choral Club is also busy rehearsing for the Spring program, and the Elks' Minstrels is promised for next week.

One or two delightful entertainments have been our lot of late, too. Among them, at the Burlew January 22, "Impersonations of Childhood," by Mrs. Guy Stewart McCabe, with Mrs. William Henry Johnson at the piano.

Mrs. McCabe's representations, first of "Peggy," a good little girl, from the play "Peggy's Christmas Dream," and then as "Reggy," a bad little boy, from "Thursday," were beyond any describing, each so true to nature, yet so totally opposite in character. But the climax was reached in her portrayal of "Henry" in her little one-act play, "Henry's Study Hour." In this scene she was assisted by a group of local boys as Henry's playmates, and Mrs. Jeanette A. A. Lindsey, a Charleston reader, as "Mrs. John Henry Melville," Henry's mother. It is a charming little conceit, and was splendidly played.

Morosco's "Peg o' My Heart," at the Burlew two nights and Saturday matinee, and Al G. Fields' Minstrels the week before for a like engagement, have been about the only regular theater offerings this year. Manager Burlew says he finds it impossible to book good attractions, except occasionally this season, but still hopes to have something of interest before the end of this session of the legislature.

J. HENRY FRANCIS.

LOUIS KREIDLER

Louis Kreidler, the popular baritone of the Century Opera Company, has just returned from the east, where he gave two very successful concerts. Since the close of the opera season in January he has made his home in Chicago and is devoting his time to teaching and filling concert engagements. He will give a program at the Illinois Athletic Club on Sunday afternoon, March 7, and is booked for a number of local club affairs in the next few weeks. His growing class of voice pupils is most enthusiastic and claims that his method is nothing short of marvelous. A number of the local singers are taking advantage of his presence in the city and are coaching with him on both opera and oratorio, at his residence studio—4051 Calumet avenue.

Ellis—Mrs. Marie Hoover Ellis played piano numbers at the Banquet Room of the Auditorium Hotel on last Monday afternoon, on the occasion of a reception given to Mrs. D. Harry Hammer, the president of the thirteen state clubs comprising the Colony Association.

MAUDE FENLON BOLLMAN

Some further comment on the work of Mrs. Bollman is here given:

A delightful musical program was given by Mrs. Bollman, a coloratura soprano who has won a reputation as soloist with the Apollo Club of Chicago and the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. She is also prominently identified with the Mendelssohn Club of Rockford, Ill., an organization of well known musicians. Mrs. Bollman was accompanied by Mrs. R. A. Walker at the piano. Her program follows:

Come, Ever Smiling Liberty (from "Judas Macabre")	Handel
Caro Mio Ben (1743-1798)	Giordani
On Wings of Song I'll Bear Thee	Mendelssohn
Wir Wandelten	Brahms
Un Jour de Printemps	Bizet
The Willow	Goring Thomas
Legacies	Hill
A Spirit Flower	Campbell-Tipton
The Bell	Saint-Saens
A Lullaby	Hermann
In Lovely Summer	Del Acqua
A Song Fairy	Bemberg
A Group of Children's Songs—
The Wood Pigeon	Lehmann
The Little Gray Dove	Saar
Rapture	Cowdell
Love's Philosophy	Liddle
Giangui d'Inferno	Mozart

Refreshments were served in the dining room and east parlor. Mrs. Henry Sampson presided at the coffee urn and Mrs. I. M. Treynor and Miss Florence Walls were in charge of the serving. They were assisted by Mesdames John Barels, G. S. Clark, Thomas Messenger, Claude Fisher, Harry Jacobsen, J. W. Greenman, W. H. Harvison, J. H. Duro and the Misses Grace Susong, Rose Peck, Maude Eldredge, Ila Mount, Persis Bowen and Miss Edith Lease of Omaha. Two young girls, the Misses Helen Hake and Miriam Graham, served the cakes in pretty baskets.—(Advertisement.)

BISPHAM TO SING FOR CONGRESS OF MUSICIANS

Charles Wakefield Cadman, chairman of the Congress for American Music programs in connection with the forthcoming biennial of the National Federation of Musical Clubs at Los Angeles next June, received word last week that the eminent baritone, David Bispham, had consented to sing an all-American program. Mr. Bispham, who has always championed the American composer, now comes generously to the front again in this particular instance. The recital will probably take place on the evening of June 30 and although the full program cannot be given out at this time, it is said the singer will include Rossetti G. Cole's "Robert of Sicily" with piano and organ accompaniment; Hadley's "Prologue;" Kramer's "Lover's Litany" and also songs of Spross, Homer, Huss, Carpenter, Mrs. Salter, MacDowell and others. The official program will be published later in this journal along with all the details of the biennial and congress. It is the intention to have exclusively well known artists, composers and directors present at all sessions of the Ninth Biennial. Mrs. J. E. Kinney, president of the organization, and her board are putting forth every effort to make the convention memorable.

Le Trio Rameau

ALFRED BARTHEL, Oboe Soloist } Chicago Sym-
T. Du MOULIN, Violoncello } phony Orchestra
MME. BARTHEL, Piano.

AVAILABLE FOR CONCERTS

FOR DATES, TERMS AND SPECIMEN PROGRAMS

Address S. F. NEWHALL, GLENCOE, ILL.

SCHUMANN-HEINK

Direction
Wolfsohn Musical Bureau
 1 W. 34th St., New York
 In America Continuously Summer Dates Booking for Season, 1914-15.
 Steinway Piano Used

CINCINNATI, OHIO

The Cincinnati Symphony of the 12th and 13th of this month, with Dr. Ernest Kunwald conducting, offered us a very interesting program, with Fritz Kreisler, the noted violinist, as soloist. The concerts were well attended and Mr. Kreisler was even a greater favorite than on previous visits. His experiences with the army have gained for him a new legion of admirers.

Mr. Emil Weigand, violinist, assisted by Mr. Louis Spague, pianist, of Dayton, gave a beautiful recital at Cable Hall on the 4th. These well-known musicians need no comments passed upon their playing. They have appeared many times in Cincinnati and are great favorites.

The Orpheus Club, with Mr. Edwin Glowe as director, gave a concert on February 11. Mr. Horatio Connell, bass-baritone, soloist. The program was up to the usual standard of the club and was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Connell's beautiful voice was heard in many selections; possibly his best was "Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves," from Handel's "Scipio." Mr. Connell has shown much growth since his last appearance in Cincinnati.

A splendid rendition of Liza Lehman's "In a Persian Garden" was given by a quartet of soloists at Cable Hall on February 10. The singers were Miss Florence A. Teal, soprano; Miss Carolyn M. Dunn, contralto; Mr. W. C. Smith, tenor, and Mr. E. A. Prentice, baritone. The singers had the pleasure of singing before a large house, who gave them a hearty applause throughout the song cycle. They were assisted by Miss Frances Drew Moohre, pianist, and Bernice Earl Eller, violinist, who proved at once that they were great favorites with the audience.

Alinda Voss Mosher has recently been the soloist at a musical at the Woman's Club, where she delighted a large audience with a group of German songs and modern English. A song that aroused especial interest in the audience was her singing of "The Call of Radha," by Harriet Ware. Mrs. Mosher also was the singer in the afternoon, when Mr. Watson Emerson of the Milwaukee Art School gave his noted lecture on "The Move." The music was in keeping with the lecture and was specially chosen to help illustrate the talk. Her singing of these songs has created the greatest enthusiasm in her art. L. D. M.

Radanovits—Friday, February 5. Mr. Julian Mogenson, tenor, a professional pupil of Sandor S. Radanovits, appeared on a program of the Sheboygan Music Club.

LOMBARD COLLEGE

Miss Ruth Heilman, a promising young pupil of Mme. Anna Groff-Bryant of the Vocal Art Institute of Lombard College, came to Chicago last week to sing for the Chicago Lombard Club banquet Wednesday evening, February 10. On Friday afternoon Miss Heilman sang for a number of invited guests at Mme. Groff-Bryant's studio at the Fine Arts Building. They were surprised and delighted at her unusual talents.

Grand Opera Artist Series

John McCormack will be the next artist to appear in recital under Mme. Groff-Bryant's management at Galesburg, Ill. The course has been fully established and the people of Galesburg and vicinity are responding with genuine enthusiasm. A special car has been chartered to bring the people of Monmouth and vicinity to the McCormack recital.

CINCINNATI, OHIO

The following program was given at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music on February 4.

Symphony, "New World," E Minor.....Dvorak
 Adagio Allegro Molto
 Largo
 Scherzo—Molto Vivace
 Allegro con Fuoco
 Conservatory Orchestra
 Aria—Voi Lo Sapete (Cavalleria Rusticana).....Mascagni
 Miss Etta Mastin and Orchestra
 Russian Airs (for Violin and Orchestra).....Wieniawski
 Miss Mozelle Bennett
 Concerto, A Minor, Op. 5 (for Piano and Orchestra).....MacDowell
 Maestoso—Animato
 Andante Tranquillo
 Presto

Miss Myra Reed
 Les Preludes.....Liszt
 Conservatory Orchestra

GARY, IND

The following program was given by Miss Helen Hanfrich, a pupil of Fanny Amstutz-Roberts, on February 13.

Inventions 8-14.....Bach
 Fur Elise.....Beethoven
 Etudes in F, G and D.....Haller
 Snowflakes.....Koelling
 Songs—
 Little Grey Home in the West.....Lohr
 On the Shore.....Neidlinger
 Etude.....Jean Vogt
 Dancing Doll.....Poldini
 Canzona.....Schytte
 Songs—
 A Song of Spring.....Neidlinger
 Spinning Song.....H. Reimann
 Butterfly }
 Birdling } Grieg
 Norwegian Bridal March }
 "The Nightingale" from the "May in Tuscany"
 Suite.....Nevin

EVANSTON, ILL.

A song recital will be given by Edith Maldwyn Jones, mezzo-contralto, with accompaniments by Aline McQuillen, at Music Hall, on February 25, at 8:

Aria—Si, tra i ceppi (from the opera "Bernice," (1738).....Handel
 Schöne Wiege meiner Leiden.....Schumann
 Volksliedchen.....Schumann
 Die Lorelei.....Liszt
 Lenz.....Hildach
 Aria—Adieu, Forests (from "Jeanne d'Arc").....Tchaikowsky
 Welsh Folk Songs—
 Dafydd y Garreg Wen (David of the White Rock)
 Tra Bo Dau (Wherever Hearts Are True)
 Yn Nyffryn Clwyd (The Vale of Clwyd)
 Codiad yr hedydd (The Rising of the Lark)
 Apple Blossoms.....Lester
 Melisande in the Wood.....Goetz
 Candle Lightin' Time.....Coleridge-Taylor
 June.....William Spencer Johnson
 I Hear a Thrush at Eve.....Cadman
 Call Me No More.....Cadman

MAYWOOD, ILLINOIS

The Parents and Teachers Association of the Irving School at Maywood gave the following program to great appreciation and applause on last Wednesday evening:

Sonata Pathetique.....Beethoven
 Allegro Con Brio
 Adagio Cantabile
 Rondo
 Mr. J. E. Wilford
 Reading
 Mrs. Juliette Burmeister
 Zigeunerweisen.....Sarasate
 Mr. Frank Mandy
 Accompanied by Mrs. Mandy
 Vocal Selections
 Mrs. Myrtle Ritchie Witmer
 (a) Legende.....Wieniawski
 (b) Bohemian Dances.....Randelger
 Mr. Frank Mandy
 The King of the Winds.....David
 Mr. Huntington
 Reading
 Mrs. Juliette Burmeister
 Lutzwow's—Wild Jagd.....Weber-Kullak
 Mr. J. E. Wilford

PITTSBURGH, PA

The 1105th organ recital by Caspar P. Koch at Carnegie Music Hall was an all-American program as follows:

Allah.....A. Walter Kramer
 Call Me no More.....Charles Wakefield Cadman
 Soprano Soli with Piano
 Sketch in D Flat.....Harvey B. Gaul
 Prelude "Exultation".....Adolph M. Foerster
 A Fantasy.....Anthony Jawelak
 For Organ and Piano
 (First Performance)
 Serenade.....Stephen C. Foster
 Variations on an American Air.....Isaac V. Flagler
 Bend Low, O Dusky Night.....Ernest R. Kroeger
 I Love Thee.....Adolph M. Foerster
 Soprano Soli with Piano
 Marche Triomphale.....Giuseppe Ferrata

Paine—Miss Sarah Paine will present her pupils in studio recital at 411 Kimball Hall on the evening of February 23.

FRANCES INGRAM

Management
Shaw & Tucker
 ORCHESTRA BLDG.
 CHICAGO

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

A special evening concert for the benefit of the orchestra library fund took place February 9, in the south half of the main hall of the Auditorium. Whether the music lovers of Milwaukee have been aroused over the fact that our local managers have been obliged to abandon all recitals of visiting artists for the balance of the year, through non-attendance, or due to a "heretofore latent" boost Milwaukee spirit. In any event, the orchestra is the gainer, as has been proved for some weeks past by the sold out houses for these Sunday afternoon concerts.

This special concert could not boast of that fact, although a most appreciative and representative people assembled to show their appreciation of the earnest effort being put forth and the progress being made in the development of a municipal symphony orchestra.

The program for this occasion could not have failed to interest the most critical musicians and laymen as well. The orchestra has made remarkable progress under Director Zeitz, having been organized less than two years.

The numbers consisted of:

Overture—Leonore, No. 3.....Beethoven
Symphony, B minor.....Schubert
Concerto for Pianoforte, G minor.....Saint-Saens
Overture Solenne—The Year 1812.....Tchaikowsky
Aria—Ihr Baalspriester (Der Prophet).....Meyerbeer
Symphonic Poem—Le Rouet d' Omphale.....Saint-Saens
Einzug der Gotter in Walhalla (Das Rheingold).....Wagner

Possibly the orchestra was at its best as a balanced organization in the "Symphonic Poem" of Saint-Saens, but the Schubert "Symphony" and Tchaikowsky met with equal enthusiasm from the audience. The two soloists on this occasion were also Milwaukee people, or mostly so, as Mrs. Yahr was a resident until the last few years, and her many friends still hold a claim. It was gratifying in the extreme to those same friends to see the very marked strides and musical advancement in every way attained by Mrs. Yahr in her years of study and professional work since leaving Milwaukee. To the many new friends she made on this occasion her work stands out in an authoritative manner. Her voice is a full, round contralto, of good range and telling quality. Her clear and distinct diction must especially be commended, as not a syllable was lost in the vast auditorium. Mrs. Yahr responded to two encores, singing charming songs of D'Albert and Bohm.

Miss Ella Smith is one of Milwaukee's favorite pianists and one of whom one always expects much and is not disappointed. Miss Smith is an enthusiast of the modern French school and found the Saint-Saens "Concerto" most grateful. I. B. W.

THE SEBALD ANNUAL RECITAL

Mr. Alexander Sebald will give his annual violin recital at Auditorium Recital Hall February 23. This is the second large recital since his return from Germany and Paris to make Chicago his home.

Mr. Sebald will play on this occasion "La Folia," Corelli-Thomson; "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor," Bach, and a group of Sarasate short pieces unknown here. Mr. Deis will be accompanist.

Columbia School—A pupils' recital will be given by the girls of the school Saturday, February 20.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

Syracuse has now a symphony orchestra that is doing splendid work and its efforts merit the support of everyone interested in the musical culture of our young people. The mixed chorus and the orchestra are the two great musical instruments, the faithful playing of which will make any community truly "musical." The Syracuse Symphony Orchestra is offering the public a splendid music diet in its weekly concerts in Lincoln Hall. A program which was recently rendered is here appended:

Overture, The Force of Destiny.....Verdi
Aria for soprano, Here Must the Smugglers Dwell, from "Carmen".....Bizet
Miss Eloise Holden with Orchestra
Concerto in A Minor.....Grieg
Allegro moderato
Adagio
Allegro marcato
Miss Zillah C. Halstead with Orchestra
Ballet suite, La Source.....Delibes
Sarf Dance
Variation
Danse Circassienne
Group of songs—
In Fountain Court.....Russell
Sweet Winds That Blow.....Chadwick
Pastorale.....Veracini
Miss Holden
Mrs. Leslie Kincaid, Accompanist
Second Hungarian Rhapsody.....Liszt

The morning musicales presented Mme. Julia Culp in a song recital at the Opendaga last month. She sang songs by Brahms, Schubert, Rogers, Carpenter and Lieurance.

Many excellent concerts and recitals are being presented at the First Baptist Church this season. An evening of song by Leon Rice, with Jennie Caesae-Rice at the piano, was one of the recent attractions. Another excellent program was given by Professor Harold Butler, baritone, and Mrs. Butler, reader, with Miss Zillah Halstead at the piano.

Mrs. John R. Clancy opened her residence on January 20 for a farewell recital for Miss Beulah Dodge, who is leaving for New York.

Mr. James R. Gillette has dedicated one of his latest and best organ pieces, "Grand Choeur Dialogue," to Professor Eltinge. Mr. Gillette is now head of the organ department of the Wesleyan Female College at Macon, Ga.

One of the best things the Arts Club ever presented was the program given February 1 by the Maquarre Sextet, composed of first and second violin, viola, violoncello, double bass and flute. The first number, the Haydn symphony in B flat, was a little ragged, but in the next, the andante cantabile from quartet in A, Op. 5, Beethoven, the players seemed to "find themselves" and the tone was beautiful and the ensemble most delightful. A flute solo and violin solo were well done. A sextet by Theo. Gouvy completed the program.

Soloists for the May Festival have been announced. The list is an array of talent which seems to indicate that the management will succeed in its effort to make this the greatest festival of musical feasting that Syracuse has ever had.

The University Chorus has announced March 4 as the date for its spring concert, at which time "St. Paul" will be rendered. The chorus is perhaps better balanced than usual, and excellent results are anticipated.

The following program was excellently rendered by students of the Fine Arts College on February 3:

Organ, Choral and Fugue from Sonata, No. 5.....Guilmant
Miss Anna Laura Richards, Little Falls
Piano, Finale from Concerto in E.....Moszkowski
Miss Sara Elizabeth Grace, Monroetown, Pa.
Vocal—
Were I a Star.....Hawley
The Winds Are Calling.....Ronald
Ouvre tes yeux bleus.....Massenet
Miss Elizabeth Smith, Syracuse
Piano, Scherzo from Concerto in E flat.....Litolff
Miss Mindel Roselynn Harris, Olean
Vocal—
The Hermit Thrush.....Albert Mack
Ich lasse dich nicht.....Joseph Seiter
Lullaby.....Cyril Scott
Miss Louise Dorothea Boedtker, Syracuse
Organ, Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique.....Guilmant
Mr. Earl Buell Collins, Sherburne
Violin, Adagio, Opus 34.....Ries
Mr. Theodore Rautenberg, Syracuse
Piano, Scherzo in C Sharp Minor.....Chopin
Miss Mabel Jeannette Dealing, Watertown
Vocal—
Elegie.....Massenet
The Lass of Norwich Town.....Bullard
Miss Margaret Ellen Nix, Cortland
Piano, Concerto in A Minor.....Grieg
First movement
Miss Marjorie Fox Reeve, Syracuse

The Philharmonic Society, Stransky, conductor, will give two programs at the Wieting, February 16. The soloists are Harold Bauer for the afternoon and Mme. Elena Gerhardt for the evening.

Dr. Adolf Frey had the misfortune to fall on the slippery walk and break a wrist. All piano playing is necessarily indefinitely suspended.

Miss Lois Brown of the city, formerly a student at the university and more recently a student abroad, has accepted an engagement with C. W. Best to appear in a series of about a hundred concerts as pianist in one of his companies. Miss Brown is a fine pianist and will prove a splendid acquisition to any company. ZENO NAGEL.

Shipman—Vera Brady Shipman will give her original musical reading, "The Lil' Brack Sheep," at the First Presbyterian Church in Fort Smith, Ark., on a sacred concert program Sunday, February 14. At a program at the Baptist church in that city February 2, Miss Laurel Stevens gave Mrs. Shipman's "Po' Li'l Lamb" with the composer at the piano. "Po' Li'l Lamb" is still in manuscript form.

Eppling—The choir at the Granville Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church is preparing the cantata "The Risen King," by Spicker, to be given during Lent. Miss Ruth Eppling is organist.

Mabel-Helen
ROGERS

HARPISTE

Concerts - Recitals - Musicales

Address, 1401 E. 65th Place
Phone Midway 6536

BROCK COLLINS J.
BASSO-
CANTANTE
1337 N. Dearborn St. Tel. Superior 3428

SIG. ANTONIO FROSOLONO
CONCERT VIOLINIST
Pupils accepted at Residence Studio—Tel. Drexel 5079
4318 Oakwald Avenue - - - - - CHICAGO

MUSIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

The eighth Symphony concert Friday evening, January 29, was an overflowing horn of plenty. With the very talented young Russian pianist, Tina Lerner, as soloist, the following program was given:

Overture to "Coriolanus" Op. 62.....Beethoven
Symphony No. 1 in C minor, Op. 68.....Brahms
Un poco sostenuto—Allegro
Andante sostenuto
Un poco allegretto e grazioso
Adagio—Piu andante—Allegro non troppo, ma con brio
Concerto for Pianoforte No. 1 in B flat minor, Op. 23 Tchaikowsky
Andante non troppo e maestoso—Allegro con spirito
Andantino semplice—Allegro vivace assai
Allegro con fuoco
Festival Prelude for Orchestra and Organ, Op. 61 Richard Strauss

The beauty of the "Coriolanus Overture," one of Beethoven's greatest works, was enhanced by the splendid interpretation and was a fitting forerunner for Brahms' mighty "Symphony," which embraces many emotions and the top lofty grandeur of the fourth movement was superb, and one marvels at Mr. Oberhoffer when we see him direct from memory such a work. It may not be out of place here to mention that every "Symphony," new and old, this season has been directed by Mr. Oberhoffer from memory. Considering the number and quality of the works this is a colossal amount of labor to be accomplished by one man.

Miss Lerner, a petite girlish figure, was another surprise. The Tchaikowsky "Concerto" is lofty in theme and full of pleasing qualities. Miss Lerner has a singularly odd and original finger technique which is very effective and flexible. Her shading was excellent and her reading of this concerto gave one the pleasure of an act from an opera.

The Strauss "Festival Prelude," full of magnificent grandeur, rolled mountains of harmony from the organ under Mr. Hamlin Hunt and accompaniment of full orchestra. Altogether, one of the best Symphony programs this season.

Sunday, January 31, Leonora Allen, soprano, was soloist with the orchestra. Her voice is dramatic and more than ordinarily powerful for her size and her coloratura work was very true. Her two numbers, "Softly Sighing," from "Der Freischuetz" (Weber), and "Mon Coeur" from Gounod's opera "Mireille," were followed with encores of "Maids of Cadiz," Delibes, and Cadman's "Land of the Sky Blue Water."

The first orchestra number of the program was "Triumphal March," by Otto Krausse, a member of the orchestra, and was the result of Mr. Oberhoffer some time ago offering a reward to the first man in the orchestra who would bring him a march suitable for a popular concert. The composition is thoroughly original and very good.

Two other excellent numbers were the intensely dramatic overture to "Phedre" (Massenet) with its wondrous love theme by strings and true Wagnerian effect of drums responding with the fate motif, and the "Adagio" from Beethoven's Ballet Suite "Prometheus," with a charming 'cello solo played by Cornelius van Vliet. The Liszt "Polonaise No 2" in E major, and Chopin's suite, "Impressions of Italy," parts of which were melodiously pleasing, made up the rest of the program.

Monday, February 1, Miss Florence MacBeth gave an operatic and concert program in recital at the Auditorium. Her program embraced groups of French, German and English songs and several arias and she was assisted by Leonardo de Lorenzo, flutist, and Carrie Zumbach Bliss, accompanist. Miss MacBeth is a delightfully sweet, natural young woman who does all her work in good style and artistic finish. The audience was large and appreciative and was favored with several encores.

The Thursday Musical, February 4, had several changes made in the program at the last minute owing to sickness of some of the participants. Mrs. Wilma Anderson Gilman, the well known pianist, gave several numbers and also accompanied her sister, Ruth Anderson, the violinist, and their work was very good. Mrs. C. H. Kinnard as the substitute for a sick member, gave a group of Scotch songs that made the hit of the afternoon.

February 7 the Sixteenth Popular Concert gave us Hamlin Hunt, organist, as soloist. The orchestral numbers were "Norwegian Bridal Procession" (Grieg); "Overture to William Tell" (Rossini); Overture-Fantasy, "Romeo and Juliet" (Tchaikowsky); "Roumanian Rhapsody" (Enesco); "Three Hungarian Dances" by Brahms, and a novelty in the shape of the "Symphony Concertante" for four violins and orchestra by Maurer. Richard Czerwony, George Klass, Adolphe Dumont and Franz Dicks were the soloists and it was one of the most enjoyable numbers heard during the winter.

Mr. Hunt played a "Fantasy Dialogue" for organ and orchestra by Boellman, a big showy composition well suited to the time and place.

Monday, February 8, a "Novelty Evening" was given by Cornelius van Vliet, 'cellist, and Harrison Wall Johnson, pianist, at which the following program was rendered.

Sonata—A minor, Op. 116 for 'cello and piano. Reger
Allegro Moderato
Presto
Largo
Allegretto con grazia
Voiles Debussy
Minstrels Debussy
Capriccio Op. 2, No. 4.....Dohnanyi
(For Piano)
The Confession (from Carnival Scenes).....Kampf
Legende, Op. 11, No. 1.....Jeral
Intermezzo, Op. 11, No. 2.....Jeral
(For 'Cello)
Sonata—D minor, Op. 22 for 'cello and piano. Thuille
Allegro energico, ma non troppo presto
Adagio
Allegro, ma non troppo

The Reger "Sonata" had some excellent features but the first movement was too long and too variegated in its working. The last three movements contained much that was pleasing, but as a whole it was tiresome. The Thuille "Sonata" was good with a beautiful flowing melody and rather unusual style. Mr. Van Vliet's solo numbers were of pleasing variety and played in his usual finished manner. He is doing a great deal this season in introducing many new works and it is a matter of wonderment how he does so much so well.

Mr. Johnson played the two Debussy numbers with his characteristic refinement and good judgment; the writer being partial to Debussy as a modern composer, found great enjoyment in the splendid interpretation. The Dohnanyi piece had a bewitchingly energetic rhythm and the whole recital was one to be remembered with pleasure.

MRS. W. C. VAN KIRK.

ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA

For his February program of music of living American composers, Albert H. Dowling, Jr., organist of the First Unitarian Church, played a recital of the works of Victor Herbert. Mr. Dowling arranged all of the numbers for the organ, among which were included the "Prelude" to the third act of "Natoma" and the "Habanera" from the same opera. Mr. Dowling preceded his recital with a brief sketch of Victor Herbert and his music.

The Erie Choral Society made its debut in concert last Tuesday evening at which time they presented a "Made in America" program. This new organization, which has been in existence but a little over three months, made one of the biggest hits within the memory of Erie musicians. The public is unanimous in the verdict that the singing of the Erie Choral Society in this its first appearance was the finest chorus work ever heard in the city. Mr. Vincent is indeed to be congratulated on the brilliant success of last Tuesday evening, for he has been tireless in his efforts to organize a chorus that would be a pride to any city.

The numbers included Mr. Vincent's own "Wedding Bells" with soprano obligato sung by Mrs. Charles McKean, "Old Kentucky Home" and Cook's "Swing Along," Nevin's "Day in Venice," exquisitely sung by the ladies of the chorus, and Carl Busch's "American Flag." Clyde Miller, baritone; Franz Kohler, violinist; Charles Hooper, tenor, and Mrs. McKean, soprano, were the soloists of the evening and all were heard to splendid advantage. Mrs. Charles McKean sang a group of songs by Erie composers, "Bring Her Again to Me," by Harry Burleigh; "Evensong," by Albert Dowling, and "Love's Day," by Mr. Vincent. Mrs. McKean was in excellent voice and her singing of this group surpassed anything she has ever done in her very successful career as a singer. She seemed to give of her very best to bring out every mood of the songs by local composers. The evening was a festive one and enthusiasm was unbounded throughout the entire program. The Erie Choral Society and its "Made in America" program was an unqualified success!

h h h

Victor Vaughn Lytle gave the second one of his vespers organ recitals Sunday afternoon, February 7, and the program included some very interesting numbers, among them being the "Giant" fugue of Bach, and the "Andante" from Tchaikowsky's "String Quartet." As usual, Mr. Lytle's playing was marked by faultless technique and tasteful musicianship.
A. H. D., JR.

American Conservatory—The second lecture recital on "The Development of Chamber Music" will be given by Adolf Weidig at Kimball Hall, February 20, at 3:15.

Little Theater—Beginning February 16, a two weeks' revival of George Bernard Shaw's play, "The Philanderer," will be given at the Chicago Little Theater.

DETROIT, MICH

Among the many musical programs given in Detroit the past few weeks have been four decidedly interesting ones, perhaps because they were distinctly Detroit. The first given December 11 by the Orpheus Club, an organization of 26 men who are doing the finest kind of work under Charles Frederic Morse, whose musicianship is of the highest standard and whose personality plainly dominates the club. For big works their number is a little small, but a man's voice is not the only requisite for entrance. He must have an all round fitness for the close comradeship of the club, and as a result there is a delightful oneness in the way they do things. Five part songs by Elgar were particularly telling as was MacDowell's "From the Sea." They presented Miss Florence Hinkle. One pleasure giving feature of the evening was the playing of the club's accompanist, Miss Harriet Ingersoll. Her accompaniments both for the club and for Miss Hinkle were a joy.

On January 19 the Tuesday Musical gave the morning to Detroit composers. Perhaps the most pretentious number was a "Trio" for piano, violin and 'cello by Abram Ray Tyler, and given a vigorous reading by the composer at the piano with that fine veteran among violinists, William Yunch, and Louis Motto, 'cellist of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. An "Elegie in A flat" played by the composer, Charles Frederick Morse, was distinctly individual, as was "An Oriental Song" by Miss Jessie P. Pease, splendidly interpreted by Marshall Pease, baritone. In many hands a musical reading leaves the audience at sea as to which they heard, the poem or the accompaniment. "La Princess Pointaine," set to music by Guy Bevier Williams, was so beautifully read by Miss Stoddard that we have only a recollection of a most fitting background discriminatingly played by the composer.

On January 21 the third concert by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Weston Gales, conductor, was given. When one realizes that this institution is in its early infancy and that the bulk of its players are business men first, the results are quite astounding. Either Weston Gales is a phenomenal man or there is a world of musical ability in Detroit. It may be a combination of both. If anything will test an orchestra it is an adagio movement. There if anywhere rough tone and poor playing will be in evidence, but the adagio and largo movements of Dvorak's "New World Symphony" suffered not at their hands. Instead, they were given in truly splendid style. Detroit is really going to back up this organization as it deserves, because they realize that there is the beginning of something big in it. For that matter they have the bigness now, for Weston Gales has the physique of a football coach and evidently has the same grip on his players, for they are certainly training well.

On January 26 Mrs. Eleanor Hazzard Peacock, soprano, was heard in song recital. A voice of lovely quality is hers. Of long residence in Detroit, she was received with warm enthusiasm and should be both for her work and because she has won much of honor in the world at large as a singer. Mrs. John Raymond Mann was her efficient accompanist.

There has been quite a wealth of outside talent, including the Flonzaley Quartet, the Boston and Philadelphia and New York Symphony Orchestras, playing to capacity houses; also Mrs. H. H. A. Beach and Myrna Sharlow in a program of Mrs. Beach's works. Much of worth is promised music lovers for the coming weeks, including Lenten musicales given by Arthur Linquest, Florence Hinkle, Hugo Kortschak, Werrenrath, Fritz Kreisler, and a May Festival which will bring several noted artists.

M. L. M.

BOISE, IDAHO

On last Friday night the Boise Choral Society gave their initial concert of the season, under the baton of Ward French, the newly elected director of the music in the high school and with Sybil Sammis-MacDermid and her husband, James MacDermid, as the soloists.

This, however, was not the initial appearance of Mr. French as director in this city, but he again scored a hit, by ability to pull the society through the rough places, and by his all-round conducting. At all times he had fine control of his singers, and produced splendid effects in color, variety and attack.

A small string orchestra, under the direction of Eugene Farmer did much to assist the production. The program consisted of works by Elgar, Wilson, Strauss and Wallace, a program that was of excellent choice, inasmuch as the society was able to sing it.

Mme. MacDermid delighted the audience with her extra fine singing, and proved herself worthy of all that has been said of her, and more. Her dramatic songs were done in a style that was original, possessed tonal beauty and musicianship. Her singing of her husband's songs proved a real delight, for in this group Mr. and Mrs. MacDermid work together as one thought, and the result was indeed a pleasing one.

The Boise Choral Society expects to give the "Creation" in the spring under the direction of Mr. French.

Mrs. R. S. Adams and Miss Avis Brink proved satisfactory accompanists.

On next Wednesday evening Thalia Choir of the First Methodist Church with Dwight E. Cook, tenor, as director, will give the "Messiah" in part, using for soloists Avis Cole, soprano; Alice Mack, contralto; Ward French, basso, and Mr. Cook, director, will sing the tenor roles.

This should prove a very interesting attraction as it is given without charge or collection, and Mr. Cook is to be congratulated upon his efforts of bringing good music before the public in such a manner that all may take advantage of it.

O. C. J.

Craig—Mr. John Howard Craig's "Pilgrim's Message" is to be sung next Sunday night at the First M. E. Church at Austin, under direction of H. W. Owens, and at the First Congregational Church, Oak Park, under direction of Mr. Carl D. Kinsey.

Lahee—The Lahee Bureau in the Fine Arts Building announces for the coming season the following artists: Glenn Dillard Gunn, Madame Carolina White, Madame Alice Zepilli, Thaddeus De Wronski, Raoul B. Bonnana and Giuseppe Fabbrini.

OSAGE, IOWA

The musical event of the season so far was the first concert given by the Treble Clef Club of the seminary, under the direction of Frank Parker at the Congregational Church Thursday, January 28. The following program was excellently given, the club having as assisting soloists Frances Cordes, soprano, and Florence C. Fennessy, pianist.

The program is as follows:

In May Horatio Parker
Wanderer's Night Song.....Rubinstein
The Angelus Chaminade

Treble Clef Club
Two Duets for Soprano and Baritone—
Night Hymn at Sea.....Goring-Thomas
Passage Bird's Farewell.....Hildach
Miss Cordes and Mr. Parker

Six Choruses for Women's Voices.....Rachmaninoff Night
The Lonely Pine
Sleeping Waves
The Captive
The Angel
Glorious Forever

Treble Clef Club
Solos for Piano—
Prelude in G Minor.....Rachmaninoff
Menuet Paderewski

Miss Fennessy
The Princess of Ys
A Cantata for Soprano Solo and Four-Part Women's Chorus
The music by Henry K. Hadley, Conductor San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. The poem by Ethel Watts Mumford
Miss Cordes and the Treble Clef Club
q q q

Warren Proctor, the young Chicago tenor, who is fast making a name for himself, gave a song recital at the Sprague Opera House January 21. His program included the "Elijah" aria, "If with All Your Hearts," a group of German songs, and the "Pagliacci" "Lament," and he disclosed a beautiful voice, fine enunciation, good style and much interpretative ability. Miss Florence C. Fennessy furnished excellent accompaniments.

q q q

Frank Parker, the director of the Music Department of the Seminary, presented several of his voice students in recital at the Baptist Church January 14, when a fine program was given by Miss Cordes, Miss Addington, Miss Rucker, Miss Koop, and Miss Gardner. q q q

The Seminary Treble Clef Club will give a second concert April 8, when Deems Taylor's "Highwayman" will be presented. In the arrangement for three part women's chorus, Frank Parker, the director, has engaged Marion Green, the Chicago baritone, for the solo part.

TIFFIN, OHIO

The University Oratorio Society, Tiffin, Ohio, under the direction of Prof. Frank W. Gillis, had its greatest triumph in the concert of "Samson and Delilah" in Rickly Chapel February 3. The soloists were Miss Esther Plumb, Mr. David Dunbar and Edward Clarke, all of Chicago. A small orchestra supplemented the very efficient work of Miss Helen M. Tarr at the organ and Helen Weber at the piano. The violin players were all students of Professor Steurmer of the Heidelberg Conservatory of Music.

The chorus has improved wonderfully in the last three years and one could not help appreciating the richness and mellowness of tone quality and the shading and general expressiveness of the rendition of the choruses.—From the Tiffin Daily Advertiser, February 5.

Music News

CHICAGO, AMERICA

FEBRUARY 26, 1915

Dedicated to Mme. Chaila

NORSE MAIDEN'S LAMENT.

Words by Susanna Massey

Music by C. D. Heckscher.

p temprando harp.

So far, far a - way from the Northland.

Weeping, and in sad - ness I wan-der!

For-est of dark pine stand-eth ev-er.

C D H 7-3

Copyright 1915 by BOOSEY & CO.

One of the Group of Charming Songs composed by
CELESTE D. HECKSCHER

Sung at nearly all her concert appearances by Mme. Marie Narelle, the Irish-Australian Soprano

Sung by

Florence Hinkle - - - Soprano
Stella Barre - - - Soprano
Eva Mylott - Australian Contralto

In the Repertoire of the late American Soprano
LILLIAN NORDICA

Valparaiso University School of Music

(Accredited)

VALPARAISO, INDIANA

The University School of Music offers courses in Piano, Voice, Violin, Organ, Theory, and Public School Music.

Students may attend the Music School and also take the regular work at the University.

The Expenses are the Lowest

Tuition, $35.00 per quarter of twelve weeks. Board with Furnished Room, $1.80 to $3.00 per week. Catalog will be mailed free. Address

HENRY B. BROWN, President
or OLIVER P. KINSEY, Vice President

42nd Year Opened September 15, 1914

HAND DEVELOPMENT

Ostrovsky Institute

64 E. Van Buren Street
CHICAGO

SPIRAL KEY AND FINGER EXERCISES

This miniature device for strengthening the fingers has proven so popular that it is being manufactured and will be the only part of the Ostrovsky apparatus to be sold. The price is nominal. Write for particulars.

Songs, Part-Songs and Piano Works by ELEANOR EVEREST FREER

(Pupil of Bernhard Ziehn)

Published by

William A. Kaun Music Co., Milwaukee, Wis.
Willis Music Co., Cincinnati, Ohio
Church, Paxson & Co., 1367 Broadway, New York
Clayton F. Summy Co., 64 E. Van Buren St., Chicago

Epigrams and Sayings for Young Musicians by Horace D. Hitchcock

A pleasing gift book for anyone. Unique and original.

The Evening Sun of Baltimore says:
"Mr. Hitchcock's work is more sayings than epigrams, for the author seldom sacrifices a sound truth for a pretty phrase, and that very fact increases their helpfulness to the student of music, for they offer him indubitable wisdom in serious and dignified form."

FOR SALE BY EASTERN PUB. CO., WASH.
Bound in cerise cloth, 75 cents Postpaid.

Concert
Oratorio

Recital
Voice

Cora Libberton

Soprano

Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago

Walter Spry Music School

Fine Arts Building

Tel. Wabash 6485

CHARLES E. WATT, Editor and Publisher

Published Every Friday at 524 Kimball
Hall, Chicago. Tel. Wabash 5595

Entered as Second-Class matter November 24, 1908,
at the Postoffice at Chicago, Illinois, under
the Act of March 3, 1879

CHICAGO, FEBRUARY 26, 1915

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

United States, per year, postpaid..... $2.00
Foreign, per year, postpaid..... 3.00
Single Copies, 10 Cents

On failure to receive The Music News regularly
subscribers should notify the office promptly.

Copies of the paper for sale at the news counter of
Lyon and Healy's, Gamble Hinged Company,
Summy's music stores and at McClurg's book store;
or may be ordered through any of our correspondents in other cities.

In New York at Brentano's, Fifth avenue and
Twenty-Seventh street.

Advertising rate card will be sent on application.
Changes in advertisements must be ordered one
week in advance.

All cuts made for advertisers are charged to their accounts.

Herbert Bailey, Business Representative

LIST OF CORRESPONDENTS

NEW YORK	COLUMBUS, OHIO
Abbie S. Fridenberg	George W. Whitehead
110 Carnegie Hall	Redpath Lyceum Bureau
For sale at Bretano's	MILWAUKEE
27th st. and 5th av.	Iva Bigelow Weaver
BOSTON	Mack Block
Lester S. Butler	Frank E. Percival
Steinert Hall	PHILADELPHIA
DETROIT, MICH	Walter St. Clare Knodle
Margaret Mulford	1523 Chestnut St.
871 Ferry Park Ave.	LINCOLN, NEB.
OMAHA	Sidney Silber
Goodwal Dickerman	Univ. School of Music
Arlington Block	NASHVILLE, TENN.
CINCINNATI	C. J. Schuhert
L. Drew Mosher	Schubert Cons. of Music
137 W. Fourth av.	LOS ANGELES, CAL.
On sale Geo. B. Jennings	S. W. Mountz
105 Fourth av. W.	1651 6th Ave.
CLEVELAND	ERIE, PA.
George Emerson	Albert H. Dowling Jr.
616 The Arcade	456 E. Seventh St.
INDIANAPOLIS	CHARLESTON, W. A.
Gaylord Yost	J. Henry Francis
Indianapolis Cons.	St. John's Church
KANSAS CITY	WASHINGTON
Mary H. Flagg	Horace D. Hitchcock
311 Studio Bldg.	2224 F St., N. W.
DENVER	MINNEAPOLIS
R. Jefferson Hall,	Mrs. W. C. Van Kirk
St. Mark's Church	109 Marlborough Hotel
ST. PAUL, MINN.	St. Paul, Minn.
Myrtle Weed	DRESDEN, GERMANY
802 Pittsburgh Bldg.	Anna Ingman
WICHITA, KAN.	Franklinstrasse 20
Ralph Brokaw	Papers on sale
WORCESTER, MASS.	J. Ries' Music Store
Lester S. Butler	Seestrasse 21
441 Day Bldg.

GEORGE W. MUNRO

Voice Specialist

Tel. Harrison 4577 59 E. VAN BUREN ST.

Pupils fitted for Church, Recital,
Concert, Oratorio, and Opera.

LOLA LEE LOVE
Assistant and Secretary

Mr. Munro Tests all Voices and Supervises all Work.

Languages

The Berlitz
School of
Languages.

Auditorium, Congress St. Entrance

Telephone Harrison 392

All Languages by Superior Native Teachers
Terms Reasonable. Trial Lessons Free
Private Lessons and Classes School or Residence
400 BRANCHES IN ALL COUNTRIES

Zoellner Quartet

"A Perfect Ensemble"

Berlin Staatsburger Zeitung, Berlin
Guide Musical, Brussels
La Metropole, Antwerp
New York Mail, N. Y.
Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City
Buffalo Courier, N. Y.

Coast to Coast Tour 1914-15
Tour Now Booking

Harry Culbertson

Fine Arts Bldg.

Chicago

The Compositions for Violin and Piano by

MAURICE GOLDBLATT

Are played by World Famous Violinists
For Sale by All Music Dealers

Bergey

Chicago Opera School

Theodore S. Bergey, Dir.
and Voice Teacher
Mrs. Bergey - Piano

430-431 FINE ARTS BUILDING
Phone Harrison 1595
Residence Congress Hotel

Music News

Vol. 7.

Chicago, February 26, 1915

No. 9

Editorial

PASSING COMMENT

In speaking of the multiplication of new musical clubs in Chicago some one said that it is a good thing inasmuch as new audiences are thus being made for the artists. This is very true—for, the artists come in a never ending stream and their public must be recruited in like manner or else they will sing and play to empty benches after awhile.

§ § §

A certain young artist of Chicago believes in sticking to one price for his work. The other day a club woman offered him an engagement at a less price, which he declined. "But," protested the lady, "we can get So-and-so for that price."

"Well," said Mr. Independent, "you can get good soft coal for five dollars a ton, but if it happens that you need and must have hard coal, you will have to pay about eight; so, if Mr. So-and-so at such a price will suit your purposes, well and good, go and engage him, but if it is I you want, you will have to pay the price I have set on my work." Wouldn't it be glorious if all singers could and would take this attitude!

§ § §

Another club woman in speaking to a young musician about playing before her club at a ridiculously low price, urged him thus: "Oh, you know we will keep it a perfect secret; we will never tell anybody how much we pay you." Was there ever a greater fallacy than this?

The price paid to every artist in any club becomes public knowledge in the club sooner or later of necessity. It is spread upon the records and cannot escape being known. And no club ever yet was known to engage any singer or player at a good price after once having had him for a trifle, and more than that the members of one club tell those of another just how cheap they have engaged artists and when one appears in any club at a cut rate he may be morally certain that the same price will be quoted to him when he is asked to appear before a sister club.

§ § §

Did you ever happen to attend a concert in one of that small group of churches in Chicago where applause is not allowed and where appreciation of numbers is shown by Every true teacher is a torch-bearer advancing into darkness. . . We cannot add to the general illumination of the world by extinguishing the torches of others.

—Charles Wesley Emerson

rustling programs? At first it gives an uncanny feeling of being in a crowd of deaf and dumb people but when one gets accustomed to it there develops a genuine and quite unique pleasure in the whole matter. At the Logan Square Evangelical Lutheran Church last week this was the order of events and enjoyment was very great indeed.

§ § §

Why do most piano and voice teachers in Chicago leave the stage manners of their pupils entirely to haphazard? In ninety concerts out of each hundred the pupils do not know how to walk on and off the stage; how to get on and off the piano stool; how to acknowledge applause or to receive flowers—in short, how to do anything necessary on the stage. A little class training would be a wonderful help in this matter and evidently Miss Bertha M. Stevens has discovered this to be true, for at a recent concert given by her pupils each one of them was discovered to have extremely good manners and appearance on the stage.

§ § §

After a year of waiting Chicago will be keen for opera next November and it would seem the height of folly to defer the opening any longer than that. A great deal of civic pride was manufactured for the Chicago Grand Opera Company during its existence and this may safely be counted on for its support next year.

§ § §

Meantime, there is not the least reason to imagine that Chicago will this spring support a season by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, especially in view of the fact that everybody knows that Caruso will not come even if the season is attempted. The Metropolitan will be well advised not to attempt it this year.

§ § §

Following the lead of Schumann-Heink, Destinn and other foreign musicians, Andreas Dippel has just shown his good judgment by becoming a naturalized citizen of the United States.

§ § §

Mary Garden has contracted to sing in concert in the United States next season, which is a pity. She is so much better in opera and besides when an opera singer once begins in concert the chances are small for a reversion to the opera stage.

§ § §

A splendid choice of head for the vocal department at Chautauqua, New York, is William Wade Hinshaw, who not only has a magnificent voice but has also had peda-

Chas E. Weeks Jane Bemiss
Basso Accompanist
71 AUDITORIUM BLDG. TEL. HIGHLAND PARK 927
at Gorton School

JEANNE M. BOYD
Composer Accompanist Pupils
523 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago Tel. Harrison 2074

BESSIE McALLISTER
PIANO ORGAN ACCOMPANIST COACH
Chicago Piano College, Kimball Hall Home Phone Austin 11331

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS
DRAMATIC MEZZO SOPRANO
67 East Division Street Tel. Superior 4358

Philharmonic String Quartet
GEORGE DASCH, 1st Violin OTTO ROEHRBORN, Viola
HJALMAR RABE, 2nd Violin CARL BRUECKNER, Cello
Address O. M. Swenkerud, 4243 N. Keystone Av. Tel. Living 3043

ADA JOSEPHINE MCGREGOR
SOPRANO
Concerts Recitals
343 5TH AVENUE, LA GRANGE PHONE 94

JENNIE M. TAYLOR
ACCOMPANIST
52 SEVENTH AVENUE, LA GRANGE
Phone 918-J, La Grange

HAZEL HUNTLEY
CONTRALTO CONCERT RECITAL PUPILS
609 FINE ARTS BUILDING PHONE WABASH 8988

AMALIA M. DEHLE
CONCERTS SOPRANO MUSICALES
2315 N. Hamlin Avenue Phone Belmont 1520

GEORGE KURTZ
RALF Organ Piano Accompanying
Sherwood Music School Fine Arts Bldg. Annex

Benson Choir Bureau
MAIE LOUNSBURY, Manager
with Benson Amusement Exchange 64 W. Randolph St., Tel. Central 3512

ROEDER EDWARD
VIOLIN
CONCERTS AND TEACHING
Vilim American Violin School 403 Kimball Hall

RALPH BRAINARD
TENOR
3833 N. Kostner Av. Chicago

PATRICIA ABERNETHY
PIANIST—ACCOMPANIST
Lyceum Arts Conservatory, Fine Arts Bldg. Phone Harrison 2074

PASQUALE TALLARICO
PIANIST Wilton, New Hampshire
Winner of American Pianists Contest Prize

RICE CLARIBELLE
SOPRANO
RECITAL, ORATORIO, CONCERT, PUPILS. 9th Floor Auditorium Bld

Harold Henry
PIANIST 426 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago
Exclusive Management HAENSEL and JONES, Aeolian Hall, New York

gogic experiences and successes far beyond the usual lot of singers.

Theodore Harrison, who will be a big card at the next Ann Arbor Festival, is meeting with great success wherever he appears. Recently he sang to very unusual appreciation for the University Glee Club in New York and the Orpheus Club in Philadelphia.

— # # # —

ILLINOIS MUSIC TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

That something really practical has already been accomplished in Illinois along the line of standardization is shown from the two following extracts taken from the President's message, which is published in the latest "Bulletin," a complete copy of which may be had by addressing the President, E. R. Lederman, at Centralia, Ill.

"Our Association does not in the least intend to legislate for the music teacher, and no attempt was made to make examinations compulsory. The certificates of efficiency issued by our organization will be recognized by the public, and will therefore be of great value for a successful career, and great numbers of those who find that they could not pass an examination successfully at present, will, by renewed study, try to earn a certificate at earliest date. This will, in due time, bring about standardization.

"The Illinois University will, beginning September, 1915, give one to two entrance credits for music. Probably all the high schools will now place music study, in or out of school, on the same basis as other studies, and the large number of high school students, who were compelled to discontinue music, will then have sufficient time for practice."

— # # # —

WORTH WHILE ACHIEVEMENT

The road to success before the public in any line of music endeavor is a long one and now-a-days young artists very often begin to feel that it is not only long and hard but actually also, that it has no final goal worth the trouble and time required to travel it.

But, once in a while a success is attained which is so emphatic and which at the same time is so clearly the result of persistent and conscientious effort that hope is revived in the hearts of all who witness it.

Such an event was the song recital recently given by Miss Jennie F. W. Johnson at the Fine Arts Theater, when she presented a program of absolutely highest standard, with the most utter sincerity of manner and with a truly fine artistic impulse, to an audience which must have been an inspiration to her and which was a thorough endorsement of her worth, both as an artist and woman.

This audience completely filled the Fine Arts Theater and was made up of the best musicians of Chicago, as well as the most distinguished patrons of the art.

There were present church dignitaries, educators, members of society and of the dilettanti in all the arts in Chicago, as well as many distinguished visitors from other towns of the state.

And, best of all, this audience was one which had willingly and gladly paid money for the privilege of being present, so that, besides being an artistic success, the concert was distinctly one from the financial standpoint also.

All this goes to prove, as said at first, that the days of appreciation for the truest and best in art and life are not yet over and that the young artist still has models by which he may measure himself and he may be very sure, if he but work as faithfully and well as have those who provide these models he too will attain successes if he but press forward without faltering and persevere always in his determination to be and to do his best.

WARREN N. PROCTOR
CONCERT ORATORIO PUPILS
Room 404, 59 E. Van Buren St. Phone Maywood 1615

A SYMPOSIUM OF NOISE (A contributed editorial.)

I have it, from one whose information is generally authentic, that for the last concert of the season Mr. Stock has prepared a program drawn wholly from the school of noise, to which our talented director, for several years past, has been inclining, indeed, has gone over.

"The program," says my informant, "will include such works as the Schoenberg 'Suite,' the Converse 'Scream,' the Strawinsky (well-named) 'Fireworks' and the most impossible thing Mr. Stock can find of Richard Strauss"—all of them works in which (were we writing of the same school of painting we would say) the "color" is laid on in blobs and blotches; so here the noise is hurled at you in crashes of brass, in brays of the big tuba, in screams from the trumpets, raspings of the double bass, and when, exhausted by the exertions of their fury, they subside and, perhaps, cry softly, each to himself, their very wailing is in discord.

The Converse effusion played Saturday night was a phantasmagoria; it should be named not a symphonic poem but a drivel of discords.

"Shades of St. Sebastian" (Bach)! Are we proposing to pension the fine musicians of our orchestra, that they may the better play, and keep on playing, stuff like this, while our great library of the classics lies almost neglected?

W. E. S.

Music in Chicago

THE CHICAGO BAND

Almost everybody loves a good band and even in such small space as that of Orchestra Hall, Mr. William Weil can bring splendid results from the Chicago Band, an organization of which the city may well be proud and which will do us splendid justice in a series of concerts extending to and including the Panama-Pacific Exposition, which is shortly to be undertaken.

MISS SABA DOAK

Other big thoughts are in mind, among them the providing of a movable band stand which may be set up in vacant lots so that the music of the band may be taken to all sorts of neighborhoods in Chicago during the next summer.

All this is very fine and it all, no doubt, was given a special financial impetus during the past week when the three concerts at Orchestra Hall were listened to by large audiences which also appreciated the music to the full and applauded most of the work vigorously.

If the programs were intended to please the public—i. e., the usual, unthinking public only, they were rather too stiff. If they were intended to show the best possibilities of the band they were all right save in the instances of a few worthless encore numbers offered.

Assuming then that Mr. Weil wanted to show real music lovers the best he could do, we must criticize him a little for these selfsame encore numbers. One especially—a sort of slide trombone effect—was particularly obnoxious, and all the more so because it was used just after the Liszt "Les Preludes" and just before the Tschaikowsky "Adieu Forets" from "Joan of Arc."

In the public parks, or at some of the civic centers such trash as this particular number might be in place—it certainly was not so at Orchestra Hall.

On the other hand, the really good numbers, "Overture to Rienzi" (Wagner), "Scene Espagnole" (Elgar) and the Liszt "Preludes" made an uncommonly good showing, the last named, however, being the least effective of the three in a band setting, needing the richer and more varied color of the orchestra for complete realization of possibilities.

The "Moon Moths" by Kussner were played delightfully and, following them, there was given a series of encore numbers which showed the band at its very best. "Perfect Day" (Bond) played as a trombone solo was delightful, a piccolo solo was thoroughly piquant and a "Trovatore" scene was splendidly done by cornet and bass horn.

Several medleys were played and certainly no one could look for more real satisfaction than was vouchsafed many in the audience by "Maryland, My Maryland," "Suwanee River," "Auld Lang Syne," "Dixie," "Star Spangled Banner," "Yankee Doodle," "Vacant Chair" and many other old time airs so well known as to have won the title of classics.

SIGNOR ALBERTO SALVI

In these things Mr. Weil is without parallel and also in the conducting of "America" and other airs in which the patriotic spirit finds play and which, last week, was especially in evidence.

Two soloists were provided. Sig. Alberto Salvi, player of the harp, with few equals, engaged for the C. W. Best Artist Series for next season, was heard in his own "Concerto" to very great advantage.

A "Concerto" may be as fantastic as the writer likes if it fulfill certain other definite rules of form, but, as this composition did not fulfill them, it seems that it would have been more natural to have called it a "Fantasie," which description it fits exactly.

But, whether "Concerto" or "Fantasie," the composition is one of much difficulty and much technical display and it was played by Mr. Salvi with splendid facility and also with a very nice regard for tonal gradations.

His reception was a brilliant one and for encore selection he played another work with great variety of touch and musical content, in which his good concert style as well as his fine technical and temperamental equipments made him distinctly fine.

Miss Saba Doak sang as her number the aria from the great Tschaikowsky opera and showed herself the possessor of a beautiful voice and a fine concert style.

Her tones are very rich, free and full and the quality is one of great sweetness.

Such is the perfection of her breath control that she is able to phrase most musically and her artistic feeling and knowledge are sufficient always to insure clear technical delivery, as well as temperamental coloring.

Not often has the Tschaikowsky song been done with more intelligence. The demand for encore was very hearty and the responses proved to be another musical delight.

Mr. Gordon Campbell was her accompanist and that is quite the same thing as saying that this particular work could not have been better done. C. E. W.

— # # # —

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

The series of concerts presented by the University Orchestral Association at the University of Chicago remain a large factor in the life of a great number of the faculty, students and friends of that institution, this fact being proven with much emphasis on Tuesday afternoon, February 16, when an audience which completely filled Leon Mandel Assembly Hall presented itself to hear the song recital given by Emilio De Gogorza, baritone, with Miss Helen Winslow, accompanist.

The reviewer was one of many who were compelled to take a seat on the stage or else not hear the recital at all. While Mr. De Gogorza is an artist of the highest type, he is no more successful than any other singer would be in trying to bring genuine enjoyment to an audience which faced his back. Apparently for those in the main part of the hall there was great enjoyment, for the singer was received with enthusiasm and his offerings applauded to the full throughout the program which was as follows:

Serenade	W. A. Mozart
Air de Thoas "Iphigenie en Tauride"	C. Gluck
En Calesa	F. M. Alvarez
Canto del Presidiario	F. M. Alvarez
Jai pleure en reve	G. Hue
Ménuet d'exaudet	Arr. by Weckerlin
Bergere legere	from XVIII Century
Venex agreable printemps	Bergerettes
Beau soir	C. Debussy
Voici que le printemps	C. Debussy
Serenade de Mephistopheles	H. Berlioz
Sally in Our Alley	17th Century
To Anthea	J. L. Hatton
When I Bring to You Coloured Toys	J. A. Carpenter
The Pipes of Pan	Elgar
Invictus	Bruno Huhn

— # # # —

Mendelssohn Conservatory—On February 23 Miss Clara Anderson gave a piano recital at the Conservatory rooms, McClurg Building, and this is to be followed by Margaret Anderson, March 2; Othelia Stenner, 9; Hazel Reid, 16, and Anna Swanson, 23.

FRANK Van Dusen PIANO-ORGAN
American Conservatory
Kimball Hall

LUCILLE STEVENSON
4438 Berkeley Av. SOPRANO

Edna Winifred Cookingham
PIANIST Teacher in American Conservatory
Res. 3856 N. 42nd Avenue

MASON SLADE
PIANO Christ Episcopal Church ORGAN
65th and WOODLAWN AVENUE

IRVING C. HANCOCK
Organist and Choirmaster, Trinity Episcopal Church
PUPILS—PIANO AND ORGAN Phone Drexel 6903

Mary STEELE
Hinman TEACHER OF SINGING
503 Kimball Hall CHICAGO

KENNARD BARRADELI
Kimball Hall TENOR Chicago

Harriet Case SOPRANO
COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Clarence Eidam Pianist
Ninth Floor, Auditorium Building CHICAGO

MILON R. HARRIS, Tenor
Voice Development and Artistic Singing—
STUDIO, 403 KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO
Summer Term June First to August First

Mendelssohn Conservatory
Carrie Scott, Director
Eighth Floor McClurg Building. CHICAGO

Stephen Adolph Erst
Pianist 1553 Highland Avenue

Gaylord YOST American Violinist
Address
INDIANAPOLIS CONSERVATORY

Marie Sidenius Zendt
SOPRANO Concerts, Oratorio, Recitals
Phone Drexel 2778 1140 E. 44th St.

Harry R. Detweiler
PIANIST Teaching Recitals
B'nai Temple Conservatory, Chicago
Pres. Columbia Cons. Aurora, Ill. Dormitory Accommodation

Silas Wright Mountz
Vocal Culture and Art of Singing
Lecture Song Recitals
Concert and Oratorio Basso Cantante
Studio 1651 6th Ave. Los Angeles, Calif.

M. A. Monzel MUSICAL COLLEGE
KIMBALL HALL CHICAGO, ILL.

ENSEMBLE CLASS AT COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL GIVES RECITAL

The Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art presented members of the class in ensemble playing in a recital at Auditorium Recital Hall on Friday evening, February 19, to a very appreciative and interested audience, in fact, the listeners present manifested great interest and apparently enjoyed the work of those who presented the program more than is generally noticeable at a concert of this nature.

Henry P. Eames is director of this class and it has been well known that splendid work was being accomplished under his guidance and many friends of the school and this branch of study have looked forward with eagerness to another public recital by this class. This affair of Friday night fulfilled those desires and the audience showed its approval throughout the evening in most glowing terms. Following an announcement which disclosed the fact that Mr. Day Williams, 'cellist, had been called on short notice to take the place of a student member of the class in the performance of two numbers on the program. Mr. Eames offered an invitation to the public to visit this class at its meeting each Wednesday afternoon from two to four o'clock and learn more about their work.

The "Trio" in C major by Mozart opened the program with Mildred Meents, pianist; Wilna Baines, violinist, and Alexander Spiegel, 'cellist, as its interpreters. It was played in a most commendable manner. A "Spanish Caprice" for two pianos by Rimsky-Korsakoff was given an equally finished reading by E. Bernice Ruggles and Florence Kough.

Miss Elsie Eidam and Mr. Day Williams offered a finely balanced, most sympathetic and highly artistic rendition of two movements from Grieg's "Sonata" in A minor for piano and 'cello. The audience applauded them vigorously. There was strength, finish and assurance in the rendition of Schubert's "Trio," C minor, for piano, violin and 'cello, which was played by Anne Griffin, Wilna Baines and Mr. Williams. Bertha Ball, pianist, and Marian Barry played the "Sonata" in A major by Caesar Franck, in a style which marked them as musicians of exceptionally high type and well versed in this class of study. Their performance was one of the brighter portions of the evening. The closing number on the program was the "Trio" for piano, violin and 'cello, by Rubin Goldmark, and was played by Dorothy Pelck, Wilna Baines and Alexander Spiegel. H. M. B.

SEBALD-LEVY

Alexander Sebald, violinist, and Henriot Levy, pianist, will give their third "Sonata Evening" in the Little Theater, Fine Arts Building, on Monday, March 1, at 8:15 p. m. Following is the program:

Sonata, Op. 29, E minor (prize sonata).....F. Busoni
Allegro deciso
Pinhuto
Andante sostenuto
Allegro molto e deciso
(First time.)
Sonata, Op. 78, G major.....Brahms
Vivace ma non troppo
Adagio
Allegro molto moderato
Sonata, Op. 47, A major (Kreutzer).....Beethoven
Adagio sostenuto
Presto
Andante con variazioni
Finale, presto

HAROLD BAUER

The Master Pianist Who Will Appear in Recital
Sunday, February 21, at Orchestra Hall

Writes of Mason & Hamlin
the - - -

MASON & HAMLIN CO.,
Boston, Mass.
Gentlemen:

It gives me keen pleasure to testify once more to the excellence of your pianos.

Since my first visit to this country, eight years ago, my admiration for these noble instruments has increased with each successive tour.

The instruments I have used this year not only represent the most perfect examples of the piano maker's art, but fulfill every imaginable requirement from the point of view of both pianist and audience, and are the most superbly beautiful instruments that I know.

(Signed) HAROLD BAUER.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS
are for sale only at the warerooms of the

Cable Piano Company

Wabash and Jackson Chicago

MR. NEUMANN'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mr. F. Wight Neumann announces the following recitals under his direction:

Albert Spalding, violin recital, Illinois Theater, next Sunday afternoon, February 28.

Josef Hofman, piano recital, Orchestra Hall, Sunday afternoon, March 7. His only appearance.

Mme. Julia Culp, mezzo soprano; song recital, Illinois Theater, Sunday afternoon, March 14.

Kneisel Quartet, third of a series of three chamber music concerts, Illinois Theater Sunday afternoon, March 21, with Rudolph Ganz as assisting artist.

Mr. Spalding's program is as follows:

Sonata in G.....John Alden Carpenter
Larghetto
Allegro
Largo mistico
Presto giocoso
Andantino Quietoso.....Cesar Franck
Hungarian Dance, No. 7.....Brahms-Joachim
Mazurek.....Anton Dvorak
Concerto in B minor.....Saint-Saens
Allegro non troppo
Andantino quasi
Allegretto
Molto maestoso-Allegro non troppo
Romance.....Albert Spalding
Scherzo Giocoso.....Albert Spalding
Nocturne, E flat.....Chopin-Sarasate
La Campanella.....Paganini-Spalding
Andre Benoist, Accompanist

H. RUTH EPPLING

Following is a program given by H. Ruth Eppling at her home studio last Friday evening:

Prelude, D minor.....Bach
Preludes 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 10, 15, 20 and 22.....Chopin
Rhapsody No. 6.....Liszt
Fugue from Russian Liturgy.....Gretchaninoff
Polonaise, in A flat major.....Chopin
Encores played were "Polonaise," in A major, by Chopin, and "Spinning Song," by Elmenreich.

MUSIC TO COME

Friday, February 26

Orchestra Hall, 2:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Auditorium, 8:15; Lewis Institute Pageant.

Saturday, February 27

Kimball Hall, 2:30; Chicago Piano College concert.

Kimball Hall, 3:30; American Conservatory concert.

Lyceum Arts Conservatory, 2:30; pupils' concert.

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday, February 28

Orchestra Hall, 3:30; Minneapolis Orchestra.

Illinois Theater, 3:30; Albert Spalding, violin recital.

Blackstone Theater, 3; Columbia School concert.

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Flonzaley Quartet.

Fullerton Hall, 8; lecture recital, "La Boheme."

Monday, March 1

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; popular classic concert.

Blackstone Theater, 2:30; George Hamlin, recital.

Little Theater, 8:15; Levy-Sebald program.

Tuesday, March 2

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; Bach Choral Society.

Myrtle Masonic Temple, 8:15; 'cello recital, Carl Brueckner.

Thursday, March 4

Orchestra Hall, 8:15; popular concert, orchestra.

Friday, March 5

Fullerton Hall, 8:15; Carol Robinson, piano recital.

Sunday, March 7

Fine Arts Theater, 3:30; Mae Doelling-Rene Lund, joint recital.

American Conservatory—Piano students of Victor Garwood and voice pupils of Karleton Hackett will give a recital Saturday afternoon, February 27, at Kimball Hall.

Central Music Hall

64-66 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

CHICAGO'S MOST ATTRACTIVE HALL, DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO CONCERTS, RECITALS AND OTHER HIGH-CLASS ENTERTAINMENTS.

Seating Capacity 700. Rent Reasonable.

For Terms and Dates. Address,

HARRIET MARTIN SNOW, Mgr.

64 East Van Buren Street, Chicago

(In Summy's Music Store)

TELEPHONE WABASH 8740

FLORENCE LeCLAIRE

Piano Recital, Central Music Hall

(Formerly Whitney Opera House)

Under Direction GLENN DILLARD GUNN

Sunday Afternoon, MARCH 14, at 3:30

MAC BURNEY PUPILS BUSY

Elsa Fern MacBurney, soprano, sang at an annual banquet of College Alumni at the Hotel Sherman on February 20.

Margaret Allison sang a group of songs for the Danish Societies on February 16, and was soloist at the South Chicago Presbyterian Church on the 21st.

Mabel Greene Myers was the soloist on February 12 for the Daughters of 1812 at the La Salle Hotel, and on the 18th sang for the North Shore Woman's Club.

The recent engagements of Grace Ann Yeager, soprano, include concerts at the West Side Lutheran Church on January 21; St. Basil's Church, January 24; Lawndale Ladies' Society, February 2; Christ English Lutheran Church, February 3, and St. Peter's Lutheran Church on February 15. Miss Yeager sang at the recent Fashion Show at the Armory, and has many concert engagements for the near future.

LEWIS INSTITUTE MUSICAL PAGEANT

The Lewis Institute students, under the direction of Mr. George Lee Tenney and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, will give, at the Auditorium Theater on Friday evening, February 26, a musical pageant representative of the activities and purposes of their school. The musical life of the Lewis Institute has been under the direction of Mr. Tenney for many years, and we know of no other educational institution where so general an enthusiasm for music prevails. This pageant is the most ambitious undertaking the school has as yet attempted. Mr. Tenney's musical generalship alone makes such a project possible. All music lovers of Chicago are familiar with his masterly work.

GRACE E. KEESLER

Grace E. Keesler, who is rapidly becoming known as one of Chicago's artistic and capable accompanists, appeared February 11 as a soloist and the accompanist on the musical program at the Calumet Club in Milwaukee. Reports of the concerts are very commendatory. Sunday, February 14, Mrs. Keesler was the accompanist for Miss Ethelynde Smith at the Fine Arts Theater. Her program included numbers by Wolf, Schutt, Hadley, Sinding, Tschaiikowsky, Hahn, Godard, Messenger, Ganz, Foster, Willeby, Fogel, Ward-Stephens.

Mrs. Keesler has made a special study of song repertoire and accompanying and her work has always been of high order, adding much to the finish of the programs.

CHICAGO ARTISTS' QUARTET

The Chicago Artists' Quartet recently secured a thirteen weeks' chautauqua tour, to begin about June 15 under the National Lincoln Chautauqua Association. Carl E. Craven, tenor, manager; Miss Florence Hedstrom, soprano; Miss Nellie Sturtevant, contralto; Miss Margaret L. Wisch, accompanist and reader; Alonzo Mosbach, basso.

Irving Park—Edward Clarke, baritone; Mabel Woodworth, violinist, and Doris Carter, pianist, gave a program for the Irving Park Woman's Club, Tuesday evening, February 23, under the direction of Fannie E. Warren.

Mary Lindsay Oliver

PIANIST TEACHER
STUDIO, MOLINE, ILLINOIS
Exclusive Management - HARRY CULBERTSON

ESTELLE L. RUSSELL

The Art of Singing

81 Auditorium—Monday and Thursday
Rm. Studio—3100 Lexington St. Phone Garfield 8448

Ralph M. Gerber

CONCERT ORGANIST
Studio—Temple Israel, 53rd and Michigan Avenue

Lemuel W. Kilby

BASS-BARITONE

Lyceum Arts Conservatory Fine Arts Building

ARTUR F. PLATZ

TENOR

Pupils—Professional Accompanist 523 Fine Arts Bldg.

HUGO GOODWIN

CONCERT ORGANIST

Pupils Accepted 3534 Lake Park Av.

H. Rowland Roberts

TEACHER OF VOICE

Valparaiso University Valparaiso, Ind.

EDGAR A. BRAZELTON

Brazelton Method Lieblich Pedagogics
Lyceum Arts Conservatory
Fine Arts Building Chicago

MISS ETHEL GROW

CONTRALTO

27 Kildare Terrace, Bayswater W., London, England

JESSIE KING

PIANISTE

Studio 416, 59 E. Van Buren Street

Tina Mae Haines

Teacher, Coach

Lectures, Recitals

4503 Woodlawn Avenue

CAROL ROBINSON

Pupil and Assistant to Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler

CONCERTS - PUPILS

25 Auditorium Building Phone Diversey 8142

LLORA WITHERS-BIGGS

SOPRANO

CONCERTS

RECITALS

510 E. 62nd St. Tel. Normal 718

ALICE CORY

SOPRANO

LAKE ERIE COLLEGE, PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Kurt Wanieck

PIANIST

AMERICAN CONSERVATORY

Permelia Newby Gale

CONTRALTO

FINE ARTSBUILDING CHICAGO

MAX I. FISCHER

Violinists

ALFRED GOLDMAN
CONCERTS INSTRUCTION RECITALS
Suite, 610 Fine Arts Building

The THURSTON TEACHER'S AGENCY

Recommends teachers in answer to direct calls from Employers. Has good teachers for any position at any time. Our free Booklet tells how to apply for a position.
A. M. Thurston, Mgr. E. R. Nichols, Asst. Mgr. 623 S. Wabash Av., Chgo, Ill.

ELLA JANE DERDIGER

VOCAL INSTRUCTION ITALIAN METHOD
French, Italian, German, English
407 Kimball Hall Chicago, Ill.

Robert R. Lippitt

CONCERT PIANIST
Carmel by the Sea, Calif
On tour with Frederick Preston Search

MRS. STANLEY WOOD

School of Piano and Voice
CHICAGO CONSERVATORY and
THE BIRMINGHAM, SIXTY-NINTH ST. and WENTWORTH AV

MINNIE CEDARGREEN

Violinist
4820 Kimball Ave. Tel. Monticello 2072

FRIEL MYRTLE

SOPRANO
ORATORIO RECITALS PUPILS
Child and Folk Songs a Specialty. 53 Auditorium Bldg., Tel. Birchwood 984

HANS HESS 'Cellist

American Conservatory Telephone Lincoln 7917

SILVIO SCIONTI

PIANIST Kimball Hall

EMMERAN STOEBER

CONCERTS CELLIST PUPILS
2938 Washington Boulevard Tel. Garfield 2192

F. Dunford Basso

710 South Central Park Avenue

Ruth Simmons

ACCOMPANIST TEACHER
622 North Kenilworth Avenue OAK PARK

BROWN

Helen Axe SOPRANO
620 Kimball Hall
Oratorio Concert Recital Res. Valparaiso, Ind.

LOUISE MATHEWS STRIBLEN

SOPRANO
Voice Building, Oratorio and Song Recital
625 Fine Arts Building Res. Phone Blackstone 1863

Grant KIMBELL

Tenor
STUDIOS---730 Fine Arts Building Monday and Thursday Afternoons
5418 Maryland Avenue

DR. FREDERICK CLARK

VOCAL INSTRUCTION BARITONE
83 AUDITORIUM BUILDING CHICAGO

WM. BOEPLER

TEACHER—Piano and Voice
Coaching of Professional Singers
714 Kimball Hall and 929 Edgecomb Pl. Tel. Graceland 3751

BURNS SCHOOL

MUSIC. PHYSICAL EXPRESSION and ETIQUETTE
M. ROSE BURNS, President
6314 Street, and Auditorium Bldg. Telephone Wentworth 3199

HARRY K. GERMAKIAN

YOUNG ARMENIAN MAKES SUCCESSFUL DEBUT

Mr. Harry K. Germakian, a young Armenian tenor, who has been in this country several years and who is at present a pupil of Ettore Ruffo at the Chicago Musical College, gave a concert last Saturday evening at Bush Temple Hall. Mr. Germakian is absolutely sincere in his entire attitude toward music and he is a thoroughly conscientious student.

He has mastered the English language to such an extent that he sings it quite fluently and he is adept also in various other languages.

He gave some of his numbers in English and some in Italian, while a very special feature consisted of songs in Armenian in which, of course, he is authentic and these proved to be of very great interest.

A thoroughly fine audience of countrymen of the singer was present and to these the Armenian songs were, of course, especially grateful and they were received with heartiest applause.

Kalfaian, a well known and very popular Armenian writer, was drawn upon for several songs and an excerpt from a Turkish opera by Chouhajian was sung as also the Quird song, "Stane Antran Pasha," arranged by Mr. Germakian himself and an Armenian song by Vartabed.

All this work proved to be vastly different from the musical idioms we are most familiar with, and equally, it was all thoroughly interesting and some of it perfectly fascinating.

Much of it was done without accompaniment and throughout Mr. Germakian infused it with great temperament and much dramatic instinct.

A "Melodie" by Gostaldon and "I Hear You Calling Me" (Marshall) were sung in English, while arias from "I Pagliacci," "La Gioconda," "Carmen" and "Rigoletto" were sung, partly in English and partly in Italian.

In these works Mr. Germakian proved himself to be the possessor of a voice which has great power and resonance in the upper registers and which will, doubtless, if good training be continued, become a thoroughly useful one.

Besides choosing so good a program for himself and providing also so interesting an audience Mr. Germakian surrounded himself with thoroughly capable assistants, chief of whom was Karl Schulte, a young violinist who makes on the stage a splendid appearance, and who plays the violin with distinguished beauty and power.

He gave a wide variety of pieces, including Wieniawski, Boccherini, Kreisler, Volpe, Cui, Martini and Brahms, in all of which he disclosed continually a most facile technique and a thoroughly fine temperamental equipment. His accompaniments were played excellently by Miss Patricia Abernethy.

Miss Effie Matthews played a piano solo and all the accompaniments for Mr. Germakian and a solo was presented also by little Miss Armenouche Hovhanesian.

The management of the hall should have been thoroughly ashamed of the piano provided. It was very bad, indeed.

C. E. W.

A RECITAL AT THE CLIPPINGER STUDIOS

Mrs. Jessie N. Baldwin, soprano, and Mrs. George A. McGaw, contralto, with Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, gave a highly enjoyable program at the studios of D. A. Clippinger in Kimball Hall on Saturday afternoon, February 20. These studios are among the most attractive and commodious found in the city and within them is being accomplished some of the best voice work in Chicago.

The audience which gathered on this occasion taxed the seating capacity of the studios and was enthusiastic in its approval of the singing offered during the afternoon, the accompaniments furnished and the interesting remarks proffered by Mr. Clippinger. He always has a few interesting and instructive words to say relative to the text, its author, the music or its composer of each song, thereby making each number a very enjoyable part of the whole. Likewise do his pupils show this understanding of the songs being offered, which is far from being the case in many recitals heard throughout the city.

Mrs. Baldwin possesses a voice which is smoothly produced and of beautiful soprano quality. There is confidence and an attractive style in her delivery and her enunciation is most commendable. We did not hear all her songs but "Villanelle" by Dell'Acqua, "Nymphs and Fauns," Bemberg, and an aria from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" gave ample proof of her splendid musicianship, well schooled voice and high interpretative gifts. Her voice easily adapts itself to the more coloratura type of song and her pianissimo tones were excellent at all times.

Mrs. McGaw pleased her hearers immensely by her elegant singing. She is possessed with a most pleasing personality and a gracious stage presence. Her voice is one of those rich, resonant contraltos to which it is always a genuine pleasure to listen, and she enters into the moods of her various songs with intelligence, assurance and sincerity, such as only the deep student of vocal art displays. A portion of her contributions to the program came in the form of such delightful and always welcome songs as "What the Chimney Sang," Griswold; "In My Garden," Liddle, and "A Little Grey Home in the West," Lohr. Mrs. McGaw has but recently entered into the activities of Chicago's musical field, and she should prove a most welcome addition.

Several charming and unhackneyed duets were sung in a praiseworthy manner by the soprano and contralto which added greatly to the enjoyment of the afternoon. Their singing was much enhanced by the excellent accompaniments played by Mrs. Orchard. Sympathy, expression, musical feeling and artistry adorned her portion of the program.

H. M. B.

Chicago Piano College—Marcella Walker, a pupil of Miss Louise George in the Chicago Piano College, will play a short program at the College Lecture Rooms in Kimball Hall next Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Her numbers will include "Sonatina" (Clementi), "Laddie" (Murray), "Lark's Song" (Tschaiakowsky), "Evening Bell" (Kullak), "Youth and Joy" (Schytte) and "The Riders," by Schultz.

87,000 Students of Art in Chicago

Charles W. Clark Furnishes Figures Showing City's Progress in the Art

"Chicago audiences may be compared with those of any other center, American or European, in the matter of intelligence and appreciation," said Charles W. Clark, the famous baritone, recently to a Chicago Post interviewer. "The artist who assumes that the city is too busy and bustling to educate itself artistically is badly mistaken."

"Something of the present importance of Chicago can be shown by figures," continued Mr. Clark. "It is estimated that there are 87,000 music students in the city, and, conceding an average of ten pupils to a teacher, there are 8,700 teachers in Chicago and its suburbs. Think of it—87,000 pupils—more than two full army corps! And Chicago is still in its swaddling clothes, not only as an industrial and commercial city, but as a musical center. It is reasonably estimated that of the grand total of 87,000 students, 15,000 are from out of town, and that number are here to study music seriously."

"During normal years between 25,000 and 30,000 Americans go to the European centers annually for instruction in vocal and instrumental music. While in Berlin I learned that in that city alone there were in the neighborhood of 10,000 from the United States. Paris, Munich, Dresden, Vienna and the other centers, of course, have their full share of American patronage."

EFFECT OF THE WAR

"The great war has kept the vast majority of these Americans at home this year, and I venture to say that their remaining at home will open their eyes to the fact that our instructors and methods of instruction are as good as those employed abroad, and in the future I look to see a smaller exodus of music pupils to the foreign centers. It is roughly estimated that in the past American music students have paid $6,000,000 annually for ocean fare, $6,000,000 for foreign music lessons, and fully $3,000,000 for board during the twenty weeks of their foreign stay. Just how much they have spent a year in amusements and the like it is impossible to say, but it is reasonable to assume that a great deal of money has been spent in this way.

"The commercial angle of the art in this city cannot be sniffed at. Of the 15,000 out-of-town pupils in Chicago it is safe to say that they spend an average of $500, and it is not stretching matters when one fixes the vast total of $8,100,000 as left here during forty weeks of every year. It is virtually an impossibility to have concerts without the 'gallery,' and it is the music student who goes into the gallery and balcony. And that pupil attends whenever he can; it is business as well as pleasure with him. His presence makes a big difference in the box office showings. The support given to grand opera by music students is very important. Of course, these patrons do not get their names in the list of 'among those present,' but they fill big spaces in the galleries and balconies, and they may be counted among the 'regulars.'"

TEACHERS GET $3,480,000

"I believe that $40 is the average amount spent in a school year by the 87,000 students for teaching alone. This amounts to a grand aggregate of $3,480,000, and I figure that the leading schools get at least half of the total spent."

"Everything is in favor of Chicago as a great music center. The city's geographical location is a big asset in the furtherance of the art, and the spirit of the people is becoming better and better right along."

###

MILON R. HARRIS STUDIO

The soloists for the Presbyterian Church of Rogers Park are Miss Ruby Saaf, soprano; Miss Antoinette Cleveland, contralto; Mr. Emil Nissen, tenor. Mr. Nissen sings the tenor solo in the "Wreck of the Hesperus" Friday night this week at Calvary Presbyterian Church for the West Side Choral Society, with seventy-five voices. Mr. Harris is director for both these organizations.

###

American Conservatory—Advanced pupils of Victor Garwood and Karleton Hackett will give a program at Kimball Hall on February 27 at 3:30.

Iva Bigelow Weaver

SOPRANO Oratorio & Recitals

MARY WOOD CHASE SCHOOL.
Fine Arts Building, Chicago.
Mack Block, MILWAUKEE, WIS.

H. W. OWENS

VOCAL DIRECTOR

WESTERN CONSERVATORY

Voice Teacher Coaching

PHONE CENTRAL 7804

JOHN DOANE

CONCERT ORGANIST

COACH-ACCOMPANIST

PUPILS—NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC

Phone Wabash 8988

COACHING—608 FINE ARTS BUILDING, TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

Private Phone Evanston 3074

MRS. MABLE CORLEW SMIDT

SOPRANO

CONCERTS

ORATORIO

RECITALS

Phone Austin 10273

5822 OHIO STREET

Carlile TUCKER BARITONE

ONCERTS

82 AUDITORIUM BUILDING

AFTERNOON OF PIANO MUSIC

With Harold Bauer, Allen Spencer and Olga Samaroff to choose from and with only one reporter available in the downtown field, one of the three pianists had to be canceled from the list, and as he had been heard the most in recent months Bauer was chosen to be omitted. It was intended to divide Sunday afternoon equally between the other two, but so fascinating was the work heard from Mr. Spencer at the Fine Arts Theater that Mme. Samaroff at the Illinois was not reached until her program was long past its middle point.

Mr. Spencer had a wonderful audience and he played his program in a way to prove himself fully worthy of the compliment.

A Courante, "The Three Hands," by Rameau, made a charming opening number. Beethoven (Op. 90) deepened the classical feeling, the Mendelssohn "Scherzo," Op. 16, brought a wave of delight, while Brahms and Chopin, each in three numbers, provided great variety and unbounded musical pleasure.

Mr. Spencer has never played better. His technic was in glittering order and his interpretative thought was guided as always by fine musical feeling and a mature intellectuality.

Novel indeed was the "Impromptu" and "Polonaise Americaine," by John A. Carpenter, and "Four Fragments," by Arthur Olaf Andersen—all these being still in manuscript.

They were played excellently by Mr. Spencer and Mr. Carpenter was shown to have a wonderful and thoroughly bizarre gift for mood painting at the piano, while Mr. Andersen was again proven a master of compact form, indicative device and artistic polish.

The program ended with works by Norman O'Neill, Debussy and Liszt—not heard by this writer.

Mme. Samaroff has a lucid and broad style and is capable also of effects of great daintiness. Her technic is remarkable but her appearance at the piano is much marred by eccentricities and mannerisms.

Her program was novel and interesting. Early classics were followed by MacDowell and Schelling, and the final numbers included "En Bateau," by Camille Zeckwer, and "Ride of the Valkyries" (Wagner-Liszt) which latter was played with much virtuosity.

Mr. Spencer, in his recital, had the advantage of a piano (Mason & Hamlin) which was a model of all that a concert grand should be. On the other hand, Mme. Samaroff's Steinway was a particularly harsh and unpleasant example of that make.

C. E. W.

First Reformed Hungarian Church—The First Reformed Hungarian Church Choral Society of Austin, founded by Sandor S. Radanowits, will give their first concert March 15 under the direction of William Lester.

Oak Park—A program was given at the Second Congregational Church in Oak Park on Monday evening by Helen Tenney, pianist; Eula Perrego, whistler, and Florence Cole, reader.

MAC BURNEY SERIES OF RECITALS

At Hamilton Park on March 1, Grace Brune Marcussen, soprano, John Rankl, bass-baritone, and Grace Grove, accompanist, will give this program:

La Dove Prende, "Il Flauto Magico".....Mozart
Recitative and duet, "Creation".....Haydn
Our Duty Now Performed
Graceful Consort

Mrs. Marcussen and Mr. Rankl
Erlkoenig Loewe
Mr. Rankl

I Would That My Love }
The Passage Bird's Farewell } Mendelssohn
Evening Song }
The Maybells and the Flowers }

Im Schweigen der Nacht }
O Frueling } Stange
Ueber Stillen Wassern }

In der Mondnacht }
Huetet euch } Von Fielitz
Im Lenz }

Mrs. Marcussen and Mr. Rankl
Mrs. Marcussen and Mr. Rankl
Plus grand dans son obscurite, La Reine de Saba
.....Gounod

Mrs. Marcussen
Angelus Chaminade
Allah, be with us.....Finden
Du bist wie eine stille Sternennacht.....Eggers
Under the Greenwood Tree.....Lehmann
Maiden in Gray Barnicott
Mrs. Marcussen and Mr. Rankl

DOELLING-LUND RECITAL

Following is the program of the piano and song program to be given by Mac Doelling, pianist, and Rene Lund, baritone, at the Fine Arts Theater on Sunday, March 7, at 3:30:

Variations and Fugue on a Theme by Handel.....Brahms
The Three Hands.....Rameau-MacDowell
Bourree in D Major.....Scarlatti
Aftonstamning (Dan. Fallstrom).....Korling
Nar stjernehaeren blanker (C. D af Wirsén).....Korling
Dank (Karl Frh. v. Levetzow).....Schonberg
Pensee d'Automne (Armand Silvestre).....Massenet
Etudes Chopin
Op. 25, No. 1
Op. 10, No. 3
Op. 25, No. 9
Op. 10, No. 8

A Dirge of Love (Shakespeare's Twelfth Night)
.....Canterbury
Rain Song (W. I. Lincoln Adams).....Hyde
Serenade (W. I. Lincoln Adams).....Hyde
(Mr. Hyde will be at the piano for his compositions)
Compensation (J. J. Piatt).....Lester
The Song of Tristram (John Todhunter).....Borowski
Danse des Elfes.....Sapellnikoff
Barcarolle Rachmaninoff
Arabesques on Motifs of "By the Beautiful Blue Danube," by Johann Strauss.....Schulz-Evler
Nature Awaits Thee (Martha G. Dickinson).....Warner
Rose Kissed Me Today (Austin Dobson).....Harling
Meditation (Oliver Wendell Holmes).....Harling
Give Me the Sea (M. W. Austen).....Woodman

###

GREAT ON DETAIL

It is always said of Albert Borroff that he is great on detail. There is no finer compliment to be paid an artist. The greatest works of art of any kind have the finest points worked out with the most exacting care. Especially in singing is attention to detail most necessary. It means correct time and notes, strict attention to marks of expression, as indicated by the composer, pure vowel sounds and clear consonants. Many times a song is ineffective because of wrong notes sung and time distorted. Again the singer fails on account of not observing strictly the marks of expression. Most frequently half the message of the composer is lost because of inability to hear indistinctly pronounced words. All these are matters of detail. A critic states that most of Mr. Borroff's success is due to the fact that he is "great on detail."

###

MINNEAPOLIS ORCHESTRA

The event of the music season in Chicago will be the appearance at Orchestra Hall on next Sunday afternoon of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

The program, as announced in Music News last week, is a superb one and the orchestra at this time is in perfect form and will render it in a like manner.

Emil Oberhoffer is the most magnetic conductor in the country today and it is always an artistic delight to see him and to observe the splendid interpretation he is able to secure from his men.

Katharine Goodson will be the assisting soloist.

###

CALVARY PRESBYTERIAN

The quartet of the Calvary Presbyterian Church will give the following numbers at their monthly sacred concert February 28 at 7:30.

Quartet, The Lord Is King.....D. Buck
Duet, Still, Still With Thee Faris
Mr. McGill and Mr. Carothers
Solo, From Thy Love as a Father.....Gounod
Miss Earnist
Quartet, God of Our Fathers.....Schnecker
Trio, How Beautiful Upon the Mountains.....Fearis

SUMMER SCHOOL Study the
Effa Ellis Perfield
Teaching System and how to blend Keyboard Harmony with Melody Building. Prepare with a Normal Teachers and finish with
EFFA ELLIS PERFIELD
the originator
Learn How to Teach
The practical teaching experience given in the Normal classes is invaluable to teachers.
Send One Dollar for copy of Constructive drills to be used by pupils for home work designed to be used for gaining credits.
SUITE 950-955 McLURG BLDG.
218 S. WABASH PHONE WABASH 4279
Chicago, Ill.

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF MUSIC

At the Blackstone Theater next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the following program will be given by the Columbia School Chorus, assisted by Anna Chinlund, pianist, and Norman Saxby, violinist:

Under the Greenwood Tree Arne
Noel of the Bressan Waits Darcieux
Sleep of the Child Jesus Gevaert
God in Nature Schubert

Grand Concerto Vieuxtemps
Adagio
Rondo

Mr. Saxby
Nuptial Song Chausson
Chorus of Maidens (Prince Igor) Borodin
Prayer (Boris Godounow) Moussorgsky
Solo by Louise Carlton

Pan David Stanley Smith
Soprano Solo—Charlotte Bergh
Oboe—Mr. Alfred Barthel

If I Were a Bird Haensel
Serenade Sinding
Concert Etude Rubinstein

Miss Chinlund
Spring's Greeting Koch
Sigh No More Ladies Foote
I'm Wearing Awa' Foote
The Year's at the Spring Mrs. Beach

###

Mixer—Charles Mitchell Mixer, violinist, with Mrs. Charles Orchard, accompanist, will play before the Women's Colony Club in the ballroom of the Auditorium, Saturday, February 27, at 3 o'clock.

NORTH SIDE TURNER HALL

The special popular programs as received with great enthusiasm by the crowds that come to hear Martin Ballmann's orchestra and his varied list of soloists. The soloists Sunday, February 21, were Jean White, soprano; Grace Desmond, pianist; Ralph Ginsberg, violinist. Perhaps a casual observer would think that Mr. Ballmann had little to do but direct, but from the number of arrangements and orchestrations he has to his credit it is safe to say he has a vast amount of work to do. Mr. Ballmann gave a splendid reading of Doppler's "Overture," and following it they gave one of the ever popular Strauss Waltzes, with good style and fine body of tone. "The Rosary," Nevin, arranged for the orchestra by Mr. Ballmann, was received with great enthusiasm, and it is well to say that he has made a fine arrangement. The "Turkish March," Mozart, and Bodewalt's "Dream Picture of the South" were especially well done and effective. Miss Grace Desmond, pianist, gave as her solo numbers Gruenfeld's "Romanze" and the Chopin "Waltz, Op. 42." Miss Desmond gets a pleasing tone and made a deep impression. The Chopin number found her at her best and she received much applause for her efforts. Miss Jean White, soprano, pupil of Mr. Radanovits, disclosed a voice of surprising power and of good quality. Miss White sings with much ease, and she made her varied numbers very effective. She sang all her numbers well, but Schubert's "Serenade" found her at her best.

Ralph Ginsberg is a violinist who should be heard more in the Chicago field. He has had many successes abroad and appeared with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, and during the summer season he made a very successful tour with the Hinshaw Concert Company. Mr. Ginsberg chose for his solo numbers Sinding's Suite for violin and piano, Tartini-Kreisler "Variations on Theme from Corelli." Mr. Ginsberg draws a tone of good quality and power and he has a very reliable technic at his command. The Sinding "Presto" and "Adagio" were well done. The Tartini-Kreisler number was played with much abandon and fine display of technic. Mr. Ginsberg seems to have plenty of resources to draw upon, for he gave a most astonishing and artistic rendition of the Kreisler "Liebesfreud." Miss Sophia Ginsberg was a capable second at the piano. She furnished accompaniments that were a pleasure to hear, adding much to the success of the program. H. W. P.

CHURCH CONCERT

A concert will be given on Thursday evening, March 4, at the North Shore Congregational Church by Palmer Christian, organist; James Goddard, baritone; Rex Underwood, violinist, and Mrs. Geo. L. Tenney, soprano. This concert is given under the auspices of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority (Chicago alumni), and is for the benefit of a school which they maintain in Tennessee.

RADANOVITS STUDIO RECITALS

The first of a series of studio recitals by the pupils of Sandor S. Radanovits will be given Thursday evening, March 4, at his studio, 59 East Van Buren street. Mr. Warren Proctor, tenor, will present the program; William Lester, accompanist.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF 1915 MUSIC FESTIVAL AT EVANSTON

Carl D. Kinsey, business manager of the Chicago North Shore Festival Association, has just made announcement of the complete plans for the 1915 Music Festival to be held in the Northwestern University Gymnasium Building at Evanston on May 24, 25, 27 and 29—four nights and a Saturday matinee, five concerts, the same as previous years. The solo artists engaged are: Frieda Hempel, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera; Florence Hinkle, soprano; Mildred Potter, contralto; Sophia Breslau, contralto, of the Metropolitan Opera; Margaret Keyes, contralto of the Chicago Opera; Evan Williams, tenor; Paul Althouse, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera; Clarence Whitehill, bass, of the Metropolitan Opera; Pasquale Amato, baritone, of the Metropolitan Opera; and Henri Scott, bass, of the Chicago Opera.

This year's festival has been arranged to cover the entire week the same as before, and will open Monday night with a performance of Mendelssohn's great oratorio, "Elijah," sung by a chorus of 1,000 singers. Soloists engaged for "Elijah" are Florence Hinkle, soprano; Margaret Keyes, contralto; Paul Althouse, tenor, and Clarence

EDWARD WALKER
Concert---Oratorio---Recital
TENOR 1325 E. 64th St.

Whitehill, bass. A young ladies' chorus of 300 voices from the Evanston high schools will assist at this concert. Tuesday night will be "Artist Night," with Pasquale Amato, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor, furnishing the entire program. Mr. Amato's success of last year the closing night makes him a big attraction at this festival. The next concert will be Thursday night with a performance of Edward Elgar's great choral work, "Dream of Gerontius." Edward Elgar has composed many choral works but the "Dream of Gerontius" is conceded by all musicians to be his best writing. The soloists engaged are: Mildred Potter, contralto; Evan Williams, tenor, and Henri Scott, bass. The festival chorus of 600 singers will be a big feature this night. At the Saturday matinee the children's chorus of 1,500 voices from the Evanston grade schools will be heard in children's and patriotic songs. Sophia Breslau, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist of the afternoon. Eastern critics are all enthusiastic over her voice and singing. A special feature of the afternoon will be a repetition of the beautiful children's cantata by Percy Fletcher, "Walrus and the Carpenter," which was sung by the children a number of years ago with great success. The Saturday night should be memorable in many ways since it is termed "Operatic Night," and Frieda Hempel, the great colatura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be the soloist of the evening. She will be heard in two arias and a group of songs. The festival chorus of 600 singers will sing operatic choruses and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock conducting, will play excerpts from different operas. In every sense of the word this evening will be a "gala opera night."

The entire Chicago Symphony Orchestra of ninety musicians has been engaged for the week and will take part in all performances and as in past years Peter C. Lutkin, musical director of the Festival Association, will conduct the choral works, and Frederick Stock the orchestral works. The program arranged for the coming festival surpasses festivals of past years in many ways.

STURKOW-RYDER STUDIO

Saturday, February 20, a delightful recital was given at the Sturkow-Ryder studio. Those appearing on the program were Mmes. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist; De Vore, violinist; Mr. Blatner, 'cellist; Misses Mildred Hanak, Mildred Mathews, pianists; Alexander Alison, violin; Darwin Curtis, piano.

The pupils gave a good account of themselves in the violin and piano numbers, and needless to say they have received their training from an excellent source. The opening number was the Schubert "Rondo in D Major," played by Ruth Hanak, pianist, and Alexander Alison, violinist. Miss Matthews gave the "March Grotesque," Sinding; Mr. Curtis, Schumann's "Traumerei." The trio, Mmes. Sturkow-Ryder, pianist, De Vore, violinist, Mr. Blatner, 'cellist, gave the "Romance," Sturkow-Ryder, and the "Novelete," Gade. The "Novelete" was well liked. Mrs. Ryder has written some very worthy things and the trio heard on this occasion made a splendid impression and should be heard again, for it is very attractive and original and was given a cordial reception. The Schumann "Sonata, Op. 105," was given a thoroughly artistic presentation by Mrs. Ryder and Mrs. De Vore. They had the work well in hand and they played it with ease and understanding.

DEVRIES' PUPILS IN OPERA

Herman Devries is rehearsing with his opera classes the following operas, which will be given in April in a down-town theater:

"Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni.

Second Act of Ambroise Thomas' "Mignon."

Second Act of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet."

Fourth and Fifth Acts of Gounod's "Faust."

The students who will appear in these productions are:

Hazel Eden Mudge, Mrs. Thomas Prindiville, Ethel Magie, Dorothy Cannon, Maud Churchill, Filomena Sarconi, Lillian Gottlieb, Margaret Gaffey, De Voe Keine, Messrs. Lemuel Kilby, Beecher Burton, Huntington B. Henry, Raymond Gifford, Cameron Stewart, Gabriel Martin and E. E. Stone.

The chorus will be made up of students of Mr. and Mrs. Devries and will number forty.

Earnist—Miss Laura Earnist will furnish the musical program at the luncheon of the Eighth Grade Teachers' Association of Chicago, to be given in the ball room of the Hotel La Salle, on Saturday, February 27. Miss Helen Gallup will be her accompanist.

CECIL FANNING Baritone

H. B. TURPIN Accompanist

Having returned from a year of concert giving in Germany, Italy and England, are

Available for Recitals in America after Sept. 1st, 1915

Address: H. B. TURPIN; Dayton, Ohio

MAGNUS FLORENCE R. RUDOLPH E.

Tone Production Preparation for Song Recital, Oratorio and Grand Opera. 616 Fine Arts Bldg., Chicago

EDNA DUNHAM

Soprano CONCERT ORATORIO RECITALS 131 West 81st Street, New York

J. NOEL FOREST, Tenor

VOCAL TEACHER 82 Auditorium Bldg. Res. Phone Englewood 7981

Allen W. Bogen

CONCERT ORGANIST PUPILS Kimball Hall Phone Harrison 4015 CHICAGO

HARRY S. AUSTIN

BASSO TEACHER of SINGING DIRECTING RECITALS 54 Auditorium Bldg., Wabash 9070. Res. 7154 Emerald Av., Stewart 5758

ALTA MILLER

RECITALS MEZZO-SOPRANO PUPILS 1707 Hinman Av., Evanston Tel. Evanston 318

DEWITT DURGIN TENOR LASH

420 Fine Arts Bldg.

R. GRATZ COX

TEACHER of VOICE 419 Fine Arts Bldg. Tel. Harrison 4865

Mrs. Charles L. Krum

SOPRANO 5000 Harper Av. Tel. Drexel 2986

Vivian Scott

Teacher of Piano COSMOPOLITAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC Res. Phone Oakland 4638

MR. and MRS. J. H. KURTZ

VOICE PIANO HARMONY 300 KIMBALL HALL. Pupils prepared to supervise music in public schools. Mr. Kurtz was Supervisor of Music in Chicago School for eleven years.

Edgar Nelson

BUSH TEMPLE CONSERVATORY

Agnes Hansel-Harter

Contralto Concerts Oratorios Recitals Woodbine Ave., Oak Park, Ill. Phone O. P. 3619-R

A N A D D R E S S

Delivered by W. B. Sloane, President of the Apollo Musical Club of Chicago, to the Ways and Means Committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Wednesday (Noon), February 17, 1915

Gentlemen:

Others who have addressed you with reference to music and its relation to business have told you that Chicago spent last year over thirty million dollars for music of one kind and another. But I have another sort of message to you today.

In appearing before you today for the Apollo Musical Club I do not, perhaps, need to say to you that the Apollo Club is semi-civic and that nowhere in America is there such a choral society which has been in existence continuously for so many years. The members give their time to the club without recompense and with unselfish devotion to the cause of choral singing. There are many men who have won distinction in commerce and in the professions who are proud of their membership in the Apollo club. Mr. Angus S. Hibbard, Mr. Philo A. Otis and Mr. Upton are among the former presidents of the club.

The achievements of the club are enduring and the annual giving of "Messiah" is becoming a national event. There are some deep things man cannot express in speech but can express in song.

Each one of you is probably familiar with the fact that the Apollo Club has devoted itself to the singing of oratorios and that class of music which is known as "praise songs." But how many of you have stopped to think that even three and four thousand years ago the singing of praise songs was the life of nations, the most important activity in which any of the nations were engaged. In the hurly-burly of business life today not all of us stop to think often about the value of singing, and particularly the singing of songs which never grow old, in the social and business life.

I am today going to tell you about a plan of world-wide significance which is now afoot in the United States and which had its origin in Chicago. But before I do, I want to ask you if it is not altogether true that commerce would lag if it were not for music; that industry would grow stale without it and that finance must have continually the refreshing which comes from the singing of that class of music which seems, nevertheless, to be of small importance in the operations of the almighty dollar. Is it not true, men, that if the human beings who make the commerce, the industry and the finance did not have frequent refreshing which comes from singing, business of all kinds would droop and languish? If you will agree that this is true, even in a measure, then what I have to say to you is very properly said to the representatives of the great business organizations of the great city of Chicago. Certain it is that the recurring times of song bring the sordid activities of men into refreshing touch with things divine which clear the atmosphere.

Even in figures of dollars and cents, a business which aggregated in Chicago alone last year thirty million dollars is important. In the United States the investment in the musical instrument industry exceeds one hundred million dollars, and the total expended for music is not far from half a billion dollars every year.

We of the Apollo Club have realized, as perhaps none others could realize, that this has been an age of materialism. Scant consideration is given to choral singing, not because you and all the world will fail to realize its importance and its value when they are brought home to you, but because you are so busy. You will be interested, however, to know the plan which I have mentioned is one which will give vast new momentum to general interest in music and thereby galvanize into new activity the many channels of the industry which depend upon music and its votaries. The plan, however, was not conceived as a business project, but, nevertheless, has a nation-wide bearing upon business and all kinds of business.

All of us have given thought to the problem of how the great European war could be brought to an end, and most of us have agreed that there is little use in talking peace to the nations which are engaged in the greatest war of history. Nevertheless, all of us are wrung with sorrow and keen with sympathy for the victims of the war. What seems more practical than urging peace, is the proposal to prepare now, not only in Chicago, but in every other city, town and hamlet in the land, properly to welcome the great peace when it shall come in Europe. Plainly that peace cannot be welcomed by bell-ringing and cannon shots. Whatever the outcome of the war, even the opposing factions will not feel the loud rejoicing is appropriate in view of all the misery, devastation and bereavement which lies in the wake of the war. But all of us will hail the advent of peace with the hope that it may be the Great Peace. But men will not be able to speak their thanksgiving and there is no manner in which peace can be properly acclaimed except by turning to the songs of praise which had their beginning far back in the history of the Jews and most of which were written at times of temporary peace. Nothing short of devotional music, the singing of praise songs and psalmody, can be appropriate expression of the mingled emotions of all the world when the inevitable peace shall come.

